MR. BLAINE is much interested in the political play going on in New York, and he is a most exhaustive reader of the daily American papers. He regards the Henry George movement as one pregnant with promise for republican success, both in the approaching election and in the succeeding one for president. If the republicans can only retain their hold on George, and George can keep his machine together, Mr. Blaine thinks any one of the four republicans who have been prominently named for the presidency can carry New York State.—Chicago News.

Dogs in Bavaria.

Bavaria has succeeded in doing what no other country has yet been able to accomplish; she has practically stamped out hydrophobia. During the last seven years there have been only three deaths of human beings from hydrophobia in a population numbering close upon 4,000,000; and since 1876, when the present severe dog laws came into operation, there has never been more than one death in a year. Previously to that time deaths were very frequent. Between 1863 and 1876 the death rate from hydrophobia in Bavaria was never less than fourteen in a year, and once it reached the high percentage of thirty-one. The regulations which have banished this terrible malady from a whole kingdom are very simple, and perhaps some little vexatious; but it is assuredly worth while to take a little trouble for so desirable an end.

Every dog in the country is bound, upon pain of instant death, to bear upon his collar a metal tally, upon which is inscribed his number upon the register of his district. The color and shape of this tally, which is really the dog's passport, are changed every year, and the police are thus able to see at a glance if a dog is "in order." Once a month all dogs have to be examined by a veterinary surgeon, and if they are not in good health they are detained in a kind of dogs' hospital until they recover. If an animal changes hands, the transfer must be at once notified to the police, and any breach of the regulations—even a delay of a few days in the payment of the tax—is visited by a heavy fine. The tax varies from three shillings a year in the country districts to fifteen shillings in the large towns.—St. James' Budget.

Thoroughly tried.—After many years of experience in my own family and upon my horses and cattle I am constrained to say that Parmelee's Universal Liniment is the most complete remedy for the cure of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lame Back, Sore Throat, &c., in the Human family and of Bone Spavin, Sweeny, Ringbone, Spavins, Bruises on Horses; Caked Bag, Sore Teats, &c., on Cattle. I have ever known, and take pleasure in recommending to others. Large bottles 50 cts; common size 25 cents. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

DISASTER AND DEATH.

The Propeller Vernon Founders Off Manitowoc, Wis.

PROBABLY FIFTY LIVES LOST

Capt. Lewis Geboo, of Charlevoix, One of the Victims.

Dispatches were received Sunday afternoon, announcing that the propeller Vernon, of the Northern Michigan line, foundered, with all on board, about six miles off Manitowoc, Wis., during the gale early Saturday morning, while on her way up the lake.

As the wind was blowing fresh when the Vernon was due at Charlevoix Thursday night, she passed by without stopping, so there were no passengers from this port, but it was thought that Capt. Lewis Geboo and John Patten of Charlevoix were on board as wheelsmen. This was afterward found to be true as to Capt. Geboo, he having shipped at Traverse City, taking the place of Mr. Patten, who had left the boat at that place.

The Vernon has been running under charter of the Northern Michigan line, between Chicago and Green Bay, since about the first of August, having been put on the line to take the place of the Champlain, which burned in June. She stopped at St. Ignace, Mackinac Island, Beaver Island, the ports on Traverse bays, and Good Harbor, leaving the last named place Friday.

The managers of the line say that the crew numbered between twenty-three and twenty five, but they knew the names of only eight. Wheelsmen, firemen, and deckhands are changed frequently, and no effort is made to keep a list of them at the manager's office.

Following are the names of passengers that have been ascertained:

Clifford B. Bannister, Chicago.
Mrs. Dunleavy, St. James.
Miss Dunleavy, St. James.
Wm. Albers, Sankville, Wis.
E. B. Borland, of Milwaukee.
Chas. Krupp, of Good Harbor.

Names of crew so far as known:

Capt. Geo. Tiorp, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., master.
Capt. John Sullivan, of Chicago, mate.
Capt. Higgins, of Chicago, second mate.
F. W. Burke, clerk, eldest son of the owner of the line.
Charles Marcau, first engineer.
Frank M. Hall, of Chicago, second engineer.
Martin Bean, steward.
Henry Beau, porter, brother of Martin.
Lewis Geboo, Charlevoix, wheelman.
—Dutcher, a deck-hand.
Capt. Moran, of the steamer Superior, brought the first news of the disaster, when he ran his partly disabled vessel into Milwaukee for shelter from the storm. He told a reporter for the Chicago Herald that when he was passing Manitowoc about 11 o'clock Saturday morning the Superior ran into a field of wreckage that extended over the lake for a mile around. There were life rafts, fragments of a cabin, bed clothes, life-preservers, boats, everything to indicate that some vessel had gone to the bottom. Next he ran by four rafts to which men were clinging desperately, and then a boat containing three men and a woman was seen tossing helplessly on the waves. One of the castaways stood up and waved his coat as a signal of distress, but the Superior herself was disabled by a broken tiller, and her crew was at work struggling to keep her before the gale, and Captain Moran could not give the assistance of the unfortunates. On one of the rafts was a man who, despite the heavy sea, was standing and waving his hat to attract the attention of the look-out on board the propeller. When the latter shot by him without answering his signal, the poor fellow sank down in despair to perish. A mile farther south was another raft on which was a man half dead from fatigue and exposure. The propeller passed close to him that he could almost have heard her, but he was so far gone that he never once raised his head.

THE VERNON'S HISTORY.

The Vernon was owned by A. Booth & Sons, of Chicago. She was built in Chicago a year ago last summer by J. F. Smith, at a cost of $78,000. She measured 560 tons, was a passenger boat, and was designed to run between Chicago and Manitoba. A mistake was made in her model, and when she was launched it was discovered that the draft of water without cargo was so great that she was unfitted for the route. When ready for sea, her owners sent her to Lake Superior, and she was employed last fall between Port Arthur and Duluth. This year she was chartered for the season to tow two ore schooners between Lake Superior ports and Chicago land, but in June she ran her consorts on the rocks in the Sault and the contract was canceled. The owners of the barges libeled the Vernon for damages, and she was sold at auction at Detroit by order of the court, her owners becoming the purchasers. After the Champlain disaster, the Northern Michigan line chartered the Vernon until a better boat could be procured.

The finding of the pilot house of the propeller Vernon by a tug near Manitowoc, Wis., settles all doubt regarding the identity of the lost vessel. Her loss will be attributed to overloading, as without cargo she was a deep-draft vessel, and it was said of her to be impossible to load her with profit to her owners without making her unseaworthy. In order to obtain great speed her builder sacrificed buoyancy and stability, and every experienced vesselman who saw the Vernon predicted that she would sooner or later meet with disaster.

STORY OF THE WRECK.

On Monday night the schooner Pomeroy rescued from a raft fireman Alfred Stone, of the crew of the Vernon, about eight miles from Sheboygan. With him on the raft was found the body of a man who is supposed to have been a fireman. Although still very weak from the effects of his awful experience, Stone was able to make a brief statement of the never-to-be forgotten night. "I was awakened in the middle of the night by the cries of the passengers and crew that the vessel was sinking. I sprang out of the window and found myself on a life raft with six other persons; I cannot say now who my companions were. Part of them were members of the crew, and part were passengers. It seemed only a moment before the vessel had gone down, and I believe that all but a few of those on board went down with her. I do not know just how many people were aboard at the time, but the number could not have been far from fifty. We passed through an awful night. I think I never saw such a sea as that which tossed our little craft at its mercy. When daylight came we hoisted a signal of distress, using a coat tied to an oar. Two vessels passed so near us on Saturday that they must have seen our signal; yet for some reason they apparently made no effort to reach us. One after another of my companions perished in the cold, or was washed off the raft when he became too numb with the cold to hold on any longer. We never saw any others from the sunken steamer, and I don't believe that any others survived. The vessel went down so suddenly that the crew hardly had a man the boats."

TWO MORE BODIES FOUND.

Mr. Burke of the Northern Michigan line chartered a tug at Manitowoc to search for bodies, and on Sunday afternoon two men were found about eight miles from shore, one about twenty five years old, and the other about thirty-two.

Do You Know that the Horse and Cattle Powders prepared by Dr. M. A. Bauman are composed of the very best and purest material, Licorice, Fenugreek, Blood Root, Elecampane, Fur Coughs, Colds, Epizootic, Distemper, &c., Sulphur, Madder, Gentian, Sulph. Magnesia for Impure Blood; besides many other ingredients especially adapted to the cure of Colic, Worms, Heaves, and all diseases of Horses, Cattle, Hogs, Sheep and Poultry. Buy no other. Full pounds only 25 cents Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

PRESBYTERIANS

Place the Presbyterian Herald and Presbyterian Weekly, a high class Presbyterian weekly, unsectarian, able, and entertaining, in your reading rooms. Specimen copies free. Terms, $2.50 per year. Ministers and elders, $2 per year. Preachers, $1 per year and a copy of the sermon regularly.

"A Longfellow in His Library"

Engraved Frontispiece, Sent Free. Add 10 cents postage and receive a specimen.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We have on hand, in uncirculated sight, Fifty-three Thousand Dollars, in 5-20 U. S. Bonds, which we will sell at a premium of ten dollars per thousand, and will give $1.25 pay for the money for your trouble. Address, with stamp, for reply, and mention this paper.

HERALD & PRESBYTER,
172 ELM ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

$7 Send four dollars for a year's subscription for ourselves and our friends, and receive the Herald and Presbyter free for a year for your trouble.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.

—List of letters remaining uncalimed in the Charlevoix postoffice, Monday, Oct. 25, 1887. In ordering these letters the name must call for the advertised letter. If not called for in one month, they will be sent to the Dead Letter office.

Burton, G. F.
Cole, Joseph
Cook, Chas. W. E.
Coutts, Mrs Kate
Fuyer, Mrs Ann
Green, Jos.
Hanson, Mrs A. J
Hass, Mrs Jos.
Jackson, Mrs Maggie
Jerome, John J.
Kreckhace, Mrs Ella
Lee, Miss Delle
Lounsbury, Eugene 2
Lynch, A.
Mayer, Fred
Norton, David
Nilsen, A.
Ortel, William
Rice, Albert C
Riordan, Carl Thos
Shelley, Frank
Schneider, William
Slicker, Theodore
Sloan, W. H.
Smith, W. W.
Thompson, William
Tiner, John W.
Wrisley, M J

CHAS. J. STRANG, P. M.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

Hardware Iron and Nail Merchants.

CHAMPION FORCE PUMPS

PLOWS, BARBED WIRE, ETC., LEAD.

SAVE YOUR DOLLARS

And buy them of Yours Truly,

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Charlevoix Manufacturing Company,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Sash, Doors, and Blinds,

Screen Doors and Windows, and Mouldings of all Descriptions.

Newell Posts, Banisters, and Stair Rail, of Soft and Hard Woods, kept in Stock and Made and Put Up to Order.

A GOOD STOCK OF

PINE AND BASSWOOD SIDING

FLOORING CEILING, AND FINISHING LUMBER KEPT ON HAND.

Also Contractors, Builders, and General Jobbers.

Summer Cottages a Specialty.

CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN.

THE ROUND OAK HEATING STOVES.

NEW COOK STOVES.

Best Saws and Axes. Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

G. A. R. CIGARS

Are noted as one of the eBest 5 ct. cigars made. For every thousand sold here the Baxter Post of Charlevoix receives $2.00.

The Post has just received its first $2.00. Friends of the Post, try the G A. R. Cigar and help the old soldiers. For Sale by

F. A. COCHRAN & CO., Druggist and Pharmacists.

New Goods

A Large Stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods of the Latest Styles, just received. Call and See them.

EXCELSIOR MANF'G CO'S

FULL SIZE, WELL MADE AND PERFECT FIT

TRY THEM, for sale by G. W. MILLER.

A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF

NEW Dry Goods!

Received on the Lawrence this week. Come and see them.

B. SEE.

Bargains

IN

BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Nov. 2, 1887.

Local Notes and News.

☞For woolen hose go to B. See's.

Fisherman report excellent trout fishing these days.

☞For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kilby's. m1y1

Thanksgiving day is Thursday, November 24. Engage your turkey.

☞W. B. Flower, photographer, will close the gallery Nov. 12th.

☞A few ladies cloaks left yet; call and get a bargain; at B. See's

The steamer North Star had the repairs made to her machinery and was on her route again Saturday.

Lots of days in October over at Gladstone. The Delta came out last week dated Tuesday, Oct. 52, 1887.

☞If some of our subscribers wish to pay for the paper with potatoes, we will take fifteen or twenty bushel.

☞Apples, potatoes, cabages, squashes, or buckwheat flour will be taken in payment for the JOURNAL at market rates.

The boys band will prepare for a social party with music and dancing about Christmas time. The boys are well worth the price of admission on record as furnishing good entertainments.

The fire department daneas have been successful in the past, and there is good reason to believe that their thanksgiving party this year will be a success, too.

It is reported that one of our prominent young ladies was on the street Hallowe'en dressed in boy's clothes and quite a number of girls, who call themselves ladies took part in the depredations.

Henry G. Curkendall who was convicted in the United States Court for the western district of Michigan of having counterfeit coin in his possession, and sentenced October 9, 1885, to four years imprisonment, has been granted pardon by the president.

The business men's association met Tuesday evening and adjourned to Friday evening, at which time it is hoped to complete the organization under the new law. The matter of early closing, and other important subjects, will come up for discussion, and a full attendance is desired.

John A. Bacot died at his residence in Hayes township Tuesday about noon, of poison. It was first reported that he had taken paris green by mistake, for medicine, but later it is thought to have been suicide. Mr. Bacot has been a prosperous farmer and merchant and leaves a family in good circumstances.

At the examination of teachers held at the school house in Charlevoix last Friday Oct. 28, sixteen applicants were examined. The following eleven were granted certificates: Frank W. Ramsey, Edith Hemsworth, Nettie G. Gray, William J. Hill, Cora A. Freeman, Fannie Seibert, N. N. Card, Nellie Noyes, Mrs. Delia Porter, Mrs. R. C. Marsh and John B. Williams.

C. S. Hampton, secretary of the board of school Examiners for Emmet County, is now heading his energies toward the education of the youth of his county in a highly commendable manner. He offers the independent one year to the scholar who will send him before the 15th of November the best map of Michigan drawn from memory, the second and third for the best writing contest. He also offers a gold position, to be awarded by the board of examiners.

Capt. Louis Geboo was born at Traverse City, March 18th, 1851 and was therefore 53 years old. He has spent almost his entire life on the waters of the great lakes, sailing and fishing, and knew the entire life perfectly well. He said to have been a skilled sailor and has from time to time commanded good boats, both sailing craft and steamers. Charlevoix has lost a home for a number of years. He leaves a wife and two grown sons, and a large circle of friends and relatives.

Not a very proud sight for Charlevoix last Monday evening on the street. Both boys and girls many of sufficient physique to be called young men and women, skulking around the tower buildings and in back alleys, carrying off every loose article that could be found, hiding gates leaving up side walks, and signs, running off wagons, buggies, etc. If these parties were made to pay the penalty of the law in such case, by spending a few days in jail, or if their papas were made to respond in damage, some wholesale destruction of property would become more irksome than pleasing.

Purely Personal.

Chas. Geboo is at home this week.

A. J. McLeod is in Grand Rapids this week.

D. S. Way and wife left Tuesday, for Sterling.

N. B. Sheridan, of Glen Arbor, is in town to-day.

Chas. Gagnon has been on the sick list during the last week.

A. F. Myers went to Ann Arbor last week for treatment of his eye.

Mrs. L. Benson returned yesterday from Clarkesville where she had been visiting several weeks.

Rev. W. G. Clark and wife returned Saturday, from their visit in the southern part of the state.

William Harris, of Norwood holds the office of secretary of the county board of school examiners.

Henry Wade, Chas. Gotham and William Ferguson started yesterday for an outing of three or four weeks, on the Jordan river.

Coming Events.

The fire department are planning for a dance on thanksgiving.

The ladies of the M. E. church will have one of their popular socials at the church next Wednesday evening Nov. 9, supper from 5 to 8 oclock.

For the goodness and mercy of God which have followed the American people during all the days of the past year, President Cleveland designates to be set apart, Thursday, November 24th next, as the day of thanksgiving and prayer.

Rev. G. N. Smith of Northport, will give six lectures on "Life after Death," at Odd Fellows' hall, commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, at 7.30 o'clock and continuing one lecture each evening until the course is complete. Thursday evening, the subject will be "Man a Spiritual Being." Friday evening, "Resurrection of Man." Saturday evening, "The Spiritual World." Tuesday evening, Nov. 8, "The Judgment of Man." Thursday evening, Nov. 10, "Heaven." Friday evening, Nov. 11, "Hell." On Sunday morning, at 10.30, a sermon on "The way to be saved;" in the evening at 7.30 a lecture on "The Second Coming of Christ." The public cordially invited.

Eveline.

BESSEMER, Nov. 1.—William Henry has arrived home from the upper peninsula. He sold his team to the Martel Furnace company, at Ozark.

Mr. Hicks and family, from Wayne county, arrived here last week, and are now living in the Dolly Freeman residence.

Mr. Eaton, from Ironton, and family have moved over on the peninsula in to the Cater house and will work in the Peterson camp this winter.

Miss Bennet was home at East Port over Friday and, consequently there was no school in mountain district Friday.

Henry Hammond and I. G. Waldron took advantage of the excursion to Detroit last week.

At the supper given by the Ladies of the congregational church, at Ironton, on the evening of Oct. 21st $20 was netted.

The large Thow that has been carrying one side for the furnace company for the past summer, loaded with pig iron for Cleveland, Ohio, and left on the 25th. This is her last trip for the season.

The summer's cut at the Pine Lake Lumber company's mill at Dwight's was 9,000,000 feet of lumber.

The cut at George Sweet's mill this season was 20,000 ties and 2,000,000 shingles.

John Shoffen gave a farewell dance at their hall last Thursday evening. A good time is reported. The family will start for Chicago in a few days.

A letter received from Johnnie Morehouse at St. Anthony's Bay, Fla. states that Fred S. Hall is failing very fast with consumption, but should he get better the family will go to Georgia. They are with the family of Henning Frizzelle a former resident of Ironton.

Chas. Peterson will get out a large amount of shingle bolts, ties, and posts this winter.

The Ironton schools are in a flourishing condition.

Mr. A. D. Otis, of South Arm, is now employed by the Pine Lake Iron Co. as book keeper.

The Pine Lake Lumber company is a creditor of the Cheboygan Lumber Company that has just failed, to the amount of $2,000.

P. G. Jarman was on the sick list this week. Agne is the name of his sickness.

Chas. A. Belwin has just received a choice assortment of rubber goods and numerous other goods.

John Hayden and wife made the writer hereof a very pleasant call on sunday.

Railroad.

A meeting of the directors of the D. C. & E. R. R. was held at Interlaken Hotel, in Bellaire, last Friday evening, and reports from committees for procuring rights of way were received. The committees for Charlevoix and Kalkaska counties have nearly completed their work, and considerable progress has been made in this county. With few exceptions, owners across whose land the road runs, freely donate the right of way, knowing that this is the only practical method of securing the road, and that it will bring them much more benefit than the value of land taken. A few in each county, however hope to derive the benefit without rendering any share of the aid and the only damage to the road comes from that class, but we think our citizens have too much intelligence to drive the road away by refusing the right of way across their lands.

Some fault has been found because the survey is being made to Mackinaw, but the capitalists who are making contract to furnish the money to build the road, require such survey before furnishing any money. When that survey is completed and the right of way secured, work will commence. As it is well known that there is a strong pressure being brought to bear to carry the road through on another route, it is hoped our people will get to the front with their right of way and pay up their assessments, both of which must be done to secure the road.—Bellaire Breeze.

Burgess.

BURGESS, Nov. 1st.—Mrs. Burns, of Cross Village has been visiting at her daughter's, Mrs. Frank Snethen the past week.

Mr. Levi House has moved to Charlevoix where he has better facilities for educating his children.

Mose Cooper has bought him a yoke of oxen and expects to do business on a large scale this winter.

Marriages, serenades and black eyes are the rage now a days.

Mrs. Wilks and daughter, of Charlevoix, are visiting at Frank Kanes this week.

M. E. Church.

Our prayer meeting grows in interest. Be sure you come on Thursday evening and bring your friends; we need your help; you need our help and God demands your presence.

Sunday morning and evening, preaching by the pastor.

Next Tuesday evening bible reading at usual hour, don't fail to be there or you will regret it.

W. H. MCCARTNEY.

Barnard.

BARNARD, Nov. 2.—Farmers are busy taking in their potatoes and beans.

There was no school Tuesday on account of the new seats being put in.

Thomas Shapton is improving his place with a new well.

There was not much mischief done in our neighborhood on Hallowe'en.

The Russian Language.

Russian, it is true, is an Indo-European language, yet its analogies with other members of the same great family of speech are so obliterated, where not altogether lost, as to make the student's way anything but a pleasant one. Its agglutinated tract in which almost every inch of ground has to be won by a separate effort of the intellect rather than by any brightness of philological memory or dexterous sagacity, contains a famous law of consonantal interchange. It cannot be denied that many foreign words have crept into Russian. But this does not alter the character of the language, which remains, in spite of a sprinkling of foreign elements, wholly rounded off in itself.

No less troublesome, on the other hand, is the formation of Russian as a spoken tongue. Credited somewhat loosely, with possessing all the sounds heard in other Indo-European languages, it has vowels and consonants that are barely, even after years of practice, correctly enunciated by foreigners. The soft "ч," a peculiar liquid sound, the letter "щ" expressed with a single character; the final "г" and "в" sounded as "ф" are examples of a formidable character, and need mastering at an early stage in the student's progress to enable one, unaided by its inflections alone, one might call Russian an ideal tongue for the use of a people of modern times. Every word in the sentence must fit in, as it were, with every other; verbs must be in agreement—visible as well as audible—with their nominatives; adjectives with their nouns; and nouns with almost every part of speech. The Russian verb has three declensions, each containing three sets of forms, and no less than seven cases. The verb is more formidable still.—New York Mail and Express.

Hilly Sternly Rebuked.

Little Margery, playing with her kitten, got a rather severe scratch from the animal. Her lip trembled for an instant and then she assumed the commanding attitude and expression that her mother had assumed under somewhat similar circumstances toward her, and, extending her hand, said sternly

"Tiger, dive me dat pin!"—Boston Transcript.

THE WORLD'S BIG GUNS.

Some of the Monsters Built for the Ship and Forts of Foreign Powers.

The progress of thirty years in constructing heavy guns has been extraordinary. The largest pieces found on war vessels in 1860 threw a ball weighing 68 pounds, with an initial velocity of 1,570 feet per second, and an energy of 1,160 foot tons. Now initial velocities in high power guns have been increased to 2,100 feet; projectiles at the maximum weigh as much as 2,200 pounds, and in some cases are propelled by charges of nearly half a ton of powder, while the 110-ton guns of the Benbow reach an energy of about 60,000 foot tons.

Passing over the triumphs obtained by intermediate calibers, which were remarkable in their day, we find that the largest French steel guns, such as are used for the armament of the Torville, completed at Brest; the Bequin, built at Bordeaux; the Indomitable, built at L'Orient, and the Caiman, finished at Toulon, weigh each about 76 tons. They deliver a projectile, weighing 1,716 pounds, with a muzzle velocity of 1,739 feet per second and a muzzle energy of 30,000 foot tons. The guns are rifled breechloaders. The French have other powerful guns, those constructed on the Range system being well known.

The Armstrong guns now mounted for service in the Italian armor clads Duilio, Dandola, Italia, and Lepanto, weigh 100 tons each, and throw a projectile of 2,000 pounds. These have long been familiar, but the later breech loading guns are improvements over the early muzzle loaders. The most powerful of them take a powder charge of about 772 pounds, and have an initial velocity of 1,805 feet per second, and a muzzle energy of 51,600 foot tons. Guns of 100 tons have also been made at Elswick for the Finsenoo Laurin, the Andrea Doria and the Morosini. In these the weight of the charge is 990 pounds, the weight of the projectile 2,000 pounds, the muzzle energy 55,547 foot tons. These will undoubtedly prove most formidable weapons.

The largest Krupp gun weighs nearly 119 tons. It is over 46 feet long, has a caliber of 17.72-4 inches, and fires a shot weighing 2,314 pounds, with a muzzle velocity of 1,800 feet. The maximum elevation gives it a range of nearly 7 1-2 miles. Its power of penetration into wrought iron is estimated at about 41 inches at the muzzle, 31 inches at the distance of 1,100 yards and 20 inches at 2,000 yards. At the distance of three miles its striking average is still about 26,000 foot tons. The Italians have two of these guns mounted in a shore battery, for which purpose they are intended.

The English 110-ton gun, manufactured at Elswick, is about 44 feet long, and its actual weight 247,756 pounds. The screw block, removed in loading, weighs 2 1-4 tons. The projectile is a bolt weighing 1,800 pounds, and 16 1-4 inches in diameter. With 850 pounds of powder the actual muzzle velocity attained was 2,078 feet, and the muzzle energy 34,000 foot tons; so that with 850 pounds, which the gun is constructed to use, an energy on the projectile of 42,700 foot tons is expected. The recoil of the gun is very small. The British also have a powerful new gun in their 63-ton steel breechloader, which will be carried on the Rodney. It is expected to throw a 13 1-4-inch shot, of 1,250 pounds, with a powder charge of 580 pounds, and to attain a 2,100 feet muzzle velocity. Should these expectations be realized, this gun, though much lighter, will be more destructive than the 80-ton gun of the Inflexible, which takes a projectile of 1,700 pounds, with a cartridge of 450 pounds, reaching a muzzle velocity of 1,600 feet.

It is added that the next step attempted in heavy gun construction will be that of a 125-ton monster, the project being attributed to the Essen works. It would throw a shell six feet long, weighing a ton and a half. There are also some guns under construction which are expected to accomplish great results on somewhat new theories, as in the case of the one manufactured for Col. Hope. This is to take an enormous powder charge, and to have correspondingly great initiative effect. But without going into the possible successes of the future, those which have already been reached are sufficiently astonishing.—New York Sun.

Advice to Pall Bearers.

When a man is asked to act as a pall bearer at a funeral, he ought to seek out the other pall bearers before they assume their crape and their mournful air, and practice the lockstep with them for an hour or so, or at least until he can be confident that they are going to keep pace. Then they lift the coffin and start off with it. I was a pall bearer recently, and my arms and knees pain me when with the recollection. When a party of pall bearers take up a coffin and step out of time the weight comes principally upon the two end bearers, and it is no easy thing for two men to sustain by the sharp handles of a coffin the weight of the casket itself and the corpse within.—Detroit Democrat.

Large and Small Audiences.

A large audience has the advantage of enthusiasm; a small audience has the advantage of impressibility. A large audience gives more to the speaker. Hence it is that, while the cathedrals and churches in large cities are comparatively empty in the afternoon, the churches in the outlying fields are more receptive. The nearer a congregation comes to being the one to whom God has bearer the larger the hope of a personal message being received by a personal ear by him who listens to it.—Philadelphia Sunday School Times.

First Cost of Hair Dye.

A recent analysis of a popular hair preparation showed that it was made of sixty grains of sugar of lead, sixty grains of sulphur, a little glycerine and water, with a drop or two of perfume. The sulphur gradually combines with the lead, forming a brown or black sulphide of lead, which slowly darkens the hair—slow in action that the purchaser may persist in its use. Cost three and a half cents per bottle; retail price, $1.—Chicago Times.

Microscopic air and liquid bubbles exist in many crystals of minerals, no less than 4,000,000 having been counted to have a place in a cube of quartz one-twenty-fifth of an inch square.—Arkansaw Traveler.

SCHOOL BOOKS

We have now in Stock all the new Books adopted by the Board, and they will be sold at less than Publishers' Introductory Price. We have the largest stock of School Books and School Supplies in the county, and as we are the publishers' agent we are prepared to sell cheaper than ever. Get our prices before you purchase or you will be sorry.

Dr. G. W. Crouter.

OUR FALL GREETING

To our friends and patrons we extend the best compliments of the season, and announce the arrival of all that makes our stock desirable Our buyer has not neglected one single item, and in the purchase of the vast stock that the need of two stores require for fall trade, and has used all the caution and taste in buying that comes from long experience; and by READY CASH has secured the Lowest possible purchase price, so that we are enabled to sell a far superior article in all departments at Much Lower Prices. An especial effort dealers could possibly offer, and at Much Lower Prices. In fact we are offering at Most Astounding Low Prices. In fact has been made in the purchase of our FALL and WINTER CLOAKS and JACKETS, which we are offering at Most Astounding Low Prices. In fact in the purchase of all our stock we have kept in view the fact that we were buying for our Friends and Patrons. Call and see us, and look over the long list of Bargains we have to offer.

☞Butterick's Patterns in stock, and Metropolitan Fashions for October free, at the LIVE DRY GOODS STORE.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO

Pipes of All Nations.

One of the most valuable collections of pipes in the world belongs to Capt. Bragge, of London. It contains 5,000 specimens and is called by the captain a "Pipe of all nations." There are in it many pipes found in American mounds. The collection is so complete that it comprises the aboriginal pipes of all the richly carved pipes that have ever been manufactured. There is no nation, no tribe of whose workmanship in the making of pipes he has not a specimen. The captain is very proud of his collection, and has frequently put it on exhibition in the Alexandra palace for charitable purposes.—New York Evening Sun.

By Neglect what is at first but a slight cold, becomes a cough, straining and exhausting the lungs till such an inflamed condition exists, that powerful remedies are not always able to stop the disease and the person goes into consumption from mere neglect. Do not be so foolish, but use Hamilton's Cough Balsam, which removes the impure matter from the throat and lungs and exerts a healing influence on the diseased parts. Even those who are but the wrecks of their former selves receive wonderful bals. In Croup and Whooping Cough it is invaluable. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

New Anchor for Steamers.

Experiments have been made during the week in the harbor of Havre and on the Seine with a new cable anchor, which will bring to a standstill the largest steamer going at the greatest speed within a space of ten feet. Large steamers have subjected to the experiment, which in all cases proved successful, and the government commission present recommended the new anchor for use on government ships. This new anchor is described as a huge cloth parachute, anchor shaped, attached to the ship by cables, with a huge iron weight in the middle. This balloon shaped anchor resists the forward movement of the ship, the tremendous power, assuming very much the singular ballon or bucket shape so dreaded by the old "wooden ships" of the Napoleonic wars, which, by so doing when hooked, generally succeed in breaking the line.—Chicago Tribune.

Napoleon as a Novel Reader.

Napoleon, the greatest man of modern times, was a greedy novel reader. He was one of the most voracious readers of novels that ever lived. He was always asking for the newest of the new, and unfortunately even the new romances of his period were too dull. Barbier, his librarian, had orders to send parcels of fresh fiction to the imperial quarters wherever he might happen to be, and great loads of novels followed Napoleon to Germany, Spain, Italy, Russia. The emperor was very hard to please. He read in his travelling carriage, and after skimming a few pages would throw a volume that bored him out of the window into the highway. He might have been tempted by his trail of romances, as was Hogo-My-Thumb in the fairy tale by the white stones he dropped behind him. Poor Barbier, who ministered to a passion for novels that demanded twenty volumes a day, was at his wit's end. He tried to foist on the emperor the romances of the year before last; but these Napoleon had generally read, and he refused, with imperial scorn, to look at them again.—Andrew Lang.

An Immense Turtle.

An immense turtle weighing 1,433 pounds was caught by some Portland (Me.) fishermen the other day. He was eight feet and a half and between his forward flippers is measured nearly eight feet. Capt. R. J. Willard, "one of Portland's oldest captains," says that fifty years ago the vessels used to load in southern turtles was wrecked off the Malice coast. He thinks the specimen captured is one of them.—New York Tribune.

Why Suffer with dyspepsia,

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST.

BY PERTINAX.

'Twas night in Babylon, and the full moon,
Like silver, glittered in the eastern sky;
The season of the year was balmy June,
And scented zephyrs were gently flowing by;
The night was glorious, and overhead
The stars, like gems, seemed strung on silver thread.

Within the palace walls was revelry,
"And beauty and brave men were gathered times,
The proudest scions of Syria's chivalry,
Joined in their pastimes rich beyond compeers;
And every soul seemed brilliant and bright, in tune, in keeping with the refined night.

Belshazzar sat upon a throne of gold,
Mean bowed to him as if he was a god;
His face was flushed, his eyes were bold,
Showing like a girl at the king's scary nod;
Belshazzar was a tyrant, and he trembled
Scorned at will the grandest subject's death.

Belshazzar feasted with his compeers—
The richest wines of Syria freely flowed;
Gay forms were decked with rubies from the mines
That Nature had on Syria bestowed;
Its lavish had the best of Nature been,
No feast like this on the whole earth was seen.

The feast was lasting, when Belshazzar cried
"Bring forth the sacred vessels, fill them high
With the best wines within my vaults supplied
We might we drink, to-morrow we may die,
Them the vessels carried to the Lord
The princes taken by my father's swords.

"When my great father to Judea went,
And killed the Israelite with spear and sword,
He brought the people captive to his tent
And spoiled the temple built unto the Lord;
Of all the spoils he brought from Judea's land
Are all the golden bowls vessels stored.

"Our 'god,' great Baal, hath never been despoiled,
Hence shall he flourish like the Syrian date;
But happier subject were our deities
He was, he is, the arbiter of fate.
Fill you the sacred goblets to the brim,
We love to Baal, honor and health to him!"

The blessed vessels Solomon had made
The impious Israelites in his rich Syrian wine,
And all their storied beauty was displayed
Under the gaze of each foul examiner,
Who tempted Heaven by actions so unwise,
Nothing should shock—nothing should cause surprise.

The King had seized the cup, and his full lips
Had almost tasted the red wine within it;
Suddenly he stopped, and his face grew pale
As death, and grew more ashen in each minute.
What was it made him lose his brain's command?
He saw writing on unattended hand.

He passed, with pale lips, about the centurions' cry
Followed the flight of a pinion to the wall;
They saw the hand still writing, and surprise
And fear their brawn senses did appall;
"What is the meaning of this dreadful thing?
Does it mean death to us, or to the King?

"Bring in the magi. Let them the writing see,
Let them decipher what the writings mean,
Then from the banquet hall the guests did flee,
Overcome with terror at the unusual scene;
The magi came and looked, but could not tell
Whence came the words, from Heaven or from Hell.

One came into the King and thus he spoke:
"There is in Judeya a foreign youth;
He is a Jew; his vows he never broke;
He worships God, and always speaks the truth.

I think, oh King, that he could tell to thee
What manner s the writing on the wall we see.

Daniel was brought within the banquet hall;
He saw the writing, and was sore amazed;
Pale as a ghost, he stood before the King
Jews—the King he, answering, mournful, gazed,
And said: "Oh, King, this fateful message reads,
'Thou and thy house are given unto the Medes.'

Belshazzar's days were numbered at that time;
"Mene" "mugsaree was decreed against his head;
He had been tried and found guilty of crime;
Whom "God" condemns may be accounted dead.
The next day's sun saw Babylon city burn;
The King and all his family were slain.

DARK AND FAIR BY TURNS.

BY EVE JOHNSON.

T was truly a startling experience, this that I am about to relate, and I try to forget it. But Dr. Kane has requested me to write a detailed account, so I shall let the world share it with him.

My name is those days was Esther Dane, my home in Charleston, and I worked in a printing office.

My father was well off, but I had a pass-onate love for my work, typesetting, and worked in the office of a popular daily, much against his will.

The summer I was eighteen I became afflicted with a singular disease. I was very fair, with gray eyes and golden-brown hair. Those who cared for me were kind enough to call me fair to look upon, and I loved my own face because it gained love from others.

One day I discovered a small black spot upon my right ear. I scrubbed over it very much, and when I saw it grow from day to day, spreading over my entire ear in a few weeks, it made me feel terribly.

I arranged my hair in a way to hide it, but when it spread upon the side of my face I gave up my place and went home.

Father was frightened nearly to death over my strange appearance, and could scarcely believe it afforded me no pain or inconvenience.

He would have me see a physician, as at my entirety he took me to a great doctor in New York. We carefully concealed our identity, for I was very sensitive over the matter then.

The case puzzled the learned man, and in fact we journeyed from city to city, puzzling every one we visited in turn.

Some talked learedly, using a string of unintelligible medical phrases, but none prescribed a remedy. All the time it grew and spread, until half my face was covered.

Our constant travel, and seeing so many strange doctors, and hearing the matter so fully discussed, had cured me of my foolish sensitiveness.

Of course I would not go out without a veil, but I ceased to worry and cry over it, and could even make merry about it. I remember telling a Chinese doctor, when my face was about equally divided into two colors, that I was a big dose of "arf and arf."

My chin became wholly black, and over half of my forehead, but my nose and the rest remained white. There it stopped, and began spreading downward over my body.

Then we noticed a difference in it. From being natural the black skin became velvety to the touch, like it sometimes is on a large mole or birth mark.

Oh, but I was a queer-looking body then, but I became so accustomed to it that I became careless about a veil, and would stupidly wonder what the matter was when people would cry out at sight of my hideousness.

Then father took me to Paris. It was on the steamer that we made Dr. Kane's acquaintance. He was a young man, but already had gained some reputation.

He had become convinced that he had much yet to learn, so had thrown up a lucrative practice, to walk the Paris hospitals a year, or perhaps two.

My strange case at once interested him. He asked questions until he knew as much about the matter as I did.

He examined the black growth closely, and eventually owned himself puzzled, as had more learned men before him.

I liked him immensely, and, in my merry mood, turned much of his questioning into ridicule.

Soon after our arrival in Paris a great medical convention took place, and one day Dr. Kane came for me.

Only a few of the celebrities had ever heard of anything similar, and were unanimous in the opinion that there was no cure. I must go phlegm all my life.

We returned home, and father sold his possessions in Charleston. We hid ourselves in a pretty New York suburb.

Dr. Kane returned a year later, and our common friendship was renewed.

He was very kind to me, was often at our house, rode, drove, and walked with me, spending as much time as he could spare from professional and other duties.

He was always studying over my case, and tried many experiments, all to no purpose.

I took a good deal of quiet comfort that summer. I was not happy.

God help me, I never could be happy again, for I loved Harry Lane.

Sometimes I thought he cared for me, but that was when we were riding or driving, and I was closely veiled—when he could not see my very hideous face.

Along in the fall he was called away, and would be absent some months. Soon after his departure I first became conscious, by physical sensations, that the blackness was a disease.

A stinging, burning sensation began, wherever there was a spot of color. I suffered tortures.

Every cooling, soothing lotion imaginable was resorted to, advice was procured, but nought availed to allay my suffering.

It lasted months. For many nights I never slept, and at length brain and nerve gave way, and I died.

Strange assertion to make, you say. Yes, I did, or the people thought I did. But every sense remained acutely alert—what feeling and breathing.

I know my body grew rigid, and cold as ice. I knew when I was arrayed for the grave and placed in my casket. I knew the peril I was in; that of being buried alive; but the rest from that agonized suffering was so exquisite that all else seemed of little moment.

I heard, as one hears from afar, the voice of a man of God speaking words of comfort to my sorrowing frie ds. I heard the solemn "dust to dust" rattle upon my coffin, then sank to a total unconsciousness, as one sinks to a sweet sleep.

My next sensation was cold, awful, deathly cold, and a feeling of numbness. I could not stir, or open my eyes, but feeling had returned to my whole body.

Every part of it tingled and ached, and my hands and feet felt like blocks of ice.

Presently I felt hands grasp me and extend me on what seemed a board. Loud exclamations in different voices reached my chilled ears; then a dead silence followed.

It was broken by a voice that—ah, God!—had power to call me from the dead.

"What is the matter, gentlemen?" it asked, and footsteps approached me and paused beside me.

"(God God! Esther!"

Oh, how I struggled to break the invisible bonds that held me.

"Esther, Esther! Oh, my God! Dead, dead! the dear voice moaned, and he passed a caressing hand over my poor mottled face.

As it lingered against my lips I kissed it lightly, involuntarily.

A great cry escaped him, and he bent closely over me. I felt his breath on my face. His lips touched mine. Then I lived.

I had it been really death, instead of trance, I must have come to life then. He loved

FARM AND GARDEN.

A USEFUL LIGHT HARROW THAT MAY BE MADE AT HOME.

Practical Information Regarding Channel Island Cattle That Explains Away Some Erroneous Ideas—Hints on Fruit Dryingness, Fertilizers and Bees Stings.

Numbered with old things that do not seem to have been improved upon is the mud proof corn crib illustrated in the accompanying cut. While familiar, indeed, to many older readers, there are a sufficient number of beginners whom it may benefit to justify its description here.

RAT PROOF CORN CRIB.

It must be elevated about three feet from the ground, on posts and its base, bottom up, placed on top of the posts. The crib must not be near enough to any trees, fence or building for rats to jump to the crib. As they cannot climb up the posts higher than the tin pans the rats have to be rat and mice proof. The steps leading into the crib should be movable ones that can be folded or pulled up inside the crib when not in use.

Growth of Horses' Feet.

It may be laid down as a rule, says the author in "artistic horseshoeing," that the horn grows more rapidly in warm, dry climates than in cold, wet ones; in healthy, energetic animals than in those which are soft and weakly; during exercise than in repose, in young than in old animals. Food, labor and shoeing also add their influence, while the seasons are to some extent concerned in the growth and shape of the hoof. In winter it shrinks, becomes softer and grows but little; in summer it is condensed, becomes more rigid, concave and resisting, is exposed to severer wear and grows more rapidly; this variation is a provision of nature to enable the hoof to adapt itself to the altered conditions it has to meet—hard ground to hard ground, soft horn to soft ground.

In this way is accounted for the influence of locality upon the shape of the hoof. On hard, dry ground the hoof is dense, tenacious and small, with concave sole, and a little but firm frog; in marshy regions it is large and spreading, the horn soft and easily destroyed by wear, the sole thin and flat, and the frog an immense spongy mass which is badly fitted to receive pressure from slightly hardened soil. In a dry climate, we have an animal small, compact, wiry and active, traveling on a surface which demands a tenacious hoof, and not one adapted to prevent shaking. In the marshy region we have a large, heavy, lymphatic creature, one of whose primary requirements is a foot designed to travel on a soft yielding surface. Change the respective situations of these two horses, and nature immediately begins to transform them and their feet.

In the ordinary conditions of town work and stable management, it has been observed that the wall of a healthy foot grows down from the coronet at the rate of about one-quarter of an inch per month, and that the entire wall of a neglected hoof has been regenerated in from nine to twelve months.

Channel Island Cattle.

There exists considerable confusion in the minds of many concerning the names "Alderney," "Jersey" and "Guernsey" as applied to the Channel Island cattle and their offspring. In many parts of England, as in this country, the name "Alderney" is alike given to both Jerseys and Guernseys. A correspondent in Mark Lane Express suggests that perhaps the fact that the first cattle from the Channel Islands were imported from Alderney has tended to propagate the erroneous idea that all cattle coming from the islands were Alderneys. In reality, there are two distinct breeds—the Jerseys and the Guernseys. The Alderney is a mixture of the two. Originally the Alderneys were smaller even than the Jerseys, but through frequent crossings with the Guernsey they have quite equaled those of the sister isle. The Jersey is the more popular breed, and is exported from the islands in numbers far exceeding the Guernseys.

The Jerseys deteriorate after a while if a sufficient supply of imported blood is not kept up in a herd; they lose the rich color that characterizes the skin and coat of the island animals and develop heavier bone and general coarseness.

The hair, to be desirable, should possess a small head, slender and lengthy face (from eye to the nose; the eyes should be full, but not too prominent; the ears lengthy and broad and fringed with hair; the neck ought to be long, flat and narrow; the chest deep rather than broad from; the chest should be slender with small, flat feet. A long, thin tail and soft, flat horns are great points in breeding. The hair should be short and fine; it is important that the skin be free from thickness and soft, with no tendency to fleshy. The leg ought to extend well forward and high up between the thighs. On no account should the teats point away from the quarters.

GUERNSEY COW, GILT EDGE.

In appearance the Guernsey is a fine, deep bodied cow, of rich color and of average size. Her quality is seen in the marked yellowness of the skin, especially on the inside of the ear, around the eyes, on the end of the tail, etc. The color of hair varies in color from a deep red to a light orange and white. Like the Jersey, the distinguishing property of the Guernsey is her better producing properties which might be developed with care. The cut illustrates Gilt Edge, who has made a good record among Guernsey milch cows.

Drying Apples.

Experiments appear to have proven that acid apples with white flesh make the best product when dried. In large establishments apples are prepared for the evaporator by machines that pare, core and slice the apples in one operation. Hand prepared fruit, not being divided into uniform pieces, does not dry as evenly and present as attractive an appearance. Some manufacturers place the apples when they come from the parer into a solution of salt and water—one pint of salt to ten gallons of water. This is thought to cut the gum on the fruit and clean it, also to prevent fermentation and aid in bleaching.

Bleaching is done by exposing the fruit in a wooden box or special machine, to sulphur fumes. The sooner the bleaching is done after the apples are cut the better. Cutting is necessary not to overbleach the fruit and causes it to both taste and smell of sulphur. In different establishments the heat of the evaporator varies from 95 degs. to 200 degs. Fahrenheit. The fruit must remain in from two to five hours, according to the heat of the air in the evaporator. One bushel of apples is estimated to make from five to seven pounds of dried fruit.

Agricultural Societies as? Their Doings.

The election of officers at the late session of the American Pomological society, in Boston, for the next two years, resulted in the choice of P. J. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga., for president; Charles W. Garfield, of Michigan, secretary; T. T. Lyon, of Michigan, first vice president, and a vice president was also selected from each state and territory.

At the convention of American florists, in Chicago, the officers elected were as follows: President, E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; first vice president, W. D. Siebrecht, Astoria, N. Y.; secretary, W. J. Stewart, Boston, Mass.; treasurer, M. A. Hunt, Terre Haute, Ind. One vice president was also elected for each state and territory.

At the late convention of agricultural chemists in Washington the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, F. E. Chase, state chemist of South Carolina; vice president, W. J. Gascoyne, state chemist of Virginia; secretary, Clifford Richardson, district chemist; executive committee, P. H. Jenkins, vice director of the Connecticut Agricultural experiment station, and J. A. Myers, state chemist of Mississippi.

Broadcast Harrowing.

A North Carolina farmer describes in Southern Cultivator how to make a light harrow for use in broadcast harrowing of cotton or other crops during early growth, when a heavy harrow with thick teeth does not work well.

A LIGHT HARROW.

The length of this harrow is eight or ten feet, and the width two and a half feet. Teeth on front piece are twelve inches apart, and on aft piece same distance apart, but teeth are exactly midway between those of the front piece, cutting little furrows of six inches apart on ground in cut above, which will break the entire surface at each going over, taking one-sixth of the plants.

Treatment of Barnyard Manure.

The proper treatment of barnyard manure is a matter of pecuniary interest to the farmer. Professor Weiser, in a recent report issued by the ohio state board of agriculture, says on this subject:

1. The stable floor should be impervious to water, and may be made of concrete, clay, brick or plank.

2. Enough bedding should be used to completely absorb the liquid excrements, to use for the best bedding. The amount of bedding should be equal to one-fourth of the dry matter of the feed given. This would in general be about six to six and a half pounds for every 1,000 pounds of living weight of stock per day.

3. Where the manure is allowed to accumulate in the stable it is often necessary to employ some absorbent for the escaping ammonia. The best absorbents are muck and soil sprinkled over the surface from time to time. Where these cannot be had the following substances may be employed: Gypsum or land plaster, one-half pound per day for every 1,000 pounds live weight. Sulphuric acid, one part to 1,100 parts of water. One pint of this mixture per week will be sufficient for each animal. With this precaution no loss or evil results will come from the accumulation of manure in stables.

4. Where stables are daily cleaned a manure pit for the preservation of manure should be provided. This pit should have double the stable surface, should be two feet deep, and have a wall or ridge around the outside, at least a foot higher than the surrounding surface, in order to exclude surface water. The bottom and sides of the pit should be impervious to water, so as to prevent loss of the soluble constituents. The manure should be spread over the whole pit, and not be piled up at one point. Here it will keep moist, which prevents heating, and all of the soluble ingredients will be preserved.

Manure from such a pit, according to the authority quoted, would contain per cent. per ton of nitrogen, 5.2 pounds of phosphoric acid and 12.6 pounds of potash. The money value would be about $3 per ton.

Lime Destructive to Hog Cholera Germs.

Dr. Salmon is reported to have said at the meeting of the Society for Promoting Agricultural Science that lime will kill the germs of hog cholera. It was advised that the lime be applied at the rate of two pounds per acre, upon land used as a hog pasture, and the germs will be destroyed in the soil to the depth of six inches. A like proportion of lime mixed in manure piles containing the germs, it was claimed, will also kill them.

A Thirty Pound Book.

The largest book ever bound is owned by queen Victoria, and measures eighteen inches across the back and weighs thirty pounds. It contains the jubilee addresses of congratulations from members of the Primrose league.—Chicago Times.

In Consumption Incurable.

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with abscess of lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jessie Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had a bad cough. King's New discovery for Consumption I usually have died of Lung Trouble. Was given up by the doctors, am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at Dr. Crosier's drug Store. 5

Interesting to Antiquarians.

The Russian Novosti states that some stones bearing Syrian inscriptions have been discovered in Semirechinsk, and that M. Khvolson, corresponding member of the Academy of Sciences, has just written a monograph on those of them that have been deciphered. They are said to be the only Syrian inscriptions yet discovered outside Mesopotamia, and they may be traced to the Nestorians who traversed Central Asia and established themselves on the confines of China.—The Home Journal.

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and popular as to need no special notice. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the Liver and Kidneys, will remove Pimples, Boils, Salt Rheum and other affections caused by impure blood. Will drive malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all malarial fevers.—For cure of Headache, Constipation and Indigestion try Electric Bitters—Entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded.—Price 50 cts. and $1.00 per bottle at Dr. Crosier's Drug Store. 5

Sensibility of Thermometers.

The sensibility of thermometers varies greatly. If the capacity of the reservoir be large, compared with the bore of the tube, a slight change of temperature will materially affect the height of the mercurial column. If small, and the glass bulb is thin, the mercury contained in it will be more rapidly affected than if a large amount were to be acted upon. A cylindrical reservoir is better than a spherical one, because it exposes a larger surface.—Chicago News.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit for the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

THE STAR

A Newspaper supporting the Principles of a Democratic Administration.

Published in the City of New York.

WILLIAM DORSHEIMER, EDITOR.

Daily, Weekly, and Sunday Editions.

THE WEEKLY STAR,

An Eight-page Newspaper, issued every Wednesday.

A clean, pure, bright and interesting FAMILY PAPER.

It contains the latest news from all parts of the world, up to press.

Agricultural, Market, Household, Fashion, Financial and Commercial, Political, Poetical, Humorous and Editorial Departments, all under the direction of trained journalists of the highest literary ability. Nothing is found omitted with our selections from beginning to end.

Original stories by distinguished American and foreign writers of fiction.

TERMS OF THE WEEKLY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, subscription to be paid at New York.

ONE DOLLAR FOR ONE YEAR.

Clubs of Ten and upwards, $1 each per year. An additional copy to organizer of Club.

FOR THREE MONTHS, 25 cents.

Special terms and extraordinary inducements to agents and canvassers.

Send for Circulars.

THE DAILY STAR,

THE DAILY STAR contains all the news of the day in a condensed form. Its editorial correspondence by cable from London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Rome is a valuable feature.

The Washington, Albany and other news centers, the chief correspondence, specially related by THE STAR, make its latest news by telegraph.

Its literary features are unexcelled.

The Financial and Market reviews are unusually full and complete.

TERMS OF THE DAILY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, subscription to be paid at New York City.

Every Day, for one year (including Sunday)	$9.00
Daily, without Sunday, one year	6.00
Every Day, six months	4.00
Daily, without Sunday, six months	3.00
Sunday, without Daily, one year	1.00

Address THE STAR,

Broadway and Park Place, New York.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by a simple remedy, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

A GENTLEMAN, having been cured of Nervous Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Premature Decay, and all the evil effects of early indiscretion and youthful folly, is anxious to make known to others the simple mode of self-cure. To those who wish and will give him their symptoms, he will send (free) by return mail a copy of the prescription he so successfully used in his case.

Address in confidence, JAMES W. PINKNEY, 42 Cedar St., N. Y.

Time Cards of Pine Lake Steamers, STEAMER TIRED.

Season of 1887.

Steamer JOSEPH GORDON,

CAPT. LEWIS GUARD.

Monday—Leave Charlevoix 6.30, arrive at Boyne City at 9.00, leave Boyne City 9.30, arrive at Charlevoix 12.00.

Tuesday—Leave Charlevoix 7.00, arrive at Boyne City 9.30, leave Boyne City 1.00, arrive at Charlevoix 4.30.

Trending at intermediate points both ways.

Steamer NORTH STAR,

CAPT. J. M. THOMPSON.

Morning—Leave Cadwell at 7.00, arrive at East Jordan 9.00, leave East Jordan 9.30, arrive at Charlevoix 11.00.

Afternoon—Leave Charlevoix at 2.00, arrive at East Jordan 3.30, leave East Jordan 4.30, arrive at Cadwell 7.00.

Touching at intermediate points both ways.

Harbor Springs and East Jordan.

Steamer THOMAS FRIANT.

CAPT. E. VANDERHOEF.

Going South every morning, except Sunday. Will leave Harbor Springs at 7.00, Petoskey 8.00, Charlevoix 9.30, arrive at East Jordan 11.30.

Going North every afternoon, except Sunday. Will leave East Jordan at 1.30, Charlevoix 3.00, Petoskey 5.30; arrive at Harbor Springs 6.30.

Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway.

"THE SOO-MACKINAW SHORT LINE."

Only Direct Route to Upper Michigan Iron, Lake and Copper Regions of Lake Superior, traversing a country unsurpassed for healthfulness, fishing and hunting.

Double Daily Train Service between Marquette and Sault Ste. Marie, connecting with steamers for Duluth and points West.

Elegant Sleeping Coaches attached to all night trains.

Observation Parlor Cars on all day trains.

The only all-rail route to Sault Ste. Marie and the Canadian Pacific Railway at all points. Tickets over this route, and information as to equal facilities offered by no other line, can be obtained of any agent of the company, or by addressing

E. W. ALLEN,

Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Marquette, Mich.

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.

Time Card for

PETOSKEY STATION,

In effect Oct. 16th.

Leave, going north, 8.18 p. m., 2.05 a. m.

Leave, going south, 8.20 a. m., †1.00 p. m.

†Daily except Saturday.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

"The Niagara Falls Route."

Gorge Route, Niagara Falls, Suspension Bridge, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Troy, Boston, New York, Montreal, Quebec, Portland, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Kansas City, Denver, Portland, Oregon, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, and all points West, Northwest and Southwest.

THE DIRECT ROUTE

BETWEEN

MACKINAW CITY

AND

DETROIT, JACKSON,

The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 8.00 a. m. daily (except Sunday), from foot of Third street:

Detroit	3.10 p. m. and 11.00 p. m.
Jackson	10.30 p. m. and 11.25 a. m.
Lansing	12.05 a. m. and 4.45 a. m.
Saginaw	4.15 a. m. and 8.00 p. m.
Cincinnati	9.30 a. m. and 8.45 p. m.

WAGNER PALACE SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.

D. W. JOHNSTON, Mich. Pass. Agt., Grand Rapids.

O. W. RUGGLES, G. P. & T. Agt., Chicago.

PENSIONS!

WILLIAM G. CHERRINGTON, late Assistant Chief of the Western Division, D. C. Pension office; now engaged in his profession as Pension and all other soldiers' claims.

Soldiers who have been wounded or injured in the line of duty, however slightly, are entitled to pensions in the present scale, especially valuable for those who have lost time by the working up of rejected or abandoned claims on which no pension has been allowed.

Cooperates with responsible attorneys in prosecuting claims in which need attention in Washington.

Information for those who are entitled to increase of pension, or who think they are entitled to become their cases are improperly rejected, furnished upon receipt of 25 cents.

No fee unless successful. Active free.

Refer to

Hon. S. W. Townsend of Illinois.
Hon. J. S. Morrill, of Vermont.
Hon. F. N. Morrill, of Kansas.
Hon. J. R. Hawley, of Conn.
Hon. H. J. Hendrickson, of N. J.
Hon. James Laird, of Nebraska.
Hon. E. S. Lacey, of Mich.

Address

W. M. B. GREENE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

For Hard Times.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL

AND

DEMOREST'S

ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY

MAGAZINE

With Twelve Cut Paper Patterns of your own selection and of any size.

BOTH PUBLICATIONS, ONE YEAR,

$3.10 (THREE TEN).

DEMOREST'S

THE BEST

Of all the Magazines.

CONTAINING Stories, Poems and other Literary Productions, combining Artistic, Scientific and Household matters.

Illustrated with Original Steel Engravings, Photogravures, Oil Pictures and the Woodcuts, much to the Mind Magazine of America.

Each subscriber receives a COUPON ORDER, entitling the holder to the selection of any PATTERN in Demorest's Publications, and in all, to the value of Twelve Dollars.

THE MONTHLY MONTHLY is justly entitled to be called the Queen of Magazines. The largest in Form, the Largest in Circulation, and the Best in Literary and Artistic Merit, it will be found to be the Twenty-second year of its publication, and continuing its career of success, as evidently as it has been from the first, the Leading Family Magazine of the World. Elegantly printed and fully illustrated. Price, $3 a year; single copies, 25 cents. Address, Jennings Demorest, New York.

AND BY SPECIAL AGREEMENT COMBINED WITH THE

Charlevoix Journal at $3.10 Per Year.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,

Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.

TERRACE FARM. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

N. J. PERRY, Agent, Charlevoix.

CHICAGO + Canal AND 16TH STS

AGENTS WANTED

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

$25 000 to be awarded to the DETROIT COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER January 1 1888, in a family sewing machine. Send stamp for terms to agents and free sample copy and prospectus. THE COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER, Detroit, Mich.

This standard of excellence has proved an advancement in every instance, which our patrons testify to in the highest terms of praise.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent organs are included for one time, only at the quick purchase, easy by of rent, cash or on easy payments. Beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the best organs for home, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION. UNEQUALED FACILITIES. SKILLED WORKMEN. BEST MATERIAL.

CONVINCE, MAKE THEM

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, mention this paper.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN CO.

831 BLUE ISLAND AVE.,

CHICAGO, ILL.

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES

Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Bites, Bruises, Sores, Sprains, Strains, Stiffness, Stiff Joints, Backache, Galls, Sore, Spavin, Crachs, Scratches, Sprains, Strains, Stiches, Stiff Joints, Backache, Galls, Sore, Spavin, Cracks, Contracted Heels, Ringbone, Hoof Ail, Fistula, Worms, Swinney, Sweeney, Gall Sores, Piles.

THE GREAT HORSE AND MAN REMEDY.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is a complete newspaper in all that constitutes the best type of an American journalism. It is a member of the Associated Press, and as the only 2c cent morning paper in Chicago it may justly claim that it is essential to a complete news service. In addition it has its own private wires and its own staff in the office with Washington and New York. It prints ALL THE NEWS.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is an independent paper. It recognizes the utility of political parties as means for the accomplishment of proper ends. But it declines to regard any mere party as a fit subject for unquestioning adoration. It is unbiased in its presentation of political news.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is a "short-and-to-the-point" paper. It leaves to the "blanket-sheets" the monotony of tiresome and worthless amplification. It says all that is to be said in the shortest possible measure. It is a paper for busy people.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Now prints and sells over 175,000 copies per day—a larger circulation by far than that of any other Chicago dailies combined. Sold by all news dealers at two cents each. Mailed to any address, postage prepaid, for six dollars per year, or for a shorter term at rate of fifty cents per month.

Address Victor F. Lawson, Publisher The DAILY NEWS, 123 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Eight pages, 64 columns, is the largest dollar weekly in America.

NO HOME BLESSED WITH A BABY can be complete without the monthly visits of Rainbow, that delight, instruct and aid of the mother. Only published in the world devoted to the care of young children. Warranted to recommend it. (5 Reviews 25c, N. Y.) $1.50 a year; 15 cents a copy.

DR. HILL'S ENGLISH BUCHU

is One of the Best

Kidney

INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

Will cure all disorders of the Kidneys, Urine, Gravel, Retention of the Nat. of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Stricture, Diabetes, Dropsy, Pain in the Back and all Urinary Complaints. Sold by Druggists. Book Dealers, Jewelers, Jobbers, Agents, Peddlers, Hotel Clerks, Ministers, Lawyers, Doctors, Actors, Actresses, Artists, Author, Editors, Publishers, Printers, Bankers, Merchants, Clerks, Mechanics, Farmers, Laborers, Soldiers, Sailors, Marines, Officers, Gentlemen, Ladies, Boys, Girls, Men, Women, Children, Gray Hairs, Bald Heads, Long Beards, Short Beards, Mustaches, Shaves, Hair Cuts, Shampoos, Hair Dyes, Tonics, Brushes, Combs, Perfumes, Soaps, Sponges, Towels, Razors, Strops, Cups, Balls, Powders, Pastes, Washes, Lotions, Medicines, Physicians, Nurses, Patients, Druggists, Chemists, Physicians, Surgeons, Dentists, Veterinary Surgeons, Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Dogs, Cats, Pigs, Poultry, Birds, Insects, Reptiles, Fishes, Animals, Plants, Trees, Shrubs, Flowers, Fruits, Vegetables, Groceries, Provisions, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Furs, Furniture, Pianos, Organs, Sewing Machines, Watches, Clocks, Jewelry, Diamonds, Silverware, Spectacles, Eyes, Ears, Noses, Mouths, Teeth, Tongues, Throats, Necks, Backs, Breasts, Hearts, Lungs, Livers, Stomachs, Bowels, Kidneys, Legs, Feet, Hands, Fingers, Toes, Nails, Blood, Flesh, Bones, Muscles, Nerves, Veins, Arteries, Pulses, Colds, Coughs, Consumptions, Fevers, Agues, Pains, Aches, Weaknesses, Debilities, Diseases, Deaths, Burials, Resurrections, Eternities.

PRICE, $1. Three Bottles for $2.50.

Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., Sole Proprietors, DETROIT, MICH.

Sick Absent.

DIMPLES. I will mail (name in plain letter) receipt of stamp, a recipe that will remove TAN, PIMPLES, FRECKLES, MOTH PATCHES, BLOTCHES, BLACKHEADS, and all Skin Blemishes, leaving the skin soft, clear, smooth and beautiful. Worth a fortune to any lady. Address, Mme. FAY, 48 Lafayette Place, New York, N. Y.

THE OSBORNE MOWING MACHINE CO. Manufacture the Celebrated Wrought Steel Mowers, Reapers, Combined Mowers and Reapers, Harvesters, Binders, Rakes, Tedders, Hay Presses, Horse Hoes, Cultivators, Plows, Repairing Materials for all machines in use. Send for Catalogue. Mention this paper. Address, OSBORNE MOWING MACHINE CO., AUBURN, N. Y.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL.

NUMBER 226. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.: THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1887. $1.50 PER YEAR.

THE JOURNAL

Publish'd every Thursday,

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

Office on Bridge Street,

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN

BUSINESS CARDS.

ARTHUR E. MARTIN, Attorney at Law, Boyne City. Collections promptly attended to.

CHURCH, FRANK & CRIER, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Admiralty. Office in Law Block, Charlevoix, Mich. C. J. CRIER, A. D. CHURCH, Jr.

FRED. W. MAYE, Attorney and Counselor at Law. Estate business promptly attended to. MONEY TO LOAN.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

W. J. MOORE, Attorney and Solicitor, East Jordan. Admiralty a Specialty.

CHURCHES.

CHRIST CHURCH MISSION.—Evening service every Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Sunday school at 3 p. m. All Users Hall. W. F. BROWN, Warden.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.—Sunday services at 10.30 a. m. and 7 p. m. Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Sunday school at 12 m. Chas. H. Over, F. W. Crisler & Chas. Parker, Trustees.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.—Sunday services at 10.30 a. m. and 7 p. m. Sunday school at close of morning service. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. Frank T. Waterman, Pastor.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.—Sunday services at 10.30 a. m. and 7.00 p. m. Sunday school at 12 m. Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. J. Coxsey, pastor.

DENTISTRY.

N. B. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Cushman's Drug Store, CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

PHYSICIANS.

J. A. CARLETON, M. D., Office and residence on Main street. Office hours, 7.00 to 8.00 A. M., and 1.00 to 4.00 P. M.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

HORACE S. HARDIA, Notary Public, Real Estate, Fire and Insurance Agt., Charlevoix.

W. P. SEWS, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

Sews & Co.'s Bank of Charlevoix

Drafts drawn direct upon the principal cities of the world. Money received on deposit. Collections promptly made and proceeds promptly paid to the parties entitled thereto. Interest allowed on time deposits. Special attention given to the business of lumbermen. Refer to Fourth National Bank, Chicago; Merchants and Manufacturers' National Bank, Detroit; Fourth National Bank, Grand Rapids.

DIRECTORS:

Henry Bennett, Wm. Nicholls, A. R. Dygert, F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, $25,000

SURPLUS, $3,000

The liability of Stockholders in all State Banks established in Art. 2174, Sec. 6 of Compiled Statutes of the State of Michigan, is guaranteed amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed capital of $50,000, and affording superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate business on a cash basis, or favorable terms consistent with safety.

Office in Bank building, Street on the leading commercial thoroughfare of the Northern Peninsula of Michigan, and in the center of a district of country unsurpassed in extent and richness by any in the world. Lumbermen will find it advantageous to bring their business to this place, as the Lumber Manufacture is the leading business of the country. Collections made and proceeds promptly remitted on day of collection. Exchange on Europe for sale in sums to suit purchasers. Pay Interest on time deposits. Loans made on approved security. Buy and sell Government, State, County and City Bonds. Receive deposits subject to check, payable on demand, without interest. Buy and sell Gold and Silver Coin. Buy and sell Foreign Exchange. Make Collections on all points. Receive deposits and transact a general Banking business. Refer to Fourth National Bank, Chicago; Merchants and Manufacturers' National Bank, Detroit; Fourth National Bank, Grand Rapids.

MORTGAGE SALE.—Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made by Albert H. Wood, of Charlevoix, Mich., dated the 20th day of July, A. D. 1884, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds, for the county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan, on the 23d day of August, A. D. 1884, in liber 50 of mortgages, on page 190 on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date hereof the sum of $1,000 principal and interest, and no proceedings have been instituted to recover the money secured and payable by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statutes in such case made and provided, NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that on Saturday, the 26th day of November, A. D. 1887, at one o'clock in the forenoon, at the house of the county building in Charlevoix, Michigan, (that being the place where the circuit court for Charlevoix county is holden), the undersigned will sell at public vendue, to the highest bidder, so much thereof as may be necessary to pay said mortgage, and the costs and expenses of sale, with an attorney's fee of fifteen dollars, provided for by law, in said mortgage, being and is the premises in said mortgage described as follows, to wit: The south half of the southeast quarter of section thirty-three (33) north of range five (5) west, containing eighty acres, more or less, according to the United States survey. Dated this 26th day of August, A. D. 1887.

ALBERT H. WOOD, Mortgagee.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney for Mortgagee.

John Nicholls,

CHARLEVOIX, MICH.,

Manufacturer of and dealer in

LUMBER!

ALSO

Dressed lumber, Oar Blades, WAGON TENDERS, SHINGLES, LATH ETC.

LUMBER SAWED AND BILLS FILLED TO ORDER.

LIVERY

Feed and Sale Stables.

Burns, Stevens & Co.,

The Oldest and Largest Livery Stable in Charlevoix County. The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand. Rates Low.

BRIDGE STREET, CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

NEW LIVERY AND Feed Barn.

LITNEY & STEIMEL PROPRIETORS

Opposite Bridge Street House Charlevoix.

FIRST-CLASS RIGS REASONABLE RATES.

ARBUCKLES'

name on a package of COFFEE is a guarantee of excellence.

ARIOSA

COFFEE is kept in all first-class stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COFFEE

is never good when exposed to the air. Always buy this brand in hermetically sealed ONE POUND PACKAGES.

Jos. Beauvais

BOAT-BUILDER.

The Best Modeled, Easiest Rowing, and Best Sailing Boats for the Money. Send for the Least Money. Give me a Trial. I am bound to Please.

Boat Livery

In connection with shop.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

WM. J. STEVENSON,

HORSE-SHOEING.

Wagon Shop,

BLACKSMITHING, ETC.

Heavy Wagons on hand and made to order. I manufacture my own Carts, Wheels, Shafts, Material, and WARRANT MY WORK. Call and examine before buying elsewhere.

SHOP ONE BLOCK WEST OF CARPENTER, BARTHOLOMEW & CO.'S STORE, CHARLEVOIX.

☞ The OSBORNE MOWING MACHINE CO. 19

1872. 1887

DR. G. W. CROUTER,

Drugs, Stationery and Wall Paper.

Dental Office in Rear of Drug Store.

NEW - GOODS !

Call and see my new assortment of

WATCHES, JEWELRY SILVERWARE, OPTICAL GOODS, ETC, ETC.

NEW PATTERNS IN SILVERWARE

A large assortment of Spectacles and Eye Glasses, for all ages, for sale very low.

Repairing done Promptly and Warranted. Regular attendance will enable me to make prices to suit the times.

C. R. SELLINGER,

Bridge St., - Charlevoix.

E. B. HODGE & CO.

Have a full stock of

HARNESS

And everything in that line, and are prepared to sell at all kinds of Repairing on Short Notice.

As Cheap as the Cheapest.

E. B. HODGE & CO.,

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

WILL H. FRANCIS,

Furniture and Jobbing Shop.

—Will also do—

CONTRACTING AND BUILDING.

In Charlevoix and summer resorts. I keep in my shop a full set of Hand and Foot power machinery which enables me to do.

Jobbing, Repairing, Etc.,

ON SHORT NOTICE.

☞ Shop on South Terrace, Opposite Harris-Borden's residence.

A. J. McLeod

Can be found at the old stand with a

FULL STOCK OF MEATS

Of all kinds

At Wholesale and Retail.

HIDES, PELTS, & FAT STOCK WANTED

F. E. WOOD,

BARBER SHOP

And Bath Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres of land situated on Pine River village, one mile west of Charlevoix village, on the road leading home; living water on each forty; 30 acres cleared; balance timber; good soil; fine for farming purposes; time to suit the purchaser. For further information inquire of E. C. CARLETON, Boston, Mich.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Weed at 12½ cents a week.

Charlevoix Improvement Association

President—Byron Sec.

First Vice President—W. A. Smith.

Second Vice President—Robert Miller.

Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.

Financial Secretary—

Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.

Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Chuckbunk, and E. F. Parmelee.

Advertising Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. Bowers, and Chas. J. Cook.

Reception Committee—F. W. Mayre, L. D. Barber, Dr. G. W. Crouter, E. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Cushman, Jr.

The objects of the Association are to aid and encourage the development of our business and manufacturing enterprises in Charlevoix, and to advance the material growth and prosperity of Charlevoix and vicinity. Regular meetings are held at Charlevoix, Village Hall on the Third Monday of each month, at 7.30 p. m.

Charlevoix Business Men's Association.

President—John Nicholls.

First Vice President—H. Lee Iddings.

Secretary—R. W. Kane.

Treasurer—W. F. Sews.

Business Committee—President, Secretary, Barthobmew and O. S. Washburn.

The objects of this association shall be to unite merchants and other reputable business men for reform, development of industries and work for the general good, and to promote, by all legitimate means, the social, moral and business interests of its members.

Regular meetings on the first Tuesday evening of each month at Odd Fellows' Hall.

1887 LITTLE OLD FASHIONED.

As prim as a lily in some quiet nook
Sits she, by herself, with her skirts or her book,
And hears with an air patronizing the gay
Innocent jokes, by which you to her pay.
Dem

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - - - MICHIGAN

FRESH FROM THE WIRES.

Events of Interest and Importance in Every Quarter of the Habitable Globe.

News Relating to Politics, Religion, Commerce, Industry, Labor, and Other Topics.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

INGULFED IN THE LAKE.

The Propeller Vernon Lost—Thirty or More Officers and Passengers Thought to Have Perished.

THE propeller Vernon, of the Northern Michigan Line, plying between Chicago and Charlevoix, foundered in the terrific gale of Saturday off Two Rivers and all on board are supposed to be lost. The number is estimated at thirty. A dispatch from Manistowoc, Wis., gives the following meager information regarding the disaster:

It is believed that the boat carried a crew of twenty-six, and three passengers are reported from Manitowoc and twenty more names of those who were on board so far as they are known follow: Captain Jackson, of Ludington, who recently sailed the schooner Golden West; Cook Bigelow, second mate, who was the steamtugs Leland last year; R. W. Porter, of Chicago, steward; Henry Cook, one of the owners of the line; Charles Marsel, of Chicago, fireman; Frank Lamont, of Chicago; M. Mack, of Chicago, second engineer; a brother of Ed Hall, of Chicago; Martin Lyons, of Chicago, steward; Henry Cook, of Chicago, waiter, a brother of Martin; Miss Sadie Gallagher, of Manitowoc Island; Mrs. Jane Durkin, of Chicago; O. Dampson, of Chicago, fireman; Frank Lamont, deckhand. Besides the names mentioned in the dispatch published above, the Vernon carried an additional cabin boy, two wheelsmen, two deckhands, two cooks and eight deckhands. Miss Sadie Gallagher and Miss Jane Durkin were the only women on the boat. They were bound for home in Chicago. Many other vessels were wrecked on the lake in the terrible gale. Tugs were dispatched at Algoma, Wis., to the assistance of the Vernon, but it was thought that she had given herself away with all hands off Thunder Bay was the Venus.

SALE OF THE CHICAGO TIMES.

A Syndicate Will Take Charge of and Run the Paper as an Independent Organ.

A Chicago telegram says: "The Times has been sold to James J. West, Clinton A. Snowden, and a company of Eastern capitalists. The sale was made with the written consent of all the stockholders. The transfer includes the entire estate, consisting of real estate, the Times building, and the magnificent furnished "Castle Folly" on Grand boulevard. The real estate consists of 80 by 160 feet of the northwest corner of Washington street and Fifth avenue, on which the Times building stands. The lot is worth upwards of $150,000 and the building $70,000. Upon the marble castle on Grand boulevard fully $40,000 has already been expended, while the ground on which it stands would easily bring $100,000. There are also five other pieces of real estate, with a total value of about $155,500, which, added to the property already mentioned, would carry the total to $465,500. Add to this $500,000 for miscellaneous portions of the estate, the good-will, etc., and the total will be $1,265,500. It is generally believed that the amount paid by the purchasers for the entire property will be $1,000,000. It is said the Times will be run by its new owners as an independent paper.

A FIERY CIRCULAR.

Anonymous Threats of Danger Now. 11—The Police Vigilant.

A CHICAGO telegram says the Sheriff and Police Department were considerably agitated Sunday by the circulation from an unknown source, through the mails, of the following circular, which is without signature or other identification:

"NOTICE.

"Workingmen: Will you, as a Washingtonian of Chicago, allow yourselves to be robbed of your legitimate rights, when you confined in your homes by the bullies of the south brought about absolutely by police clubs occasioned by gunpowder, dynamite and seditious statements of the capitalistic press. Beware! Or, if you do, be damaging to this land of civilization. Remember the Haymarket massacre, taking on the 11th of November (you may single out any one you desire). The independence of the United States was brought about by the use of bullets and firearms. They are effective. Forewarned is forearmed. Any action that may occur will be determined upon abroad. It is not probable that the impress will be on the scene of any attempted execution. This notice is not intended for any one who has not sympathy with the condemned Anarchists. Further notice will be given later on."

Secretary Whitney Ill.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says that Secretary Whitney is now in New York, and will not return to the capital for an indefinite period. For the last year he has had troubles from headaches, which have grown more and more severe and frequent, until now he is unable to work. He has written no word of his annual report, and there is no prospect that he will be able to prepare one.

Jay Gould Frightened.

A NEW YORK paper prints a sensational story to the effect that Jay Gould was solicited to use his influence in behalf of the Chicago anarchists, and that he has received threatening letters for some time past that so terrified him that he determined upon his European trip in order to be out of this country upon the day set for the execution of the condemned men.

Contesting Mr. Carlisle's Seat.

GEN. J. Hide Rypher, attorney for George H. Thobe, who is contesting Mr. Carlisle's seat, has filed his brief, says a Washington telegram. It asserts that Thobe was elected by 800 majority. This result is found by reseasting about 1,000 votes cast for Carlisle and about 200 votes cast for Thobe, which were polled at precincts where it is claimed the laws of Kentucky were not observed.

THE EASTERN STATES.

ASHWORTH & DUNWELL, waste dealers, Philadelphia, have suspended, and their large mills in Chester, Pa., is in the hands of the Sheriff. Their liabilities have been variously estimated at from $50,000 to $150,000, with the total nearer the latter figure.

ATTORNEY GENERAL GARLAND submitted to the Supreme Court on Monday a motion to have advanced for early hearing the case of the receiver of the First National Bank of Buffalo, N. Y., against Elisha Spalding and others, which involves the question of the responsibility of the directors of the national banks for negligence in the performance of their duties. The motion to advance is made at the request of the Comptroller of the Currency.

HENRY MARTIN JACKSON, cashier of the Tenth National Bank, New York, is defaulter and has fled to Canada. The discrepancy is his accounts, says a New York dispatch, was first discovered on Saturday last, when he failed to appear at his desk. A hasty examination by Treasurer Cassidy showed a defalcation of at least $11,000. Jackson is the son of the aged Secretary of the New York Trust Society, and is 26 years old. He has been married twice, but has had some trouble with his wives. He has been employed in the Sub-Treasury for years.

A NEW pulp and paper mill at Corinth, N. Y., belonging to Senator Miller, was blown down. One man was instantly killed and three others were buried in the ruins.

TEFANY, DUTTER & CO., Boston bankers, failed; liabilities, $40,000; assets, $20,000. W. A. & A. G. Wright, wholesale grocers, of Cincinnati, have made an assignment. Their liabilities are reported at $20,000; assets, $25,000. O. E. Allen & Co., crockery-dealers, have assigned to Samuel B. Chase.

FORTY-NINE head of cattle affected with pleuro-pneumonia were killed on a farm near New Brunswick, N. J.

CHARLES G. FRANCLYN, who was arrested in New York upon the indictment of a sort against him for the theft of $5,000,0 0 by Sir Roche Cunard, has been released on bail, the bond amounting to $20,000.

THE WESTERN STATES.

A WEALTHY English syndicate will purchase a half interest in valuable iron lands on the Vermilion range, near Duluth, Minn., if the Consolidated Vermilion Company, the consolidation being $3,000,000.

A CHICAGO dispatch says that "A. R. Parsons has put into the hands of his wife, for transmission to the prince, the completed manuscript of a work on anarchism. The book will be printed in cheap form and will make between 300 and 400 pages. Parsons in a short conversation with a reporter said he had been about a month on the work, and that it would be given to the printer next week and published as soon as possible. He said it was intended for a book of information, and had no bearing on the case, and concluded by saying he supposed the authorities would be a good deal more so when it was published."

THE Circuit Court at Valparaiso, Indiana, has appointed Charles Dunker, an ex-Sheriff of the county, guardian of Jerd Herman, idiot, the surviving member of the family of the murdered Herman, who with the other members of which were killed in the Kouts disaster. Mr. Dunker will take possession in the boy's behalf against the Chicago and Atlantic Road for $50,000 damages—$10,000 for injuries received by the idiot and $20,000 for the death of the father.

A BUILDING in Paris township, Kent county, Michigan, in which thirty Italian railroad laborers were sleeping, was set on fire, and the men were barricaded in the building to prevent escape. The work was done by men of the same nationality belonging to another gang, and was the result of a fight between the inmates of the building all managed to get out.

The Secretary of the Interior on Wednesday received the following telegram from Indian Inspector Armstrong, at the Crow Agency, in Montana:

Twenty-three Venture Indians, well armed, are on this reservation en route to join the hostiles in Sheridan County. I have requested the officer in charge to arrest them and take them back, but allowed to go further at this time, but should I be compelled to take action, I shall request you not to permit any Indians to visit here until matters are settled.

This telegram was transmitted to the War Department, with the request that the military authorities be requested to return twenty Crow Ventures to the agency to which they belong. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs has been instructed to notify agents of Montana and Adjoining Territories to use every effort to keep their Indians on their reservations, and not to permit any of them to visit the Crow reservation.

THE failure is announced of the J. L. Ringer Printing Company, of Chicago. The liabilities of the concern are said to amount to about $125,000, and the assets are nominally valued at $100,000, but it is not believed that their cash value much exceeds $75,000.

A SAWMILL from Arden, Minn., was carried in pieces of a dark crime near Morris, a few miles distant.

Freight train No. 10 on the Rock Island Road was wrecked yesterday morning two miles east of Morris, by a telegraph pole laid across the track by trespassers, and two men were killed. The dead are William Smith, of Morris, and Frank Ryan, of Minneapolis. There is every evidence that the obstruction of the track was placed to wreck the Kansas City express, which fortunately was laid an hour late. The freight, which met the train intended for the express, was literally reduced to an indescribable pile of merchandise piled up in the ditch. The engine and seven cars of the train were first found to be missing, but the train was finally found where he had been caught in the attempt to wreck the express. He was found naught, the tender of his head being torn off, and his body was found under the tender. Engineer Mills was found with the boiler-head near his side with his head off. His skull was fractured and his body terribly scalded by the escaping steam. The Rock Island Company has offered $1,000 reward for the apprehension and conviction of the wreckers.

A WATER famine prevails in the two western tiers of Ohio counties and the adjoining territory of Indiana. Cattle are suffering, mills have been stopped, and the low stage of water in the wells is breeding typhoid fever and hundred diseases.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

PERRY KING and Drew Green (colored) were lynched near Winnsboroough, La. Two years ago the daughters of Mrs. Barker, proprietress at Lamar, were awakened by a noise at their window and saw a negro entering their room. They screamed and assistance came, and the negroes made off, but left an axe behind by which they were identified. Perry King and Drew Green were accordingly arrested and were about to be conveyed to the parish jail when a mob of fifty men intercepted, took the prisoners from the guard carried them a short distance, and hanched them.

THREE negroes were killed in quick succession by a man named Parrish, in Calloway county, Ky., a few days ago, for using a boat that belonged to him.

THE loss, 200,000 worth of fine lumber and a number of mills belonging to C. C. Lounsbury, at Loomis Station, near Little Rock, Arkansas, were destroyed by fire.

A HOLLY SPRINGS (Miss) dispatch says: "W. H. Reynolds, the youthful editor of a bitterly prohibition paper called the Sun, which was established here several weeks ago, was disappeared. Until about Sept. 1 last Reynolds was a resident of Topeka, Kan., and represented himself as the city editor of the Times of that city. He also claimed to be a nephew of the late Robert Toombs, of Georgia. Upon arriving at this place he rented desk room in the office of the South, where he set up his printing establishment and issued a small sheet, of which he was editor, printer, and proseman. He made a bitter attack upon all persons in the town engaged in the liquor traffic and their supporters, and after two issues of the paper two saloon-keepers named Reynolds and Lee had him severely flogged. His assailants were arrested and their trial set for Monday of last week, but on the previous night Reynolds disappeared."

IN introduction of resolutions expressly for the Chicago anarchists, of a memorial of the Turners' Society of Louisville, has caused a well in the organization.

A memorial from Jacksonville, Fla., says that James E. Hamilton, a mail-carrier between Maine and Lake Worth, on the Atlantic coast, was devoured by sharks while crossing Hillsboro inlet. Hamilton's boat was seventy-five miles long and he usually walked it, most of the distance on the beach. There inlets are dangerous because of the cross-currents and the large and voracious sharks that abound there. Hamilton's empty seaworm attached him, tore the oars out of his hands, bit huge pieces out of the boat planking, and finally he was thrown into their midst. One loud shriek of human agony, and the crimson tide told the tale. Hamilton's stricken eye-witnesses at a distance told the story. A searching party found nothing but the fragments of the boat. No other residents there will volunteer to carry the mail as yet, as the tragedy was witnessed by many.

A DISPATCH from Austin, Texas, says that the Sheriff of Lampasas county, arrested on recently killed two train-robbers near El Paso, has been paid $1,000 by order of Governor Ross as a reward for his act. Smith will probably get $2,000 more from the express company and $1,000 from the railroad company, making a total of $5,000.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

WHEN the case of the condemned anarchists came up in the supreme court of Washington, there by the court-room was packed by people anxious to hear the arguments. Justice Harlan presided in place of Chief Justice Waite, Justices Bradley and Lamar being absent. Mr. Adolph Tucker and Attorney General Hunt, of Illinois, made the argument against the writ.

Each made a clean and strong argument and was listened to with the utmost care, and not interrupted by any member of the court. Mr. Tucker said he had prepared a brief, but confined to the point that it was only necessary to show that the Illinois Supreme Court had jurisdiction of the case, and that the contention in order to exhibit his client's a writ of error was based on the ground that defendants was to be entitled if the writ were granted at a trial at which they could be represented by counsel and assume the opposite ground. Counsel said that if the court should decide that it was jurisdictionally proper for a man before a jury some of whose members were reading the anarchistic papers, but not when he began to argue that the fact ten jurors had read the anarchistic papers was a violation of the fourteenth amendment so that the proceeding was not "due process of law." Everything in the first ten amendments, he said, was in the nature of a bill of rights, and meant that he was giving defendants the benefit of the fourteenth amendment. Mr. Tucker was explaining that the "peaceably assemble and discuss public affairs," in the first amendment, meant "peaceably." Mr. Tucker's argument, though forcible, was not considered had the effect of investigating the question whether the state had authorized power, rendered the speaker that the state had authorized power, rendered the state federal power." Mr. Tucker said he was not able to explain that the fourteenth amendment made the first amendment made restraints upon State power as well as Federal power. He contended that the fourteenth amendment received a second construction in the Slaughter-House cases, and that it was "Washington Republican" and a half years ago in the Presser case, also contended that the fourteenth amendment was not a mere restraint upon State power, but was a restraint upon Federal power. Mr. Tucker said he was not able to explain that the fourteenth amendment made restraints upon State power as well as Federal power." Mr. Tucker said he was not able to explain

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THE President has ordered the removal of the headquarters of the Mackinac Indian agency from Flint to Sault Ste. Marie.

SENATOR ALLISON says in his interviews that he is not seeking the presidency. It is rumored, however, that the Iowa statesman does not lock his doors to prevent the presidency from seeking him.—Chicago News.

A CONVENTION has been had between Jay Gould and President Chandler of the postal telegraph company, in New York. Peace was declared, and it was determined to advance telegraph rates immediately. Peace between monopolists means war on the people.

THE Paris Anarchists, in their plea for the pardon of their Chicago brethren, denounce the infliction of death penalties for political offenses. The Chicago miscreants, however, are not going to be hanged for political offenses, but for plain, brutal murder.—Philadelphia Press.

WITHOUT going into the merits of the question, we can lay down the broad propositions that peace is better than war, reason better than passion, love better than hate; and if these axioms are admitted as a basis for argument, it will not be difficult to prove from them that arbitration is a more civilized and nobler means of settling disputes between nations than brute force.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A MURDEROUS attempt was made last Thursday evening to blow up Chief Justice Waite with what appeared to be an infernal machine. A box containing the thing was mailed at the postoffice at Washington, having upon it five two cent stamps and a special delivery stamp and was delivered to the chief justice by a postoffice mail messenger. Upon receiving the box, the chief justice at once opened it, but the wire which was fastened to the top of the box had been detached, and the lid was removed without pressing upon the cap that was intended to explode the giant powder found in the box. It is supposed that in stamping the box, a jar had been occasioned that had detached the wire, thus saving the life of the chief justice. This little box of giant powder was undoubtedly intended as the chief justice's reward for declining to issue a writ of error in the anarchists case.

LAST Saturday night, George Engel, one of the condemned anarchists attempted suicide by taking laudanum. A physician was called, and after an hour and a half hard labor he was out of danger. Sunday morning a thorough search was made of the cells of the others anarchists. In the cell of Louis Lingg was found, under a bundle of papers, a small wooden box about eight inches long, and four inches wide, which contained four dynamite bombs, sufficiently powerful to blow up the entire building, with its three hundred inmates. However these bombs came in this cell, they were there for no good purpose. They were there for the destruction of human life, and is another strong link in the chain of evidence of the dangerous and revolutionary character of these men. While the finding of these bombs will probably have no bearing on the execution of the sentence of these condemned men yet it will more fully convince the people that, at least Lingg is too dangerous a character to live under a popular government.

Double Distilled Hypocrisy.

Twenty-four years ago a republican congress enacted and put in force a protective tariff, and one of the main arguments used to secure its passage was that it would secure the American laborer against competition with the foreign labor of Europe. Right on the heels of the passage of this act congress passed another act, the title of which was "to encourage immigration." It provided for a commissioner to be located at Washington with a salary of $2,500, and a like commissioner located at New York, was given a like salary and clerks sufficient to do the work were also provided for. One of the provisions of this precious law provided that when money was advanced for the purpose of bringing immigrants to this country by firms or corporations, the amount so advanced should be a lien on the wages of said immigrants until paid. The machinery of this bureau was at once put in operation. Immigrants were imported by the shipload, new steamship lines sprang into existence to meet the demand for transportation, money was advanced to pay the fares of those too poor to pay them, and thus, contrary to the express intent of a high tariff for the pretended purpose of protecting American labor, provision was made and carried into effect to supply the market with cheap labor. This immigration act, which had been a wonderful "dumping" influence, and which was concurrent with high tariff legislation; shows the hypocrisy of the republican pretense that the tariff was intended to prevent competition with American labor by cheap European labor. After passing a protective tariff, it provided for such competition on our own soil—making it far more effective than it would have been if it had remained in Europe. Is it a matter for surprise that wages declined, that labor troubles existed, that our large cities are filled with imported communists, socialists and anarchists? This is a natural if not inevitable result of the republican legislation of twenty odd years ago.—Kalamazoo Gazette.

Polygamy and Statehood.

The polygamus Mormons in Utah are willing, they say, to adopt a constitution forbidding polygamy as a condition precedent to admission as a state. They propose to make the anti-polygamy clause in the constitution irrepealable without the consent of the federal government. Such a proposal made and carried out, in good faith is all that the most exacting anti-polygamist can ask; but how is the assurance to be given that it will be carried out in good faith?

There is a very simple way. Let the polygamists abandon their polygamy now. Let them put away their surplus wives under suitable provision for their proper maintenance and conform to the letter and spirit of the federal laws on the subject of plural marriage. Such a course would be the best possible guaranty of honest intention in the proposed constitutional provision. It would give the people of Utah one of the strongest conceivable claims to admission as a state.—Free Press.

The Territory of Alaska.

The report of Governor Swineford of Alaska estimates the population at 30,000, of which 12,600 are civilized. The taxable property is about $10,000,000. An increase will be rapid as soon as congress gives encouragement to settlement of public lands. The country is well adapted to agriculture and stock raising. Wonderful results are being achieved in mining, showing the territory rich with precious metals. The governor pays his respects to the Alaska commercial company by declaring the company has reduced the natives to slaves, bought and driven away honest govern ment officers who refused to do their bidding. In short it is a grinding monopoly and discourages the development of the country. The contract should not be renewed.

A Free Translation.

The importance of distinct enunciation in singing was well illustrated in a Sunday school recently. The scholars frequently sing:

Pass along the watchword, shout it as you go,
Victory! victory over every foe.

A little girl of five years, coming for the first time to Sunday school, was greatly pleased with the singing of this hymn. When she reached home she said:

"Mamma they sang such a funny song at Sunday school today."

"What was it?" asked her mother.

"Oh, they sang, 'pass along the wash-rag,' and they kept saying it over and over."—Youths Companion.

A Mossbo's View of California.

Mr. David N. Berg, of the Indiana state board of health, has recently returned from California, and says: "My advice to people who contemplate going out there to make investments, is, don't go." He says that on one line of road extending sixty miles north-west of Los Angeles, there are thirty-two towns laid out. The country for ten miles around Los Angeles, is sub-divided into small lots 50x100 feet, and the prices for them range from $500 to $1,000. He says Los Angeles has 800 real-estate firms to a population of 40,000. The thermometer ranged from 100 to 108 degrees in the shade, while he was there.

A. J. Kellogg, secretary of the state fish commission, says a larger plant of the eggs of all fish will be made in the hatcheries this fall than ever before. The two crews who have been examining the inland lakes during the summer, to ascertain what species of fish they are best adapted for, have been called in and the work of collecting eggs has begun. The quantity of carp at the Paris hatchery will be doubled for next season.

THE VERNON'S VICTIMS.

Twenty-Two Bodies Have Been Recovered.

Capt. Lewis Gebeo Identified and Brought Home.

Twenty-two of the victims of the disaster to the Vernon were recovered last week about twelve miles north-east from Two Rivers, Wis., and taken to that place for identification. Five of them were together, and the others were picked up within a short distance from each other. All were the bodies of men except two. All were clothed fully except the two women, who were without headwear and shoes, and one of whom was without a skirt. Their long hair was disheveled and matted, but their faces are not disfigured, and they look enough alike to be sisters. Several appear to have made a desperate struggle for life until their life preservers became saturated and useless. The life preservers were in two instances too large, and slipped up to the heads of the unfortunates, who were found in a perpendicular position in the water. A bunch of letters was found on the body of Captain Thorpe. His watch stopped at 5.55, and it was undoubtedly at this hour that the propeller went to the bottom. The first body identified was that of young Burke. He was recognized by his father. Among those identified are George Thorpe of Ogdensburg, captain; John Sullivan, of Chicago, first mate; Larry Higgins of Chicago, second mate; F. W. Burk of Chicago, clerk; Martin Bean of Chicago, steward; Henry Bean of Chicago, porter; Roy Hazelton of Chicago, cabin boy; Lewis Gebeo of Charlevoix, wheelman; E. B. Borland of Milwaukee, a passenger; Chas. Gallagher of St. James, a passenger; and the Galagher sisters of St. James.

In the pocket of the coat worn by one of the unidentified dead was a letter postmarked Port Washington, and addressed to Adolph Hasselbert of Milwaukee. There is little doubt that the man is the person addressed. There is nothing about the others to identify them. Several are undoubtedly deck hands, picked up at various second mate. Up to a short time ago he was in command of the steamer Leland, and lost his position when the steamer changed ownership. It is difficult to obtain a command in the middle of the season, and rather than remain idle he accepted the first berth that was offered him.

The owners and managers of the line, while admitting that he did occasionally "take a glass of beer," denounce Stone's story as false, and claim that Thorpe was always considered a sober, reliable master; that different members of the firm had been more or less intimately connected with him for years, and know his habits well, and claim to have reason to believe that he was never under the influence of liquor while in command of the boat.

Our people here who were personally acquainted with Thorpe, and the crew, and have heard frequent comment, can judge for themselves which to believe.

THE VERNON OVERLOADED.

If Stone's story is true, then the Vernon's loss was due entirely to the carelessness of her master, Captain Thorpe, and there can be no manner of doubt about her being overloaded. According to Stone the Vernon was loaded about a foot lower than usual, the deck being only six inches above the water. A gale set in three hours after leaving Good Harbor, and the vessel labored heavily. Stone, who was on watch, suggested to the captain that some freight had better be thrown off, but was bidden to go to h—l for his pains, the captain adding that he was running the boat.

The last time the Vernon was in Chicago, Capt. Sullivan, speaking of the steamer, remarked that she was being loaded deeper than she ought to be.

E. S. Noble of the firm of Dexter & Noble, of Elk Rapids, stated to a Progress reporter that the Vernon ought not to have taken on a pound of freight after leaving that port.

ST JAMES IN MOURNING.

The little community of St. James on Beaver Island has been in grief since the Vernon disaster was learned of there, as six residents of the Island are among the lost. They are: Mary Gallagher, Kittie Gallagher and Philo Green, all daughters of Michael Gallagher; Mrs. Condy Gallagher, Charles Gallagher and Kittie Malloy. They were all in Chicago. Mrs. Charles Gallagher's body was identified by his brother. In his pockets was found about $1,000 in money. The body was taken to St. James for burial.

Michigan Mention

Gov. Luce is quoted as expressing belief that the skating rink and the salvation army are responsible for the downfall of the Adrian reform school.

The result of Benthall Champlain is much larger than before she was burned, being 180 feet in length, and 29 feet beam. It is not determined yet whether or not to make a passenger boat of her. The fact that it is about settled that the Detroit and Cleveland Seam Navigation Co. will build two elegant side-wheel steamers in the near future for the Cheboygan and Chicago route has almost determined the owners to make a freight barge of her.—Cheboygan Tribune.

The system of communicating with moving trains by telegraph has been perfected and has been tested with success on several different roads. It is probable a test will soon be made on the C. & W. M. with the view of adopting it on that road as a precaution against accident on the road. With the new system in use, the train dispatcher can give orders to direct the movements of any train and and the train hands can ask for instructions at any time. This would be a great safe guard against collisions, as trains could be stopped at any place. It would be a convenience to the public also, as passengers could make use of it.—Grand Rapids Leader.

Homesteaders on the Marquette, Houghton & Ontonagon railroad indemnity lands in Baraga and Ontonagon counties held a meeting at L'Anse Nov. 2 and adopted the name of the Michigan Homestead Union. Representatives were present from nearly every county in the upper peninsula. Thos. Brady, of L'Anse, was chosen president; G. M. Pearson, Menominee, vice-president; M. E. Ford, of Marquette, secretary and treasurer. A constitution and by laws was adopted. Settlers holding 225,000 acres of very valuable pine, mineral and agricultural lands are in the union. The lands are worth $15,000,000. It was decided by the executive board to employ the best lawyer in the State to present the case before the Interior Department.

Charlevoix Manufacturing Company,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Sash, Doors, and Blinds,

Screen Doors and Windows, and Mouldings of all Descriptions.

Newell Posts, Banisters, and Stair Rail, of Soft and Hard Wood, kept in Stock and Made and Put Up to Order.

A GOOD STOCK OF

PINE AND BASSWOOD SIDING

FLOORING, CEILING AND FRAMING LUMBER KEPT ON HAND.

Also Contractors, Builders, and General Jobbers.

Summer Cottages a Specialty.

CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN.

THE ROUND OAK HEATING STOVES.

NEW COOK STOVES.

Best Saws and Axes. Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

G. A. R. CIGARS

Are noted as one of the eBest 5 ct. cigars made. For every thousand sold here the Baxter Post of Charlevoix receives $2.00.

The Post has just received its first $2.00. Friends of the Post, try the G A. R. Cigar and help the old soldiers. For Sale by

F. A. COCHRAN & CO., Druggist and Pharmacists.

New Goods

A Large Stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods of the Latest Styles, just received. Call and See them.

EXCELSIOR MANF'G CO'S

FULL SIZE, WELL MADE & PERFECT FIT

TRY THEM, for sale by G. W. MILLER.

A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF

NEW

Dry Goods!

Received on the Lawrence this week. Come and see them.

B. SEE.

Bargains

IN

BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

Hardware Iron and Nail Merchants.

CHAMPION FORCE PUMPS

PLOWS, BARBED WIRE, ETC., LEAD.

SAVE YOUR DOLLARS

And buy them of Yours Truly,

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

THE JOURNAL

FRIDAY, NOV. 16, 1888.

Local Notes and News.

For woolen hose go to B. See's.

The fire engine was ont Monday filling the reservoirs.

For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. 22y1

W. H. Flower, photographer, will close the gallery Nov. 12th.

A few ladies cloaks left yet; call and get a bargain; at B. See's.

Beaver Island hand knit socks fifty cents a pair, at Geo. W. Miller's.

Those who expect to pay for the JOURNAL in wood will please bring it at once.

The steamer Gracie Barker was hauled out at Campbell's ship yard last Saturday.

Miss Belle Scott has moved "The Fair" into the Inwood building one door north of the Newman House.

If in case of our subscribers wish to pay for the paper with potatoes, we will take fifteen or twenty bushels.

The ladies band will hold another of their social hops at the Bridge Street House next Wednesday evening.

A new set of books have been received at the register's office, and the register is again in shape to do business.

The Queen of the lakes was in the harbor Saturday with a cargo of freight for Charlevoix and East Jordan.

Apples, potatoes, cabbages, squashes, or buckwheat flour will be taken in payment for the JOURNAL at market rates.

Before you buy a Christmas chair for grandma, don't forget to look at those fine willow goods just received by S. M. See & Sons.

These columns of our inside pages this week are given to the temperance question, and two columns to the discussion of the tariff question. Both subjects are among the leading questions of the hour, and should be given special thought.

Deputy game and fish warden, W. A. Smith informs us that Christopher Gokee was arrested this week for chasing deer with dogs about three miles east of Clarion, in this county, and being unable to pay his fine of $50 is now confined in the Charlevoix jail.

Cash in advance is the only true basis on which to run a newspaper, and we want to put the JOURNAL on that basis as soon as possible. If anyone in arrears fails to receive this paper regularly they can calculate that we are tired of waiting for them.

The pupils of the high school have organized a reading club, with the intention of holding regular meeting, and pursuing a systematic course of reading. About forty volumes, included in the "Modern Classics" have been purchased from the school fund and remaining after paying for the organ, and these, with such additions as may be made in future, will supply the members with good reading matter.

Purely Personal.

O. D. Wood and F. J. Meech went to Ballaine Tuesday.

Dr. Carlstein writes that he expects to be home this week.

G. R. Brown and wife returned from their visit at Ann Arbor last Friday.

L. E. Allen, wife an little boy returned last Friday from their visit at Aurora, Ohio.

Dan Durance left Tuesday for his old home in Canada, where he will spend the winter.

A. D. Cruickshank went to Bellaire Monday to attend the circuit court in session there this week.

Jacob Keller, one of the pioneers of South Arm township, died at his home Tuesday November 8th.

Mrs. Robert Wilks and daughter, Carrie left Tuesday for Flint, where they expect to spend the winter.

Mrs. A. D. Cruickshank returned last Friday from Livingston county where she has been visiting a number of weeks.

J. P. Woodbury, well known during the summer on the Charlevoix resort, died Saturday night, Nov. 5, from injuries received by being thrown from a carriage in which he was riding that day.

Coming Events.

The W. C. T. U. will meet Friday afternoon at Jefferies hall at 2.30 o'clock.

Rev. A. O. Downs will conduct the services at the Congregational church next Sunday.

Letter from D. C. Nettleton

Petoskey, Mich., Nov. 12, 1888.

Editor Journal:—Permit me to make the following paragraphs from a letter written by D. C. Nettleton, Oct. 27th, to John Nicholls, of Charlevoix, describing some of the scenes, and the country as he saw it, on his journey to San Diego, Cal., via the A. T. & S. F. R. R.:

We arrived here all right yesterday. My wife stood the journey well; I don't see but she is as well as when we started.

I cannot pass judgment on this place on so short an acquaintance, but there is a great boom here and the town is laid out for miles along the bay and property up in the moon price, and some of it near to the moon in location. The place has about 20,000 inhabitants and has evidently outgrown its clothes, as there is not, I think, an hundred feet of continuous sidewalk in the city, although there are several business blocks that would do credit to Chicago. We passed through about 1,000 miles of most deplorable country. I was prepared to see some poor country, but not to the extent of embracing entire states and territories. If any man can come over the route we traversed from La Junta, Colorado, to this place, not excepting California, without becoming disgusted, he must have a total disregard of the fitness of a country to supply the wants of the human race. I mean agriculturally; minerals may partially redeem it; but I can conceive of nothing else.

We probably passed some fine valleys in the night, coming from Barstow; but all the fine land we passed by day you could put in your hat and have room for a brick. I write of the country as I saw it from the railroad. There is undoubtedly fine valleys back, and this city, I believe, has a future beyond the boom now prevailing.

If you should come to this country by the A. T. & S. F., shut your eyes after you leave Colorado, and you will lose nothing but a chaos of mountains, rocks and barren deserts. Having written some hard things of the country, I will close by saying that we are having June weather. Oranges and lemons are hanging on the trees, and flowers are in bloom. You can mix these, I was about to say, to your taste but you will be compelled to take a large proportion of mountain and desert to a small proportion of oranges and flowers.

Eveline.

IRONTON Nov. 8.—Indian summer. E. G. Jarman is improving in health.

It is rumored that revival meeting will be held at mountain school house in the near future.

We have been enjoying some beautiful weather of late. Just the weather for wood cutting.

D. D. T. Hunt, one of the oldest in habitants of Advance passed from this earth on Friday morning, Oct. 26th, aged 65 years and 6 months. T. J. De Wolf spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family.

The steam barge, Roanoke, of Milwaukee, loaded with 450 tons of pig iron for the Pine Lake Iron Co., for Chicago, on Friday.

We are grieved to learn of the death of a former resident of Ironton, Frank Morehouse, who died Oct. 24th at St. Andrews Hospital, Chicago. The family had just gone there five weeks ago in hopes of restoring the health of the deceased. The bereaved husband and sister have our sympathy for them.

J. H. Purvis has just completed for himself a new barn.

Eugene Waldron returned Friday from the southern part of the state, where he has been for the past two years.

Thanksgiving is just two weeks from Thursday. Have your turkey well fattened.

At Ironton, Geo. Lack has improved the appearance of his already fine residence by an addition on the back.

Edwin Tumeth has improved his residence by a wing on the left.

The Schoffen family left on Wednesday, for Chicago, their future home.

Tommy Copperland was the lucky one to draw the medecon at the raffle at Schoffen's hall one evening last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank, of Advance, buried an infant son, Oct. 20.

John Mervile, of Advance, the mail carrier between Boyne City and East Jordan, lost two fingers recently, by the bursting of his gun.

James Polly has returned home.

Charles and Jake Backenstose have returned from the upper peninsula, where they have been for about with their teams.

School in mountain district closed last week after two weeks school. It will open again the 1st of December.

Miss Bennett, the teacher returned to her home in Eastport.

Chas. Lumery spent Sunday with H. S. Freeman.

The H. H. Society met with Miss Nellie Noves last Wednesday evening and a social time was had. The society is becoming more and more interesting every evening. The society meets with J. H. Purvis next Wednesday evening Nov. 16.

Wilson.

Mr. J. E. Potter, engineer of East Jordan, placed an inspirator in the Vance mill last Saturday.

Jno. Tremain, wife and son were guests of Melburn Healy one day recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. R. Vance and son, Earle, visited in Echo, one day last week.

Rev. Mr. Davie, of Bay Springs, preached to a large congregation on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Vance, of South Arm, but formerly of this place, rejoice in the possession of a little daughter, which arrived Oct. 31.

Supervisor Hudkins has been treating his residence to a new coat of paint.

Mr. Fred Bowman has taken up his duties for the season, as night watch in the Vance mill.

Charlie and Dad Hudkins have returned home to remain for a while, at least.

John Shepard and Albert Todd are digging cellars for new dwellings. Looks suspicious, eh?

Mr. Geo. Todd has his windmill for sawing wood in operation again.

All Hallows-en was a splendid night, and some enjoyed the evening without getting into mischief, but you know we are only moss-backs and haven't arrived at the high (?) civilization of older villages.

News is received that Mr. S. Smith well known here as the father of F. L. Smith, of this place, was married to Mrs. Davis, of Advance a week ago.

Another social event occurred on Monday evening. About 20 of F. L. Smith's friends reminded him of his "surprise" and was enjoyed by all.

Shipments.

The following are the shipments from the port of Charlevoix, reported for the week ending Wednesday evening:

Oct. 31.—Schr. Morning Star, 220 cords bark, French & Sutton, to Kenosha.

27.—Schr. Hampton, 200,000 ft. hardwood lumber, Pine Lake Lumber Co., to Chicago.

28.—Schr. J. V. Taylor, 100,000 hardwood lumber, Perkins & White, to Chicago.

3.—Schr. Evening Star, 100,000 ft. hardwood lumber, Pine Lake Lumber Co., to Chicago.

Nov. 1.—Schr. Harriet Rose, 120,000 hardwood lumber, 25,000 birch lumber, Perkins & White, to Chicago.

1.—Schr. Florence M. Smith 2,200 cedar posts R. Tulloch, to Milwaukee.

2.—Schr. Narragansett, 350 tons pig iron, Pine Lake Iron Co., to Chicago.

3.—Schr. Lydia Ramsey, 100,000 hardwood lumber, Pine Lake Lumber Co., to Sheboygan.

3.—Schr. Cascade, 5,000 cedar ties, W. H. Downer, to Chicago.

4.—Schr. Peoria, 140 cords bark, French and Sutton, to Kenosha.

4.—Schr. Mocking Bird, 1,750,000 cedar shingles, J. S. Smithson, to Chicago.

5.—Propr. H. B. Peters, 100,000 hardwood lumber, Perkins & White, to Chicago.

6.—Propr. Roanoke, 500 tons pig iron, Pine Lake Iron Co., to Chicago.

8.—Schr. Lottie Mason, 90 cords wood, I. H. Stimpson, to Milwaukee.

8.—Schr. Evening Star, 100,000 cedar shingles, Pine Lake Lumber Co., to Chicago.

8.—Schr. Hampton 150,000 hardwood lumber, 3,200 ties, Pine Lake Lumber Co., to Chicago.

Ellsworth.

ELLSWORTH, Nov. 8.—Roads are drying up which renders travel more comfortable.

The building we were to have the use of for church services has been let to other parties, therefore we can have none nearer than before.

We understand that satisfactory arrangements have been made with the last party in this town who held the D. C. & E. R. R.

Henry Hall talks of selling out and moving his family to Boyne City.

Burgess.

BURGESS, Nov. 8.—Alex Ross's family will move to Milwaukee for the winter.

Mr. W. T. Dake and wife have returned from their wedding tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Hale will return to their farm as soon as Mr. Hale has sufficiently recovered.

Lumbering has begun in Hayes.

Historical Society.

The Historical Society will meet with Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Kane, Friday evening, Nov. 11th. Paper on the general history of England, by Rev. W. G. Clark. Hon. John Nicholls and A. T. Washburne will lead in the conversation, which is to be general.

Card of thanks.

I desire to extend my grateful thanks to our neighbors and friends for their sympathy, and help tendered to me in my great bereavement.

MRS. J. A. BACOT.

Newspaper Statistics.

A compilation made from the American Newspaper Directory for 1887 shows that the total number of periodical publications issued in the United States and Canada is 15,420, 14,766 in the United States and 714 in Canada. The first ten states in the order of number of publications is as follows: New York, 1,591; Illinois, 1,149; Pennsylvania, 1,138; Ohio, 935; Iowa, 731; Kansas, 684; Missouri, 678; Michigan, 594; Massachusetts, 586; Indiana, 583. These are the only states which have each over 500 publications credited to it. South Carolina, Vermont, the District of Columbia, Rhode Island, Delaware and Nevada have each less than 100, the extremes being ninety-six for the first named and thirty for the last.

Of the total number 11,614 are weeklies, 1,759 monthlies, 1,397 dailies, 230 semi-monthlies, 183 semi-weeklies, 107 quarterlies, 71 bi-weeklies, 47 tri-weeklies and 30 bi-monthlies. The total circulation is 20,143,450 copies, nearly 60 per cent. being of weekly publications, 30 per cent. of monthlies and nearly 10 per cent. of dailies, leaving 4 per cent. to represent publications of all other classes. The average circulation of the dailies is 3,416, and of the weeklies, 1,545. In point of circulation New York leads with one-fourth of the total, followed by Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Massachusetts, Canada, Missouri, Michigan, California, Iowa, Maine, Indiana and Wisconsin in the order named, each state having periodicals with an aggregate circulation of 500,000 or more. The lowest in the scale is Nevada, all the periodicals published within the limits of that state having an aggregate circulation of 12,500.

The total number of papers issued in a whole year is estimated at 2,747,653,000, 1,489,020,000 being dailies, 993,305,000 weeklies, 72,600,000 monthlies and only about 50,000,000 for all other classes of publications.—Detroit Free Press.

Poverty Abroad.

Senator Frye, of Maine, who has just returned from Europe, gives, in an interview, his impressions of the condition of the masses of the people abroad: "The poorest in Europe live on the poorest food, I found in Glasgow I could get a pretty fair dinner for 2s. 6d. a day—sixty-two cents. I was charmed with Edinburgh, but when I saw women drunk, fighting in her beautiful streets, the modern Athens lost her charms. I cannot convey to you the picture of the degradation and want throughout Great Britain caused by drink.

"Speaking of wages, I found girls in factories in Venice working with great skill for from five to twelve cents a day. The most experienced getting twelve cents a day, out of which they have to live. But how they live is a wonder. Their chief diet is macaroni. Farm hands all over Europe, women, earn twenty cents a day. Women do most of the field work. I saw no improved machinery on the farms of the continent. I have seen twenty women in one field at work, not a single man in sight. The plain people have meat to eat but once a week on the continent. The condition of the American wage earner is incomparably better than that of the working people in Europe. It is the difference between comfort and competence and discomfort and insufficient food and clothing.—Frank Leslie's.

Cable Roads Preparing for Frost.

The Cable Road company are already preparing for winter. When the road was built due allowance was made for the expansion and contraction of the ironwork and cables by heat and cold, but the pressure on the rails caused by the same agencies seems to have been entirely forgotten. The first cold snap of winter brought any quantity of trouble to the company. It frees the rails and snow water which had been allowed to settle in the spaces between the paving stones lying between the rails and the cross ties which ran through which prevent the flow of the water through the grips pass.

The stones spread further and further apart, and, pressing against the ironwork, closed up the slot so effectually that the grips were gripped firmly and they ever grasped the cable, and the road was blocked completely until gangs of men tore up the pavement at various points and pried the slot open with crowbars.

The company are now busily engaged relaying the pavement between the tracks, leaving considerable space between the ironwork. These spaces are first filled with gravel and finally run as full of the pitch as possible, in the hope that water will find no space to lodge and freeze in this winter.—New York Evening Sun.

Signs of Wind.

Father Dominick Navarette in the Seventeenth century discovered certain infallible signs of wind. One never failing token was the running and fluttering about of little insects aboard the ship, and the more restless they are the higher the wind, and by observing what place they came from mariners did know if it will be fair." Another sign according to his reverence, is when pigs begin to run and tumble about a ship in a calm. Baumgarten, in his "Travels," says he was with a pilot who, by putting his finger in the mouth and then holding it up, "prognosticated to us that we should have wind very speedily, which, indeed, proved accordingly." All that the modern sailor can do by wetting his finger and lifting it is to feel if there be any movement in the air. The digit has long ceased to be a sibyl. Formerly the Brittany fishermen raised the wind at will by procuring the dust swept out of a certain church and blowing it in the direction from which they desired the breeze to come. Sardinian sailors also possessed the same useful art. To procure a fair wind they had nothing to do but to sweep a chapel after mass and blow the dust of it after departing ships.—London Telegraph.

A Sultan's Palace.

The sultan of Johore has a wonderful palace near Singapore. Its wealth and splendor are the Arabian Nights' tales in splendor; and he is always willing to show his marvels to the many strangers touching at his shores. He entertains his guests at meals with food served in gold vessels, which service cost $700,000. The regalia he wears is valued at $200,000, a sword Queen Victoria presented cost the neat sum of $50,000, and he delights to dazzle the eyes of his enchanted spectators with these wondrous visions of wealth.—The Argonaut.

SCHOOL BOOKS

We have now in Stock all the new Books adopted by the Board, and they will be sold at less than Publishers' Introductory Price. We have the largest stock of School Books and School Supplies in the county. and as we are the publishers' agent we are prepared to sell cheaper than ever. Get our prices before you purchase or you will be sorry.

Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Dry Goods

Cloaks and Carpets.

Largest Stock. Lowest Prices

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

MORTGAGE SALE.—A mortgage dated Monday, Feb. 13th, 1882, executed by Martin Staley and Elizabeth Staley his wife, to Martin J. Ayer, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, on the 20th day of August, at page 427, on the 15th day of November, which mortgage was in the sum of $1,000 and was given to secure the payment of five notes of $200 each, payable to the order of said Martin J. Ayer, as shown by said mortgage, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, in liber 2 of mortgages at page 427, on the 20th day of August last, which said mortgage the entire principal and interest remains unpaid, and there is due, over and above all payments and offsets, the sum of five dollars, in part due and unpaid, leaving every of which, we will on Friday, the 16th day of November, A. D. 1888, at 10 o'clock, under the power of sale contained in said mortgage, at the south front door of the Northeast quarter and the northwest corner of the northeast quarter of section twenty-two, township thirty-three north of range seven west, containing one hundred and twenty acres, more or less, at the front door of the court house, in the Boyne City, Michigan, where the circuit court for said county is held, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 4th day of February, 1888.

Dated Charlevoix, Mich., Aug. 16th, 1888.

IRVIN D. WOOD,
Assignee of Mortgage.

J. MILO BATON,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
Charlevoix, Michigan.

CHICAGO HERALD

AND THE

Charlevoix Journal

ONE YEAR

For $2.00

Sample Copies at this Office.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is a complete newspaper in all that constitutes the best type of a metropolitan journal. It is a member of the Associated Press, and is the only 3-cent morning paper in Chicago that possesses this advantage. It is essential to a complete news serv ce. In addition it has its own private wires and a strong force in office with Washington and New York. It prints ALL THE NEWS.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is an independent paper. It recognizes the utility of political parties as means for the accomplishment of proper ends, but it declines to regard any mere party as a fit subject for unquestioning adoration. It is unbiased in its presentation of political news.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is a "short-and-to-the-point" paper. It leaves to the "blanket-sheet" its monopoly of tiresome and worthless amplification. It says all that is to be said in the shortest practicable manner. It is a paper for busy people.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Now prints and sells over 175,000 copies per day—a larger "sale" than that of any other Chicago dailies combined. Sold by all news dealers at two cents per copy. Mailed to any address, postage prepaid, for six dollars per year, or for a shorter term at rate of fifty cents per month. Address Victor F. Lawson, Publisher Chicago, Ill.

The Chicago Weekly News

Eight pages, 84 columns, is the largest dollar weekly in America. 10

ROUGH BUT RIGHT.

BY EUGENE WOOD.

"Ho allus was a kind o' mean an' sneakin'
For yuh gotta do per-cisely as the sky!
I mean, along an' crossed yuh speakin.
For fear accord I'd pass yuh in the eyes
I heard yuh try to call me off an' leave me
Ah! I heard yuh say, "Oh, Bill yuh won't dis-ceive me?
For I love yuh more'n anything in life."

Thinks I: "Good Lord in Heaven! The cry cause!
Us this the kind o' devilhunt he's at?
Ay! boy! we finished your Annie Hackell!
He' s like as not he'd beat my sis back that.
Poor Annie tried t-draw herself into pieces
Been better for her, mebbe, if she had!
Ah! I hated him, I hated him, I hated
I'd a killed yuh sooner, if I'd a seen her dad.

An' when I heard her say: "Oh, Bill, I love yuh!
Lovin', yes, yuh low-lived, good-for-nothin'
I get a-plain—an' by the Lord above yuh
I'd a dashed yer worthless brains out on the spinnin'
But, Kittie' you ud make her hate her father—
Her pore old pap 'an loves her more an you.
The Trial ud a been a heap easier today!
So I dropped the chick—thinks I: "It wouldn't do
I know yuh, Bill, an' how yuh are connected,
An' scaly mother, fetch yer sneakin' ways
Yer uncle—Jimmy—he's a pure complicated,
Ah! I'd a found his neck one night an' no.
So you jis' yet an' don't be long about it.
Don't lies' me see yuh 'round hyar any more.
If yer kotch yer worthless ass, sez I, I shoot it,
I'll turn you loose yuh orter been before.

TO WIFE.

You don' know men lack I do, little darter,
An' I don' know as you ever thought hisen;
But I kin see clean through him, jes lack his mo'ther
Hi! wimmin' ways ud lead yuh on to shame.
I'd jes' hev to git yuh hoed now—dead an'
done
It nearly kills pore pap to see yuh cry—
Yes, yuh said all sin' Bill ud ever do to you
"At ud cause yuh want to cuse yore Gud ob life.

CHASED BY MALAY PROAS.

BY GEORGE H. COOMER.

Our ship was the Luzon, from New York for Canton, and we were now in the China Sea.

The voyage thus far had proved a singular one, and, though the Luzon was a fast sailing ship, her passage had been long.

First, before striking the northeast trade wind in the Atlantic, we had encountered a succession of southerly gales, and at the end of these a tedious calm of twenty-two days.

Next, off the Cape de Verd Islands, we had lost our fore yard in a squall. The weather was threatening, and we were under double-reefed topsails and foresail, when this squall, a sort of whirlwind, caught us aback, snapping the yard short off in the slings.

Then off the Cape of Good Hope, nearly every man on deck was struck down by a bolt of lightning, which enveloped the ship in a blinding glare, and was accompanied with a crash of thunder that no language can describe. Luckily, however, the man at the wheel was less stunned than most of the others, or we would certainly have gone to destruction.

Finally, off the Isle of France, we had met with a hurricane which carried away our mizzenmast, fore and main topmasts, main yard and jibboom, besides making a clean sweep of our bulwarks, staving our two boats, and laying the galley overboard.

We had rigged a jury mizzenmast, got up a new main yard and a couple of spare topmasts, and so kept on our way.

The cook's stove had gone over with his galley, but among the hardware of our freight we had an invoice of a dozen stoves, and hence we were able to replace the lost one.

As to a galley, we improvised that the best way we could.

In the Strait of Banda we fell in with the ship Cashmere, from Canton to New York, which reported having fallen in, off the Island of Borneo, with an American or European vessel that had just been captured by Malay pirates.

The Malays had set the ship on fire, and upon discovering the Cashmere they gave chase to her.

The weather, however, getting very rough, their proas could not carry sail, and hence she was able to escape.

"I thought of it," exclaimed Bill Dean, one of our fellows, as soon as the Cashmere had passed us; "we have had all other sorts of bad luck, and now were to be cut into mince meat by a parcel of Malay pirates! This will be in keeping with our kind of good fortune, so I suppose it must be all right."

Bill was never disposed to look upon the bright side of things. He believed in lucky and unlucky ships, days, and men.

He had already, as he supposed, had ample proof that the Luzon did not come under the lucky head, and, indeed, the facts in the case seemed to sustain him in his position.

These things had passed, bringing us to the one hundred and seventy-first day of our voyage; and now here we were, in a dead calm, in the China Sea.

"As idle as a painted ship
Upon a painted ocean."

"We are in for it again" said Bill Dean. "We shall be about two months making the next ten degrees of latitude!"

"That's encouraging" said Dick Mayhew.

"I guess there must be a white stone among the ballast!" remarked Jack Lee.

"I don't know about that," replied Tom Welsh, "but I know there are black beans in the soup, for at this day our sailors have come to make light of some of the more absurd superstitions of former times, such as a white stone in the ballast, or a black bean in the soup, foretold some dreadful misfortune.

"Well, there's just this about it," said Jack Lee; "we shan't be troubled by pirates so long as this weather lasts."

"That's true enough," replied Dick Mayhew; "but who wants to be tied up here to broil to death in the sun, for fear of pirates?"

"I don't know about its being true enough, either," said Bill Dean. "What do they care for a breeze? They've more sweeps than a cockroach has legs. If they should get a sight of us, it would put us in a fine fix, leading at second the contrast we are in!"

Meanwhile we were kept at work as usual, for sailors always have enough to do, and are just as busy in calm as storm, though not at the same kind of task.

Presently a man engaged in the main top reported a strange looked object at a considerable distance off the ship's beam. He said it appeared like a wreck or a raft. It could not be a whale, he thought, as it seemed too long for one.

"Sometimes it looks as if it had a mast," he said, "with some sort of a signal on it, and then it is all flat again and hardly shows out of water."

The captain went into the top with his glass, but as he brought the telescope to bear upon the spot, the object disappeared. He caught a glimpse of it, however, sufficient to assure him that it was some living creature, and that it bore no resemblance to a whale.

There was much speculation among the crew as to what the object could be.

The Captain said that it seemed to be as long as the ship, and that as it went up and down in portions of it appeared to rise above the water like a coil of an immense rope. His view, however, had been very hurried and imperfect.

We thought of the tales we had read concerning sea serpents, and the most of us believed in the existence of such creatures, though it was our opinion that the accounts given of them were exaggerations.

That night a sailor named Ben Thomas thought he saw something black on the water, as if a boat were approaching us. He called our attention to it, but the mate was the only one beside himself who got a sight of it, though the rest of us heard "not war a disturbance in the water at the place where the thing had shown itself. Ben said it looked like a very long boat, with a tall man standing up in it. But then in the darkness it had been barely perceptible even to him.

The China Sea abounds in snakes, and they were around us constantly, either making their way through the water or coiled up asleep on the surface. They were all colors, too, but their length was not more than five or six feet.

We had rigged a temporary jibboom to replace the one lost in the hurricane, and on the morning succeeding Ben's incident Bill Dean went out on the spar to secure a gasket, or small line, which was dangling loose.

Before this could be accomplished he suddenly clanged his mind, and he came in over the ship's head like a cat.

"I cok here, mates!" he cried, "come quick! quick!"

We ran forward and looked over the head.

The slowly moving swell, hardly perceptible, was smooth as oil, and beneath it, more and more distinctly, as looked, we made out an object that gave us a thrill of terror. It was some monster of the deep, apparently a huge serpent, a few feet under water, head on the form of a housetop, as if it had just come out from beneath the vessel on one side of the bow and had curved its immense body for a return on the other side.

We could at first see neither its head nor its tail, but only its middle, where it seemed to be at least three feet in diameter. In half a minute it was out of sight, its tail coming up and cutting the water as it vanished.

We felt horrified at the thought that such a monster might be directly under our keel, either swimming about there or lying at rest. The faces of the crew had a startled look, and more than one face grew decidedly pale.

We feared that the calm might continue as to our position for a number of days. When, therefore, an hour later there appeared indications of a coming breeze, the signs were most heartily welcomed.

Here and there could be seen "catspaws" upon the water, and the burning sky began to show a few light clouds.

Looking off toward the horizon, in the direction from which we had seen to expect the wind, we presently discovered what had the appearance of a fleet of small vessels.

Again the Captain mounted to the main top with his glass, and after a minute's survey, he reported the sails in sight to be four Malay proas, apparently heading for us with a good breeze.

Here were enemies more dangerous than serpents! The case was one of life and death, for those fellows were undoubtedly pirates, and no mercy was to be hoped from them should they get possession of the ship.

On they came very fast, while we were still becalmed; but well we knew that even should the light breeze reach us, it could do no good, as nothing less than a strong gale can afford a heavy ship any chance of escape when chased by a Malay proa.

Each of the four large boats appeared to contain about fifty men, so that the aggregate was two hundred, while we mustered but twenty, all told.

The breeze at length reached us, and we bore away, but they gained on us rapidly.

As they came within fair range we opened upon them with a dozen muskets which we had on board, and they returned the fire, also with muskets, neither they nor ourselves having any cannon.

They were soon close under our stern, and it was evidently their intention to board us on both sides at the same time; for while two of the proas came to be heading for our lee quarter, the other two hauled over upon the wind in order to drop aboard of us on the side opposite.

The weather-most proa was less than a hundred yards from us, and the firing on both sides had become very sharp, when suddenly there was a swashing sound in the water just astern of the ship, and a long, hideous head, supported by a frightful serpentine neck, shot up to a height of some twenty feet above the surface. It had eyes as large as saucers, and a mouth which would have put that of an alligator to shame. Behind the neck lay the scaly body, and scaly it was indeed! Why, as I now recollect it, it seemed as if covered with plates of iron.

The shifting and glancing of that strange, unearthly head was a sight to chill one's blood. And when the huge tail, uplifted for a moment, came whipping down upon the water, the blow could have been heard for a mile. Perhaps it was the firing of the guns which had caused the creature to start from the surface in such an attitude.

It remained in this position but a few moments, when it commenced swimming rapidly to and fro close to the Malay boats, so that the commotion it made in the water sent wave like "sea-boat swells" against their bows.

The pirates were evidently horrified. Instantly they put about their cruse s, and, in addition to their oars, used their long sweeps with a kind of desperation. Although well armed with muskets, they seemed afraid to use them against this gigantic foe.

But the object of their weird visitant was excited, and he continued to follow them, making prodigious rapid circles around their fleet of proas, and often lashing the water with his tail. How those villains worked for their sweeps! Nor could we wonder at them; for we, too, would have worked under like circumstances.

This state of things continued until they were five or six miles from us, when one of the proas seemed all at once to be crushed under a great weight, the mast and sail disappearing in an instant. Another close to her in a minute or two, shared the same fate. The remaining two, however, being some little distance from the others, were not attacked. They kept on their course, and were finally lost to us below the horizon.

All the pirates who were in the two demolished proas had perished. As long as we remained within sight of the wreck the monster continued near them, as we could see with our glasses aloft. "Sometimes he would disappear under water, but he would soon reappear, acting as if greatly excited.

It must have been by mere chance, of course, that he followed the pirates instead of our ship, for he could have overhauled us at the moment he did our salvation from certain death.

Several times during that year the same huge monster, or one like him, was seen in the China Sea by a hundred yards from us, and the firing on both sides had become very sharp, when suddenly there was a swashing sound in the water just astern of the ship, and a long, hideous head, supported by a frightful serpentine neck, shot up to a height of some twenty feet above the surface. It had eyes as large as saucers, and a mouth which would have put that of an alligator to shame. Behind the neck lay the scaly body, and scaly it was indeed! Why, as I now recollect it, it seemed as if covered with plates of iron.

The shifting and glancing of that strange, unearthly head was a sight to chill one's blood. And when the huge tail, uplifted for a moment, came whipping down upon the water, the blow could have been heard for a mile. Perhaps it was the firing of the guns which had caused the creature to start from the surface in such an attitude.

It remained in this position but a few moments, when it commenced swimming rapidly to and fro close to the ship, as we could see through the glass, but we heard no more of it.

MECHANICAL.

SPOTS may be taken from gilding by immersing the articles in a solution of alum in pure soft water. Dry with sawdust.

FIREFIRE is a new insulating material made from wood pulp, and is used for storage cells and by various electrical concerns. It is said to give satisfaction.

SOME German investigators have calculated the relative lability of injury to the eye, finding that if all parts of the body were equally exposed to injurious causes, the eye would bear twenty times as many blows as the hand, twenty times as many cuts as the face, the proportion of one in about 1000; as a matter of fact, the proportion is about thirty-six in 1,000.

A METHOD by which the immense deposits of iron sand which abound on the coast of New Zealand can be cheaply utilized has been brought forward. The feature of the new process consists in uniting a quantity of acoria with the sand when put in the blast. This, it seems, has the effect of preventing the iron from oxidizing, an obstacle that has heretofore proved insurmountable to success in smelting iron sand.

ROADS whose looks have been or are likely to be attacked by mildew may preserve them to some extent by adding a saucer of quicklime near to the bookcase or shelf, or where convenient. The lime absorbs the excess of moisture, and must be renewed, as it becomes slaked and loses its strength. It is equally good for putting in trunks, chests, iron safes, or wherever there is a tendency to dampness owing to the exclusion of fresh air.

THOUGH it is claimed as one of the advantages of electricity that it does not raise the temperature of the atmosphere when used for lighting, it is asserted by the Paris La Nature, capable, under certain conditions of evolving heat sufficient to cause a fire to be started in profitable account by the Societe des Usines Electriques, of Berlin, which has announced that, in future, in addition to lighting, they will be prepared to furnish a supply of electricity for heating purposes. The appliances which the society offer to their customers have been constructed in view of the use to which they are to be put. The heaters for holding water they have contrived a vessel having two cases, between which is placed a resistance coil. It is stated that with this appliance about 14 pints of water can be raised to boiling point with four amperes 100 volts. In certain theaters electric stoves are supplied to their customers have been the use of gas jets and spirit lamps before engaging in cooking.

A DEFECTIVE blow-off is always a serious defect. It it is in such a condition that it will not blow at all, it is of course, dangerous. All kinds of valves, whether straightway, globe, or any other form of construction yet devised for valves, are unsuitable for blowing off pipes. They all have the grave defect that pieces of scale or other hard substances will be able to get under the valve and prevent its closing; and there is no way to tell whether this has happened in any particular case except by examining the blow-off pipe after the valve which is supposed to be closed, to see whether it leaks or not. Plugcocks are always trouble by leakage; pieces of scale or dirt quickly subdivide out of the plug and body; they are liable to stick so that it is with great difficulty they can be opened, and various other things make them a source of much trouble, but for all this it is positively known at any time by a simple inspection of the plug itself whether it is shut or not, and the amount of leakage, if there is any, generally shows for itself around the plug, so we are not left in uncertainty as to the grave defects, to give preference to the common plugcock over any form of valve, as a means of closing blow-off pipes. But an improved kind of plugcock has within a few years been put upon the market (originally designed in England) which is without question, superior to anything else for blow-offs. It is made of iron, is protected from corrosion, by Professor Barff's process, and is packed with asbestos. Experience has been tried it has given most satisfactory results, and is undoubtedly the best blow-off valve made.—The Locomotive.

In Bogota, Colombia.

Its inland and isolated situation has made Bogota, as a city, one of the least progressive of the capitals of South America, and more than any other, perhaps, it retains its old Spanish aspects. The majority of its houses are of one story, because of the prevalence of earthquakes, but there are many of two and three stories. Their exterior is not unprepossessing, but with the roofs little architectural effect can be attempted. The material is generally adobe, or sun-dried brick, and the walls receive a thickness of from two to three feet. Within-doors, at least the better class houses are comfortably furnished with the most of the comforts and many of the private residences are luxuriantly adorned. There is a very variably an open interior court, called patio, in the center of which is always a fountain, surrounded by numerous and beautiful flowers and plants which overhang perpetually. Although they have to be transported across the Cordilleras at great expense, the glass of the windows, pianos, generally of German manufacture, are common. Instead of breaking out the glass at the great past of the city—a peculiar matting known as esteras is often employed. The walls are usually papered, occasionally outside as well as within. The floors are of brick or stone sidewalk and furnish a partial protection from the damp. The principal streets are paved or macadamized, and are built at right angles to each other. Many of the streets have no sewer, and the center of each is a cano, or surface sewer, often indifferently supplied with water, which conveys the refuse of the city to the plain below. In the construction of the houses but little regard is had for hygienic principles, and the sanitary regulations of the city are inadequate, or at least indifferently obeyed. The basements of the principal "Tiendas" (Calle Real and Calle Florian—the business streets—are rented as stores, but in other parts of the city tiers are occupied by the poorer classes, who crowd into them at night, men and women, together with poultry, cats and dogs monkeys and parrots, etc., which they cook, eat, and sleep in the same apartment. Innumerable chicharies—shops in which is made and sold chicha, a cheap but unwholesome drink of fermented corn, and similar to the "rebel" of whisky manufacturers—are found.

The Dog's Sense of Smell.

Every one knows more or less of the marvels of a dog's sense of smell, but I witnessed an instance of it the other day which, in spite of all I have always, astonished me. A long line of carriages was standing in front of a store on Madison street, and as I was passing a small black-and-tan pet dog ran out of the store, looked bewildered for a moment, and then ran to the carriage a one end of the procession, and sniffed the hoof of the right fore foot of one of the horses. Then he took the next carriage, and then the next, until he had taken the fifth carriage, when he immediately jumped into it, curled himself up on the seat, and went to sleep. I saw was his way of finding out which was the carriage of his master, who was inside and came out of the store and got into the same carriage. The fact that the right fore foot had made of horn and that it had been plunged into all sorts of mire and dirt, seemed to have nothing to him; that particular hoof smelled differently to him from any other horse's hoof in the world, and no other smell could be applied to it which would efface this peculiar odor. This illustrates another fact that is not so often noticed, that a dog's nose is as unreliable as his eyes are very imperfect and often misleading. I have seen a dog run over a trail and fail to identify his own master, but would always small him first, and then, at some an instant that confidence was established. If dogs ever converse, then what remark to each other all the close of the day is not "What have you seen?" but "Well, what have you smelled to-day?"—Chicago Journal.

The Pirate's Sonn.

The little story that we are going to tell is about a Pirate's son and how it happened that it is very and to have a boy turn out differend from what his parents desire or expect—he had great pains with his education and then have him go square back on a living up. Once there was a Pirate who had an only son. He doted on the boy, and spared no expense in his education, he not only sent him to prep school but also to one of the best piratical schools in the country, in the Indian in the year. He furnished him with the "Pirates Own" library, and he used to take him to the society of the most distinguished buccaneers in the neighborhood, so his conversation any boy might profit by, but all to no avail. The more that the poor parents tried to do for the path that would lead to piratical success the more the boy would strive to thwart his wishes.

When he should be learning the quickest method of scuttling a ship or cutting a throat, that boy would be discovered in a corner reading a Sunday school book, and he would steal away from the society of the best and attractive company to attend the meeting of the Young Men's Christian Assocation. It is easy to guess the result of all this. The boy continued to disregard the teaching, the remonstrances and even the threats of his father, persisting in following what he weakly called his conscience, and the old Pirate broke that poor Pirate's heart, bringing his grey hairs down in sorrow to the pirate.—Texas Siftings.

A Relic of the Revolution.

A correspondent of the Concord Times has found a man in Stanley County, N. C., 112 years old. His name is Billy Whitly. The correspondent says of him:

"He remembers distinctly seeing the soldiers coming home from the battle of Guilford. He was married at 35 years and lived with his wife 73 years, he died at the age of 110 in 1881. He has in his possession a gun used at the fight at Yorktown by a gentleman, with the supplementary remark:

"It is for the Messrs. Bonner; hurry up." Robert Bonner himself is a man of very active temperament and a power with other New York editors. Stick a pin in him and he would probably turn about with the calmness peculiar to the old school of New Yorkers and ask what you meant. Try the same experiment with James Gordon Bennett and he would shoot and offer to give you battle on the spot. Resort to the same action with Joseph Pulitzer and he would probably spring up with rage, turn upon you, and probably knock you down in a fight. He is the most nervous of all New York journalists, and walks briskly, with his broad shoulders thrown well back.

Watches for Blind People.

"This is one of the cutest things in the watch line that has yet appeared," said Jeweler Charles S., Crossman, holding up one of the new Swiss watches designed for the use of the blind. "The old raised figure watches were clumsy and the blind people were constantly bending or breaking the watch hands by touching them. In this watch a small pin is set in the center of each figure, when the hour hand is approaching a certain hour the pep for that hour drops when the quarter before it is passed. The person feels the pep a down, and then counts ba k to twelve. He can thus tell the time within a few minutes, and by adding the minutes to the last pep he can tell the time almost exactly. They have been in use abroad six months, and there is a steady and growing demand for them."—New York Evening Sun.

APPLYING certain measurements to a scarcely visible film of silver, Herr Wiener arrives at the conclusion that no less than 1,000,000,000 molecules of silver must be laid in line to measure an inch.

HUMOR.

A PARTY question: At what time will supper be ready?

"EVERY day dive," as the back hair said to the young lady.

WHY are lovers like turnips? Because they are often paired.

MANY a widow's weeds are wilted by the simple phrase, "Will thou?"—Carl Pretzel.

TAKING a baby to church does the baby no good, and is a cause of immorality in others.—Puck.

THE horse is a noble animal. All other animals are inferior to him by a high bone.—Alta California.

SPEAKING of the ballet girl: You'd scarce expect one of her age to dance in public on the stage.—Puck.

ANOTHER proof that Bacon wrote Hamlet is that Ham and Bacon are close relations.—Detroit Free Press.

HOW is a pear like to proceed in two opposite directions at the same time? By walking from the forward to the aft of a vessel while sailing.

"I HEAR that your husband is very ill," said Mrs. Pinkton. "Yes, poor fellow," replied Mrs. Spooner, "he leads such a sedimentary life that his health is altered."

A MAN passing by a house which had been almost consumed by fire, inquired where it was. Being told that it was a hatter's, "Ah!" he said, "then the loss will be felt."

IT was somewhere in New Jersey that a man got somewhat mixed on his geography. He said to himself, when I consider the shortcomings of life I feel as if I could do something very suddenly, like a thief in the night.

"DRAUGE take that old curmudgeon! One cent, forsooth, that is all! "Why?" "Why, that old kicker, Billings, says that when I know, either, I'm a fool, and perfectly lovely." Etc., etc., and so forth.—Dakota Bell.

THERE is more joy in a saw'm for a man who has sticken his head into the mouth of a lion than there is in a man who has gone to the ministry and him who get away with your favorite extrakanjee.—Wheeler Herald.

OMAHA Man—"You gave a tramp something to eat yesterday, didn't you? Young Wife—"Yes, poor fellow." "Gave him some of your sponge cake, didn't you?" "Why, yes, of dell. Why?" "Nothing. The paper says the body of a man who had evidently died in great agony was found in the willows this morning."

"Now, can I do it?" "Yes, sir" said Col. Yerger to a suspicious-looking character, with a pencil and paper. "I want you to subscribe a trike for the Society to Reform Newly Released Convicts." "Reform of released convicts! Why, I have been contributing to that object for the last twenty years. Haven't they begun to reform yet?"—Texas Siftings.

MAMMA," said little Susie Thoughtful, "what is a cipher?" "Why, my dear," replied the astonished parent, "a cipher is—why a cipher is nought—it's nothing; that is, it means nothing when it stands alone." "Well, ma, why I asked was, I saw pa standing beside the new cook in the kitchen, this morning, and he put his arm around her waist and said, 'Rosa, darling, I have been a cipher long enough.' Is that what a cipher means?"

"Well, in such a case, my daughter, a cipher is a monosyllabic factor in domestic economy, and when your pa comes home he will realize that it cuts a big figure in the sum total of marital concord and harmony."—Carl Pretzel's National.

Nervous New Yorkers.

The Vanderbilt hotel, with the exception of the postie George, are early risers, rapid walkers, and nervous in their movements. The janitor M. Depew rushes into his office like a hurricane early in the morning, and is constantly on the move until he goes home in the evening. On his into any of the dining rooms of prominent New Yorkers take their luncheons, and you will at once be impressed with the fact of their nervous temperament. The brothers of Robert Bonner take their midday meal daily at the Astor House. The moment they drop into their seats they will trained waiters to the carving table and orders their luncheon, with the supplementary remark: "It is for the Messrs. Bonner; hurry up." Robert Bonner himself is a man of very active temperament and a power with other New York editors. Stick a pin in him and he would probably turn about with the calmness peculiar to the old school of New Yorkers and ask what you meant. Try the same experiment with James Gordon Bennett and he would shoot and offer to give you battle on the spot. Resort to the same action with Joseph Pulitzer and he would probably spring up with rage, turn upon you, and probably knock you down in a fight. He is the most nervous of all New York journalists, and walks briskly, with his broad shoulders thrown well back.

All About Nutmegs.

Down in the cellar of a Water street warehouse a man was shoveling nutmegs into a coarse sieve and throwing away like a frugal housekeeper with an ash-sifter.

"What's the matter with them?" ventured a New York Sun reporter.

"Nothing," answered the performer. "Don't you see I'm only grading them?"

"Won't the grocer think you are throwing some back for a little one?"

"Well, right here in these boxes the nuts are just as they come from Singapore and Batavia. They are what the trade calls 110s; that is, 110 nuts to the pound, that is the way they firm bought 'em, but, as a matter of fact, 110s average better than 100s, and if I pass on to pick out the big ones and sell them separately—see? The barrel 110s, I can put about seventy to the pound, but there are some heavier weight in that get ten to the ounce."

"What makes them look so white?"

"Time. I was asleep over them when they were packed for shipment. It keeps them fresh, and it weighs heavier. When you buy nutmegs in the East each one of them has a good fat little wedding. But the New York jobber takes very little for granted when he puts a nutmeg into his grater, and that has sailed as far as those nuts have. Every bit of them is dried in the sun on the Malay beach, and on freedom's own soil, too; and, what is more, 10 per cent. of every nutmeg must be tared before the jobber weighs it, and 10 per cent. of every lots go of his silver dollars. The foreigner himself, before we take much stock in him."

"Nutmegs that average 110 to the pound are worth about twenty-five cents a dozen at the wholesale, and the snowy head of a milk punch or into the inner lining of a pre-prandial bitter, cost the consumer 2 to 5 cents each. Formerly Singapore used to be the chief mart for nutmegs, but now honors are easy. Nutmeg immigrants have sprung up in Java, and the Dutch paternal home in Rotterdam and then Batavia from long ago. Nutmegs are wavery, true to natural instincts, goes all by drops at to London and the east of Hudson street, New York. The direct consumers all land on the East River side and discharge their cargo of aromatic exilen and the

FARM AND GARDEN.

A CABBAGE TRENCH ILLUSTRATED AND DESCRIBED.

Requirements Necessary to the Successful Employment of Artificial Incubation—How a Cross Cut Saw May Be Used by One Man—Cleveland Bay Horses.

Inasmuch as many fairs this season have provided a regular class for Cleveland bays, and this breed of horses appears to be coming into prominent notice throughout the country, we give the picture of the stallion Royalty, who stands at the head of one of the largest Cleveland bay studs in America.

ROYALTY, CLEVELAND BAY STALLION.

There exists but little definite information concerning the origin of the Cleveland bays. The vale of Cleveland in Yorkshire was peculiarly their home. This fact, together with their uniform bay color, gave them their name. The Cleveland Bay Horse society in England was organized in 1884. This breed was introduced in this country some ten or twelve years ago. The Cleveland Bay society of America was organized a year ago.

A Cleveland bay is of medium size, standing 16 to 16½ hands high and weighing from 1,350 to 1,450 pounds. This breed supplies the demand for strong, showy coach horses. They are also well adapted for general purpose horses.

A Convenient Garden Hot Bed.

For a small garden hot bed excavate a trench two feet deep, three feet wide and as long as desired, selecting a sunny and well drained spot; sprinkle a little stable litter in the bottom, and on this shovel enough horse stable manure to make twelve or fifteen inches in thickness after it is well trained down; around the bed construct a frame or crib of boards, a foot high in front and eighteen inches at the back, with ends beveled to fit the sides, the whole to be covered with glass in sash that can be conveniently raised or lifted off when required. Some manures should also be put around the frame on the outside and covered with earth to keep cost the cold air. Horse stable manure mixed with a moderate amount of the bedding is the right kind to use, and it should be hauled out and piled up a few days near the trench, and be forked over several times and kept moist, but not drenching wet, until the heap is well heated up, when it should be shoveled in the pit as directed, and covered with five or six inches of rich soil as a bed for the seed. If the heat is excessive at any time remove the whole or a portion of the sash, and on warm days this should always be done. Where old sashes are on hand the bed may be made of a size to suit them and save the expense of new. In sheltered and favorable localities some of the early market growers cover their beds with coarse muslin, as being cheaper than glass and answering the purpose quite as well.

Sugar Making in This Country.

The experiments conducted under the auspices of the National Department of Agriculture, at Fort Scott, Kan., in making sugar from sorghum cane have been announced a complete success by Commissioner Colman. The new process is rapid, less costly and more efficient than the old process. By the latter it is estimated that about one-half of the saccharine matter was wasted, even in the southern sugar cane. The diffusion process, it is claimed, saves about 95 per cent of the saccharine matter. Experiments are being conducted in Louisiana with making sugar from the ribbon cane by the same process. Commissioner Colman believes that these experiments and their results are of important to this country as the invention of the cotton gin.

The only entirely successful experiment in beet sugar production in this country has been at the Alvarado factory in California. It appears from a recent report that there are possibilities of supplementing the crop of the San Joaquin valley in sugar beets, the factory season in California to five months instead of three, the length of the season in Europe.

A Homemade Sawing Machine.

In the illustration is shown how a cross cut saw may be used to good advantage by one man. Prairie Farmer explains the arrangement as follows:

One end of the saw—the handle being taken off—is hung by a swinging bar several feet long to the side of the woodhouse. The swinging bar should run between two horizontal strips, which will make it run steady. To support the stick which is to be sawed, a heavy piece is fastened on the corner of the shed, and a crooked piece is fastened to the side of the shed, either by nailing from the inside or by bolts, or by setting it in the ground. The man should have a good set so it will go through the wood without cramping. The longer the swinging bar is the less rocking motion the saw will have.

HOMEMADE SAWING MACHINE.

Artificial Incubation.

The manufacturers of incubators and the advocates of the artificial method of hatching by down as the requisites of the successful employment of this method the following principles:

1. Heat of about 103 degs. Fahrenheit.
2. Proper ventilation.
3. Turning of the eggs.
4. Sufficient moisture.

In theory there has never been any difficulty about artificial incubation, but it has not been found so very easy in practice. The past few years, however, have developed several very good incubators by the use of which fairly satisfactory results have been obtained. In careful hands the better class of incubators give good results, but intelligent attention is an absolute necessity not only in the management of the incubators but in the care of the chicks after they are hatched. The supply of heat in incubators must be regular, and moisture, as a rule, fail in keeping an even temperature. Beale, the well known English authority, says: "On part of an ordinary dwelling is as good as the cellar to set the incubator in. Here the temperature varies but little between day and night, and one day when the thermometer may stand at 55 degs. and the next to 70—a change which not unfrequently occurs several times each winter in the northern states—and all parts of the house feel more or less."

Numbered with the better class of self regulating incubators is a machine consisting of a small water heater which warms the water in a tank placed over the egg chamber. The source of heat may be either kerosene oil or gas. The eggs, placed in trays, are warmed by radiation on the upper surface only. Under the trays are shallow pans of water, six to ten degrees cooler than the eggs, to aim being to imitate the conditions that are observed when hens make their nests on the ground. The air in the egg chamber is also moistened by water from troughs suspended above the eggs. Ventilation is provided through tubes which produce a constant flow of fresh air close under the tank, thus warming it before it comes in contact with the eggs. The impure air is taken out from the bottom. All the eggs are turned at one time by means of an ingenious contrivance of the egg tray. A set of thermostatic bars above the eggs raise and lower the flame of the lamp or gas burner, and thus adapt the heat given out with changes of temperature in the room, and hold the heat of the machine close to the desired point by a constant action. There is a shamber under the egg trap which is used as a nursery for the chickens.

Another well known machine, made similar to the above, that is, the water tank is above the eggs, etc., etc., possesses the peculiarity of doubling its capacity after the first ten days, with a double layer of eggs. Experienced hatchers differ in their opinions as to the merits of this feature.

A comparatively new incubator has no water tank, and no water is employed except to supply moisture. The desired warmth to the eggs is imparted by air warmed by coming in contact with two metallic lamp flues. Then there is an incubator which is peculiar in having no automatic regulating apparatus. This machine consists of two tanks, placed one above and one beneath the egg drawer, and connected by tubes in such a way as to cause a very free circulation of the water. The source of heat is a kerosene lamp under the center of the lower tank. The flame of this is regulated according to the judgment of the attendant.

In careful hands machines such as have been described give fair results. The question, however, remains the only certain incubator for inexperienced, busy or careless folks, who will not give patient, persistent attention to the artificial ones.

Burying Cabbage for Winter Use.

The usual mode of burying cabbage for winter use is with the roots up and exposed, as seen in the cuts. This plan applies to cabbage that is already fully headed, the object in inverting them being to turn off the water.

A CABBAGE TRENCH.

In the cut is given a perspective view of a trench of cabbages. A cross section of this trench is also shown, giving a good idea of the manner in which the cabbage is covered. A trench two feet wide and six inches deep is made in self-draining land. In this rye or wheat straw is scattered three inches in depth, and on this the cabbages are placed, top downward, two or three inches apart until the trench is full, when straw is scattered around the head and part of the stem. This done, cover with earth from four to eight inches in depth, according to the exposure. The boards at the sides prevent the rain from washing away the dirt.

When it is desired that the heads rank further growth the roots may be placed in the soil and the plants right side up.

Things Farmers Tell One Another.

Mr. E. Williams, of Montclair, N. J., says that the Triumph gooseberry, as grown by him, has exceeded any other variety in size, productiveness and freedom from disease.

Mr. W. W. Rawson, of Massachusetts, names as the four earliest and safest kinds of wrinkled peas McLean's Advancer, Clipper, American Wonder and Champion of England. He considers Maud S. the best early smooth pea.

President Phillips, of the West Michigan Horticultural society, regards unleached ashes as the best fertilizer known for vineyards.

Eminent veterinarians testify that decaying cattle, when properly performed, cause little pain.

B. P. Ware, of Massachusetts, after a large experience, says of the Franconia raspberry: "It is tender and the canes must be protected. But the fruit is superb. If it were hardy I should prefer it to any other. I have the Cuthbert; it throws up an immense amount of canes."

An old farmer tells how he circumvents crows. As soon as crows appear he shoots as many as he can, and when his corn is up hangs their dead bodies around the field; the live crows, seeing their dead companions, stick elsewhere their food and leave the corn so unduly guarded severely alone.

The value of hen manure from a single bird for one year is estimated at fifteen cents by a well known poultry grower.

Farmers generally have come to the conclusion that it is not safe to trust the "gentle bull."

A New Jersey man suggests, in addition to the usual questions observed in storing garden seeds, that a piece of camphor gum be put in each bag containing seed, and that the seed be shaken with powder.

By Neglect what is at first but a slight cold, becomes a cough, strain-ing and exhausting the lungs till such an inflamed condition exists, that powerful remedies are not always able to stop the disease and the person goes into consumption from mere neglect. Do not be so foolish, but use Hamilton's Cough Balsam, which removes the impure matter from the throat and lungs and exerts a healing influence on the diseased parts. Even those who are but the wrecks of their former selves receive wonderful help. In Croup and Whooping Cough it is invaluable. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

In Consumption Incurable.

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morse, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with abscess of lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle, and able to attend to my work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jessie Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Trouble. Was given up by the doctors. am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at Dr. Crouter's drug Store. 5

Thoroughly tried.—After many years of experience in my own family and upon my horses and cattle I am constrained to say that Parmelee's Universal Liniment is the most complete remedy for the cure of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lame Back, Sore Throat, &c., in the Human family and of Bone Spavin, Sweeny, Ringbone, Spavins, Bruises on Horses; Caked Bag, Scot Teats, &c., on Cattle, that I have ever known, and take pleasure in recommending to others. Large bottles, warranted, price size 25 cents. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and its popularity so much to be commended, that we who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise.—A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the Liver or sick Stomach, will remove Pimples, Boils, Salt Rheum and other affections caused by impure blood.—Will cure malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all malarial fevers.—For cure of Headache, Constipation and Indigestion try Electric Bitters.—Entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded.—price 50 cts and 1 00 per bottle at Dr. Crouter's Drug Store. 8

Do You Know? that the Horse and Cattle Powders prepared by E. M. Parmelee are composed of the very best and purest material, Licorice, Fennugreek, Blood Root, Elecampane, for Coughs, Colds, Epizootic, Distemper, Sulpher, Mandrake Gentian, Sulph. Magnesia for Impure Blood; besides many other ingredients especially adapted to the cure of Colic, Worms, Heaves, and all diseases of Horses, Cattle, Hogs, Sheep and Poultry. Buy no other. Full pounds only 35 cents Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Why Suffer with dyspepsia, Parmelee's Dyspepsia, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Cure will work wonders, relieving you at once. Do not wait till Bright's Disease has overcome and Diabetes taken full possession of your body, but remember that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." This fine preparation will also tone up the Kidneys and Liver and cleanse the system of all impurities. Price $1.00 per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send free of charge, a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

PRESBYTERIANS

READ THIS

Should take the Church and Parsonage, a large quality Family Weekly (eight columns) and well printed, containing the Sabbath School Lessons, Sermons, Religious Intelligence, Miscellany, Poetry, Science, Agriculture, Prices Current, Markets, Financial and Commercial Intelligence, Foreign and Domestic News, Family Matters, &c., &c., &c. Price $2 50 per year and a copy of the elegant chromo, "Christ Blessing Little Children," to every new subscriber. Address, PRESBYTERIAN, 1708 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

"Longfellow in His Library,"

Engraved by Sartain. Artist proofs, $10 00 each; prints and proofs of artist's proofs, $5 00 each.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We are in need, in exchange, right, Family Bibles, Parlor Organs, Pianos, Sewing Machines, Watches, Jewelry, Silverware, Clothing, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Groceries, Provisions, Furniture, Stoves, Tinware, Crockery, Hardware, Cutlery, Guns, Revolvers, Fishing Tackle, Boats, Sporting Goods, Books, Stationery, Photographs, Oil Paintings, Chromos, Jewelry, Gold Pens, Patent Medicines, Musical Instruments, Real Estate, Mortgages, Notes, Stocks, Bonds, Scrolls, Tools, Farming Implements, Seeds, Trees, Plants, Poultry, Eggs, Furs, Furs, Fur

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

ANARCHIST SENSATION.

Great Excitement Produced at Chicago by the Finding of Bombs in Lingg's Cell.

Engel, Another of the Condemned Men, Takes Poison with Suicidal Intent.

A BIG SENSATION was produced at Chicago on Sunday last by the finding of four bombs which had been smuggled into the jail by some friends of the condemned anarchists. A dispatch from that city says:

The bombs were taken from the cell of Louis Lingg. They were found under his cot hidden beneath a mass of papers and odds and ends of various kinds and were fastened in a large lava-looking wooden box. A thorough search of the cell was made by Deputy Sheriff Hoff at 7 o'clock at the time the discovery was made, and the bombs were carefully examined at that time by experts who were competent to pass upon their capabilities for destructiveness apparent. As soon as their nature was determined it was deemed unwise to make further examination, and they were taken out of the cell and carried into a room in the jail where a large crowd had assembled. He arrived soon afterwards, and, as neither he nor any of his officials had any practical knowledge of the mechanism of infernal machines, he was compelled to take the word of those in the hands of such experts for its correction. The bombs were four in number, as stated, and were what are known as the "gas pipe" bombs, in distinction from the spherical bombs used at the Haymarket. The lead gas pipe used was about six inches long and six inches in diameter. The ends were filled with dynamite and differed only in some of the minor details. All were plugged at each end.

Spies, Schaub, and Fielden to the Governor.

ADOLPH SPIES, Michael Schwab, and Samuel Fielden, says a Chicago special, have followed up the formal petition to the Governor which they signed a few days ago with a second communication of a still more pathetic character. The document reads as follows:

To Governor Oglesby, Springfield, Ill.:

SIR—In order that the truth may be known by you and the public generally, we desire to state that we never advocated the use of force except in self-defense, and that we never in any way encouraged the violation of law and government on May 4, 5, 6, or at any other time, in so false an is sued. What ever we said or did, or said or did publicly, we have never supported or plotted to support unlawful act, and while we attacked the present system of wage-slavery we never in any way advised their injustices, we have never encouraged violence and force. So far from having planned the killing of anybody at the Haymarket, or anywhere else, the very object of that meeting was to protest against the murder of a man and to denounce the recent wholesale murder of labor and liberty to expose other cases of force than which it is necessary to use in defense of sacred rights against unlawful attacks. And our efforts have been in the direction of eleven-hour machine, and to remove, as sincere as we believe, the causes of such crimes as Haymarket massacre. In spite of threats, force or ambitions prompted us. Thousands and thousands will testify to our labors. We have never erred as honest men in our judgment. Yet, we may have been misled in our judgment, we may err. If, in the excitement, we expressed ourselves in a way which may be construed into a threat, we have recorded testimonies to fully that nothing force was a proper instrument of reform, we regret it. We condemn the use of it at the Haymarket, at McCormick's factory, at Haslett St. Louis, and at the Chicago Strike. Very respectfully,

MICHAEL SCHWAB,
SAMUEL FIELDEN.

Engel Attempts Suicide.

GEORGE ENGEL, the condemned Anarchist, tried to commit suicide in his cell by taking up an early Sunday morning. Says a Chicago dispatch:

By the prompt use of the usual remedies he was saved from death and restored to consciousness in about ten minutes. It was as soon as he was found, and that he had taken some poison. The capsule which he had swallowed contained a dose of morphine, and the action of his heart was almost imperceptible when the physician arrived. He recovered consciousness in a few minutes, and was able to drink some coffee or stimulant. He refused to be excited to take anything whatever. "If you let me sleep I will be all right," he said. He was so small but when the jail officials conveyed to the prisoner the information that he had succeeded in stealing the poisonous substance that he had attempted to commit suicide, but said that he had not drinking a terrible thing. "Where did you get it?" he was asked. "Oh, I got it easy enough," he answered.

Gov. Oglesby's Trials.

A SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) dispatch of Monday says:

The interest in the anarchist case is approaching fever heat at the capital and throughout Central Illinois as the date of the execution of the condemned men approaches. The movement of Governor Oglesby and his advisers are attracting much attention, and speculations are spreading widely and are the most busiest man in the state. He refuses to talk about the case, but his nervous error has received a number of letters from prominent people in the state, and has received in return the text of his reply. Among others, W. H. Parsons has addressed a long letter to Governor Oglesby, in which he discusses the trial and the evidence in the case, and argues that his brother, A. R. Parsons, is not guilty.

Anarchists Flocking to Chicago.

A CINCINNATI telegram of Monday says:

Prominent workingmen here say that the anarchists of Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, and all of the other large cities of the country have been requested to send a number of chosen men to Chicago to be in readiness to-day. Over five hot Cincinnati Friday evening, a large crowd of men left on the same number from here.

RIGGS ROUTS THE INDIANS.

A Sharp Battle at the Crow Agency in Montana—Chief Sword Bearer and Three or Four of His Followers Killed—One Soldier Slain.

THE Crow Indian affair came to a head on Saturday. Says a dispatch from the agency in Montana:

The Indians held a big council among themselves, and disclosed any intentions to fight. Agent Wright then said: "I want all of the seven chief from the agency Indians, and will give them one hour and one-half to come in." He then sent to Fort Custer for a troop to bring him in. He stated that they would go back to the camp and talk to "Sword-Bearer" (general Rogers said: "That is all I have to say." The Indians were particular whether he should meet until the time was up. At 3 o'clock the time was up, and at the same time, and the troop came in sight on the left flank of the Indians, where they were met by about half of the Indians gathered in the agency. Sword-Bearer, which Agent Wright, reached, in which had not already been shot, Private Pierce Mallory quite wounded, and Private Clark was thrown from his horse, and his carbine discovered. A running fire then from the Indians retreating to the peaceful gulleys, in the direction of the agency, and the troop in the other and taking to the hills, ending in a final stand at the crossing of the Pine River, above one hole below the agency, in which he and probably three of his followers were killed.

THE EASTERN STATES.

AN explosion in the Atlantic Dynamite Works, near McGinnsville, N. J., wrecked one of the packing-houses and instantly killed four men. Three others are missing, and are believed to be in the ruins. A mysterious explosion in a grocery store on Market street, St. Louis, shattered the building and killed six persons.

At the meeting of the American Woman's Suffrage Association, just held in Philadelphia, reports were received showing that the cause was not a flourishing condition. It was determined to petition the State Legislatures for the right to vote at municipal elections. Hon. W. D. Foulke, of Indiana, was elected President for the coming year, and in the list of Vice Presidents appear the names of Hon. George F. Hoar and George William Curtis.

THE WESTERN STATES.

IT was at first believed that not a single survivor was left of the forty or fifty people who were on the propeller Vernon when she went down in Lake Michigan, off Sheboygan. It is now known, however, that at least one man was saved in the tale of that terrible night. He was picked up by the schooner Pomeroy, eight miles off Sheboygan, and is beyond doubt the only survivor of the awful disaster.

The name of the man who has been rescued from death after he had given up all hope of ever again setting his foot upon dry land is Alfred Stone. He is from Chicago and is one of the best known young men in that city. He says it was a bitter, piercing wind, with snow, sleet and hail in his face. He was so cold as to be almost helpless, and so weak from hunger that he could scarcely move. Although still very weak from the effects of his awful experience, Stone was able to tell the story of the disaster. He was never before reported sinking, "I was awakened in the middle of the night," he said, "by the cries of the passengers and crew that the vessel was sinking. I sprang out of the window, and found the water up to my waist. I then climbed into the rigging, and saw my companions were. Four of them were members of the crew and four were passengers. It seemed only a few moments before the vessel had gone down. I had, of course, no hope of life, and all those on board went down with her. I do not know how long the people were aboard of the boat, but the impression I got was that it was not long. I had been in bed a little while when I felt the vessel shake and heard a crash. I did not hear any one else, and I thought I was the only one left. I was so cold that I was not long in the water. I was in the water, however, long enough to be very cold. Two vessels passed so near us on Saturday that I felt sure they would see us. I felt some reason they apparently made no effort to come to our aid. I was so cold that I felt no fear but that I should die." Stone was in the water about an hour after another of our company had gone down. The last one he saw was about six inches long and six inches in diameter. The rigging was all downward and differed entirely from all the minor details. All were plugged at each end.

Spies, Schaub, and Fielden to the Governor.

ADOLPH SPIES, Michael Schwab, and Samuel Fielden, says a Chicago special, have followed up the formal petition to the Governor which they signed a few days ago with a second communication of a still more pathetic character. The document reads as follows:

To Governor Oglesby, Springfield, Ill.:

SIR—In order that the truth may be known by you and the public generally, we desire to state that we never advocated the use of force except in self-defense, and that we never in any way encouraged the violation of law and government on May 4, 5, 6, or at any other time, in so false an is sued. What ever we said or did, or said or did publicly, we have never supported, or plotted to support, unlawful act, and while we attacked the present system of wage-slavery we never in any way advised their injustices, we have never encouraged violence and force. So far from having planned the killing of anybody at the Haymarket, or anywhere else, the very object of that meeting was to protest against the murder of a man and to denounce the recent wholesale murder of labor and liberty to expose other cases of force than which it is necessary to use in defense of sacred rights against unlawful attacks. And our efforts have been in the direction of eleven-hour machine, and to remove, as sincere as we believe, the causes of such crimes as Haymarket massacre. In spite of threats, force or ambitions prompted us. Thousands and thousands will testify to our labors. We have never erred as honest men in our judgment. Yet, we may have been misled in our judgment, we may err. If, in the excitement, we expressed ourselves in a way which may be construed into a threat, we have recorded testimonies to fully that nothing force was a proper instrument of reform, we regret it. We condemn the use of it at the Haymarket, at McCormick's factory, at Haslett St. Louis, and at the Chicago Strike. Very respectfully,

MICHAEL SCHWAB,
SAMUEL FIELDEN.

Engel Attempts Suicide.

GEORGE ENGEL, the condemned Anarchist, tried to commit suicide in his cell by taking up an early Sunday morning. Says a Chicago dispatch:

By the prompt use of the usual remedies he was saved from death and restored to consciousness in about ten minutes. It was as soon as he was found, and that he had taken some poison. The capsule which he had swallowed contained a dose of morphine, and the action of his heart was almost imperceptible when the physician arrived. He recovered consciousness in a few minutes, and was able to drink some coffee or stimulant. He refused to be excited to take anything whatever. "If you let me sleep I will be all right," he said. He was so small but when the jail officials conveyed to the prisoner the information that he had succeeded in stealing the poisonous substance that he had attempted to commit suicide, but said that he had not drinking a terrible thing. "Where did you get it?" he was asked. "Oh, I got it easy enough," he answered.

Gov. Oglesby's Trials.

A SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) dispatch of Monday says:

The interest in the anarchist case is approaching fever heat at the capital and throughout Central Illinois as the date of the execution of the condemned men approaches. The movement of Governor Oglesby and his advisers are attracting much attention, and speculations are spreading widely and are the most busiest man in the state. He refuses to talk about the case, but his nervous error has received a number of letters from prominent people in the state, and has received in return the text of his reply. Among others, W. H. Parsons has addressed a long letter to Governor Oglesby, in which he discusses the trial and the evidence in the case, and argues that his brother, A. R. Parsons, is not guilty.

Anarchists Flocking to Chicago.

A CINCINNATI telegram of Monday says:

Prominent workingmen here say that the anarchists of Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, and all of the other large cities of the country have been requested to send a number of chosen men to Chicago to be in readiness to-day. Over five hot Cincinnati Friday evening, a large crowd of men left on the same number from here.

RIGGS ROUTS THE INDIANS.

A Sharp Battle at the Crow Agency in Montana—Chief Sword Bearer and Three or Four of His Followers Killed—One Soldier Slain.

THE Crow Indian affair came to a head on Saturday. Says a dispatch from the agency in Montana:

The Indians held a big council among themselves, and disclosed any intentions to fight. Agent Wright then said: "I want all of the seven chief from the agency Indians, and will give them one hour and one-half to come in." He then sent to Fort Custer for a troop to bring him in. He stated that they would go back to the camp and talk to "Sword-Bearer" (general Rogers said: "That is all I have to say." The Indians were particular whether he should meet until the time was up. At 3 o'clock the time was up, and at the same time, and the troop came in sight on the left flank of the Indians, where they were met by about half of the Indians gathered in the agency. Sword-Bearer, which Agent Wright, reached, in which had not already been shot, Private Pierce Mallory quite wounded, and Private Clark was thrown from his horse, and his carbine discovered. A running fire then from the Indians retreating to the peaceful gulleys, in the direction of the agency, and the troop in the other and taking to the hills, ending in a final stand at the crossing of the Pine River, above one hole below the agency, in which he and probably three of his followers were killed.

THE EASTERN STATES.

AN explosion in the Atlantic Dynamite Works, near McGinnsville, N. J., wrecked one of the packing-houses and instantly killed four men. Three others are missing, and are believed to be in the ruins. A mysterious explosion in a grocery store on Market street, St. Louis, shattered the building and killed six persons.

At the meeting of the American Woman's Suffrage Association, just held in Philadelphia, reports were received showing that the cause was not a flourishing condition. It was determined to petition the State Legislatures

THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

OF the $14,000,000 of bonds which the Government offered on Sept. 25 to buy for the sinking fund, $8,000,000 had been already purchased up to the 26th.

The famous Sharon-Hill case is now going to the United States Supreme Court on an appeal from a decision of Judge Sawyer of the United States Circuit Court of California.

Washington dispatches say that the sending of the bomb to the house of Chief Justice Waite was a hoax. It was the work of a young man who had been discharged from Hopkins, who makes a precarious living by pretending to be a detective. He confessed the whole scheme was invented by himself and Arthur B. Seery, a reporter on a local paper, for the purpose of selling the story to the newspapers. Hopkins is the detective, and the small vial which was found in the package contained only ink and a very small quantity of powder. The reporter is now in the jail, and alarm the person who might open the package.

THE INDUSTRIAL REALM.

THE colored strikers on the Louisiana plantations have been taken back by the laborers who remain faithful to their employers.

Very strong talk of the formation of parties of this city who are members of the Typographical Union was manifested Monday, according to the information furnished respectively by the officers of the union. One of the former, who is prominent in their present organization, stated yesterday that fully 90 per cent of the union job printers would be out of employment this morning, while on the other hand Secretary Bastell, of the Typographical Union, says that not over one-half, or 50 per cent, of the union will come out, and the strike itself will be over in about a week's time."

THE FOREIGN BUDGET.

A DUBLIN dispatch says the appeal of Mr. William O'Brien, editor of United Ireland, against the sentence of three months' imprisonment imposed on him by the Mitchelstown Court, has been refused and the sentence of the lower court confirmed.

After the recorder's decision had been announced Mr. O'Brien attempted to leave the court, but the crowd in the gallery, which the orderly of police refused to let him go. Mr. O'Brien, however, with his usual coolness, sat down in his place, while the police made a fruitless search for further legal assistance, but finding none, they had to carry the prisoner down to the solicitor's table and shouted for justice, demanding that the recorder be called back and arrested, as no warrant had been signed. The recorder was called back, but refused to return to the court. Meanwhile, the police and bailiffs, the magistrate, thereupon shouted: "Take him out!" and the police, at the instance of social reconstruction, and use the force and compulsion of the State Government to send them to the galleys and prisons. Mr. Harrington said: "I am sorry I may as well be hung for a sheep as a lamb." Mr. Harrington then addressed the court, and said: "Mr. O'Brien could not be legally arrested, and the warrant signed by the recorder, sided with Mr. Harrington, and said: "Mr. O'Brien will be released." The

THE JOURNAL
CHAS. J. GERE, EDITOR.
CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

As goes New York in 1887, so the country will go in 1888.—New York Tribune, October 31, 1887.

The Knights of Labor, of Charlotte have been running a co-operative fruit evaporator during the last fruit season, and were so successful that they now contemplate starting a wholesale furniture factory.

Due credit for the cohesion and confidence that brought about the glorious result of yesterday should be given to Grover Cleveland, whose manly and sensible letter was as timely as it was wise.—N. Y. Sun, Nov. 9.

A REPUBLICAN paper says that New York was carried by the democrats through the interference of the president. This shows what a powerful man the republicans must think him to be. Well, he is very strong with the people, and no mistake.—Free Press.

THE election of a democratic legislature in Virginia last week insures a democratic gain of a senator for the term beginning March 4, 1889. When President Cleveland begins his second term he will have the senate as well as the house in political sympathy with him.

MASSACHUSETTS republicans love the soldier—if he votes the republican ticket; and provided he so votes they do not care whether he fought on the union or confederate side. In this respect they are very much like republicans in Michigan and other states.—Free Press.

A LITERARY lyceum in a western town is wrestling over the question, "Is the proper definition of an editor, 'A man who pets things in a paper' or, 'A man who keeps things out?'" Most successful editors believe that they have been best helped by the matter they have basketed.—Buffalo Courier.

ON the ocean overloading is a crime; but on the lakes it is a daily practice, indulged in by hundreds of vessel masters who are reputed to be cautious and efficient. In the Vernon's case it was carried to an extreme for the simple reason that she was so peculiarly constructed that it was necessary to overload her to make her carry a cargo that would pay her running expenses.—Chicago Herald.

THE elections are a complete triumph for the administration. The victory is along the whole line. The national, state and municipal administrations were alike on trial, and the verdict as regards President Cleveland, Gov. Hill and Mayor Hewitt is, "Well done good and faithful servants." We cannot over estimate the significance of this verdict in its effect upon the national politics. Whatever the faults of the democrats in the past, they have fully won back public confidence. Whether this is owing to the conservative policy of Cleveland or to the national instinct to be honest, we do not know. But it is a fact—and the New York elections confirm it—that the democratic party, to use a sporting phrase, is the favorite.—N. Y. Herald.

Shall Immigration be Prohibited?

Farmers complain of the present low prices of their products. The shipping of cargoes of foreigners out west by greedy railroads develope the fertile soil faster than the food-stuffs can be consumed. If we stop immigration we shall prevent over production and its consequent starvation prices for the farmer. People in European countries make servile drudges of their wives and children, depriving the latter often of even a free school education. They are thus able to undersell their neighbors whose ambition is only to live respectably and educate their children. In Massachusetts, the great pioneer state in education, the census of 1885 showed 121,572 persons over 10 years of age who could neither read nor write. Not 1 per cent of them were, however, of native parentage. They are the ones who commit nearly all our crimes. Statistics show that 75 per cent of our criminals and paupers and fully 95 per cent of our saloon keepers, are foreign born. How can we think of temperance and social purity while we welcome the very ones who cause the very opposite? In Rensselaer county (N. Y.) almshouse, of the 795 inmates, 535 were foreign born paupers. Most of our state houses and prisons make a similar showing. One can readily see that three-fourths of the burden thrown upon law-abiding and hard-working taxpayers is due to immigration. If laws could be enacted that would prevent the worst classes from coming, most people would not favor the absolute prohibition of immigration. But all good citizens, irrespective of their nativity, will join heartily in the demand that we have our shores protected against the scum and criminals of the old world.—Farm and Home

The Foe of Labor.

There is absolutely no natural sympathy between the workingmen and the class of persons who are pleased to call themselves anarchists, while the anarchists many times, join themselves to labor organizations as a cloak to disguise their real character. The aim of the working man is construction, while the aim of the anarchist is destruction. The workingman through his organizations, seeks to better his condition while the anarchist seeks to destroy all conditions, with no thought or care for the future condition of society. The working man desires most of all a share in the benefits of social organization commensurate with what his labor produces or effects for society. The anarchist revolts against society, and would reduce it to a state in which there would be nothing to share.

In many places the anarchists have been the worst enemies of the workingmen, for they have attached themselves to labor organizations like barnacles to a ship, not for the benefit of labor, but to its detriment, that they might profit by its honesty and industry. The anarchist makes war upon labor and capital alike, as his cardinal principal is that he must hate everything that is not revolutionary.

Surely the cause of labor organization is not revolutionary, but that the laboring class may receive a just reward for their work.

Our Tariff on Wheat Fraud.

A local protectionist journal, in a vain attempt to break the force of Congressman Scott's (of Erie, Pa.) assault on the tariff, puts forth a weak plea that our farm products are protected. It says that the tariff on wheat is 20 cents a bushel, and on other grains 10 cents a bushel. It adds: But for this tariff the United States would be overrun with wheat from the eastern (?) Canadian provinces and Manitoba that would knock it down at least 10 cents a bushel, and probably more, beyond the present low level of prices."

Now, does our contemporary really believe that our farmers can be taken in by such a dishonest representation of the situation as this? Europe is the market in which the price of our wheat is determined. One-third of our surplus wheat goes there. What that surplus sells for, regulates the price of that consumed at home. Our contemporary's own market reports daily proves this. What matters it, then, whether the Manitoba surplus goes to Europe or comes to the United States? Its effect is all the same, as every dealer in grain well knows and every journalist, except a bourbon advocate of protection freely admits.—Chicago News.

Casualties on the Lakes.

The month of October shows up an aggregate of 286 accidents and disasters on all the lakes; 117 more than September last year, and 115 more than in October of last year. They occurred as follows: Lake Michigan, 97; Lake Huron, the straits and the Sault River, 80; rivers, 18; Lake Superior, 15; Georgian Bay, 3; Lake St. Clair, 13; Lake Erie and Welland canal, 15; Lake Ontario, 12. Causes: Heavy weather, 116; loss, $281,400. Stranded, 55; loss, $108,000. Ashore, 50; loss, $229,500. Sprung a leak, 19; loss, $21,600. Disabled, 24; loss, $95,400. Collisions 18; loss, $17,900. Fire, 3; loss, $11,300. Loss on cargoes, $351,100. Total loss for the month, $1,066,200, an increase over September of $825,500. Reckoning 40 lives lost with the steamer Vernon 123 persons were drowned from vessels in October on the great lakes.

The Election in New York.

The democrats of New York scored a decisive triumph in the election last week. This can only be considered a hearty endorsement of the Cleveland administration, as the ticket placed in nomination by his party of that state was selected by a convention wherein his friends had a large majority, and the President, prior to the election, strongly endorsed the same. If any doubt of the desire of the New York democrats for Cleveland's renomination next year has existed heretofore, it was surely removed by the result of last week's election.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

This is the busy season in Washington. In the White house, in the capitol, in the various government departments, in the hotels and boarding houses, and in the elegant private residences of the west end, the busiest preparations are in progress for that great annual event,—the opening of congress, and of the fashionable social season.

The year preceding the national conventions, with the skirmishes that go before presidential nominations, will give a zest to social affairs during the coming session that will render it notable when its history is of the records of the past. The long session will be on, and that it will be leap year when the official season fairly opens is additional consideration in its favor. The fact that private residences here are quoted as high as $1,000 per month show that the importance of the session is generally appreciated. The session will be officially launched, in all probability, this year, as usual, by the president's reception at the white house on New Year's day.

Mr. John A. Nichols, of Brooklyn, of the Quarantine Commission has been in conference with Secretary Fairchild relative to the placing of closer restrictions on ships arriving at New York, from foreign ports where cholera prevails. Secretary Fairchild said to the writer, that the discussion of the matter was general in its nature. No details of action have been agreed upon, as the commission is not as yet itself agreed upon the course it will take. It is understood that the commissioner will hold that such infected vessels should be turned back, upon arrival at quarantine, to return to the countries whence they came.

The revival of the rumor that Don M. Dickinson of Detroit is to be made Postmaster-General upon the transfer of Colonel Vilas to the interior department follows on the heels of Mr. Dickinson's visit here. The story this time is widely credited and Michigan men here assert that the office of the place has been made and that Mr. Dickinson will make known his decision after conferring with his friends at home.

Inter-State Commerce Commissioner Morrison keeps sufficiently posted, despite his allegation, "out of politics," to be positive that Secretary Lamar will be appointed to fill the vacancy in the supreme court. When asked about his opinion as to whether or not the senate would confirm the appointment, he simply replied: "I cannot tell. I am not a senator."

The usual crowd congregated in front of Dr. Sunderland's church Sunday morning. The sunbathers evidently preferred the sunshine to the sober interior of the sanctuary. They desired to see President Cleveland and his wife enter. The bells called in vain for the chief magistrate. Still the crowd stayed, walking aimlessly about or shifting nervously from one foot to the other. Some few "rounders" who make a practice of taking in the scene departed, but the majority of the assemblage, composed largely of strangers, remained, worrying the life of the church attendant by insane questions that could not be answered. Eleven o'clock came and the bells of Metropolitan church clanged out something that sounded as if it might have been dedicated to "Old Hundred," but the president came not. Only a faithful few remained and they were on the ground until 11:15, apparently ashamed that they had been caught in such a situation, but seeing no way to desert gracefully.

C. S. Young, of Nevada, ex-president of the department of superintendence, national educational association, is sending out circulars announcing that "Senator W. M. Steward, of Nevada, intends at the next session of congress, to introduce a bill authorizing the expenditure of at least $10,000,000 for the establishment of a national normal school at Washington, D. C." Papers in support of this idea are being solicited to be read before the meeting of the association in Washington next February.

Gov. Luce pronounces 1887 the hardest on the Michigan farmers of all the years taken together since 1861. There have been light crops, entire failure in many departments, and low prices for what they had to sell.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for it and this paper together
Wide Awake	$2.40	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	2.10
Puck	5.00	3.10
Little Men and Women	1	2.10
Babyhood	2.50	3.50

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a little to examine, say five cents, enough to show you are not a deadhead. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyhood, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother amuse even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"literary, study, play-house, life at home and abroad, companionship of the wise and good"—describes the young, but for all improving people.

Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

PRESBYTERIANS

READ THIS

Should visit the BERMUDA AND PANAMA. A large circular from Presbyterian ministers and others, with full particulars, mailed free. Illustrated pamphlet 10 cts. Address, "Longfellow in His Library," Engraved to Subscribers. Size 15x21 inches. Add 10 cents for mailing and engraving.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We have on hand, in sparkling condition, Pastor Gates' sermon, "Forty years." While the supply lasts we will send it, with the Herald and Presbyter, one year, to any address in the United States, on receipt of $2.00. The sermon is back from world wide demand, and is pronounced the best of the author's sermons. Address

HERALD & PRESBYTER,
128 EAST 5TH, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Send five one-cent stamps for sample copy and our 4-page catalogue Christmas Cards and Scripts.

For Hard Times.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL
AND DEMOREST'S
ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY
MAGAZINE

With Twelve Cut Paper Patterns of your own selection and of any size,
BOTH PUBLICATIONS, ONE YEAR,
$3.10 (THREE TEN).

DEMOREST'S THE BEST
Of all the Magazines.
CONTAINING Stories, Poems and other Literary Gems, from contributors of world-wide fame. Household matters.
Illustrated with Original Steel Engravings, Photogravures, Oil Pictures and Fashion Plates, and hand to be Finest Magazine of America.

Each Magazine contains a COUPON ANTEE, giving the holder to the selection of ANY ONE PATTERN, in any size, FREE.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY is fortly certified to as "Queen of Fashion Magazines." The Largest in Form, the Largest in Circulation and the best and Cheapest Family Magazine in the world. For the Twenty-seven Years it has maintained its position as the Leading and most extensively to place it in the front rank of Family Periodicals, and equal to any magazine in Christendom. Its literary contents are always elegantly printed and finely illustrated. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, New York, AND BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT COMBINED WITH THE Charlevoix Journal at $3.10 Per Year.

THE STAR

A Newspaper supporting the Principles of Democratic Administration.
Published in the City of New York.
WILLIAM DORSHEIMER,
EDITOR.

Daily, Weekly, and Sunday Editions.

THE WEEKLY STAR,
An Eight-page Newspaper, issued every Wednesday.
A clean, pure, bright and interesting
FAMILY PAPER.
It contains the latest news, from to the hour of going to press.

Agricultural, Market, Fashion, Household, Financial and Commercial, Political, Poetical, Humorous and Editorial
Departments, all under the direction of trained journalists of the highest ability. Its contents will be found crowded with good things from beginning to end.

Original stories by distinguished American and foreign authors.

TERMS OF THE WEEKLY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.
Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, outside the limits of New York City.

ONE DOLLAR FOR ONE YEAR.

Copies of 1886 the same P. O. address, with an additional copy to organizer of Club, . . . $10.00
FOR THREE NEW SUBS, as last, . . . 2.25 each

Special terms and extraordinary inducements to agents and canvassers.
Send for Circulars.

THE DAILY STAR.

The DAILY STAR contains all the news of the day in a condensed form. Its editorial department is ably conducted. Its letters from London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Dublin are indispensable features.

Its Washington, Albany and other news centers, the ablest correspondents, specially retained by The Star, furnish the latest news by telegraph.

The literary features are unsurpassed.

The Financial and Market letters are unusually full and complete.

TERMS OF THE DAILY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.
Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, outside the limits of New York City.

Every Day, for one year (including Sunday),	$9.00
Daily, without Sunday, one year,	7.00
Every Day, six months,	4.50
Daily, without Sunday, six months,	3.50
Sunday, without Daily, one year,	1.50

Address, THE STAR,
Broadway and Park Place, New York.

ADVERTISERS or others, who wish to examine advertising to use when in Chicago, will find it on file at 45 to 49 Sherman St. The Chicago Advertising Agency of LORD & THOMAS.

THE ROUND OAK HEATING STOVES.
NEW COOK STOVES.
Best Saws and Axes. Job and Tin Work.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

G. A. R. CIGARS
Are noted as one of the eBest 5 ct. cigars made. For every thousand sold here the Baxter Post of Charlevoix receives $2.00.
The Post has just received its first $2.00. Friends of the Post, try the G. A. R. Cigar and help the old soldiers. For Sale by
F. A. COCHRAN & CO., Druggist and Pharmacists.

New Goods
A Large Stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods of the Latest Styles, just received. Call and See them.
EXCELSIOR MANF'G CO'S
PANTS, OVERALLS AND SHIRTS
TRADE MARK.
FULL SIZE, WELL MADE AND PERFECT FIT.
TRY THEM. for Sale by J. W. MILLER.

A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF NEW
Dry Goods!
Received on the Lawrence this week. Come and see them.
B. SEE.

Bargains
IN
BOOTS & SHOES
The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.
FOX & MILLER

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS
Hardware Iron and Nail Merchants.
CHAMPION FORCE PUMPS
PLOWS, BARBED WIRE, ETC., LEAD.
SAVE YOUR DOLLARS
And buy them of Yours Truly,
STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Charlevoix Manufacturing Company,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Sash, Doors, and Blinds,
Screen Doors and Windows, and Mouldings of all Descriptions.
Nowell Posts, Banisters, and Stair Rail, of Soft and Hard Wood, Kept in Stock and Made and Put Up to Order.
A GOOD STOCK OF
PINE AND BASSWOOD SIDING
Also Contractors, Builders, and General Jobbers.
Summer Cottages a Specialty.
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN.

THE JOURNAL
Charlevoix, Mich., Nov. 17, 1887.

Local Notes and News.

☞ For woolen hose go to B. See's.

☞ For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. 20tf

☞ A few ladies cloaks left yet; call and get a bargain; at B. See's

☞ Beaver Island hand knit socks fifty cents a pair, at Geo. W. Miller's.

On Thanksgiving day the postoffice will be open only from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.

An article descriptive of Ironton and surroundings will appear next week.

☞ Those who expect to pay for the JOURNAL in wood will please bring it at once.

Rev. W. H. McCartney this week purchased the Newberry property on Main Street.

Sims Baker is occupying a blacksmith shop back of the Stockman & Iddings tin shop.

The steamer Remorse was in the harbor last week gathering fish for Davis & Co., of Detroit.

☞ If some of our subscribers wish to pay for the paper with potatoes, we will take fifteen or twenty bushel.

☞ Apples, potatoes, cabbages, squashes, or buckwheat flour will be taken in payment for the JOURNAL at market rates.

☞ Before you buy a Christmas chair for grandma, don't forget to look at those fine willow goods just received by S. M. See & Sons.

The propeller Ossifrage has been taken from the Traverse City and Mackinac route to Bay City, and laid up for the winter.

E. W. Bennett has put a well down 55 feet for H. Lee Iddings, at his new house on the park, and is now putting one down for S Parker on Clinton street.

☞ Cash in advance is the only true basis on which to run a newspaper, and we wish to put the JOURNAL on that basis as soon as possible. So if anyone in arrears, fails to receive this paper regularly they can calculate that we are tired of waiting for them.

Washburn & Ackert have placed nine of their furnaces this fall, and could sell a dozen more if there was time to place them before cold weather comes. They will undoubtedly take the place of high price furnaces in several public buildings in this vicinity.

A. T. Washburne & Co. have a change of advertisement that demands the attention of every reader of the JOURNAL. The most casual observer can find bargains in the goods there mentioned, if they will but go to the store. And Mr. Washburne informs us that in all his lines of goods he gives the best value for the price. Don't fail to look them over.

It is now thought that John Patten was on the propeller Vernon when she went down. It was at first reported that he left the boat at Traverse City, but as no word can be received from him, the family think that he was among the lost. Mr. Patten was about 23 years old, of good habits, and has many warm friends, who sympathize with his father, mother and three sisters.

James Slater, a carpenter of Boyne obtained a judgment of $1,000, in the Charlevoix circuit court at the last February term, against H. B. Chapman, for injuries received while at work on the Chapman hotel at Bay Springs in 1883. Mr. Chapman appealed the case to the Supreme Court, and it was heard at the October term. Mr. Slater's attorneys received notice last week that the judgement had been affirmed.

At a special meeting of the stock holders of the D. C. & E. railroad, held at the secretary's office, in Charlevoix, Tuesday of this week, considerable important business was transacted. The route was extended from Charlevoix, north to Mackinaw City, and the capital stock increased from $600,000 to $2,000,000. At a meeting of the directors which followed, the committees reported that nearly all the right of way had been procured along the line between Charlevoix and Kalkaska, except that held by non-residents, and that proceedings were to be instituted at once to condemn that not yet procured.

M. E. Church.

Sabbath services at usual hours conducted by pastor. Tuesday evening the bible reading on "God's words." Thursday evening general prayer meeting. All attend.

W. H. MCCARTNEY.

Purely Personal.

Mrs. D. M. Colby, is on the sick list.

Judge Newberry, of Petoskey was in town Monday.

Dr. Carlstein returned Monday from his visit in Minnesota.

Miss Ada Johnson, of Norwood, Sundayed in Charlevoix with friends.

Mrs. Chas. Shepard, of Roseomon is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Capt. Edwards.

Robert Miller has been on the sick list for a week or more, but is now on the mend.

C. Y. Cook, E. Carpenter, Chas. Lamoreaux and B. W. Miller, leave today for Florida.

Robert Paddock, of Lancaster, Ohio, is spending this week with the family of John Nicholls.

W. A. Atchinson moved this week to the Wilcox cedar camp, that he has charge of this season.

Dan Way and wife returned Tuesday from Sterling, where they have been spending several weeks.

J. A. Vote returned Monday from the hunting grounds of Mackinac county, and brought with him six deer and a bear.

Mrs. M. P. Burns expects to leave next Tuesday for Indiana where she will spend the winter with the family of her daughter.

Rev. A. O. Downs, pastor of the Congregational Church, with his family arrived last Friday, and are domiciled in the VanAtken house on Clinton street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Campbell, formerly of the Occidental, now at the hotel over Sunday, waiting for the boat to Manistique. They assume charge of the Ossawinamakee House at Manistique about the 15th. They have many friends here who will wish them a prosperous business in that live little city.—Petoskey Record.

Ed. F. Parmelee has severed his connection with the Sentinel, and the firm of Smith & Parmelee dissolved. W. A. Smith, the founder of the paper continues its publication as sole owner. Mr. Parmelee has been connected with the Sentinel some more than four years, and has shown himself to be progressive yet conservative, and withal a first-class newspaper man. Wherever Mr. Parmelee may engage in business he has the best wishes of the JOURNAL.

Coming Events.

Thanksgiving services held at the congregational church at 10:30 on Thursday, Nov. 24. Sermon preached by W. H. McCartney. All come and join us in praises to our God.

The K. of L. literary society hold regular meetings on Wednesday evening of each week, at K. of L. hall, at 7.30 o'clock. Question for discussion Nov. 23d: "Resolved, that the best interest of this people demand a homestead law and land tax in America." Wm. Black and G. W. Jefferies chief contestants. A cordial invitation extended to the public. These meetings are intended for the extension of useful knowledge, and to promote the welfare of all. MARIOS BEGGS, Secretary.

Letter from B. C. Nettleton

San Diego, Cal., contains about 20,000 inhabitants. It is built on gently rising ground, that is rapidly climbing the hills about a mile back from the bay, where there are many building sites commanding fine views of the bay and ocean. The town is new. One seldom meets a man who has been here over six months. It is estimated that there are five hundred buildings in course of construction, and if my diagnosis is correct, the boom will continue for some time to come. In many respects the city has outgrown its garments. Sewers are being laid in many of the streets, and others have to meander up one street and down another to find crossings. It is also deficient in sidewalks. Buildings that would do credit to any city have not yet got stuck in front of them.

The postal facilities are sadly deficient. The people contributed to hire extra clerks, but distributions are days behind, and there are 1,400 unsatisfied applications for boxes. I stopped at the office one morning to get my mail, fell into line as No. 32 to work my way up, but after half an hour became disgusted and made up my mind that I did not care to hear from friends. I came back again in the afternoon, but the line was just as long. Got my supper and came back determined to fight my way out on that line if it took all night. I received an antiquated circular informing me that an excursionist would be happy to furnish me transportation to California. I asked for my money back, but was informed that they could not bother with such trifles.

I went to a barber shop to get shaved, and I verily believe that they shaved half of the people of San Diego before it came my turn, and when I returned to my lodgings my wife gave me a lecture for keeping late hours.

The next day was Sunday, but I had enough. I knew there would not be gospel enough to go around, and I am too old to stand off three or four blocks and take it in small quantities.

The climate seems to be all that could be desired, which alone will no doubt attract many rich men, who will build beautiful suburban homes around this rising "City of the Bay."

Eveline.

IRONTON, Nov. 15.—About time for another snow storm.

According to the Enterprise of last week, it must be we are having our Indian summer.

Mr. Joel King is attending the circuit court at Boyne as juror.

The Citizen says that the Pine Lake Iron Co. have leased the Eaton dock and property at the foot of Main St., and will buy furnace wood there this winter.

Dugal Campbell, of South Arm, while in town Saturday and Sunday made us a call.

Wesley Lane has gone off on a deer hunting expedition.

Chas. Peterson returned last Wednesday, bringing with him a fine yoke of oxen, to be used at the camp.

We suggest that a letter box be put on the outside door at the post-office, at Ironton.

Chas. Norton is in Blenom, Canada, School in the Boer's district closed on the 8th. Miss Anna Metcalf, the teacher, returned to her home in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. David Dennis left last week, to make their home with their daughter, in Grand Rapids.

F. J. Smith, of Hayes, has built him a new barn to replace the one burnt by the forest fires last spring.

Elias Hammond, wife and family, of East Jordan are stopping with the family of H. S. Freeman. They will stay until Mr. Freeman gets better.

☞ Chas. Bedwin has received more goods, and has more coming.

G. A. R. Resolutions.

Whereas, at the fatal disaster, which occurred Oct. 29th 1887, in the loss of the steamer Vernon, our lamented comrade, Louis Geboo, answered to his last roll call; we, therefore offer the following resolutions:

Resolved, that the untimely and sudden death of our comrade, we regard as a catastrophy greatly to be deplored, and for which we sincerely mourn.

Resolved, that we tender to the bereft family of our comrade, our earnest and heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, that a copy of the foregoing resolutions be sent to the widow of our deceased comrade, and also to the village papers for publication.

M. J. SHOEMAKER,
D. C. CHAMBERLAIN,
BYRON SEE,
Committee.

Burgess.

BURGESS, Nov. 15.—Mr. Hale returned to his home in a very feeble condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold were visiting at Frank Kane's Sunday.

Miss Burns will spend the winter with her sister, Mrs. Frank Snethen and attend school.

School commenced in district No. 6, Monday, with Miss Annie Metealf, of Charlevoix, as teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pierce have the sympathy of their friends in the death of their infant child.

Barnard.

BARNARD, Nov.16.—Miss Ella Trimble has gone to Charlevoix to attend school this winter.

Mrs. T. S. Stevens was visiting with her uncle, Mr. Harkness last week.

Will Burns is improving his place with a new board fence.

Richard Shapton is moving to Charlevoix this week.

Mr. Geo. Anderson who has been living in Charlevoix the past summer intends moving back on his farm soon.

Shipments

The following are the shipments from the port of Charlevoix, reported by Lamb:

Nov. 10—Schr. Sea Gem, 20,000 feet hardwood lumber, Crain & Whitford to Sheboygan.

16—Schr. Four Brothers, 180 cords wood, W. H. Dewhurst to Chicago.

Get your neighbor to subscribe for the JOURNAL.

EXPERIMENTS IN HYPNOTISM.

Strange Doings of the Doctors in Paris. Startling Mental Phenomena.

Dr. Luys recently made a communication to the Academy of Medicine on this subject which electrified the members present. It was on the action, both at a distance and by direct contact, of certain medicinal and fermented substances on hypnotic subjects. The latter were all women who could not possibly have got their cue beforehand, and were being observed while Dr. Luys operated by a jury of scientists above all suspicion of having lent themselves to any trickery. A tube in one instance was filled with sulphate of strychnine by Dr. Luys, and the subject, who was not present, was told to put it to the left side of the nape of her neck. Soon after there was a telephonic message from the foreman of the jury to say that the patient suffered in the left side from muscular contractions, convulsive starts and a rigid body. When the drug was placed on the right side of the nape (in imagination) the same phenomenon took place.

An experiment, or rather experiments, was made on subjects who were brought in to the operator. They had no idea what Dr. Luys was going to use. Although he put to the nape in a tube no larger than a lower-potato's vital and hermetically sealed produced exactly the same effect as if unlabeled a bar. Absinthe, hashish, opium, morphine, beer, champagne, tea and coffee were in succession tried with their characteristic effects. But—the cup which cheers but not inebriates" was found too exciting for French neurogaths. Valerian caused the deepest catalepsy. The thoughtless the patient were centered in a grave. She was impelled irresistibly to stoop down and scratch the ground, and thought herself in a cemetery exhuming a deceased relative whom she loved. Under the ill-fated influence she herself picking up bones belonging to this skeleton, which she handled with tender reverence, and when there was an imaginary mound of them she plaited with deep drawn sighs and tears and genuflections, a cross above the grave. Asafoetida produced the contrary effect, causing rosy and gayety prevailed.

The subject was a young girl, very fond of the drama. She fancied herself on the stage and playing a part which suited her to perfection. It was in a buffoutte opera and she sang her score admirably. The sentiments were expressed with delicate feeling. Dr. Luys can, according to the substances he uses, run through the whole gamut of human passions and emotions.

What is most strange is that no trace of the fictitious world in which the hypnotized subject has been wandering remains when real consciousness is restored. It is very rare for even the idea of having been in dreamland to survive the awakening from the hypnotic trance. Dr. Luys says that hypnotic suggestion sometimes has periods of incubation more or less long. The subject is seized greatly to do a certain thing or things, and then the drawing because on irresistible impulse. They are first as if tempted and then as if possessed. They can no more help themselves than a man who has got out to the verge of Niagara Falls in a fast coal help going over.

Dr. Luys proved that the sendemy name a commission to inquire into hypnotic suggestion, near and at a distance. Dr. Brunnell supported him. He said: "All that Dr. Luys has alleged and shown is correct and to make a noise throughout the world. Nobody but M.M. Bunel and Dumon have gone so far as Dr. Luys. He not only forces on the attention of the academy the question of hypnotism, but of persons being affected by poisonous substances which do not penetrate, or it may be even touch their bodies. This is from a legal point of view a great danger. A great moral responsibility is involved in the matter. It is the duty of the academy to have the experiments of Dr. Luys repeated, with others that have upon them."—Paris Cor. New York Tribune.

Historical Society.

The historical society met last Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Kane. The executive committee reported a prospectus of work for the season that will surely be interesting and instructive. The work is English history beginning with the Norman conquest. The society will meet tomorrow evening with the family of John Nicholls. The lesson will be read the paper. Subject; The Norman Conquest. The conversation on Tennyson's Harold, will be lead by A. T. Washburne and Mrs. W. G. Clark.

Michigan Mention

The big bridge at Sault Ste. Marie is said to be about half completed.

H. P. Akeley has given his magnificent residence and lot, in Grand Haven, worth $45,000 to the Episcopal church, to be used and occupied as a ladies' college.

Last Saturday, Gov. Luce appointed Francis Dunlory, of St. James, judge of probate for Manitou county, to succeed James Dunlery, who recently resigned.

A Christmas Present.

To any subscriber whose account is paid one year in advance, we will furnish the JOURNAL one year to the name of any friend they may desire, who does not now take the paper, for one dollar cash in advance, if paid before the first day of January. Next year Charlevoix will "boom," and the best way to let your distant friends know all about it is to send the JOURNAL regularly. And the best way to sustain this paper in advertising Charlevoix county is to send one or more copies to friends abroad. Recollect, one dollar cash pays the bill if your own account is settled one year in advance.

BORN.

KIRBY—On Nov. 7th, to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kirby, a daughter.

SCHOOL BOOKS

We have now in Stock all the new Books adopted by the Board, and they will be sold at less than Publishers' Introductory Price. We have the largest stock of School Books and School Supplies in the county, and as we are the publishers' agent we are prepared to sell cheaper than ever. Get our prices before you purchase or you will be sorry.

Dr. G. W. Crouter.

A New Attraction in Town
AND LOCATED IN THE
Dry Goods & Carpet Store
OF
A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Who are pleased to announce to the people of Charlevoix and vicinity that in this store a great

5c., 10c., and 25c. COUNTER

Has been placed, and invite all friends and customers to call in and see for themselves if they cannot get bargains in

A General Line of House Furnishing Goods, All for 5c., 10c., and 25c.

These counters being a new attraction, you are invited to call and see them. Having obtained them through a Chicago house that makes it their business to buy these goods for a great deal less than they are worth, by purchasing from Auctions, &c. Lots at Forced Sales, Sheriff Sales, and in Clean, on these counters for 5c., 10c., and 25c.! These goods will positively be retailed at these cheap prices. Come and see for yourselves.

To give you a full list of all these great bargains would be next to an impossibility, as the line is so large.

Call in and Inspect these Counters. All the goods are displayed to view, and only three prices, 5c., 10c., and 25c.

Call and see this stock, and see if you cannot save 40c. on every dollar's worth of goods you buy. Remember, a full line of GLASSWARE, TINWARE, WOODENWARE, QUEENSWARE, HARDWARE, NOTIONS, and in fact a little of everything on these counters.

Great 5c., 10c. and 25c. Counters.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

NOTICE

SEALED PROPOSALS in triplicate will be received by the undersigned, at the office of the Township Clerk of Charlevoix township, until the hour of 2 o'clock, p. m., on the 5th day of December, 1887, at which time and place said bids will be opened and the contract awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

Charlevoix, Mich., Nov. 14, 1887.
W. C. NEWMAN, Secretary

SUBSCRIBE FOR
Grand Rapids' best paper,
The Daily Democrat.
It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.
Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Wood at 12½ cents a week.

Cash Club Rates
For the convenience of our friends who want a city paper the coming year, we will furnish either of the following with the JOURNAL one year at the price named:

Name	With the Journal.
$0-50 Babyland	$ 2.00
1.00 Chicago Weekly Herald	2.00
1.00 Chicago Weekly News	2.00
1.00 Germania Weekly Enquirer	2.00
2.00 Cosmopolitan Magazine, monthly	3.50
1.50 Cottage Hearth, monthly	2.50
1.00 Detroit Weekly Free Press	2.00
1.00 Harper's Bazar	2.00
4.00 Harper's Magazine, monthly	4.50
4.00 Harper's Weekly	4.50
2.00 Harper's Young People	3.00
1.00 Little Men and Women	2.00
1.50 Montreal Herald and Star	3.00
2.50 New York Weekly Graphic	3.00
1.00 New York Weekly Star	2.00
1.00 New York Weekly World	2.00
1.00 Puck	2.50
4.00 Scribner's Magazine	3.75
1.00 Toledo Weekly Blade	2.00
5.40 Wide Awake	3.25
1.00 Young Folks' Journal	2.00

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts can be made for it IN NEW YORK.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS
Is a complete newspaper in all that constitutes the term. It is a member of the Associated Press, and is the only recent morning paper in Chicago that possesses this first essent at to a complete news service. In addition it has its own private leased wires connecting its office with Washington and New York. It prints ALL THE NEWS.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS
Is an independent paper. It recognizes the utility of political parties as means for the accomplishment of proper ends, but it declines to regard any mere party as a fit subject for unquestioning adoration. It is unbiased in its presentation of political news.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS
Is a "short-and-to-the-point" paper. It leaves to the "blanket-sheet" the monopoly of tiresome and worthless amplification. It says all that is to be said in the shortest possible manner. It is a paper for busy people.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS
Now prints and sells over 175,000 copies per day—a larger circulation than that of all the other Chicago dailies combined. Sold by all news dealers at two cents per copy. Mailed to any address, postage prepaid, for six dollars per year, or for a shorter term at rate of fifty cents per month. Address Victor F. Lawson, Publisher The DAILY NEWS, 123 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The Chicago Weekly News
Eight pages, 64 columns, is the largest dollar weekly in America. 19

A LOVER'S LAMENT.

BY SAMMY LINNET.

Once on a time—not long ago—
Dizzy I when, you need not know,
A maiden, young and late to sea,
Was loved, almost answered to me.
But soul was pure as mountain sea,
Her heart was warm with honest love,
Pure as the angels know above;
But, ah! 'tis many year to dwell
Upon the thought—my darling fell!

She loved—as I—the fancy dream
To Grace who fell themselves—alone
Alone, while all the world was gay
To mourn and weep with bitter tear,
A year or doubtful loss of those
Who love so dearly, but who chose
To leave her—left her—left her—
"Then set the cause, sweet maiden!"
And so his money now to dwell
Upon the thought—my darling fell!

I really wander day by day
While grief lurks full and heartless away.
I look across the fields at night
When Luna looks a friendly light,
And think I see her handsome face,
Hear even the thing of sorrow trace
Her ugly footsteps—'Oh! do not
She comes to trouble—she comes
And whispers with her voice to tell,
For she—my life, my idol—fell!

Look down, thou melancholy moon,
Upon the sorrow of my heart,
Or, if she answer I wish you to utter!
What tender memories fall in line,
Wander through every innocent thought—
Sweet memories often dearly bought—
The wind now sighs me to feel
Whereon my darling sighs curse the reel,
What orange peel—heaven she fell!

AMONG THE ICEBERGS.

BY CAPT. JAKE HAWTHORNE.

"I am a sea tramp," said Jeff Turcott, as he squared himself for a yarn in the forecastle of the Mary Mason, a stanch brig in the China trade out of Boston.

"Leastways, if there are tramps ashore there are tramps at sea—chaps that wouldn't make three v'yages with the same timbers under them if you made them a present of the ship; because, why, it gets so blamed monotonous, so to speak, and thinks the kind of critter I am.

"I've sailed north and south, and east and west, and here and there promiscuous to the other p'ints of the compass; but I never come so nigh losing the number of my mess as once in the Arctic Ocean.

"We was in the Cachalot that trip, a square-rigged ship, owned in New Bedford, and we was after 'right' whales. Sperm is all right, when you can get enough of it, but that ain't always easy.

"No one skipper would rather take a chance on good right whales, when they was plenty, than to chase cachalots all over the North Pacific.

"So we shipped up through the straits and got on the grounds early the first year, and when winter came we worked down under the lee of an island, and spent it as well as we could.

"Pete was a short fun in it, but what with cards and sleigh parties after musk deer, bear hunts, and games, we managed to put in the winter.

"But I tell you I was mighty glad when the ice broke away, and we saw a chance to get out of the bay.

"The old man was in a hurry. You see we was nearly full when the ice drove us into the bay, and he reckoned we could fill up in two months, lay down the coast with the cargo, and get home in time to be back on the grounds the same year.

"I everything seemed to play right into his hands, and every day almost, when the try-pots were not busy, we'd strike a whale; and twice I have seen we had three of them alongside, and the ship smelled like an oil factory.

"We didn't seem to mind that, for oil salts get used to these things, and we was as anxious as any one could be to get back, because our lay was sure to be good with such a cargo, and we counted on a big time with 'the girls' we left behind us.

"We had a man aboard we called Prophet Pete. He was a Cape Cod man, a long, lank skeleton, with a face on him that would drive a man crazy if he had any love of the beautiful, so caused homely was he.

"Then he was one of these infernal visionsessing fools, and kept the men in hot water with his prophecies.

"Whether it was just hull-head luck or what not, I don't know, but whatever Prophet Pete Pulver said was sure to come out true, and the men got so they believed every word he said. And so, when he came to me one day, just before we struck the last whale, I knew he was coming to me with a vision.

"'I've had a revelation, Jeff,' he says, in a voice like a handsaw going through a knot.

"'Revelation be blowed,' I said. 'What's he got to do with the Cachalot?'

"'You don't understand,' he whined. 'What I want to say is that I have seen a vision.'

"'Then I got mad, and said: 'And what I wanter say is, that you'll see more stars and cut more capers than if you was hit by a cyclone, if you come fooling around here with your visions. You're a Jonah, that's what you are, Pete Pulver.'

"'But this is important. I never had such a vision before, and I tell you this, if the Cachalot don't sail within three days, she will meet with awful peril.'

"Mates, I started for the interior of Greenland, and I have stove in the bigare-head, sure, but he got out of Galilee so quick I couldn't reach him.

"But he ambled round among the men, and told his yarn until he got them so worked up that he sigh about bred a mutiny; and he wouldn't stop it, and the mate had to clap the darbies on him, and shove him down in the brig.

"He didn't seem to care for that, either, and when they was hauling him below, he sang out that they'd remember what he said when trouble came.

"Putting him into the hold didn't seem to make no difference, for the thing had got to working among the men, and they was just as sure we were going to have trouble as if an angel had come down and told them; and they were clean certain that the old man would catch it for putting Prophet Pete in the brig.

"I didn't say much, mates; but I'm like all old sailors, a little inclined to be superstitious, and I was uneasy about the thing.

"It got so hot that the old man called us aft and made us a little speech. He said we was good men, every one, and he didn't want to have any trouble; but no more he wouldn't allow no sea lawyers to come aboard him and run his ship.

"And if any of us felt as Pete did, why, there was a place for him along with Pete, and if we didn't take a drop on it pretty quick, some one might get a taste of the sea.

"Now, that kind of argument is pretty strong and convincing, and we understood that the only way to get out of that was to buckle in and get the ship full as quick as we could, and then we could get away.

"No man sharked his duty, and the second day Pete was back among us, He'd submitted to the powers that be, and promised not to make no more prophecies that trip, if he burst a blood vessel trying to keep it in.

"But he looked mighty solemn when three days passed, and we had just towed the last whale up to the side and set in to get the blubber aboard.

"We worked hard, let it was no use trying, and we had to leave part of the work for the next day. Prophet Peter didn't speak, but I'd a blamed sight rather he'd howled like a hurricane; it wouldn't have scared me half so much. He went around with his jaw dropped, his face pale as a ghost, and a look on it like he had given up all hope and was just going to die.

"I wanted to beat him in the jaw; but what good would that do? I'd liked to have seen him keel hauled—anything to take that awful look out of his face; and I never felt happier than I did next day when the last of the blubber came aboard, and we squared away for the straits.

"We had been dodging ice ever since we came out of the bay, and now when we headed up to lay a course, we found plenty more of it. The most we met was in scattered floes, some of them as big as a house, and we dodged among them as well as we could.

"Pete did his work like a man, but you could see he was only doing it because it was his duty—not that he thought it would do anybody any good

"We seem to be skipping along all right, Pete,' I says.

"'Wait until night,' he answers in a hollow voice.

"I looked for a belaying pin to hit him with, but he sidled away and got out of my reach. The next day went all right and we had plenty of room to dodge the ice, and at night would be the time when we must look out.

"In the middle watch that night I had the deck, with Pete as one of the watch, and I saw him sneak forward and take his station in the foretop. I didn't want to stay with the foot, for his look made cold chills run down my back and into my boots; so I went up the main shrouds and into the top to take a look. There was nothing in sight, and it was cold aloft, so I slid down and planked the deck to keep warm.

"Everything was going nicely, and I was just beginning to think what a fool I was to allow Pete Pulver to bother me, when he came sliding down a backstay, and ran up to me.

"'It's come!' he hissed. 'Tell the mate he wouldn't believe me.'

"'What's come?' I gasped.

"He pointed forward, and I saw a mighty sea I never saw floes in the Northern seas. All around us, in front, astern, on both bows, and on the quarters, were great icebergs, and we had crept among them without knowing it.

Pete Pulver's prophecy had come true, for if we escaped from the net into which the ship had thrust herself it would be a miracle.

"I sang out for the mate, and he skipped up on the rail and took one look, coolly, as he jumped down aft.

"'Lay down, Pete, rout out the Captain.'

"The old man was on deck in a moment, and he was too good a sailor not to see the danger, and that the "floes" were closing in, and only quick work could save us.

"Right ahead were two 'bergs, perhaps two hundred inthons apart, but closing in fast. The every hand we were manned in, and his decision was quickly made.

"'Set everything that will draw, alow and aloft, Mr. Tyrsall,' he ordered. 'I'm going out of this pack. Stetson, you take the wheel, and do as I tell you, for your life.'

"Stetson, harpooner in the Captain's boat, laid his brown hand on the wheel, and the old man jumped up on the rail, where the helmsman could see him.

"We swerved about like a flock of geese, and before you could think, the ship was packed from rail to truck. There was a good ten-knot breeze just over the starboard quarter, and the Captain raised his hand.

"'Head her due west, you at the wheel; steady—so!'

"The ship swung round and headed for the opening between the two 'bergs. We understood then what he meant to do, and though it was fearful risky, we knew well that it was the only thing to do.

"The good ship seemed to know what was expected of her, and fairly seemed to fly. The 'bergs were closing in, and we knew it would be touch and go.

"Just Captain Crafts stood like a statue on the rail, and his voice was steady as he spoke.

"'Port a little—steady; that's well!'

"The Cachalot's horn went in between the 'bergs, and every man held his breath. If the ice extended under water farther than we knew, it would be the end of all.

"High above us loomed the two 'bergs, with their frost towers and turrets, and the space between seemed perilously narrow.

"'Starboard, there!' cried the Captain. 'Now, then—hell amidships.'

"There was an awful grating sound along the keel, such a sound as I never heard before, and never want to hear again, and Prophet Pete whispered in my ear:

"'My dream, my dream?'

"Mates, I turned on that bloody pirate and give it to him right between the eyes. If we went to Davy Jones I'd at least have it out of him.

"I felt the ship keel to port and lift at the stern, and then she slid off into deep water; I threw the wheel hard down, and, with the icebergs astern, the Cachalot was flying on her course, saved by a hair.

"And I never felt so happy as I did to think that I knocked that croaker out so that he couldn't see how it was done.

"Eight bells, mates. Away you go.

"And we jumped on deck before the mate got to the foksel hatch.

Bill Nye on Hotels.

America has seen many gigantic strides, writes Bill Nye, in the New York World, aside from those made at the battle of Bull Run, and her people spend much of their time pointing with pride to her remarkable progress, but we are prone to dwell too much upon our advantages as a summer resort and our adroit methods of declining the Presidency before we are asked, while we forget some of our more important improvements, like the elevated railway and the American hotel.

Let us, for a moment, look at the great changes that have been wrought in hotels during the past century. How marked has been the improvement and how wonderful the advancement. Everything has been changed. Even the clerks have been changed.

Electric bells, consisting of a long and alert wire with an overcoat button at one end and a reporter at the other, have taken the place of the human voice and a long-browed man in club. Where once we were compelled to call down a dull, stupid clerk, now we can go down the elevator or wander down the wrong stairway and find anybody we want.

Where once we were mortified by being compelled to rise at table, rear nine feet and stab a porous pancake with our fork, meantime wiping the perspiration off of the bay, and now when with our coat tails, now we can hire a lad, little gentleman in a hat from hell to pass us the pancakes.

Even the hotels of American hotels are changed. Once the bar-tender waited till his customer ran all his remarks into one long sentence, and then a hiccough on the end, and then he told him by the clock and then put him out into the cold and chaotic night. Now the bar-tender gradually rises on the price of drinks till his customer is frozen out, and while he is gone to the reading-room to borrow some more money the chemist moves the bar somewhere else, and when the poor returns he finds a barber shop where he thought he left a bar-room.

It is very rare now that we see a United States Senator snaking a two-story Mansard mansard hotel down the flights of stairs to his room in order to secure the labor vote. Men, as well as hotels and bar-rooms, have gone up. Where once a cake of soap would only last a few weeks, science has come to and perfected a style of pin's soap, flavored with vanilla, that will last for years, and a new slippery elm towel that is absolutely impervious to moisture. Hard is the man who can now steal away from the corridors of time, welcoming the morning and weeping the parting guest, jumping deftly out of the hands of the receiver, but always calm, smooth, and latherless.

A great hotel proprietor, last night, shrewd men are met with a sinking and impressive whisper, to go, "The Fat Contributor" was lecturing once in the State of Kentucky, and had occasion to leave the room a little hotel. After the meal Mr. Grisby stepped up to the table, took out a bale of bank-notes, which he had received in payment for the evening before, and asked what the damage was, "Three dollars," said the blue grass gentleman, who had bathed with collar with a ten-penny nail, while he looked at "Grix" with a pained expression.

"Yes, but a man ought to be able to board here a week for $30. The whole house didn't cost more than $40 or $45. What's your idea in charging me $3 for a wad of honeny and a piece of yesterday's pie?"

"W-ell, sir," said the urbane landlord, as he put out the fire at a distance with a pitcher of water, in a salvary surpius on it, "I need the money."

The frankness and open, candid manner of the man won Mr. Grisward, and he asked him if he thought $3 would be enough. The landlord said he could get along with it. Mr. Griswold opened his valise and took out a large brown paper package, marked "For external use." He passed it over to the landlord and told him that that and' would do well on the inside as it did on the outside. In a few moments the contents of the "Contributor" and the liniment of the landlord had merged into each other, and a friendly feeling sprang up between the two men which time has never effaced. I have often thought of this and wondered why it is that lotsof men are not more open and cordial with their guests. Many a time I have paid a large bill grudgingly when I felt like giving it a cheerfully if the landlord had told me he was in need.

Brussel's Lare.

Brussels lace is celebrated all over the world, and we have not had to visit one of the places where this beautiful and costly lace is made. Here we see a number of women, very quiet, very neatly dressed, and in some cases with wonderfully delicate and adroitnhe hands, although they are all plain working-women. Each is busy fashioning the delicate pattern of a piece of lace, and it is said that each woman has a pattern of her own which she always makes, and which, perhaps, descended from her mother and grandmother. Some are at their work working on cushions, with pins and bobbins, and some are using needles and the finest and most delicate thread. We are told that this thread is made of flax by hand, and it is so delicate that it has to be spun in damp cellars, because in the dry upper air it would break before it is finished. There are old women in Brussels who have spun nearly all their lives spinning in cellars. — Frank R. Stockton, in St. Nicholas.

As old maid may make herself generally useful, but an old bachelor is generally in everybody's way. unsoaded for accidents. — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

"WE DENY THE WRIT."

The Decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Anarchist Case.

No Federal Question Involved, and the Court Business is This Opinion.

How the News Was Received by the Condemned Men in the Chicago Jail.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.

The Supreme Court of the United States yesterday denied the motion for a writ of habeas corpus in the anarchist case. The decision was delivered by Chief Justice Waite, and occupied the entire morning session. At the opening of the court, when the justices entered the room Justice Miller and Waite looked decidedly pale, and the voice of the latter trembled for some moments after he began to read the opinion, but he soon recovered his voice and took his usual whole sentence. To a focus of the other Justices were turned to the floor during nearly the entire time of the delivery. Occasionally Justice Harlan would look up from his paper, looked the audience in the face, and then would quickly drop his eyes to the floor. Justice Bradley was the calmest of the judges who had sat inside the bench in reaching the conclusion they announced to the world.

When, as in this case, application is made to this court for a writ of habeas corpus to review a criminal application in the state courts it will be held to be a proper exercise of a writ of error to bring up the question of the constitutionality of the Revised Statutes, it is our duty to ascertain for ourselves whether any question meriting here was made and decided in the proper court of the state, which is of such a character as to warrant us in bringing the judgment into for examination.

In our opinion the question not to be allowed by the court if it appears from the face of the petition that no federal question was in question which is complained of was so plainly wrong as to be unjustifiable, or if it appears clearly it is in accordance with our own well considered judgments in similar cases. That is, the question is not frivolous. In the Commonwealth, 1 Wall, 313, when the writ was applied for, the petition was denied, because it appeared that no federal question was involved, although if they had been in the opinion of the court, the decision would have been reversed under Section 5 of our Rule 4 a motion to affirm was granted, because it appeared that the jurisdiction, the practice has been to grant the writ of error, and then on the motion to affirm to dismiss the case, if it should be subsequently decided right that the case ought not to be held here. Ex parte Virginia, Arrowsmith, 100 Reporter, 339 United States, 39, 256; Clover vs. Wallace, 2 Wall, 461; Ex parte Cutler, 3 Wall, 504.

Upon an application to the supreme court for the allowance of a writ of habeas corpus, it will not be held to be a proper form to sending out a writ to bring up the record of a case from the supreme court of state, when it is apparent on the face of the record that no federal question was involved. In affirm to cases in it was done in proper form.

In the present case we have had the benefit of the learned support of the counsel for the white counsel have not deemed it their duty to make a point in the case, or to suggest to the court, that the state court has violated the rights of state to his room in order to secure the labor vote. Men, as well as hotels and bar-rooms, have gone up. Where once a cake of soap would only last a few weeks, science has come to and perfected a style of pin's soap, flavored with vanilla, that will last for years, and a new slippery elm towel that is absolutely impervious to moisture. Hard is the man who can now steal away from the corridors of time, welcoming the morning and weeping the parting guest, jumping deftly out of the hands of the receiver, but always calm, smooth, and latherless.

A great hotel proprietor, last night, shrewd men are met with a sinking and impressive whisper, to go. "The Fat Contributor" was lecturing once in the State of Kentucky, and had occasion to leave the room a little hotel. After the meal Mr. Grisby stepped up to the table, took out a bale of bank-notes, which he had received in payment for the evening before, and asked what the damage was, "Three dollars," said the blue grass gentleman, who had bathed with collar with a ten-penny nail, while he looked at "Grix" with a pained expression.

"Yes, but a man ought to be able to board here a week for $30. The whole house didn't cost more than $40 or $45. What's your idea in charging me $3 for a wad of honeny and a piece of yesterday's pie?"

"W-ell, sir," said the urbane landlord, as he put out the fire at a distance with a pitcher of water, in a salvary surpius on it, "I need the money."

The frankness and open, candid manner of the man won Mr. Grisward, and he asked him if he thought $3 would be enough. The landlord said he could get along with it. Mr. Grisswold opened his valise and took out a large brown paper package, marked "For external use." He passed it over to the landlord and told him that that and' would do well on the inside as it did on the outside. In a few moments the liniment of the "Contributor" and the liniment of the landlord had merged into each other, and a friendly feeling sprang up between the two men which time has never effaced. I have often thought of this and wondered why it is that lotsof men are not more open and cordial with their guests. Many a time I have paid a large bill grudgingly when I felt like giving it a cheerfully if the landlord had told me he was in need.

AT CHICAGO.

How the Prisoners Received the News—Police Precautions.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.

When the news came from Washington that the Supreme Court had refused the writ of habeas corpus in the anarchist case, a ray of the heart of every man around the jail jumped into his face. Captain Black and Jailer Fritz Prize actually turned pale and Jailer Fritz Prize actually turned pale and Jailer Fritz Prize actually turned pale

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

A CAREFUL ANALYSIS OF THE PUGILISTIC CHAMPION'S MERITS.

How and Why He is the Best Man Now in the Pugilistic World—Comparison of Old and New Methods of Training Men to Fight.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—John Lawrence Sullivan, after Ralph Waldo Emerson, Boston's greatest representative, weighed in training 194 pounds, when stripped as the "mold of fashion," 207. As he has not been in condition for a long time, and as he, like all of us, grows heavier from the hardening of the bones and the packing of the tissues, he probably would weigh today, if trained down to a proper condition, a clean two hundred weight. It seems impossible for a professional athlete to long remain in good shape. Boon companions, women, dinners and the twain deities, Bacchus and Silenus, present too many temptations. He yields, and becomes, in the chaste language of the profession, too "beefy," "cheery," "stout-ish," "soaked," "soft," "flabby," "fatty" or "no good."

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

While Sullivan has not been an anchorite, he has not wallowed in the mire as is too often described by imaginative writers. He has lived perhaps too well; he has not exercised enough, and on occasions he has experimented too far with the seductive bottle glass. But he has not been guilty of the excesses which ruined such superb specimens of physical manhood as John C. Heenan, Johnny Dwyer, Tom Chandler, Jim Irving and other distinguished votaries of the ring. At the present moment he weighs about 220 pounds.

As the average voter weighs 150 pounds, it is obvious that Sullivan is 60 per cent. "more of a man" than his friend and brother.

Weight amounts to little in determining physical value. Homer Lane, the wrestler, a light weight, and Matsada Sorakichi, a middle weight, have proved physically superior to men of double their avoirdupois. The quantity and especially the quality of muscle are what tell in such matters. In this regard Sullivan is equal to at least two average men. The difference can be better shown in drawings than in words. The quality of muscle is important. Muscles are elastic tissues which contract as inappreciable distance. They are unlike India rubber and iron, which extend and contract with equal force. Nature compensates man by arranging them in opposing pairs, so that the shortening of one elongates the other. Grasp the upper fleshy arm with the right hand and then raise the left hand. The left biceps will be found to harden and contract, while the triceps will soften and lengthen out. When the hand is lowered the muscles perform exactly opposite actions. The extent of contraction measures what may be termed bodily strength and the rapidity acting strength. These two qualities are always confused by the public at large. In the animal world heavy muscle is characteristic the elephant, active the tiger. Among notable athletes one marks Muldoon, the wrestler, Jim Laffin, Strong Arm Kelly and Professor Attila, Barnabas, who, since the death of Dr. Windlip, is probably the strongest man in the world. The other marks Billy Edwards, Jem Mace, Malcolm W. Ford, Duncan C. Ross, and notably John L. Sullivan. In pugilism heavy strength is of little value, and frequently of disadvantage, while active strength is all in all. Billy Pete (that Billy Edwards would probably pin Professor Herreshoff to sleep in one round. When "Professor" Laffin tried to face Sullivan on Madison Square Garden the contest was so one sided as to make the luckless professor resemble an ox, whom a Swedish butcher was deliberately pounding to death.

SULLIVAN IN FIGHTING TRIM.

Dr. Serpy, the distinguished surgeon who reset Sullivan's wrist, remarked of Sullivan embodies strength, vitality and activity. The fracture he received was serious, one that in many cases, especially where the patient is sickly or dissipated, is seldom absolutely recovered from. The injury often affects both mind and body. While the arm is not so strong as before, the sufferer regains no confidence in it and shields it by using it as little as possible. In Sullivan's case, so great was his strength and vitality that I predicted a complete recovery, and I am glad to learn that my prediction has been borne out by the facts."

Dr. Henry Lassing, of New York, said: "It is singular how thinking people measure a muscle. Ask a man if he is strong, and he offers you his biceps to be felt. If it is large, he and his friends consider him a Hercules. Even in matches, where the spectators profess to have some knowledge on this topic, this ignorance prevails. The man with the big swollen muscles is picked out as the coming victor. A muscle can be developed in two ways. You may employ calisthenics and increase its quickness. There will be little change in its strength and size. Or you may use its strength and action. On the other hand, you may employ the lifting machine, heavy dumbbells and immense Indian clubs. Day by day the muscles grow to meet the task, until they stand out all over the body. As you increase dimensions you diminish in quickness and grace. Finally the muscles get perfected and you get to the condition of an overworked draught horse.

"Pugilism demands activity as opposed to strength. The victor wins by making his antagonist helpless. This can be done by exhausting the loser, by 'groggy,' by closing his eyes with blows or by shock. Exhaustion and blindness are the aims of the older pugilists. Shock is modern, and has given birth to the 'sleeper.' The most efficient shock is given by a blow in the throat just below the chin, or just below the complex of the ear, for then the temple is supposed to be, but seldom is, struck. One on the throat or just below the base of the brain is a 'paralyzer,' and is given by the round arm blow which Sullivan has popularized. A blow just over the belt is a disabler. In the vernacular of the ring has developed this style of fighting into a science. It is far more scientific than the old style, as it is quicker and less harmful to the participants. Then yards and yards of gloaded were carried from the field looking more like raw meat than human beings. In the brilliant school, the affair is over in a few minutes and ended very rarely in injury being done.

"As to Sullivan, I record his physically as a wonderful specimen of manhood. Everything on which successful pugilism depends is well and uniformly developed.

"His arms are most rather to delicate. I record the impress of his body and use just the right size. Were they larger, they would be so much weight to carry and would soon tire the larger muscles which support them. As the weight of the body is thrown into the blow, the muscles used are thus employed in walking, dodging and jumping. These in Sullivan are not only perfect in size and proportion, but also admirable in quality and endurance. Much of this is due to sagacious training, but more, to my mind, is due to inherit nance. The chest is round and full, the abdomen not too small and the abdominal muscles are symmetric and well developed. Too small a waist means almost always a 'short wind,' and a surplus loss of strength after a very slight exertion.

In regard to Sullivan's pugilistic efficiency, there were many grave doubts and heated discussions in the past, but nearly all the sporting fraternity are now at one. This opinion is well summed up by Professor William Clark, a veteran pugilist of high standing and ability.

"Take him all in all, Sullivan is probably our greatest man. I think I know all his work. When he first put up, he had first class muscles, lots of liking for the business and all the game necessary. He was not quick enough to be at the head of his profession, and he was over confident. But he learned at the first to put his weight into his blows. Then he had good luck. He started in when Fox had revived interest in sporting matters and when there were really no first class men in the field. His success seemed remarkable at the time, but it was only so by comparison. Had he been matched at his best with Dwyer or Mace his history would have been different. He at twenty-three was round him, men like Billy Maddley, Pat Sheedy and the like, who were wise enough to learn. Luckily they were level headed. They showed him just what he needed. He trained well and didn't get stale or work up big flabby muscles, and so got slow and heavy. This sort of thing don't pay. Men who look like doctors' pictures, with muscles like a lady's knots, are no good. I say it, and I've been in the business high on to fifty years. Sullivan trained reasonable, using the sandbag, and what's better for a man's wind and quickness, the blubber-or-fat ball. Besides this, he improved his sparring and became a first class man. I am not blowing because I was brought up in the old days in England. In those times we trained long and dingging was unheard of. A round arm blow was looked on unfavorably. It was scientific sparring, gameness and endurance. It wasn't uncommon for a fight to last four hours. Lots of them ran over a hundred rounds. When a man came to the scratch, he had to be carried away and put to bed. It changed somewhat when Jem Mace came and showed where a blow knocks a man out, and Sullivan is the result of the change.

JEDGE WAXIM ABROAD.

He and Mandy at Potsdam, Near Berlin. Pictures of Fresh Life on the Green.

[Special Correspondence.]

POTSDAM, N. Y., Nov. 6.—We are at present out here at Potsdam, because it is a quiet country town, near Berlin, where Fresh Fritz, the Grofie used to come to find rest and pure air at his palace of Sans Souci, like I do on my Wayne farm, and where when his work was all done, he shut his eyes and went to sleep forever. I went to look at his coffin in the garrison meeting house vault, and it gave me a better impression of kings than I had before, for that aint a bit of mausoleum about the place, and the coffin is a plain copper one, more for use than ornament, and not much as fancy as what the elderly berry a congressman in. The palace itself aint no grizz thatter either for Frederick was a plain sort of a man in a good many ways, but that's a mighty fine farm around it, growed up with trees and gravel walks and fountings squirtin and been kind of fancy farmin agurtenances.

When I wrote you last letter from Berlin I hadent seen the sights, but I have now, and I know Berlin about as well as I do my native heath, and I believe I have lerent enough German to ask any naturalized citizen in my district for his vote, pervided he aint allreddy picked, and I can see the other candidate's billiwigs meals and go him a few better.

As soleds I visited the building what the national legislatin is done, and I hopened to git in as the thing is done. The luck view looks like a street car stabled of the Fourteenth Ventury, and the building used to be a factory of some kind. The front is of stone, four stories high, and faces on the street like a hotel, except for a hotel, and don't look so bad, because it is new. It reminded me good of I see politicians I know, that is all right to look at on the outside, but if you go to approach from the back gate, Inside, the building is covered with a kind of a thing do for a state capital for one of our states that had been in the Revolutionary war, and leat pretty too long. The cheers was covered with spiler leather, the plaster war commencing to git fall in notes on, and the other adjuntents war sufficient to meet the simple wants of a healthy legislator, who hadent been used to a bath in the Adirondacks.

As a whole in these countries, the people are the last ones to git hold of the new accumulations air mighty poor. In every perticekeer, though, the German have got their quarters for legislatin in than the English house of commons.

I met especially about Bismarck, who I consider is the concentrix link of the German confederation, and not for a long space of time in his cheer, which is on a rostrum raised considerable above the president's desk, and is similar to the chair used in the house of lords, and very comfortible like most leather chairs, which wears slick, and has a tendency to perpetuate a statesman underneath his desk if he stretches out his legs, and which makes a leather one member is naskin a dull spouse, which frequently happens.

I'm glad I saw the receptions was about fifteen cents, but you don't have to buy a ticket to see them like you do at the opera capital in Vienna. As the legislators don't plug nickels into a machine under the gate money to help pay election expenses.

I didn't see the kaiser, for the old man, who is gone to his reward, was away on a waterin place, but in every pleter shop and book store in Berlin I seen his picture on a dozen little cards, big and little, and it seemed to me that he looked a mighty sight more like a regular man as Mrs. Cleveland is in eyes.

One day we drived out to see was wandering over in the grounds of the Nicolas palace, where the Emperor Frederick died, and quite unexpected, the English church, and blandly waited to go in and see what it looked like.

Well, here is where I thought I'd tell you how it comes to be in the palace ground, and the crown princess Victoria, the wife which also makes it better. The janitor showed us around, and in the course of his remarks he told us that Americans divided with the English the church, and he pointed out the pew of the Hon. George H. Pendleton, our minister plenipo Germany. I knowed George was a pious kind of a man, but I didn't expect to find his pew in the front row, inside the order the very drippins of the sanctuary; but that it was, and he generously let us set in it every Sunday regular. Right across the aisle from us was Bismarck, and next to him, in a recess, with a special entrance for privacy, the mother of the crown princess, who comes every Sunday with her girls, of who she is right puty inside, and plane, and has got a mortgage on a dozen of the seats and gold letters sewed into them, but the crown princess herself is a sine in here, and may sue me for have any tuff every seat in the house has one, so that rich and pure can be alike. I liked that Christian sentiment and praised the princess, but Mandy set a thinkin like what was in the church could be bought for every seat for a hundred dollars, and she thought the princess ought to show her faith by her works and pay that much, so's to give the congregation, including her own family, somethin more comfortible to set on than hard boards. I wouldn't be surprised if Mandy wasent more hard nitut, as usuale. Another thing that seemed to me not to be quite as meek and lowly as it ought to was the princesses' prayer book, red into book, two volumes done up in ivory and velvet and gold bindins, and printed finer than the sanpel tickets I get when I trade my fast spearance in the political greeny. She dident buy em, but the little society presented her with them, and that don't make matters any better as long as the money earned for the congregation to set on.

The west thing I noted in Berlin was a sojer on gard in the middle arch of the Brandenburg gate, which leads into the city, called the Thiergarten. I ast what he was thar for, and found out that nobody ever hardly could go through that arch, and they kep him thar to perteet the rights of the crown. I thought the little lovin blood bile to see a kaysoldier shutting up the public highway in his manner.

W. Q. WAXEM.

Height of the Fashions.

Mr. W. A. Ashe, of Quebec, reports that the fashions have reached Hudson Straight have a mean height for the men of 5 feet 2.5 inches, and for the women, about 3 feet. Their body temperature averaged 105.2 degs. for winter and 98.4 degs. for summer. The mean observing party being 96.1 degs. and 97.7 degs. respectively.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Easily Accounted For.

The extraordinary supply of grouse in London on the first day the shooting law was up is now accounted for by the information that the grouse had been kept for ten months in ice cellars at a temperature of 28 degs. Fresh game very much ridiculous.—New York Sun.

By Neglect what is at first but a slight cold, becomes a cough, straining and exhausting the lungs till such an inflamed condition exists, that powerful remedies are not able to stop the disease and the person goes into consumption from mere neglect. Do not be so foolish, but use Dunbar's Cough Balsam, which removes the impure matter from the throat and lungs and exerts a healing influence on the diseased parts. Even those who are but the wrecks of their former selves have recovered in full health. In Croup and Whooping Cough it is invaluable. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

A Sound Liver Opinion.

E. Rimerage Monday reg., County Clay Co., Texas, says: "Have used Electric Bitters with most happy results. My family was very low with malarial fever and jaundice but was cured by timely use of this medicine. Have recommended it to others who have used it with the same results." Sold at Crouter's drug store.

Thoroughly tried.—After many years experience in my business, I can fly and upon my horses and cattle I am constrained to say that Parmelee's Universal Liniment is the best and complete remedy for the cure of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lame Back, Sprains, Bruises, &c., in the Human family and of Bone Spavin, Sweeny, Ringbone, Curb, Splint, Sweeny, Sore Throat, Caked Bag, Sore Teats, &c., on Cattle, that I have ever found, and, as a natural result, I use it in my stables. The large bottles 50 cts; common size 25 cents. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Don't Experiment.

You cannot afford to experiment in experimenting with your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems at first such a trifling affair that people think no danger can come upon you with some cheap imitation or Dr. Kings New Discovery. Experience has proved that it is but be sure you get the genuine. Because it has cured others is no proof that it will you no harm, but is good proof you are going to. Rather than risk anything but a good thing, buy the best. Dr. King's New Discovery which is guaranteed to give relief in all throat, lung, and chest affections. Trial bottles free at G. W. Crouter's.

Do You Know? that the Horse and Cattle Powders prepared by E. M. Parmelee are composed of the best medicinal vegetable material, Linseed, Fenugreek, Blood Root, Elecampane, for Coughs, Colds, Fever, Fits, Distemper, etc., Sulphur, Manganese Gentian, Sulph Magnesia for Impure Blood, besides many other ingredients especially adapted to the cure of Colic, Worms, Heaves, and all Diseases of the Horse, Cattle, Sheep and Poultry. Buy no other. Full pounds only 25 cents. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Burkinn's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by G. W. Crouter.

Why Suffer with dyspepsia when Parmelee's Dyspepsia, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Cure will do wonders, relieving you at once. Do not wait till Dyspepsia has become chronic. Dyspepsia takes full possession of your body, but remember that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." This fine preparation will also tone up the kidneys and liver and remove all the impurities. Price $1.00 per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and if you see the printed date. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,
MILK, Butter, and Vegetables.
TERRACE FARM. - - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS
ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE! SEND FOR
J. J. PEHR'S Agent, Charlevoix
CHICAGO + Canal AND 16TH STS

FOR MAN AND BEAST!
Mexican Mustang Liniment
CURES
Bruises, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Burns, Scalds, Bunos, Sores, Bites, Scratches, Sunburn, Sprains, Contracted Muscles, Tetter, Tender Feet, Hoof Ail, Foot Rot, Worms, Swellings, Stiffness, Galls, Spavin, Sweeny, Scratches, Lameness, Strains.
THIS GOOD OLD STANDBY
is compounded from a well tried prescription, and has been in use for many years. It is not to be confounded with the Mustangs, Liniments, etc., of a transitory character, but is a regular, old, reliable, and tried remedy, which has stood the test of time, and is now in more general use than any other Liniment in the world. The Lumberman uses it for his cattle, The Farmer uses it for his horses and cattle, The Teamster uses it for his team, The Stockman uses it for his stock, The Sportsman uses it for his dog, The Mechanic uses it for his family, The Traveler uses it in his carriage, The Miner uses it in his mine, The Manufacturer uses it in his factory, The Druggist keeps it for his friend and adviser, The Doctor prescribes it in his practice, The Housekeeper finds it in her house, The Hostler keeps it in the stable, The Boy uses it on his playmate, and all agree that it is the best and most reliable Liniment for the use when wanted.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN
This stamped a standard of excellence which defends of no equal. Any improvement at intervals genuine, could not be easily proved on.
OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS
These excellent Organs are constructed for ten time, quality of tone, quick response, variety of case decoration, attractive finish, and in fact, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, musical and durable organs for homes, schools churches, lodges, societies, etc.
ESTABLISHED AND REPUTATE IN UNEQUALED FACILITIES, SKILLED WORKMEN, BEST NAME HAS, COMBINED, MADE THIS
THE POPULAR ORGAN
Instruction Books and Piano Stools.
Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, free.
CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN CO.
831 BLUE ISLAND AVE.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

DR. HILL'S ENGLISH BUCHU
Is One of the Best
Kidney
INVESTIGATORS IN USE.
Will cure all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Inflammation, Gravel, Diseases of the urine, Bloody Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Pain in the Back, Groins and Testicles, Stone in the Bladder, Retention of Urine, Gravel, Dropsy, Suppression, Pain in the Back, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Scanty or Profuse Urine, Pain in the Back, Groins and Testicles, Stone in the Bladder

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

BURYING THE ANARCHISTS.

The Bodies of Spies, Parsons, Lingg, Fischer, and Engel Taken to the Cemetery.

Many Thousands Witness the Obsequies, Which Are Quiet and Orderly.

August Spies, Albert R. Parsons, Louis Lingg, Adolph Fischer, and George Engel, the dead anarchists, were buried at Chicago on Sunday, the 11th inst. It was the occasion for a large gathering of their friends and sympathizers, but the event passed off very quietly. The funeral procession that followed the remains to the depot was managed in strict conformity with the order issued by the Mayor. Many of the men and women in line were decorated with red ribbons, but no red flags were visible, and there were no disorderly demonstrations of any kind. The number of people in the procession was not so great as had been anticipated, and it was pronounced that hardly any Americans took part in the ceremonies. A Chicago paper, describing the funeral ceremonies, says:

The dead anarchists were buried with pomp and ceremony befitting their rank in life—if anyone persists in estimating social standing of the dead men, but they came simply to see and was made no mention of them in the funeral processions given to size up the remains of the assassins who died at the hands of the law. The funeral cortege was formed and consumed in forming it. Nearly six thousand persons were in line, and perhaps thirty thousand people looked on. Down town the processions after crossing the river of Lake Street proceeded east to Fifth avenue and south to Twenty-second street, where they halted.

Two hours before the cortege of Lake Fifth avenue the sidewalks along that thoroughfare were packed from business houses to the curbstones, and the curb held the crowd that gathered about the hearses. The sidewalks were packed also at the other six points from both sides of Fifth avenue at the rush hours crossing and across the avenue south of the depot. A placard a block north caused the crowd upstream from stopping at the depot. Rocks in the vicinity of the station were used for the purpose of standing on, and for an hour the street was filled with a mass of human beings. Polk street took in the crowd and set the railroad tracks and city people. Men and women stood in two lines of men in the gutters and pedestrians walked.

When the procession came, Captain Buckley marched his police and mounted his horse. His head backs to the crowd, faced themselves against the swelling tide. The Indiana police, wearing red roses with sprays of evergreen, were stationed in the middle of the street. The hearses were drawn by black horses. The five coffins were placed in a baggage car, and the cousin mourners, for the women were excluded, the gate swung back, and a train full of the dead anarchists, followed by a train filled. A train of thirteen cars had gone before, bearing the friends of those concerned in the funeral train.

Throughout the six hours of forming the procession, from the time the hearses left the cemetery, and the ceremonies at the cemetery, the crowd, which was at first "good-natured," became "disorderly." The disorderly spectators were made up of the lowest class of people, and the crowd, on the other hand, the almost order prevailed. The Monday's funeral was not quiet. The crowd was disturbed. No incendiary speeches were made, and no attempt was made to incite to violence and disorder. The exercises were simple and quiet. The remains were reverently buried by the sorrowing friends, who showed no disposition to be a demonstration of the anarchists as if they had been lifted from the gallows. The expressions of malice or triumph were heard. Everywhere the sympathy of the people was with the friends and relatives of the dead.

The hearse that followed the remains of the anarchists in the cemetery was drawn by German in its make-up.

At the cemetery fifteen or twenty thousand people had congregated. After the last rites had been performed, and interested in the vault four speeches were delivered. Frank Stack, Thos. J. Morgan spoke in English, and Robert Burkel, of Detroit, and Albert Currie, of St. Louis, spoke in German. The last mentioned were anarchists, and their speeches were full of the bitter, bitter, both represented the sentiments for permitting the death of their friends, and further concluded with the following quotation from Herwegh, familiar to all socialist speakers: "We have waited long enough! Let us at last hate!" Captain Black's defiance and contempt for the law and for the dead assassins.

An Anarchist Organ on the Hanging.

The Arbeiter Zeitung of Chicago, of which August Spies was for a long time editor, printed many editorials on the hanging of the anarchists, representing it as a judicial murder, and describing in the most vituperative language the dead men and the alleged triumphant position of the capitalists. Among other bitter things, the anarchist organ says:

If inanimate and selfishness have not yet made into the minds of the American people, if the public feeling of the murdered men will awaken, the hale hand of the dreamer, and waking the dreamer, sleeping and waking, they place upon them as heroic martyrs, the martyrs marks, the blood red ribbon, and the rope, and place it upon their own necks, and then, the people will know who are the murderers, the people will know stricken humanity can bring justice. They will shine for mercy, for rest, for peace. Then only find if their wear the mark that they have impressed upon the four hanged men, if they have hanged upon them or been their ancestral dress from their own lips, the people, as they made judge, and jury, and executioner, then some retribution will come. There is justice in history.

In another article the workingmen are called upon not to doubt from their work. To quote, in, it says, with a society suffering not in the, of the, and, the, of, and, and, the, of, the, and, the, of, the, and, the, of, the

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

O Merchant in time hour of ease,
If on this paper you should c e e,
And look for something to s p p p
Your longing for greatness v v v,
Take our advice and be j j j,
Go straightway out and advert t t t
You'll find the project of success s s
Neglect can offer no ex n q q
Be wise at once, prosing read a a a
A silent business soon d k k k

Down in Constantine two men go to jail for 50 days for cruelly beating an old worn out livery horse. Serves them right.

The funeral procession of the dead anarchists was a long one and red badges were plentiful, but naturalization papers were not generally worn.—Chicago News.

JOHN MOOR has designed a monument to commemorate the execution of the Chicago anarchists. Most himself is a monument to the forbearance and mercy of American law.

New York having already chosen Grover Cleveland president for a second term, the political campaign of next year will be in the nature of a ratification.—Chicago News.

THE Utica Herald, Blaine organ, mournfully remarks that "the labor parties have proved as damaging to the republicans as to the democrats." With what third party will the republicans next year coquette?—Buffalo Courier.

A flaw has been discovered in the new marriage law. The man has to do all the swearing for both parties in order to get a license; and while he can tell all about himself, he may know but little about the bride. The woman in the case is not required to make an affidavit at all, and the minister or other persons performing the ceremony need not ask any questions nor need the bride answer any.

The large and increasing business of the Detroit Safe Company made it necessary to establish a saleshouse outside of Detroit that its patrons might be more readily supplied. It has therefore established a house at Grand Rapids, with Mr. Ed. A. Lee, a former traveling salesman, as manager. Mr. Lee has sold many safes in northern Michigan, and is acquainted with nearly every business firm in this region.

THAT Mr. Cleveland will be the democratic candidate there is every assurance, and that he will succeed himself there is every assurance, unless the republicans succeed in effecting a real closing up of the ranks and select a standard-bearer who will represent in an unmistakable manner all that the party has ever stood for in the way of patriotic aspirations and practical statesmanship.—Philadelphia Telegraph (Rep.).

The popular strength of President Cleveland was demonstrated in the New York election, and leaves little doubt of his re-election next year, but the strength of the executive is largely personal. His party will merit defeat if it fail at the coming session of congress to declare by the passage of a bill a clean-cut policy of revenue reduction, which, saving the income from internal taxes, will cut down the tariff on imports, especially upon raw materials, and place lumber, salt and coal absolutely on the free list.—Chicago Herald.

JOHANN MOST, the New York anarchist, was arrested last Thursday at the office of the Freiheit, the anarchist newspaper edited by him, for having made an incendiary speech calculated to incite a riot at a recent meeting. Particular watch has been kept of this most dangerous of men of late. The speech complained of was made on the evening of Nov. 11, at an anarchist meeting at which his language was particularly blood curdling in character. Probably if Most lived in Chicago, a quietus would be put upon his mouth.

Thanksgiving Day.

The first Thanksgiving day that we have record of, was observed in Leyden, Holland, Oct. 3d 1575, because of deliverance from siege. While such observance were not unusual in Europe, yet Thanksgiving day is clearly an American institution. The first observance in this country was by the pilgrims, Thursday, Oct. 24, 1621, after their first harvest was gathered. With joy they secured their bountiful crop of Indian corn. As they looked on the heaped up stores, their hearts swelled with thankfulness that the Lord had so mercifully cared for them, and that they were blessed with health, peace and freedom. Mindful of the Providence to whom these blessings were due, Governor Bradford proclaimed a solemn Thanksgiving feast, and ordered that preparations be made for celebrating it with such festivities as were in their power. Four men were dispatched into the woods to shoot wild fowl. The quartet returned at night staggering under their burden of turkeys, geese and pigeons sufficient to provision the entire settlement for a whole week. There was rare labor done by the good Puritan dames, plucking and dressing the game, pounding and baking it, getting out and polishing the tin and pewter table ware brought from England and Holland, and scrubbing the wooden trenchers that served the poorer pilgrims in lieu of tin or pewter.

There were thanksgiving days in New England from 1631, nearly every year, for special purposes. During the revolution, the observance was general and annual, recommended by congress. After the adoption of the constitution, Washington recommended such a day annually, and his example was followed by subsequent presidents, but the observance was mostly in New England until just before the civil war.

President Lincoln made a proclamation for a national observance in 1863. Since that time such proclamation has been issued annually, and observed throughout the States. Custom has fixed on the last Thursday of November as the day. Such social gatherings as are held to-day, are only to be found among people of high civilization.

American Workingmen have no Use For the Red Flag.

Joseph Bloff, a tailor in Union township, N. J., placed a red flag draped in black outside his door, the day following the execution of the anarchists in Chicago. The flag bore the inscription:

Sacred to the memory of our beloved martyred brethren in Chicago, who died for the cause they advocated as did many a noble man before them.

As soon as the workingmen in the vicinity learned that the flag was there t. ey gathered around the little tailor shop, and in a few minutes the flag was gone and the tailor severely dealt with. A red flag which was displayed in Jersey City was also torn down by a crowd of workingmen, and was not put up again either.

Additional Local.

Musical.

The third recital given by the music classes of Miss Cochran and Mrs. Kane, was held on Monday evening in Dr. Lewis' spacious parlors. The recitals seem to be growing in interest and are proving very beneficial to the scholars. About thirty-five were present.

The following program was presented:

Tendresse	Ethel Newman
Over the Snow	Cora Strang
Skating Song	Winnie Campbell
Swing Song	Mary Tulloch
Charming Waltz	Edith Lewis
Hop, hob, hop, song	Gertie Myers
The Ships go Sailing by	Lillie Carpenter
Lula's Dream	Aggie Kirkpatrick
The Gazelle	Katie Smith
Wenzel waltz	Zula Upham
Jack Waterwitch Song	Maude Sec
Christmas Polka	Katie Kirkpatrick
Only a Pansy Blossom	Clarence Sherwood
Mignonette Polka	Rose Stokoe
Tanygeistchen	Lillie Carpenter
Skiff on the Lake	Cassie Allen
Beautiful Bells	Willie Lewis
The Springtime and Robins Have Come,
	Ethel Newman
Tripping Through the Daisies,
	Winnie Burbankson
Beautiful Angels	Edith Lewis
Happy School-Girl	Mary Tulloch
Songsters of the Grove	Maggie Enos
Jessie Rides on Shiloh	Cora Strang
Solid Happiness	Clarence Sherwood
Dairy Song	Artie Kinney
La Chatelaine	Maggie Green

Marriage Licenses.

County Clerk Thatcher has issued the following marriage licenses on the dates named:

Date.	No.	Name.	Residence.	Age.
		Geo. E. Pulsifer,	Eveline	21
Oct. 8.—	6	Jennie S. Scof,	Eveline	17
		Geo. Well,	Norwood	21
Oct. 16.—	1	Cynthia Gore,	Charlevoix	18
		Wm. Kinney,	Charlevoix	21
Oct. 18.—	2	Malissa E. Housley,	Charlevoix	18
		Sidney D. Smith,	Advance	60
Oct. 25.—	3	Laura Davis,	Advance	17
		Wm T. Davis,	Hayes	21
Oct. 26.—	4	Annie Sam,	Hayes	18
		Robert H. Lewis,	Hudson	21
Oct. 28.—	5	Ella M. Hudson,	Hudson	20
		John S. Dixon,	Charlevoix	69
Oct. 31.—	1	Alice S. Larson,	Newaygo	29
		Theodore Zess,	Sou L Ariz	21
Nov. 1.—	2	Ellen Lasache,	Canada	17
		E. F. Dickinson,	Charlevoix	21
Nov. 1.—	3	Margaret Cummings,	Charlevoix	18
		John H. Herron,	Boyne Falls	23
Nov. 1.—	4	Alma L. Barringer,	Boyne Falls	18

Shipments.

The following are the shipments from the port of Charlevoix, reported for the week ending Wednesday evening:

Nov. 12.—Schr. Duncan City, 3,000 ties; 5,000 posts, W. H. Downer, to Chicago.

16.—Schr. Eliza Day, 130,000 ft. hardwood lumber, Pine Lake Lumber Co., to Sheboygan.

19.—Schr. Peoria, 64 cords bark; 50 cords wood, French & Sutton, to Kenosha.

20.—Schr. Mustang Bird, 125 cords wood, W. S. Stripp, to Milwaukee.

22.—Schr. G. A. Marsh, 200 cords wood, W. H. Downer, to Chicago.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

It has been known for some time that there has been a considerable official breach in the relations between the secretary of the interior and commissioner Sparks, of the general land office, and with all the attempts made it has seemed impossible to reconcile the difference. New controversies continued to arise out of the correspondence in relation to railway land grants until the parties got so far apart that reconciliation seemed beyond hope. That fact was positively settled when the secretary sent a letter to Commissioner Sparks sharply replying to a communication from him in relation to the adjustment of the Stillwater, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railway land grants, and informing him that either he or the secretary must forthwith retire from the department.

The fiftieth congress will be remarkable in the number of new members who have never been in a legislative body. In the absence of any official data the best estimate is that nearly one half are new members. There was a terrible slaughter by nominating conventions and at the last election, of the innocents for the forty-ninth congress. Out of the total of 325, the latest figures from the office of the clerk of the house give the democratic strength at 169 and that of the republicans at 152, mugwumps, (those who will not go into the caucus of either party,) 4.

Inspector General Baird, in his annual report, asks increased force in his department. In his opinion too much time is given to target practice to permit proper instruction in other matters, and he recommends that officers be prohibited from entering into rifle competition with the soldiers as unfair to the soldier and destructive to discipline. The reports regarding post schools indicate that they are of but little benefit to enlisted men, because few are willing to attend them. He is opposed to the compulsory attendance of illiterate soldiers, but suggests the requirement of a certain amount of education when enlisted.

Col Taylor, of Kansas, the colored United States minister to Liberia, is enjoying two months' leave of absence, and he says he is likely to decide that he doesn't care to return to Liberia. He chats thus, "I have submitted a report of 115 pages and it beats anything that Mark Twain ever saw. Liberia is a sight for gods and men. There isn't a horse or a cow or a mule or a useful animal of any kind, not a single car or cart or even a wheel-barrow, in the whole republic. But I tell you they are organized; they're great on organization in Liberia. Every military company in the army has about twenty-seven officers to two or three privates. There are little over 2,000 voters in the republic and fully one-half of them are office-holders. I tell you Liberia is a go-ahead republic. Before I went to Liberia, I was a perfect crank on sending all the negroes in America home to Liberia, but since I have seen the place I've changed my mind mightily. I'm not in favor of the amalgamation of races. I believe that the negroes can get along very well as negroes, but no going home to Liberia for me."

The accounts of Secretary Whitney's broken health have been somewhat exaggerated. He is suffering from overwork. When he entered the department he undertook to inaugurate certain reforms and found the task great. The secretary receives his official mail and gives it his attention, signing such papers as require his action. The routine work of the department is not delayed.

At the present time there are a number of statesmen contemplating the writing of their reminiscences. W. D. Kelley will write as soon as he finds leisure, and Senator John Sherman has a great mass of interesting material which will see print when he retires from public life. Ex-Senator Pomeroy of Kansas, and ex-Congressman Alley, of Massachusetts, are writing their recollections. Mr. Spofford the librarian, is revising his "American Almanac" for next year, and Mr. Bell, the inventor, is making a study of deaf mute education. Judge Stephen J. Field is said to be writing a book of memoirs.

During the first ten months of the present year there has been an increase of nearly 2,500 copy-rights over the same time in 1886, and the copyrights taken out last year showed an increase of nearly 3,000 over those of the year preceeding. Everything is copyrighted, and cable dispatches, newspaper and photographs come in daily by the hundred for such protection. Of the 31,000 copyrights of 1886 only 11,000 were for books and 6,000 were for periodicals and newspaper articles. Of the books thus protected, no small proportion consists of works relative to the late war. The narrative of personal experience and theories of offense and defense, that are based upon this period of history seem to be only increasing with every year. There appears to be a necessity for the passage by congress of an act of limitation of this thing.

There has been a very marked improvement under a democratic administration in the health of the clerks in the departments at Washington. In the office of the Third Auditor, with a force of 150 clerks, there were 1,789 sick days for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1885. In the succeeding fiscal year, when the health-restoring influences of the democratic administration began to be felt, the number of sick days was reduced to 636, and for the fiscal year there were only 464 "sick days." The force, in the meantime, had been reduced to 132, and the annual salary expense from $220,000 to $195,000. Not only has the current work been kept up, but great arrearages have been cleared up, and the work been done more satisfactorily than heretofore. In all other departments of the government a like improved condition exists. The work is done more promptly than formerly and with considerable less force.

For Every Mechanic.

We are in receipt of the "Mechanical News" for Nov. 15, and take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the merits of that popular and long-established journal. Its pages are full of instructive and timely matter relating to the various branches of mechanical and manufacturing industry, and every number contains from ten to twenty choice illustrations, showing the progress of invention both in our own and in foreign countries.

"The Mechanical News" is a sixteen-page paper, published twice a month. The subscription price is only one dollar a year, and with its able staff of contributors it never fails to give in a single issue information of many times the value to the practical mechanic. The paper is now in its seventeenth volume, and has shed ily improved in the quality of its contents, and, as a natural consequence, in its popularity with the reading public.

The publishers announce that they furnish sample copies free, and liberal inducements are offered to agents and canvassers for subscribers. A circular giving full particulars will be sent to any one applying for the same Address the Mechanical News, 119 Liberty Street, New York.

To Our Subscribers.

Send to F. P. Shumway, Jr., Boston, Mass, for a free sample copy of the COTTAGE HEARTH, a beautiful illustrated magazine, and so realize what an extraordinary offer we are making when we offer to send both the COTTAGE HEARTH and the Charlevoix JOURNAL for a full year for only $2.00 when the price of the COTTAGE HEARTH alone is $1.50 a year. The Boston Transcript, of the issue of the COTTAGE HEARTH: "Setting aside its literary contents, which are of a high order of merit, the collection of receipts for the kitchen and for the sick room, its practical suggestions and advice for the raising and care of plants and flowers, its instructions for beautifying homes by simple means, and other practical features, make it invaluable to every household."

Why Suffer with dyspepsia, when Farnsley's Dyspepsia, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Cure will work wonders, relieving you at once. Do not wait till Dyspepsia has overcome and Diabetes taken full possession of your body, but remember that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." This fine preparation will also tone up the kidneys and liver and cleanse the system of all impurities. Price $1.00 per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Wonderful Cures

Dr. G. W. Crouter, retail druggist of Charlevoix, Mich., says: We have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery Electric Bitters, and find it a most certain cure for all diseases of the throat and lungs. We have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. We have never seen some wonderful cures effected by these medicines in this city. Several cases of pronounced consumption have been entirely cured by use of a few bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

☞ Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

F. E. WOOD,
BARBER SHOP
And Bath Rooms.
Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

G. A. R. CIGARS
Are noted as one of the Best 5 ct. cigars made. For every thousand sold here the Baxter Post of Charlevoix receives $2.00.
The Post has just received its first $2.00. Friends of the Post, try the G. A. R. Cigar and help the old soldiers. For Sale by
F. A. COCHRAN & CO., Druggist and Pharmacists.

New Goods
A Large Stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods of the Latest Styles, just received. Call and See them.
EXCELSIOR MANF'G CO'S

FULL SIZE, WELL MADE & PERFECT FIT.
TRY THEM. for sale by G. W. MILLER.

A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF NEW
Dry Goods!
Received on the Lawrence this week. Come and see them.
B. SEE.

Bargains
IN
BOOTS & SHOES
The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.
FOX & MILLER

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS
Hardware Iron and Nail Merchants.
CHAMPION FORCE PUMPS
PLOWS, BARBED WIRE, ETC., LEAD.
SAVE YOUR DOLLARS
And buy them of Yours Truly,
STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Charlevoix Manufacturing Company,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Sash, Doors, and Blinds,
Screen Doors and Windows, and Mouldings of all Descriptions.
Newell Posts, Banisters, and Stair Rail, of Soft and Hard Woods
Kept in Stock and Made and Put Up to Order.
A GOOD STOCK OF
PINE AND BASSWOOD SIDING
FLOORING, CEILING AND FRAMING LUMBER KEPT ON HAND.
Also Contractors, Builders, and General Jobbers.
Summer Cottages a Specialty.
CHARLEVOIX MICHIGAN.

Jumbo.
THE ATKINS SAWS
NEW PERFECTION
AXES
Round Oak Stoves.
Job and Tin Work.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Nov. 24, 1887.

Local Notes and News.

Thanksgiving.

☞ For woolen hose go to B. See's.

☞ For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. 2m1

Rev. James Inwood returned last Friday from a visit in Indiana.

Barge Allen M. Shaw still stands in the harbor during the storm Sunday.

Dressing for turkeys — Getting ready to attend a Thanksgiving dinner.—Hotel Mail.

Geo. W. Cook, has put a covered stage on the route between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

The Friant will run as long as the weather will permit, and then lay up at Harbor Springs.

A turkey stuffed with oysters is better than a candidate stuffed with promises.—Fall River Advance.

Wringing the heads off of turkeys is a continued necks tweak affair about this time of the year.—St. Paul Herald.

If the turkey only enjoys Thanksgiving as much as we enjoy him, there will be a jolly time all around. —Philadelphia Call.

We did not get that load of wood on subscription, to be thankful for today, which a number of our rural subscribers promised.

The steamer Gracie Barker is being caulked and repaired at Campbell's yard. Capt. Crystler owner, is superintending the same.

The Sherwin-Williams paint company, of Chicago employ 450 men in their works. They made each of their men a present of a fat turkey for to-day's dinner.

A. T. Washburne & Co. are receiving a large invoice of toys for the holiday trade. They also report that th 5, 10, and 25 cent counters have raised a great excitement.

The Thanksgiving turkey joke is about ready to be trotted out again. It has been carefully stuffed and put away, just as the turkey itself will be in a short time.—St. Paul Globe.

The Jumbo stock of hardware, tinware, notions, etc., will be found at L. D. Bartholomew & Co's. If you don't believe it, read their new advertisement, and look over their salesroom and warehouse.

The Thanksgiving turkey, well browned, on a platter in the center of the table, surrounded by a happy family, is to our eyes a far more impressive bird than the bald-headed eagle on a silver dollar.—Lowell Citizen.

A correspondent wants to know if turkeys are not consumed in large numbers by the American people on Thanksgiving day. We think not. If they were the newspapers would have said something about it.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

John Cooper, while adjusting the saw of a shingle machine in the mill at Smithson's camp, Monday afternoon, was fortunate as to have the thumb of his left hand entirely severed, and all of the fingers badly mutilated. Dr. Carleton was called and found it necessary to remove the hand at the wrist. It will be remember that Mr. Cooper lost the ends of two of the fingers on his right hand only a few weeks ago, in this same mill.

Coming Events.

Remember the union Thanksgiving services at the Congregational church at 10:30 o'clock to-day.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. will hold their next meeting in Jefferies' hall on Friday of this week, at 2:30 p. m. Ladies who are interested in temperance work will please be present.

Regular services have resumed at the Congregational church. All people is cordially welcomed. Morning subject, "Profitable Godliness," evening, "The Half Never Told."

Thursday evening prayer meeting at the usual hour at the M. E. church. Sunday school morning and evening continue to be a feature of the pastor. Sunday school at 12 m. The bible readings on Tuesday evening continue to be a feature of marked interest and profit. Come yourself and bring your friends.

Barnard.

BARNARD, Nov. 23.—The beautiful snow has again put in an appearance.

The union school meeting of Marion and Norwood, held at the Hilton school house on Nov. 19, for the purpose of organizing a new school district proved a failure.

Mr. William Burns had a bee on his milldam last week.

Purely Personal.

Geo. E. Clark is home from St. Ignace.

James Hemmings went to Chicago, Tuesday.

Leroy Hamlin has been home the past week.

Capt. R. Tulloch has just purchased a new piano.

Miss Gladys Jefferies is teaching a large writing class at Atwood.

Robert Paddock with his wife and infant son returned home Monday.

Johnnie Goss is spending this week at Wilson, the guest of Harry Hudkins.

E. H. Shepard, of Boyne, was admitted to the bar during the session of circuit court last week.

Capt. H. G. Edwards is at home again for the winter. He has been sailing this season the schooner Cuyahoga.

Mrs. Wm. Ranger, last Friday, received the sad information of the death of her sister, at Burr Oak, in this state.

The Needmore correspondent to the Charlotte Prohibitionist says that Rev. C. P. VanAuken, state evangelist has been assisting Rev. Holman in a series of meetings and results have been good.

Miss Bardely, who has had charge of the Smithson cottage during the absence of the family, left Monday for Norfolk, Va., where the Smithson family will spend the winter on their return from Europe.

Horetic Gale and wife and Mrs. Ada Iddings Gale, of Albion, arrived yesterday morning and are the guests of H. Lee Iddings. They were accompanied by Mrs. W. S. Phipany, of Loveland, Colorado, who is the guest of L. D. Bartholomew's family.

Elvin Hale, of Hayes, was stricken with paralysis a few week ago, and was brought to Charlevoix for treatment until the case became hopeless when he was taken back to his home. He became worse about a week ago, and died Monday at his home. The funeral was held Tuesday, conducted by Rev. W. H. McCartney.

Historical Society.

The Historical Society had a very pleasant meeting at the home of Hon. John Nicholls on Friday evening, Nov. 18. The paper of the evening "The Norman Conquest," by W. A. Brown, was of much interest and the conversation following on Tenny. son's Harold was lively and general. The success of the first evening's work on the course of study augurs well for its more perfect working as the meetings become more acquainted with the schedule.

A recitation by Miss Phila Wood; select reading by Prof. Enos from Tennyson's Harold; and a piano solo by Alice Cochran were other features of the entertainment.

The society will meet this week with Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Allen. A paper on Richard I will be read by Mr. T. Cook and the conversation following will be led by W. P. Brown and Mrs. R. W. Kane. Subject, Ivanhoe.

We Know It! You Know It! Everyone Knows!

That A. T. Washburne & Co. not only carry the largest stock of dry goods, carpets, and clothing, but sell them on a greater average 12½ per cent cheaper than any other merchant in Charlevoix. Why? Well, in the first place we buy for two stores (wholesale and retail) in quantities more than all the dry goods stores in town put together. We buy for cash and discount every time, which is one-half our profit. We do not advertise a "big stock of new goods," unless we have them to show. Our shelves are already full of fresh new goods, bought for what they are worth, and we add from time to time to this complete stock of dry goods such novelties as is our privilege to get for our patrons. We have now on our counters and shelves, for which will be found 5c, 10c, and 25c articles and invite all to look them over. A. T. WASHBURNE & Co.

A Christmas Present.

To any subscriber who will pay his subscription in advance, we will furnish the JOURNAL one year to the name of any friend they may designate, who does not now take the paper, for one dollar cash in advance, if paid before the first day of January. Next year Charlevoix will "boom," and the best way to let your distant friends know all about it is to send the JOURNAL regularly. And the best way to sustain this paper in advertising Charlevoix county is to send one or more copies to friends abroad. Remember, one dollar cash pays the bill, if your own account is settled one year in advance.

Ironton and Surroundings.

BY THE EVENING ROVER.

A stranger approaching Ironton at night, by land or water, is apt to be a little startled by a sudden roar, and a strange lighting up of the streets and buildings; fences and other objects will cast odd shadows; for a moment things will be seen with the distinctness of mid-day; then with a sullen and indistinct rumble the light will vanish. A shower of sparks slowly descending will mark the spot and occasion of the pyrotechnic display, and then the town will be enveloped in gloom for a short interval, when the scene will be again repeated.

Ironton is located at the mouth of the south arm of Pine Lake on the west side. At this point is located what can be called the largest institution in the county, the Pine Lake Iron Company's plant.

As we enter the south door of the building we first notice the 125-horse-power engine, that has run night and day (with but one exception) since last April. It stops five minutes every six hours, when the run is made. Leading from this in various directions are pipes to conduct the compressed air to the blast.

The first object that catches our eye in passing from the engine room to the furnace is the large stack a little to our left, which is filled with the ingredients which, when fused, flows out molten iron. Just in front of the enormous stack are the beds which are composed of pure sand, in which the molds are made to run the red hot iron into, which in turn through a trench from the stack. After the cast is made sand and water is thrown over the red iron. In a space of about fifteen minutes time, men with sledges run over the iron to break it into proper lengths. After the iron is sufficiently cool it is taken from the beds, put on a small car and piled on the dock. The beds being cleared from the enormous weight of iron are sprinkled with water and again made ready for the next cast. The furnace is now turning out about 60 tons of of iron each twenty-four hours.

We pass through another archway to the third room. The first that attracts our attention is the wonderful piece of machinery called the crusher where the attendant is throwing in pieces of limestone about the size of a man's head. The motion goes no faster, no slower, but the stones are crushed as relentlessly and surely as though they were nothing but eggshells. In this apartment is the big elevator, on which the crushed limestone and ore in measured quantities are wheeled on and hoisted to the top of the building to be dumped into the fiery furnace.

At this point are discharged the coal buggies,—odd affairs with their wheels in the air, suspended from, and running on an elevated track that winds around among the coal and coke piles. These kilns are 33 in number, which are a short distance west of the works are of brick, conical shaped and white washed. As seen from the lake, they make one think of the mighty teepees of a tribe of giants, and have been the cause of much wonderment and inquiry on part of passengers on the steamboats. Once more outside to the south, and our eye catches sight of heaps of iron ore; some of it black and flaky resembling coke, but the most of it has the appearance of red clay; moist and greasy-looking, it appears like anything but iron. It is brought here in steam and sail vessels from the upper peninsula.

The company give employment to two hundred men. They have eighteen teams, and among them are many very fine animals.

Their tug the Rob Stevenson is kept busy daily towing scows of wood from the lakes.

Thirty thousand tons of ore comes to the company's dock each year, and sixty tons of iron is averaged daily.

North of the works we stroll up Lake sixed a distance of about forty rods and we come to the company's hotel, known as the Lake View house, Mr. Augustus Munson, proprietor. It is a fine building, nicely located having a magnificent view of Pine Lake and South Arm. It is 24x60 ft in size and has good accomodations.

A little further on we enter the company's store. We find the first department largely filled up with dry goods, boots and shoes, winter footwear etc.

In this second department we find on one side a full stock of groceries and provisions and patent medicines The other side is stocked with hardware etc.

Still back of this a room is stocked with gents furnishing goods.

They also have a meat market in the building.

In the third department north east corner is the office of superintendent H. M. Cherrie.

Take all into consideration we think we are safe in saying that this is the largest store in the county.

Other dealers are J. H. Purvis, druggist and grocer, in whose store is also located the public telephone. Across the street is the Pioneer hotel, A. B. Noyes proprietor, who is also postmaster and Justice of the peace.

We go down the street and turn the corner and fetch up at the store of John G. Peterson, whose store is well stocked with groceries, dry goods boots and shoes and winter wear, and who is doing a lively business.

On this street to the west is nicely located the school house, in which the well known and most successful teachers, Mr. J. M. Harris and Miss Mattie O'Neil, preside. This makes that part of the town very attractive, and shows that the wants of the children are not forgotten. The building contains four rooms,—two below and two above.

We stroll down to the lake, where resides the Ironton cobbler.

Ironton has two churches, congregational and methodist.

There is one sawmill, owned and operated by Aaron Box, which has a capacity of about 20,000 per day.

Taken altogether, Ironton is a nice little town, being well located, and in which a great deal of money is made and scattered abroad, and has a prospect of a good future before it. We cross the free ferry, under the supervision of Mr. Robert A. Miller. Once over we enter the well located store owned and operated by Mr. Chas. A. Bolwin, who has it well filled with dry goods, rubber goods, groceries and patent medicines, and reports a thriving business.

Eveline.

INGOTOS, Nov. 22.—Let us be thankful, and let us all enjoy our fattened turkey.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Sheldon have moved to Ironton, and in the Jackson house. Lon will drive team for the company.

Walter Vanderear and W. H. Jarman have taken the contract to cut and deliver on the beach about seven thousand feet of cedar timber for Charles Peterson. The product will be ties, posts, and shingle bolts. They have commenced their job.

While the ferry was attempting to cross on Thursday, during the wind, the cable broke and it was driven to the shore.

The H. H. society met with Mr. J. H. Purvis on Wednesday evening, with a good attendance. A paper on North America, by Miss Nellie Noyes, was very interesting and instructive. She will continue the subject at next meeting. A recitation by Master Girwin Parrish was creditable. The query box is becoming more interesting every meeting. The society meets with Miss Nellie Noyes on Wednesday evening, Nov. 30th.

Oyster supper and dance at Advance, Thanksgiving night.

Corbin Johnson of Norwood and Miss Kate Wagley of Harbor Springs were married Nov. 16th, at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Cheney Bunick, in Petoskey. The cow-bell band serenaded them immediately after the ceremony.

Henry S. Freeman died at his home in this township Nov. 16th, after two years sickness. Mr. Freeman was born in Clarksfield, Ohio, in 1827. In the fall of 1881 he moved to this township, and built his present home. The funeral occurred on Friday at 10 o'clock, at the house, and he was buried in the cemetery at East Jordan. He leaves a wife and two daughters. Miss Alma, and Mrs. Elias Hammond, of East Jordan.

CARD OF THANKS.

We would express our kind feeling toward our friends and neighbors for assisting us during the sickness and death of husband and father.

MRS. H. S. FREEMAN,
And Daughters.

☞ Chas. Bedwin has just received a fine assortment of goats furnishing goods from Buffalo, N. Y. Give him a call.

Wilson.

WILSON, Nov. 16.—Mr. Lewis is on the sick list.

Ain't these roads preferable to the muddy highways of southern Michigan?

Elder Hackett, of Echo, held M. P. quarterly meeting here on Saturday and sunday last.

F. L. Smith is building a new barn with Albert Todd superintending the job.

Joseph Lewis, of Burnside, Lapeer county is visiting his parents here. He is accompanied by his son, and expects to remain about two weeks.

Mr. Geo. Bowen enjoyed his forty-eighth birthday. At least he sought, for on Nov 12th his friends gathered together and had a good time. A detailed history of his life was read, which provoked numerous smiles.

[This should have appeared last week, but arrived too late.]

WILSON, Nov. 22—Thursday is Thanksgiving.

Snow in this vicinity were glad to see the beautiful snow.

Mr. Smith has his new horse-barn completed.

The school house is now ready for use.

Rev. H. C. Scofield preached at the school house on Sabbath evening.

Miss Ruth Barley who came home sick a while ago is now convalescent.

Mr. A. E. Scofield and family of Echo, visited relatives here from Saturday till Monday, a family gathering was held at Elder Scofield's on Saturday evening. Sixteen were present and an oyster supper was partaken of and every one was happy.

Ellsworth.

ELLSWORTH Nov. 21.—With grateful hearts we welcome Thanksgiving day.

Eli Conlter, of Atwood was here one day last week.

Mrs. Dolino is teaching in the Inglis neighborhood, where as a young teacher, seventeen years ago she taught her third term of school, also four other terms in succession in the same district. The place probably has many pleasant memories for her.

Your humble scribe has furnished items for another paper in your county, also paid the postage for over two years, and as a reward, we received a bill from the proprietor calling for $1.20 price of one year's subscription to that paper. We cattered up our pennies, settled the bill and have concluded to go into other business.

SCHOOL BOOKS

We have now in Stock all the new Books adopted by the Board, and they will be sold at less than Publishers' Introductory Price. We have the largest stock of School Books and School Supplies in the county, and as we are the publishers' agent we are prepared to sell cheaper than ever. Get our prices before you purchase or you will be sorry.

Dr. G. W. Crouter.

A New Attraction in Town
AND LOCATED IN THE
Dry Goods & Carpet Store
OF
A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.
Who are pleased to announce to the people of Charlevoix and vicinity that in this store a great
5c., 10c., and 25c. COUNTER
Has been placed, and invite all friends and customers to call in and see for themselves if they cannot get bargains in
A General Line of House Furnishing Goods, All for 5c., 10c., and 25c.

These counters being a new attraction, you are invited to call and see them. Having obtained them through a Chicago house that makes it their business to buy these goods for a great deal less than they are worth, by purchasing from Auctions, Job Lots, at Forced Sales, Sheriff Sales, and in the market for much less than their real value, are prepared to offer you these goods at prices much cheaper than ever sold at before. You can find hundreds of very useful articles on these counters to select from, and if you will call and see them you will certainly be surprised and buy here as long as the attraction lasts.

Why pay 25 and 50c. and even 75c. for goods that you are using and buying every day, when you can buy the same goods, New, Fresh, and Clean, on these counters for 5c., 10c., and 25c.! These goods will positively be retailed at these cheap prices. Come and see for yourselves.

To give you a full list of all these great bargains would be next to an impossibility, as the line is so large.

Call in and Inspect these Counters. All the goods are displayed to view, and only three prices, 5c., 10c., and 25c.

Call and see this stock, and see if you cannot save 40c. on every dollar's worth of goods you buy. Remember, a full line of GLASSWARE, TINWARE, WOODENWARE, QUEENSWARE, HARDWARE, NOTIONS, and in fact a little of everything on these Great 5c., 10c. and 25c. Counters.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Cash Club Rates

For the convenience of our friends who want a city paper the coming year we will furnish either of the papers named with the JOURNAL one year at the price named:

	Price With the Journal.
50 Cents	1 50
50 Detroit Daily Herald	1 50
1 00 Chicago Weekly News	2 00
1 00 Cincinnati Weekly Times	2 00
1 00 Cosmopolitan Magazine, monthly	2 00
1 00 Cottage Hearth, monthly	2 00
1 00 Detroit Weekly Free Press	2 00
1 00 Harper's Bazar	4 00
4 00 Harper's Magazine, monthly	4 00
4 00 Harper's Weekly	4 00
1 00 Harper's Young People	2 00
1 00 Little Men and Women	2 10
1 00 Montreal Herald and Star	2 00
2 00 New York Weekly Herald	2 00
1 00 New York Weekly Star	2 00
1 00 New York Weekly Tribune	2 00
1 00 Pansy	2 10
3 00 Scribner's Magazine	3 75
1 00 Toledo Weekly Blade	2 00
2 00 Wide Awake	2 50
1 00 Young Folks' Journal	2 10

Notice of Stray Beasts.

To the township clerk of the township of Charlevoix, Charlevoix county, Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that one black and white heifer, about two years old, strayed upon my enclosed land in said township of Charlevoix, on the twenty-second day of November, A. D. 1887.

Dated, Charlevoix, Nov. 23, 1887. TYLER W. FERGUSSON

I certify that the above notice was filed in the township records of said township, this 23 day of November, A. D. 1887.

HORACE S. GILLETT,
Township Clerk.

MARRIED.

JOHNSON—WAGLEY.—In Ironton, Nov. 16th, by Rev. A. O. Jewett, Mr. Corbin W. Johnson and Miss Katie Wagley, both of Hayes, Antrim county, Mich.

DIED.

FREEMAN.—On Nov. 14th, Henry S. Freeman, aged 60 years. Funeral services on the 16th at the family residence, Ironton township.

HALE.—On Nov. 2nd, Elvin Hale, of Hayes township, aged 30 years. Funeral held at Burgess school house, Rev. W. H. McCartney officiating.

Get your neighbor to subscribe for the JOURNAL.

HANGED

Spies, Parsons, Engel, and Fischer Perish by the Rope.

All Decline the Ministrations of a Clergyman, Saying They Were Prepared for Death.

The Men March Quietly to Their Doom and Meet It Stoically.

The Usual Formalities at the Gallows Not Observed by Sheriff Matson.

Death Warrants Read to the Victims Before Their Removal to the Fatal Trap.

Various Ways in Which the Four Anarchists Passed Their Last Night on Earth.

Closing Scenes in the Great Tragedy —A History of the Haymarket Riot.

The four anarchists, August Spies, Albert R. Parsons, George Engel, and Adolph Fischer, were hanged at the county jail in Chicago on Friday morning, Nov. 11. The execution occurred at 11:59 o'clock. There was an absence of many of the usual formalities on the scaffold, the Sheriff reading the death warrant to the men in the library before leading them to the gallows, where they perished miserably for their participation in the haymarket tragedy.

THEIR LAST FAREWELL.

Pitiful Scenes with the Families of the Anarchists—Sad Partings.

During the afternoon of Thursday there were sad scenes at the jail when the families of the anarchists came in to say farewell. At 3:30 Mrs. Schwab came to the jail to bid her husband what she supposed would be a last farewell. She had been weeping, and her face showed deep suffering. Schwab was brought out in his cell to the corridor to receive his wife. Mrs. Schwab was convulsed with him in her arms. Occasionally she would reach over and take him by the head and kiss passionately upon the knee, but his rigid face never changed. Deputy Glenn sat immediately beside them in the

August Spies

Adolph Fisher

Louis Engel

A. R. Parsons

ENGEL.

Protests His Innocence and Doesn't Want Religious Sympathy.

Engel grew a little more serious as the night wore on, and when he was asked to be ready for the death watch, he talked with those about the cells for some time. He said he had protested his innocence over and over again, and he could do no more. He wanted to be let alone.

The last Mr. Bolton called on Engel as he did on the others, but with the same unsatisfactory result. The wretched Engel dealt with bitter sarcasm upon the fact that he had an informer Waller, who afterward swore his life away, was permitted to come and go at pleasure, while he was confined in his cell, and that his neighbors Winn Waller called and sauntered by, with no facing down in the Parsons style, said Engel, as a big lump seemed to rise in his throat. He had an interview with his wife and children for the last time yesterday. The children were taken to perform the execution legal, the court decreeing that the poor orphans watched the slender of each of the doomed men twice yesterday, and had a tearful farewell from their fathers.

FRIDAY MORNING.

Bravado of Spies and Parsons—The Last Breakfast—Other Incidents of the Morning.

At 6 o'clock Spies' guards came off duty for a moment or two. One of them, Deputy Sheriff Hartke, said Spies had slept well ever since 2 o'clock, but that he was very nervous. He thought he probably would be up and dressed by 7 o'clock. Parsons, he said, was up and dressed. The officers who were to perform the execution left the city for Joliet shortly after 7 o'clock, guards watched the slumber of each of the condemned men regularly, and they had not been disturbed since the last report.

FRIDAY MORNING.

Bravado of Spies and Parsons—The Last Breakfast—Other Incidents of the Morning.

At 6 o'clock Spies' guards came off duty for a moment or two. One of them, Deputy Sheriff Hartke, said Spies had slept well ever since 2 o'clock, but that he was very nervous. He thought he probably would be up and dressed by 7 o'clock. Parsons, he said, was up and dressed. The officers who were to perform the execution left the city for Joliet shortly after 7 o'clock, guards watched the slumber of each of the condemned men regularly, and they had not been disturbed since the last report.

Protests His Innocence and Doesn't Want Religious Sympathy.

Engel grew a little more serious as the night wore on, and when he was asked to be ready for the death watch, he talked with those about the cells for some time. He said he had protested his innocence over and over again, and he could do no more. He wanted to be let alone.

The last Mr. Bolton called on Engel as he did on the others, but with the same unsatisfactory result. The wretched Engel dealt with bitter sarcasm upon the fact that he had an informer Waller, who afterward swore his life away, was permitted to come and go at pleasure, while he was confined in his cell, and that his neighbors Winn Waller called and sauntered by, with no facing down in the Parsons style, said Engel, as a big lump seemed to rise in his throat. He had an interview with his wife and children for the last time yesterday. The children were taken to perform the execution legal, the court decreeing that the poor orphans watched the slumber of each of the condemned men twice yesterday, and had a tearful farewell from their fathers.

PARSONS AND FISCHER.

Both Refuse Spiritual Comfort—Parsons Insults the Visiting Ministers.

Fischer's last night was quietly spent. He talked out little, but was jovial. His death watch said though he did not sleep much, he did not sleep at all. At 2 o'clock he ate a little cereal and upon him with great relish half a dozen fried eggs, and a cup of coffee, which he had requested to prepare for him. He was very cheerful, and he ate a little more than a dozen times as the night wore on. He was asked if he would like to have his photograph taken, but he said he had lost so much flesh that it would not be worth while. He was very cheerful, and he ate a little more than a dozen times as the night wore on. He was asked if he would like to have his photograph taken, but he said he had lost so much flesh that it would not be worth while. He

CRIMINAL COURT BUILDING AND JAIL—DEARBORN AVENUE FRONT.

THE JAIL PROPER—ILLINOIS STREET FRONT.

Refuses the Minister's Sympathy.

The Ex-Editor of the "Arbeiter Zeitung"

Refuses the Minister's Sympathy.

Not long after the death watch had been set the Rev. Dr. Bolton, pastor of the First Methodist church, called upon the condemned men. The reverend gentleman visited the cells of Spies and Fischer, and his reception was almost the same in every case.

Spies received him quietly and with a smile. "I have called on you, Mr. Spies," said the reverend gentleman, "to offer my services in which I may be of use to you."

Spies smiled again, but shook his head slowly. "There is no use praying for me," he said, in a melancholy tone. "I need them not; you

SHERIFF MATSON, THE HANGMAN.

HORRORS OF THE GALLEYS.

The Awful Lives Which Convicts Formerly Led in Prison Hulks.

The life of the French galley slaves of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, says the New York Commercial Advertiser, has been thus described by Admiral de la Gravière: "They place seven men on each bench—that is to say, in a space ten feet long by four feet wide. They are so packed that you can see nothing from stern to bow but the heads of the sailors. The captain and the officers are not much better off. When the seas overtake the galleys, when the south winds blow along the coast, or when the sirocco dampens the passengers with its deadly emanations, all these make the galley a prison, all these make the galley a prison of misery. The lamentations of the ship's crew, the strokes of the sailors, the horrible howling of the convicts, the groaning of the timbers, united with the clanking of the chains and the natural noises of the tempest produce an effect that will terrify the bravest of men! Even the calm has its inconveniences. The galleys are so powerful that you cannot withstand them, despite the fact that you use to oars in some shape from morning till night." Condemned in 1701 to serve in the galleys for life for the crime of being a Protestant, Jean Martelle de Dangeac died in 1777 at Galeniargue, on the Gironde, at the age of 95. He says: "All the convicts are chained two and two. Their beds are a long row of wooden boxes, in which are placed a few feet apart and covered with a layer of fresh straw. His wrists were broken. He wore a blue flannel shirt and trousers.

Engel came next. He had a blue flannel shirt and trousers on, and was very pale. He walked with a firm step, however. His face was cheerful. Parsons was the last to be taken down. He was pale, and had lost much flesh since his imprisonment.

The reverend visitor explained his mission, and the old man seemed touched by the person's face. "Teachers are all Pharisees," he said, with a bitter smile. Parsons was the last man out of the Dearborn street jail, he called them a generation of vipers, and likened them to whited sepulchres. I don't suppose I can do any thing to do with either.

Dr. Bolton responded a little, and finally Parsons appeared to be relenting somewhat. He said he was willing to pray, but that he did not see what prayer could do for him. He said he was willing to pray, but that he did not see what prayer could do for him. He said he was willing to be reconciled and receive peace with the solitary guardsman.

When the condemned men went around to clear away the remnants and the crockery service in their cells, they found that the men had taken breakfast, which was to be their last meal on earth. Spies and Fischer indeed on beefsteak, eggs and coffee. Parsons more daintily fried preference on fried oysters and milk toast. When Engel stoutly declared that he had no preference, with the evident intent of faring better at breakfast than at dinner and supper.

Always fast bound accompanied of potato salad, chicken salad, and coffee. This he ate on Wednesday night. When the outsiders had requested his order for the morning he replied that he would take what the others had. Some time afterwards that he was even then solicited his self-destruction before another meal time.

SPIES AND DR. BOLTON.

The Ex-Editor of the "Arbeiter Zeitung"

Refuses the Minister's Sympathy.

Not long after the death watch had been set the Rev. Dr. Bolton, pastor of the First Methodist church, called upon the condemned men. The reverend gentleman visited the cells of Spies and Fischer, and his reception was almost the same in every case.

Spies received him quietly and with a smile. "I have called on you, Mr. Spies," said the reverend gentleman, "to offer my services in which I may be of use to you."

Spies smiled again, but shook his head slowly. "There is no use praying for me," he said, in a melancholy tone. "I need them not; you

PAINTING A PAIN!

A New Parisian Artist's Canvas Story of a "Dilleomatic."

"Tell me, Mr. Wight," asked our reporter of the gentleman, art connoisseur of New Everett, New York, "is American art improving in character and quality?"

"Very much so."

"Are Americans much patronizing foreign art?"

"Yes. And as they pay the best prices, their private galleries contain gems of all the modern masters."

"Which are preferred, the ancients or the moderns?"

"Well, it depends. Historical scenes, real and ideal landscapes, and dotted characters in figure are the most popular.

"The last time I was in Paris I picked up a very strong bit of drawing, which depicts a middle-aged man holstered up in a much too commodious vest, his face and expression indicating intense agony.

"He is in a cross-road with many a phyle-case' phiers, abandoned handcaps, and wooden legs. Over his head is a tale of attorneys rather derisively mouth in the distance. Over his left shoulder is a dim cheerly blazes in the distance, and in the foreground, lies in a pool of damage.

"I really enjoy looking at this picture!

"I know how the end of he now sees. I expect he for twenty years has been a victim of dilleomatics. Every spring and winter poor fellow contracts some ailment or other, and he knows that he will be in a condition to be

FARM AND GARDEN.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING A BAG TIE THAT WILL NOT SLIP.

Approved Methods of Making Cider Vinegar in Both Large and Small Quantities—How to Prepare and Pack Poultry Destined for Distant Markets.

The season is at hand when poultry may be safely packed for scalding to distant markets in a dressed state; a few words of advice on the subject will therefore be opportune to many readers.

FIG. 1—PACKING POULTRY.

To begin with, let all poultry fast twelve hours previous to killing it, to insure empty crops. As the highest prices are, other things being equal, paid for dry picked poultry, it goes without saying that it pays to pick it dry. In picking the birds be sure and remove all the pin feathers, as any left in give an untidy appearance that goes against the successful marketing of the birds. The best time to pick poultry without scalding it is while the birds are warm.

As some markets require the fowls to be "drawn," while others prefer them with the entrails undisturbed, each shipper ought to advise himself of the requirements of his own market. As a rule, New York and Philadelphia dealers prefer dressed poultry that has the feathers only removed; head, feet and entrails remain. Boston, Baltimore and Chicago markets require that the fowls be "drawn." Some markets—as Chicago, for instance—give preference to dressed poultry that has been relieved of the heads and which has the skin drawn up and neatly tied over the stumps.

Do not pack the birds for transportation until they are quite cold. In cold weather poultry is sometimes packed in clean boxes or barrels, without any packing material, but the usual plan is to place layers of long, clean straw between each layer of birds. Rye straw will be found good for the purpose. Begin with covering the bottom of the box with a layer of straw. Now pick up a fowl, bend the head under and to one side of the breast bone, and lay it down flat on its breast, back up, the legs extended straight out behind, as shown in Fig. 1. Lay the first bird in the left hand corner. With this beginning, lay a row across the box to the right, and pack close, row by row, until only one row is left; then reverse the heads, laying them next the other end of the box, the feet under the previous row of heads. If there is a space left between the two last rows put in what birds will fit sideways. Fig. 2 illustrates the manner of packing in the box. Pack straw enough between the layers so that the fowls cannot touch, and so proceed until the box is completely filled.

FIG. 2—PACKING POULTRY.

The Stockman, which recommends the above method, adds the following very sensible advice; advice that if followed will save both shipper and consignee much annoyance and trouble: Having securely nailed down the cover of the box mark thereon the name or initials of the packer, the number of fowls and the variety; also mark on, in legible letters, the full name of the person or firm to whom the box and its contents are consigned, with street and number. The receiver will know at a glance what the box contains, and does not have to unpack and handle its contents to find out.

Vinegar Making.

Vinegar can be easily made from many different substances, but in a country abounding in apples there is no excuse for making it for domestic use from anything but the best. Pure cider vinegar is easily made, though not quickly made by the natural process, and when thus made is healthful and free from all the objections attached to the manufactured article and never disappoints the housekeeper by degenerating into insipidity or eating up her pickles with extreme acidity. When made in large quantities the making begins as soon as enough apples have fallen to furnish a supply. These are ground in the cider mill as for cider and may be pressed at once, but a better way is to keep the pomace in large vats or casks to remain until it has become quite sour, when the cider is pressed out and again put into the vats or casks to be kept there until it is well settled, then the clear liquor is drawn off into barrels not quite full.

These barrels should be kept in the sun, covered with loose boards to protect them, until cold weather, when they are removed to the vinegar house, which must have a stove to keep it warm in the winter, and thus hasten the process.

The barrels ought to be iron hooped and painted, as it is desirable, though not indispensable, to expose them to the sun in the warm autumn days, and for large operators a vinegar house is an excellent thing. But many keep their sour cider in cellars or barns until spring, when it is again exposed to the sun and a circulation of air, for a cellar is not a good place for making vinegar. The bung holes should be covered with muslin net or anything that will keep out flies without shutting off the air, but the bungs must not be used except temporarily until the vinegar is entirely made, for with proper treatment it will continue to grow stronger until three years old.

The loss by evaporation and leakage is from a fourth to a third of the whole quantity; but as a compensation, pure cider vinegar, two and three years old, will bear an addition of rain water three times equal to the loss and still be strong enough to meet all requirements. Indeed, the dilution with water is generally necessary to some degree, as in many cases the old vinegar is too acid to be agreeable, and the cider is the first stages of making is often slow in turning to the acid state on account of an excess of saccharine matter, which is corrected by a proper addition of soft water.

The natural process may be hastened by occasionally turning the cider out of one barrel into another, exposing it more fully to the air, also by the addition of a gallon of strong vinegar to each barrel, and occasionally trickling it down through beech chips or shavings is practiced for a more rapid making, but people who have large orchards and make large quantities of vinegar resort to any of the innumerable methods sometimes used by manufacturers for making what they call cider vinegar quickly, but are content to wait on the natural process, and find their compensation in the higher value placed on their products by their customers.

Families without cider mills and with but few apples may make their own vinegar by mashing the apples in a tub with a pounder and putting the pomace in a half barrel with holes in the bottom and placed over another tub as a receiver, with a follower on the pomace to be pressed down by a lever or stationary weights placed on it, and thus pressing out the cider, which should be kept in a keg with open bung in a warm place until the vinegar is made. After that a supply is easily kept up by occasionally mashing some apples and putting them in a stone jar covered with water, into which apple vertigo can also be thrown or any scarred fruits or berries, which if kept covered in a warm place will soon become sour and can be used to replenish the vinegar keg. A housekeeper of forty years says the best place for the family vinegar keg is the parret, and that the warm, sultry air near the roof will turn cider to vinegar in a short time.

The cellar is not a good place to keep vinegar in unless for a short time in extremely cold weather, for warmth and exposure to a dry atmosphere are essentials in making vinegar.

Strain of the Shoulder in Horses.

Strain of the shoulder, very truly says Professor Rich in his work on artistic horse shoeing; is generally a cloak for the ignorance of the groom or other attendant upon the horse. It is, in fact, a very rare accident, though often assigned as a cause for lameness which is really in the feet, legs or knees. It is an inflammation of some of the muscles of the shoulder following violent strain, and generally confined to the serratus muscle, which slings the body to the shoulder blade, and which is sometimes strained in coming down from a high leap, etc. The symptoms are a dragging of the toe in the walk, with tendency of action on the trot and a drop of the head while the affected leg is being extended, and not while it is on the ground; hence, when shoulder lameness is mistaken for foot lameness, the groom is apt to shift the blame on to the wrong foot. It may also be distinguished by laying hold of the affected leg and drawing the whole together with the shoulder forward, when, if the latter is affected, the horse will give evidence of pain, which he will not do if the foot or leg is the seat of the mischief.

The treatment for shoulder lameness lies in rest, bleeding, purging, cooling bals, with nitre, etc. A cooling diet of green meat will also be needful, and all the corn should be taken away. After all the heat has disappeared the horse may be turned loose into a box, and in another fortnight he may be walked out with a leading rein; but it should be two or three months before he is again mounted.

Bran on the Farm.

Professor Brown, of the Ontario Agricultural college at Guelph, Can., recently summed up the usefulness of bran to farmers, after having carefully considered its chemical composition:

1. Bran is a concentrated food, which, though variable in composition, possesses high nutritive value.

2. Roller process bran is, on the average, richer than old process bran.

3. Its excess of ash or mineral matters eminently fits it for bone building in growing animals, and for supplementing the lack of mineral matters in roots.

4. Its chemical composition points to the conclusion that it is somewhat better adapted to the formation of fat and production of heat than to the formation of muscle or of milk.

5. Both its chemical composition and its physical form adapt it admirably as a supplementary food to be used in connection with poor and bulky fodder, such as straw and roots.

Care of Newly Set Trees.

Prof. Budd, of Iowa, advises the mounding in the fall of newly set trees with earth for the first three years after setting the orchard. It protects from the possible barking of the stems by mice and hares, materially tends to protect the tender seedling roots in the first stages of growth and promotes a vigorous growth in the north Iowa and in Dakota, Minnesota and Manitoba it will pay to mound the stems well up to the branches for the first three years after setting. It should be forgotten that the newly set tree will not endure the dry freezing of winter as perfectly as it will when it has made a deep extension of root; hence the mounding should never be omitted.

How to Tie a Bag.

The illustration here given shows a form of bag tie which, according to The American Agriculturist, effectually prevents any slipping if properly adjusted.

A SECURE BAG TIE.

Take any strong cord about eighteen inches long and double it as herewith shown, passing the ends through, making a loop around the mouth of the bag. Now pull as tightly as you can; then take an end of the string in each hand and pull again in an opposite direction; pass the string completely around, make a knot and double or single bow knot and the work is done. A very little experience will make one expert and he can then guarantee the bag not to come untied.

Agricultural News.

Manitoba's crop this year, say statistical reports, exceed all estimates.

The hop crop is larger than was anticipated, but not of extra quality.

The New York poultry show is announced for Dec. 14-21.

The last estimate of the corn crop by Statistician Dodge was 1,500,000,000 bushels.

The government now estimates the wheat crop at 450,000,000 bushels.

A New York syndicate, it is told, will shortly invest $150,000 in the culture of tobacco in Florida.

More fodder corn has been cut throughout the west this fall than ever before.

The effort to do away with the extra charge for peach baskets has found almost universal support in New York city during the past season.

It is estimated that over 3,000 head of cattle have been slaughtered in Chicago in the efforts of the Illinois live stock commissioners to stamp out pleuro-pneumonia in that state.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for it and this paper together
Wide Awake	$2.40	$2.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	2.10
Funny	1	2.10
Little Men and Women	1	2.10
Babyland	0.50	1.35

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a little in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a dead-head. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother answer even a little baby's helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Funny comes with the Sunday School age.

Chautauqua Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"library, study, playhouse, life at home and abroad, companionship of the wise and gleeful"—designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

Opposed to Corporeal Punishment.

"If your dolly has been naughty, why don't you whip her?"

"Oh, I don't believe in that sort of thing" —Exchange.

By Neglect what is at first but a slight cold, becomes a cough, straining and exhausting the lungs till such an inflamed condition exists, that powerful remedies are not always able to stop the disease and the person goes into consumption from mere neglect. Do not be so foolish, but use Hamilton's Cough Balsam, which removes the impure matter from the throat and lungs and exerts a healing influence on the diseased parts. Even those who are but the wrecks of their former selves receive wonderful help. In Croup and Whooping Cough it is invaluable. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Personal.

Mr. H. N. Fridlender, of Mobile, Ala., writes: I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, having used it for a severe attack of Bronchitis and Catarrh. It gave me instant relief and entirely cured me, and I have not been afflicted since. I also beg to state that I have tried other remedies without no good result. Here also used Electric Bitters and Dr. King's New Life Pills, both of which I can recommend.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, is sold on a positive guarantee, or price refunded. Trial bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's drug store.

Thoroughly tried—After many years of experience in my own family and upon my horses and cattle I am constrained to say that Parmelee's Universal Liniment is the most complete remedy for the cure of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lame Back, Sore Throat, &c., in the Human family and of Bone Spavin, Sweeny, Ringbone, Sprains, Bruises, Harness Galled Bags, Sore Teats, &c., on Cattle, that I have ever known, and I take pleasure in recommending to others. Large bottles 50 cts; common size 25 cents. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Do You Know? that the Horse and Cattle Founders prepared by H. M. Parmelee are composed of the very best and purest material. Licorice, Fennugreek, Blood Root, Kincampane, for Coughs, Colds, Epizootic, Distemper, &c., Sulphur, Manbrake Gentian, Sulph. Magnesia for Impure Blood; besides many other ingredients especially adapted to the cure of Colic, Worms, Heaves, and all diseases of Horses, Cattle, Hogs, Sheep and Poultry. Buy no other. Full pounds only 35 cents Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Buckien's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

A GENTLEMAN, having been cured of Nervous Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Premature Decay, and all the evil effects of early indiscretion and youthful folly, is anxious to make known to others the simple mode of self-cure. To those who wish and will give him their symptoms, he will send (free) by return mail a copy of the recipe so successfully used in his case.

Address in confidence, JAMES W PINKNEY, 42 Cedar St., N. Y.

Time Cards of Pine Lake Steamers.

(STANDARD TIME.)

SEASON OF 1887.

Steamer JOSEPH GORDON,

CAPT. LEWIS GUARD.

Morning—Leave Charlevoix at 6.30, arrive at Bay City at 9.00, leave Bay City 9.30, arrive at Charlevoix 12.00.

Afternoon—Leave Charlevoix 1.00, arrive at Bay City 3.30, leave Bay City 4.00, arrive at Charlevoix 6.30.

Touching at intermediate points both ways.

Steamer NORTH STAR.

CAPT. J. M. THOMPSON.

Morning—Leave Charlevoix at 7.00, arrive at East Jordan 8.00, leave East Jordan 9.30, arrive at Charlevoix 10.30.

Afternoon—Leave Charlevoix at 2.00, arrive at East Jordan 3.00, leave East Jordan 4.30, arrive at Charlevoix 6.30.

Touching at intermediate points both ways.

Harbor Springs & East Jordan.

Steamer THOMAS FRIANT.

CAPT. E. VANDERBOW.

Going north every Monday, leaving Chicago at 5.00 p. m., Milwaukee at 10.00 p. m., Manistique at 7.00 a. m., Cedarville at 10.00 a. m., arrive at East Jordan 1.00 p. m. Returning, leave East Jordan at 2.00 p. m., Cedarville at 5.00 p. m., Manistique at 8.00 p. m., Milwaukee at 7.00 a. m., Chicago at 10.00 a. m., arrive at Harbor Springs at 1.00 p. m.

Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic R'y.

THE SOO-MACKINAW SHORT LINE.

The Direct Route to Upper Michigan and the Iron and Copper Regions of Lake Superior, through the Lake Shore Route.

Only Daily Train Service between Detroit and Sault Ste. Marie.

Wagner Sleeping Coaches attached to night trains.

Observation Parlor Cars on day trains.

Tickets over the Company's lines are sold at principal stations in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Dakota, and at the principal offices of the Company, viz: Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo, Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Bay City, Port Huron, Milwaukee, Duluth, Ashland, Marquette, Sault Ste. Marie, Gogebic, Menominee, Escanaba, Ishpeming, Negaunee, Calumet, Houghton, Hancock, Ironwood, Bessemer, Gladstone, Iron Mountain, Crystal Falls, Florence, Pelican Lake, Spirit Lake, Crystal Falls, Iron River, Stephenson, Quinnesec, Norway, Powers, Daggett, Metropolis, Wallace, Lake Linden, Dollar Bay, Tapiola, Ontonagon, Bessemer, Wakefield, Pelkie, Baraga, Michigamme, Champion, Republic, Palmer, Negaunee, Marquette, Munising, Seney, Germfask, Newberry, Pt. Iroquois, Brimley, Bay Mills, Sault Ste. Marie, Pt. Aux Chenes, St. Ignace, Cedarville, Gaulding, Manistique, Rock, Nahma, Cornell, Garden, Fairbanks, Escanaba, Masonville, Kipling, Gladstone, Manistique, Palatka, Stanton, Ludington, Scottville, Manistee, Filer City, Wellston, Cadillac, Leroy, Tustin, Reed City, Hersey, Evart, Sheridan, Coral, Montcalm, Lakeview, Greenville, Carson City, Crystal, Ashley, St. Louis, Alma, Mt. Pleasant, Sheridan, Edmore, Lakeview, Cedar Springs, Rockford, Belmont, Snow Snake Springs, Grand Rapids.

Time Card for

PETOSKEY STATION.

In effect Oct. 18th.

Leave, going north, 8.18 p. m., 2.05 a. m.

Leave, going south, 8.20 a. m., 11.00 p. m.

Daily except Saturday.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL
Niagara Falls Route
Grand Opera House of the World
Niagara Falls
Chicago & New York Express
Michigan Central
"The Great Lakes Route"
Chicago & New York Express
Michigan Central
"The Great Lakes Route"
Chicago & New York Express
Michigan Central
"The Great Lakes Route"

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

THE NEWS

Intelligence Gathered In by Wire from Every Quarter of the Nation.

Also a Few News Sandwiches from Lands Beyond the Broad Ocean.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

A STARTLING STATEMENT.

Report that the Responsible Members of the Reigning House of Germany are Doomed—The Kaiser on the Brink of the Grave—His Son Has a Weak Hold on Life.

A GENTLEMAN who subscribes himself "A Guiseu of the Crown Prince" has a long and interesting letter in the New York Tribune of Monday on the situation in Germany. He makes some statements in relation to the Crown Prince and his son, the heir apparent, which are rather startling.

The writer says that the empire of Germany is on the brink of a great calamity, which it is desirous that he should be known, whereof, says he has been since boyhood a close friend of the Crown Prince. After speaking of the Crown Prince, he says the public is unaware of the precarious state of health of Prince William of Prussia. His condition is such that his physicians have given ground for the anxiety by this and other and overwhelming realization of his father's fatal malady and his grandfather's ever increasing weakness and disability. He feels constrained to say that the conditions of the succession of the Kaiser's throne must be realized. The young man is suffering in form degree from the same peculiar disease which carried off the late king of Prussia, after rendering him completely insane during the last few years of his reign. In the event of the death of the Kaiser, the son of the late Prince the succession devolves upon Prince William's little 4-year-old son. A bitter struggle would then ensue for the regency in which the Empress Dowager would be a dominant factor, but the Crown Prince's friends still have in store. There is a young Prussian lady of the family who would be fit to undertake the regency of the Crown Princess were her sex not a consideration. The question of the regency is further complicated by the inevitable disqualification of the Empress Dowager, who years have stripped of Prince Bismarck, whose fading health will scarcely admit of his long surviving his present master. He leaves no one to take his place.

MORE THAN 100 DROWNED.

Sinking of the Dutch Steamer W. A. Scholten in the English Channel.

THE Dutch steamer W. A. Scholten, bound from Rotterdam for New York, was sunk by a collision with the steamer Rosa Mary, ten miles off Dover, England. A London dispatch gives the following particulars of the disaster:

The Scholten carried a complement of 119 passengers and crew. The steamer Rosa of Sunderland rammed ninety persons and landed them at the Sailors Home, Dover. One passenger was found dead from exposure. Six others are lost and missing. It is noised that passengers who had taken passage on the ill-fated The Scholten was struck on the port bow by the Rosa Mary. Immediately after the hole was felt the Scholten's passengers, all of whom were asleep, rushed for the deck in their nightgowns. Two boats were properly ordered to be lowered, but it was found that only two were available. The others were useless, and were not lowered. The panic ensued vividly through a hole in the vessel's side. Women and children were shrieking with terrific scenes followed. The shrieks, which gave fully ten minutes, were heard and prayed aloud. Little children clung to their mothers, who themselves were shrieking with terror. The officers were cool and self-possessed. Nothing could be done for the women but, because persons received fits and slept into the sea. Within twenty minutes of the shock the Scholten was engulfed. All those who had put on life belts floated or were rescued by the boats from the steamer Rhen, which cruised around until it was light enough to see the wreck. Bodies, bed wives, mannaus, brokers and sisters. The survivors were supplied with clothes, and everything possible was done to insure their comfort.

A MENAGERIE LET LOOSE.

A Great Fire Destroys Barnum's Show. Wild Animals Escape into the Streets.

THE main building of Barnum & Bailey's "Greatest Show on Earth" was entirely destroyed by fire at Bridgeport, Conn. Says a dispatch from that place:

The first intimation of the fire was given by the roaring of the lions and tigers, who seemed to realize the impending danger. Next the elephants trumpeted in their stables. It was an unusually short time the flames swept from one end of the building to the other. In the confusion the animals escaped from the building, being fearful of the crazed animals. Three elephants were loosed and ran a short distance from their fastenings and dashed through the side of the burning building. Their roars and trumpetings and sounds of terrified screaming were heard above the roar of the flames. Hippopotamus raised out of the water with a sickening appearance. Their sides were ripped, and great pieces of flesh and feet were fell off. Thirty elephants and one large hippopotamus were burned to death. The loss around for the animals by this sad and overwhelming realization of his fathers fatal malady and his grandfather's ever increasing weakness and disability, the Empress Dowager is by law the guardian of the succession of the Kaiser's throne to be realized. The young man is suffering in form degree from the same peculiar disease which carried off the late king of Prussia, after rendering him completely insane during the last few years of his reign. In the event of the death of the Kaiser, the son of the late Prince the succession devolves upon Prince William's little 4-year-old son. A bitter struggle would then ensue for the regency in which the Empress Dowager would be a dominant factor, but the Crown Prince's friends still have in store. There is a young Prussian lady of the family who would be fit to undertake the regency of the Crown Princess were her sex not of consideration. The question of the regency is further complicated by the inevitable disqualification of the Empress Dowager, who years have stripped of Prince Bismarck, whose fading health will scarcely admit of his long surviving his present master. He leaves no one to take his place.

MORE THAN 100 DROWNED.

Sinking of the Dutch Steamer W. A. Scholten in the English Channel.

THE Dutch steamer W. A. Scholten, bound for Rotterdam for New York, was sunk by a collision with the steamer Rosa Mary, ten miles off Dover, England. A London dispatch gives the following particulars of the disaster:

The Scholten carried a complement of 119 passengers and crew. The steamer Rhen of Sunderland rescued ninety persons and landed them at the Sailors Home, Dover. One passenger was found dead from exposure. Six others are lost and missing. It is noised that passengers who had taken passage on the ill-fated The Scholten was struck on the port bow by the Rosa Mary. Immediately after the hole was felt the Scholten's passengers, all of whom were asleep, rushed for the deck in their nightgowns. Two boats were properly ordered to be lowered, but it was found that only two were available. The others were useless, and were not lowered. The panic ensued vividly through a hole in the vessel's side. Women and children were shrieking with terrific scenes followed. The shrieks, which gave fully ten minutes, were heard and prayed aloud. Little children clung to their mothers, who themselves were shrieking with terror. The officers were cool and self-possessed. Nothing could be done for the women but, because persons received fits and slept into the sea. Within twenty minutes of the shock the Scholten was engulfed. All those who had put on life belts floated or were rescued by the boats from the steamer Rhen, which cruised around until it was light enough to see the wreck. Bodies, bed wives, mannaus, brokers and sisters. The survivors were supplied with clothes, and everything possible was done to insure their comfort.

A MENAGERIE LET LOOSE.

A Great Fire Destroys Barnum's Show. Wild Animals Escape into the Streets.

THE main building of Barnum & Bailey's "Greatest Show on Earth" was entirely destroyed by fire at Bridgeport, Conn. Says a dispatch from that place:

The first intimation of the fire was given by the roaring of the lions and tigers, who seemed to realize the impending danger. Next the elephants trumpeted in their stables. It was an unusually short time the flames swept from one end of the building to the other. In the confusion the animals escaped from the building, being fearful of the crazed animals. Three elephants were loosed and ran a short distance from their fastenings and dashed through the side of the burning building. Their roars and trumpetings and sounds of terrified screaming were heard above the roar of the flames. Hippopotamus raised out of the water with a sickening appearance. Their sides were ripped, and great pieces of flesh and feet scorned fell off. Thirty elephants and one large hippopotamus were burned to death. The loss around for the animals by this sad and overwhelming realization of his father's

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

The Surplus Must be Stopped.

The strongest and best plank in the platform upon which the democrats have just carried New York is this:

"Retrench. The unnecessary federal taxation of the last fiscal year exceeded $100,000,000 and unnecessarily taxation is unjust taxation.

Therefore the democracy of New York demand that federal taxation be straightway reduced by a sum of not less than $100,000,000 a year."

The preamble is from the National democratic platform. The demand for immediate tax reduction is that of the party which has just carried the political state of the Union.

Can the democrats in congress delay longer in fulfilling the pledge of their party? Will they regard the wish of New York and the demand of the country?

Congressman Breckinridge, of Kentucky, expresses the opinion that "events have so shaped themselves that no man can stand up in the house this winter and resist a motion to go into the committee of the whole for the purpose of agreeing upon a bill for the reduction of the revenue.

This ought certainly to be true of every democrat. The republicans have taken a position in favor of spending the surplus. Let the democrats stand solidly for stopping it.

The superfluous war taxes must go "straightway." - N. Y. World.

The Indian "Medicine Man."

The so called "Indian doctor," who penetrates our cities and towns, or permeates the villages and rural districts, preying upon the superstitions of civilization, really a real man, is never a true shaman or "medicine man," but some knave, who has profited by association with the whites, taking a leaf from the book of the pale faced charlatan. By assumed stoicism, dignity, imperturbability and brevity of speech, the reasons for which had are obvious, along with glances replete with concentrated wisdom, he has little difficulty in securing dupes and following.

The true shaman, or "medicine man," is little understood by civilization, since he exhibits a phase of savage life that is rarely permitted to come under casual observation. Very far from being a mere knavish varlet, conversant for unblushing impudence and petty chicanery as commonly depicted, he is instead a staid, earnest, shrewd, farseeing man, more than ordinarily endowed with perceptive faculties sharpened by observation and training, and accustomed to receive impressions and draw conclusions from matters so trivial as to elude general comprehension. As a rule he is honest—as the world goes—and a firm believer in the truthfulness and advantages of his calling. The deeds he practices are unavoidable, and less with a view to delude humanity than to cajole and beguile the unseen and unknown. He is a "mind reader," psychologist, mesmerist and clairvoyant in one—if we mean ability; an endowment that, though sometimes inherent, is oftener educated and developed through centuries. —G. Archie Stockwell, M. D., in Home Journal.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

Antrim county votes on local option Dec. 5th.

The Grand Rapids Eagle has established a regular Sunday morning edition.

The Traverse Herald expects to issue a sixteen-page holiday edition about December 19th.

The C. & W. M. surveyors are in the woods, making the final survey of the line to Traverse City.

Traverse City real estate will not be apt to take much of a tumble this winter, with the C. & W. M. coming sure, another year. - Herald.

The steamer City of Grand Rapids will run on her regular route next season. It rumored that the Ossifrage will run in connection with her, commanded by H. M. Kinney.—Progress.

Capt. Neil Gallagher has secured the contract for carrying the Beaver Island mail this winter, beginning Dec. 1st. We understand the service is to be weekly, when possible to cross to the Island at all.

Larry Higgins, mate of the steamer Vernon, but formerly captain of the steamer Leland, said in this village when the Vernon last touched here that that boat had the toughest crew he ever saw.—Progress.

E. L. Sprague recently disposed of the Traverse Eagle to A. W. Barry of Cheboygan. Mr. Sprague has controlled the Eagle for 23 years, and has been reasonably successful. We understand that he retires permanently from the business.

The schooner Blazing Star, Capt. Cummerford, was wrecked on Fisherman's shoal last week. This is the craft which sailed through the Vernon wreckage within sight of living persons, and whose captain did not stop to give the poor sufferers assistance.

Upper peninsula advices are that the M. H. & O. railroad company will send a powerful lobby to Washington to secure a reversal of the decision which threw their old land grant on the lists of open lands. The home steamers who went in on the lands are banded together for their homes and firesides, and will give the moribund land grant company all it wants in the way of a legal fight.

The Cheboygan News had a baptism of fire on Monday of last week, but from the ruins issued a very respectable edition on Wednesday. The loss of $600 was mostly by water in damaged stock, and is covered by insurance. Other losses at the same fire were: Smyth & Co., wall paper, books, etc., $1,000; Taggart bakery, $500; Dr. Reitz, office furniture, $250, Hoskins Bros., photographers $50; the building damaged about $500; mostly covered by insurance.

A Christmas Present.

To any subscriber whose account is paid one year in advance, we will furnish the JOURNAL one year to the same of any friend they may desire, who does not take the paper, for one dollar cash in advance, if paid before the first day of January. Next year Charlevoix will "boom," and the best way to let your distant friends know all about it is to send the JOURNAL regularly. And the best way to sustain this paper in advertising Charlevoix country is to send more copies to friends abroad. Recollect, one dollar cash pays the bill, if your own account is settled one year in advance.

Enrich the Blood.

HAMILTON'S GERMAN BITTERS are highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic. Especially Indigestion, Dyspepsia, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, &c. They enrich the blood, strengthen the muscles, and give new life to the nerves. They act like a charm in the digestive organs, remove all dyspepsia symptoms, and when over the stomach is weak or there is a general loss of physical vigor, these Bitters are just what you need. Only 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter. dec

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sell, Atwood, Illinois, testifies: I can recommend Electric Bitters, as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles and was cured of rheumatism of 10 years standing." Abraham Hare, Greenville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years experience is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood, only a half dollar a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's drug store.

☞ Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

WILL H. FRANCIS,

Furniture and Jobbing Shop.

Will also do Contracting and Building in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. I now keep a full set of hand and foot power machinery, which enables me to do Jobbing, Repairing, Etc., on short notice. Shop on Mason Street, opposite Harmon Bergey's grocery.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

Grand Rapids' best paper,

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Weed at 12½ cents a week.

THIS PAPER may always be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

FARM FOR SALE.

Fifty acres of land situated on Pine River, north of Ironton, Charlevoix county, about one mile from the village of Boyne City, having water on both sides, and a good log house on the place. Will be sold very cheap. For further particulars, address the undersigned, at Ironton, Mich.

A. J. McLEOD.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Proprietor.

Charlevoix - - Michigan.

Finest location in town, giving good view of lakes and resorts. Excellent table, good beds, quarters for families and 25c. Bright, Sunny Rooms. Good sample rooms for commercial travelers. Stamp accepted.

A. J. McLeod

Can be found at the old stand with a

FULL STOCK OF MEATS

Of all kinds

At Wholesale and Retail.

HIDES, PELTS, & FAT STOCK WANTED.

F. E. WOOD,

BARBER SHOP

And Bath Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

LIVERY

Feed and Sale Stables.

Burns, Stevens & Co.,

The Oldest and Largest Livery Stable in Charlevoix County. The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand. Rates Low.

BRIDGE STREET,

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

O. D. WOOD, President.
A. BUTTARS, Vice President.
F. A. SMITH, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

O. D. WOOD,	M. H. WOOD,
A. BUTTARS,	F. W. MANN,
F. A. SMITH,	J. I. HURD.

BOOK NOTICES.

CAPITAL $25,000
Surplus 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all state banks as provided in Art. XII, Sec. 8, Article XII Statutes of the State of Michigan, a double liability, are guaranteed by a guaranteed fund of $50,000 deposited with the Auditor General by the transaction of every legitimate branch of banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safe banking.

Drafts drawn payable at any point in Europe, in large or small amounts. Money taken on approved security. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued payable on demand.

We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

National Park Bank, New York.
National City Bank, Chicago.
National Bank of Commerce, Grand Rapids.
Detroit National Bank, Detroit.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Gate"

and other Popular Ballads, in book form, and $.25 of Sheet Music Size, post paid, for ONE FORTY CENTS. Beware fakes. AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO. 23 Lemoyne Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charlevoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

We are headquarters for everything in our line.

A great Reduction in the prices of CLOAKS and Wraps, to close them out.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SHEE.

AN IMPORTANT CLUB OFFER

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

Gives its readers literature of lasting interest and value, it is fully and beautifully illustrated and has already gained a more than national circulation exceeding 125,000 copies monthly.

PRICE 25 CENTS A NUMBER 53.00 A YEAR

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS with Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons the Publishers enable us to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE with the Charlevoix JOURNAL for $4.00 per year, Cash in Advance.

Address all orders to CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher Journal, Charlevoix, Mich.

A Big Bonanza in Holiday Goods!

An Enormous Stock of Holiday Goods at Tremendously Low Prices.

It will Do You Good to See this Brilliant Display.

YOU

Nor any other person ever saw such a stock of

Dressing Cases.

We offer you this year an Elegant line of these Goods. Something entirely new in Design and Workmanship. Be sure to look them over before purchasing. IT WILL PAY YOU.

NOW IS YOUR CHANCE

To buy a Photograph Album. Our Stock of

Photo. Albums

cannot be excelled anywhere in this region. They consist of HANDSOME PLUSH COVERS, ELECTRO BRONZE TRIMMINGS, BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED, and CHEAPER THAN THE CHEAPEST. DON'T FAIL TO SEE THEM.

NOTHING LIKE OUR

Manicure Sets, Toilet Sets, Work Boxes,

ODOR CASES, WHISK-BROOM HOLDERS, GENTS' DRESSING CASES; NEW NOVELTIES in this line. All of these goods are Entirely New Design, and never before have been offered for sale in this market.

REMEMBER THAT WE CAN SHOW YOU A MAMMOTH STOCK OF

Xmas Cards, Gold Pens and Pencils,

DOLLS of all kinds, FANCY STATIONERY, and a long list of Fancy and Toilet Articles to numerous to mentions.

It will do you good to see this Brilliant Display, which includes Hundreds of Gifts suitable for Old and Young. Everybody who expect to make a Christmas Present should be sure and see our ELEGANT HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS. All Visitors are Welcome, whether they buy or not. THIS IS YOUR CHANCE.

Dr. G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Dec. 1, 1897.

Local Notes and News.

Coasting has commenced.

The great demand now, is good fire-wood.

☞ For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. 2091

Now is the time to plant your holiday advertisements.

The East-Jordan mail now leaves at 7, a. m., and arrives in the evening.

The Lawrence is in the harbor on her last trip for the season.

Juvenile covered stages are again seen on the street.

Prepare to be surprised when you learn the low prices on silverware at Bellinger's.

The fire boys report a good time at their dance on Thanksgiving night. Something over $8.00 cleared.

The Thanksgiving collection amounted to about $13.10 to be divided between the churches for charitable purposes.

Capt. Roberts has hauled the tug Higgie out at Washburn's yard, and will return this week to his home in Dakota for the winter.

Byron See wants to dispose of a few cloak and wraps, to close out the line, before filling up with something else. See his new card.

Of course no one will fail to see Crouter's new holiday advertisement this week. We shall look the stock over and tell more about it later.

Mrs. Wm Ranger has moved the house which stood between the Farmer's hotel and the Stevenson blacksmith shop to her home on Mason street.

Geo. W. Miller wants your attention for a moment, just to say that he is headquarters for every thing in the line of clothing and gents furnishing goods.

Rev. A. O. Downs reports an accession of thirty-eight to the Cadillac Congregational church at its last communion service, and he hopes the tide here may not be behind that at Cadillac.

The contract for carrying the mail between Charlevoix Ironton, South Arm and East Jordan was awarded to George Burns. Thomas Hoak was sworn in as carrier and entered upon the service yesterday morning.

The advertisement of stray beasts, by Geo. Thompson last week found an owner the next day in the person of Thos. E. Nowland. Tom has another calf in somebody's field or yard which he would like to see once more.

Members of the Historical Society can now draw books from the library on any day except Sunday at 9.15 a. m. and 4 p. m and on Saturday from 9.30 to 12 m. The library has been removed to 24 floor of town hall building.

Thanksgiving day was duly observed in Charlevoix. Union services were held at the Congregational church at 10.30. Most of the business places were closed the greater part of the day, and all had many things to be thankful for.

The North Star encountered considerable ice on her Tuesday morning trip, and as she was nearing East Jordan commenced to leak, so that she was not able to make the return trip. She was pulled out upon the ways, and laid up for the winter.

An advertisement is to a merchant very much what sowing seed is to a farmer. It may take a little time for the results to become apparent, but they are sure to come. The wise farmer is not niggardly with his seed, nor the wise merchant with his advertisement.

Notice.—Parties owing the Charlevoix manufacturing Co. are hereby notified that any and all such amounts must be paid of once. Legal steps will be taken to enforce the collection of all past due notes and accounts. Settlement may be made at Stockman & Iddings store.

By way of diversion, O. W Smith gave a number of his friends a box of celery last week, as a small sample of one of a varied assortment of fresh fruits and vegitables which he keeps on hand. His cellar is arranged to keep fruit in an even temperature, and his stock is in excellent condition.

While some boys were snowballing on Bridge street Saturday they broke one of the front windows of Barthlomew & Co's warehouse. Snowballing on the street should be stopped. In fact, the only place for snowballing, consulting the comforts of others is a hundred rods from a building, or any other person.

The class, Busy Workers, of the M. E. Sunday school, Miss Crowell teacher, have been collecting money for some time past. They met with their teacher at the parsonage Monday afternoon when it was found that the children had gathered $8.52 with which they intend to pay for the front doors to the church and expend the remainder for books.

Readers of Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson's books will be glad to know that he will contribute to each number of Scribner's Magazine during the year 1898. He will write of many topics, old and new, and in a familiar and personal way, which will form new bonds of friendship between the author and his thousands of readers. In the first of the series, entitled "A Chapter on Dreams," he tells some interesting facts concerning the origin of the famous story "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." This paper will appear in the January number.

To the many anxious inquirers concerning the prospect of the railroad we can say that the road will not be built until all who have subscribed to the capital stock come forward and pay their assessments. The gentlemen entrusted with the management seem to be satisfied that cash and hard work will build the road, that those who stand back and insist that it must come on their route and no other, and therefore refuse right of way except at exorbitant prices; and those who have subscribed to the capital stock and neglect or refuse to pay the assessments are the worst opponents of the undertaking. If it becomes necessary to sue the holders of stock to get money enough to pay the expenses of the preliminary work, matters will progress very slowly.

Purely Personal.

Dr. Crouter writes that Mrs. Crouter is very much improved in health.

R. E. McClean lately with the Charlevoix Iron works is now located at Muskegon.

Mrs. Ruth Bedford returned last Thursday from an extended visit in southern Michigan.

Mrs. W. H. Greenman, of Atwood, stayed with W. H. McCartney's family Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Harsha are endeavoring to entertain a little girl that came to their home last Friday.

D. S. Burns left Charlevoix for Cheboygan where he will spend a few days, after which he expects to go to Bath, Maine.

Ed F. Parmelee and wife left Charlevoix Tuesday for Reading, where they will spend the holidays, before taking their western trip.

Rev. W. G. Clark had an attack of sciatic rheumatism on Sunday, rendering him unable to preach in the evening. He is now improving.

E. A. Spaulding, of Norwood, was stricken with paralysis on his left side two weeks ago, but at last accounts was recovered sufficient to get out of the house.

Jos LeClair, of Atwood, expects to take a trip to the eastern states this winter, visiting, among other places, his old home, which he has not seen in over 20 years.

S. H. Beardslee, formerly city surveyor, was in town the first of the week. He has been at work on the new railroad extension to Charlevoix. —Cadillac Express.

H. W. Beach, formerly of Atwood, now residing at Tampa, Florida has had the second attack of yellow fever. Mrs. Beach, who has been spending the summer at Atwood started last week for Florida.

E. Shay, of Bay Springs, was in the city on Monday and stopped over to admire our new electric light in the evening, being on his way home from a trip to Lima, Ohio, where his patent geared locomotives are made.—Cadillac Express.

Coming Events.

A special meeting of the W. C. T. U. this afternoon at Mrs. W. G. Clark's for work. The next regular meeting will be held at Jefferies hall, Friday, at 2.30 p. m.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Cheboygan Congregational conference will be held at Alba, December 13-15. The opening sermon will be by Rev. W. S. Bugby.

The subject of discourse at the Congregational church Sunday morning is "Sowing Beside all Waters;" in the evening, "The Prodigal Son." The subject at the Thursday evening prayer meeting and bible study is the 23d Psalm. A larger attendance with bibles is desired.

The ladies cornet band will in the near future give a concert at the Opera House. Their program is announced to be one of the most select ever presented in Charlevoix. They will be assisted by some of the best amateur talent in northern Michigan. An interesting and profitable evening may be expected.

Religious services at the Methodist church as usual; subject in the morning, Jesus the poor man's friend; evening, Anger. Remember the meetings Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Evelian.

IRONTON Nov. 29.—Another Thanksgiving has come and gone.

W. A. Stanley conducts a find enough wood in a fifty acre lot last Wednesday, so slashed his ax in his left foot just below the ankle, and is laid up in consequence.

Geo. Black cut his leg one day last week, but is able to be at work again.

Work is progressing finely at the Peterson camp.

Mrs. Polly Winkler who has spent the past few months with her parents in Canada returned to her home in Ironton on the 18th.

Mr. Joseph Clark, of Charlevoix, was in town Friday, on business.

R. J. Tuttle arrived here last Thursday on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Tuttle.

The funeral services of Henry S Freeman whose death we mentioned last week, was held at the mountain school house last Sabbath. Rev. J. Downes officiating.

Jas. Benkie is on the sick list.

A hop at Edwin Tunnell's last Saturday night.

We would say to our brother or sister Ellsworth who think you were wise in preferring other business to reporting for a paper for nothing, and paying for your own copy, besides furnishing material and stamps.

A party of young folks spent last Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. David Norton. All enjoyed themselves with an oyster supper.

Advice received from Johnnie and Anna Morehouse, who are now at St. Andrew's Bay, Fla. are that they are both sick.

Burgess.

BURGESS, Nov. 28.—Mrs Gregory of Cross Village is visiting her father, Mr. Wm Baker.

Mr. Bennett, of Undine, has moved into part of Mr. Bank's house for the winter.

Miss Addie Lewis has purchased a new organ.

Mr. I. S. Webster was expected home this week but Mrs. W. received a letter from him saying that it was expected the boat would make a trip to Chicago before laying up.

Mr. Joseph Hanson has returned to Hayes and will move upon his farm in the spring.

Miss Maud Scott was home last week to spend vacation.

M. Ross has been on the sick list week.

Jacob Chew is at work for Moses Cooper again this winter.

CANS OR WRAPS.

Mrs. Ida J. Hale wishes to thank her many kind friends and neighbors both in Charlevoix and Hayes for the many acts of kindness during the sickness and death of her husband.

Historical Society.

The Historical Society spent a very entertaining and instructive session at the parlors of L. E. Allen last Friday evening. Mrs. C. Y. Cook presided a paper, giving the life of Richard I. Mrs. W. H. McCartney read a selection from Ivanhoe, which was the subject of conversation, after which a conversation of thirty minutes was indulged in by many, led by W. P. Brown. Dr. Carleton and Mrs. F. W. Mayne each favored the society with vocal solos, and Misses Maggie Enos and Sadie Miller gave instrumental solos. Friday evening of this week the society will meet with Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Washburn. The paper, King John, will be presented by John Nicholls. The subject of conversation will be Shakespeare's King John.

W. C. T. U. Election.

At a recent election of the W. C. T. U., the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. E. R. Mudge.
First Vice President—Mrs. C. J. Strang.
Second Vice President—Mrs. C. Y. Cook.
Third Vice President—Mrs. A. J. Hodge.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Lilla Crouch.
Assistant Recording secretary—Mrs. L. Benson.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. J. A. Hawkins.
Treasurer—Mrs. McElroy.

The Greatest Pain Killer

Yet found for Cramps, Colic, Stitch in side or back, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sprains, Bruises, &c., is Hunnilan's Jamaica Ginger Tonic and Pain Cure. Bound on with red wax cloth, it never fails to cure. For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick headache, Biliousness, diarrhea, dysentery, heartburn, sour stomach, &c., it is unequaled. Warranted to give relief. Used internally and externally. Warranted to cure. Try it. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

HE WORE A BUSTLE.

He Wore It as a Shoulder Protection While Carrying Coal.

Some Norwich boys found a woman's bustle last week, and, being inspired by some lower power, put it in a coal carrier's basket and placed the canvas shoulder pad he had been accustomed to use. When the coal carrier went out the next morning with his first load of coal his ex-pad was the strange thing for which he had an eye.

"Pad is lost, Mike," he said to the driver; and although both of them were family men they were sorely perplexed. Mike replied:

"Sorry I blames. I never did the thing it before!"

Not finding his shoulder protector, the coal carrier saw in it a novel substitute for it, and he said:

"Begorra, Mike, I have it! This is a patent shoulder piece the boss has got me! and he put the old bustle on his shoulder, and finding that it was a fair fit, tied the string around his neck. He worked with the new shoulder protector all day to the amusement of all who recognized the bustle in such a place. Pat noticed that the new protector made him a source of considerable curiosity, but he did not have the truth until he showed it to the boss in the evening, when, thinking Mike for the 27th, he said:

"The inventor of this wonderful bustle never carried coal. They were cards are that never that they can live a little long, I guess, the tiret is a good one, and I can make use of it that'll wonder."

His employer informed him that he had been subjected to a practical joke, that his shoulder protector was a bustle that had seen its day and been laid away.

Mike, the driver, scoffed, and said: "It's never seen a greater day than this. Twenty times or coal have been onto it. Bighat a lot begorra! never one than Pat Donegan." —Norwich Bulletin.

A Holiday in Geneva

The Genevese have one holiday stored in the December half the small logs. It is the 16th day of December. On that day sixteen hundred and twenty years ago, a battle was fought by the Savoyards planned a night attack on Geneva. The natives were so lently scaling the walls to surprise the garrison when they were discovered by a dog and an old woman, whose cooking the food for the camp. As she gave the alarm she emptied the pot of the soup and upsetting it on the heads of the foremost soldiers, who, naturally disconcerted at the unusual mode of attack, retreated from the shower of grease, and the city was saved.

The memory of Mere Guthine is kept green each anniversary by much music and fireworks, a carnival in the streets and masquerade parties at home. A fountain in the Rue des Allemands commemorates this event.—Charlotte Reeve Conover in Outing.

Wilson.

WILSON, Nov. 28.—A big snow storm and every one looks happy.

Chas. Kruntel moved into his new house last week.

Richard and Joseph Lewis killed a deer last Saturday.

Isaac Bowen got his foot cut very badly a few days last.

Several small family parties on Thanksgiving but no church services were held.

A few people met to practice singing Wednesday evening.

We sympathize with Ellsworth correspondent. Have been there ourselves; but a little success has made us editor; we send paper.

Lane Vanes visited relatives here Wednesday evening.

Lane Vanes visited relatives here on his way home from Ann Arbor. His health is rapidly improved.

George Vance' wife and son, Henry visited relatives here on Friday and Saturday last.

Millions of Persons die annually who might be saved if attention was given to the little ills of life. Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, &c. are easily cured by using Hamilton's Cough Balsam which removes the tickling in the throat and thickness across the chest, helps to throw off the poisonous matter and heals the inflamed membranes. Immediate relief will be found in Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, &c., and even in chronic cases and last stage consumption great relief is received. For incipient consumption it works like a charm. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Are Your Children Pevish and sad eyed? Do they have abnormal appetites and crave food constantly? Beware of worms. Very few children escape their ravages. No child can be happy or well while suffering with worms. They sap the very life by preventing the digestion and assimilation of food. There is a sure remedy. It is called Parmelee's Vermifuge Worm Confiture. They are perfectly harmless but will dissolve the worms and pass them off through the bowels. Try no other. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Shipments.

The following are the shipments from the port of Charlevoix, reported for the week ending Wednesday evening:

Nov. 26—Prop. Bonanza, 475 tons pig iron, Pere Lamie from Dr. to Chicago.

BORN

HARSHA.—On Nov. 26th, to Mr and Mrs. H. S. Harsha, a daughter.

$40 Given Away

AT

G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

(NO LOTTERY.)

A Hardened Davis Sewing Machine given to the person guessing the nearest to the number of Beans contained in a glass globe. Every person purchasing $1.00 or more is entitled to a guess for each and every dollar worth of goods purchased at our store during the month of December.

A New Attraction in Town

AND LOCATED IN THE

Dry Goods & Carpet Store

OF

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Who are pleased to announce to the people of Charlevoix and vicinity that in this store a great

5c., 10c., and 25c. COUNTER

Has been placed, and invite all friends and customers to call in and see for themselves if they cannot get bargains in

A General Line of House Furnishing Goods. All for 5c., 10c., and 25c.

These counters being a new attraction, you are invited to call and see them. Having obtained them through a Chicago house that makes it their business to buy these goods for a great deal less than they are worth, by purchasing from Auctions, Job Lots, at Forced Sales, Sheriff Sales, and in liquidating from a million dollar stock, we are prepared to offer you goods that are subject to have money and forces their goods cheap for cash, and by so doing we are enabled to offer you goods at prices much cheaper than ever sold at before. You can find hundreds of very useful articles on these counters to select from, and if you will call and see them you will certainly be surprised and buy here as long as the attraction lasts.

Why pay 25 and 50c. and even 75c. for goods that you are using and buying every day, when you can buy the same goods, New, Fresh, and Clean, on these counters for 5c., 10c. and 25c.? These goods will positively be retailed at these cheap prices. Come and see for yourselves.

To give you a full list of all these goods would take too much space, as the line is so large.

Call in and Inspect these Counters. All the goods are displayed to view, and only three prices, 5c., 10c., and 25c.

Call and see this stock, and see if you cannot save 40c. on every dollar's worth of goods you buy. Remember, a full line of GLASSWARE, WOODENWARE, QUEENSWARE, HARDWARE, NOTIONS, and in fact a little of everything on these Great 5c., 10c. and 25c. Counters.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Jumbo.

THE ATKINS SAWS NEW PERFECTION AXES

Round Oak Stoves.

Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

Bargains IN BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

Hardware Iron and Nail Merchants.

CHAMPION FORCE PUMPS

PLOWS, BARBED WIRE, ETC., LEAD.

SAVE YOUR DOLLARS

And buy them of Yours Truly,

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

G. A. R. CIGARS

Are noted as one of the Best 5ct. cigars made. For every thousand sold here the Baxter Post of Charlevoix receives $2.00.

The Post has just received its first $2.00. Friends of the Post, try the G. A. R. Cigar and help the old soldiers. For Sale by

F. A. COCHRAN & CO., Druggist and Pharmacists.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

S. J. PERRY, Agent, Charlevoix.

CHICAGO: Canal AND 16TH STS.

DEACON DOCKWEED'S "FUNERL."

BY BUNY ARNOLD.

L.D. Deacon Dockweed had a pumpkin,
Yellow as the golden gold.
The biggest one in all the county,
Leaxiuse as the deacon told.
Priscilla Dockweed, deacon's wife,
Wanted a pie the first she baked
For her child in smoke pies
Now, dont you smile and look pos
Vil,
For Thanksgiving's
Jest as good the size
For a family pumpkin
Size.

"Dick," said the deacon, "I go or thinkin
Pie is a mighty nice thing to eat
You put it in three crusts, I think
Sez how add an dollar I'm mor pie.

"Knon see people's great on guessin
Oh, I wouldn't crack no nuts on Sarah,
Pie's jest as good without any filerin,
Ef you don't, you'll have to figure a grand-like
Or or now for luck! Law sus!
Ef I shud bay a dollar, what subord-of Ekstra guess at wud be!

"Now tell that pudin down thar collar
Thy is jest set out on thar shelf;
You'll go a calvanistic low an fainin
Not ef I tur or announce meself.
Thar's a kind of hankerin kind of, lick yiasm
Thar's sumthin ekstra use to talk,
Pie is a mighty nice thing, I admit
And she made him too in chalk.

Sometimes the best of people overreach
Themselves that they may have their way;
Thus, when Deacon Dockweed
Fell upon that pumpkin pie
Ole little Bobby jerry listened,
As he passed the farm-house by,
And when the deacon wasn't looking
Filched the pumpkin on the sly.

The deacon mourned his pumpkin
Pie Friends rained high
She thought her brother had it from her
Sis thought it was her pie.
Their Thanksgiving passed in silence—
Only a word between them said;
Deacon left angry at the other,
And they only went to bed.

At midnight, when their spouse were lonely
Having tally with the clock,
A tapping on Priscilla's window
Made her jump and gave her a shock.
There from a tree-branch hung a cabin
That was bobbing up and down;
Its mouth was flaming red, the eyes fiery
And gleaming with a frown.

Priscilla gasped and cried in horror
And her hair grew quickly raised;
"Deacon! Deacon!" she cried in gospel,
Or mor oyes or little lasse!

"Dick," said the deacon, "I go or thinkin
Pie is a mighty nice thing to eat
You put it in three crusts, I think
Sez how add an dollar I'm mor pie.

Why, that are pumpkin isn't a-lander,
As he prize squash hangin' low or string;
An' he mighty nervous fetchin' fairy
Is or workin thar consarned thing'

IN THE NICK OF TIME.

BY JAMES FRANKLIN FITTS.

I.

"I'm rather it would be a quiet dinner," said Mrs. Halliday, "I don't feel like having the house full."

"I really wish we could agree about this, Lucy," her husband said. "You know I was born and lived in a New England home, and there is nothing takes hold of my imagination so powerfully as the idea of a big Thanksgiving dinner. It's the blessed and time-honored festival of our old Puritan fathers. Several people I've had words with during the year; what better time to make up or little differences? Now be reasonable, Lucy, and agree to this"

The furrowed face of the wife was trembling with agitation.

"O, Jonathan," she said, "you know why I don't want all this. I have no heart for it. The door boy who used to be with us has not come back. I can't have any part in such great Thanksgiving rejoicings while he is away, —out there, I think, of home, while we are feasting and merry, he may be starving and homeless."

The Judge saluted the room rapidly three or four times, and brought up again with his face to the grate.

"The repetition" he vouchsafed, "I want nothing more to do with him. How is it possible, Lucy, for you to be foolish and tenderness toward him?"

"He is my first-born; he is my only child; was the pleasure of his mother's soul heart.

"He has alienated himself from us; he is nothing in the world to us. I never want to see him again. Think of the record he has made for himself! A Captain in our army; a good officer and a brave one, by all accounts; dismissed gracefully dismissed for drunkenness on duty.

"I ask you, Jonathan, think how he stood for that fault! Remember the sad, noble letter he wrote you. He said he would resign in the ranks, and never return home till he had redeemed his name from the disgrace. Was not that like him?"

"Very good," said the Judge, "Pshaw—"

"And we heard, you know though he wouldn't write to us about it, of his gallantry in those dreadful fights in the Wilderness; and how the Governor sent him a new commission, but he couldn't be mustered in it because the company was so reduced by the battles. You know, Jonathan, that he is brave and true, and has nobly redeemed his fault."

"I don't know half like a brave enough: he got that from his Revolutionary ancestry. But why don't he come home? The war has been over full seven months. He's a dissolute vagabond, thinks not of or affection for his home or his parents; that's what I believe."

"No, no, is my boy. I can't forget him. My heart must be said without him."

Judge Halliday was a stern man, and condemnation of his erring son was evidently important, but the firmness and constancy of the affection of the wife for the wanderer touched him Perhaps her tears touched him

She stood behind her husband

Lim more; for her reminiscences of the absent one had ended in weeping, and she was sobbing behind her handkerchief.

He came and sat down by his wife.

"Well, Lucy," he said, very kindly, "perhaps it's quite natural for you to feel as you do. So I won't say anything now about a big dinner."

"Than you, Jonathan; it's very good of you. I'm sure you'll enjoy a quiet Than'sgiving."

Two hours after the talk we have just heard the Judge sat down at his desk, drew a large envelope from his pocket, took out a bunch of bank bills from it, and began to count them.

"Why, Jonathan," asked his wife, "what are you doing with so much money?"

"Five hundred and ten—thirty—eighty five—ninety-five—six hundred. Yes, there's six hundred dollars of it. I'll put it in this drawer; guess it will be safe there to-night." And he locked it up.

"Why didn't you put it in the bank? I hate to have money in the house nights."

"Tom Utley just paid it to me on his mortgage. He's going to start for Mexico early in the morning, and I shall take it there to pay some debts of it over night. Who's talking in the parlor?"

"Lyman Drake came while you were down street, and he and Eva are there."

He looked from one to the other.

and prepared to follow his wife. Before extinguishing the light he listened a moment to a subdued murmur that the door ajar of the parlor permitted him to hear.

"The silly young things!" he reflected. "I don't believe that Lucy thought I acted that way. Well, well, let 'em enjoy themselves."

The Judge put out the light, and took his defective memory up-stairs to bed.

The clock strack eleven. An hour passed. it struck twelve. Lyman Drake prepared to depart. If he had gone earlier, as all good parents would say he should have done, this story would have been a very different one.

"Now, Eva, my dear girl. Every thing out of doors was still. Two men stood in the front yard, beneath the parlor windows. They listened to the faint ray of light that stole out at the side of a curtain. They whispered together. Then one of them took, off his shoes, drew a pistol from his pocket, cocked it, and opening the front door with a soft and continued pressure, disappeared inside with the stealthy step of a cat.

The other crouched low beside the steps, listening warily for the least sound.

He heard a sound, a light step on the stone walk from the gate. Before he could rise a great weight fell on him and crushed him down. Two muscular hands were at his throat, and before he could offer any resistance he was choked senseless.

A short club, loaded with lead, and known to professional burglars as a "billy," fell from his grasp. Dark as it was, his assailant recognized to him that he had it, and searched round in the grass till he secured it. Then he hastily removed his coat, and crept into into the house by the front door.

Lyman Drake had risen, at last, to go, full of supreme anguish of the thought that he could not see the "cozy corner" again, perhaps, for years at least twenty hours more. His back was to the door; her face was necessarily turned in the same direction; a leave-taking which is to would be a breach of confidence in us to describe was just about to occur—when Lyman was startled by the sudden disappearance of Eva's face, and the trembling of her whole person. She stood straight over his shoulder. He looked round. A man stood five feet from him with a dark-lantern in one hand and a pistol in the other. A crape-mask, pieced with eye-holes, covered his face.

"Now, no hiks," he said in a hoarse whisper, "donother dare tor make eny noise, or I'll put a ball in yer. Go over up-stairs brought in six hundred dollars tar night. Gal, yer know where yer find it. Get it an' bring it 'ere, quick! If yer don tor act yer shows on me—I'll shoot this yer cove right frew der heart. D'ye tear? Start!"

The speaker receiver covered them. What poor Lyman would have done, he does not know; what might have happened will never be known.

There was a strong deliverer at hand, and before he could speak a single word the terrified lovers saw a man enter the room, step softly behind the burglar and fell him to the floor. He rolled like a lump of lead on the carpet, fired once, and sent a ball through the ceiling as he fell.

"Don't be afraid!" the stranger said, kindly, to the young people. "I followed that brute in here to protect a crime. There is another one lying senseless in the yard. Go and wake the folks; I'll send some people to take care of them. Good-night."

He had started toward the door, when he heard a subdued scream, and a pair of arms were thrown round his neck.

"It's you, Lonny! I know you! You shall not go away!—you must not!"

"Sis, confound you, let go! I didn't come to stay."

But she clung the tighter; and now appeared two gentlemen, clothed in white, at the door; the Judge, with his face far less ruddy than usual, and a big pistol in your hand, while his trembling wife hold fast by his angle coat, and looked over his shoulder.

The terrified lovers saw a man enter through the open door.

Women, girls, are natural orators, and Eva on this occasion vindicated the fact. Her story was a connected one. She rushed from the Captain to her father, and in a quarter of a minute told him everything that had happened. Description halts at the scenes that followed. The rapture of the fond, thankful mother over her long-lost boy; the earnest, glad welcome of the father; the exhilaration of the son, that, with pride in his heart, and bitterness still reigning there against his father, he had come merely to look at the old home once more ere he shipped as a sailor; that he had chanced to overhear the plan of the burglars, and had resolved to prevent the robbery, whatever the consequences might be.

Meantime, Lyman Drake, observing that he was a kind of nobody in this scene, conceived an idea, and promptly acted on it, which showed him to be a very level-headed young man. The ways of the house were somewhat known to him, and, procuring some stout cord from the wood-shed, he proceeded to bind the arms and legs of the senseless burglars. Then he went out and procured help enough to take them to the lock-up. The men of Eva's lover, and employed both of them for the next ten years.

Daylight was not far off when all this had been done. The parents dressed themselves, and the reunited family sat about the replenished grate and talked.

"There's my new commission," said the Captain, handing it to his father. "I know I earned it in those dreadful days in the Wilderness. I thought you might forgive that old disgrace after that."

"My dear boy," said the Judge, with much emotion, "there's my hand. I've been sadly at fault. But let it go; it's all come out right at last. We'll have a glorious Thanksgiving."

The pranning of vines has been investigated by H. Mueller, who finds that the proper time is while the fruit is ripening, and that the young shoots should be cut, as their development requires much sugar.

PRIZE STOCK.

A Splendid Display at the Annual Chicago Fat Stock Exhibition.

Fine Horses, Cattle, Sheep, and Poultry—Uncle Isaac, the Jumbo Shoat.

[Chicago correspondence.]

The fat stock show this year is the best yet given. The majesty of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, and poultry is simply magnificent. The show yesterday looked as if it had been struck by a wave of temperance reform. Every ribbon were tied to the long horns of the lazy oxen, pressing from the ears of the grunting pigs, and floating from the silky tail of the roadster as he pranced about the sawdust ring—everywhere appeared the bright color. Red and white ribbons were seen to be seen, but blue was the favorite color, and threw all others into the shade.

The exhibition of prizes is a great attraction, and over a dozen of the little ribbons, stacked by small boys, locked and agreed, pulsated around the ring to the intense delight of the crowd. One of the boys toppled off his horse and fell into the ring, and he was hooted by the boys for his awkwardness. The ladies driving also provided a bright interest, and the fascinating Beulah. The horses were all fine, showy animals, and apparently understood what was expected of them. They lifted their hoofs to make use of the tally, and yet each horse performed his duty so skillfully that the frequent clapping of their hands and way. of their feet showed the interest. The exhibition of that of the turkeys, presided over by a young white clothed lady, with a lordly style around his little palace. There are probably over two hundred feet in this exhibition and they come to fit their full share of admiration. The turkeys are fine specimens, thinking of the roast turkey on Thanksgiving. One of these turkeys, a huge Bronze-colored fellow raised in Southern Illinois, is said to be the largest fowl ever exhibited in Chicago. He is a proud bird, and seemed to know that he was the cynosure of all eyes.

The frequent clapping of their hands and way. of their feet showed the interest.

"That's a round old bird," said the owner, "he's as connected a cite-dogs as ever I see, so I've seen a heap o' turkeys in my day. His intellect seems pretty near half human, and he's a sociable cuss, too. He's been a pet ever since he was a little bunch of down, and he's kind of tame. He's fed on corn, and he's a great hand for a little fun. Last night, for instance, I had a little fun with him. I was a-fixin' to go home, and I thought I'd jest fix up a little fun for the old fellow. I tied a tin tomato can to his tail, and I tied a tin tomato can to his tail, and I tied a tin tomato can to his tail, and

FARM AND GARDEN.

A SAFE AND EASY WAY TO SHOE REFRACTORY MULES.

Suggestions That Fattening Poultry and Dressing It According to Methods Practiced in France—Two Convenient Feed Racks for Horses and Cattle Described.

The feed rack for cattle illustrated in the first cut has been used on the Iowa Agricultural college farm with satisfactory results, being both convenient and free from wastefulness.

FIG. 1.—OUTDOOR FEED RACK.

Prairie Farmer describes it as follows: It is composed of a track three feet wide, eight or nine feet high, fourteen feet long and enough of them to hold hay for the number of cattle and horses to be fed. This has horizontal boards or poles nailed on from the top to within two feet of the ground. This rack has a fence around it made of strong boards, planks or poles. The fence should be eighteen inches high and the same distance from the rack and may lean outward somewhat. This prevents the hay which the cattle pull out from under the rack from getting under their feet, and they must keep it pretty well eaten out in order to get fresh hay from the rack.

The journal quoted from illustrates and describes the feed rack shown in fig. 2. This has most of the advantages of the one already described, and is easily made. At the ends set the forked corner posts five feet apart and have them extend six feet above ground, and put the poles on as shown. This may easily be made very strong and durable, and any one who has used out door feed racks for cattle knows this to be a very important feature. The poles can be fastened together at points of contact with smooth fence wire and plenty of common fence staples.

FIG. 2.—FEED RACK.

Fattening Fowls for the Table.

There is room for improvement in the matter of fattening fowls for the table in this country. The French dressed poultry is very superior to ours, and its superiority is due largely to three things: First, the great care exercised in breeding fowls for quality of flesh; second, the admirable methods of fattening; and, third, the attractive manner in which the birds are dressed when offered for sale.

As regards the varieties best adapted for table fowls there is neither time nor space to enumerate them. In a general way it may be said that birds which have the most meat upon the breast and wings upon the thighs are best for fattening. Birds that have been well fed from the time they are hatched require but little preparation for the table. The period in which fowls may be fattened varies considerably with the variety of bird, but three weeks is the time usually allotted for the "fattening process" in France.

Fresh sweet Indian barley, oats and buckwheat meal, mixed with skim milk, in which a little fat of some kind has been dropped, makes admirable fattening food.

Any of these meals are good when fed separately, but Beale advises a mixture of equal parts of each, to which a little fat has been added just before stirring up with milk. He thinks, and many of our foremost breeders believe, that it pays to boil the milk with which the meals are mixed. This food is best given to the fowls while warm. Such special feeding shows in the unusual fine color of the flesh of the birds when dressed and its excellent sweet flavor. Birds are most quickly fattened in confinement. When practicable place in pens sufficiently large for moving room, but no more. Observe scrupulous cleanliness in the pens and provide clean water each day. Remember that the birds must fast for at least twelve hours previous to killing them. This is an important point.

As has been intimated, French poulterers lay great stress on the dressing of the poultry after it is killed. They pluck the birds immediately, and while animal heat still prevails the carcasses are placed on "shaping boards" with their backs upward. The bird is kept level by blocks at either end which support the neck and rump. While the bird is warm it is manipulated, first by bending in the rib bones, then pressing the knee into the back, forcing the breast inwards and fastening the legs over the breast so as to keep it in its place. A wet cloth is fastened tightly down over the bird and around the bottom board. The second board is placed above this. By the time the bird is quite cold the flesh is firm and the whole appears attractive.

How to Shoe Refractory Mules.

Shoeing refractory mules is a somewhat hazardous operation, and as most mules are refractory when approached within convenient distance of their nimble heels any arrangement that assists to make their shoeing easy and safe is to be commended.

SHOEING A REFRACTORY MULE.

The cut represents a device illustrated and described originally in The Blacksmith and Wheelwright. Take two pieces of spring steel 1 3-4 inches wide, and long enough to make a good steel pair of hames, bend them to the form of a collar and punch holes in the top to let a strap pass through to fit different sizes of collars. Then take a piece of 1 1-2-inch iron or steel 6 inches long, rivet it on the flat side of the hame, bend in a circle to clear the collar, and shut a D ring in the ends, one on each hame—as shown in the cut. Tie in the ring a strong 3-4-inch rope on the side opposite to where you are to work; pass the rope around the fetlock to the other ring, and tie to suit yourself. Hook an open link on the ropes so the animal cannot get his other foot through them, and you have him in your power. When you raise the foot to drive, the rope will be tightened, and he cannot kick you either in driving or clinching.

Keeping Apples.

After apples have been carefully picked and properly packed away in barrels there is still danger of their failing to keep well unless some intelligence is shown in the method of storing the barrels and their contents. More failures occur from keeping apples too warm than any other one cause. This fruit requires to be kept as cool as is practicable without freezing. A frequent change from cold to warm is fatal to the keeping quality of any fruit, and especially to the apple. Let the temperature be a uniform one and as low as possible without freezing. It is no longer considered essential to store apples in an absolutely dry place. On the contrary, there are advocates for storing this fruit in cellars where water stands, the argument being that the fruit keeps fresher and is not liable to wither.

Average Yield Per Cow.

The following questions have recently been asked and answered in The London Agricultural Gazette: 1. What is a fair average yield of milk per cow per annum? Five hundred and fifty gallons. 2. What is a fair proportion of butter to a given quantity of milk? One pound of butter from twenty-one pounds of milk. 3. What is a fair yield of butter from a given quantity of cream? Cream may yield from one-fifth to one-half its weight in butter, according to thickness. 4. What is a fair yield of cheese in proportion to milk? One pound of cheese to from eleven to nine pounds of milk, according to season of the year—most in autumn.

To Tell the Age of Horses.

The Toronto Truth says:

To tell the age of any horse,
Inspect the lower jaw, of course;
The slain front teeth the tale will tell,
And every doubt and fear dispel.

Two middle "nippers" you behold
Before the colt is three weeks old.
Before eight weeks two more will come,
Right outside the "corners" cut the gum.

The outside grooves will disappear
From middle two in just one year.
In two years, from the second pair,
In three in corners, too, are bare.

At two the middle "nippers" drop;
At three the second pair can't stop.
When four years old the third pair goes;
At five a full now set he shows.

The deep black spots will pass from view
At six years from the middle two.
The second pair at seven years
At eight the spot each "corner" clears.

From middle "nippers" upper jaw
At nine the black spots will withdraw.
The second pair at ten are white;
Eleven finds the "corners" light.

As time goes on, the horsemen know,
The oval teeth three sided grow;
They longer get, project before
Till twenty, when we know no more.

Commission Men as Judges of Fruit.

A few of the agricultural societies near New York and other large cities have tried the plan this year of having some truck or worthy commission man act as a judge of the fruits exhibited at their fairs. This appears to be in some respects, at least, a good idea, for naturally these commission men, with their commercial instincts, incline to award prizes to the fruits that sell best, whereas other judges incline to be guided by their time honored scale of points of excellence. Most farm produce is grown to be sold and many farmers will be glad to learn what sorts sell best.

In the Poultry Yard.

If you desire eggs and eggs only, says Country Gentleman, and numbers, not size, select Hamburgs or Leghorns. If you want non-sitters that will raise good sized eggs, choose Houdans, Black Spanish or La Fleche. If you want winter layers or fowls to sell dressed for the fall or winter market, take Brahmas, Cochins, Langshans or Plymouth Rocks. If you want chicks for early spring market, select Plymouth Rocks, Dominiques or Wyandottes.

Use none but pure bred cocks; get the best hens you can, get for market prices. Keep each year the best of the highest bred pullets, selling all others, and you will soon have a flock as good as pure breds and at little cost.

The runs must be dry. Wet feet make Biddy sick. A southern slope is desirable. The houses should have a southern exposure, be sheltered from winds, roomy, warm, lighted, ventilated.

Don't make the perches near the floor, whether the fowls be large or small. Have a board upon which clerts are nailed every few inches to reach from the floor to the perches. Have the board long enough to make the incline easy. There should be a passageway through the center of the building—no roosts above it, a wide platform at each side to catch the droppings; under the platform the nests opening into the passageway.

A dusting box is indispensable. Fill with fine sifted road dust to one foot of perfectly dry wood or coal ashes and a very little sulphur and carbolic powder. Turn six inches from the floor a small box having two compartments, one crushed oyster shell or gravel stone and the other charcoal.

Don't feed on the floor. Feed in shallow boxes or troughs. For drinking vessels common glazed milk crocks are the best.

Here and There.

There is a scarcity of honey.

The yield of oats for the country average this year about 33 bushels per acre. The barley yield is nearly 29 per cent. less than a medium crop. The yield of rye is 11.5 bushels per acre, and the total product about 24,000,000 bushels.

The governor of Wyoming officially states that the territory is adapted for farming purposes as well as for stock raising.

California is sending canned fruits to Italy.

The next meeting of the National Swine Breeders' association will be held in Chicago, Ills., Nov. 16.

Volume thirty-two of the American Short Horn Herd Book, containing 1,009 pages, is now out. It is requested that pedigrees for volume thirty-three be sent soon to the secretary, Mr. J. H. Pickrell, Montank block, 115 Monroe street, Chicago, Ills. Fifteen thousand is the number of entries to a volume.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for it and this paper together
Wide Awake	$4.40	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	1.00
Pansy	1	1.00
Little Men and Women	1	1.00
Babyland	0.50	1.50

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a trifle in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a deadhead. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother amuse even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old wives by begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Chautauqua Young Folks' Journal is for young children.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"library, study, play-house, life as here and abroad, companionship of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in club-ing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

For Every Mechanic.

We are in receipt of the "Mechanical News" for Nov. 15, and it is a pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the merits of that popular and long-established journal. Its pages are full of instructive and timely matter relating to the various branches of mechanical and manufacturing industry, and every number contains from ten to twenty choice illustrations, showing the progress of invention both in our own and in foreign countries.

"The Mechanical News" is a sixteen-page paper, published twice a month. The subscription price is only one dollar a year, and with its able staff of contributors it never fails to give in a single issue information of many times that value to the practical mechanic. The paper is now in its seventeenth volume, and has stead-ily improved in the quality of its contents, and, as a natural consequence, in its popularity with the reading public.

The publishers announce that they furnish sample copies free, and liberal inducements are offered to agents and canvassers for subscribers. A circular giving full particulars will be sent to any one applying for the same Address the Mechanical News, 110 Liberty Street, New York.

To Our Subscribers.

Send to E. P. Shumway, Jr., Boston, Mass., for a free sample copy of the COTTAGE HEARTH, a beautiful illustrated magazine and we realize what an extraordinary offer we are making when we offer to send both the COTTAGE HEARTH and the CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL for a full year for only $2.00 in advance. Remember this offer is for a short term at rate of fifty cents per month. Address Vicos E. Lawrence, Publisher THE DAILY NEWS, 123 Fifth Ave. Chicago. Ill.

The Chicago Weekly News

Eight pages, 56 columns is the largest dollar weekly in America. 19

Cash Club Rates

For the convenience of our friends who want a city paper the coming year we will furnish either of the following with the JOURNAL one year at the price named:

Price		With the Journal.
$0.50	Babyland	2.00
1.00	Chicago Weekly Herald	2.00
1.00	Chicago Weekly News	2.00
1.00	Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer	2.00
2.00	Cosmopolitan Magazine, monthly	3.00
1.50	Garage Hearth, monthly	2.50
1.00	Detroit Weekly Free Press	2.00
1.00	Harper's Bazar	4.00
4.00	Harper's Magazine, monthly	4.50
4.00	Harper's Weekly	4.50
2.00	Harper's Young People	3.00
1.00	Little Men and Women	2.00
1.00	Montreal Herald and Star	2.00
2.50	New York Weekly Graphic	3.00
1.00	New York Weekly Star	2.00
1.00	New York Weekly World	2.00
1.00	Puck	2.10
4.00	Scribner's Magazine	3.75
1.00	Toledo Weekly Blade	2.00
1.40	Wide Awake	2.10
1.00	Young Folks' Journal	2.10

PENSIONS!

WILLIAM E. GREENE, late Assistant Chief of the Pension Bureau, Office Adjudicating Claims, engaged in the prosecution of pension claims and all other soldier claims.

His thorough experience in the Pension Office and in the prosecution of these claims renders his services especially valuable.

Special attention given to the working up of rejected or abandoned claims on which other attorneys have failed.

Co-operates with respectable attorneys throughout the country in cases which need attention at Washington.

Many pensioners who are entitled to increase do not obtain it because they do not apply for it promptly, or because they have been improperly rejected. Particular attention paid to such cases.

No fee unless successful. Advice free. Refers by permission to

Hon. B. W. Townsend, of Illinois,
Hon. C. C. Matson, of Indiana,
Hon. E. N. Morrill, of Kansas,
Hon. Thos. Ryan, of Kansas,
Hon. D. B. Henderson, of Iowa,
Hon. James Laird, of Nebraska,
Hon. T. S. Struble, of Iowa.

Address,

WM. E. GREENE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

DIMPLES. Will mail (sealed) receipt to any lady who will send 2 stamps for postage, a recipe of a simple VEGETABLE BALM that will remove TAN, FRECKLES, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, BLACK HEADS, etc., leaving the skin soft, clear and beautiful.

Touch with this compound the not by other. And the bright glow will cast its reproach upon the cheek. Fifteen thousand in the number of entries to a volume.

Also instructions for producing a luxuriant growth of hair on a bald head or smooth face. Address—A. D. SHARPE, 40 Ann St., New York.

TERRACE FARM, J. S. & J. R. DIXON, Milk, Butter, and Vegetables. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

THE STAR FOR MAN AND BEAST!

A Newspaper supporting the Principles of a Democratic Administration.

Published in the City of New York,

WILLIAM DORSHEIMER, EDITOR.

Daily, Weekly, and Sunday Editions.

THE WEEKLY STAR, An Eight-page Newspaper, issued every Wednesday.

A clean, pure, bright and interesting FAMILY PAPER.

It contains the latest news, down to the hour of going to press.

Agricultural, Market, Fashion, Household, Financial and Commercial, Political, Poetical, Humorous and Editorial Departments, all under the direction of trained journalists of the highest ability. Its columns will be found crowded with good things from beginning to end.

Original stories by distinguished American and foreign writers of fiction.

TERMS OF THE WEEKLY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.

ONE DOLLAR FOR ONE YEAR.

Cheaper than any other paper in the United States and Canada.

Subscribe for the Weekly STAR, $1.00 PER YEAR.

FOR THREE MONTHS, on trial, 25 cents.

Special terms and extraordinary inducements to agents and canvassers. Sent free on application.

THE DAILY STAR.

THE DAILY STAR contains all the news of the day in an attractive form. Its special correspondence is by cable from London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Dublin, its letters from all points.

At Washington, Albany, and other state centers, the STAR has correspondents specially retained by THE STAR, that its readers may be informed of all events.

Its literary features are unsurpassed.

The financial and commercial reviews are unusually full and complete.

TERMS OF THE DAILY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, outside of the City of New York and Brooklyn.

Every day, for one year (including Sunday), $7.00
Daily, without Sunday, one year 6.50
Every day, six months 3.50
Daily, without Sunday, six months 3.00
Sunday, without daily, one year 1.50

Address, THE STAR,
Broadway and Park Place, New York.

For Hard Times.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is a complete newspaper in all that constitutes the best type of American journalism. It is a member of the Associated Press, and is the only 1-cent morning paper in Chicago that possesses this first essential to a complete news serv ce. In addition this its own private leased wires connecting its office with Washington and New York. It prints ALL THE NEWS.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is an independent paper. It recognizes the utility of political part es as means for the accomplishment of proper ends, but it declines to regard any mere party as a fit subject for unquestioning adoration. It is unbiased in its presentation of political news.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Is a "short-and-to-the-point" paper. It leaves to the "blanket-sheets" the monopoly of tiresome and worthless long fiction. It says all that is to be said in the shortest possible manner. It is a paper for busy people.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Now prints and sells over 175,000 copies per day—a larger circulation than that of all the other Chicago dailies combined. Sold by all news dealers at two cents per copy. Mailed to any address, postage prepaid, for six dol ars per year, or for a shorter term at rate of fifty cents per month. Address Victor F. Lawson, Publisher THE DAILY NEWS, 123 Fifth Ave. Chicago. Ill.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY AND STEAMSHIP PRIMER

ILLUSTRATED · MONTHLY MAGAZINE

With Twelve Cut Paper Patterns of your own selection and of any size.

BOTH PUBLICATIONS, ONE YEAR, $3.10 (THREE TEN).

DEMOREST'S THE BEST Of all the Magazines.

CONTAINING Stories, Poems and other Literary attractions, combining Artistic, Scientific and Household matters.

Illustrated with Original Steel Engravings, Photogravures, Oil Pictures and fine Wood Engravings, Fashion Plates, Patterns, etc.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY is justly entitled to be called the Queen of the Fashion Magazines. It is the cheapest and best of all, and has been TWO Dollar Family Magazine issued. 1886 will be in its 20th year, and yearly it has improved, it is continually improved and so extensively so as to place it in the front rank of Literary Periodicals, and equal to any magazine. Contains Superb Steel Engravings, Fine Wood Engravings, Original and fully illustrated. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, New York, AND BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT CAN BE SENT WITH THE Charlevoix Journal at $3.10 Per Year.

PRESBYTERIANS READ THIS

Should take the Banner and Presbyterian, a large eight-page weekly, containing the Sabbath School Lesson, Sermon, Prayer Meeting Lesson, Religious Intelligence, Editorials, Contributions, Etc., Etc. Only $2 per year. Send on $2.50 and we will send you the Banner and Presbyterian for one year and a copy of the

"Longfellow in His Library,"

Signed by Nelson. The latch hooks. Add 5 cents postage for pulpit or parlor.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We now on hand, by agreement from Poet's heirs, a large quantity of the Poet's Study Chairs, which we will send, FREE to each person who will remit the subscription price to the Banner and Presbyterian, $2 per year, the only weekly paper devoted to the interests of PRESBYTERIANS. Order and get your chairs in order with your paper. Address, BANNER AND PRESBYTERIAN, 178 Elm St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Best Sermons, Best Stories, Best Editorials, Best Correspondence, Best Poetry, Best Everything. Subscribe now. Sample copies free.

ARBUCKLES'

name on a package of COFFEE is a guarantee of excellence.

ARIOSA

COFFEE is kept in all first-class stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COFFEE

is never good when exposed to the air. Always buy this brand in hermetically sealed ONE POUND PACKAGES.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease, Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

NO HOME BLESSED WITH A BABY

is complete without the monthly visits of Bazooom, that delight, comfort and aid of the mother. Only physician in the world devoted to the care of young children. We are glad to recommend it. Book mailed free. Address BAZOOOM, 1164 Broadway, N. Y.) $1.50 a year; 15 cents a copy.

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD

AND THE

Charlevoix Journal

ONE YEAR

For $2.00

Sample Copies at this Office.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL.

NUMBER 230. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.: THURSDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1887. $1.50 PER YEAR.

THE JOURNAL

Published every Thursday

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

Office on Bridge Street,

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

ARTHUR E. MARTIN, Attorney at law, Boyne City. Collections promptly attended to.

CHUCKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law and Proctors in Admiralty. Office in Bushnell Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

A. D. CHUCKSHANK. C. J. GRIER.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney and Counselor at Law. Collections promptly attended to.

MONEY TO LOAN.

J. MILO RATON, Attorney at Law. Charlevoix, Mich.

W. MOORE, Attorney and Solicitor, East St. Jordan. Admiralty a Specialty.

DENTISTRY.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office at Cocoran's Drug Store, CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

PHYSICIANS.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office and residence Bridge St. Office hours: 8 to 10 A. M., and 6 to 8 P. M.

L. G. HODGE, Physician and Surgeon. Office in the Lewis block, Charlevoix, Mich.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

HORACE S. HARSHA, Notary Public, Real Estate, Loan, and Insurance Agt., Charlevoix.

W. F. BROWN, Cashier. A. C. BROWN, Ass't Cashier.

Brown & Co's Bank of Charlevoix

CAPITAL, $25,000

Drafts drawn direct upon 1 st national cities of the world. Money received on deposit. Interest allowed on time deposits. Collections made on favorable terms. Exchange on Europe by best lines. Loans and money to loan. Michigan National Bank, New York; First National Bank, Chicago; Merchants and Manufacturers' National Bank, Detroit; Fourth National Bank, Grand Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

O. D. WOOD, President.
A. BUTTARS, Vice President.
F. A. SMITH, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

O. D. WOOD, M. H. WOOD,
A. BUTTARS, F. W. MAYNE,
F. A. SMITH, J. L. HURD.

NO SURPLUS.

CAPITAL.....$25,000
Surplus.....0,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all state banks in proportion to their stock, are fixed by Statutes of the State of Michigan, as follows: Section 1. Banks organized under the laws of Michigan, shall have a capital of $50,000 or more, and not more than $100,000 shall be the liability of each stockholder of Banking business, over and above the amount of stock owned by him, in addition to the amount invested in such stock.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world. Money received on deposit. Money to loan on approved security. Exchange bought and sold. Interest allowed on deposits kept for a stated time.

We respectfully solicit your patronage.

Correspondents:

National Park Bank, New York.
Commercial National Bank, Chicago.
National City Bank, Grand Rapids.
Detroit National Bank, Detroit.

MORTGAGE SALE.—A mortgage dated November 8th, 1886, executed by Martin J. Staley and Elizabeth Staley his wife, to Martha J. Ayer, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, in liber 1 of mortgages, page 1, on the 8th day of November, 1886, said mortgage was assigned by said Martha J. Ayer to Orvin D. Wood, February 19, 1887, and the assignment recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, in liber 1 of mortgages, at page 1, on the 24th day of February, 1887, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date hereof, the sum of [illegible] principal and interest, to pay which sum and prior sums secured by said mortgage default has been made, and no suit or proceeding having been taken, will be foreclosed under the power of sale contained therein, and the premises covered by said mortgage are described as the south half of the southeast quarter and the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section twenty-two, township thirty-three north, of range seven west, containing one hundred and twenty acres, more or less, at the front door of the court house in the city of Charlevoix, where the circuit court for said county is held, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 4th day of February, 1888.

Dated Charlevoix, Mich., Nov. 4, 1887.

ORVIN D. WOOD,
Assignee of Mortgage,

J. MILO RATON,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Michigan.

NEW LIVERY AND Feed Barn.

LITNEY & STEIMEL

PROPRIETORS

Opposite Bridge Street House Charlevoix,

FIRST-CLASS RIGS REASONABLE RATES.

NEW - GOODS!

Call and see my new assortment of

WATCHES, JEWELRY SILVERWARE,

OPTICAL GOODS, ETC., ETC.

NEW PATTERNS IN SILVERWARE

A large assortment of Spectacles and Eyeglasses, for all ages, for both far and near sighted.

Repairing done Promptly and Warranted. Jewelry sent by mail will be returned in a reasonable time for charges.

C. E. BELLINGER,
Bridge St. - Charlevoix.

Jos. Beauvais

BOAT-BUILDER.

The Best Modeled, Easiest Rowing, and Best Sailing Boats on the Lakes. Address, Charlevoix, Michigan, for the Least Money. Give me a Trial. I am bound to Please.

Boat Livery

In connection with shop.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

MILLINERY, Dressmaking, Ladies' Fancy Goods.

A Splendid Line of Ribbons, Ladies' Gloves, Zephyrs, Laces, Ladies' Fine Underwear, and Stamping Goods always on hand at Lowest Prices.

ALDRICH SISTERS,
At the Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

E. B. HODGE & CO.

Have a full stock of

HARNESS

and everything in that line, and are prepared to sell at kinds of Repairing on Short Notice.

As Cheap as the Cheapest.

E. B. HODGE & CO.,
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

WM. J. STEVENSON,
HORSE-SHOEING,

Wagon Shop,

BLACKSMITHING, ETC.

Heavy Wagons on hand and made to order. I manufacture the celebrated "Charlevoix Wagon," and WARRANT ALL WORK. Call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

9 UP ONE BLOCK WEST OF CARPENTER, BARTHOLOMEW & CO.'S STORE, CHARLEVOIX.

THE OSBORNE MOWING MACHINE on hand and for sale.

PENSIONS!

WILLIAM E. GREENE, late Assistant Chief of the Western Division, Pension Bureau, is now engaged in the prosecution of pension and all other soldier claims.

His thorough experience in the Pension Office and in the prosecution of these claims renders his services especially valuable.

Special attention given to the working up of rejected or abandoned claims on which other attorneys have failed.

Co-operates with respectable attorneys throughout the country in cases which need attention at Washington.

Many pensioners who are entitled to increase do not obtain it because they do not apply for it promptly, or because they have been improperly rejected. Particular attention paid to such cases.

No fee unless successful. Advice free.

Refers by permission to

Hon. B. W. Townsend, of Illinois,
Hon. C. C. Matson, of Indiana,
Hon. E. N. Morrill, of Kansas,
Hon. Thos. Ryan, of Kansas,
Hon. D. B. Henderson, of Iowa,
Hon. James Laird, of Nebraska,
Hon. T. S. Struble, of Iowa.

Address,

WM. E. GREENE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

THIS PAPER READ THIS

Should take the Banner and Presbyterian, a large eight-page weekly, containing the Sabbath School Lesson, Sermon, Prayer Meeting Lesson, Religious Intelligence, Editorials, Contributions, Etc., Etc. Only $2 per year. Send on $2.50 and we will send you the Banner and Presbyterian for one year and a copy of the

"Longfellow in His Library,"

Signed by Nelson. The latch hooks. Add 5 cents postage for pulpit or parlor.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We now on hand, by agreement from Poet's heirs, a large quantity of the Poet's Study Chairs, which we will send, FREE to each person who will remit the subscription price to the Banner and Presbyterian, $2 per year, the only weekly paper devoted to the interests of PRESBYTERIANS. Order and get your chairs in order with your paper. Address, BANNER AND PRESBYTERIAN, 178 Elm St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Best Sermons, Best Stories, Best Editorials, Best Correspondence, Best Poetry, Best Everything. Subscribe now. Sample copies free.

$40 Given Away

AT

G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

(NO LOTTERY.)

A Handsome Davis Sewing Machine given to the person guessing the nearest to the number of Beans contained in a glass globe. Every person purchasing $1.00 or more is entitled to a guess for each and every dollar's worth of goods purchased at our store during the month of December.

Cash Club Rates

For the convenience of our friends who want a city paper the coming year, we will furnish either of the following with the JOURNAL one year at the price named:

Price		With the Journal.
$0.50	Babyland	1.80
1.00	Chicago Weekly Herald	2.00
1.00	Chicago Weekly News	2.00
1.00	Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer	2.00
2.00	Cosmopolitan Magazine, monthly	3.00
1.50	Garage Hearth, monthly	2.50
1.00	Detroit Weekly Free Press	2.00
4.00	Harper's Bazar	4.00
4.00	Harper's Magazine, monthly	4.50
4.00	Harper's Weekly	4.50
2.00	Harper's Young People	3.00
1.00	Little Men and Women	2.00
1.00	Montreal Herald and Star	2.00
2.50	New York Weekly Graphic	3.00
1.00	New York Weekly Star	2.00
1.00	New York Weekly World	2.00
1.00	Puck	2.00
4.00	Scribner's Magazine	3.75
1.00	Toledo Weekly Blade	3.00
1.40	Wide Awake	2.10
1.00	Young Folks' Journal	2.10

John Nicholls,

CHARLEVOIX, MICH.,

Manufacturer of and dealer in

HARDWOOD AND PINE

LUMBER!

ALSO

Dressed lumber, Oar Blades,

WAGON TONGUES, SPOKES, LATH ETC.

LUMBER SAWED AND BILLS FILLED TO ORDER.

LIVERY

Feed and Sale Stables.

Burns, Stevens & Co.,

The Oldest and Largest Livery Stable in Charlevoix County. The Best Rigs and Double Rigs always on hand. Rates Low.

BRIDGE STREET,
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

ARBUCKLES'

name on a package of COFFEE is a guarantee of excellence.

ARIOSA

COFFEE is kept in all first-class stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COFFEE

is never good when exposed to the air. Always buy this brand in hermetically sealed ONE POUND PACKAGES.

Portable Boiler FOR SALE.

Twelve feet long, 34 feet shell, 4 feet wood; in perfect order, good and cheap. Address

I. E. ALLEN,
Charlevoix, Mich.

200tf

A. J. McLeod

Can be found at the old stand with a

FULL STOCK OF MEATS

At Wholesale and Retail.

HIDES, PELTS, & FAT STOCK WANTED

F. E. WOOD, BARBER SHOP

And Bath Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at all hour of the day and evening.

PRESBYTERIANS READ THIS

Should take the Banner and Presbyterian, a large eight-page weekly, containing the Sabbath School Lesson, Sermon, Prayer Meeting Lesson, Religious Intelligence, Editorials, Contributions, Etc., Etc. Only $2 per year. Send on $2.50 and we will send you the Banner and Presbyterian for one year and a copy of the

"Longfellow in His Library,"

Signed by Nelson. The latch hooks. Add 5 cents postage for pulpit or parlor.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We now on hand, by agreement from Poet's heirs, a large quantity of the Poet's Study Chairs, which we will send, FREE to each person who will remit the subscription price to the Banner and Presbyterian, $2 per year, the only weekly paper devoted to the interests of PRESBYTERIANS. Order and get your chairs in order with your paper. Address, BANNER AND PRESBYTERIAN, 178 Elm St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Best Sermons, Best Stories, Best Editorials, Best Correspondence, Best Poetry, Best Everything. Subscribe now. Sample copies free.

DR. HILL'S ENGLISH BUCHU

Is One of the Best

Kidney

INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

THE DIRECT ROUTE

BETWEEN

MACKINAW CITY

DETROIT JACKSON,

The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 7.00 a. m. daily except Sunday, and 10.50 a. m. daily, arriving at Detroit	9.10 p. m.	3.40 a. m.

Jackson	10.20 p. m.	4.50 a. m.
Toledo	10.55 p. m.	5.25 a. m.
Buffalo	4.35 a. m.	10.45 a. m.
Suspension Bridge	6.15 a. m.	12.40 p. m.
Rochester	7.25 a. m.	1.40 p. m.
Albany	12.05 p. m.	6.40 p. m.
New York	3.45 p. m.	10.00 p. m.

Trains leave Detroit 7.00 a. m. daily, except Sunday, and 12.50 p. m. daily, arriving at Mackinaw City 9.45 p. m. and 4.45 a. m.

Sleeping Cars on all Day Trains.

Parlor Cars on Day Trains between Detroit and Mackinaw City.

Buffalo Sleeping Cars on Night Trains.

Through Tickets to all points East and Southeast.

Connections made in Union Depots at Buffalo and Suspension Bridge with Through Lines for all points East and Southeast.

Connections made at Mackinaw City with Steamers for Marquette, Duluth, Ashland, Green Bay, Milwaukee, Chicago, Manistique, Escanaba, Menominee, Marinette, Sault Ste. Marie, Port Huron, Detroit, Cleveland, Toledo, Sandusky, Buffalo, Oswego, Ogdensburg, Montreal, Portland, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Norfolk, Newport News, Cincinnati, Louisville, Nashville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Augusta, Savannah, Jacksonville, Charleston, New Orleans, Galveston, Denver, Portland, Oregon, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Victoria, Vancouver, Alaska, Yokohama, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Manila, Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Auckland, Honolulu, Apia, Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, Port Natal, Durban, Mauritius, Reunion, Aden, Suez, Alexandria, Malta, Gibraltar, Liverpool, London, Glasgow, Belfast, Londonderry, Queenstown, Cherbourg, Southampton, Antwerp, Rotterdam, Amsterdam, Hamburg, Bremen, Copenhagen, Christiania, Stockholm, Havre, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Pesth, Constantinople, Smyrna, Athens, Rome, Naples, Genoa, Leghorn, Marseilles, Barcelona, Madrid, Lisbon, Oporto, Malaga, Havana, Vera Cruz, City of Mexico, Panama, Valparaiso, Callao, Rio Janeiro, Montevideo, Buenos Ayres, Pernambuco, Bahia, Demerara, Barbados, St. Thomas, St. Lucia, St. Kitts, Nassau, Bermuda, Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis, Toledo, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Troy, Boston, Portland, Me., Montreal, Quebec, St. John, Halifax, Charlottetown, Portland, Oregon, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Victoria, Vancouver, Alaska, Yokohama, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Manila, Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Auckland, Honolulu, Apia, Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, Port Natal, Durban, Mauritius, Reunion, Aden, Suez, Alexandria, Malta, Gibraltar, Liverpool, London, Glasgow, Belfast, Londonderry, Queenstown, Cherbourg, Southampton, Antwerp, Rotterdam, Amsterdam, Hamburg, Bremen, Copenhagen, Christiania, Stockholm, Havre, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Pesth, Constantinople, Smyrna, Ath

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

THE WIDE WORLD.

A Catalogue of the Week's Important Occurrences Concisely Summarized.

Intelligence by Electric Wire from Every Quarter of the Civilized World.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

PROHIBITION DEFEATED IN ATLANTA.

White Women Work Hard in the Temperance Cause, but the Black Men Vote for Rev. Lapsen.

THE Prohibitionists have been defeated at Atlanta, Ga., by a majority of 1,122. The campaign is said to have been the most exciting one in the history of the State. There are extensive interests in the county, of which six are in Atlanta. The anti carried every city precinct and all but one of those in the county. In the election two years ago the prohibitionists carried the county by 500 and the anti the city by 200, leaving 700 majority for the prohibitionists. This is now reversed by the anti carrying the county by 500 and the city by 800. An Atlanta telegram says of the election:

The lunch rooms run under the auspices of the prohibition ladies were crowded all day, and good lunches were furnished the men who worked at the polls. A band of little girls wearing white aprons served the lunches, and sang sweetly to them. Quite a sensation was caused by their appearance. At early dawn bands of women marched fantastically at the polls at which the people were to vote upon the question of the sale of liquor. In the first ballots began falling into the ballot boxes a number of women belonging to Methodist churches. All day long, the most remarkable scenes were enacted. White women engaged in conversation with negroes whom they had never seen before, urging them to support the cause of temperance. Much expectation was gathered in anticipation of the women. One girl, a chubby-faced blonde, and blue-eyed at that, leaning against a door-post, while with an arm twined around her white sash, a negroid, of a colored Hebe, whose fine proportions were enhanced by her dress of the same color, a group of white and black passed in sweet embrace, two colored dudes, hat in hand, stood on the fresh yard passing the usual compliments of the season. Just outside the gate, the lady-like Hebe in her sash, was talking to a negro dressed in a shirt with a white bosom, patting him on the breast and begging him to vote for Jesus. An old negro, who happened to be passing, threw up his hands as he looked upon the scene and exclaimed, "Bless de Lord, I've lived to see de called folks as good as de whites."

CHEATED THE GALLOWS.

Two Montana Indians, Jailed for Horse Stealing, Murder Two White Prisoners and Then Commit Suicide.

INTELLIGENCE of a ghastly quadruple tragedy reaches us by wire from Glendive, in Montana, the particulars of which are as follows:

Sioux Indians named Finger-Nail, Sitting-in-Front, and Pete Matthews, confined in the county jail for horse-stealing, made an attack upon their jailer, Gilmore, and two other prisoners, a boy of 17 years of age, and another white with whom the jail was supplied. After effecting their escape, the Indians shot Gilmore, Finger-Nail and Sitting-in-Front hanged themselves in their cell by tying their blankets. They were assisted by the other Indian, Pete Matthews, who, in fact, had murdered the dead, tried to bolt his prisoner when the jailer was shot down. He was secured by the other prisoners. The two Indians who hanged themselves had shaved themselves all over their heads before resorting to hanging. Francisco Salazar, an Indian, was sentenced to ten years for burglary, was stabbed in several places and killed by the other boys. The other prisoner, J. H. Tuttle, was stabbed and pounded over the head with chairs in the hands of the Indians. The Indians who did the work lived in fear of themselves to death several months ago and threatened to commit suicide if they would live to be tried for horse-stealing.

A FIREBUG'S AWFUL WORK.

A Father and His Five Children Find Death in Their Blazing Dwelling.

A HORRIBLE holocaust is reported by telegraph from Wausau, Wis.

A building occupied as a residence by Carl Honkel, his wife, and five children, was set on fire, and before assistance could reach them three of the children perished and the other two and the father have since died of their injuries. Mrs. Honkel was saved alive, but her injuries are of a character that will cause her death. Mania, and it is feared she will be left a hopeless and totally insane. The building was a wooden structure, double boarded, filled in with sawdust, and very inflammable. The flous was used for fuel, consequently there was a fire in the kitchen. The fire started in the kitchen and the usually were doubtless asphyxiated before they were reached by the flames. It looks as was a hard-working, industrious German family, dragged through the window to be but closed in each arm the inanimate bodies of two babies.

GLADSTONE COMING.

The Grand Old Man to Pay Us a Two Months' Visit in the Spring.

Mr. Chauncey A. Giddy, of the American Exchange, London, in conversation with a Buffalo reporter, says a dispatch from that city, stated that his present visit to the United States was for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for a visit by Mr. Gladstone in April next. Mr. Gilby says that Mr. Gladstone's visit will occupy about two months' time, and that he will visit the principal cities.

Bloody Indian Territory.

A TRAGEDY is reported from the Indian Territory, which grew out of the attempt of a deputy marshal named Dalton to arrest a notorious half-breed named Smith. The latter was found in a tent, in which there were also another man named Dixon and his wife. When the officer inquired for Smith the desperado rushed out and fired upon him, and a general fight ensued, which resulted in the killing of Dalton and Smith and Mrs. Dixon. Dalton and Cole were brave men, have killed several desperadoes in the Nation, and were looked upon by the United States Marshal as the best men on his force. This makes fifteen United States Marshals killed in Indian Territory during the last two years.

THE EASTERN STATES.

TWO COAL miners, named Gilmore and Dennison, fought a desperate prize-fight over a girl, near Wilkesbarre, Pa. The fight lasted 1 hour and 10 minutes, and 44 rounds were fought. When the forty-fifth round was called Constable McHenry broke into the ring and declared the men under arrest. Both men were terribly punished. While the fight was in progress a dog owned by Dennison, which viewed the battle from between the legs of the bystanders, broke through the ropes, and, seizing his master knocked to the ground, fell Gilmore in the face. The dog refused to loosen his hold, and his jaws had to be pried open by an iron bar. Gilmore was horribly punished, and may not recover.

A PHILADELPHIA dispatch states that T. V. Powderly, General Master Workman, Knights of Labor, when shown the published report of a letter purporting to have been written by him to R. T. Gould, of Indianapolis, Ind., which expressed his determination to resign, said: "I sent no letter to Gould embracing the points he claims, but he probably takes extracts from other communications I sent him, and, combining them with the gist of my speech at Minneapolis, published the combination as coming from me. You can say for me, I am not going to resign this year. That is about all I can say on the question."

THE WESTERN STATES.

A SITE for the graves of the executed anarchists, says a Chicago telegram, "has been selected in Waldheim Cemetery. The friends of the anarchists visited the vault and opened the casket containing Lingg's remains. The mutilated face of the bomb-maker had undergone no change. Mr. Schwingel clipped off a lock of the suicide's hair. None of the other caskets were opened. Members of the defense committee say that they will have no trouble in raising a monument to 'the martyrs,' and in transforming the site of their tombs into an attractive Mecca for their sympathizers. No money has as yet been laid aside for the purpose, all that has thus far been received having been devoted to the care of the families of the dead men and their imprisoned fellows."

A special telegram from Omaha, Neb., reports that—

Engineer Markham and his fireman had a thrilling experience with a panther on the Chicago and Missouri River road, between Minden and Axtell. The train was a long one, and heavily laden, and between two stations pieces named the engine slipped on the rails, and it was necessary for the fireman to get out to set matters right. They had about completed the job when both heard a bell tap under their feet, and turn out, and either could turn a large panther springs upon the engineer and had a heavy wrench in his hand, and with this struck the brute on the head. The partially stunned beast had let loosened his hold on the engineer, but before the men could take advantage of the situation the panther made a leap for the fireman, and fastened his teeth in the calf of the man's left leg. Engineer Markham by this time had drawn his revolver and shot the brute between the eyes, killing him instantly. Both men were badly hurt and will be laid up for some time. The panther measured 7 feet 6 inches from nose to the end of his tail, and weighed nearly 300 pounds.

THE loss by the burning of the packing-house of the Fox Motsos (Iowa) Packing Company is estimated at $250,000; insurance, $100,000. Fire destroyed two blocks of dwelling-houses in the suburbs of San Francisco, causing a loss of $75,000.

MAJ. SALT, a German woman of Lawrence, Kan., who abstained from food for four weeks, died. When spoken to she invariably answered in quotations from the Bible.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

A NEW ORLEANS telegram gives the following particulars of a sanguinary conflict between citizens and a body of negro strikers at Thibodeaux, La.:

About daylight the colored strikers in a body started toward the white parishes which had not joined in the strike, and when they reached the opened fire upon them, seriously wounding two estimable young men. When the news was brought to headquarters a general alarm was sounded and on all sides men and boys flocked together. The whites, to the number of 500, quickly marched to the scene where the shooting had been perpetrated. The negro drivers, fearing the result, ambushed whenever they returned the fire, and a general battle ensued, which was kept up for 2 hours, the negroes were dispersed. Ten rioters are known to have been killed and several others were wounded. While the New Orleans communists, who are mostly white, were marching to their life, are armed with every sort of weapon, nothing has yet been heard for the conduct of the gallant whites. That prompt action saved the town, and undoubtedly also saved the lives of hundreds of innocent women and children who at a moment fraught with great peril were left unprotected. The whites hesitated or failed to do their duty it is admitted that the list of killed would have run up into the hundreds. The Governor has again ordered the militia to the scene of the troubles.

A MEMPHIS special says: "The sun is almost obscured by the dense smoke which shrouds and penetrates the city. The terrible fires of the last week continue to rage with unabated fury. All the local packets are frequently four to seventy-two hours behind time, owing to the dense smoke which prevails and prevents them from running at night."

THE steamer Charles P. Chouteau was burned at Sandtower Landing, 150 miles below Memphis. Her cargo, consisting of 4,350 bales of cotton, 2,200 sacks of oil-cake, and 200 empty barrels, was totally destroyed. Two colored men perished in the flames.

MAJ. MARTIN and her two children, occupying a cabin in the woods in Henderson county, Kentucky, were burned to death by forest fires. The flames surrounded their humble home, and the unfortunates were roasted alive.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON special to Chicago Inter Ocean: "The friends of Randall have been advised that if their leader is not willing to accept the administration tariff bill he will be drummed out of camp. The force of 'reading Randall out of the party' is a pretty old one here, and he is likely to live to fight many a day as an honored leader in his party. That he will not accept the administration bill there is not the slightest doubt. He will consent to a large reduction of revenue, but he will never allow two-thirds of the reduction to come from sources now protected by the tariff. In the last Congress Randall had less than a score of adherents on the Democratic side of the House; now he is credited with thirty."

EX-TREASURER CARLISLE feels so sure of re-election that he is said to be already at work making up the committees for the Fifty-first Congress, says a Washington special to the Chicago Tribune.

He finds that 19 members of the last House have dropped out. Among these are the following: Chairman, William R. Morrison, of Illinois; Ways and Means, John Randolph Tucker of Virginia, Judiciary, William M. Springer, of Illinois; Banking and Currency, John H. Reagan, of Texas; Commerce, Albert S. Willis of Kentucky; Rivers and Harbors, Edward S. Bragg of Wisconsin, Military Affairs, Thomas J. Henderson of Indiana, Public Lands, John Wallworth of Texas, Indian Affairs, William Springer, of Illinois, Post Office, James Throckmorton of Texas, Pacific Railroads, D. Wyatt Aiken of South Carolina, Education, Charles T. Stephens of Connecticut, Patents. Ten out of the fifteen members of the Committee on Appropriations are re-elected. Six Committee on Ways and Means members are re-elected, and three out of the fifteen members of the Committee on Appropriations were not re-elected. The chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee will the most important place to be filled by the Speaker. Mr. Carlisle has served for twenty years, and will have to contend himself with a special committee on the canals, says Roger Q. Mills, of Texas, has filed a mortgage for the Chairmanship.

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

The official statement of the vote cast in Ohio at the last election follows: Total vote cast, 784,068, against 726,966 in 1885 and 704,232 in 1886. For Governor—Forker (Rep.), 356,482; Powell (Dem.), 338,305; Seitz (Labor), 24,712; Sharp (Proh.), 20,569; scattering, 14; Foraker's plurality, 18,177. The statement shows a slight increase in the prohibition vote over 1885, when Leonard had 28,81 votes.

The report of the county canvassers on the vote in New York city and county for Secretary of State is as follows: Total vote cast, 214,927, of which Frederick Cook (Dem.) received 111,186; Frederick D. Grant (Rep.) 98,262; Henry George (Union Labor), 37,477; Edward Hall (Pro.), 5,889; DeWitt C. Huntington (Socialist), 1,152; scattering, 96.

The official reports of all the counties of the vote cast at the recent election in Pennsylvania have been received, the totals for State Treasurer are: Hart (Rep.), 385,514; McGrath (Dem.), 346,369; Irish (Pro.), 19,151; Kennedy (Labor), 8,695; Hart's plurality, 45,145; total vote cast, 759,193.

THE FOREIGN BUDGET.

A CABLE dispatch from Paris says: "M. Grevy requested M. Bihot to form a Cabinet and charged him to convey to the Chamber his message of resignation. M. Bihot consented, but advised M. Grevy that as the message was a political act, the tenor of which required the approval of the Cabinet, the President ought to confer with the retiring Ministers. M. Grevy accordingly summoned M. Rouvier and his colleagues.

MR. BAYROUX, says a London dispatch, has written a letter, in which he refers to the "unfortunate episode" of O'Brien's clothes. He says O'Brien is not treated in Tullamore prison exactly with leniency or severity. He has succeeded in sheltering himself under a medical opinion that his lungs are diseased, and he has passed under Balfour also says that if Mr. O'Brien refuses to wear the prison dress there will be no compulsion to force him. There is no reason why he should not be allowed to wear his own clothes, but he cannot safely be subjected to the usual prison discipline.

In the German Reichstag, on Saturday, the President read a telegram from the Czar to Prince in response to a message of sympathy sent by the Reichstag, expressing the Czar's sympathy and expressing the hope that the favorable turn in his ailment which has already resulted from his visit to the south would permit him to resume to the full extent his duties to the Fatherland.

THE WORLD AT LARGE.

EX-SENATOR CHARLES F. JONES, of Florida, is reported in financial circles at Detroit. He has been turned out of hotels and restaurants, but he has been taken in charge by a friend who will give him a home for the present. It is said that he is a mental wreck.

The Executive Committee of the Patrons of Husbandry of Ohio, which, reported $4,585 expended during the past year for lecturers, and recommended the establishment of a permanent headquarters at Washington, have received, etc., could be kept. It also favored changes in the patent laws.

Previous to the adjournment of the North Alabama Conference of the Southern Methodist Church at Tuscaloosa, last week, a resolution was adopted requesting Dr. D. C. Kelley, of Nashville, one of the most eminent Methodist divines in America, and missionary treasurer of the general conference, to resign his official position on account of his unanimous election to succeed Emma Abbott episode at Nashville. The resolution has created a great sensation throughout the entire Southern Methodist Church. Dr. Kelley defended Miss Abbott's rising in church to defend herself against the scandal raised on theater-going.

PRESIDENT GREVY still stubbornly resists the demands for his immediate resignation, says a Paris dispatch of Saturday. The newspapers unanimously demand the immediate resignation of the crisis. Le Paix says that President Grevy will not resign before the end of the month. Meanwhile the situation is quiet. It declares that the Orleans Princes are very active, and warns Republicans to reflect on the course they are taking. Le Paris says Rouvier agreed to read President Grevy's message only on condition that the latter withdrew his acceptance of the resignation and the President of the Senate reached the President for accepting the Ministry's resignation before the conversion opinion had been completed.

THE spelter steel market has been "cornered" by a French syndicate, which has contracted its operations very secretly. The furnaces are believed to be sold up for November, December and January.

ASSEMBLY No. 1327, Chicago, which formerly belonged to the Knights of Labor, and of which Joseph Leiter was a member, has adopted resolutions condemning his conduct in the matter of his brother anarchist, and denouncing the course and the Governor.

THE MARKETS.

	NEW YORK.
CATTLE—Steers	$4 00	@ $5 75
HOGS—Good	5.00	@ 5.70
WHEAT—No. 1 Red	.90	@ .91½
No. 2 Red	.90	@ .91½
CORN—No. 2	.47	@ .47½
OATS—White	.36	@ .41½
PORK—Mess (Old)	12.00	@ 12.50
	CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice to Prime Steers	5.25	@ 5.75
Good to Choice Cows, Heifers and Cattle	3.00	@ 3.75
Common	2.00	@ 2.75
HOGS—Shipping Grades	5.15	@ 5.40
FLOUR—Winter Wheat	3.75	@ 4.25
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Winter	.90	@ .91
CORN—No. 2	.37	@ .37½
OATS—No. 2	.27	@ .27½
BUTTER—Choice Dairy	.16	@ .22
Fine Dairy	.11	@ .12
CHEESE—Full cream, new	.10½	@ .11
EGGS—Fresh	.13½	@ .15
POTATOES—Choice, per bu	.40	@ .45
	MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—Cash	.85	@ .85½
CORN—No. 3	.41	@ .41½
OATS—No. 2 White	.29	@ .29½
RYE—No. 1	.57	@ .58
PORK—Mess	12.25	@ 12.62
	TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.75	@ .75
CORN—Mixed	.37½	@ .37½
OATS—Cash	.27½	@ .27½
RYE—No. 2	.57	@ .57½
	DETROIT.
WHEAT—Cash	.81	@ .81½
CORN—Mixed	.37½	@ .37½
OATS—No. 2 White	.29½	@ .29
	BUFFALO.
BEEF CATTLE	4.00	@ 4.75
HOGS—Live	5.25	@ 5.40
WHEAT—No. 1 White	.91	@ .91½
CORN—Mixed	.40	@ .40½
OATS—No. 2 White	.32	@ .32½
	CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.90	@ .91
CORN—No. 2	.41	@ .42
OATS—No. 2	.29	@ .29½
PORK—Mess	12.50	@ 14.00
LARD—Steam	6.75	@ 7.00
	ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 1 Red	.76	@ .77
CORN—No. 2 Mixed	.37½	@ .37½
CATTLE	4.50	@ 5.35
HOGS—Packing	5.00	@ 5.25
	INDIANAPOLIS.
BEEF CATTLE	3.50	@ 4.75
HOGS	5.00	@ 5.40
SHEEP	3.00	@ 4.00
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.87	@ .87½
CORN—No. 2	.40	@ .40½
OATS—Mixed	.28	@ .28½
	EAST LIBERTY.
CATTLE—Prime	4.60	@ 4.85
Good	4.35	@ 4.50
Common	3.50	@ 4.00
HOGS	5.25	@ 5.40
SHEEP	4.00	@ 4.75

CHANGING THE RULES.

Important Action of the Base-Ball Magnates of the National League.

The Scheme of an Eastern and Western League Peters Out—The Brotherhood Pacified.

[CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE]

The last two weeks have formed a most important fortnight in the history of base-ball. The meeting of the National Committee at Pittsburg, followed by the annual meeting of the National League at New York, were attended by results of vital importance to the game, and this year, as in previous years, the meetings in question were marked by the keenest interest. It would require too much space to state in detail the changes made by the Joint Rules Committee in the playing rules. Suffice it to say, however, that in the main the changes are highly approved, although the general impression seems to be that the alteration of the number of strikes to be allowed a batsman is unnecessary, and that it will tend toward the re-establishment of the old order of things when "strikes and balls" were common occurrence. It was long ago decided that the rules should be made uniform as well, that the public wanted to witness a heavy batting game, and another strike was added to the list of opportunity afforded the batsman to hit the ball. The change worked admirably, as the lively character of the game plainly showed, and it will tend to prevent the long-drawn-out games so much in vogue in the old days, when everything seemed to be in favor of the batsman, and pitchers and umpires what it did last fall. "Four strikes are too hard on the pitcher, says an enthusiast, in defense of the joint committee's action, and I think it will take a batsman some time to get used to the change." The elimination of that miserable projectile, however, which during the past season has given a batsman a base hit for a base on balls, is heartily gratifying to every man who has talked with your correspondent upon the subject. John Day's thoughtful mind is responsible for the idea—that of 1886—on this point, so that the fact of a man's having reached first on called balls will not alone prevent his scoring as earned runs, is encouraging. A batsman should not be held responsible for a pitcher's errors, and if he possesses the patience and good judgment to stand at the plate until he gets a ball to suit him, he should be allowed to run in his second base hit, unassisted by a base on balls. The new rule, however, is absolute and unconditional. Any violation of contract by the National League will be at proper ground for dissolution of contract. Mr. Spalding's proposition to make the game such of his young talent as he may see fit, and to place the balance of the club's services at the disposal of the Eastern and Western Circuit scheme, which, by the way, was pretty thoroughly discussed during the past few days in the dispatches from Pittsburg and New York, was, for its share of discussion, but the majority of well-posted base-ball men seem to have little at the sensational fake. It was not even discussed.

The withdrawal from the Brotherhood of Ward, Richardson, Mike Kelly and others of Ball Players waited upon their respective managers, and informed them in a friendly way the objects of the Brotherhood—that it proposes existing base-ball clubs and their players, the League appointed a committee of five, with the intention of amending the form of contract which, as it stood, was a hard one, offered by the Brotherhood committee, namely, Messrs. Spalding and Rogers, Day and Spalding, and the Brotherhood committee met in conference, and after two committees meeting in conference, which lasted over two hours, the form presented by the Brotherhood in detail, the League has assented to, for the joint committee, and in short order ratified the new form of contract. The amendment, the most important change being made in the clause relative to the distribution of the receipts in the event of a club disbanding. This was changed entirely the moment the League assented to the Brotherhood the absolute necessity of controlling the players in such a contingency. The new contract drawn up by the Brotherhood's counsel and adopted proves to be a better document all around than the old one. The principal changes are the three sections 7, 8, 15, 16 and 18. By the terms of the contract players will not be transferred at the discretion of the managers for certain offenses, a great limit being named for repeated offences. Neither will a club reserve players for the ensuing season, as was previously the case, but clubs will now pay reserve money to the amount specified in contract. Players are also exempted from the charges of a fine for five days for their misconduct. In the future, if a club disbands, resigns or is expelled, the players of such club will not be compelled to go to another club unless they desire to. The Brotherhood has the club resigning, disbanding, or expelled, the option of the right of first refusal, contracted upon the subject. John Day's thoughtful mind is responsible for the idea—that of 1886—on this point, so that the fact of a man's having reached first on called balls will not alone prevent his scoring as earned runs, is encouraging. A batsman should not be held responsible for a pitcher's errors, and if he possesses the patience and good judgment to stand at the plate until he gets a ball to suit him, he should be allowed to run in his second base hit, unassisted by a base on balls. The new rule, however, is absolute and unconditional. Any violation of contract by the National League will be at proper ground for dissolution of contract. Mr. Spalding's proposition to make the game such of his young talent as he may see fit, and to place the balance of the club's services at the disposal of the Eastern and Western Circuit scheme, which, by the way, was pretty thoroughly discussed during the past few days in the dispatches from Pittsburg and New York, was, for its share of discussion, but the majority of well-posted base-ball men seem to have little at the sensational fake. It was not even discussed.

The withdrawal from the Brotherhood of Ward, Richardson, Mike Kelly and others of Ball Players waited upon their respective managers, and informed them in a friendly way the objects of the Brotherhood—that it proposes existing base-ball clubs and their players, the League appointed a committee of five, with the intention of amending the form of contract which, as it stood, was a hard one, offered by the Brotherhood committee, namely, Messrs. Spalding and Rogers, Day and Spalding, and the Brotherhood committee met in conference, and after two committees meeting in conference, which lasted over two hours, the form presented by the Brotherhood in detail, the League has assented to, for the joint committee, and in short order ratified the new form of contract. The amendment, the most important change being made in the clause relative to the distribution of the receipts in the event of a club disbanding. This was changed entirely the moment the League assented to the Brotherhood the absolute necessity of controlling the players in such a contingency. The new contract drawn up by the Brotherhood's counsel and adopted proves to be a better document all around than the old one. The principal changes are the three sections 7, 8, 15, 16 and 18. By the terms of the contract players will not be transferred at the discretion of the managers for certain offenses, a great limit being named for repeated offences. Neither will a club reserve players for the ensuing season, as was previously the case, but clubs will now pay reserve money to the amount specified in contract. Players are also exempted from the charges of a fine for five days for their misconduct. In the future, if a club disbands, resigns or is expelled, the players of such club will not be compelled to go to another club unless they desire to. The Brotherhood has the club resigning, disbanding, or expelled, the option of the right of first refusal, contracted upon the subject. John Day's thoughtful mind is responsible for the idea—that of 1886—on this point, so that the fact of a man's having reached first on called balls will not alone prevent his scoring as earned runs, is encouraging. A batsman should not be held responsible for a pitcher's errors, and if he possesses the patience and good judgment to stand at the plate until he gets a ball to suit him, he should be allowed to run in his second base hit, unassisted by a base on balls. The new rule, however, is absolute and unconditional. Any violation of contract by the National League will be at proper ground for dissolution of contract. Mr. Spalding's proposition to make the game such of his young talent as he may see fit, and to place the balance of the club's services at the disposal of the Eastern and Western Circuit scheme, which, by the way, was pretty thoroughly discussed during the past few days in the dispatches from Pittsburg and New York, was, for its share of discussion, but the majority of well-posted base-ball men seem to have little at the sensational fake. It was not even discussed.

Cured by a Spider.

"I am no more afraid of malaria than I am of you," and as the speaker was at least ten inches taller than the reporter and proportionately broader, his fear of that dread malady was probably not excessive.

"I've had malaria and I've been cured."

"Yes, but a man can have malaria more than once."

"Not if he is cured the way I was. Just four years ago I was living in Indiana, in Vigo County, near Terre Haute. In those days a man was regarded as a stranger until he had drank about a gallon of whisky and then was shown down his bedstead three or four times with the ague. I had a rather reticent nature, and I suppose it took the climate longer to get acquainted with me than it did the ordinary run of men; for I had to drink about a barrel of whisky and take a whole pounds of quinine before I could get strong enough to even shake myself at a decent pace. Old citizens told me that I had the worst case of 'fever n ague,' as they called it, the country had ever seen.

"How were you cured?"

"I was just coming to that. I was living with the Dennis family, from the north of Ireland. Mrs. Dennis used to tell me that I was as my chills if I would take her medicine. She never would tell what the medicine was, but always said if I would let her be the doctor she would cure me. Finally one day I agreed. She waited till evening. Then she brought to my bed a towel. That was enough to sicken me, and you can't see, she said. 'What's that for?' I asked I. 'Wait and you shall see for me?' said she. So I bound the rag about my head. 'Now,' said she, 'I desiderate a glass of water in your right hand, open your mouth, take your dose and a spider will come down from a thread in your mouth. Be sure and swallow what I give you.' I promised, and then she retired to the next room and about her pains that it was with no little apprehension I opened my mouth, held my breath, and braced up to take my punishment.

"Did it taste bad?"

"It did not have any taste at all. It felt like a little ball of dust, such as you find in the corner of the carpet. I swallowed it down very quickly you can be sure, just as it was going down I felt a sharp pain in my throat, as if it had been scratched. 'Is it down?' asked Mrs. Dennis. 'Yes,' I said. 'All down?' 'Yes; now tell me what to take.' 'I'll tell you to-morrow, and then you will have no more chills.'

"I slept soundly that night, but when I woke up in the morning my throat was swollen and pained me. About 11 o'clock Mrs. Dennis came to my room. She had a little enameled box in her hand. 'There,' said she, 'lock in there and see what it is.' I looked, and I felt the blood leave my heart. I turned and fled from the room. I recovered Mrs. Dennis was standing by my side. 'Did I take one of those?' I asked. 'You took the mate of that one.'

"Twenty years ago, and I never had a chill after that day. My throat got well in time and so did I. I was effectually cured. I had to swallow another dose of that medicine to save my life.

"What was it you swallowed?" asked the reporter.

"Why, a big, hairy, black spider, and it was alive." —St. Louis Republican.

Marriage in Old Rome.

In the early days the strictest kind of marriage conferred on the Roman wife privileges which were considerable in extent and honorable in degree. When married by the law of "coemptio" she was "in manu" with the form of "confarreatio"—the two eating together of the sacrificial cake, and she, the bride, promising to share with her husband water and fire—this was set forth as a place of honor and dignity and moral power; and though she belonged to her husband, she was in a manner in community, the state took care of her interests and provided her with lawyers, and her personal liberty was certainly merged in that of her husband, who was emphatically her lord and master, and which she was counted as one of his family, and was no longer under the protection of her own; but she was secure from his caprice, and could not be divorced at his pleasure, or he could also be ill-used, and she was as much mistress in the house as he was master. "Ubi ta Gaius, ego Gaia," she said to her bridegroom when she was lifted over his threshold as a reminiscence of the time when she had been won by violence and carried off by force. "Where thou art lord I am lady," was her half-threatening promise of self-assertion, and the Roman woman was not one to use this formula falteringly and one whose dignity of command could be easily softened or defected from her. Bound by this double link of law and religion, the wife's legal position was that of her husbands child, and she was protected against the unbreadth of paternal power which made the father both the law and the executive in his own household, and enabled him to sell his children into slavery or put them to death for certain offenses. She was free from the domination of her own father, and her liberty was restricted. She inherited from her husband equally, but only equally, with her children, and if a child was shared with her brothers.—Fortnightly Review.

The Sultan's Complex Toilet.

The Sultan of Turkey is attended by six slaves every time he makes his toilet. Each slave has a separate form of the office twice, though he dresses as many times a day as Berry Wall. Poor man! he has to dress to be alone by a victim to inoperiousness! "Ho! Mustaph, what's my collar-button? Fetch me the right undershirt, Selim. By the prophet! These are not my third-best trousers! Where in ——, etc., etc., and when the Sultan is arrayed he feels as though he wanted to kick the entire six, and no doubt he does.—Boston Herald.

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

A GERMAN'S HOT PROTEST

Against the Shameful Attitude of the Germans on the Liquor Question.

Denunciation of the Men Who Are Trying to Destroy the American Sunday.

[Translated from "Der Christliche Apologete," Cincinnati.]

BLIND LEADERS OF THE PEOPLE.

We speak now as a German to Germans. Let us ask the serious and simple question: Does the German daily press have a decent regard for the moral disposition of the German-American people? One does not demand of it that it shall transform itself into a religious press. But though it may not make the one principle, it should at least strive for good morals. It should take an honest, manly, and upright stand upon all questions which intimately concern the protection of public morals, the progress of virtue and the in- ease of the conditions of home happiness and the social welfare. But with sorrow we see instead of leading and strengthening what is for the good and elevation of the people, the German press often enough leads them to the decrees of pernicious public feeling, and is content to follow the mistakes, for weak and not caring about the moals may suffer, and not caring about the high respect of people for the laws of God and man shall disappear.

In several very important matters, this indifference of the German-American press in particular, which is in the habit of the Sunday question and to the drink question, is to be deplored. Instead of, as it should, dismiss these questions by sneeringly ridiculing them as crotchets of native-born Yankees. They have become great world questions, and deserve the honest indignation at seeing men who by observation must be ashamed of the Sabbath lift their wicked heads in the land of the free and home of the brave. Instead of, as it should, to convert it into a day of drunkenness and rioting.

And what is the German who has in his heart a spark of patriotism and feels extending down by his side him when he hears the German press of America, speaking about the Sunday, ready to "Gemandem" that, in spite of the measures taken against the Sunday, in the "Fatherland," the German must seek his crowning glory in the Sunday, and that the German drinks his sweet only for the breweries and the liquor saloons!

Have, then, these pretended leaders of German spirit, German thought, German decency and German public virtue no eye for the frightful, impetuous spread and growing might of this rabble? Have they no thought of the danger to the Sunday, and to the for the disgrace that they thus bring upon the German name? Do they not see that in the liberty to drink as the higher and more refined of all the Sundays that the German enjoys? Have the Germans nothing better than the beer-glass? Shall the German draw his sword only for the power and glory of the beer-glass? Shall he only fight?

Why is this cold, heartless indifference towards the most powerful and hideous vice that holds unhappy Germans in its grasp? Why does the German press discover in every earnest endeavor to check the drink evil a "personal attack upon the German liberty?" Why are the German papers in this country classed as friends and protectors of the saloon? Why are they so closely connected in many ways with the whole heart approve of saloon? Why do they so often and so boldly ridicule those that is so terrible a foe to humanity? We know that it is not the German people that the drink habit; that no desire is so easily awakened as a powerful and uncontrollable thirst for the spirit of alcohol; that there is no other means on earth by which people so easily and so completely to be made to partially, the full control of the saloon keepers to an open and unbridled sensuality; that, despite the much-boasted German, the vice of drunkenness is more common than in any other people; that, despite the German, the drink habit has ruined tens of thousands of victims among the German people; that, despite the German, it shall not always be so. The hope of seeing the German people take a stand, attitude, through which in a right sense we may be characterized as "a social people," is, in our opinion, in the order. This hope arises from the fact

THE JOURNAL
CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.
CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

For Speaker, John G. Carlisle.

The first act of the fiftieth congress that convened last Monday, was the re-election of John G. Carlisle, speaker of the House. The best and most significant feature of the affair was Mr. Carlisle's speech accepting the office, which showed conclusively that he had not, for the sake re-election, abandoned in any degree, his firm stand on the question of tariff reform and reduction. He has been outspoken in his convictions in relation to the tariff, and the discussion has been hot. The re-election of Carlisle is a great victory for the advocates of trade emancipation.

The Tree is Known by its Fruits.

The tragic outcome of the Haymarket riot, and subsequent execution of four of the ring leaders can be inferentially traced from its inception to its conclusion to the one-sided "protection" afforded the capitalist, by which the laborer is placed entirely at his mercy, and has no appeal from oppression save that of brute force. It is a singular thing that the annals of this country afford no instances of outrage and riot when reciprocity and free trade formed our commercial policy. The fact of the matter is that the gigantic establishment of the McCormick Reaper Co. had established such rules and regulations among its employes, that the working man in that massive industry, was but little better than a slave.

It is to be regretted that in the blind hot-headed rush after wealth great corporations forget, that the uneducated masses of labor can be turned from mere hewers of wood and drawers of water, into a howling, brainless monster, capable of the most insane action, backed by an irresistable force behind, goading it on to deeds of wholesale destruction. Frankenstein created a monster, and even succeeded in infusing into the form he had made a muscular life. But the old alchemist neglected to place brains and mind in his creation and when inbued with life, the monster turned and destroyed his creator. Thus with a policy which concentrates power in the hands of the few and by legislative action "protects" such against all healthy competition, the result is that the unnatural monster thus created turns and rends its creator. Had the McCormick Reaper Co., condescended to submit the grievances their employes complained of, to a board of arbitration, we would have had no "Haymarket riot" and therefore no subsequent hanging. But on the contrary, they locked their gates and turned a multitude of aggrieved men out of doors to become the willing prey of demagogues who by their incendiary speeches provoked collision between labor and the law. "Free trade" has no such disgrace attaching to its history, but the terrible power that "protection" has placed in the hands of the few against the masses, has for the past decade borne awful fruit. And the end is not yet, as this tree of death bears a luxuriant crop.—Cheboygan News.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

Pontiac struck a natural gas gusher at a depth of 1,490 feet.

There were 781 convicts at the Jackson state prison Dec. 1st.

Prohibition was carried in Benzie county last Monday by about 400.

The Traverse Eagle has changed its form to eight pages, of six columns to the page.

Grand Traverse gave a majority in favor of prohibition at the special election Monday.

By the last issue of the Traverse Eagle, it seems that Sprague has not retired from that paper.

Manistique is happy. The railroad is just completed which gives them connection with the outside world.

Joseph Lyon of Traverse City was struck by a falling tree at Simpson's camp last week, and died next day.

Perry F. Powers, late of Ypsilanti, has bought the Cadillac News and Express, and took possession last week.

Prohibition was carried in Antrim county last Monday by about 50. Banks township gave 101 votes in favor and 9 against.

Advices from Good Harbor are that W. S. Johnson, the Catton's Bay general dealer, has rented the store formerly occupied with a general stock by the late C. Krapp, who went down with the Vernon, and has stocked the same with a general line of goods. Benj. Minsker is in charge.

The Muskegon boom company recently tendered a banquet to Ira O. Smith, retiring president. Under his management the company have delivered since 1875, 6,078,656,155 feet of logs. The banquet was attended by representative lumbermen from Grand Rapids, Chicago, and other lumber markets.

Van Buren is the first county in Michigan to act under the local option law passed at the last session of the legislature. Van Buren gave a large majority in favor of prohibition at the election in the spring, and the result of the election last week shows that there has been no change in the public sentiment.

The next day after the propeller Albany, of the Western Transit Company, ran aground on the reef off Bois Blanc island, week before last, corn and flour were very cheap, in and about Mackinac straits. After the storm ceased, all sorts of coats were put into service, picking up the jetsamed cargo. The Cheboygan Democrat says the Albany left Chicago with a cargo made up as follows: 52,831 bushels of corn, 3,050 barrels of flour, 395 barrels of corn meal, 6,150 sacks of flour, 140 sacks of bran, and 50 tierces of lard.

The $10,000 libel case of Judge Fuller against W. P. Nisbet, publisher of the Big Rapids Herald, for the publication of an article holding the plaintiff responsible for circulating bogus tickets during the last spring's election in the 27th judicial circuit, has been decided in favor of the defendant. The case was tried by Judge Mills, of Kalamazoo, who held that the article was not libelous per se, and as plaintiff failed to prove special damages, the action was not sustained, and the jury was instructed to render a verdict of no cause of action.

The first conviction in Michigan of a Bohemian oats agent, for obtaining a signature to a promissory note, under false pretenses, occurred in the circuit court for Genesee county last week. The case was that of the people vs. Alfred W. Hanner, representing the Bohemian Oats and Cereal Co., of Ypsilanti. The complaining witness was a well-known and well-to-do farmer of that county. The case occupied two days in trial, and excited a wide-spread interest, as it was generally regarded as a test case.

Millions of Persons die annually who might be saved if attention was given to the little ills of life. Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, &c. are easily cured by using Hamilton's Cough Balsam which removes the tickling in the throat and tightness across the chest, helps to throw off the poisonous matter and heals the inflamed membranes. Immediate relief will be found in Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, &c. and even in chronic cases and last stage consumption great relief is received. For incipient consumption it works like a charm. Price 25 and 75 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Money to be Made.

It is said that dull times are not known by the agents for the great publishing house of George Stinson & Co., of Portland, Maine. The reason of this exceptional success is found in the fact that they always give the public that which is honestly approached and at a price that can afford. At present, we understand, their agents are doing wonderfully well on several new lines. They need many more agents in all parts of the country. Those who need profitable work should apply at once. Women do as well as men. Experience is not necessary, for Messrs. Stinson & Co. undertake to show all who are willing to work, not hard, but easily, the path to large success. It should be remembered that an agent can do a handsome business without being away from home over night. Another advantage—it costs nothing to give the business a trial, and the agent can devote all his time or only his spare moments to it. Stinson & Co. guarantee grand success to all who engage and follow simple and plain directions that they give. We have not space to explain all here, but full particulars will be sent free to those who address the firm; their full address is given above.

Attention is called to the advertisement headed "Books three cents each," on our eighth page.

NOTICE is hereby given, that under and by virtue of a license granted by the Probate Court for the county of Wayne, state of Michigan, the undersigned will sell at public vendue, on the 30th day of January, A.D., 1888, at 12 o'clock M., at the house in the county of Charlevoix, in said county, all the right, title, and interest of David Preston, deceased, in and to all and singular the following described pieces or parcels of land, viz.: All the right, title and interest of Charlevoix, Michigan, described as follows, to wit: The west half of the southeast quarter of section thirty-four, township thirty-four north, range five west, eighty acres.

Dated Detroit, Dec. 8th, 1887.

JANE R. PRESTON,
WILLIAM D. PRESTON,
Executors of estate of said deceased.

J. G. DICKINSON,
Attorney for said executors.

RICHLY REWARDED are those who read this and then act; they will find honorable employment, that will not take them from their homes and families. The profits are large, and many have made fortunes. Several have made over one hundred dollars a month. It is you who are reading this, and asking for work, who is willing to work. Either sex, young or old; capital not needed; we start you; you can begin now. No special ability required; anyone can do the work; all are astonished at the success it gives to all every thing. Little to do at every hour; you can devote your whole time or spare moments; full particulars, which we will mail free, address Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. adv

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in hundreds of thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards, in their spare time. You are started free. Capital not required. None have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed. adv

INVENTION has revolutionized the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a simple and useful invention by which anyone can clean all over a pane of glass without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; anyone can do the work either sex, young or old. No capital or skill required. Capital not needed, you are started free with this well known article. Reader, if you write you free something of great value and importance to you, that will bring you business, which will place you in more money right away than anything else in the world. Grand outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Maine. adv

FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres of land situated on Pine Lake, 2 miles west of Ammon J. Reeve's, in the township of Eveline, Charlevoix, consisting of four hundred feet lake frontage, balance on time to suit the purchaser. For further particulars, enquire of E. G. JARMAN, Boston, Mich.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charlevoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

We are headquarters for everything in our line.

A great Reduction in the prices of CLOAKS and Wraps, to close them out.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

CALL AND SEE OUR

Christmas Goods!

We can show you Something New.

Toys a Specialty!

F. A. Cochran & Co., Charlevoix.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

Hardware Iron and Nail Merchants.

CHAMPION FORCE PUMPS

PLOWS, BARBED WIRE, ETC., LEAD.

SAVE YOUR DOLLARS

And buy them of Yours Truly,

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

A Big Bonanza in Holiday Goods!

An Enormous Stock of Holiday Goods at Tremendously Low Prices.

It will Do You Good to See this Brilliant Display.

YOU

Nor any other person ever saw such a stock of

Dressing Cases.

We offer you this year an Elegant line of these Goods. Something entirely new in Design and Workmanship. Be sure to look them over before purchasing. IT WILL PAY YOU.

NOW IS YOUR CHANCE

To buy a Photograph Album. Our Stock of

Photo. Albums

cannot be excelled anywhere in this region. They consist of HANDSOME PLUSH COVERS, ELECTRO BRONZE TRIMMINGS, BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED, and CHEAPER THAN THE CHEAPEST. DON'T FAIL TO SEE THEM.

NOTHING LIKE OUR

Manicure Sets, Toilet Sets, Work Boxes,

ODOR CASES, WHISK-BROOM HOLDERS, GENTS' DRESSING CASES; NEW NOVELTIES in this line. All of these goods are Entirely New Design, and never before have been offered for sale in this market.

REMEMBER THAT WE CAN SHOW YOU A MAMMOTH STOCK OF

Xmas Cards, Gold Pens and Pencils,

DOLLS of all kinds, FANCY STATIONERY, and a long list of Fancy and Toilet Articles to numerous to mentions.

It will do you good to see this Brilliant Display, which includes Hundreds of Gifts suitable for Old and Young. Everybody who expect to make a Christmas Present should be sure and see our ELEGANT HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS. All Visitors are Welcome, whether they buy or not. THIS IS YOUR CHANCE.

Dr. G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Dec. 9, 1887.

Local Notes and News.

Christmas goods in every store window

☞Go to G. W. Crouter's for Christmas goods.

☞For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's.

☞The Best Line of Albums in town is at G. W. Crouter's.

Perry Weed opened a very fine stock of holiday goods Monday.

The Bazaar of Miss Belle Scott is well stocked for the holiday trade.

The fish tug, Ethel J., of Petoskey, was in the harbor Tuesday night.

The Lawrence was in the harbor yesterday for the last time this season.

☞Buy goods at Crouter's and have a guess on the Sewing Machine.

Gelken's fish tug is laid up for the season, having lifted the last nets today.

Perry Weed advertises his immense stock of holiday goods by bills this week.

Wendall Evans, of Eastport and Miss Nora Smith, of Atwood were married Tuesday.

The Meetings of the high school reading club are reported as very interesting and instructive.

Sibert Ackett and Miss Julia Mason were married Tuesday evening at the bride's home by W. H. McCartney.

Capt. Guard will give his steamer, the Joseph Gordon, a thorough rebuild at Washburn's yard this winter.

☞It is admitted that the Help-Mate sewing machine is the best in the market for the money. Sold by S. M. See & Sons.

The large amount of choice reading matter we are publishing each week has induced many to add their names to our subscription list.

At their last meeting the firemen passed a resolution, thanking the public for the generous support at the Thanksgiving dance.

E. B. Hodge & Co., the harness makers, will have a new advertisement next week. In the meantime, go and see their heavy goods for winter work.

Henry Barth, boiler maker, reports a considerable addition to his stock of iron and steel materials, which puts him in shape for any job which may come this way.

The estimates for appropriations submitted to congress for the harbor improvement of Michigan during the next fiscal year, places the needs of Charlevoix at $30,000.

At the annual meeting of the Congregational church society Monday evening, Wm Kanagy and John Burns were re-elected trustees, and H. S. Harsha was re-elected clerk.

Dan Way and Stillman Parker have leased the vacant lot between the Englesside and Jefferies meat market, and intend putting up a store as soon as the carpenters can get to work.

Whatever way you may go from Charlevoix, you will find the mile posts and guide boards of A. T. Washburne & Co., not only giving distances, but directing you where to find bargains in dry goods, carpets, etc.

A. B. Brink, the village marshal calls attention of the public to the village ordinance which prohibits driving faster than a walk on the streets within the village without bells. The fine for its violation is $5.00.

Notice.—Parties owing the Charlevoix manufacturing Co. are hereby notified that any and all such amounts must be paid at once. Legal steps will be taken to enforce the collection of all past due notes and accounts. Settlements may be made at Stockman & Iddings' store.

Willie, youngest son of Harrison Miller, well known in this vicinity and now of the Point Betsy Life Saving station, was drowned Tuesday. He was out in a skiff and was swamped. Willie was about fifteen, and a bright boy. His will be remembered here as a leader of the boys of his age.

We are told that certain minors, Indians and common drunkards are getting a good deal of liquor lately, and that certain traps are being set to catch the unwary and gather in their shekels. We do not know how far this matter has been investigated or how much can be proven, but it would probably be just as well for those interested to see that violations of law are not tolerated, and that no characters dangerous to society are permitted to establish themselves.

By act No. 4, passed last winter, a drunken person does not have to be disorderly before the officers are justified in making an arrest. Simply drunk is sufficient, for which the penalty is not to exceed $20, or 30 days in jail, or both.

The girls are now working on certain mysterious combinations of cardboard, plush, silk, etc., which they hastily put aside when anyone comes in, but which will blossom out into slipper patterns, whiskbroom holders, etc., about the 25th. The boys are also beginning to call at the stores and look over the stocks of jewelry, fans, books, etc., all of which indicates that Christmas, the happiest day of all the year, is near at hand.

Purely Personal.

Bert Brown is on the sick list this week.

Prof. Dewey has been in town since Saturday.

Albert Clopping has gone to Saginaw to work.

Montie Lewis goes to Whitewater Wisconsin to day.

Geo. Martin has been groaning over a big boil on his neck.

Sam Thatcher, of Boyne made this office a call Friday last.

Roswell Mudge is in charge of the Wilcox cedar camp in Norwood.

Mrs. Dr. Carlstein returned yesterday from her two months visit in Chicago.

Henry C. Cooper is canvassing the county for a Rochester (N. Y.) nursery company.

Mrs. Hattie Benson has purchased the house and lot of A. Cameron on Antrim street.

W. A. Smith has been confirmed as executor of the estate of the late H. H. Vannornum.

Late advices from San Diego, Cal., are that Dan Jerrue and wife of this county, are there.

Mrs. Capt. H. S. Stevens left Charlevoix Monday for Buffalo N. Y., where the captain has laid up his boat, and where they will spend the winter.

Rozelle Rose, formerly of the Petoskey Democrat, now postal clerk on the route between Cadillac and Fort Wayne, will soon be on the route between Grand Rapids and Mackinaw City.

E. Carpenter, C. Y. Cook, Charles Lamoreaux, and B. W. Miller, of Charlevoix, Mich., arrived Monday evening on their way to Port Orange for winter quarters. Mr. Stockman and others from that place will follow soon.—Halifax Journal.

Coming Events.

Remember the ladies band concert next Tuesday evening. See programme.

Sermon on "What shall we say to the laboring men," at the Methodist church next Sunday evening.

Monday evening, Dec. 26th is the date of the dance to be given by the boy's band. Now don't forget it.

The ladies' cornet band will give a concert at the opera hall next Tuesday evening. Admission 25 and 10 cents.

The W. C. T. U. intend having a bazaar and supper on the week preceding Christmas in the front room of the Sentinel building.

In making plans for Christmas, don't forget to arrange for attending the dance to be given by the boy's band. Their parties are always pleasant.

The Baptist church hold their regular missionary concert this evening. Sunday morning service at 10:30; evening at 7 o'clock. Bible study and song service Tuesday evening.

The ladies of the M. E. Church will furnish a Christmas dinner in the dining-room of the Bridge Street House, Saturday, Dec. 24 from 11.30 a. m. to 3 p. m., the dinner to consist of oyster soup, roast turkeys, chickens beef and pork, vegetables, salads, pies and cakes and all for 25 cents.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning, the subject will be "Fulness of the spirit." In the evening, "Grading the King's highway." Sunday school follows the morning service. Strangers and young people, and older people with young hearts, are invited to join the pastor's bible class.

Are Your Children Pevish and sad eyed? Do they have abnormal appetites and crave food contrary? Beware of worms. Very few children escape their ravages. No child can be happy or well while suffering with worms. They sap the very life by preventing the digestion and assimilation of food. There is a sure remedy. It is called Parmelee's Santonine Worm Candies. They are perfectly harmless but will dissolve the worms and pass them off through the bowels. Buy no other. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

The County Records.

We learn that a call for a special meeting of the board of supervisors has been made for the 20th of this month. We have not learned the special purpose of the call, but hope the board will endeavor to make some provision to secure to the public the means by which title to our property can be produced and maintained. We are to-day without any means of proving title to the land in this county except by the abstracts, which are owned by private parties, to whom everyone desiring to sell or mortgage must pay any price asked for an abstract.

We are informed by real estate men that outside parties have become afraid of the titles in the county, and refuse to make further loans, or extend loans already made. And it is almost impossible to make a sale to anyone.

We are looking for a boom in real estate the coming year by the building of one and perhaps two railroads through the county, but if our records remain in the present condition we must surely lose the benefit of this, as parties will not purchase unless they are sure of a title. In this way the county will lose one of the best opportunities to have the vacant lands occupied and the county population. Parties in adjoining counties will have an advantage over us superior to any possessed heretofore, for a purchaser of land has only to be informed of the condition of our titles when he will seek in some other county for his farm.

Many other suggestions might be set forth to show the sad condition we are in, but the above is sufficient to lead any man having property in the county to consider the matter.

What can be done? We hope the board of supervisors will answer the question at their special meeting. There are two sets of abstracts in the county, and we would suggest that if one of them can be had at a reasonable figure, that one of them be secured by the county and held as county property, for the benefit of the public. If the board should do this, and then let it be known that we have the means of giving a perfect abstract of title to the lands in our county, we thereby remove the cloud upon our county.

Through the abstracts of title in existence is the only means of establishing title in the county, and the sooner this is done, the better. It is to be hoped that the matter will be given due consideration at once.

Historical Society.

The society spent a very pleasant evening at the home of A. T. Washburne, last Friday evening. An edifying program was presented, consisting of the paper by John Nicholls, subject King John and his times; reading by Prof. Enos from Shakespeare's King John, and "Darius Green and his flying machine" with illustrations, by A. T. Washburne. The music consisted of piano duet, by Mrs. Kane and Miss Cochran, which was repeated by request; a vocal solo by Mrs E. M. Clarke; a duet by W. A. Smith and daughter, Florence, and a piano solo, by Mrs. A. T. Washburne.

This week the society will meet at the home of E. M. Clark. The paper will be, Conquest of Ireland, by R. W. Kane. Subject of conversation, Richard II lead by, Rev. W. H. McCartney and Miss Flora Nelson.

Important Newspaper Change.

The Petoskey Democrat has been sold to C. S. Hampton, who will consolidate it with his paper under the title of "Independent Democrat." In this deal Mr. Hampton has accomplished what he started for, over a year ago. The collapse of the Democrat contains a lesson to the other publishers of this region, which should not pass unheeded. One item of importance was the attempt to make a large paper for one dollar a year. It is simply ruinous. Other items might be enlarged upon. The consolidation gives Mr. Hampton a good field alone, and an excellent outfit of printing material to work with. That he will do the work well, and in his own way, cannot be questioned.

New Shingle Mill.

J. Milo Eaton has leased his factory building and power on Pine Lake to Chris Hanson, a practical mill man, who is furnishing it with an outfit of machinery for making cedar shingles, and expects to begin operations in a few days. The product of the mill is already contracted for to its full capacity, until spring and longer, and Mr. Hanson is already buying all the cedar shingle bolts he can get. Parties having timber to sell should give him a call at once. Probably nearly a doven men will be employed directly about the works, and indirectly a benefit will accrue to a large number of our people. This is but one of a possible numerous following, when the new railroad is in operation.

Eveline.

INGOTOS, Dec. 6—Last month of 1887.

The family of F. E. Miller have been on the sick list for a week.

Services next Sabbath at Mountain school house at 2:30 p. m., by Rev. J. Dornace.

F. E. Miller has been improving his house by clapboarding, painting and otherwise.

Mrs. Eugene Bedwin and son, of Charlevoix visited a few days with Mrs. R. Bedwin, in Eveline.

The Pine Lake Iron Co. purchased a fine horse team at Mancelona one day last week.

Mr. J. V. Lane has been under the weather lately.

James Bunker is able to be at work again.

Chas. Bedwin received another stock of groceries and rubbers Thursday.

Mr. Godfrey McDonald disposed of his ox team last Thursday. Pine Lake Iron Co. were the purchasers.

The ice is beginning to form around the shore of Pine Lake. Navigation will soon be closed for this season. South Arm has already frozen over down as far as the ferry.

The little mill at Dwight has shut down for the winter. The mill has been engaged cutting shingles most of the season.

Sweet's mill will run all winter.

The Advance school under the supervision of Mrs. M. Pope is said to be doing good work this winter.

The family of Mr. Hunt at Ironton will leave soon for Georgia, to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hammond who have been spending the past few weeks in southern Michigan have returned.

Mr. J. H. Purris has purchased a quantity of cedar timber of Mr. Good year west of Ironton, to cut the coming winter.

The night school under J. M. Harris held in the school house at Ironton is meeting with success. Their sessions are on every Monday and Saturday evenings.

Grant Hammond who has been employed on Mancelona most of the summer at work, has returned here for the winter.

The JOURNAL is becoming more and more popular each week up here.

We ought to have a Christmas tree at Mountain school house on Christmas eve.

The H. H. society meets with Miss Pearl Leonox next Wednesday evening.

A party of little boys from over at Ironton had a jolly time last Thursday evening with Freddie Bedwin.

Mrs. Leroy Sheldon, of Sweet's landing died last Friday and was buried on Sunday.

Walter Brock, son of Mrs. Marshall Brock, died after a long suffering, last Thursday.

Mrs. Smith, mother of supervisor Ava Smith, died at her home near Ironton, on the 20th. She leaves many friends and relatives to mourn her loss.

The furnace shut down on the 24th for the winter. The company's tug has got through hauling wood.

Wilson.

Forty-three at Sunday-school yesterday.

The Hudkins boys killed a deer last week.

School begins to-day; G. W. Fast, teacher.

I. Bartlett, of East Jordan, did some repairing at the Vance mill last week, putting in a saw gummer.

Mr. S. P. Smith and wife, of Advance, visited their son here on Saturday last.

Oscar Johnson, formerly of this place, shook hand with friends here Friday and Saturday.

S. G. Isaman, of East Jordan, made us a friendly call on Tuesday.

Ellsworth.

ELLSWORTH, Dec. 5.—A party at Mr. Gotham's last Friday night. A good time reported.

E. B. Marshall, of Antrim teaches the winter term of school in the Boss district to the satisfaction of all.

The Stafford boys, of Banks, killed two deer near here last week.

Velma St. Clair expects to make Royce City her home this winter.

D. Parks is lumbering on P. H. Lanway's lot this winter.

Shipments

The following are the shipments from the port of Charlevoix, reported for the week ending Wednesday evening:

Per J. Sabin, Fleeting, 35,000 feet hardwood lumber, C. J. Lloyd to Chicago.

NOW WE HAVE IT!
WHO WILL BE LUCKY?

LOOK HERE!

This is not a Blind Lottery. Everyone has a Chance. Our Cash Register always Registers Purchasers and Customers; not one escapes.

Now we are going to Give Back to every Sixty-Ninth Purchaser of not less than 25 cents, or above, be it $50, his or her purchase. This is a bona fide offer until further notice.

It may Cost us Five Hundred Dollars, but we mean to do just as we advertise. Come and see how it works, and look over the Largest Stock of Toys, 5-10-25 Cent Bargains, Dry Goods, Carpets, Cloaks, ever shown in Charlevoix. It will pay coming 20 miles to see.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Green's Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

Jumbo.

THE ATKINS SAWS
NEW PERFECTION
AXES

Round Oak Stoves.

Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

Prospectus for 1888---Beautiful Christmas Number.

The holiday issue, now ready, is complete in itself, containing no serial matter. The cover is enriched by an ornamental border printed in gold. The price is as usual, 25 cents. It contains the most delightful stories, poems, and essays by distinguished writers, and superb illustrations.

Among the important articles to appear during the year 1888 are the following—Send for prospectus:

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON will contribute regularly to each number during the year. He will write of many topics, old and new. He will be on familiar and personal terms with his readers, and his thousands of readers. In the first paper, entitled "A Chapter on Dreams," appearing in the January number, he relates incidentally, in connection with the general subject, some interesting facts concerning the origin of the new famous story "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, by W. S. CHAPLIN, will be the first of an especially important and interesting series of papers on railways, their admirable arrangements, great engineering feats, famous tunnels, bridges, stations and construction, including great accidents, and how they happen and passes, and indeed, those branches of the subject which will most engage the attention of the whole country. The illustrations which will accompany this series will be very elaborate, original, and beautiful. The authors and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. D. A. SARGENT'S papers on Physical Preparations and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of especial interest will be those on the Campaign of Waterloo, by JOHN C. ROPES, on the "The MEN at Arms," by E. H. BLASHFIELD; two papers by EDWARD L. WILSON, illustrating results of recent Egyptian research; a further article by WILLIAM F. APPLETON, on a subject connected with his recent contribution on Wagner, and many others of equal interest; PROFESSOR SHALER'S articles on the Surface of the Earth will be continued; and articles upon two of the most interesting groups of contemporary European writers will be accompanied by rich and novel portrait illustrations.

ELECTRICITY in its various applications as a motive power, Explosives etc., will be subjects of another group of illustrated articles of equal practical interest, by leading authorities upon those topics.

MENDELSSOHN'S LETTERS written to his friend, Moscheles, at a peculiarly interesting time of his career, will furnish the subject of several articles of great interest to musical readers, which will be illustrated with portraits and drawings from Mendelssohn's own hand.

THE FICTION will be strong, not only in the work of well-known writers, but in that of new authors, in securing whose co-operation the Magazine has been so fortunate during its first year of publication. A serial novel, entitled "First Harvests," by FREDERIC J. STIMSON, will be begun in the January number, and early in the year novelettes will be published by HENRY JAMES and H. C. BUNNER. The short stories are of notable strength and freshness.

ILLUSTRATIONS.—The Magazine will show increased excellence in its illustrations. They will be more abundant and elaborate than ever. It is the intention of the publishers to represent the best work of the leading artists, and to promote and foster the most skillful methods of wood engraving.

SPECIAL NOTICE. To enable readers to possess the Magazine from the first number (January, 1887) the following inducements are offered:

A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887 ..... $4 50
A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887, bound in two volumes cloth, gilt top 6 00

$6.00 A YEAR; 25 CENTS A NUMBER.

Remit by bank check or money order to

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, New York.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Proprietor.
Charlevoix - - Michigan.
Finest location in town, giving good view of lakes and resorts. Rates, $1 per day. Big Rapids Stages, passes the house daily. Good livery in connection. Hunters and travelers headquarters. Good sample rooms and livery adjoining hotel.

WILL H. FRANCIS,
Furniture and Jobbing Shop.
Will also do Contracting and Building in Charlevoix and Summer Resorts. The only shop in full set of hand and foot power for turning spindles, which enables me to do Repairing, Etc., on short notice. Shop north of Cooper, opposite Hartman House, Charlevoix.

THE JOURNAL
CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.
CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

For Speaker, John G. Carlisle.

The first act of the fiftieth congress that convened last Monday, was the re-election of John G. Carlisle, speaker of the House. The best and most significant feature of the affair was Mr. Carlisle's speech accepting the office, which showed conclusively that he had not, for the sake re-election, abandoned in any degree, his firm stand on the question of tariff reform and reduction. He has been outspoken in his convictions in relation to the tariff, and the discussion has been hot. The re-election of Carlisle is a great victory for the advocates of trade emancipation.

The Tree is Known by Its Fruits.

The tragic outcome of the Haymarket riot, and subsequent execution of four of the ring leaders can be inferentially traced from its inception to its conclusion to the one-sided "protection" afforded the capitalist, by which the laborer is placed entirely at his mercy, and has no appeal from oppression save that of brute force. It is a singular thing that the annals of this country afford no instances of outrage and riot when reciprocity and free trade formed our commercial policy. The fact of the matter is that the gigantic establishment of the McCormick Reaper Co. had established such rules and regulations among its employes, that the working man in that massive industry, was but little better than a slave.

It is to be regretted that in the blind hot-headed rush after wealth the great corporations forgot, that the uneducated masses of labor can be turned from mere hewers of wood and drawers of water, into a howling, brainless monster, capable of the most insane action, backed by an irresistable force behind, goading it on to deeds of wholesale destruction. Frankenstein created a monster, and even succeeded in infusing into the form he had made a muscular life. But the old alchemist neglected to place brains and mind in his creation and when imbued with life, the monster turned and destroyed his creator. Thus with a policy which concentrates power in the hands of the few and by legislative action "protects" such against all healthy competition, the result is that the unnatural monster thus created turns and rends its creator. Had the McCormick Reaper Co., condescended to submit the grievances their employes complained of, to a board of arbitration, we would have had no "Haymarket riot" and therefore no subsequent hanging. But on the contrary, they locked their gates and turned a multitude of aggrieved men out of doors to become the willing prey of demagogues who by their incendiary speeches provoked collision between labor and the law. "Free trade" has no such disgrace attaching to its history, but the terrible power that "protection" has placed in the hands of the few against the masses, has for the past decade borne awful fruit. And the end is not yet, as this tree of death bears a luxuriant crop.—Cheboygan News.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

Pontiac struck a natural gas gusher at a depth of 1,490 feet.

There were 781 convicts at the Jackson state prison Dec. 1st.

Prohibition was carried in Benzie county last Monday by about 400.

The Traverse Eagle has changed its form to eight pages, of six columns to the page.

Grand Traverse gave a majority in favor of prohibition at the special election Monday.

By the last issue of the Traverse Eagle, it seems that Sprague has not retired from that paper.

Manistique is happy. The railroad is just completed which gives them connection with the outside world.

Joseph Lyon of Traverse City was struck by a falling tree at Simpson's camp last week, and died next day.

Perry F. Powers, late of Ypsilanti, has bought the Cadillac News and Express, and took possession last week.

Prohibition was carried in Antrim county last Monday by about 500. Banks township gave 101 votes in favor and 9 against.

Advices from Good Harbor are that W. S. Johnson, the Sutton's Bay general dealer, has routed the store formerly occupied with a general stock by the late C. Krapp, who went down with the Vernon, and has stocked the same with a general line of goods. Benj. Minsker is in charge.

The Muskegon boom company recently tendered a banquet to Ira O. Smith, retiring president. Under his management the company have delivered since 1875, 6,078,656,155 feet of logs. The banquet was attended by representative lumbermen from Grand Rapids, Chicago, and other lumber markets.

Van Buren is the first county in Michigan to act under the local option law passed at the last session of the legislature. Van Buren gave a large majority in favor of prohibition at the election in the spring, and the result of the election last week shows that there has been no change in the public sentiment.

The next day after the propeller Albany, of the Western Transit Company, ran aground on the reef off Bois Blanc island, week before last, corn and flour were very cheap, in and about Mackinaw straits. After the storm ceased, all sorts of boats were put into service, picking up the jetsamed cargo. The Cheboygan Democrat says the Albany left Chicago with a cargo made up as follows: 52,731 bushels of corn, 3,950 barrels of flour, 395 barrels of corn meal, 6,150 sacks of flour, 140 sacks of bran, and 50 tierces of lard.

The $10,000 libel case of Judge Fuller against W. P. Nisbet, publisher of the Big Rapids Herald, for the publication of an article holding the plaintiff responsible for circulating bogus tickets during the last spring's election in the 27th judicial circuit, has been decided in favor of the defendant. The case was tried by Judge Mills, of Kalamazoo, who held that the article was not libelous per se, and as plaintiff failed to prove special damages, the action was not sustained, and the jury was instructed to render a verdict of no cause of action.

The first conviction in Michigan of a Bohemian oats agent, for obtaining a signature to a promissory note, under false pretenses, occurred in the circuit court for Genesee county last week. The case was that of the people vs. Alfred W. Hausner, representing the Bohemian Oats and Cereal Co., of Ypsilanti. The complaining witness was a well-known and well-to-do farmer of that county. The case occupied two days in trial, and excited a wide-spread interest, as it was generally regarded as a test case.

Millions of Persons die annually who might be saved if attention was given to the little ills of life. Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, &c. are easily cured by using Hamilton's Cough Balsam which removes the tickling in the throat and thightness across the chest, helps to throw off the poisonous matter and heals the inflamed membranes. Immediate relief will be found in Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, &c. and even in chronic cases and last stage consumption great relief is received. For incipient consumption it works like a charm. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Money to be Made.

It is said that dull times are not known by the agents for the great publishing house of George Stinson & Co., of Portland, Maine. The reason of this exceptional success is found in the fact that they always give the public that which is keenly appreciated and at prices that all can afford. At present, we understand, their agents are doing wonderfully well on several new lines. They need many more agents in all parts of the country. Those who need profitable work should apply at once. Women do as well as men. Experience is not necessary, for Messrs. Stinson & Co. undertake to show all who are willing to work, not hard, but earnestly, the path to large success. It should be remembered that an agent can do a handsome business without being away from home over night. Another advantage—it costs nothing to give the business a trial, and no agent can devote all his time or only his spare moments to it. Stinson & Co. guarantee grand success to all who engage and follow simple and plain directions that they give. We have not space to explain all here, but full particulars will be sent free to those who address the firm; their full address is given above.

Attention is called to the advertisement headed "Books three cents each," on our eighth page.

NOTICE is hereby given, that under and by virtue of a license granted by the Probate Court for the county of Wayne, State of Michigan, the undersigned will sell at public vendue, on the 20th day of January, A. D. 1888, at two o'clock M. at the store in the village of Charlevoix, in said county, all the right, title and interest of David Preston, deceased, in and to all and singular the following described pieces or parcels of land situated in the county of Charlevoix, state of Michigan, described as follows, to wit: The east half of the northeast quarter of section thirty-four, township thirty-four north, range five west, eighty acres.

Dated Detroit, Dec. 8th, 1887.

JANE E. PRESTON,
WILLIAM D. PRESTON,
Executors of estate of said deceased.
J. G. Dickinson,
Attorney for said executors.

RICHLY REWARDED are those who will find homesteads or employment that will not take them from their homes and families. The profits are large and sure for the industrious person, many instances having been known of over $100 per month and upwards being made by some persons, while others have made but a few dollars a month. It is the business for anyone to make a dollar who is willing to work. Either sex, young or old, capital not needed, we start you. Everything new. No special ability required, you can do it as well as others. Reader, if you want work for full particulars, address, we will mail free, address Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. adv

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in hundreds of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $20 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed. adv

INVENTION has revolutionized the last half century. Not least among wonders of inventive genius is a method whereby work can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; anyone can do the work. Either sex, young or old; no special ability required. Capital not needed, you are started free. Reader, if you want to do honest work for us address, TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres of land situated on Pine Lake 1½ miles west of Ironton, Charlevoix county, township of Eveline, Charlevoix county, four acres cleared, one log house, one log barn, good orchard, one log house, one log barn, one log shed, one log house, one log barn, one log shed, one log house, one log barn, one log shed

NAPOLEON'S STAR.

BY C. G. HARB.

(Napoleon called himself "the child of destiny," and said that he always saw a star before him when he led his forces into the battlefield.—Webster.)

A star before me shining bright
Leads me along,
In daytime as in darkest night,
The steady rays of cosmic light
Before me shine,
And where it leads, there I follow,
Follow to success.

It leads me to the battlefield,
And in the fray
Shines clear and bright before my eyes,
And from the field I homeward march
Victorious,
And where it leads there I follow,
Follow to success.

It may be bangs are in my way,
It matters not,
Thrones easily are overthrown,
And kingdoms fall in dust whene'er
My star leads on,
And where it leads, there I follow,
Follow to success.

CHICAGO, Ill., Follow to success.

A DARING AERONAUT.

The Thrilling and Perilous Exploits of Thomas S. Baldwin, of Quincy, Ill.

Leaping from a Balloon and Falling Thousands of Feet to the Earth.

A novelty has been supplied to the lovers of excitement. Whether it falls under the head of aeronautics, gymnastics, or simply daring, does not seem easy to determine. It certainly involves all three, although the man who supplies the novelty is as cool as if he were folding a napkin.

Perhaps an explanation of the feat may enable the reader to appreciate better how it should be determined. A young fellow twenty-seven years of age ascends by means of a balloon, sometimes as high as five thousand feet, throws himself over from the basket and drops to the ground. Happily, he is assisted by a parachute, or else he would not have dropped but once, and that once would have been too often.

IN MID AIR.

Thomas S. Baldwin, of Quincy, Ill., is the name of the young man. He traveled for several years with a circus as a professional gymnast, then took to tight-rope walking, and finally to ballooning. His first jump from a balloon was made in January of this year at San Francisco. He jumped from a height of one thousand feet. This was enough to thrill twenty-five thousand people; but it was only the modest beginning. At Syracuse September last he had attained an elevat- of five thousand feet before he switched off on the parachute rope.

PREPARING TO JUMP.

Mr. Baldwin remained in New York a few days after this before going West. What he has to say about this feat of his which he so successfully practiced, may prove of interest to the very large number who will never know from experience what such a journey means.

"What led you into this hazardous kind of feat?" was quite a natural question to begin with.

"Well, I am fond of things that are daring. I have been a gymnast performer for some time and also a tight-rope walker. I was very much interested in ballooning and accounts which I read of several descents from them by means of parachutes took my fancy. A Frenchman did it all right, but an Englishman tried it and came to grief. He was killed. I read the account of the accident. I gave the matter a good deal of thought, trying to work out the theory. Then I practiced before attempting the very high jump. There is scientific principle enough in the feat to see what the effect ought to be of such an experiment. But there is enough uncertainty about it to make it a little dangerous. There is always the possibility of the parachute collapsing, and if it does that at any height, why, it would be a miracle if a fellow escaped death. He would get crushed to pieces when he struck the ground.

"What sort of a parachute do you use?"

"I have used several kinds. I have them made of Wamsutta muslin, and without any ribs. Sometimes they have seven or eight ribs. It is about sixteen or eighteen feet in diameter. The cords which are attached to it come down and fasten to an iron ring. The ring is what I hold on to when I drop.

"How is the parachute arranged in the balloon?"

"It is fastened by the top to the side of the balloon so that the ring hangs somewhat below the top of the car. It is tied so that the weight of my body when it bears on the fastenings breaks them loose, and the parachute is free of the balloon. That I have to let go, and two or three times I have nearly lost it, and the part of old thing shows the wounds it has received where it is patched up. But it is a trusty old ship, though I mean to get a new one for next season."

"Well, tell me just how you make your arrangements."

"I get a good hold of the iron ring. That is pretty important, you can bet. It isn't easy to make any change on the way down, and if you let go, why, then you won't make any more jumps, that is all. But I am not afraid of losing my hold because I have not good enough grip. My hands are pretty strong, and I can hold on well enough. The dangerous part of this holding on is that my arms get strained so through the wrenching they get from the swaying motion, the oscillation, that sometimes the strain is very great and they become completely exhausted. After I have gripped on to the ring, I get carefully over the rim of the basket, and then drop. There is no need to spring out. It is not so good, because the straighter down one goes the easier it is for the parachute to fill out and be sustained by the air."

"What are your sensations on the way down?"

"The first hundred feet are the worst. The parachute does not fill at once, and so it is like falling short through that much space. And that is another reason why the drop has to be made a little carefully otherwise I might get turned over, and though, of course, if I hold on, I will come all right, but the wrench on my arms would be violent, and the thing would shake more. It does not shake enough now, I assure you, although I have improved a little on it in that respect. You can fancy what a fall of a hundred feet might be, though it is pretty hard to imagine it if you have never been through the thing. The sensation is not altogether pleasant. It is a giddy sinking through the air. The condensation of the atmosphere under the parachute, which is shaped like an umbrella, to catch the air more readily, brings me up suddenly. It is almost like a jerk, and to people looking at me I seem to stop for a moment. After that the descent is more gradual, though it is quite fast enough for ordinary purposes. The rate of descent is about 1,200 feet a minute. I have given the point of resistance which the parachute offers with a certain weight and when it is of a certain diameter a good deal of study. The sensation is pleasant enough in summer. Floating down through the air in that way is cool. It is something like coming down a rapidly running elevator, but your legs are free, and you feel your body with nothing around it.

"The oscillations begin, however, and I am swayed from side to side like a pendulum. Sometimes I have been swung out at an angle of fifty or sixty degrees. The top part of the parachute, the umbrella part, does not sway in this manner. It it fills out all right there is nothing to fear there. But sometimes it does not, and then matters are trickish."

"How do you land—lightly, or is it hard to escape getting bruised?"

"Generally, I have landed without doing myself any harm. When I see I am within six or seven feet of the ground I drop. I can land pretty well on my toes, and if I feel a momentum which would be likely to throw me violently down, I try to fall on my right side, and sometimes I turn three or four somersaults. This breaks the force. Of course, I can exercise no control over myself while I am in the air. I have to land wherever chance brings me. If it is a good height from which I drop, and there is a strong wind, I can easily come down at a place a mile or more from the place on the earth underneath the spot I jumped from. I am carried by the wind so that I do not feel it blowing on me very much. When I make an ascension near the water, like that at Rockaway Beach this summer, I take up a life preserver with me, so if I fall into the water at too great a distance from the shore to swim, I need not drown.

"Do you feel any nervousness or fear in undertaking the feat?"

"I always know that there is danger in it. I couldn't know as much about the subject as I do and be ignorant of that. But I do not feel much trepidation in undertaking it. The chances are that everything will come out all right, as they have done in all my descents. Then there is an excitement about it. It is a funny thing, though, to be performing a feat for an audience so far below you that you cannot see anything but a dark spot on the earth. When you get up so very high in a balloon I do not think that a person is so inclined to feel dizzy as at a much less height from which he can compare the relative altitude. I feel I am not subject to dizziness. It doesn't go well with balloonists, and, besides, my learning as a circus man has got me without any car attached. There was only a ring where I held myself."

"What is the greatest height from which you have jumped?"

"I have jumped from five thousand feet. I think, however, that a parachute could be made so that a descent from a much higher altitude would be possible. Whether a man can be invented to stand the strain his arms for the length of time which would be required to descend in. I do not know. You must remember that you can't stop to rest yourself any on the way down. You are there on the end of the parachute, and you feel you've got to stay there till your feet strike the earth. I came down into a tree once, but I didn't hurt myself. I have been carried along on the ground with my parachute for twenty feet."

"Are there any other balloonists who perform this feat?"

"I do not know of any living person who has attempted it. I dare say there will be others who may imitate my example. It is something that can be done by most anybody who wants to try it, and I dare say it could be done often enough to make a good many people do it. Most of the balloon gymnasts, however, have a trapeze fastened to a captive balloon, and they are up about a thousand feet they perform feats on that."

THE PARACHUTE ACTING BADLY.

"Do you think there is any practical value in a feat of this kind?"

"Well, it is always a valuable thing to do something new and show what a man can do. I don't suppose it has any good. Of course ballooning can be of use. They found that out in Paris when they used to send them out during the commune. And they are useful in time of war to remember the enemy's position. But I like it well enough, and people like to see it, too. There is always more interest in anything that looks dangerous."

"Do you intend to jump in this way next year?"

"Oh, I think it very likely that I may. There may be somebody else in the field next year, and then jumping may be arranged to see who would spring from the greatest elevation. It would take much more courage to go up a few thousand feet more and spring off. When you are up so high as that the earth looks pretty small. I came down through a cloud once. It was below me as far as it was above the spectators on the ground beneath.

Professor Baldwin, for he deserves the title of professor of aeronautics, has received two handsome gold medals for his feats. One is from his fellow-gymnasts of Syracuse, and shows that it is an appreciative city; another was the offering of the Knights of Pythias. Both were commemorative of his marvelous leaps.

A WET LANDING.

PROF. GUSTAV REYDIS has a chapter in his sketches of Finland respecting the uses which the Finnish people make of birch bark. Shoes are made of it. The bark, having been peeled, is put into strips, rolled up carefully and put away for future use. When the Finnish peasant wants a pair of new shoes he takes out one of his rolls, cuts it up into strips of suitable width, soaks it in water to soften it, and then weaves it into the form he desires. It is all done very rapidly, a half-hour or less sometimes sufficing for the whole work. Many other uses are found for birch bark. The sheath in which the peasant carries his inseparable knife is made of it. It is woven into pockets or bags of various sizes, which are used for general purposes. Birch bark is made into salt tubs, cords and lines, brushes for washing out wooden dishes, pails, sieves, and tubs, and many other articles for which we use wood or basket material.

In Germany, says the Blacksmith and Wheelright, the smith, when he thinks the shoe, fastened to a hole in the two ends, and when the shoe is cold he taps in a screw thread, and screws into the shoe, when on the horse's foot, a sharp-pointed stud of such length that the stud will always thus fitted the horse can travel securely on the worst possible road; and it is almost impossible one slip either when riding or driving; and draught horses are shod in the same way. When the horse comes home to stable the groom unscrews the pointed stud and screws in a button; so that no damage can happen to the horse, and the screw holes are prevented from filling. When the horse is going out the groom takes out the button and screws in the pointed stud, and there is no fear of the horse coming back with broken knees or strained knees and the public are spared the sight of horses down or slipping in all directions.

ON THE WAY DOWN.

pretty accustomed to things which call for coolness. I do not lose my head, and do everything as coolly as if I were on the ground. The strain on the arms is usually the only thing that bothers me. I must get that stopped, if I can, or else I may have to drop the business. Once I went up in a balloon

WASHINGTON.

An Interesting Grist of News from the Capital of the Nation.

Many New Faces in the House, Which Necessitates Numerous Changes in Committees.

Prospective Tariff Legislation—Operations of the Mints—Postal Statistics.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

Secretary Fairchild is spending much of his time in studying tables of imports and customs duties and conferring with the President and Mr. Carlisle, with a view to agreeing on the items where the revenue ought to be reduced. This bill, which will express the wishes of the administration, will probably provide for taking off the present tax on cigars, cigarettes, cheroots, and snuff, one-quarter of the sugar duty, all of the wool, lumber, and salt duties, and then making reductions on a considerable number of other items. It will be the first general line of the Morrison bill of the last Congress, though that bill did not touch the whole wool duty. Still there are members of Congress who confidently expect to think a bill reducing the tariff can be formed that will have Mr. Randall's support.

The bill that the administration will favor will propose to take off only a quarter of the sugar duties, and a little more than half the tobacco tax. But before it gets through the House it will shaking all the sugar duties and will take off one-half of the sugar tax. This course will leave a considerable surplus, which will irritate portions of the tariff. The repeal of the special tobacco taxes and the tax on smoking and chewing tobacco would, on the basis of the last year's figures, cut off about $14,000,000 of revenue. One-quarter of the sugar duties would be about $7,000,000. Here is $26,000,000. Putting wool on the free list would take off about $5,000,000 more. Lumber would diminish the revenue about $2,000,000, and salt about $500,000. This is about $33,000,000 in all, and $37,000,000 more than the total receipts for the end of the tariff list. But taking off all the tobacco taxes and one-half the sugar duties would reduce the revenues $55,000,000, and leave only $15,000,000 to be taken off wool, lumber, salt, and all other articles in the tariff list, assuming that $70,000,000 is about the desired reduction of the revenue. The Senate will probably demand that the reductions be confined to sugar and tobacco, or that there be no reductions in Paris when they need to send them out during the commune. And they are useful in time of war to remember the enemy's position. But I like it well enough, and people like to see it, too. There is always more interest in anything that looks dangerous."

"Do you intend to jump in this way next year?"

"Oh, I think it very likely that I may. There may be somebody else in the field next year, and then jumping may be arranged to see who would spring from the greatest elevation. It would take much more courage to go up a few thousand feet more and spring off. When you are up so high as that the earth looks pretty small. I came down through a cloud once. It was below me as far as it was above the spectators on the ground beneath.

Professor Baldwin, for he deserves the title of professor of aeronautics, has received two handsome gold medals for his feats. One is from his fellow-gymnasts of Syracuse, and shows that it is an appreciative city; another was the offering of the Knights of Pythias. Both were commemorative of his marvelous leaps.

A WET LANDING.

PROF. GUSTAV REYDIS has a chapter in his sketches of Finland respecting the uses which the Finnish people make of birch bark. Shoes are made of it. The bark, having been peeled, is put into strips, rolled up carefully and put away for future use. When the Finnish peasant wants a pair of new shoes he takes out one of his rolls, cuts it up into strips of suitable width, soaks it in water to soften it, and then weaves it into the form he desires. It is all done very rapidly, a half-hour or less sometimes sufficing for the whole work. Many other uses are found for birch bark. The sheath in which the peasant carries his inseparable knife is made of it. It is woven into pockets or bags of various sizes, which are used for general purposes. Birch bark is made into salt tubs, cords and lines, brushes for washing out wooden dishes, pails, sieves, and tubs, and many other articles for which we use wood or basket material.

In Germany, says the Blacksmith and Wheelright, the smith, when he thinks the shoe, fastened to a hole in the two ends, and when the shoe is cold he taps in a screw thread, and screws into the shoe, when on the horse's foot, a sharp-pointed stud of such length that the stud will always thus fitted the horse can travel securely on the worst possible road; and it is almost impossible one slip either when riding or driving; and draught horses are shod in the same way. When the horse comes home to stable the groom unscrews the pointed stud and screws in a button; so that no damage can happen to the horse, and the screw holes are prevented from filling. When the horse is going out the groom takes out the button and screws in the pointed stud, and there is no fear of the horse coming back with broken knees or strained knees and the public are spared the sight of horses down or slipping in all directions.

HUMOR.

As Alpine horn—yodge-nite whisky.

CHILDREN of light—boys who peddle matches.—Texas Siftings.

THE way of the world—countless millions of pounds.—Carl Pretzel.

A HOG that can throw a cow pitches his hoofs in hard fat.—Texas Siftings.

DELIA—How is Mrs. Grenadine lately? Is she perfectly reconciled to the loss of her husband? Belle—Yes, I think so. Her mourning fits beautifully.—Lowell Citizen.

CITIZEN—What's the matter, Doc—in a hurry? Doctor—I should say so! I've got more than I can do. Citizen—Some epidemic? Doctor—No; people are getting back from their summer vacations.

"AIN'T you in, Maria?" he queried, as he fumbled around with the latch-key. "No, I ain't. I'm out. Out of sugar, out of tea, out of flour, and out of patience," snapped a female voice from an upper window.

FIRST swell—They say it is a virtue and a good calm to be sleeker and care for an idiot in Persia. Second swell—Ah! good custom. I'll introduce it in America. Come and stay with me for a while.—Town Topics.

FIRST DEBAUCHED society will soon discuss the vital question: "Which benefits the country most—the Concord School of Philosophy or the young man who wins the lawn-tennis championship?"—Norristown Herald.

FIRST dude—Aw wat's the matter, Chawles? Second dude—been kicked by a mule. F. D.—Aw, then stop coating his dandhew. S. D.—Why? F. D.—Because only aw cowards kick wuns in their family always, dondcher know.—Newman Independent.

"I'VE come to have the Legislature change my name to Notoriety," remarked the man with a frozen face; time, so might be expected, rose to the organs of sense. The late master to the organs of sense. The late master of Alabama, Chairman of the Naval Committee, comes next. The late master of Alabama, Chairman of the Naval Committee, comes next. The late master of Alabama, Chairman of the Naval Committee, comes next

FARM AND GARDEN.

FEEDING HOPPERS FOR FOWLS AS USED BY A SOUTHERN FARMER.

Keep the Butter a Golden Color Throughout the Winter by Judicious Feeding of the Cows—A Device for Killing Beef.

Deaf killing in Switzerland, it would appear from the United States consular report on cattle and dairy farming, has been reduced to a fine art. The accompanying cuts illustrate a device used at a large slaughtering place built by the city government just below Basle.

FIG. 1—DEAF KILLING—GUN AND SKULL.

It consists of a mask or plate, which has a short steel gun fastened to it, as in the sectional view at A. This is fastened to the horns by straps and the cartridge is then set in fired by tapping the iron pin in the end of the gun and driving it against the cartridge. The bullet pierces the center of the brain and is buried in the spinal marrow, causing instantaneous and painless death.

FIG. 2—DEVICE FOR KILLING BEEVES.

The ox is led to the shambles, a tap is given to the fatal pin and the animal drops dead without a struggle or the slightest show of apprehension or pain. The bleeding is said to be perfect, and, according to the authority quoted, no ox can remain for killing cattle by tedious and painful methods.

How to Secure Yellow Butter.

Guernsey Breeder affirms that the color fades out of the skin and cars of a cow before it does out of the butter. Cows of all breeds pale as to their skin color when kept upon dry fodder, especially in winter. There is really no cow feed or butter feed equal to grass or grass and hay, and for securing the required golden color to skin and butter in winter, adds the authority quoted from, nothing is equal to quick grown shade cured hay.

Shade cured hay is that which as soon as it is well wilted is raked into windrows, and rolled into good steel cocks while hot from the sun, after, perhaps, once or twice turning in the windrows. The cocks being watched to prevent heating in dry weather may be shaken out, turned well to the air, but not spread about much, every green lock, however, being found and shaken out bright. In rainy weather or damp weather the cocks must be made solid and polished, and should be protected by cap. Such hay will be fit to house nearly as quickly as that which is dried out by the hot sun. Such hay, as that nearly all the leaves and heads of the clover are either broken off and left in the field or around to dust in handling and treading upon the hay on the load and in the mow. Good shade cured hay is very green and dry, but not brittle. It may be twisted hard and show no moisture, while it will show a flexibility and toughness entirely foreign to dried out, sun cured hay.

Other articles of food have great effect on butter and skin color. Lawn clippings are excellent, mangles for cows, giving carrots have a great effect; pumpkins are famous for yellowing butter; long red and yellow globe mangles are useful; yellow corn meal is to be highly commended, and a system of extra good feeding always prolonge the period of high colored butter. Bran, however, contain articles which effect a loss of color as once; green corn fodder, dry corn fodder, pumpkin seed steamed, fodder, and probably a good many other things.

A Novel Feeding Hopper.

The novel feeding hopper for fowls, shown in the following cut, can be readily constructed by any adult who possesses the slightest mechanical genius. Southern Farmer describes it so plainly that there is no difficulty about understanding for a

FEEDING HOPPER FOR FOWLS.

A is an oval board 18 inches wide, 2 feet 6 inches high and 2 feet long; B, the roof projecting over the perch on which the fowls stand while feeding; C the lid of the receiving manger, which, exhibited in the grate, E E, is made attached to the perch and lid of the manger or feeding trough; D and D are the posts which, by weight attached to the end to balance the lid, otherwise it would not close when the fowls leave the perch; H, pulley; G, fulcrum. The hinges on the top show that it is to be raised when the hopper is to be replenished. When a fowl desires food it hops upon the bars of the perch, the weight of which raises the lid of the feed box, exposing the grain to view, and after satisfying its hunger jumps off, and the lid closes. The cost of the dimensions may be increased to any size desired.

Why Horses Rub Their Manes and Tails.

The question, "Why horses rub their manes and tails," has been answered by a New York veterinary surgeon as follows: "Rubbing the mane and tail usually results from an unhealthy condition of the skin, which is most cases is produced by neglect of grooming or by bad food, or by any sudden change of diet from that to good. Occasionally, however, it appears in stables where grooming and food are unquestionably good. Damaged oats or hay are very ready causes for this annoying affection. In every case, therefore, where the hair of the mane and tail fall out the food should be carefully examined. Young horses are coming into the stables some times suffer from an irritation of the skin, probably from change of diet. Horses recovering from fever frequently lose a portion of the hair from the mane and tail. In the latter case it seems to arise from an impoverished state of blood."

In regard to treatment the surgeon alluded to says: "If any positive cause, such as damaged food or neglected grooming, has existed, measures must be taken to remove such cause. Without this precaution local treatment will be of little avail. One method of local treatment that has produced good results consists in dressing the skin with equal parts of mercurial ointment and soft soap made into a lather with hot water ahd applied by means of a stiff hair brush. The new hair will grow rapidly after this application. In addition to the local treatment it will be necessary to act upon the system generally by a change of diet; green food should be given, as this by means of its laxative qualities lessens the irritability of the skin. A bran mash with five grains of arsenic added daily, in addition to the usual food, will exert a beneficial influence upon the skin.

Cottonseed Meal.

The demand for cottonseed meal for feeding purposes has grown wonderfully within the past few years, indeed in many places it has almost become a staple article, like cornmeal. After the oil is expressed and the cake has been ground into meal, it becomes a very nutritious food and is highly esteemed by dairymen and others for causing an increased flow of milk. It has great strength and should not be fed alone; one quart mixed with bran is about the right proportion to begin with, which may be gradually increased to about two quarts as the animal becomes accustomed to its use. It is claimed to excel linseed meal in milk producing properties, and is now sold at about the same price per ton. Of all the vegetable substances used for food the cottonseed cake is richest in nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, and consequently makes the most valuable manure. It is said that three-fourths of the seed raised here is exported in the form of cake or meal to Europe, where it is even more highly appreciated than in this country.

Record of Dairy Breeds.

The butter tests at the various fairs throughout the country this season, as indexed in past years, refute the idea that in any one of the dairy breeds lies all the superiority in milk and butter production. Taking the tests for the present year together, the honors appear to be very fairly distributed. For instance, at the New York State dairy show, as everybody ought to know by this time, a pure bred Holstein gained the prize; at the New England fair the prize was awarded to a grade cow having Guernsey, Jersey and Hereford blood; at the Provincial fair at Toronto a full blood Ayrshire came out ahead; at the Iowa state fair a Jersey gained the record.

German scientists who have tested the relative profitableness of keeping large and small cows consider that for the dairy small cows giving largest quantities of rich milk are the best. They do not believe largely in beef and milk from the same animal.

Foot Rot in Sheep.

Foot rot in sheep is an exceedingly troublesome disease, as it robs the animal affected of its flesh and decreases its value, though not always, by any means, fatal. The general impression is that foot rot is contagious. The editor of The Massachusetts Ploughman says on the subject: "Perhaps the ordinary foot rot is not contagious, but the 'epizootic foot rot,' or 'murrain,' is eminently so. The foot rot is found only on low or moist grounds, and probably arises from the foot not wearing down, as it does on stony ground, but growing to an unusual length from the moisture, and give new life to the nerves. They act like a charm in the digestive organs, remove all dyspeptic symptoms, and whenever the stomach is weak or there is a general loss of physical vigor, Hop Bitters are just what you need. Only 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter. dec

Brace Up.

You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are laboring with headache, you are nervously nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Take a dose of Hop stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, when have for their basis very cheap, low whiskey, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alterative that will purify the blood, start healthy action of liver and kidneys, restore your vitality, and give round and hearty strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and one or more a bottle at G. W. Crouter's drug store.

The Greatest Pain Killer yet found for Cramps, Colic, Stitch in side or back, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sprains, Bruises, &c., is Hamilton's Jamaica Ginger Tonic and Pain Cure. Bound on with hot wet cloths it never fails to cure. For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick headache, Sick nausea, diarrhoea, dysentery, heartburn, sour stomack, &c., it is unequaled. Warranted to give relief. Used both internally and externally. Warranted to cure. Try it. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

Buckien's Arnica Salve.

The best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Gaze" and 56 other Popular Ballads, in back form, all of Sheet Music. Sent, post-paid, for ONLY FOUR CENTS. Stamps taken.
AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO.
8666 Fairmount Ave., Philadelphia Pa.

Bargains
IN
BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for one and this paper together
Wide Awake	$1.00	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	1 00	2.50
Pansy	1 00	2.50
Little Men and Women	1 00	2.50
Babyland	50	1.85

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a stamp, say five cents, enough to show you are not a dead-beat. We send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother amuse even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Christopher Young Folks' Journal is for young students.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"library, study, play-room, life at home and abroad, companionably of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

A Christmas Present.

To any subscriber whose account is paid one year in advance, we will furnish the JOURNAL one year to the name of any friend they may desire, who does not now take the paper, for one dollar cash in advance, if paid before the first day of January. Next year Charlevoix will "boom," and the best way to let your distant friends know all about it is to send the JOURNAL regularly. And the best way to sustain this paper in advertising Charlevoix county is to send one or more copies to friends abroad. Recollect, one dollar cash pays the bill, if your own account is settled one year in advance.

To Our Subscribers.

Send to F. P. Shumway, Jr., Boston, Mass., for a free sample copy of the COTTAGE HEARTH, a beautiful illustrated magazine, and so realize what an extraordinary offer we are making when we offer to send both the COTTAGE HEARTH and the CHARLEVOIX HERALD for a full year for only $2.00 when the price of the COTTAGE HEARTH alone is $1.50 a year. The Boston Transcript says of the COTTAGE HEARTH: "Setting aside its literary contents, which are of a high order of merit, the collection of receipts for the kitchen and for the sick room, its practical suggestions and advice for the raising and care of plants and flowers, its instructions for beautifying homes by simple means, and other practical features, make it invaluable to every household."

Earich the Blood.

HAMLTON'S CHERRY BITTERS are highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic. Especially in Indigestion, Dyspepsia, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, &c. They enrich the blood, strengthen the muscles, and give new life to the nerves. They act like a charm in the digestive organs, remove all dyspeptic symptoms, and whenever the stomach is weak or there is a general loss of physical vigor, Hop Bitters are just what you need. Only 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter. dec

Brace Up.

You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are laboring with headache, you are nervously nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Take a dose of Hop stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, when have for their basis very cheap, low whiskey, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alterative that will purify the blood, start healthy action of liver and kidneys, restore your vitality, and give round and hearty strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and one or more a bottle at G. W. Crouter's drug store.

Bargains
IN
BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,
Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.
TERRACE FARM. - - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

N. J. PERRY, Agent, Charlevoix

CHICAGO Cor. Canal AND 16TH STS

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

AN IMPORTANT CLUB OFFER

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

Gives its readers literature of lasting interest and value; it is fully and beautifully illustrated and has already gained a more than national circulation exceeding 125,000 copies monthly.

PRICE 25 CENTS A NUMBER: $3.00 A YEAR.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS with Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons the Publishers enable us to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE with the Charlevoix JOURNAL for $4.00 per year, Cash in Advance.

Address all orders to CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher Journal, Charlevoix, Mich.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper and many of them handsomely illustrated. They are intended for the million, and are placed at such low prices that all may have the means of procuring the best literature. Any one of the people may easily spend 5 cents for a cigar or 5 cents for a glass of beer, but not all can afford to spend $1 or $2 for a book. Hence these books are published at such low prices as will cause them to be read by the masses, who are the ones who most need cheap literature. The following is a list of the books now ready, and more will be added from time to time as fast as we can get them out, as we have a large number of books in preparation. Any one of the following books will be sent to any address on receipt of price, 3 cents each. Address, THE FRANK TOUSEY PUBLISHING CO., 31 Union Square, New York.

Frank Tousey's Publications.

Dick Darlington's Trial; or, Fighting for Life. A Story. By Col. Ingraham.
The Phantom Hand; or, The Hunted Life. A Story. By Mrs. Mary Reed Crowell.
The Fiend of the Flume. A Story. By Capt. Mark Wilmer.
Ned Wyman's Luck; or, Fortune and Misfortune. A Story. By Jas. C. Merriman.
Cliff House. A Novel. By Percy W. Turner.
Ned Wyman's Luck; or, Fortune and Misfortune. A Story. By Jas. C. Merriman.
The Diamond Bracelet. A Novel. By Mrs. Harry Cavendish.
Lawyer Crafts. A Novel. By Mrs. E. Burke Collins.
The Savage Chief. A Story. By Capt. Mark Wilmer.
Jack Yarborough's Diamonds. A Novel. By Col. Ingraham.
The Two Sons. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
The California Cable. A Novel. By H. C. Cahoon.
Ned Wyman's Luck; or, Fortune and Misfortune. A Story. By Jas. C. Merriman.
Dora Thorne. A Novel. By the author of "The Two Sons."
Lawrence's Cable. A Novel. By Mrs. M. V. Victor.
"Forever Integrity; or, Hearts Are Trumps." A Novel. By Mrs. Mary Reed Crowell.
Jack Wyman's Luck; or, Fortune and Misfortune. A Story. By Jas. C. Merriman.
The California Cable. A Novel. By H. C. Cahoon.

Ask for them and any one of the 200 Cents Books issued in Frank Tousey's Publications. Ask your newsdealer for them and if he does not have them he can easily procure any one of them from any newsdealer in the United States. If you cannot procure them from your newsdealer send the money for any of the books you want, in a letter, and we will send you the books you want, postage free. Address, FRANK TOUSEY, PUBLISHER, P. O. Box 1324, 31 Union Square, New York.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

PIMPLES. I will mail (sealed) to any person a recipe for a simple VEGETABLE BALM that will remove Tan, Freckles, Pimples, Blotches, Black Heads, Redness, leaving the skin soft, clear, and beautiful. This recipe is genuine. Send stamp. Address, Mrs. M. H. Wood, 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass.

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD

AND THE

Charlevoix Journal

ONE YEAR

For $2.00

Sample Copies at this Office.

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES
Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Bunions, Corns, Contracted Muscles, Strains, Stiffness, Sprains, Swellings, Bites, Bruises, Sore Throat, Stiff Joints, Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Worms, Scratches, Spavin, Spots, Ringbone, Sweeney, Scratches, Fistula, Pink Eye.

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY accomplishes for everybody exactly what is claimed for it. One of the results of its popularity is the Universal Liniment of fered in its wide spread applicability. Everybody knows what it is for and how to use it.

The Lumberman needs it to cure his cattle.
The Housewife finds it invaluable in her family.
The Mechanic finds it a ready friend in emergencies.
The Miner uses it in his business with good results.
The Pioneer relies on it in his wilderness home.
The Farmer finds it the best friend he has on his farm.
The Stockman knows it is worth a great deal of money to him in his business.
The Retired man knows it is a good investment.
The Backwoodsman knows it is the best thing he has to use on his animals, and for himself, man and comfort which surround the Owner.
The Merchant needs it about his store among his employees. Accidents will happen, and when they occur the Mexican Liniment is in ready demand.

Keep a Bottle in the House.
Keep a Bottle in the Factory, its immediate use in case of accidents means pain and loss of wages.
Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for use when wanted.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which defies competition.

It combines all the qualities of a perfect instrument, grandeur, exactness, and beauty can crown us.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION. UNEQUALED FACILITIES. CONDENSED, CLEAR PRINT.

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, free.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN CO.
834 WEST ISLAND AVE.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Dust all the Year Round.
JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA
AND FOR LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA,
AND FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use for 30 years, and has proved to be the best preparation in its line for the cure of Scurvy, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Old Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pimples on Face, Pain, Swelling, Stiffness of Joints, Rheumatism, Gout, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and all diseases that arise from a Disordered Liver or an impure state of the blood. Over 1,000 testimonials received in the last two years. Ask your druggist for it. Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by all druggists in this city and everywhere.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., Manufacturers,
DETROIT, MICH.

A GENTLEMAN, having been cured of Nervous Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Premature Decay, and all the evil effects of early indiscretion and youthful folly, is anxious to make known to others the simple mode of self cure. To those who wish and will give him their symptoms, he will send a copy (free) by return mail a copy of the recipe so successfully used in his case.

Address in confidence, JAMES W. PINKNEY, 42 Cedar St., N. Y.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

THE DIRECT ROUTE BETWEEN MACKINAW CITY AND DETROIT JACKSON.
The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 8.00 a. m. daily except Sunday, and 10.00 p. m. daily, arriving at Detroit, 4.10 p. m. and 11.20 a. m.
Jackson, 10.55 p. m. and 11.40 a. m.
Toledo, 12.55 p. m. and 4.40 p. m.
Buffalo, 4.35 a. m. and 8.40 p. m.

WAGNER PALACE SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.

D. W. JOHNSTON, G. W. RUGGLES,
Mgr. Jac. Div. G. P. & T. Agt.
Grand Rapids.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL.

CHARLEVOIX, MICH.: THURSDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1887. $1.50 PER YEAR.

NUMBER 231.

THE JOURNAL
Published every Thursday,
BY CHAS. J. STRANG.
Office on Bridge Street,
CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

ARTHUR E. MARTIN, Attorney at law, Boyne City. Collections promptly attended to.

CHUCKNIGHT & GRIER, Attorneys at Law and Patent Practitioners in Admiralty. Office in Rudolph Block, Charlevoix, Mich.
A. D. CHUCKNIGHT. C. J. GRIER.

FRED W. KITTREDGE, Attorney and Counselor at Law. Real Estate business promptly attended to. MONEY TO LOAN.

J. MILO KATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

W. A. MOORE, Attorney and Solicitor. East Jordan. Admiralty a specialty.

DENTISTRY.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist.
OFFICE AT CHARLEVOIX, LIVING HERE.
CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

PHYSICIANS.

J. A. CARLSTEDT, M. D., Office and residence, Bridge St., Charlevoix, Mich. Office hours, 8.00 to 10.00 A. M. and 1.00 to 7 P. M.

L. H. PINNEY, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in the Lewis block, Charlevoix, Mich.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

HORACE S. HARSHA, Notary Public, Real Estate, Loan, and Insurance Agt., Charlevoix.

W. F. BROWN, Cashier. A. A. BROWN, Ass't Cashier.
Brown & Co's Bank of Charlevoix
CAPITAL, $25,000.
Drafts drawn on any part of Europe, upon the principal cities of the world. Collections receive prompt attention. Money loaned on approved security. Tickets to Liverpool, Queenstown, London, Glasgow, Paris, Bremen, New York, First National, Chicago, National Bank, Detroit, Canadian National Bank, Grand Rapids, Fourth National Bank, Grand Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank
Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.
O. D. WOOD, President. A. BUTTARS, Vice President.
A. SMITH, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
O. D. WOOD, M. H. WOOD,
A. BUTTARS, F. W. MAYNE,
F. A. SMITH, J. L. HUNT,
JOHN MITCHELL.
CAPITAL, $52,000
SURPLUS, 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in this Bank are double the amount of stock owned, as provided by the Statutes of the State of Michigan, in the case of banks organized under the State law. Interest allowed on deposits, at the rate of four per cent per annum, when left for the time specified by the depositor, not less than six months. Money loaned on approved security only. Drafts drawn payable at any bank or banking house in the United States, on favorable terms. Collections made on all accessible points. Highest market price paid for County Bonds. Interest allowed on time deposits. Money to loan on approved security only. Interest allowed on deposits. Exchange on Europe for sale. Special attention given to business of depositors.

Thanking the public for their patronage, we respectfully solicit your patronage.

CONSERVATIVE.

National Park Bank, New York.
Commercial National Bank, Chicago.
National City Bank, Grand Rapids.
Detroit National Bank, Detroit.

Dutch, South Shore & Atlantic Railway.
THE SOO-MACKINAW SHORT LINE.
Only Direct Route to Upper Michigan and the Copper Country. Only Line Running a Daily Through Car Between Chicago and Sault Ste. Marie. Only Line Operating Through Sleepers between Chicago and Marquette without change of cars. Only Line Operating Dining Cars between Chicago and Marquette. Only Line Operating Parlor Cars on all day trains.
The only all-rail route to Sault Ste. Marie. Tickets over the D. S. S. & A. are sold at all R. R. offices, etc., connecting with this road. Full information as to rates, time of trains, etc., can be obtained of any agent of the road, or address the undersigned.
W. H. Wilkinson, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Marquette, Mich.

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.
Time Card for
PETOSKEY STATION,
In effect Oct. 18th.
Leave, going north, 8.18 p. m., 2.05 a. m.
Leave, going south, 8.20 a. m., 11.00 p. m.
Daily except Saturday.

MORTGAGE SALE.—A mortgage dated the 8th November, 1881, executed by Martin J. Blake and Elizabeth Blake, his wife, of the Township of Charlevoix, Charlevoix county, Michigan, to Joseph Sharp, of the same place, of the same county and state, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, in liber 1 of mortgages, on page 427, on the 12th day of November, 1881, which mortgage was duly assigned by said Martin J. Blake and Orvia H. Blake, February 19, 1887, and said assignment recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, in liber 1 of assignments of mortgages, on page 427, on the 26th day of October, 1887, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of two hundred and twenty-five dollars, in part due and unpaid upon said mortgage, of which no suit or proceeding has been taken, and no suit or proceeding under the power of sale contained in said mortgage, or otherwise, at law or in equity, is pending to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof; Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described as the Northeast quarter of the Southwest quarter of section twenty-four, in township twenty-six north, of range seven west, containing one hundred and twenty acres, more or less, at the front door of the court house, Boyne City, Michigan, in said county, on the last day of said county's land sale, which will be held on the first Tuesday in February, 1888.
Dated Charlevoix, Mich., Nov. 5, 1887.
JULIA A. DEWEY, Assignee of Mortgage.
J. MILO KATON,
Attorney for Mortgagee.

NOTICE is hereby given, that under and by virtue of a decree rendered by the Circuit Court for the County of Wayne, State of Michigan, on the 15th day of November, A. D. 1887, I will sell at public vendue, on Saturday, January 7, A. D. 1888, at the Court House door, in the City of Charlevoix, in said County of Charlevoix, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, the following described premises, viz: The undivided one-half of the Lumberman mill, situated in the Township of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, together with the appurtenances, and all the right, title and interest of Thomas Ryan, of Detroit, Michigan, in and to said premises, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree aforesaid, and the costs and charges of said sale.
Dated Detroit, Mich., Nov. 17, 1887.
JAMES A. BRIGGS,
WILLIAM D. PRESTON,
Executors of the last will and testament of J. G. Hinchman, deceased.
Attorney for said executors.

LIVERY
Feed and Sale Stables.
Burns, Stevens & Co.,
The Cldest and Largest Livery Stable in Charlevoix County.
The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand. Rates Low.
BRIDGE STREET, CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

NEW LIVERY AND Feed Barn.
LITNEY & STEIMEL
PROPRIETORS
Opposite Bridge Street House Charlevoix,
FIRST-CLASS RIGS REASONABLE RATES.

NEW GOODS!
Call and see our new assortment of
WATCHES, JEWELRY, SILVERWARE, OPTICAL GOODS, ETC., ETC.
NEW PATTERNS IN SILVERWARE
A large assortment of Spectacles and Eyeglasses, to suit all ages, for both far and near sighted.
Repairing done promptly and cheaply. Warranted. Sent to Detroit and Chicago for repairs, if desired, in six months we are subject to take charge of them.
BELLINGER,
Bridge St., Charlevoix.

Jos. Beauvais
BOAT-BUILDER.
The Best Modeled, Easiest Row, and Best Sailing Boats in Northern Michigan. Prices the Lowest. Money to me a Trial. Lamb bound to Please.

Boat Livery
In connection with shop.
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

MILLINERY,
Dressmaking,
Ladies' Fancy Goods.
A Splendid Line of Ribbons, Ladies' Gloves, Corsets, Laces, Ladies' Fine Under-wear, and Stamping Goods always on hand at Lowest Prices.
ALDRICH SISTERS,
At the Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich

WM. J. STEVENSON,
HORSE-SHOEING,
Wagon Shop,
BLACKSMITHING, ETC.
Heavy Wagons on hand and made to order, manufacturer and dealer in the best material, and WARRANT ALL WORK. Call and examine prices before buying elsewhere.
SHOP ONE BLOCK WEST OF DAMERON, BARTHOLOMEW & CO.'S STORE, CHARLEVOIX.
The OSBORNE MOWING MACHINE on hand and for sale.

WILL H. FRANCIS,
Furniture and Jobbing Shop.
Will give the carpentering and Building in Charlevoix and Boyne City his personal attention, and will make it for his interest to call on him before buying elsewhere. Shop on Bridge Street, opposite Harrison Bersea's grist mill.

$40 Given Away
AT
G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.
(NO LOTTERY.)
A Handsome Davis Sewing Machine given to the person guessing the nearest to the number of Beans contained in a glass globe. Every person purchasing $1.00 or more is entitled to a guess for each and every dollar's worth of goods purchased at our store during the month of December.

ALL SHOULD TAKE IT!
That Best of Family Papers,
THE WEEKLY
Detroit Free Press
No other paper in all world published in the weekly issue can compare with it.

NINE REASONS WHY!
1.—Each issue contains a full, fresh, and complete story, in addition to its usual amount of miscellaneous matter.
2.—Its Agricultural department is the ablest and most practical of any weekly issue.
3.—Its Market reports are full and reliable, and its Financial and Commercial departments are unsurpassed.
4.—Its Miscellaneous matter is of the choicest and most entertaining character, and its Editorial department is able, fearless and independent.
5.—Its Price is only ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

A GREAT OFFER.
Any person who will send Twenty Dollars for Twenty Yearly Subscriptions, will be entitled to receive the Free Press for one year, free of charge, for his trouble. Address all letters and orders to
THE FREE PRESS CO.,
Detroit, Mich.

John Nicholls,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.,
Manufacturer of and dealer in
HARDWOOD AND PINE
LUMBER!
ALSO
Dressed lumber, Our Blades, Wagon Tongues, Shingles, Lath, etc.
LUMBER SAWED AND BILLS FILLED TO ORDER.

ARBUCKLES'
Issue on a package of COFFEE is a guarantee of excellence.

ARIOSA
COFFEE is kept in all first-class stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COFFEE
is never good when exposed to the air. Always buy this brand hermetically sealed ONE POUND PACKAGES.

Portable Boiler
FOR SALE.
Twelve feet long, 2½ feet shell, 4 feet wood; in perfect order, good and cheap. Address
L. E. ALLEN,
Charlevoix, Mich.
2001

A. J. McLeod
Can be found at the old stand with a
FULL STOCK OF MEATS
Of all kinds
At Wholesale and Retail.
HIDES, PELTS, & FAT STOCK WANTED

PENSIONS!
WILLIAM G. CHANEY, late Assistant Chief of Division, Bureau of Pensions, Prosecuting all other soldiers' claims. Fifteen years in Pension Office. Address, 1311 F St., Washington, D. C.
Co-operative with working up of special claims of rejected and abandoned claims on fees collected only for success.
Many pensioners who are entitled to increase have their claims for increase overlooked. Some thirty cases in cases which need attention at Washington.
Many pensioners who are entitled to increase have their claims for increase rejected. Some thirty cases are frequently rejected for one disease when there are three.
No fee unless successful. Advice free.
Refers by permission to
Hon. B. W. Tourscott, of Illinois.
Hon. C. Magnell, of Indiana.
Hon. P. Morris, of Illinois.
Hon. R. W. Clark, of Kansas.
Hon. J. Lewis, of Iowa.
Hon. James Laird, of Nebraska.
Hon. J. S. Snyder, of Iowa.
Address,
WM. G. CHANEY, WASHINGTON, D. C.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

A Midnight Reverie.

I sit before the grate alone,
And, as I watch the dying fire
('Tis evening, and the hour is lone),
Old memories and thoughts inspire.

Alone and lonely there I sit,
Watching a flying, dying ember,
And trying, as the little flames fly
And dance about, not to remember

The thing that troubles all my dreams,
And so tormentes me, sleeping, waking,
Until at times it almost seems
As if my weary heart were breaking.

The fire flits out. The sudden chill
But makes my melancholy deeper
I go to unused, lonely rooms
And wishing cannot cool seem cheaper.
—Lowell Citizen.

FARM AND GARDEN.

HOW TO TREAT THAT STUBBORN DISEASE, BUMBLE FOOT.

A Cheap and Efficient Shelter for Swine.
A Poultry Show of General Interest—A Suggestion for Thanksgiving Day—Hints on Stable Drainage.

Much has been said and written about the treatment and disposal of house sewage, but comparatively little thought given to stable drainage. This neglect of the latter arises from, at least, from the fact that the amount of vapor given off in the stable is considered unhealthful to human beings, but is believed a serious annoyance, as are all disagreeable odors, and then it is very injurious to carriages, affecting the varnish, as well as impregnating the cushions with a mildew odor and eventually rotting them.

DRAINAGE OF STABLE.

When combined with a house drain can be attached to a regular sewerage system, or be run into a properly ventilated wasting cesspool, there is little or no trouble about vapors and odors; but where the liquid has to drain into a close cesspool, considerable thought and ingenuity are required.

It must be kept in mind that stables ought not to be drained into the same cesspool as is the house drain, with only a single liquid matter to be dealt with only one cesspool is necessary, but this one is a tight cesspool should be fitted with a suitable pump and an air shaft for ventilation. All the drains must be made water tight with cement, and the air shaft should be made of cast iron pipe not less than two inches in diameter. Size one inches rapidly when used about the stable.

The cut, which explains itself, shows a arrangement of a drain from a stable with ventilation of the catch pit that will prevent any bad odors. This plan is now much employed in England, and those who have tried it vouch for its successful operation if four-inch glazed pipes are used and the cesspool and catch pit are properly ventilated. The pipes should be carried down every few days to flush the drain.

How the liquid is finally disposed of will vary in individual cases. If there is a powerful manure factory in the shape of a cesspool, it should be used where the land is not too far off, and the liquid should be fitted with a suitable pump and an air shaft for ventilation. All the drains must be made water tight with cement, and the air shaft should be made of cast iron pipe not less than two inches in diameter. Size one inches rapidly when used about the stable.

The cut, which explains itself, shows a arrangement of a drain

FARM AND GARDEN.

FEEDING HOPPERS FOR FOWLS AS USED BY A SOUTHERN FARMER.

Keep the Butter a Golden Color Throughout the Winter by Judicious Feeding of the Cows—A Device for Killing Beef.

Beef killing, in Switzerland, it would appear from the United States consular report on cattle and dairy farming, has been reduced to a fine art. The accompanying cuts illustrate a device used at a large slaughtering place built by the city government just below Basle.

FIG. 1—BEEF KILLING—GUN AND SKULL.

It consists of a mask or plate, which has a short steel gun fastened to it, as in the sectional view at A. This is fastened to the horns by straps and the cartridge in the end is fired by tapping the iron pin in the end of the gun and driving it against the cartridge. The bullet pierces the center of the brain and is buried in the spinal marrow, causing instantaneous and painless death.

FIG. 2—DEVICE FOR KILLING BEEVES.

The ox is led to the shambles, a tap is given to the fatal pin and the animal drops dead without a struggle or the slightest show of approbation or pain. The bleeding is said to be perfect, and, according to the authority quoted, no excuse remains for killing cattle by tedious and painful methods.

How to Secure Yellow Butter.

Guernsey breeder affirms that the color fades out of the skin and cars of a cow before it does out of the butter. Cows of all breeds pale as to their skin color when kept upon dry fodder, especially in winter. There is really no sore feed or butter feed equal to grass or grass and hay, and for securing the required golden color in skin and butter in winter, adds the authority quoted from, nothing is equal to quick grown shade cured hay.

Shade cured hay is that which as soon as it is well wilted is raked into windrows, and rolled into good stand cocks while hot from the sun, after, perhaps, once or twice turning in the windrows. The cocks being matched to prevent heating in dry weather may be shaken out, tossed well to the air, but not spread about much, every green lock, however, being found and shaken out light. In rainy weather or damp weather the cocks must be made solid and pointed, and should be protected by caps. Such hay will be fit to house nearly as quickly as that which is dried out by the hot sunshine, so that nearly all the leaves and heads of the clover are either broken off and left in the field or ground to dust in handling and scattering upon the hay as the load and in the mow. Good shade cured hay is very green and dry, but not brittle. It may be twisted hard and show no moisture, while it will show a fertility and toughness entirely foreign to drier out, sun cured hay.

Other articles of food have great effect on butter and skin color. Lean clippings are excellent, sausage has some effect; carrots have a great effect; pumpkins, famous for yellowing butter; long red and yellow globe mangles are useful; yellow corn meal is to be highly commended, and a system of extra good feeding always prolongs the period of high colored butter. There are, however, certain articles which effect a loss of color as cotton, green corn fodder, dry corn fodder, steamed, any steamed fodder, and probably a good many other things.

A Novel Feeding Hopper.

The novel feeding hopper for fowls, shown in the following cut, can be readily constructed by any adult who possesses the slightest mechanical genius. Southern Farmer describes it so plainly that there is no difficulty about understanding it.

FEEDING HOPPER FOR FOWLS.

A is an end view, 8 inches wide, 2 feet 6 inches high and 1 feet long. B, the roof 9 inches high over the perch on which the roosting fowl sits feeding, C, the lid of the roosting manger which is exhibiting the grain; E, E, cords attached to the perch and lid of the manger or feeding trough; I, end bar of the perch with a weight attached to the end to balance the lid, otherwise it would not close when the fowls leave the perch; H, pulley; G, fulcrum. The hinges on the top show that it is to be retained when the hopper is to be replenished. When a fowl desires food it hops upon the bar of the perch, the weight of which raises the lid of the feed box, exposing the grain to view, and after satisfying its hunger jumps off, and the lid closes. Of course the dimensions may be increased to any size desired.

Why Horses Rub Their Manes and Tails.

The question, "Why horses rub their manes and tails," has been answered by a New York veterinary surgeon as follows: "Rubbing the mane and tail usually results from an unhealthy condition of the skin, which in most cases is produced by neglects of grooming or by bad food, or by any sudden change of diet from that to good. Occasionally, however, it appears in stables where grooming and food are unquestionably good. Damaged oats or hay are very rarely assigned for this annoying action. In every case, therefore, where the hair of the mane and tail fall out the food should be carefully examined. Young horses are coming into the stables sometimes suffer from an irritation of the skin, probably from change of diet. Horses recovering from fever frequently lose a portion of the hair from the mane and tail. In the latter case it seems to arise from an impoverished state of blood."

In regard to treatment the surgeon alluded to says: "If any positive cause, such as damaged food or neglected grooming, has existed, measures must be taken to remove such cause. Without this precaution local treatment will be of little avail. One method of local treatment that has produced good results consists in dressing the skin with equal parts of mercurial ointment and soft soap made into a lather with hot water and applied by means of a stiff hair brush. The new hair will grow rapidly after this application. In addition to the local treatment it will be necessary to act upon the system generally by a change of diet; green food should be given, as this by means of its laxative qualities lessens the irritability of the skin. A bran mash with five grains of arsenic added daily, in addition to the usual food, will exert a beneficial influence upon the skin.

Cottonseed Meal.

The demand for cottonseed meal for feeding purposes has grown wonderfully within the past few years, indeed in many places it has almost become a staple article, like cornmeal. After the oil is extracted and the cake has been ground into meal, it becomes a very nutritious food and is highly esteemed by dairymen and others for causing an increased flow of milk. It has great strength and should not be fed alone; one quart mixed with bran is about the right proportion to begin with, which may be gradually increased to about two quarts as the animal becomes accustomed to its use. It is claimed to excel linseed meal in milk producing properties, and is now sold at about the same price per ton. Of all the vegetable substances used for food the cottonseed cake is richest in nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, and consequently makes the most valuable manure. It is said that three-fourths of the seed raised here is exported in the form of cake or meal to Europe, where it is even more highly appreciated than in this country.

Record of Dairy Breeds.

The butter tests at the various fairs throughout the country this season, as indeed in past years, refute the idea that in any one or the dairy breeds lies all the superiority in milk and butter production. Taking the tests for the present year together, the honors appear to be very fairly distributed. For instance, at the New York dairy show, as everybody ought to know by this time, a pure bred Holstein gained the prize, at the New England fair the prize was awarded to a grade cow having Guernsey, Jersey and Hereford blood, at the Provincial fair at Toronto a full blood Ayrshire came out ahead; at the Illinois state fair a Jersey gained the record.

German scientists who have tested the relative profitableness of keeping large and small cows conclude that for the dairy small cows giving largest quantities of rich milk are the best. They do not believe largely in beef and milk from the same animal.

Foot Rot in Sheep.

Foot rot in sheep is an exceedingly troublesome disease, as it robs the animal affected of its flesh and decreases its value, though not always, by any means, fatal. The general impression is that foot rot is contagious. The editor of The Massachusetts Ploughman says on the subject: "Perhaps the ordinary foot rot is not contagious, but the 'epizootic foot rot,' or 'murrain,' is eminently so. The 'foot rot' is found only on low or moist grounds, and probably arises from the hoof not wearing down, as it does on dry ground, but growing to an unusual length because of the warmth and moisture of the soil. In Massachusetts the sheep are kept upon dry, rocky pastures, which are best for the sheep, and in case of the 'foot rot' are very rare, if any exists."

Tree Prescriptions for Bugs.

For chickens attacked with a disease resembling roup, but without the sickening discharge from the nostrils, the following prescriptions, says American Poultry Yard, have been tried with success.

"Vinegar and salt mixed to form a paste; thin. Dip the head of the patient in this mixture two or three times daily. 2 sulp. sinc, 1-2 gr.; sulp. morph., 1-2 gr.; aqua rosee, 1 oz. A few drops applied to the head and about the eyes of a chicken thrice daily. This preparation will relieve very quickly the severest cases of inflammation, and is perfectly harmless to the eyes, says the authority in question.

The Sutter Apple.

The Sutter apple, one of the "Government Russians" imported by the United States department of agriculture in 1868-70, has, according to as high authority as Vick, shown itself a thorough ironclad and a remarkably fine grower both in the nursery and orchard. It is a large and handsome red apple, and the tree is a heavy bearer. With Vick, on a light soil, it drops a good deal of its fruit in the course of the season, but carries a fair crop to maturity. Grown in northern Vermont and Quebec, it keeps until the holidays or later.

Ashes and Hen Manure.

Ashes and hen manure, if mixed together before being applied to the soil, results in a great loss of ammonia from the dropping that greatly lessens the value of the mixture. But if the ashes are spread on, or harrowed in after the manure has been mixed with the soil, the ammonia will be absorbed by it and remain in it for the use of the crop. Wood ashes are a valuable application to soils deficient in potash, and hasten the decomposition in coarse manures.

Carbolic Whitewash for Poultry Houses.

Carbolic acid is death to poultry lice, and if mixed with ordinary lime whitewash in the proportion of an ounce of acid to a gallon of wash, it will not only destroy all the lice that it touches, but because of the porous character of the wash the acid will continue to be effective for several months.

Things Farmers Tell One Another.

Strawberries will better, though better flavored, does not keep as well as that from slightly acid cream.

Prominent apiarians advise extracting the honey from partly filled sections at the end of the season and keeping the sections for use the next season.

Potatoes which grow nearest the surface are most subject to rot.

Feed poultry liberally at this season, especially with bone making material.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine now in ⅐⅐	Our price for it and this paper together
Wide Awake	$4.00	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	2.00
Pansy	1	2.00
Little Men and Women	1	2.00
Babyland	0.50	1.80

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a trifle in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a dead-head. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother insure even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Chautauqua Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it:—"library, study, play-house, the world and beyond, companionship of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all young people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

A Christmas Present.

To any subscriber whose account is paid one year in advance, we will furnish the JOURNAL one year in the name of any friend they may desire, who does not now take the paper, for one dollar cash in advance, if paid before the first day of January. Next year Charlevoix will "boom," and the best way to let your distant friends know all about it is to send the JOURNAL regularly. And the best way to sustain this paper in advertising Charlevoix county is to send one or more copies to friends abroad. Recollect, one dollar cash pays the bill, if your own account is settled one year in advance.

To Our Subscribers.

Send to F. P. Shumway, Jr., Boston, Mass., for a free sample copy of the COTTAGE HEARTH, a beautiful illustrated magazine, and so realize what an extraordinary offer we are making when we offer to send both the COTTAGE HEARTH and the Charlevoix JOURNAL for a full year for only $2.00 when the price of the COTTAGE HEARTH alone is $1.50 a year. The Boston Transcript says of the COTTAGE HEARTH: "Setting aside its literary contents, which are of a high order of merit, the collection of receipts for the kitchen and for the sick room, its practical suggestions and advice for the raising and care of plants and flowers, its instructions for beautifying homes by simple means, and other practical features, make it invaluable to every household."

Enrich the Blood.

HAMILTON'S GERMAN BITTERS are highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic. Especially Indigestion, Dyspepsia, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy. They enrich the blood, strengthen the muscles, and give new life to the nerves. They act like a charm in the digestive organs, remove all dyspeptic symptoms, and whenever the stomach is weak or there is a general loss of physical vigor, these bitters are just what you need. Only one large per bottle. Sold by G. D. Cronter. dec

Brace Up.

You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with headache, you are timidly nervous, and generally out of sorts and want to brace up. Brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap, low whiskey, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then place you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alterative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of liver and kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's drug store.

The Greatest Pain Killer yet found for Cramps, Colic, Stitch in side or back, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sprains, Bruises, &c., is Hamilton's Jamaica Ginger Tonic and Pain Cure. Bound on with hot wet cloths it never fails to cure. For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick headache, Diarrhœa, diarrhoea, dysentery, heartburn, sour stomach, &c., it is unequaled. Warranted to give relief. Used both internally and externally. Warranted to cure. Try it. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

Buckien's Arnica Salve.

The best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

☞ Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Shipman's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Gate" and 56 other Popular Ballads, in book form, only FOUR CENTS. Stamps taken. AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO. 6000 Fairmount Ave., Philadelphia Pa.

Bargains IN BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,

Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.

TERRACE FARM. - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

N. J. PERRY, Agent, Charlevoix.

CHICAGO Cor. Canal AND 16TH STS

AN IMPORTANT CLUB OFFER

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

Gives its readers literature of lasting interest and value; it is fully and beautifully illustrated and has already gained a more than national circulation exceeding 125,000 copies monthly.

PRICE 25 CENTS A NUMBER. $3.00 A YEAR.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT with Messrs. Charles Scribners Sons The Publishers enable us to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE with the Charlevoix JOURNAL for $4.00 per year, Cash in Advance.

Address all orders to CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher Journal, Charlevoix, Mich.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper, and are complete and unabridged. They are not the cheap, worthless productions of some of the publishing houses, but are such as you would be ashamed to have your name seen on the cover of, but are such as your mothers, sisters and wives may read and be benefited and improved by reading, and such as you may safely place in your parlor, library, or bedroom, and even your mothers and sisters need not blush if they happen to see you reading them. They are such as you will find in the libraries of the best families in the world. NOTHING ARE OFFENSIVE OR OBSCENE in them, and they are such as you would be ashamed to have your name seen on the cover of any of them. Very interesting and instructive. Any one of the following books will be sent postpaid to any address on receipt of three cents in postage stamps. Address, THE POPULAR PUBLISHING CO., Charlevoix, Mich.

The Lady of the Lake. A Poem. By Sir Walter Scott.
The Prisoner of Chillon. A Poem. By Lord Byron.
The Dream of Pelopidas. A Tale of Ancient Greece. By Rev. Alexander Wilson.
The Lady of Lyons. A Play. By Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton.
Lady Geraldine's Courtship. A Poem. By Elizabeth Barrett Browning.
Lady Geraldine's Courtship. A Poem. By Alfred Tennyson.
Lady Clare. A Poem. By Alfred Tennyson.
The Two Sisters. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
The Vicar of Wakefield. A Novel. By Oliver Goldsmith.
The Lady Of Lyons. A Play. By Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton.
The Lady Of The Lake. A Poem. By Sir Walter Scott.
The Prisoner Of Chillon. A Poem. By Lord Byron.
Paradise Lost. A Poem. By John Milton.
The Lady Of The Lake. A Poem. By Sir Walter Scott.
Paul Ferroll. A Novel. By Mrs. Caroline Clive.
Lady Ethel's Daughter. A Novel. By Mrs. Hungerford.
Paul Ferroll. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
Lady Clare. A Poem. By Alfred Tennyson.
Lucretia. A Novel. By Bulwer Lytton.
The Two Orphans

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS GRIST.

Important Happenings in Every Quarter of the Civilized Globe.

The Very Latest Intelligence Flashed Over the Telegraphic Wires.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

AN EXALTED FRENCHMAN.

M. Sadi-Carnot Elected President of the Republic by the Legislative Congress.

The Congress of the Senators and Deputies at Versailles, France, elected M. Sadi-Carnot to succeed President Grevy. The successful candidate is a Republican who has been prominent in politics ever since the downfall of Louis Napoleon, but his influence in his party has been far inferior to that of his principal rivals for Republican support in the contest for the Presidency. A Paris cab-driver says:

The ministry have formally tendered their resignations and President Sadi-Carnot has requested them to remain in office until after the departure of public business. It is believed that stated that it was his intention, after the new ministry was formed, to at once close the present session of parliament until after the meeting of the new Chambers. Probably the result of this adjournment is the best thing that could have happened, as it will give Sadi-Carnot the ablest and best known economical writer in France, and has served in political capacities far superior to M. Leroy-Beaulieu, the most famous economical writer in France, and a man who is without being a political visionary. He is a civil engineer, having headed his class at The Ecole Polytechnique, instead of being a lawyer, which in itself is a great thing; he is a member of a Protestant family, he is a religious, but not a bigot, and a Catholic. He has a 18-year-old son in the ranks of the French army. The newspapers of Paris generally express the election of M. Sadi-Carnot and consider it an ideal one, from the French standpoint. He is a republican, without exception, tactfully to the satisfaction of the Monarchists of the election. The news created an absolutely impression at the principal European capitals.

FLAMES CAUSE A PANIC.

Fire in a Large Hotel in Guelph, Ontario, Creates Great Excitement Among the Guests—Many Jump from the Windows, Nine Being Badly Injured.

A GUELPH (Ontario) dispatch states that "A fire broke out in the first flat of the Commercial Hotel, one of the largest in the city, and spread so rapidly that it cut off all egress by the stairway. All escaped death but Charles Hale, a molder, whose body was found among the debris on the third floor, burned to a crisp. There were between seventy and eighty persons in the hotel, and many jumped from the second and third story windows, and some from the fourth. The screaming of the girls and women at the windows, appealing for help, and having to jump, no help being at hand, were heartrending. Charles Haugh jumped from the fourth story, and escaped with such slight injuries that, on hearing two of his little brothers were still in the building, he rushed through the flames up stairs, found the little chaps in their beds holding hands, kets, and then, in jumping from the second story himself, received severe injuries, and was taken to the hospital. Nine of the guests were severely injured and taken to the hospital for treatment. Some of them, it is feared, cannot recover.

GRAVES FOR THE ANARCHISTS.

A Burial Plot Selected Sixteen Miles South of Chicago.

A BILLADE site in Greenwood Cemetery, sixteen miles south of the city, on the Chicago and Grand Trunk Road, has been selected as the burial place of the dead anarchists, says a Chicago special. The lot, which is on a high hill overlooking the surrounding country, was offered at very reasonable figures, and entire control of the property given to the Central Labor Union, to arrange matters without interference on the part of the cemetery Trustees. The funeral services will be held next Sunday.

Minor Telegrams.

GEN. KING, of Washington, writes a letter in favor of changing inauguration day from March 4 to the last Tuesday in April.

A STEADY flow of natural gas was obtained at a depth of 100 feet, on land owned by D. L. Campbell, seven miles north of Detroit.

A COAL famine exists for 400 miles along the Santa Fe Road in Kansas. A train was stopped by farmers at Syracuse and six cars of coal unloaded.

SECRETARY LAMAR received a call from Senator Edmunds, recently, from which circumstance he deduces the conclusion that the Vermont man will vote against his confirmation if he is nominated to fill the vacancy on the Supreme bench.

At the caucus of Democratic Congressmen in Washington Saturday night, the 3d inst., Mr. Carlisle was nominated for Speaker, General Clark for Clerk, and John A. Leedom for Sergeant-at-Arms. There was a contest over the nomination of Doorkeeper, in which Freeburghs of Arkansas and Blount of Georgia came to blows. Dorsheimer of Pennsylvania, was passed over. Mr. Carlisle, it is stated, has offered the chairmanship of Ways and Means to Mr. Springer, the most famous committee of Congress, if he will give up his contest against being chairman of Judiciary. He is a skilled

THE JOURNAL
CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.
CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THE population of Utah is 200,000 of whom 122,597 are Mormons.

LINCOLN emancipated the slaves; Cleveland will emancipate trade.

THERE were about 13,000 postmasters appointed during the last year.

THE house of representatives re-elected its blind chaplain. But let us have no blind legislation.

THE ladies will find on the second page a column or two of chat about the fair daughters of Eve, together with a few notes on the latest styles in feminine attire.

THE prohibitionists announce that they will hold a convention in Indianapolis next June to nominate a candidate for President and otherwise amuse the republican party. They mean to be early in the field, too.

MR. VILAS has ceased to struggle with "Uncle Sam's" letters. Don M. Dickinson, his successor, is a noble specimen of western manhood, and will prove a credit to his state and to the administration.—Boston Globe.

REPRESENTATIVES of the western sheep ranches under the style and name of wool dealers and growers have been in session in Washington the past week and will meet again in January, for the purpose of defeating any reduction in the unjust wool tariff.

EX GOV. ALGER, of Michigan, is said to have made $5,000,000 from the pine lands in that state. And the tariff on lumber, maintained to "protect American industry" and encourage the rapid destruction of our forests has enabled him to do it.—N. Y. World.

THE railroad and warehouse commission filed a report last Friday with the governor of Illinois upon their investigation into the Chatsworth disaster, in which they find that the Toledo, Peoria & Warsaw railroad is censurable for not patrolling its tracks and keeping informed of its condition.

THE glass manufacturers are "growling" are they? Well the people have provocation enough to growl too. They are compelled to pay a duty of from 61 to 100 per cent on their imported window glass in order to give a little ring of manufacturers a chance to make millionaires of themselves.—N. Y. World.

A FULL report of the National Temperance conference held at Chicago is found on the inside of the JOURNAL this week. A special correspondent says that a more intelligent, finer looking body of men than that comprising this conference is rarely seen. It was made up of experienced and mature men. Silvery hair and gray beards were the rule, and young men the exception. Much excellent work was accomplished.

THE New York Sun humbly drops into line as a loyal democratic organ and concedes the necessity of renominating Grover Cleveland for president in 1888. It says: "The United democracy, fresh from its triumphs over contestants of every sort, can approach the great contest that awaits it next year full of the renewed vigor and confidence that give as strance of victory." These are brave words and fitly spoken, especially for the New York Sun after opposing Cleveland from his nomination up to the present time.

An opinion was filed in the United States Supreme court last week, in the case of State of Kansas vs. Harman Ziebold, and others, reversing the judgment of the court below. The effect of this decision is to declare void the prohibitory law of Kansas, and is, of course, a victory for the prohibitionists. It sustains the right of the state under its "police powers" to suppress the manufacture of liquor, and the liquor traffic within its limits, without making a compensation to the distiller or liquor dealer for the value of the property destroyed by such state action.

THE full text of President Cleveland's annual message to congress is found on the sixth page, and should be carefully read by all, and especially by the farmers and and working men. The entire document is devoted to finance and taxation, and shows that this, the most important question before the fiftieth congress, has been given a calm, conscientious consideration seldom given to any question by executives. Congress is urgently called upon to reduce the treasury surplus, and the reasons for such an action is set forth fully and dispassionately. The present tariff laws are characterized as vicious, unequitable and contrary to the interests of the people. This message is a faithful draft of the principles of the democratic party, and furnishes the text of the next campaign. It is to be hoped that the masses of the people, to whose interest this message relates, will give it the same calm consideration given it by its author.

ALTHOUGH the distillers and brewers of Iowa have shown little respect for the statutes and courts of their own state, they evidently have no stomach for a tussle with Uncle Sam. The recent decision of the Supreme court of the United States in the Kansas cases has had an almost instant effect upon the attitude of the Iowa distillers toward the law. Their defiant fronts have changed to timely compliance. The celebrated Franz brewery at Sioux City, rendered notorious through the murder of the Rev. George C. Haddock, has at last been closed in obedience to the statute. The only other brewery in Sioux City has followed its example. Evidently the brewers of Iowa think that when the will of a state is backed by a decision of the Supreme court of the United States it is not to be monkeyed with. And they do well so to think.

Important Nominations.

The next morning after congress convened, the president sent the following nominations to the senate for confirmation:

Lucius Q. C. Lamar, of Mississippi, to be associate justice of the supreme court of the United States.

William F. Vilas, of Wisconsin, to be secretary of the interior.

Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan, to be postmaster general.

Charles S. Fairchild, of New York, to be secretary of the treasury.

George L. Rives, of New York, to be assistant secretary of state.

Isaac H. Maynard, of New York, to be assistant secretary of the treasury.

Sigourney Butler, of Massachusetts, to be second comptroller of the treasury.

James M. Hyatt, of Connecticut, to be treasurer of the United States.

Put Coal on the Free list.

Whilst the miners in the Lehigh region are undergoing the pangs of starvation, unemployed men in Philadelphia are suffering for the want of fuel and all the wheels of industry are made to turn more slowly than they would in a normal condition of industrial affairs. The combined coal companies have advanced the price of coal $1.25 per ton, and at the same time the Lehigh miners have been refused an advance in wages equivalent to 3½ cents per ton. To the consumer, Monopoly says: "Pay our demand or freeze!" To the miner it says: "Accept our wages or starve!" In the meantime the workingmen of Pennsylvania are being called upon to fall down and worship at the feet of a false god labeled "Protection to Labor." It is reported that the coal operators have on the way to this country 2,000 Belgian miners who, it is expected, will take the places of the strikers, and later on burrah for protection.—Philadelphia Record.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone.	Our price for it and this paper together.
Wide Awake	$2.40	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	2.10
Funny	1	2.10
Little Men and Women	1	2.10
Babyland	0.50	1.50

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a dime in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a dead-head. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, tells the mother coming over a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Funny comes with the Sunday School age.

Christopher Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"library, study, play-house, life at home and abroad, encyclopaedia of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazine because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

A Christmas Present.

To any subscriber whose account is paid one year in advance, we will furnish the JOURNAL one year to the name of any friend they may desire, who does not now take the paper, for one dollar cash in advance, if paid before the first day of January. Next year Charlevoix will "boom," and the best way to let your distant friends know all about it is to send the JOURNAL regularly. And the best way to sustain this paper in advertising Charlevoix county is to send one or more copies to friends abroad. Recollect, one dollar cash pays the bill, if your account is settled one year in advance.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 7.—The session of the Fiftieth Congress began Monday. The occasion attracted to the capitol the usual immense crowd, in which ladies were largely in the majority. Those who came early secured seats; those who waited until the opening hour had nearly arrived were forced to stand in the aisles or content themselves with peeping over each other's heads through the doors which opened out upon the crowded lobbies. The corridors were thronged and the marble floors and walls once more resound with the tread of hurry ing feet. There were many distinguished people in the crowd. Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Folsom, Mrs. Gilder, Miss Kingford and the ladies who are at present guests at the White House occupied the seats in the senate gallery usually set apart for the family of the president. Mrs. Cleveland wore a toilet of bottle green silk, and amused herself during the proceedings with taking notes in a little book which she carried. The floor of the senate presented the appearance of a huge flower garden, its most luxuriant growth being in the neighborhood of Senator Daniel's desk. The gilt bands on the blue and gold faced clock overlapped each other upon the figure twelve, when Mr. Ingalls, as tall and spare as ever, brought his gavel down upon the presiding officer's desk. The noisy hum of conversation instantly ceased, and there was a decorous silence as the chaplain opened the proceedings with a rather long prayer. When he had concluded the senate was ready for business.

In the House, the diplomatic gallery, which is usually unoccupied, was crowded yesterday, and in the gallery reserved for the press the newspaper reporters crushed each other out of all possibility of breathing freely. The new green carpet on the floor was bright and refreshing to the eye. During the preliminary proceedings Mr. Carlisle was the only member who was not in his accustomed seat. All the other seats are distributed by lottery, but that goes by election. Mr. Carlisle did not appear in the hall at all until after one o'clock. He was duly elected and led into the hall and up to the Speaker's chair by the committee, who found him secluded in his room.

Just as the clerk rapped on the table to call the House to order and began the work of the fiftieth congress, a loud wail came from the northwest gallery, which was densely crowded. It turned out to be a religious crank, who insisted upon singing the "Doxology." The chaplain had not been formally elected, and consequently no prayer had been offered up before the clerk ordered the calling of the roll. The absence of the prayer moved the man in the gallery, who insisted if I have more no prayer they should at least have the "Doxology," and, sure enough, he got to the end of the hymn in a peculiar form before the assistant sergeant at arms could expel him from the gallery.

Mr. Carlisle stood at the speaker's table with a book in his hand, and William D. Kelly, of Pennsylvania, as the father of the house (that is the oldest member in continuous service) was called upon by the clerk to administer the oath of office to Mr. Carlisle. Mr. Kelly was ready for the call, and from his seat he sprang into the arena in front of the speaker's table, and in a voice like that which is associated with the ghost of Hamlet's father, recited with great elocutionary solemnity the words of the oath which bound the speaker to support and defend the constitution from all enemies, domestic or foreign.

For the first time in the history of congress a new congressional directory is laid upon the desks of senators and members of the house on the first day of the session. Its editor and compiler is Mr. W. P. Michael, clerk of the joint committee on printing, in which position he is the successor to the late Benj. Perley Poore. It is a somewhat smaller volume than any of its predecessors, but contains all the information deemed essential to completeness except the organization of committees, which will be given in a supplement when the work of organization shall have been completed.

Representative Springer proposes to introduce a bill for the purpose of preventing the crowding of the home dockets with private business. He says that of the 15,002 bills introduced in the last congress four-fifths were of a private nature. Almost the same measures are brought forward at every congress and the country is put to an expense of hundreds of thousands of dollars in printing and reprinting them.

One of the first things a democratic congressman does when he gets into town nowadays is to run up to the White house and report to his chief. The old timers—those who have been in congress before—know what it is to keep on Cleveland's good side, hence their visits. The young ones must go and show themselves off. President Cleveland, however, is on the outlook for the young men. He believes, like Tilden, that the young men are the ones to gather round him. Old men are full of devices and plans. The young men like to be put in responsible positions and are true to their patrons.

The first annual report of the interstate commerce commission has been made public. It bills forty two pages of closely printed matter, in which the work of the commission since its origin, the effect of the new law upon trade and transportation, and the law's defects are treated exhaustively. The report opens with a very interesting history of railroad development in the United States. The railroad mileage of the United States, it is shown, is 137,986. The number of corporations represented in this mileage is 1,425; but by the consolidation or leasing of roads the number of corporations controlling and operating roads as carriers is reduced to 700.

Justice Harlan, of the United States supreme court presided at the morning session of the evangelical alliance. The leading paper of the session was read by Col. J. L. Green, of Hartford, Conn., on "The Social Vice." He said that every kind of lawlessness in society recognizes the family as a foe and seeks to corrupt, and weaken it. The speaker named among the most unsanctified agencies for promoting the social vice: The public school with its inevitable mingling of the impure and the impure, where evil influences are as rife as fungi in a swamp; the highly spiced, impure novel; the sensational, scandal monging press, which is so close an ally of impure fiction, art in painting, sculpture, and music, which may, and often does disseminate impure suggestion in the most dangerous way of all; and, lastly, the saloon. The saloon, he said, must do more than merely avoid and hold its skirts from contamination. It must make an aggressive as well as a passive defensive war against the fiend.

THE STAR

A Newspaper supporting the Principles of a Democratic Administration.

Published in the City of New York.

WILLIAM DORSHEIMER, EDITOR.

Daily, Weekly, and Sunday Editions.

THE WEEKLY STAR,

An Eight-page Newspaper, issued every Wednesday.

A clean, pure, bright and interesting FAMILY PAPER.

It contains latest news, down to hour of going to press.

Agricultural, Market, Fashion, Household, Financial and Commercial, Political, Poetical.

Numerous and Editorial Departments, all under the direction of trained journalists of the highest ability. Its columns will be found crowded with good things from beginning to end.

Original stories by distinguished American and foreign writers of fiction.

TERMS OF THE WEEKLY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, outside the limits of New York City.

ONE DOLLAR FOR ONE YEAR.

Four copies to one address, $3.00; nine copies, $20; additional copy to separate of Club, $2 each; twenty copies, $40.

Special terms and extraordinary inducements to postmasters and others.

Send for Circulars.

THE DAILY STAR.

THE DAILY STAR contains all the news of the day in an attractive form. Its special correspondence by cable from London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Dublin, is considerable feature.

At Washington, Albany and other news centers, the STAR's correspondents, specially selected by THE STAR, furnish its readers with valuable news.

The literary features are unexcelled.

The financial and Market Reviews are unusually full and comprehensive.

TERMS OF THE DAILY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, outside the limits of New York City.

Daily, without Sunday, per month, ... $0.75
Daily, without Sunday, six months, ... 4.00
Daily, without Sunday, one year, ... 8.00
Daily, including Sunday, one year, ... 10.00

Address, THE STAR,
Broadway and Park Place, New York.

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD

AND THE

Charlevoix Journal

ONE YEAR

For $2.00

Sample Copies at this Office.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

Grand Rapids' best paper.

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Weed at 12½ cents a week.

PIMPLES. I will mail (sealed) a recipe that will clear the face of PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, RED NOSE, ROUGH, CHAPPED and OILY SKIN, and leave the skin soft, clear and beautiful. This recipe is the prescription of a physician who has had extensive experience in treating skin diseases. The only remedy ever offered for PIMPLES. And the bright glow will last for years. Address, Dr. C. H. STEPHENS, Box 1823, New York City.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charlevoix County, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

We are headquarters for everything in our line.

A great Reduction in the prices of CLOAKS and Wraps, to close them out.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which equals of no organ at any price.

It combines every improvement and merit of organs, while and money can procure.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WAR RANTED FOR FIVE YEARS

These excellent Organs are unknown for any one quality of tone, quality, durability, beauty of finish, perfect adaptability to the wants of the public, and unusual and desirable organs for homes, schools and churches, combined.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION. UNEQUALED FACILITIES. SKILLED WORKMEN.

COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stos s.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, free.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN CO.
831 BLUE ISLAND AVE.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

For Hard Times.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL

AND

DEMOREST'S ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY MAGAZINE

With Twelve Cut Paper Patterns of your own BOTH PUBLICATIONS, ONE YEAR,

$3.10 (THREE TEN).

DEMOREST'S THE BEST

Of all the Magazines.

CONTAINING Stories, Poems and other Literary Productions by the best American and foreign writers.

Illustrated with Original Steel Engravings, Lithograph prints, Fashion Plates and fine Woodcuts, working it the World Magazine of America.

Each Month Magazine contains a COUPON ENTITLING the holder to one Pattern of ANY PATTERN, illustrated in that number, FREE, of cost.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY is justly entitled the Worldly Model Magazine. Its Cut Paper Patterns, the Largest and Best, Circulation, and its Twelve Dollar Family Magazine issued. 106 will be the 106th consecutive issue of its publication, it is continually improved and so extensively known as to need no further mention. Its Family Portfolios and equal to any Art Journal, contains 12 plates, large quarto, each 11 inches, in a portfolio, gilt and richly ornamented, published by W. Jennings Demorest, New York, AND BY SPECIAL AGREEMENT COMBINED WITH THE Charlevoix Journal at $3.10 Per Year.

RICHLY REWARDED are those who find that they will find honorable employment that will not take them from their homes and families. We want a man in this county to take charge of our pictures, many new styles and are selling several hundred dollars a month. It is easy for anyone to make a big income per day who is willing to work. Either sex, young or old, capital not needed; we start you. Everything new. No special ability required; you, reader, can do as well as any person. Those who are in full particulars free. If you do not like them we will mail you $5 for your trouble. Address, TRUE & CO., Portland, Maine.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be secured for it in NEW YORK.

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES

Sprains,	Swellings,	Contracted
Bruises,	Stiffness,	Muscles,
Rheumatism,	Bites,	Lumbago,
Wounds,	Stings,	Sore Throat,
Galls,	Corns,	Sweeny,
Spavin,	Bunions,	Mange,
Spring	Swellings,	Sweeney,
Colds,	Chilblains,	Scratches,
Coughs,	Frost	Spoil,
Pains,	Bites,	Worms,
Aches,	Sores,	Fistula,

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY

Has proved to be the best remedy for all the purposes for which it is recommended.

The Mustang Liniment is found in the world around, publishing testimonials from every quarter.

The Lumberman needs it in case of accidents.

The Housewife finds it invaluable in her family.

The Druggist sells it for his customers and is the Clerk Recommend it as always to give satisfaction.

The Hostler finds it the best remedy in his business.

The Farmer and Stockman find it the best remedy for all diseases and wounds of the kind.

The Mechanic and Laborer find it invaluable to them in their business as it relieves them from the effects of bruises, and cuts and wounds which are incident to their business.

The Horseman knows it is the best remedy for all the ailments of his horse.

The Sportsman knows it is always in his way.

The Traveler knows it is the best remedy to have in his baggage.

The Mother knows it is the best family medicine in the world.

The Physician knows it is the best remedy he can use in his business.

The Manufacturer knows it is the best remedy he can use in his business.

The Druggist knows it is the best selling article he has in his store.

The Merchant knows it is the best article he can have in his store.

The Hotel Keeper knows it is the best remedy he can have in his house.

The Public generally know it is the best remedy for all the purposes for which it is recommended.

Keep a Bottle in the Factory, it is needed in each case of accidents every day, and one of wounds or sickness every week.

Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for use when wanted.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Send 25 cents in stamps for a Sample Bottle, DELIVERED POSTAGE PAID, and if you find it THE BEST you ever tried, or that it does all that is claimed for it, you can send the balance of the dollar and get your bottle by return mail. Address, MENTION THIS PAPER, THE MUSTANG LINIMENT MFG. CO., 178 EAST ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

"Mustang Liniment" is the best I ever tried. I have used it in my family for years, and it is the best family medicine we have."—Geo. W. Bunn, Ex-Member of Congress, Ohio.

PRESBYTERIANS

Should take the Binder and Interpreter, a large eight-page paper, 52 numbers a year, devoted to the Bible, Church, Sabbath-school, and Temperance. Price $2.50 per year, or $2.00 if not in advance. Send for specimen copy. Address, BINDER AND INTERPRETER, 1122 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

INVENTION has revolutionized the hair cutting business. The latest and best improvement in a machine and scissors combined, which cuts the hair in half the time, and leaves the hair in a smooth and even manner, is the celebrated Wizard Hair Cutter. Sent by mail, postpaid, for $1.50. Address, THE WIZARD HAIR CUTTER CO., Box 1, Ridgefield, Conn.

FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres of land situated on Pine Lake 1½ miles west of Jamesville, Jackson Co., Mich. Ample supply of Hardwood timber, Cheap for cash. Inquire of the owner, W. H. MOORE, Jamesville, Mich.

THE JOURNAL

...ber 15, 1887.

...News.

...office was closed Dec. ...

...ery of mails at G. W. ...

...ed to G. W. Crouter's for Christmas goods.

The tug Campbell is laid up at Washburn's yard.

☞ New goods at Crouter's. Call and look them over.

☞ For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's.

The custom house closed for the season last Saturday.

Geo. W. Miller has handsomely dressed front windows.

A genuine Santa Claus graces the front window of Byron See.

☞ The Best Line of Albums in town is at G. W. Crouter's.

A new furnace was put in the Congregational church last week.

Lewis Smith is running a Charlevoix and Petoskey freight line.

☞ Buy goods at Crouter's and have a guess on the Sewing Machine.

The tug Jim Campbell is hauled out at Washburn's yard, for thorough repairs this winter.

☞ Sewing machine given away. Finest thing ever offered in Charlevoix, at G. W. Crouter's.

Chas. E. Swallow has made a very neat and appropriate sign for Sims Baker's horse-shoeing shop.

E. B. Hodge & Co. have three men at work in the harness shop, and then can hardly keep up with orders.

Our "best bower" will appreciate one of those elegant silk handkerchiefs in George Miller's window.

Local option in Michigan is not a party question and must not be made such. It is a question of the people.

The board of Supervisors will hold their special meeting January 5, instead of December 28, as announced last week.

☞ It is admitted that the Help Mate sewing machine is the best for the money. Sold by S. M. See & Sons.

☞ Don't pay a travelling agent $40 for a sewing machine when you can get a first-class machine of S. M. See & Sons for $30.

F. G. Hines & Co. have placed a "tell tale" clock in their store, with which the night watchman registers his rounds, so that part of town.

The boys band have decided to give a masquerade on Monday evening, Dec. 26th, at the opera house. Music by Blakeley's band. See posters for particulars.

Charlevoix's veterans men have had a wonderfully good trade this fall and the holiday trade promises to be even greater than ever. Shops are unusually well supplied with holiday goods.

The Detroit Free Press, the best family paper in Michigan, has a prospectus on the first page which demands your attention. Those who want all the news during the coming year, should take the JOURNAL and Free Press for $2.00.

Washburne & Ackert last week placed one of their furnaces in the Congregational church, and are putting one in the village hall. The furnaces are proving very popular wherever tried, and are fast taking the place of those made outside.

☞ Santa Claus is coming a sen ...tors at the corner of Bridge and Main streets, where he will remain until after the holidays, and has brought among other goods a Christmas present to be given away Dec. 24 at 3 p. m. Come and see. B. See.

Comable's fish tug, the Ethel J., struck the reef off south point about noon last week Tuesday evening and was released by the tugs Campbell and Martin about 11 o'clock the same night, without serious damage. She is now at Campbell's yard, receiving some repairs.

Notice.—Parties owing the Charlevoix manufacturing Co. are hereby notified that unless their accounts are paid by end of year. Legal steps will be taken to enforce the collection of all past due accounts. Settlements may be made at Crouter's, Bennett & Hitchings' store.

Perry Weeks advertises his immense stock of holiday goods by bills this week. Those buying 25 cents worth receive a ticket and the person producing the largest number of checks on Christmas eve, instead of December 25 will receive a present of the latest edition of Webster's dictionary, together with a dictionary rack.

In making selections for Christmas, first consult the advertising columns of the JOURNAL. Then the eighth page of the day's issue will be found the second place to look. Then, on the commencement of Dr. G. W. Crouter's. An examination of his stock will convince anyone that nothing is exaggerated. The stock is entirely new, and the nonetites far surpass in beauty and richness anything ever before offered. The albums and toilet cases are especially fine, while the cards are a surprise to all who examine them. Call and see, and you will find plenty of presents, also new and complete in late novelties.

A hail dozen rowdies—boys old enough to be gentlemen—amused themselves at the ladies' band concert Tuesday evening, throwing large small candies, etc. over the floor, to the annoyance of others who went there to enjoy the entertainment. Even the presence of the village marshal seemed to have no restraint upon them.

The ladies band were not greeted by as large an audience at their concert Tuesday evening as the program warranted, although they had a fair house. The ladies have been working hard in their band practice this winter, under the lead of Mr. Jarvis, and this concert reflects credit upon the effort. The receipts of the evening were about $20.

The following from the Charlotte Republican will apply equally well to at least one institution in Charlevoix: "It is well enough to endeavor to attract new manufacturing industries to locate in our midst, and no opportunity to that end should be allowed to go unimproved, but it should not be overlooked that there are several "plants" already established here that are well deserving of and could most profitably be encouraged to an enlarged sphere of activity. We have two or three industries that would develop wonderfully and pay large interest on the investment, by a healthy enlargement of their stock. Think of this."

Purely Personal.

Oscar Upright is at home this week.

Capt. Robert O'Neil is home for the winter.

W. H. Downer returned from Wisconsin to day.

Leslie Gigdings is engineer at the new shingle mill.

Mrs. D. M. Colby is slowly recovering from her long illness.

Jim Cooper arrived Saturday and is stopping with his parents.

C. J. Grier now occupies the Mc Cartney house on Main Street.

Ben Beaver and wife of Hayne Sundayed at Charlevoix with friends.

John Cooper left yesterday for Toronto, where he will spend the winter.

F. E. Thurston is home from Frankfort to remain during the winter.

M. Manion died last Thursday night at 7.00 o'clock, age about 70 years.

Will Taylor is at home for the winter, the Friant having been laid up at Harbor Springs.

Capt. Harrison Borden and wife have retirned from their two months visit in southern Michigan.

Rev. A. G. Downs attended the Congregational conference at Alba Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ed. Bedford, member of the Point Lookout wrecking crew, returned home Saturday, for the winter.

W. C. Newman is painting a number of patent bridge guards on the bridges in Saginaw county.

George Cooper, of Mineral Hill, has signed as supervisor, and John Ward appointed to act in his stead.

Isaac Mills and wife who spent the summer in Stratford, Ont., returned home yesterday and will occupy their house on Clinton street.

S. H. Beardsley has made numerous friends among the little folks during the past week, everywhere using them with dolls and other appropriate presents.

F. W. Hathaway, of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau, writes us that he intends to be at trisk that it does not promise a vacation next summer and he will miss his annual visit to Charlevoix, but he wants his JOURNAL just the same. We are glad to note the prosperity of the bureau.

Counsel Events.

The W. C. T. U. Rescue will be held next Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday all day, at the room formerly occupied by Bolle-Scott's "fair," corner Bridge and Mason street. Oyster supper Wednesday evening.

Christ church mission Sunday school, all parents, sponsors, guardians, friends and children, large or small, of the same mission are invited to the residence of W. P. Brown Thursday evening at 7 o'clock sharp, to "brought down the house." The paper, by R. W. Kemp, received the condition of Ireland during the reign of Richard II. Mrs. Guyles gave a piano solo. After intermission W. P. Brown read selections from Shakespeare's Richard II, after which Rev. W. H. McCartney and Miss Nelson lead the conversation on the same subject. The program closed by a vocal duet by Dr. Carlstien and Mrs. E. M. Clark. Friday the society met at Mrs. Amelia Hitchcock's, the subject of study will be Henry IV.

Barnard.

BARNARD, Dec. 14—There will be a Christmas tree at the Barnard school house on Christmas eve. A good time expected. The children should all be there.

William Clark is erecting an addition to his barn.

Mr. John Dougherty has made road between his place and Smithville camp, and will be engaged in lumbering this winter.

Eveline.

IRONTON, Dec. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trudgeon are on the sick list.

Mrs. Gilbert Parish of Ironton, has gone to Wayne county to live. Mr. Parish will join her in the spring.

School in mountain district commenced on the 5th, with Miss Mary Johnson of Eastport as teacher.

Joseph Trudgeon recently completed a new residence on his farm, 19x26.

A little son of Fred Preeper, of Ironton, while coasting one day last week, injured one of his eyes. He is doing well at present.

With this issue we complete our first year as correspondent of the JOURNAL. In that first issue was mentioned the death of Mr. Robert Bedwin, and in this the death of Mr. Luther Hayden. We have given more news from week to week than any other correspondent in this county. For this we wish to thank our many friends and neighbors who have so kindly whispered to us items of news, which might have best missed. And if nothing unusual happens we will endeavor to continue on through another year. May the JOURNAL increase its circulation to one thousand in this year to come.

Elbridge Mason has moved his family to Norwood to live.

Frank Burdick with his family left last week for Reed City to live.

Mrs. Sheldon died December 3 with dropsy of the heart. The funeral took place on Sunday following at the home. The bereaved leaves a husband and one child.

Walter Vandecar left Saturday for Manistique to work.

A hop at Ed Tumath's at Ironton on Friday evening.

A grand ball at Scholfen's hall on Christmas eve. A grand time is anticipated.

Luther Hayden, of this town, while cutting logs at Forestwood camp about three miles east of Dwight's Monday afternoon, December 5, with his partner, William Lorenz, struck another tree breaking off a limb about four or five inches in diameter, which flew back striking him on the head, crushing it and killing him instantly. He was carried to the camp and from there taken to his home at Joseph Trudgeon's. The deceased was born in London, England, and is 20 years old. Three years ago he came to this country with his sister Mrs. Joseph Trudgeon and has since lived in Eveline. The funeral occurred on Wednesday at the Beer's school house, Rev. J. J. Dowoif officiating. The deceased had many friends here, and was liked by all who knew him.

Burgess.

BURGESS, Dec. 12.—Mr. Peter Long, father of Edna Kane, had a stroke of paralysis Sunday night. He is at his son's house in Evangeline.

Mr. Joseph Lewis had quite a run away experience one day last week. He had a young colt hitched in a cutter, when he commenced to kick and run from him and rather demolished the cutter before he got through.

A light fall of snow Sunday and Sunday evening made glad the hearts of many who have logs to haul.

Mr. Fred Cooper, of Charlevoix who is canvassing for a Rochester fruit tree firm was up in Hayes last week and had good success.

Miss Adeline Lewis, who is teaching in Hayes district has her term about half completed and is giving good satisfaction generally.

Mr. Bow Jack who has been staying with friends in Hayes since her husband's death, has gone to Charlevoix to work or two.

Mr. Mannion died very suddenly on Friday last and was buried Saturday.

Alden Chamberlain is putting up a house at the foot of Greensky hill.

Card of thanks.

Margaret Manion desires to thank her friends for the kind attention and assistance rendered during the sickness and death of her husband.

To Our Subscribers.

Send to F. P. Shumway, Jr., Boston, Mass., for a free sample copy of the CUTTERS HEARTH, a beautiful illustrated magazine, and so realize what an extraordinary offer we are making in our offer to send both the CUTTAGE HEARTH and the Charlevoix JOURNAL for a full year for only $2.00 when the price of the COTTAGE HEARTH alone is $1.50 a year. The Boston Transcript says of the COTTAGE HEARTH: "Setting aside its literary contents, which are of a high order of merit, the collection of receipts for the kitchen and for the sick room, its practical suggestions and advice for the raising and care of plants and flowers, its instructions for beautifying homes with paint, its practical features, make it invaluable to every household."

Millions of Persons die annually who might be saved if attention was paid to the little ills of life. Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, &c. are easily cured by using Hamlin's Cough Balsam which removes the tickling in the throat and thickness across the chest, helps to throw off the poisonous matter and heals the inflamed membranes. Immediate relief will be found in Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, &c., and even in chronic cases and last stage of consumption great relief is received. For incipient consumption it works like a charm. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

MORTGAGE SALE. A mortgage dated January 10th, 1887, made by William E. Bowles (a bachelor) of the Village of Charlevoix to Horace S. Harsha, and recorded in Charlevoix, Michigan, in liber 4 of mortgages, page 70, on the 14th day of January, 1887, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and payable the sum of $275.00 principal and interest, no suit or proceeding having been instituted to collect the money secured by said mortgage, and the same is now claimed to be foreclosed by reason of default in payment of interest, and the power of sale contained therein by a sale of the premises therein described, viz: The south half (½) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section thirty-two (32), in town, and one-third (⅓) north and range one (1) west, containing eighty (80) acres of land according to the United States survey, at the front door of the Court House in the village of Boyne in said county where the circuit court for Charlevoix county is held, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of March 21st, 1888.

Dated December 21st, 1887.

HORACE S. HARSHA,
Mortgagee.

C. J. GRIER, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Charlevoix, Michigan.

NOTICE OF ATTACHMENT.—State of Michigan, The Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix.

The Pine Lake Lumber Company } In Attachment.
The Shiawassee Manufacturing Company.

Company hereby given that on the 26th day of October, A. D. 1887, a writ of attachment was duly issued out of the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, in favor of the Pine Lake Lumber Company, plaintiff, above named plaintiff, against the property, effects, goods and chattels, rights and credits, of the Shiawassee Manufacturing Company, the defendant above named, for the sum of one thousand and seven hundred dollars, which said writ is returnable on the 10th day of December, A. D. 1887. Dated the 14th day of November, A. D. 1887.

J. C. GRIER,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

E. B. HODGE & CO.
Have a full stock of
HEAVY HARNESS,
Horse Blankets,
Buffalo and Plush Lap Robes, Sleigh Bells, Whips, Etc.
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

Cash Club Rates

For the convenience of our friends who want a city paper the coming year, we will furnish either of the following with the JOURNAL one year at the price named:

Price.	With the Journal.
The Babyland	1.80
1 00 Chicago Weekly Herald	2 00
1 00 Chicago Weekly News	2 00
1 00 Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer	2 00
2 00 Cosmopolitan Magazine, monthly	3 50
1 50 Cottage Hearth, monthly	2 00
1 00 Detroit Weekly Free Press	2 00
4 00 Harper's Bazar	4 50
4 00 Harper's Magazine, monthly	4 50
4 00 Harper's Weekly	4 50
3 00 Harper's Young People	3 50
1 00 Little Men and Women	2 10
1 00 Montreal Herald and Star	2 00
3 00 New York Weekly Graphic	3 50
1 00 New York Weekly Star	2 00
1 00 New York Weekly World	2 00
1 00 Poultry	2 00
3 00 Scribner's Magazine	3 75
1 00 Toledo Weekly Blade	2 00
3 00 Wide Awake	3 50
1 00 Young Folks' Journal	2 10

To Our Readers.

We have made arrangements with the publisher of the Cottage Hearth, Boston, to offer the Charlevoix JOURNAL with their magazine this year.

THE COTTAGE HEARTH

is a large, finely Illustrated Magazine, in its 13th year, and is favorably wherever introduced. It has each month, Stories, Poems, Departments, Latest Fancy Work, Fashion Reports, Household Recipes, Approved Receipts, Hints, Suggestions, Practical Talks on Dress, Beautifully Illustrated monthly. Its engraving are unsurpassed. Among the regular contributors are Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson, Lucy Larcom, Edwin Arnold, Edward Everett Hale, Mary Agnes Tait, Rose Terry Cooke, Sophie May, Louisa May Alcott, Susan Coolidge, Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Augusta Moore, Rose Kennedy, Margaret Deland, Augusta Moore, Rose Terry Cooke.

It is large, beautifully clearly-printed magazine, and has attained a large circulation solely on its merits as a family magazine.

Price $1.50 a Year.

In every one for such a description, Chimney Hearth, we offer the COTTAGE HEARTH FREE to anyone who will send us the JOURNAL, and 50 cents additional, for one year. The COTTAGE HEARTH is a large, finely illustrated Family H

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The Entire Document Devoted to Finance and Taxation.

Congress Urgently Called Upon to Reduce the Treasury Surplus.

Our Present Tariff Laws Characterized as Vicious, Inequitable and Illegal.

The Repeal of the Internal Revenue Tax on Whisky and Tobacco Opposed.

To the Congress of the United States:

You are confronted at the threshold of your legislative duties with a condition of the national finances which imperatively demands immediate and careful consideration.

The amount of money annually exacted, through the operation of present laws, from the people for the maintenance of the Government exceeds the sum necessary to meet the exigencies of the Government.

When we consider that the theory of our institutions guarantees to every citizen the full enjoyment of all the fruits of his industry and enterprise, with only such deduction as may be needed for his fair share of the burdens incident to the maintenance of the Government which protects him, it is plain that the exaction of more than this is

UNDEFENSIBLE EXTORTION,

and a culpable betrayal of American fairness and justice. This wrong, inflicted upon the people by their Government, is not the only one of other wrongs, multiplied a brood of evil consequences. The public treasury, which should only hold as a custody intrusted by the people, tributate to its legitimate objects of expenditure, becomes a hotbed of temptation, and needlessly withdrawn from trade and the people's business, it invites the lawless spoiler, suspending our country's development, preventing investment in productive enterprise, thus threatening financial disturbances, and inviting schemes of public plunder. This condition of affairs has existed for some time now; and it has become the duty of his issues submitted to the people's representatives in the Congress, who alone can apply the remedy. And yet the situation still continues, with aggravated incidents, some more pressing than critical convulsions and widespread disaster.

The danger of such disastrous results because the dangers are not more palpably imminent and apparent. They exist none the less certainly, and await the unforeseen, unexpected occasion when suddenly they will be precipitated upon us.

On the 30th day of June, 1887, the excess of revenue over all expenditures for the fiscal year, ending with the annual appointment of the sinking fund act, was $17,650,391.94; during the year ended June 30, 1886, such excess amounted to $49,496,345.93, and during the year ended June 30, 1887, it reached the sum of $55,000,000.

The annual contributions to the sinking fund during the three years above specified, amounting in the aggregate to $136,046,736.93, and deducted from the surplus as stated, were made by calling in for that purpose outstanding three per cents bonds to the amount of $1,000. During the six months prior to June 30, 1887, the had grown so large by repeated accumulations that it became necessary to withdraw from circulation a sum of money needed by the people wholly to meet the business of the country, that the sum of $79,564,000 of such surplus was applied to the payment of the principal and interest of the three per cent bonds then outstanding, and which were then payable. Of the sum of $136,046,736.93 thus applied to the payment of the principal and interest of the three per cent bonds then outstanding, and which were then payable, $56,564,000 were called in and paid upon the previous 30 of June, 1887, and the remainder of the 3 per cent. bonds then outstanding, amounting, with principal and interest, to the sum of $80,487,000, were called in and paid upon the 30 of June, 1888, leaving no 3 per cent. debt yet payable. Notwithstanding these collections of the Treasury Department, representations of distress in business circles not only continued but increased, and absolute peril announced at least in these circumstances the contribution to the sinking fund for the current year, the expenditure for which, under the law, the purchase of Government bonds not yet payable bearing 4½ per cent. interest, the premium paid thereon averaging about 24 per cent. for the former and 1 per cent. for the latter, it. In addition to this, the heavy contribution to the sinking fund of $100,000,000 outstanding bonds payable at the option of the Government was some extent anticipated, and banks selected as depositories of public money were permitted to somewhat increase their deposits.

SURPLUS REVENUE

While the money thus withdrawn from circulation was allowed to avert immediate danger, our surplus revenues have accumulated in the treasury, the excess for the present year amounting on the first day of December, last, to $52,000,000, the estimated for each the year of $115,000,000 on the 30 day of June next, and the Secretary informs me that this, under the law, will be a minimum, and that it may reach $140,000,000.

There seems to be no assurance that with such a vast surplus the use of the people's money exhausting medium our business may not disturb and embarrass the country, and the Secretary of the Treasury is now disbursing the surplus in advance. And while the functions of our National Treasury should be few and simple, the duties of its officers have become so onerous and delicate, by reason of our present condition, that it is not to be wondered at that the Secretary of the Treasury asks for more assistance than has been accorded to his predecessors.

When we consider that the theory of our institutions guarantees to every citizen the full enjoyment of all the fruits of his industry and enterprise, with only such deduction as may be needed for his fair share of the burdens incident to the maintenance of the Government which protects him, it is plain that the exaction of more than this is

UNDEFENSIBLE EXTORTION,

and a culpable betrayal of American fairness and justice. This wrong, inflicted upon the people by their Government, is not the only one of other wrongs, multiplied a brood of evil consequences. The public treasury, which should only hold as a custody intrusted by the people, tributate to its legitimate objects of expenditure, becomes a hotbed of temptation, and needlessly withdrawn from trade and the people's business, it invites the lawless spoiler, suspending our country's development, preventing investment in productive enterprise, thus threatening financial disturbances, and inviting schemes of public plunder. This condition of affairs has existed for some time now; and it has become the duty of his issues submitted to the people's representatives in the Congress, who alone can apply the remedy. And yet the situation still continues, with aggravated incidents, some more pressing than critical convulsions and widespread disaster.

The danger of such disastrous results because the dangers are not more palpably imminent and apparent. They exist none the less certainly, and await the unforeseen, unexpected occasion when suddenly they will be precipitated upon us.

On the 30th day of June, 1887, the excess of revenue over all expenditures for the fiscal year, ending with the annual appointment of the sinking fund act, was $17,650,391.94; during the year ended June 30, 1886, such excess amounted to $49,496,345.93, and during the year ended June 30, 1887, it reached the sum of $55,000,000.

The annual contributions to the sinking fund during the three years above specified, amounting in the aggregate to $136,046,736.93, and deducted from the surplus as stated, were made by calling in for that purpose outstanding three per cents bonds to the amount of $1,000. During the six months prior to June 30, 1887, the had grown so large by repeated accumulations that it became necessary to withdraw from circulation a sum of money needed by the people wholly to meet the business of the country, that the sum of $79,564,000 of such surplus was applied to the payment of the principal and interest of the three per cent bonds then outstanding, and which were then payable. Of the sum of $136,046,736.93 thus applied to the payment of the principal and interest of the three per cent bonds then outstanding, and which were then payable, $56,564,000 were called in and paid upon the previous 30 of June, 1887, and the remainder of the 3 per cent. bonds then outstanding, amounting, with principal and interest, to the sum of $80,487,000, were called in and paid upon the 30 of June, 1888, leaving no 3 per cent. debt yet payable. Notwithstanding these collections of the Treasury Department, representations of distress in business circles not only continued but increased, and absolute peril announced at least in these circumstances the contribution to the sinking fund for the current year, the expenditure for which, under the law, the purchase of Government bonds not yet payable bearing 4½ per cent. interest, the premium paid thereon averaging about 24 per cent. for the former and 1 per cent. for the latter. In addition to this, the heavy contribution to the sinking fund of $100,000,000 outstanding bonds payable at the option of the Government was to some extent anticipated, and banks selected as depositories of public money were permitted to somewhat increase their deposits.

SURPLUS REVENUE

While the money thus withdrawn from circulation was allowed to avert immediate danger, our surplus revenues have continued to accumulate, the excess for the present year amounting on the first day of December, last, to $52,000,000, the estimated for each the year of $115,000,000 on the 30 day of June next, and the Secretary informs me that this sum, under the law, will be a minimum, and that it may reach $140,000,000.

There seems to be no assurance that with such a vast surplus the use of the people's exhausting medium our business may not disturb and embarrass the country, and the Secretary of the Treasury is now disbursing the surplus in advance. And while the functions of our National Treasury should be few and simple, the duties of its officers have become so onerous and delicate, by reason of our present condition, that it is not to be wondered at that the Secretary of the Treasury asks for more assistance than has been accorded to his predecessors.

The amount of money annually exacted, through the operation of present laws, from the people for the maintenance of the Government exceeds the sum necessary to meet the exigencies of the Government.

When we consider that the theory of our institutions guarantees to every citizen the full enjoyment of all the fruits of his industry and enterprise, with only such deduction as may be needed for his fair share of the burdens incident to the maintenance of the Government which protects him, it is plain that the exaction of more than this is

UNDEFENSIBLE EXTORTION,

and a culpable betrayal of American fairness and justice. This wrong, inflicted upon the people by their Government, is not the only one of other wrongs, multiplied a brood of evil consequences. The public treasury, which should only hold as a custody intrusted by the people, tributate to its legitimate objects of expenditure, becomes a hotbed of temptation, and needlessly withdrawn from trade and the people's business, it invites the lawless spoiler, suspending our country's development, preventing investment in productive enterprise, thus threatening financial disturbances, and inviting schemes of public plunder. This condition of affairs has existed for some time now; and it has become the duty of his issues submitted to the people's representatives in the Congress, who alone can apply the remedy. And yet the situation still continues, with aggravated incidents, some more pressing than critical convulsions and widespread disaster.

The danger of such disastrous results because the dangers are not more palpably imminent and apparent. They exist none the less certainly, and await the unforeseen, unexpected occasion when suddenly they will be precipitated upon us.

On the 30th day of June, 1887, the excess of revenue over all expenditures for the fiscal year, ending with the annual appointment of the sinking fund act, was $17,650,391.94; during the year ended June 30, 1886, such excess amounted to $49,496,345.93, and during the year ended June 30, 1887, it reached the sum of $55,000,000.

The annual contributions to the sinking fund during the three years above specified, amounting in the aggregate to $136,046,736.93, and deducted from the surplus as stated, were made by calling in for that purpose outstanding three per cents bonds to the amount of $1,000. During the six months prior to June 30, 1887, the

SURPLUS REVENUE

had grown so large by repeated accumulations that it became necessary to withdraw from circulation a sum of money needed by the people wholly to meet the business of the country, that the sum of $79,564,000 of such surplus was applied to the payment of the principal and interest of the three per cents bonds then outstanding, and which were then payable. Of the sum of $136,046,736.93 thus applied to the payment of the principal and interest of the three per cents

A Big Bonanza in Holiday Goods!

An Enormous Stock of Holiday Goods at Tremendously Low Prices.

It will Do You Good to See this Brilliant Display.

YOU

Nor any other person ever saw such a stock of

Dressing Cases.

We offer you this year an Elegant line of these Goods. Something entirely new in Design and Workmanship. Be sure to look them over before purchasing. IT WILL PAY YOU.

NOW IS YOUR CHANCE

To buy a Photograph Album. Our Stock of

Photo. Albums

cannot be excelled anywhere in this region. They consist of HANDSOME PLUSH COVERS, ELECTRO BRONZE TRIMMINGS, BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED, and CHEAPER THAN THE CHEAPEST. DON'T FAIL TO SEE THEM.

NOTHING LIKE OUR

Manicure Sets, Toilet Sets, Work Boxes,

ODOR CASES, WHISK-BROOM HOLDERS, GENTS' DRESSING CASES; NEW NOVELTIES in this line. All of these goods are Entirely New Design, and never before have been offered for sale in this market.

REMEMBER THAT WE CAN SHOW YOU A MAMMOTH STOCK OF

Xmas Cards, Gold Pens and Pencils,

DOLLS of all kinds, FANCY STATIONERY, and a long list of Fancy and Toilet Articles to numerous to mentions.

It will do you good to see this Brilliant Display, which includes Hundreds of Gifts suitable for Old and Young. Everybody who expect to make a Christmas Present should be sure and see our ELEGANT HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS. All Visitors are Welcome, whether they buy or not. THIS IS YOUR CHANCE.

Dr. G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

Prospectus for 1888---Beautiful Christmas Number.

The holiday issue, now ready, is complete in itself, containing no serial matter. The cover is enriched by an ornamental border printed in gold. The price is as usual, 25 cents. It contains the most delightful stories, poems, and essays by distinguished writers, and superb illustrations.

Among the important articles to appear during the year 1888 are the following—Send for prospectus:

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON will contribute regularly to each number during the year. He will write of many topics, old and new, and in a familiar and personal way, which will form new bonds of friendship between the author and his thousands of readers. In the first paper, entitled "A Chapter on Dreams," appearing in the January number, he relates incidentally, in connection with the general subject, some interesting facts concerning the origin of the new famous story "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, by W. S. CHAPLAIN, will be the first of an especially important and interesting series of papers on railways, their administration and management, including great engineering feats, famous tunnels and passes, and indeed, those branches of the subject which in this day engage the attention of the whole country. The illustrations which will accompany this series will be very elaborate, original, and beautiful. The authors name and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. D. A. SARGENT'S papers on Physical Proportions and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of special interest will be those on the Campaign of Waterloo, by JOHN C. ROPES; on "The Man at Arms," by E. H. BLASHFIELD; two papers by EDWARD L. WILSON, illustrating results of recent Egyptian research; a further article by WILLIAM E. AYTOUN, on a subject connected with his recent contribution on Wagner, and many others of equal interest; PROFESSOR SHALER'S articles on the Surface of the Earth will be continued; and articles upon two of the most interesting groups of contemporary European writers will be accompanied by rich and novel portrait illustrations.

ELECTRICITY in its various applications as a motive power, Explosives etc., will be subjects of another group of illustrated articles of equal practical interest, by leading authorities upon those topics.

MENDELSSOHN'S LETTERS written to his friend, Moscheles, at a peculiarly interesting time of his career, will furnish the substance of several articles of great interest to musical readers, which will be illustrated with portraits and drawings from Mendelssohn's own hand.

THE FICTION will be strong, not only in the work of well-known writers, but in that of new authors, in securing whose co-operation the Magazine has been so fortunate during its first year of publication. A serial novel, entitled "First Harvests," by FREDERIC J. STIMSON, will be begun in the January number, and early in the year novelettes will be published by HENRY JAMES and H. C. BUNNER. The short stories are of notable strength and fine quality.

ILLUSTRATIONS.—The Magazine will show increased excellence in its illustrations. They will be more abundant and elaborate than ever. It is the intention of the publishers to represent the best work of the leading artists, and to promote and foster the most skillful methods of wood engraving.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—To enable readers to possess the Magazine from the first number (January, 1887) the following inducements are offered:

A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887 ..... $4 50
A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887, bound in two volumes cloth, gilt top 6 00

$3.00 A YEAR; 25 CENTS A NUMBER.

Remit by bank check or money order to

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, New York.

A GENTLEMAN, having been cured of Nervous Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Premature Decay, and all the evil effects of early indiscretion and youthful folly, is anxious to make known to others the simple mode of self-cure. To those who wish and will give him their confidence, he will send (free) by return mail a copy of the recipe so successfully used by his cured. Address in confidence, JAMES W. PIERCE, 43 Cedar St., N. Y.

DEEF thousands of letters testify to the wonderful cures of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, etc., by the marvelous Pearl Belt. Those who are in need of profitable advice, at once send their address for our illustrated pamphlet, sealed, free. Pearl Belt Co., Detroit, Mich. Mention this paper. Full information here either sex, of what ages, can now from $5 to $20 per month be made whenever they live. You are not asked to buy anything until you know what we offer for your profit. Many have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed. Address Pearl Belt Co., Detroit, Mich.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

UNITED STATES AND EUROPE.

Fixed Habits and Old Methods of Work-men in the Old World.

Here we're prepared to do everything that we have undertaken, and today we stand the most 100 years behind the other countries of continental Europe, not only in our improvement in telegraphy and all the mechanical arts, but in everything that goes to make a nation eminently great, prosperous and permanent. Whatever they have held on with a strange and possible tenacity that it is only one of the old ways of work, we've gone on changing, altering, amending, always improving. With them it seems almost a crime to step aside from the beaten track that their forefathers followed.

There the workmen of today use the crude implements and machinery of years ago, things which we have long since discarded and replaced with improved tools and machinery capable of doing infinitely more and better work, and producing larger and more profitable results. Again, they rarely, if ever, change their patterns, and some of them call this conservatism. Is it any wonder, then, that the workman who clings to his old mediæval patterns, locks and tools is badly left in the march of progress and of civilization? Or that the number of his patrons and the prices of his goods are constantly lessening?

Don't forget another point—while he gets less for the products of his skill, we get considerably more, and we pay about the same amount, possibly a little much less, for the crude articles than he does. Take it any way you like, view it in any phase, that you please, your conclusion will unerringly be that the United States is another and a very different place from which such a state of things exists cheaper than with a nation whose citizens are more enlightened and more intelligent.

Of the great nations of Europe, Germany, is to my mind, far ahead of all others, and under the admirable and wise measures proposed and fostered by Bismarck it is rapidly leaving France and England behind. Its industries are great, multiplying and progressive, both in their number, character and capacity. So much have I been struck with these facts that I have started a large factory there, and although only a twelve month old, it is producing very satisfactory returns. Germany is taking away much of the French trade, and is continually on the lookout for improvements in the methods of manufacturing her stuffs and fabrics and in her designs.—Interview with Merchant Wanamaker.

He Traveled in Style.

Employer (to commercial traveler)—Good evening, Mr. Smith; home again, eh?

Commercial Traveler—Yes; I struck town last night on the 7 o'clock run from Boston.

Employer—Why, I came over from Boston on that train. Strange, I didn't see you.

Commercial Traveler—Did you take a parlor car?

Employer—No, certainly not.

Commercial Traveler—Well, that's the reason you didn't see me.—The Epoch.

New York's Money Market.

New York Speculator—Did you take that Mud Run watered stock into a mortgage bonds to the bank?

Clerk—Yes, sir; took half a bushel around this morning.

"Did they agree to let me have $50,000 on it?

"No, sir; they said they couldn't give over half a cent a pound for 'em."

"By Jiminy! Money must be fearfully tight."—Omaha World.

Business Distinguished Visitors Abroad.

Mr. Field and Mr. Sullivan, of Boston, are both in Europe.—Epoch.

The Latest Drum Headquarters.

Rising is out of fashion.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Enrich the Blood.

HAMLTON'S GREEN BITTERS are highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic. Especially Dyspepsia, Dyspepsia want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, &c. They enrich the blood, strengthen the muscles, and give new life to the nerves. They act like a charm in the digestive organs, removing all dyspeptic symptoms, and whenever the stomach is weak or there is a general loss of physical vigor, Green Bitters are just what you need. Only 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter. dec

Worth Knowing.

Mr. W. H. Morgan, Lenhant, Lake City, Fla. was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing cough and running into consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced to flesh, had difficulty in breathing, and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New discovery for Consumption, and found immediate relief. He now feels about a half dozen bottles found himself well, and has had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures as Dr. King's New discovery for Consumption. We guarantee to do just what is claimed for it. Trial bottles free at Dr. Crouter's drug store. 4

The Greatest Pain Killer

Ever found for Cramps, Colic, Stitch in side or back, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sprains, Bruises, &c., is Hamilton's Anodyne Liniment and Pain Cure. Bound on with hot wet cloths it never fails to cure. For Dysentery, Indigestion, Sick headache, diarrhœa, dysentery, heartburn, sour stomach, &c., it is unequalled. Warranted to give relief. Used both internally and externally. Warranted to cure. Try it. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Renews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phœbe Chesley, Paterson, Clay Co. Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the leading men of the town: "I am 72 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and weakness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I can free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for restoring me to health, and I removed completely all disease and pain." Try a bottle, only 50c, at Dr. G. W. Crouter's. 4

Are Your Children Pevish and sad eyed? Do they have abnormal appetites and crave food constantly? Beware of worms! Very few children escape their ravages. No child can be happy or well while suffering with worms. They sap the very life by preventing the digestion and assimilation of food. There is a remedy required. It is called Parmelee's Santonine Worm Candies. They are perfectly pleasant to take, but will dislodge the worms and pass them off through the bowels. Buy no other. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Buckien's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and a Skin Eruption, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

J. PERR Agent, Charlevoix

CHICAGO + Canal AND 16TH STS

AN IMPORTANT CLUB OFFER

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

Gives its readers literature of lasting interest and value; it is fully and beautifully illustrated and has already gained a more than national circulation exceeding 125,000 copies monthly.

PRICE 25 CENTS A NUMBER $3.00 A YEAR

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS with Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, the Publishers, enable us to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE with the Charlevoix JOURNAL for $4.00 per year, Cash in Advance.

Address all orders to CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher Journal, Charlevoix, Mich.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper, and are sold at the uniform price of three cents each. Ordinarily the cheaper editions of books published in any land or language, and issued to the masses of the people as conveniently to secure the best reading matter for the time, are issued only after the demand for the dearer editions has been satisfied, but in the case of the books here offered we have reversed the order of things, and have been able to issue the cheaper edition first.

Wonders of the World, Strange, Rare and Curious. Contains a vast amount of information concerning the Pyramids, Sphinx, Dead Sea, Mummies, Catacombs, Pompeii, Herculaneum, Pompeii and Herculaneum, Vesuvius, Etna, Geysers, Hot Springs, Caverns, Mammoth Cave, Wonderful Caves, Grottos, Catacombs, Curious Beasts, Curious Birds, Curious Insects, Curious Reptiles, Curious Fishes, Curious Plants, Curious Trees, Curious Flowers, Curious Fruits, Curious Seeds, Curious Stones, Curious Metals, Curious Minerals, Curious Chemicals, Curious Earths, Curious Waters, Curious Winds, Curious Clouds, Curious Lightnings, Curious Thunders, Curious Rains, Curious Snows, Curious Hails, Curious Dews, Curious Frosts, Curious Climates, Curious Seasons, Curious Days, Curious Nights, Curious Twilights, Curious Dawns, Curious Sunrises, Curious Sunsets, Curious Moonlights, Curious Starlights, Curious Sunlights, Curious Moons, Curious Stars, Curious Comets, Curious Meteors, Curious Planets, Curious Suns, Curious Universes, Curious Worlds, Curious Creations, Curious Creators, Curious Creations and Their Creators, Curious Creations and Their Creators Compared, Curious Creations and Their Creators Contrasted, Curious Creations and Their Creators Reconciled, Curious Creations and Their Creators Reconciled and Compared, Curious Creations and Their Creators Reconciled and Contrasted, Curious Creations and Their Creators Reconciled, Compared and Contrasted.

Dictionary of Quotations, and Other Sketches, by Mrs. Cora Stuart Wheeler. Contains a large number of quotations, with a full and complete index to the quotations, and a brief sketch of the lives of the authors quoted from, or of the persons to whom the quotations are ascribed. Also contains a large number of sketches of persons, places, events, etc., not connected with quotations. Contains Quotations, Quotations and Their Authors, Quotations and Their Authors Compared, Quotations and Their Authors Contrasted, Quotations and Their Authors Reconciled, Quotations and Their Authors Reconciled and Compared, Quotations and Their Authors Reconciled and Contrasted, Quotations and Their Authors Reconciled, Compared and Contrasted, Quotations and Their Authors Compared and Contrasted, Quotations and Their Authors Compared and Reconciled, Quotations and Their Authors Contrasted and Reconciled, Quotations and Their Authors Contrasted and Compared, Quotations and Their Authors Reconciled, Compared and Contrasted, Quotations and Their Authors Compared, Reconciled and Contrasted, Quotations and Their Authors Contrasted, Reconciled and Compared, Quotations and Their Authors Contrasted and Compared, Quotations and Their Authors Contrasted, Compared and Reconciled, Quotations and Their Authors Compared and Reconciled, Quotations and Their Authors Contrasted and Reconciled

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, . . . MICHIGAN.

A DAY'S DOINGS.

Eventful Happenings in Every Hemisphere, as Transmitted by Telegraph.

Political, Social, Financial, Commercial, Industrial, Criminal and Other News.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

JULES FERRY SHOT.

The French Politician a Target for the Bullets of a Revolutionary Crank.

Intense excitement was produced in the French capital by an attempt to assassinate M. Jules Ferry, the distinguished statesman. A man named Burckein appeared in the hall of the Chamber of Deputies and asked to see both M. Ferry and M. Goblet. The latter did not respond to Burckein's request for an interview, but M. Ferry did, and on his appearance the assassin drew a revolver and fired three times at him. One of the balls struck M. Ferry in the chest. The second bullet struck him on the right side near the lowest ribs, causing a contusion. The thigh was not penetrated. Burckein is 25 years of age. He states that he is one of a band of twenty revolutionists. The band drew lots and it fell to him to commit the first crime. Burckein denies that he swore to kill M. Ferry. After his injuries had been attended to at the hospital, M. Ferry returned to his home on foot. The bystanders tried to lynch Burckein after the shots, but were prevented with difficulty from carrying out their intention.

THREE DESPERATE BANDITS.

A Train Stopped in Arkansas and the Express Car Robbed of a Large Sum of Money.

From the Southwest comes an account of another bold train robbery. A Little Rock dispatch says:

A train bound north over the St. Louis, Arkansas and Texas railroad was stopped by robbers near Texarkana, Ark., and relieved of express and passenger money. Advices say that the train was just slowly stopped when moving out of Texarkana station. He saw three rough-looking men board the engine, and he knew something was wrong, so he blew out the lights in his room and prepared for the worst. The first he knew he was in the hands of the robbers. The express messenger had left the doors opened and fired several shots through the windows. The robbers used a pick-ax, and Johnson fired one shot through the window, which was seen to take effect. Finding resistance impossible, and as Johnson threatened to shoot the engineer if they did not do something, the robbers made a retreat

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. CRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - - MICHIGAN.

Now when our "infant industries" are many of them more than half a century old, and the war has been over for a quarter of a century, the average duty is above 47 per cent, and the customs collections last year exceeded those of 1867 by more than $40,000,000. It is time for lighter taxes and freer trade.

Here They Are.

The people of the United States are daily told by the advocates of protection that the tariff system does not need any reform, and that any change in it should be in the direction of higher rates of duty. This daring assertion is made in presence of the fact that under the operation of the tariff, legitimate competition is stifled and the trade in many leading necessaries of living controlled absolutely by monopolies. Here are some of the monopolistic creations and outgrowths of our iniquitous tariff system which have oppressed and plundered the people of this country through the power which the tariff has conferred upon them:

The Bessemer Steel monopoly.
The Crucible Steel trust.
The Nail association.
The Coal combination.
The Coke combination.
The Lumber trust.
The Sugar trust.
The Salt combination.
The Flour bag trust.
The Maine Sardine fraud.
The Wall-paper trust.
The Window-glass combination.
The Barb-Wire ring.
The Lead trust.
The School-slate trust.
The Shovel ante monopoly.
The Russia Sheet-iron monopoly.

This does not by any means exhaust the number of tariff fed monopolies, but the above will enable consumers in the United States to form a very clear conception of the extent to which they have been plundered by a system of legal fraud and oppression.—Philadelphia Record.

A Chief to Be Proud Of.

The democracy of this union is proud of its leader. It is with pride that we acknowledge Cleveland as our leader, a leader whose every sentiment is democratic, having a people's government, governed by the people, for the people: In other words, whatever is for the best interest of the people it is his desire to carry out regardless whether it affects the millionaire monopolist or not. He never sends to congress was a bold and fearless state paper expressing the sentiments of an oppressed people groaning under the burdens of a heavy taxing under the guise of a protection imposed by what is known as high tariff. Every farmer and workingman in the union should read this message regardless of their politics. —Blackstone (Va.) New Era.

More Mugwumps in '88 than ever before.

President Cleveland's message to congress is a departure from the usual haughty and prosaic missives of his predecessors. It is refreshing to right minded democrats. The protection this country is getting to be under the control of gigantic trusts and the revenue only would be a death blow to all such gambling concerns. It is now the greatest issue before the American public and on this question will the fight be made in '88. The characteristic desire for reform will greatly assist the reform element, and victory is certain. There will be more mugwumps in '88 than ever before.—Menominee Democrat.

It Solves the Question of the Hour.

Mr. Cleveland in his third annual message has given the public an agreeable surprise by issuing the brightest and most sensible message that has ever been sent to congress on such an occasion. Indeed the message is almost exclusively devoted to the paramount question of the treasury surplus and the means for its reduction. The president has but given expression to the public mind in this making this the absorbing question of the hour, and it can hardly be possible that a democratic house can refuse to heed the suggestions and recommendations of a president that are given such prominence and argued with such ability.—Saginaw Bridge Journal.

Our Battle Cry.

"Reduce the taxes" is the battle cry of democracy under the lead of their president. "Reduce the taxes" is the request of the masses who are burdened by a tariff which compels 60,000,000 of people to pay tribute to 60,000.—President Cleveland has sounded the keynote of next year's campaign. His way to prevent the accumulation of hundreds of millions in the treasury vaults is to leave the money with the people—to tax them not one dollar more than is enough to pay the expenses of the government honestly and economically administered.—Oswego Palladium.

Mr. Lamar's Age.

Will the gentlemen who urge Mr. Lamar's great age as an objection to his confirmation as justice of the supreme court kindly remember that as secretary of the interior, Mr. Lamar was not too old to wrest 25,000,000 acres of land from the railroads and restore it to the public domain.—Chicago Herald.

The Path of Prosperity.

Throughout the document bristles with fine reasoning, unanswerable arguments and common sense. The recommendation marks out a course that will avoid injury to any one, and a path that leads to prosperity to all. Taxation reform is made an administration measure that cannot be misconstrued, and one that will draw well defined lines upon a business proposition and break down, to a great extent, the partisan distinction upon this, the most important question now before the American people. —Delaware Democratic Herald.

Judicious Reduction Necessary.

The revenue must be reduced, and the treasury should not again be put into a condition that invites dangerous appropriations. The language of the president on this point is full of wisdom and of warning. All democrats will agree with the president also, when he says that in reducing duties regard must be had to the demand of American labor for such protection as will put it upon terms of fair competition with foreign labor.—Mobile Register.

Carry the News to Blaine.

"Free trade, free whisky, and free immigration vs. protection, industries protected, laborers and protected houses, and Blaine vs. Cleveland for 1888."—Bellaire cor. Muscoloma Herald.

To make the expression stronger we arrange in columns:

Free Trade,	Vs.	Protected Industries,
Free Whisky,		Protected Laborers,
Free Immigration		Protected Homes,
Blaine.		Cleveland.

For Labor, Against Monopoly.

The wild shriek of the monopolists that any proposition for free trade will frighten people no longer. Both parties have been long pledged to a reduction of the war tariff. In 1868 the republican national platform demanded it in the name of labor. In the name of labor it is demanded now.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Duty of To-Day.

"One thing at a time," says Mr. Cleveland to congress; and if that body does no more than give the country a tariff adjusted to meet the demands of government honestly adjusted, the people will be satisfied with the fiftieth congress.—Fort Worth Gazette.

Lehigh Miner.

Fancy the feelings of a starved-out Lehigh miner as he hears from a Pittsburg coal dealer that the placing of coal on the free list would be a direct stab at the American laborer." —New York World.

Illicits Opinion.

The President's message is well received everywhere. It denounces the tax, and the "trust" monopolies its legitimate protege.—Jonesboro Gazette.

Roots of the Peasantry.

In Servia, Bulgaria, and Roumania boots made of bullock's hides are knitted, and are simply a flat piece of leather drawn over the foot all round and fastened by leather thongs or birch bark crossed over the leg, which is incased in other stockings or a piece of red cloth; are worn by the peasantry. The Slavonic peasantry in Austria also wear boots of the same description, and so do the Turkish soldiers, but they make their own. The Russian peasants make shoes of bast mats, and fasten them in the winter, when your stockings, except in winter, when high leather boots are worn.—New York Sun.

To Our Subscribers.

Send to F. P. Shumway, Jr., Boston, Mass., for a free sample copy of the COTTAGE HEARTH, a beautiful illustrated magazine, and so realize what an extraordinary offer we are making when we offer to send both the COTTAGE HEARTH and the Charlevoix JOURNAL for a full year for only $2.00 when the price of the COTTAGE HEARTH alone is $1.50 a year. The Boston Transcript says of the COTTAGE HEARTH: "Setting aside its literary contents, which are of a high order of merit, the collection of receipts for the kitchen and for the sick room, its practical suggestions and advice for the raising and care of plants and flowers, its instructions for beautifying homes by simple means, and other practical features, make it invaluable to every household."

A Christmas Present.

To any subscriber whose account is paid one year in advance, we will furnish the JOURNAL one year to the name of any friend they may desire, who does not now take the paper, for one dollar cash in advance. Next year the price of the JOURNAL will be $1.50 per year. Charlevoix will "boom," and the best way to let your distant friends know all about it is to send the JOURNAL regularly. And the best way to enlarge this paper in advertising Charlevoix county is to send one or more copies to friends abroad. Remember, one dollar cash pays the bill, if your own account is settled one year in advance.

Millions of Persons die annually who might be saved if attention was given to the little ills of life. Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, &c. are speedily cured by using Hamilton's Cough Balsam which removes the tickling in the throat and thoroughness across the chest, helps to throw off the poisonous matter and heals the inflamed membranes. Immediate relief of will be found in Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, &c., and even in chronic cases and last stage consumption great relief is received. For incipient consumption it works like a charm. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter.

FARM AND GARDEN.

A FEEDING RACK THAT GIVES EVERY ANIMAL ITS SHARE, NO MORE.

A Land Measure for Use in Laying Out Irregular Fields—How to Cure Meat—In the Hothouse—Merino Sheep and Their Origin.

The largest importation of pure merinos into the United States was made through Mr. Jarvis, the American consul at Lisbon, in the years 1809 and 1810, from the flocks of Paular, Negretti, Agnerisa and Montarcos, of Spain. These flocks, consisting of nearly 50,000 head, had been confiscated for political reasons and sold by the Spanish government, along with other property of the four gentlemen who had owned them and whose names they bore. Of the whole number somewhat less than 4,000 were sent to this country, and as the French government had lately an importation of over 300 Spanish sheep from the finest flocks of Spain in 1796, which were placed on a government farm at Rambouillet, near Paris, it is quite probable their stock was further increased by purchase at this sale.

JEAN GILBERT—PAULAR RAM.

By whatever name the merinos are called, whether Spanish, French, Saxon or Silesian, all had their origin in Spain, where they existed in large flocks owned by wealthy proprietors, each of the flocks possessing some distinctive characters that entitled it to be considered a sub-variety. Prior to the principal importation mentioned, smaller ones had been made from Spanish flocks, notably one of considerable numbers by Col. Humphreys, our minister to Spain, and followed by others, of which a part, at least, are believed to have been Infantados; also in 1840 and 1846 importations were made from the French merino flocks at Rambouillet, in France.

From these progenitors the American merino has descended, and now stands at the head of the fine wooled sheep of the world. Mr. Jarvis describes the Paulars as one of the handsomest of Spanish flocks. They were of middling height, sound bodied, well spread, straight on the back, —the neck of the back rising in a modest curve from the withers to the setting on of the head—the head handsome, the skin smoother and the crimp in the wool not so short as in some other flocks; the wool somewhat longer, but close and compact, soft and silky to the touch, and the surface not so much covered with gum.

The picture of a French Paular ram with that of the progenitor of the French Paular sheep—Jean Baptist Francois Gilbert, of Selne et Oise, France—here given, from an engraving furnished by Solon W. Jewell, who has imported large numbers of these sheep into Vermont since 1850.

A Word About Quinces.

As the quince is not a table fruit, but is wholly used for preserves and similar purposes, there is a tendency to early decay in consequence, and as it must be used or not of much consequence as it must otherwise be, it thrives in some parts of the states, and although it does not sell extra it best, no one need fear to plant it on ground where corn and potatoes succeed. From the quinces we have observed in different places there does not seem to ever have been a general over-supply, and the excellent quality of the fruit for its special purposes gives a remunerative price. Ripened and well cared for, it does not take but a small share of any one from its place in the preserve jar, and if the fruit is well cared for it will keep and command good prices in the future. It is a fruit that should be planted, but not in an extent as most other of large affected cultivation. The quince will be cut off and burned, and a lime wash impregnated with sulphur is recommended for the trunks and largest branches.

A Convenient Land Measure.

The land measure here illustrated is described in Country Gentleman as a convenient and inexpensive implement.

LAND MEASURE.

This measure is made of three-quarter inch pine or bass wood boards 9 1-2 feet in length and 2 inches in width, nailed to the ends, which are 2 1-2 feet long and 2 inches wide. The pointed ends of the uprights are 8 feet and 3 inches apart, so that two lengths will make one rod. The light rail could be used with one hand, reversing the ends and turning on the foot-board, and as fast as the operator can want point as fast as he can walk. This measure has been found convenient to use in laying out strawberry beds for plowing when the furrows must be turned toward the center, as they should be part of the time to avoid an uneven surface in the corners. Constructed thus, it is as accurate as chaining and very handy to use.

Curing Side Pieces.

In handling any of the products of the animals on a farm, it is well to bear in mind that the carcass is thoroughly relieved of the animal heat—but not frozen—before it is cut up. This is an important point, being a special attention to keep it due to its being handled on a damp day, or in a place in which there is a tendency to sweat. Another source of failure is the packing down of the meat while it is hot, become increasingly cold through and through. It often happens that the surface of the meat may be apparently frozen before the animal heat has actually expelled from around the bones. Such meat is sure to spoil.

The large pieces of side meat for smoked bacon are best cured by dry salting on a platform made for the purpose. On this platform spread a layer of salt an inch deep, rub each piece of meat thoroughly on the sides and edges with salt, and lay the skin side down on the platform. When the first layer of salt over it, and sprinkle a good layer of salt over it, and then rub and lay down as the first, and so on the same manner as the first, and so continue until all is packed. Then put a generous layer of salt on top of the pile.

The meat ought to be taken off and rubbed with salt three or four times during the process of curing and replaced at first. This rubbing may be done in a wide shallow box containing three or four inches of salt in the bottom, which will place the pieces sufficient for the purpose. The time for curing varies from five to eight weeks, depending on the thickness of the pieces of meat and temperature of the room where it is kept. In a cellar with an even temperature the meat will take salt much sooner than in a cold room with an occasional freeze, and it will be well to test the curing by cutting into a piece before taking it up for smoking. The smoking requires about ten days. Hickory wood is the best fuel for the smoke house.

Trying Out Lard.

Lard should be tried out over a slow fire and remain there until the scraps become crisp and brown and all watery particles are evaporated. A handful of slippery elm bark is still sometimes added at time of rendering the lard by old fashioned folk, but this is not necessary, and is no longer the common practice. Stoneware jars are the best receptacles for lard that is to be kept a long time. A dry cellar or a cool room is a suitable place for storage, but a damp and muddy cellar is to be avoided.

Lard lard and fat pieces may be rendered together, but the fat from the intestines must be tried by itself, as it is liable to impart a rancid flavor to the lard after it has been kept a short time. Leaf lard that has been slowly tried over a dull fire will, if packed down in stone jars and kept in a cool, dry place, retain its original sweet, fine flavor and white color. Care must be exercised that not a single fragment of membrane and particle of animal matter be carefully strained out before the lard goes into the jars.

In the Interests of Agriculture.

The cotton crop promises to be less than last year's, but in excess of the crops of 1883 and 1884.

The secretary of the New York State Agricultural society proposes to hold twenty farmers' institutes during the coming winter. Ohio celebrates its centennial by holding 100 farmers' institutes the coming year.

The invitation extended by Dr. Kerry, in behalf of northern members, to the American Pomological society to hold its next biennial meeting in Florida some time during the month of February, 1889, was unanimously accepted.

A Useful Feeding Rack.

The cut here given illustrates a feeding rack, the invention one patented by an Ohio genius, who recently told in Ohio Farmer how to make it.

FEEDING RACK.

The uprights A and the stall proper are made in the usual manner, but the feed box is novel and ingenious. The sketch fully illustrates the manner of construction. The V should be over fourteen inches wide at the top and two feet deep to the point. From the bottom of the feed C to the stall floor is twelve inches. By this construction is gained the advantage of a saving of food and quickness of feeding.

It is furthermore claimed by the inventor that, no matter how early the animal, it cannot appropriate more than its share of the feed, or use its horns either for purposes of offense or defense, and the advantage of feeding any kind of provender, chopped straw or hay. Every animal gets his share—no more, no less. The feed is bored at the bottom of the V for the purpose, giving the brute plenty of room, perfect cleanliness and thorough protection.

Keep the Stable Free from Odors.

Attention is again called to what ought to be a well known fact—namely, that the stable will keep a sample free from odors as the free use of dry earth. Everybody who keeps horses or cattle will find it pays, with interest, to keep on hand a plentiful supply of fine dry earth to be used daily. A few shovefulls of earth scattered over the floor after cleaning of the interior out of the apartment pure and wholesome.

Beet Sugar in California.

Recent reports from California make it appear that Mr. Claus Spreckels is exerting all his energy and expense to produce beet sugar at a large scale in that state. Much good has already been wrought in the industry of the farmers, and a manufactory costing $60,000 is now in operation near Alvarado. It is claimed that this plant will have a capacity of producing 60,000 tons of sugar annually.

A Dripless Hothouse Roof.

A southern correspondent in American Gardeners, who is not troubled with drip as many are, accounts for it in the fact that he has placed the rafters of his hothouse roof made after drawings illustrated in the cut, which shows a cross section.

CROSS SECTION OF RAFTERS AND SASH BAR.

In his place the condensed water, lessens the amount of obstruction to the light, and it is impossible for any water to drip upon the living carried off by the groove in the face of the rafter. Gardeners need present to caution readers against the use of cypress in the construction of hothouses, as it never becomes thoroughly seasoned and changes in temperature and dampness of the weather. In the vicinity of Charleston it is only used by the best class work on account of its clinging with the weather. We have seen it in the air, take two pieces, one of cypress and one of yellow or southern heart pine, and thoroughly seasoned, place in water for one hour, measure and again and note any for one hour, measure again and note the difference; more than likely the piece of cypress after lying in the dew will be found curled and twisted. This is written only for the benefit of those who contemplate building. Cypress is undoubtedly one of the best woods in the world, but it is not affected by the weather, but for hothouses or close outside work it is useless.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charlevoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

We are headquarters for everything in our line.

A great Reduction in the prices of CLOAKS and Wraps, to close them out.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEEH.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

Acknowledging every improvement that inventive genius skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These organs combine a 16 octave 4 set of reeds, 9 stops, 11 sets of reeds, 13 registers, 2 knee stops, 1 pedal, 1 set of bass reeds, perfect musical, pleasing, ringing tones, perfect in tune, lasting, ranking them the peers of any pianos, churches, lodges, societies, and for home, schools.

ESTABLISHED HEADQUARTERS IN UNEQUALED FACILITIES.

SALESROOMS ANNEX, 103 ST. MATE HALL.

CONVENTION, YEAR 1887.

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, free.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN CO.

831 BLUE ISLAND AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

MUNN & CO. PATENTS

Thirty Years' Practice. Over Thirty Thousand Patents. After Forty years of Success, the largest business in the world. Patents secured by Munn & Co. are extensively advertised in the Scientific American, and by us in the Leading Newspapers of the United States and Foreign countries. Our Trade Marks, Copyrights, Caveats, Trade Marks, expiring, and Reissues promptly secured. Information and Advice, Free. Our Hand Book about Patents, Sent Free. Copies of any Patent by return mail. Address, MUNN & CO., Office of the Scientific American, 361 Broadway, New York.

Patents are advertised gratuitously in the Scientific American, the largest, most widely circulated, most influential and most valuable journal of its class. Weekly, 52 numbers, 4 pages, 416 columns, $3.00 a year. Specimen copies, 10 cents. Hand Book about Patents, 32 pages, 16 cents. Address, MUNN & CO., Office of the Scientific American, 361 Broadway, New York.

Patents obtained through Munn & Co. are noticed in the Scientific American, the largest circulation of any paper devoted to the interests of Science, Invention, Mechanics, Mining, Manufactures, Commerce, Agriculture, Patents, Chemistry, Electricity, Mechanics, Science, Industry, Agriculture, Commerce, Manufactures, Mining, Mechanics, Invention, Patents, Science. Weekly, 52 numbers, 4 pages, 416 columns, $3.00 a year. Specimen copies, 10 cents. Hand Book about Patents, 32 pages, 16 cents. Address, MUNN & CO., Office of the Scientific American, 361 Broadway, New York.

Patents obtained through Munn & Co. are noticed in the Scientific American, the largest circulation of any paper devoted to the interests of Science, Invention, Mechanics, Mining, Manufactures, Commerce, Agriculture, Patents, Chemistry, Electricity, Mechanics, Science, Industry, Agriculture, Commerce, Manufactures, Mining, Mechanics, Invention, Patents, Science. Weekly, 52 numbers, 4 pages, 416 columns, $3.00 a year. Specimen copies, 10 cents. Hand Book about Patents, 32 pages, 16 cents. Address, MUNN & CO., Office of the Scientific American, 361 Broadway, New York.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts can be made for it in New York.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

Grand Rapids' best paper,

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Weed at 12½ cents a week.

RICHLY REWARDED ... Who devote their time to the business we offer them. Agents wanted. Some have made money at work for us. Some have made more than a dollar an hour. Any one can take hold and do the work. We have many times more work than we can do, and we can pay more than any other house for the work. We make and furnish everything we sell. Our goods are in every family. Everybody buys. Everybody needs our goods. Agents are earning from $5 to $25 per day. We want a few more agents to work in their own neighborhoods. We will show you how to do the business, furnish you the employment, and pay you for your time, from the start, at a rate that will astonish you. Address, TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

INVENTION has revolutionized the last half century. Not least among the inventions of the last half century is the invention of work that can be performed and over a million of workers from the world's work. The work they do is now done by machinery. We want to hear from one hundred men who can do the work that will start you in business at home. Capital not needed. We are willing to pay a large wage for a little time in the work. Any one can do the work. Some have made more than a dollar an hour at it. Any one can do it who is willing to work. Either sex. Young or old. Capital not needed. We will start you. Reader, if you want to know all about the business that will bring you in money fast, write to us and we will send you full, free, information, which will show you how you can make money fast at work for us. Address, GEORGE STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres of land situated on Pine Lake 14 miles west of Lansing, "A Beaver", in the township of Eaton, Charlevoix county, four acres cleared, one log house, barn, well, and other buildings. Will take part down. Whole or in time to suit purchaser. For further particulars, address or inquire of E. G. JARMAN, Ionia, Mich.

PRESBYTERIANS

READ THIS

Find with the Result are Presents, a book published by Rev. Wm. Ormiston, D.D., of Edinburgh, Scotland, and entitled "Presbyterianism, Its Present Position and Future Prospects." Sent free to any address.

"I Longfellow in His Library,"

Engraved by Ritter. Size 8x10 inches. Add 12 cents postage. Sent free to any address.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We have on hand a large lot of Gold Watches, Gold Chains, Diamonds, Silver Watches, Silver Chains, Rings, Pins, Ear Rings, Sleeve Buttons, Scarf Pins, Lockets, Opera Glasses, Spectacles, Eyeglasses, Clocks, Tea Spoons, Table Spoons, Dessert Spoons, Ladles, Cake Baskets, Pickle Castors, Butter Coolers, Napkin Rings, Cake Knives, Fish Knives, Pickle Forks, Tea Sets, Ice Pitchers, Ice Tubs, Cake Stands, Fruit Stands, Fruit Baskets, Bread Baskets, Cake Baskets, Fruit Dishes, Pickle Dishes, Butter Dishes, Cake Dishes, Sugar Bowls, Cream Pitchers, Slop Bowls, Spoon Holders

A JEW'S CHRISTMAS SOLILOQUY.

BY BURT ARNOLD.

Mosech, you hear dot chunes-bell peal ring?
Vas you hear dose shimes?
Vonse or vest I will use nothinks—
Vonse or vest I mangle no dimes.
I am always late see hevrin'
Ven I go pipe sehul and Gessunes;
Bessere sleep yes yes, ven I sort.
Mist as well go come Ishmes.

It vas makes me mad like dunder
Ven I hear, dot church-kvoir sing;
Vy I know it? vhile day long
I still mist make a ring
Foot your eye vith an dollar
Mit der hair chust a-se-ver look,
Ven I gomes hom, my boy mddinks,
Foot on Zondays it vas drunk.

Dot's der vay mit Gressian hoeples—
Ve vas nefer cot er show;
Efery thing dot dey do, dey stealings,
Trait vas nefer shure.
Ve gomes ir gnikt efo heeples, Gressians vay
Vy kind efo dey pay efo ine, dey say:
Putt der yar dem blendy vinky
Shard der same und Gressians day.

SAVED BY A SOCK.

BY BURT ARNOLD.

Jem Pinchem was a man who could rightly be termed a married bachelor; for, although he had one of the sweetest and most patient of wives and a beautiful little daughter, he clung to the habits of his single days, and merely used his home for a place in which to sleep and eat. He was not a drunkard; he never drank intoxicants of any kind. Yet he always came home in the small hours of night, about the same hour that some tired individuals come to roost when "all no nizer plaish ish closed up." For many years his wife was ignorant of the reason why he stayed out so late, and it was equally as long before she learned the true reason why he never had any money, when she knew he earned a good salary.

The truth was, Jem was a confirmed gambler, and had it not been for his wife's little dowry, both Jem and his family would have been obliged to wear rags the year round. But there is a limit to the largest dowry, and Molly Pinchem's was soon reached. For months after it r money was all gone she never complained; but Jem grew cross as he missed the many comforts she had formerly furnished from her dot. Sleepless nights spent over the gaming-table worked on his nerves and made him a changed man. He was censored and irritated at the slightest matter and nothing seemed to please him. He had sunk into debt, and if any man ever stood in the pers of losing his reason Jem Pinchem was the man. Don't misunderstand and think he was a bad man at heart, for he was far from it. Naturally he was warm-hearted and of a sunny disposition; but he had existed with his nerves strung at a high tension for so long that his peevishness and irritability were the very common results of turning night into day and giving his nervous system no chance for recuperation.

On the evening before Christmas he had eaten of the scanty meal furnished by his wife and grumbled over it, possibly because he felt he had no moral right to make the slightest objection, and merely wished to assume the dictatorial with his spouse. When he had finished, he arose from the table and glanced at the clock; then he hurriedly donned his coat and hat and began to draw on his gloves.

"Jem," said his wife, with a saddened sigh, "please leave a little money with me to-day."

"What for?" he savagely questioned.

"Why, it's the night before Christmas, Jem, and I have not a single cent with which to buy him the smallest remembrance," she answered.

"Dot don't need any glancracks; she don't know nothin 'bout Christmas," grunted the man, as he buttoned his coat well around his throat and pulled his hat over his eyes.

"Yi, Jem, do please give me a little money! Just a little. I am not strong, Jem, and I want my love to have a chance to give her anything next Christmas," she pleaded pitiously.

"Poor folks like us ain't got no right to spend money for presents.

"But I know you won't have a cent when you return, Jem, and I need the money so badly, too. Stay at home with me to-night, Jem, and I promise you I will not scold until your wages are gone, and then feel sorry for it."

"Can't I do what I like with my own money?" snapped Jem.

"Why, yes, Jem, I—I—I didn't mean anything like that—I—why! Don't be cross, please, I don't feel well."

And she sank on a chair by the tea-table and sobbed as though her heart would break.

"I say, don't cry, Molly; don't take on. I didn't mean to be rough. I ain't got no small change—no! It's all in a twenty-dollar bill. I'll go out and buy a turkey, and send you some money by the market-boy when he brings the turkey home. I'll be gone long myself.

She raised her pale face and looked imploringly at him through her glistening tears. He returned her glance; then, with a shrug of his shoulders, he opened the door and disappeared in the darkness outside. As he passed the window he saw her face. It was pinched with despair, and expressive of one in despair.

"Women is mars ridiculous," he muttered; but no one saw himself could by any possibility tell how much an extravagant statement applied in his case.

Molly Pinchem cleared away the tea-table, washed, dried, and put away the dishes in the closet, then sat by the kitchen stove with little Dot in her arms.

The market-boy came and deposited a much battered chicken on the table—but no money.

Eight o'clock, but no Jem with it.

Nine o'clock, still no Jem.

Eleven o'clock, and Dot lay dreaming in Half-past eleven.

Molly's arms, while the tears, which could not be kept back, coursed down her cheeks, held her sinless child, causing her to gently rocked Dot's head, causing her to start in her sleep.

"I can stand this no longer!" moaned the poor woman.

"I will not, Jem, where are he is."

She laid the child gently on the sofa and kissed it tenderly, and the hot, scalding tears dropped on its sinless face.

Quietly she crept to her chamber and donned the most ragged dress she owned.

"I'll shame him if I can find him," she said to herself, as she wrapped a torn muffler about her head and placed a battered basket on the table.

Little Dot awoke and, seeing her mother ready to go out exclaimed:

"I no do too, mamma."

Molly hesitated a moment, then said:

"So you shall"

She wrapped Dot in an old woolen shawl and started in the direction she had heard the dog was located at which Jem spent his time and money.

The night air was keen and the sleet cutting, but Molly heeded neither.

Once, as she passed the mansion of Jem's employer, she held Dot on high that she might look in the window and see a Christmas tree that was glittering with candles and glass balls and loaded with presents for the little ones who were romping in glee around it.

The sight made her green with envy; but Dot raised her lilth. Lose is in ecstasy and exclaimed:

"Pity!"

"Yes, pity 'tis as well as pretty," cried out Molly, when she turned away as if in pain at the "sight.

She felt indignant that Jem's infatuation for the green-faced gamble prevented their home from enjoying a like blessing.

At the next corner she met a police-officer who was alternately stamping his feet and blowing into his face to keep warm.

The chimes of St. Nicholas sounded on the midnight air and sent a shudder through her frame.

Christmas. What a Christmas might be in store for her!

She clasped Dot closer to her breast and hurried along.

SHE HELD DOT ON HIGH THAT SHE MIGHT LOOK IN THE WINDOW.

May puts to bed her Christmas doll.
Watched by the jealous Gyp and Pub.

at the faro-table, nervously watching a double pile of blue-colored chips that lay on a queen of spades.

Suddenly a little childish figure stood by his side, and startled him like an apparition. A tattered woolen shawl fell from around its form, and soft flaxen curls fluttered over its confidence. A smiling face with trusting eyes looked squarely in his. A tiny arm thrust forward a wee sock that gaped at both head and toe, and a childish voice exclaimed:

"Merry Twistmas, papa!"

The gambler was startled at the sock then at the sight of the tattered sock from the blood in his veins and paralyzed the action of his brain.

His pile had won, and he was deprived of the power to move it.

Again he looked at the sack, then at his

I.
Mischievous Puty, left alone.

II.
Crash—crash goes the dolls with doleful tone.

chips. The pile doubled once more, and the dealer grew nervous.

A third time it won.

Suddenly he clasped Dot to his arms, and the tears bounced themselves from his eyelids and coursed down his cheeks.

The gamblers stopped their betting and watched the pair.

"Tim," he said to a man sitting next to him, "gimme a pin."

The man complied with his request.

then do doktor's fide.

Sum people is alwys wishin' they end liv their lives over again, but keep on in same old rut.

There wud be er heep more hathy folks if it wan't for de patent medicine advertisements.

I ain't got mutch respec' for er man what is a'was goin' to sumin' sereetsies an makin' close for de heathen, while he unsaw his fellow-man in de cold.

Whenever I heares er lokermotic whistle I rolls it ce-rose for greatness.

Hot krakks keep t'ickin', but senserbul folks stif' kee fim eatin' when dat happens.

As de simmons keeps up sas on de decet, so det keeps up missey air. Despair on er man's soul.

When yer poetmas says anything funny do yer kindly smiles, but when de rich man yes everthing sadd yer sa kroud lafs long an' loud.

Sum men go to kongres' for honer; others go fur de gold on their kountry; while er heep of them go fur de fun dey kan kan kan fur their votes.

Er man an' his wife is jes' like er pare of sissors; when they works tergether they does sum good, but when they pole er part they don't do eyything.

De devil may hav' up er boom, but you don't neetum fear one axin' er bout his korner lots.

Nuppesse is what makes seeiety bare-able.

De pan' lant he received, but its er mity good one lord fur de future.

Er old made is er woman what hed rather be singel then to marry er skrub ob er man.

When ever I sees er blind man I feels like he's got er heep more chances fur Heven then I has.

Thes shaken hands er erse de blisfy ele-ung; but heep ob them feels like goin' er little jerk an pullin' de mittes out.

When you drinks wine at de sakerment

POP-CORN AND CIDER.

A FAIR exchange—The compliments of the season.

A NEW YEAR'S call—Please remit.

SAID is the heart that cannot rejoice at Christmas time.

NO STOCKING is so small that Santa Claus will overlook it.

On Christmas Day, though the turkey's tender, be cutting stuff.

"HAPPY New Year, Judge." "Chestnut, Major."

WHAT though your purse is empty, pray, if hearts are full of joy to-day?

THE same good resolutions made last January will do for this year.

JUST notice how nice your best girl will look from now till after the holiday season.

A CHRISTMAS goose—The man who thinks Santa Claus a fraud.

It is not always the largest stocking which catches the most valuable Christmas gift.

IT'S a wise husband who prepares to pay for the Christmas gifts received from his wife.

SAY not that Christ has been born in vain if even the poor be not borne upon it.

NEW YEAR'S calls will never go out of fashion while there are bill-collectors to make them.

In giving Christmas presents be sure and keep your presence of mind. Don't be extravagant.

V.
Now both are very much elated
To find the doll is repeated.

FASHION NOTE.—This is the season of the year when every one is looking for something new in stockings.

From the new year be buying a new umbrella and a diary, then just make a note of the man who borrows the longest.

A NICE, easy exercise for Christmas Day is that of counting the chance you have left. It can be done generally with one hand.

"TRUE is money." This ought to be cheering news to the man of leisure who has Christmas presents to buy and no ready cash.

THE person who shall do the most to cheer the hearts of the needy poor will have the merriest Christmas and the happiest New Year. Try it and see.

VI.
Gyp quick repents, but scornful Poll
Laughs at the ruin of the doll.

KNOW all men by these presents (Christmas presents) that the milk of human kindness is still sweet.

THE store clerk who gets seven dollars a week and spends twenty dollars for a Christmas present for his girl should be classed among "Christmas greens."

Speak of your companions rail;
You may succeed; but, if you fail,
Your reputation end full.
Then never to resolve at all.

BIGGS—Morning, Diggs hang up your stocking Christmas Eve! Diggs—No, Biggs—Morning, Biggs. Wife wanted a new pair of gold bracelets for a present, and I had to go off 'em.

A CHRISTMAS PROPOSAL.

VII.
Today's the day to merry be
And say things sweet and pleasant;
Now darling, will you marry me,
And be my Christmas present?

I'm tired if I should marry you
Our Christmas would always run
And that the day each always ran
Would be the Christmas past.

DEAD STUCK ON HIMSELF.

"I do like a pie," said Mr. O'Greedy, as he helped himself for the fourth time to the tempting pie-full of the viands at the Christmas dinner.

"You should be 'dead stuck' on yourself at that rate," said his landlady, with a smile, but in rather a cutting tone.

IF HE HAD LUCK.

"What will we have for dinner on Christmas, dear," said Jem Pinchem's wife on Christmas eve.

"A pair of chickens if I have luck and old Hennan don't lock his coop to-night."

CHRISTMAS REVERIE.—"What are you going to buy your wife for a Christmas present?" asked Colonel Jones of Judge Johnson. "I'm thinking of getting her a piano." "Can she play?" "No, of course not. Do you think I'd be such a fool as to buy her a piano if she could play?"

Feed well the hungry, clothe the poor
Let no man stand in need;
This is the way to celebrate
A Christmas true indeed.

CHRISTMAS DREAMS.

BY EUGENE.

Now by ink cot a troop of fairies glide,
Bright fairies neat and trim—

Fill up their gifts waist high on every side,
And, smiling, beckon him.

In dreams he wanders through a palace fair,
And Christmas trees bow low

THE PICTURE ON WHICH HE HAD BEEN AT WORK.

Beneath a load of presents rich and rare
You've had a rich dream, Santa.

How lightly rest the fingers of sweet sleep
When from each shadow cunning fairies peep.
And dreams are best of all.

When all the world is given up to joy,
And Christmas wide chimney blow
And every Santa Claus for every anxious boy,
And every girl beside.

LERA.

A Christmas Story.

BY JETTIE FORBUSH HANAFORD.

"Only a few more touches, and then it will be complete."

The speaker, Raymond Kingsley, stood gazing with a tender light in his eyes on the picture before him. He was an amateur artist, with much power and genius, that only required study and necessity to give the world a truly great painter.

Unfortunately for the world, he was wealthy and in love; consequently he was not very energetic in his work. He was content to follow art simply as an amusement, and satisfied in doing able to represent on canvas the form and features of the girl he loved, there his ambition ended.

The picture, on which he had been hard at work since sunrise, represented a young girl, dressed in a picturesque robe gas costume; her small hands, encased in soft woolly mittens, held a pair of snow-shoes, and at her feet was a toboggan on which were seated two boys, presumably her brothers.

The snow lay thick and white upon the ground, and sparkled in the sunlight on the bare branches.

The girl's face was full of tenderness and beauty. A soft fur cap sat jaunty upon her shapely head, and contrasted with its waves of dark brown hair, and her eyes, brilliant and full of loving, had truth beaming in every winsome glance.

Raymond Kingsley drew a long breath as he gazed upon the lovely face on the picture.

"Oh, Lera, my beautiful, bright-eyed darling, this is not as you looked the day my eyes first rested upon you. I loved you then, and I love you now, my darling, with all the strength of my manhood; and when this picture is completed I shall ask you to become my wife. For your dear sake, with your love to bless me, I might make my name more famous. Without it—oh! what hope, my darling, without your love Lera, my darling, without your love?"

"It was Christmas eve. All day long the snow had settled down in soft, downy flakes, until at sunset it ceased. It lay spotless and white that the world seemed laid in a mantle of fleecy covering. The Christmas stars shone in the sky, and the Christmas bells merrily rang out forth.

In the little parlor at Mr. Grantley's comfortable home were seated two people, one a young and pretty girl. She was pretty, because dark, lustrous eyes, wavy brown hair and a soft, blush-rose complexion made her so. Her girlish figure was full of graceful curves, and looked very small and slight in a dress of black lace with a bodice of dotted black net.

But hark! she is speaking.

"Raymond, dear friend, forgive me. I can not marry you. I do not love you."

The girl's voice was low and sad, the sweet mouth eloquent with sorrow, and the dark hazel eyes dewy with recent tears.

Raymond Kingsley almost crushed the small white hands he held and caused a cry of pain to escape the girl's pale lips.

"Oh, my darling! forgive me; my great love has almost driven me beside myself." Then, clasping her in his arms he continued:

"I had known how I worship you, Lera; I can not give you up! My darling, I can not."

His voice trembled with infinite tenderness and love, and he smoothed the dark waves of his darling's hair with a gentle, caressing touch.

Lera Grantley was crying softly. She did not love him, but she could not bear to be the cause of his suffering.

Raymond, she said, softly and sorrowfully, "Raymond, I am truly sorry you love me so much; I am not worthy of it, believe me."

"Lera, dearest, I will win your love; only marry me in all I ask. Give yourself to me, my dearest."

With all of an ardent lover's eloquence he pleaded.

"Oh, Raymond, you do not understand. Would you marry me now, knowing that I have no love to give you?"

Only for a second, then sudden strength came to her, and she wrenched herself away, and stood looking at him, with tears blinding her eyes.

"I can but repeat what I have already said. It is too late."

"Oh! think, darling, of my great love. Have you no love to give me, Lera? My life is in your hands, to make or mar. You have made a mistake; you do not love Raymond Kingsley. It is not too late, Lera. Be my wife. Do not refuse me."

His voice—the voice she loved so well—was husky and shook with emotion. The bright, handsome face was full of love and tenderness; the dark eyes had lost their laughing light, and were filled with a pleading wistfulness.

Ah, how her heart yearned toward him! The temptation was terrible. A week ago the knowledge that this man loved her would have made her the happiest woman in the world, and now it made her the most miserable. He loved her, and she must send him away.

Her promise had been given to Raymond Kingsley, a true and honorable man, and she would keep that promise, no matter at what the cost. Her voice was low and clear as she made reply.

"I am Raymond Kingsley's promised wife, and again I tell you it is too late."

"Lera! Lera! pity me. You do love me—I feel sure of it."

He never forgot the expression of unutterable misery on her face as she turned toward him.

"Let this interview end now, Mr. Ashton. My promise once given is irrevocable, for

NELLY AND SANTA CLAUS.

BY ANNA CHRISTIE PRITCHE.

I.

'Tis Christmas eve and bed-time. Now at their mother's knee
The children are wondering what their Christmas gifts will be;
See the little curly heads, lying where falls the firelight's ruddy glow,
Think gladsome good Santa's footsteps, and his reindeer or the snow.

II.

"I hope he'll bring a rocking-horse," says Willie, for a boy;
"And cradles, dolls and dishes and a lot of presents for my Children (Mamma) has with thoughtful face our little three-year-old Nell
Asks "Mamma, where does Santa Claus get all his cash, please tell?"

III.

"In Santa's arctic, ice-bound home a fairy queen doth dwell,
Replies mamma, "of kindly heart, who loves children well;
Old Santa is her good son. At his cradle thus she spake she,
To his mother: 'Take this magic purse; to him my gift twill be.'"

IV.

"When this boy has grown to manhood's years and wedded a fair wife,
It will be well to give him all his pockets with can hold.
"But, mamma, You and Bessie Brown, who live on the way,
Always find their stockings empty, on the morn of Christmas day.

V.

Since their papa died, does Santa Claus forget
Why do we hope these by?" with puzzled look asks little Nell.
"My child, perhaps good Santa Claus, who leaves within our door
So many gift, desires you to share them with the poor."

VI.

"Then, mamma, will you wake me when you hear his sleigh-bells ring?
I will give him Tom's and Bessie's share of all that he may bring.
"I will, my dear," says mamma, as she strokes the curly head,
And the little form soon are tucked away and sound asleep in bed.

VII.

And this the story told by Nell on the morn of Christmas day
"Mamma forgot to call me, and so Santa rode away,
But I think his sleigh-bells woke me, and I hurried to the door,
For I heard his reindeer scampering over the crispy snow so hoar;

VIII.

"Ere I reached the door, twas opened just a little, and I heard
Thrust in a little way—of course, you under stand a little bird—
It was the hand of Santa Claus, and he waited for me there,
To say within his log fur glove Tom's and Bessie's rightful share.

IX.

"And I gave him of the presents what I thought would do them good
Charlie's cap and overcoat and Sonny's fur lined boots and hood
My coral-and white silk mitts I sent them with my love;
Did the glow on Santa's hand looked just like papa's comforting glove?"

MABEL'S CHRISTMAS BATH.

By Bert Hendricks.

The "Ice Queen" was the rather fanciful title which ten-year-old Mabel Heath had been given by the boys and girls of the little Maine village near which she lived. She was passionately fond of skating, and her skill in that line was something wonderful. In fact, there were very few skaters of twice her age who could be compared to her. Mabel knew this, and she bore her queenly title with an air of superiority which was rather annoying to see.

But that one afternoon's skating! It was a Christmas ten years ago, and though Mabel is now a young lady, full grown, she has never forgotten, and probably never will forget, the events of that afternoon.

For weeks she had been preparing for that Christmas. For was not her parents, her friend, Bessie Seymour, to give a grand party that night? The youthful society of the village and surrounding country had been anticipating the affair with not a little pleasure. Papa Seymour had engaged two musicians to furnish music for the dancing part of the fun, and Mamma Seymour had provided a store of cakes and candies and fruits and everything else that ought to make up a Christmas night feast.

But that morning Mabel's big brother, Jack fell sick. It was horrid, of course, to have such a thing happen on a Christmas day, and Mabel really felt very sorry for Jack. But she felt ten times more sorry had when her mother said to her:

"Mabel, I hardly see how you can go to that party to-night. Jack is sick. I don't see who is going to drive you over to Squire Seymour's this afternoon."

"Oh, mamma!" half sobbed the child, tears welling to her eyes, "I can't give up that party. Isn't there some way?"

"My darling," the mother said, "I know it will be a terrible disappointment. But you know we live so far out of town that it is almost three miles over to Seymour's. I couldn't think of letting you tramp clear over there in the snow."

"I can't drive it, I can't give it up," said the child, tearfully; "and, mamma," she continued, brightening up, "I've thought of a plan of getting over there. I can skate over. You know the river runs almost past our house, and I can skate nearly to Bessie's house. Oh, mamma, please let me," she said, as she saw that her mother hesitated. "You know I can skate so fast."

"But are you sure the ice is firm?" asked her mother, anxiously.

"Of course it is," said Mabel, nodding her head emphatically. "Wasn't I on it almost all day yesterday?"

Her mother finally consented to the plan, and so, late that afternoon, well wrapped in her little fur cloak and muffler, and with her skates tightly strapped to her feet, she started out.

"I hope the dear child will enjoy herself," said Mrs. Heath, turning to her work with a sigh. She was thinking of that Christmas day five years before when her husband, in a drunken fit of anger, had left her and his two children and wandered away. He had never returned, and the neighbors said "Good riddance to the drunken wretch!" But the wife thought differently, and hoped that some day he might come back.

"Come, Bob," shouted the child to the small dog which had been her companion since her father's death. "Now we're going to start! Ready?" And away she glided from the banks, followed by her shaggy four-footed friend.

Down the river they flew toward the village. For the first few moments all went well, and Mabel felt more than happy in the keen, cold air. "We'll soon be there, Bob," she said to her companion, who found it hard work to keep up with his young master.

"Hark! whats that?" she added, as a sound fell on her ear.

Again she heard the crackling noise. Surely the ice could not be giving way!

She skated faster and faster, hoping to reach a more secure stretch of ice. for she began to realize that the glassy surface of the river was bending and rolling under the motion of her skates like a huge piece of paper. Faster and faster she sped, fear making her forget the tired feeling that was creeping over her. She was afraid to go ashore, for she realized that if the ice were weak anywhere it would be near the edges. And the river was very deep, even close to the shore.

DOWN THE RIVER THEY FLEW TO THE VILLAGE.

Again that crackling sound! Th a time it was louder than before. It was growing dark, and Mabel could see the lights flashing out here and there in the village, which lay only a short distance away.

Suddenly she felt the ice give away. With a loud crash it broke, and Mabel was in the black, cold water.

She clutched at the ice and tried to raise herself out of the water. The ice broke, and she fell back. Again she tried to save herself. Once more the ice gave way. She was becoming numbed. Was this her last Christmas, she thought.

"Oh, Bob!" screamed the child, suddenly thinking of the dog and hoping that in some way he might save her. But no Bob came. She closed her eyes and sank.

MABEL AT BESSIE'S PARTY.

"Just in the nick of time!" exclaimed a man, as he pulled the limp, unconscious form out of the air-hole. "Lucky thing that dog acted so sagacious, tugging at my coat, that I knew something was wrong. Well, well, little girl, Mabel opened her eyes, "you had a close call; no mistake about that."

He carried her quickly to the shore, and soon they were both safe on land, though how they escaped going through the frail ice, which had been weakened that morning by a thaw, neither ever knew.

"What's your name, little girl?" asked her new-found friend. He was odd-looking, very rough, and rather shabbily dressed. But the child took a liking to him from the first.

"Mabel Heath, sir," she replied.

"Mabel Heath?" said the stranger, his voice trembling. "Tell me, child, where you live! Is your mother alive?"

And as she answered these questions the girl said that his eyes were filled with tears. She wondered why it was.

I.

Perhaps you think Mabel missed that party. You do? Well, you're mistaken. Her strange companion took her to Squire Seymour's, carried her indoors, and suddenly disappeared, after a hasty good-by. When the chorus of "Oh's" and "Ah's" from her juvenile friends was over, Mabel was snugly fitted out in one of Bessie's dresses, and necessarily treated before a roaring fire. In a wonderfully short time she was herself as lively as ever.

As for the party, Mabel enjoyed it just as much, if not more, than she had expected. The guests were more delighted. Jokes followed the dancing, and then came the supper. Mabel, of course, was the heroine of the evening. She didn't go home that night, early the next morning she trudged home through the snow, on her arm a basket of good things, left over from the feast, for Jack and her mother. When she reached home she was surprised to find that both of them already knew of her strange escape from death.

"Why, who told you about it, mamma?" asked the child, wondering.

"It was your father, Mabel, the father whom your adventure was the means of sending back to us."

And then the door opened, and Mabel saw her father—the stranger who had saved her.

ONE CHRISTMAS EVE.

By C. R. Crespi.

It had long been understood, although the arrangement was tacit, that when Basil Giles and his cousin Leslie Danner should attain the ages respectively of twenty-five and twenty their families should be still more closely allied by the marriage of the two—only son and only daughter of their houses. As a child Leslie had been at school, so that when she returned home after being thoroughly finished by a tour of the continent with her friends the Rossiters, she met young Giles for the first time since those early days in which life had been a mere thoughtless dream of happiness.

He had driven down from "The Towers" to meet her at the station, and as the train slowed up she from her window had a good view of him as he stood upon the platform, a pleasant-faced young man with keen blue eyes and a sunny smile. As she slowly descended from the coach, she found him ready with outstretched hands to greet her.

"Cousin Leslie," he said, in his clear pleasant voice; "I know you at once, you see, although my last recollection of you was a little girl in short white frocks and long flaxen curls."

"And affoa of you," looking up with soft dark eyes which were full of a sweet indefinable charm, "was not so—as pictures you. I remember you as a very little boy with a strong propensity for getting into mischief and for getting therefrom with the dirtiest of dirty faces."

He laughed as he helped her into the phaeton, and tucked the robe carefully over her silken gown, with its trimmings of soft furs; then he took his seat beside her, and gathering up the reins, touched Tony lightly with the whip.

Now and then he glanced a little curiously at the fair, pale face on his left, the delicate face, with velvety brown eyes, framed in a clustering mass of short, golden hair; she had a dainty mouth, too, with firm, flexible lips, very inviting for kisses. He thought that he stole those glances unobserved, and was therefore a little startled to hear, softly uttered, "Well, cousin, and how do you like me?"

"I am not the exception to prove the rule," he answered gaily. "I like you as you should be liked. Does not that enough?"

"Thanks; I am glad you like me, because, I dare say, I am going to shock you horribly, but a beautiful cousin is my hobby, I like you so well already that I want you to join me in an alliance, offensive and defensive, against all those silly persons who would make us hate each other. It is possible that a little more modesty might be better here; but the truth is that I have no intention of allowing my mother to parade this poor orphan girl at every tea and dinner party in the county, with meaning whispers and smiles that cannot fail to call attention to that absurd condition in our respective fathers' wills. Do you want to be my friend, Basil?"

"Of course I do."

"Then, if you do, be good enough to tell your mother to-day that we neither of us intend to have any more nonsense of that sort. I, for one, will have none of it. It was bad enough at school to be called names by the girls; but now as a young woman in society, I have no wish to be an object of sarcastic and heartless ridicule of old gossips in this humdrum place."

"But, seriously, cousin Leslie, I am not such a bad fellow, after all. You might do worse than accept me."

"Worse? Well, at least let me go a little farther first. To be candid, you know, you would never suit me—you are too fair, I like black men." And a swift wave of color swept over her delicate cheek.

"But I am afraid you don't know my mother; her whole heart has been so too long upon joining—"

"Our two estates," put in the girl coolly. "Yes, I understand, but I will end all that if you will only aid me. You have more to refuse to fulfill your part of the contract."

"I could not be so ungallant, cousin."

"And then the matter is at an end," went on the young lady without heeding his interruption. "I have a wretched temper! tell your mother you hate a virago, and I will treat you to a scene or two."

"No need to go quite so far. Only may I ask you a question? Have you—are you—"

She smiled mischievously. "Yes; I have, to and I am. I have met a—a person to whom I have engaged myself. The murder is all out, Basil—only promise to keep my secret until I am my own mistress, and—"

"Or until I give you up," he said gravely, and a little regretfully; for the bright, mischievous smile and soft dark eyes had made their usual impression. He sighed, and turned his pony into the avenue.

"You would like to be linn until dinner, I suppose," said Mrs. Giles, a little anxiously.

"No, thanks; I would prefer a dance. Nothing rests me so thoroughly as a long, slow waltz when I am tired.

"The blue room, eh, Aunt Margaret, how completely you must have forgotten my complaints! I am quite well, but never mind, I suppose I can bear it."

This was the beginning by the end of the week poor Mrs. Giles would follow her son's movements with anxious eyes and a deep sense of relief if she saw him pass his cousin without ingrowing at her side; still, the estates were contiguous, and the arrangements made between the two fathers were laid good. The girl could not marry without her aunt's consent to her reaching the age of twenty-five in case she refused to become her cousin's wife; and Mrs. Giles fully believed that the affair should be consummated long before that time.

By the end of the week Christmas eve. The Towers was overflowing with guests, and in her honor Mrs. Giles was compelled to waive her own prerogatives and give over the house to her niece and her niece's young friends.

The Rossiters of Glen Dale had asked leave to bring with them their distant relative and friend—Colonel Bryan, the man who had distinguished himself in the of prudence and solemnize a real marriage."

The dressing bell rang and as the party trooped out of the room Leslie turned with an almost imperceptible motion of the hand to Colonel Bryan. As the last one disappeared behind the silken portiere, he rose and with one movement knelt beside the girl.

"Have you the answer for me that I wish, Leslie? Time presses, and we gain nothing. Let it be as I ask you, dear; you will never repent."

"But it was my father's desire, Victor, and I cannot decide to oppose him and my aunt; you understand, I and sure. I have told her that I cannot fulfill that absurd condition, but I could not tell her anything else. She does not know that—"

She broke down and laid her flat cheek upon his shoulder. Alas, for Mrs. Giles and her cherished hopes!

After a little while he lifted up her lovely face with its sweet quivering lips.

"I have a plan, dear, if you will only consent to it. As far as I can see the matter is simply that Mrs. Giles is your guardian until you are twenty-five in case you refuse to marry your cousin on your twentieth birthday. That day is just three months off, and I am ordered to leave at once for a warmer climate. I must go, and yet I cannot leave you. Will you come with me, Leslie?"

"You see that I cannot."

"I would not ask you to leave your aunt—poor, dear, unloved lor consent but if that is secured, will you marry me and go with me to Spain at once?"

"You know that I would go," she answered, "but—"

"Then I will write to your guardian the best of morning some one brought out his collection of autographs for general inspection, and one after another wrote his name and tried his hand at copying some famous signature for the mere sake of killing time. Mrs. Giles wrote a rather peculiar hand and was somewhat proud of her unique manner of signing herself, so she willingly ac-ceded to the many requests for her autograph. Colonel Bryan was the last one to ask for it, and he apologized for asking her to write immediately below his own name—that he had heard some one say that their style was something alike. The girl gave a burst of laughing glee in the midst of which he escaped from the room into the library, where, for an hour or more, he was engaged in earnest conversation with Basil and Leslie later, he left for a hurried trip to London, returning the next afternoon triumphant and light-hearted.

The day before Christmas eve, the tight selected for the private theatricals, Leslie made one last effort. She appealed to her aunt, but in vain. Her protestations that Basil joined with her in objecting to the contract were received with contempt.

"I don't know what the matter thoroughly, girl," Mrs. Giles said, coldly. "You have worked upon your cousin's kind heart to such a degree that he is willing to do anything for you. I cannot force you to marry him, of course, but I can and will prevent your marrying anyone else for five years."

"You may do as you please," the girl said, scornfully; "only I should have too much pride to force my son upon any woman who did not care for him—simply for the sake of increasing the importance of the family by annexing a few more miles of land to the estate."

It was Christmas eve, the great dining-room gaily decorated and for the time given up to the young people, who danced and danced to their hearts content during the early part of the evening.

The stage had been erected at the upper end of the room looking nothing in the way of cottage scenes, footlights, and so on. All the country families whose names were on the visiting list of the Towers had been bidden to the theatricals and to the dance afterward, and already carriage after carriage had deposited its load of gaily middle-age and fair be-mantled youth.

The last scene was to be the most beautiful of all the entertainment, and as it proved, indeed, a success. It was Guy Rossiter's bride-to-be, and a set girl Rossiter's bride Leslie, in flowing white veil, traditional orange-blossoms and all, Bryan, Basil's best man, looking with a soldierly bearing which held in Colonel Bryan's, Basil, as best man, looking with a commendation of assumed admiration at the charming bridesmaid, in snowy silk, with white roses in her dark hair; and it was impossible not to observe the twinkle in the person's fresh blue eyes, as he confronted the audience in all the dignity of freshly starch d surplice.

Then the curtain fell, and the admiring friends applauded in the usual conventional manner; after which Mrs. Giles led the way into the drawing-rooms. Later came Basil and Guy, too (no mincing matters here), and Leslie was soon surrounded by a circle. "Still, they joined in the dances, and it was only after some allusion had been made to the absence of Leslie and Colonel Bryan, that Mrs. Giles, in a signal from her son, followed him into the library, where were seated the missing guests. Her partner—Leslie had resumed her evening dress, but her cousin's dress were so much finished that her aunt at once commented upon her lack in having worn her stage rouge. But this deepened the color, and she almost unconsciously drew nearer to the elegantly. He smiled reassuringly, and led his hostess to a seat.

"My dear modesty, he said, quietly, "I hope you will thank me for having sided you in manoeuvring out of your happily by virtue of my office, I finished the ceremony which you admired so much, Colonel, I am sure you can easily make your peace. You see, Mrs. Giles, you signed your name to your consent to this—this entanglement.

"'All's fair in love and war,' put in Basil, gaily; 'and, mother dear, Colonel Bryan is both a lover and a warrior.'

Mrs. Giles was a wise woman in her generation, and she did what only a wise woman could have done—she held her tongue. "Colonel Bryan had been ordered away for his health, you know, and both Leslie and Basil were always so romantic." She was happy to announce the engagement of her son to Miss Rossiter. Such a delightful consummation of her desires! Yes, they had been attached to each other since they were mere children. Yes, dear Leslie was quite aware for the rest of the winter. Her husband's health left much to be desired. Arrive early in the Sound, you know." And so on.

"Dear Leslie, since she is happy, can afford to smile upon the bride tells her husband that he is not so much a brave warrior as an unprincipled strategist.

GOBBLE, GOBBLE, GOBBLE! "Now Bob mine! Ah! you know we're fattening you to eat on Christmas Day!"

Gobble, gobble, gobble, "Yes Bob mine! Ah! You know we're fattening you to eat on Christmas Day!"

Gobble, gobble, gobble, "Yes Bob mine! Ah! you know we're fattening you to eat on Christmas Day!"

No use to talk that way to me, Bob, oh, oh!
I don't see much a dreadful fuss
For you to make about it, you're expecting
Next Sunday we meet you'll be our Christmas feast.

SHE TRUDGED HOME THROUGH THE SNOW.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Dec. 22, 1897.

Local Notes and News.

A merry Christmas to all our readers.

O. D. Hilton has a new milch cow for sale.

☞ Fine display of dolls at G. W. Crouter's.

☞ Go to G. W. Crouter's for Christmas goods.

☞ New goods at Crouter's. Call and look them over.

☞ For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's.

☞ The Best Line of Albums in town is at G. W. Crouter's.

☞ Buy goods at Crouter's and have a guess on the Sewing Machine.

John Bell and William Ferguson have purchased the schooner Mocking Bird.

☞ Sewing machine given away. Finest thing ever offered in Charlevoix, at G. W. Crouter's.

F. A. Cochran & Co. are giving bargains in Christmas goods, selling just 5 per cent above cost.

Burns, Stevens & Co. will start the covered, heated stages between Charlevoix and Petoskey in a few days.

The ladies' band concert at Charlevoix last week was such a success, they will repeat it at Norwood, Dec. 29.

J. F. Smith has purchased the interest of William Cross in the firm of Cross & Son and the new firm is Cross & Smith.

☞ It is admitted that the Help Mate sewing machine is the best on the market for the money. ; Sold by S. M. See & Sons.

☞ Don't pay a travelling agent $40 for a rowing machine when you can get a first class machine of S. M. See & Sons for $20.

Will Horton has bought a tract of timber in Marion township and is getting out ties, posts, and shingle bolts, giving work to half a dozen men.

The Congregational church is being cleaned this week, but will be completed ready for use Sunday. The new furnace works admirably, there is no more smoke.

The new shingle factory is now running. It is the intention of the manager to run the mill night and day as soon as a sufficient stock of bolts can be procured.

Will our contemporaries who want to ridicule really good pages, exam ine the Journal this week, and then tell us what country paper can put up so much first-class matter for $1.50 per year.

When you want anything, buy it in the store advertised in these columns, where you will find the best goods at the lowest prices. Here is where you should spend it, if you are interested in the growth of your town.

☞ "Santa Claus is creating a sensation at the corner of Bridge and Main streets, where he will remain until after the holidays, and has you in mind as one of good Christmas cheer. Come and see. B. Dec 24 at 3 p. m.

Notice.—Parties owing the Charlevoix manufacturing Co. are hereby notified that any and all such amounts must be paid at once. Legal steps will be taken to enforce the collection of all past due notes and acc ounts. Settlements may be made at Stockman & Iddings store.

A full history of the Kansas liquor case recently disposed of in the United States Supreme court is found on page 3. The opinion of the court shows that it has not been given a very thorough study, and deliberation, and will form a basis for subsequent temperance work.

The Scientific American, advertised in another column under the head of "Patents," seems to be a good one to "sing its praises," but, notwithstanding this fact, we feel it our obsequious duty to the general public, at least that portion of it which has been seen or heard of the paper, to tell them that such a "one is published." For a little more than half the cost at the low price of $3 a year, and that its true value cannot be overestimated. It stands at the head of all publications of its kind. The office of the paper may be seen at this office and subscriptions received.

The Business Men's Convention at Petoskey last week, which was attended by delegates from Alba, Bellaire, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Harbor Springs, Mancelona, Petoskey, and Traverse City, resulted in the election of R. W. Kanaga, W. A. Smith and J. L. Hurd, of Charlevoix, as a committee to receive and forward the matter to be furnished by the local associations, for advertising this portion of Lake Michigan, and submit the same to a future convention, with plans for its publication and circulation. M. Wilcox was elected permanent secretary of the combined association. It is intended to have the material out in time to influence some of those who are thinking of going to Florida, and turn their attention in this direction.

Historical Society.

One of the most interesting sessions of the season was had at the home of Nelson Ainslie last Friday evening. The program was opened by a selection by a mixed chorus by C. L. Hitchcock. Miss Gray then read a selection entitled "Our Folks." Mrs. L. E. Allen read the paper of the evening, on the Life and Times of Henry IV, of England. After intermission three-quarters of an hour was spent in conversation of Shakespeare's Henry IV, lead by Prof. Enos and Mrs. C. J. Greer. The next meeting will be held Dec. 29, at the home of W. F. Brown.

Purely Personal.

Earnest Beauvais, of Grand Haven is in town.

W. P. Brown went to Grand Rapids this week.

L. E. Allen went to Port Orange, Florida, last week.

Ed. Aldrich, of East Jordan was in Charlevoix yesterday.

R. A. Emery was in Manistee last week, returning Tuesday.

A. E. Wachburne made a trip to Cadillac last Friday, returning Saturday evening.

Charley Nettleton, who is clerking in the store at Smithson's camp spent Sunday in Charlevoix.

Hon. A Battars goes to Reading today to spend the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. F. Parmelee.

Quartermaster J. C. F. Hollister, of Orchard Lake, is the guest of his sister, Mrs Elsie Webb this week.

Mr. Charles B. Gale, of Albion, will arrive in Charlevoix, Friday, stopping Sunday in the Lodge for the holidays.

William Kanagy received notice last week that he had been granted a pension for his services in the late war.

Mr. and Mrs Alex Bush, of Charlevoix, are visiting many friends and acquaintances in this city and vicinity.—Mason Democrat.

John Lamb and wife, of Sutton's Bay and Mrs. Henry Litney, of Traverse City are spending the holidays in this city with Mike Lainey.

Mills Kanagy is gaining considerable skill as a window decorator, which, with the clock-work pantomime show, makes Geo. W. Miller's front windows a great attraction.

Miss Cora Jefferies has just closed a successful term of school at Atwood. The prize for the best penmanship was awarded to Clara Wood and for the most improvement to Gilbert LaClair.

Charles Shepard and wife are spending Christmas at the home of Capt. Edwards. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard go to Manton next week, where they make their home. Mrs. Edwards expects to accompany them for a visit.

Mrs. James Beauvais, of Grand Haven, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pappin, of Charlevoix, died Monday afternoon. The remains were brought to Charlevoix for interment, arriving last evening. The funeral will be held this afternoon at two o'clock, at the home of Joseph Pappin.

C. H. Ball, of Detroit and Miss Ella, daughter of Captain and Mrs. A. C. Aldrich, were married yesterday at the Aldrich residence in Charlevoix, by Rev. A. O. Dowas. Miss Aldrich was raised in Charlevoix, and it is needless to say that she has hosts of friends who wish her every good luck, for her whose good wishes go with her to her new home. Mr. and Mrs. Ball left Charlevoix in the afternoon for Detroit where they will spend the holidays with Mr. Ball's people, after which they will go to Marquette, their future home.

Coming Events.

Recollect that the boys' band will give their masquerade dance at the opera house on Monday evening, Dec. 26th. Give them a good attendance.

The subject of discourse at the Congregational church Sunday morning will be, "The Joy of Christmas," in the evening, "The End of the Year."

Don't forget the Christmas dinner to be given by the ladies of the M. E. church at the Bridge Street House next Saturday, Dec. 24, from 11.30 a. m. to 3.00 p. m. The bill of fare will include oyster soup, roast turkey, roast chicken, roast beef and pork, vegetables, salads, pies, tea and coffee, all for 25 cents. All interested in the success of the church work are urged to patronize this dinner.

Christ Church Mission Sunday school will observe the Feast of the Nativity, Christmas Day, at Green's Hall, at 3 o'clock p. m. The following is the program: 1. Christmas Carol. 2 Choral responsive service. 3. Carol. 4. Warden's report of mission. 5. Carol. 6. Bishop's Christmas Pastoral. 7. Carol. 8 Warden's report of Sunday school. 9. Organization of League of Honor. 10. Carol. 11. Offering. 12 Distribution of reward for merit. All who are interested, and any who wish to know what we are doing and talking, are invited and see. Everybody invited.

Eveline.

IONIXX, Dec. 20.—Joe Trudgeon is convalescent.

Next Sunday is Christmas, and Santa Claus will make his annual distribution of beautiful possessions.

The members of the Congregational church will have a Christmas tree at their church on Monday evening.

The Methodist church will have a Christmas tree at their church Saturday evening.

Non-resident taxpayers will find the treasurer of Eveline township by addressing S. R. Brown, Dwight, Mich.

The tax collector will soon make you a call, so be prepared to meet him, for it's money he'll after.

Preaching next Sunday at Mountain school house, at 2 o'clock, by Rev. J. Durance of Ironton.

The ferry is still running.

Chas. Norton is expected home this week from Canada.

There is to be two Christmas trees at Advance Saturday evening.

Mrs Wm. Staley was reported very sick last Sunday.

The following is the report of Ironton schools for the month ending December 9th:

NUMBER ENROLLED.

Grammar department	31
Primary department	54
Whole number enrolled	85

AVERAGE NUMBER BELONGING.

Grammar department	29.5
Primary department	51.5
Total	81

NUMBER OF DAYS ATTENDANCE.

Grammar department	558
Primary department	582
Total	1140

PER CENT. OF ATTENDANCE TO WHOLE NUMBER OF DAYS.

Grammar department	99.5
Primary department	84.1
Total per cent	92.3

AVERAGE DAILY ATTENDANCE.

Grammar department	29.0
Primary department	45.0
Total	74.0

Results of monthly examination as follows:

A Grade—Average standing of class, 94; Gilwin Parrish 94, Arthur Miller 95, Walter Hird 95, Katie Moroney 97, Daisy Allen 96, Cassie Bird 96, Pearl Lasee 94, Mary Knudson 91, Nellie Hammond 94, Lewis Hammond 91, Nellie Noyes 97.

B Grade—Average standing of class, 90; Minnie Erickx 94, Mary Boyer 97, Frankie Box 90, Alfred Cote 88, Lillian Gerland 95, Mary Moroney 94, Martha Saunders 96, Eddie Williams 93, Willie Box 93, Bertie Walker 92, Nettie Waldron 96, Mathew Saunders 88, Amos Box 91, Chancie Box 93.

C Grade—Average standing of class, 93¼; Hester Saunders 89, Lizzie Garland 95, Emma Bird 94, Archie Miller 95.

A Grade, Primary Department—Average standing of class, 97; Thos. Moroney 95, Harry Furvis 98, Nellie Scanlon 99, Abbie Holland 98, Mary Garland 91, John Mitchell 97, George Garland 95, Daisy Bradley 95.

Society Elections.

At the last meeting of Charlevoix Encampment No. 105, I. O. O. F., the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

C. P.—A. D. Cruickshank.
S. W.—J. E. Ross.
H. P.—John Burns.
R. S.—Robert O'Neill.
A. S.—W. A. Brown.
Treas.—L. D. Bartholomew.
J. W.—R. S. Shapton.
Rep. to E. C.—A. Keat.

On Monday evening, Dec. 12, Baxter Post G. A. R. elected officers as follows:

Commander—Dr. D. C. Chamberlin
S. V. C.—L. D. Porter.
J. V. C.—D. J. Bigelow.
Surgeon—Dr. J. A. Carlstein.
Adjutant—R. H. Krebs.
Chaplain—E. B. Hodge.
Quartermaster—E. B. Hodge.
O. D.—Morris J. Stockman.
O. G.—Thomas Beak.
O. M. S.—H. J. Bartlett.
S. M.—R. Miller.
Guard—Amos Wassashoshk.
Delegate—E. H. Green.
Alternate—Dr. J. A. Carlstein.

Burgess.

Dec. 20.—We mention the fact of Mr. Ross having a new swell box cutter, so that the young men will know where to go when they want a special rig to take their best girl out sleighing.

Expectation is on tiptoe about a big time they calculate to have at Walter's opera hall at Burgessville the 30th of this month. D. E. Embody manager.

The recent fall of snow makes lumbermen happy.

Hon. Chas. D. Long, who was elected last spring, judge of the school examiner for the long term, came to see his father last Saturday, and had to return Monday to Springfield, Mo., where he was on business when he heard of his father's sickness.

Mrs. Cox, who has been visiting at her father's for several weeks, returned to Boyne last Friday.

Wilson.

WILSON, Dec. 12.—Elder Tracy preached last evening.

Mr. Fast has nineteen pupils enrolled in his school.

Mrs. Scofield's children reminded her in a pleasing way that Saturday last, was her 60th birthday.

A. E. Scofield and son of Mcho, were in town on business last week and called upon relatives.

The "Joyful Gleaners" met Tuesday evening to call on Isaac Bowen, one of their number, it being the occasion of his 18th birthday. A good time is reported.

Ellsworth.

Dec. 19.—Everyone is busy getting out logs.

W. A. Ross is happy in the possession of a young son.

Elmer Ingalls, of Banks, is on the sick list.

John Chamberlain and family, of East Jordan, is visiting his father in Banks, who still suffers from his broken leg.

Ingalls & Rogers have got their new saw mill and will have it in running order soon.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

ORDINANCE.—The village of Charlevoix Ordains, That hereafter any person or owner, occupant, or agent of any premises in the village of Charlevoix, Shall be unlawful for the owner, occupant, or agent of any premises on the north side of Antrim street, to allow any snow or ice to remain on the walk in front of said premises after eight o'clock in the forenoon of each day, the second, excepted, violating the provisions of this ordinance, shall on conviction thereof be fined not exceeding five dollars and costs of prosecution.

Dated Charlevoix, Dec. 21, 1897.

HORACE S. HARSHA, Clerk.

A true copy; attest:

BUY THE

Detroit Evening News

10c A WEEK

Delivere dat Your Home or place of Business, or sent by Mail.

It is Universally Conceded to be THE Newspaper of Michigan

Covering all the news of the day with known accuracy and fairness, in such clear and concise manner as to make it possible for the busiest man to keep promptly posted without sacrificing too much time. It is a great time saver; the man with overburdened brain and tired eyes will find it a rest, making the reading laborious—in fact, making it further a recreation and a pleasure—not a labor or more after supper; and further, it is the best and most entertaining home reading, including stories, as gives to the busiest man or woman a good share of the good things, and omitting physical or moral filth, or less durable matter of the day. Besides this, it will be found the friend of the people, minister to the greatest benefit to the greatest number; expose robberies in the interest of the public; reveal wrongdoers; advocate all measures generally recognized as for the public good; and generally exercise such a watchfulness in the interest of the public as will insure that the city and state shall be better governed because it is known that such a watchfulness is exercised. Nothing shall be printed in it to make it other than a paper that unfortunates may not be ashamed to read, or that a father may not be ashamed to have read by his family capable of reading, with the assurance that nothing bad shall result.

The EVENING NEWS is found in more homes of the best class of people resident in Michigan, than any other paper.

The EVENING NEWS, by mail, $3 per year.

THE SUNDAY NEWS

Issued every Sunday morning, is an 8-page 56-column paper, with a "Sermon" of interesting reading matter as can be crowded into it, giving the news of the current week, special articles fiction, etc. Price, $1.50 per year.

THE ECHO

8 PAGES, 56 COLUMNS, $1 A YEAR.

Each issue replete with stories by well-known writers, sketches from life, and other interesting and instructive miscellany, besides the cream of The Michigan editions of the current week. The ECHO is a welcome visitor at the fireside of the best class of people, and the latest market reports given in each issue.

Send for sample copy. Address

THE ECHO, Detroit, Mich.

Liberal Terms to Agents.

LIVERY

Feed and Sale Stables.

Burns, Stevens & Co.,

The Oldest and Largest Livery Stable in Charlevoix County. The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand. Rates Low.

BRIDGE STREET, CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

E. B. HODGE & CO.

Have a full stock of

HEAVY HARNESS,

Horse Blankets,

Buffalo and Fur Robes, Sleigh Bells and Whips, Etc.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

NEW LIVERY AND Feed Barn.

LITNEY & STEIMEL

PROPRIETORS

Opposite Bridge Street House Charlevoix,

FIRST-CLASS RIGS REASONABLE RATES.

F. E. WOOD, BARBER SHOP And Bath Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Proprietor.

Charlevoix, Michigan.

First location in town, giving good view of lakes and surrounding country, Close to depots and Petoskey and Fit. Rapids Stages. A good sample room for commercial travelers adjoining hotel.

PIMPLES, I will mail (many as a gift, a receipt for a simple VEGETABLE OILTMENT that will remove PIMPLES, FRECKLES, TAN, FRECKLES, BLOTCHES, BLACKHEADS, RED NOSE, leaving the skin soft, clear and beautiful. Touch with the ointment, and removed the soft lily cheek. And the brain—which is best the richest brain. Also inexpensive for producing a luxuriant growth of hair on a bald head or smooth face. Address—A. S. Brinsmade, 60 Ann St., New York.

NOW WE HAVE IT!
WHO WILL BE LUCKY?

LOOK HERE!

This is not a Blind Lottery. Everyone has a Chance. Our Cash Register always Registers Purchasers and Customers; not one escapes.

Now we are going to Give Back to every Sixty-Ninth Purchaser of not less than 25 cents, or above, be it $50, his or her purchase. This is a bona fide offer until further notice.

It may Cost us Five Hundred Dollars, but we mean to do just as we advertise. Come and see how it works, and look over the Largest Stock of Toys, 5-10-25 Cent Bargains, Dry Goods, Carpets, Cloaks, ever shown in Charlevoix. It will pay coming 20 miles to see.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Green's Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

CALL AND SEE OUR

Christmas Goods!

We can show you Something New.

Toys a Specialty!

F. A. Cochran & Co., Charlevoix.

Jumbo.

THE ATKINS SAWS

NEW PERFECTION AXES

Round Oak Stoves.

Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

Bargains IN BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,

Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.

TERRACE FARM. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

Hardware Iron and Nail Merchants.

CHAMPION FORCE PUMPS

PLOWS, BARBED WIRE, ETC., LEAD.

SAVE YOUR DOLLARS

And buy them of Yours Truly,

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

AN EXCITING SPORT.

The Irish National Game of Hand-Ball, and How It Is Played.

Detailed Description of a Pastime Which Is Growing Popular in America.

[NEW YORK CORRESPONDENCE.]

Not a little interest has been caused recently in a sport that, although considerably in vogue in various parts of the country, is not much known to the general public. It is the old-fashioned game of hand-ball. This sport originated in Ireland, and by many people there it is considered the national game. In fact, it comes as near to recognition as such as base-ball does in America. It is in one sense a very simple game, and yet it seems to require a peculiar skill of its own and a great deal of endurance for playing it properly. It is also worthy of being placed in the rank of recognized sports, if for no other reason than that it has its own code of rules and its own peculiar arrangements for playing the game—that is, as the base-ball field has to have its diamond marked on the turf, and billiards is played upon a regulation table, so hand-ball has its regulation court, without which no game can be considered complete. And, as a slightly suggestive of hand-ball is played by all boys in the country, and for elasticity. In alleys where amateurs practice there are sometimes more lines drawn upon the floor of the court than in the regulation court. This permits of grading the game according to the strength of the players, or instead of having a line twenty-five feet from the front wall as a basis for marking, there may be a line twenty, or eighteen or even fifteen used. So that men who are not accustomed to the game may yet be able to "put" the ball, as the phrase is, properly.

DOWNWARD REACH.

Lawlor, the Irish champion, practified daily at the Murray Hill Court after his arrival in America. There the writer found him one morning, engaged in his exercise, and talked with him about the game.

"This game," said Mr. Lawlor, "is so simple in its rules that those who have not seen a contest, or who have not played it, may think it a silly and rather tame sport, but it is quite a different thing from simply knocking the ball up against a brick wall. Those who know the game are aware of the qualities which it brings into play. Agility, good wind, quick running, and skillful management of the hands which frequently have to be decided in the flash of an eye, are necessary for a good hand-ball player. After a sharp game of half an hour or forty minutes, the player will generally find himself in a state of profuse perspiration and of considerable fatigue. The beauty of the game is that there is no letting up from beginning to end. Where there are only two players, as is the case in nearly all expert matches, the ball is driven in one direction, and it takes the greatest activity and perseverance and close is known as barn-ball. In this sport the ball is thrown up against the side of the house or barn, as the case may be, and is caught or batted back on the rebound by the opposite player. This is the primary principle of hand-ball but in the regulation game the wall against which the ball is first thrown is supplemented by side walls. In fact, the game, when played as it should be, is entirely within doors.

A HAND-BALL COURT.

In many of the educational institutions of this country, particularly those under Catholic influence, a hand-ball court is one of the features of the gymnasium. But it is usually constructed in those cases out of doors, so that there is no roof and generally only partial side walls. In the regular court the side walls usually are triangular in shape, the apex of the triangle being at the point where the side wall joins the front or objective wall of the game. Although this arrangement admits of a deed of exercise and skill in play, it does not make it possible to play the complete game.

The game may be played with two, four, or six players. There are some alleys made which are large enough to admit comfortably of an eight-handed game, and most of them are so arranged that ordinary players find a two-handed game very tiring. In fact, it was demonstrated in the championship matches that endurance is one of the most important requisites for success in the two-handed game. When there are two or more players on a side each one has a specific part of the court to cover, but when there is only one to one to chase about the hall may go, and either, wherever the ball may be, and as it is his opponent's aim to make him dance as much as possible, it naturally follows that he has every opportunity for getting fatigued. Ordinary players consider that a six-handed game, that is, three on a side, is the best for sport. However, the general principle of playing is the same, whether two or eight players take part.

"PUTTING" THE BALL.

A line drawn across the court separates the sides and serves as a basis for scoring. A general idea of how the game is played may be given briefly. Lots are cast in some form or other for the choice of sides, and the man who gets the "in" (so called) takes a position in front of this line. The other stands back of it. When the man "in" is to begin, the player who is on the "in" side takes the ball in hand and throws it sharply down upon the pavement. As it rises upon the rebound, he hits it with the palm of his hand against the front wall. His object is to make the ball bound back and strike the line which has been referred to, his opponent has to take the ball as it comes to him and strike it back again against the front wall. If the first player fails to make the ball fall beyond the line crossing the alley it his scores one for his opponent, and if his opponent is getting his ball at that side of the line fails to send it back against the wall, he loses a point. Thirty-one points of this kind ordinarily constitute a game. In the time required to make the thirty-one points varies of course with the skill of the players. For on the principle, as in lawn tennis, that the odd scoring is due on failure to make the correct play, good players may continue to play for an indefinite time. The ball in use in this game is an inch or a little more in diameter and is covered with a chamois or pig-skin. The cover has to be stoutly stitched, or the ball will soon rip. It is always necessary to get a ball of medium weight and elasticity. A bound of fourteen inches from a fall of fifteen or twenty feet is about right watching to do one's proper work. As an exercise, it calls every part of the body into play. The ball must be taken now with the right hand and now with the left, or it may be necessary for the player to throw himself on his side in the effort to hold to get a low ball, or reach as far as possible to one side or the other, to succeed in the game.

UPWARD REACH.

Sometimes, too, the player is obliged to spring into the air and strike at the ball as it is passing over his head. When an opponent has the ball near the wall, it is impossible to tell what he will do with it, whether he will barely "put" it, or whether he will strike it a rousing blow that will send it a good distance. Generally one player on a side attends to out-play, and one to the in-play, when the game is more than single-handed. Some times a line is drawn along the wall about fifteen inches from the floor, and any ball which strikes within that gives a score to the opponent. There is considerable difference of styles in the player. The best player stands sideway and brings the hand, with the palm open and slightly curved, to the hip, and very near the body, and strikes the ball there. It is not so easy to secure a good form and force in this, one of the most graceful methods of driving the ball. The line is not drawn requiring the ball to strike at a certain height, some expert players can send in a "nailer" or "dead nailer," in the slang phrase of the game; that is, one ball gets in and strikes the wall on the lowest brick, so that it is sent out without any bounds at all, and cannot generally be taken, no matter what skill or activity may be possessed by the opponent. A player who can deliver this sort of stroke has a strong point in his favor, as it does not afford any opportunity for good play on the part of his opponent. Sometimes a tricky player will drive the ball against the side of the alley, so that it ricochets or caroms onto the main wall. This brings it back at an angle which is unexpected, and the ball usually bounds very near the wall, so that the opponent is very often caught. In this kind of play it becomes very necessary to have the sides of the alley fairly smooth, for any inequality in the surface may cause the ball to bound in a most unexpected angle after it has struck it, a feature of the play as embarrassing to one side as the other. The wall should be in such a condition, therefore, that the player can determine with fair certainty what sort of a carom the ball will take. It is a smart as important a feature as a good rail on a billiard table. If the enjoyment, the steady excitement, the judgment, the quickness of action, and simple exercise of all the members of the body this fascinating game possesses were better known, it would certainly enjoy a favor which it does not seem to have at present in this country. It is a manly game, and calls for all the mental and physical qualities which a fine game ought to demand. There is nothing of the delicate, boyish work about it, but it is admired by those who are ignorant of its requirements. Many floors of courts are made of hard earth rolled and pounded very smooth. One objection to this kind of floor, if it is an outdoor court, is that it takes a very long time for it to get into condition for playing after a rain. When the floor is laid in asphalt there is no objection, inasmuch as a player can step out of the game and get a clean, dry and level surface in a few minutes after a shower. It is not quite so easy on the clothes rather rough usage. With a good team of players, a smooth, hard alley, and a ball of the right weight and elasticity, hand-ball will give a fellow half an hour of the most healthful and enjoyable exercise. There is no reason why it should not be watched into popularity as well as everywhere that space enough can be secured for an alley. Probably one of the chief reasons why it does not flourish better in large cities is because it needs room, and space is too valuable to be given to an alley.

A REACH THAT FAILED.

There is no special training required for becoming a hand-ball player except practice at the game. For any one who can develop his lungs, there can be no better exercise than hand ball. It is fairly as good as a long distance running for this purpose, and better as a general exercise, because it calls into play the arms almost as much as the legs, and because the whole body is exercised by action by the demands of the game.

What Is Refinement?

One hears much talk of this desirable quality where it is found, and it is not often very vague. What is refinement?

We are not of those who think that it consists of a studied quickness of dress and manner. Some very refined people dress shockingly, and they even have quite lost sight of the idea that good breeding is patent to all the world.

We once met a whole family of delicate ladies at a fashionable summer resort on the banks of the Hudson whose manners were so charming, so sympathetic, so unobtrusively, and they even have quite loud voices, and yet their good breeding is patent to all the world.

We once met a fashionable lady who was so refined that she was almost ashamed of her refinement, because he preached such refined sermons. When a distinguished literary man of this country, we were told he was not a refined person. Well, perhaps he was not, but he was so distinguished in other ways that really we had not thought of his refinement. We could just as well have asked whether St. Paul was a refined man, or whether Isaiah was a refined prophet. The Bible seems to be so refined. Or, if we require "good form," as some persons go to London now for that purpose.

There are some people who are always trying to be refined. Like Rosamond in "Middlemarch," they have so refined themselves that by the help of nice clothes a very dull and jaded demeanor, they appear outwardly to be refined.

There are, we believe, many people in a very humble station in life who are truly refined in their feelings who are yet quite unpolished outwardly. Their hearts are refined by the influence of mother or other women in the very basis of refinement.

There are also others in good society whose natural sweetness of disposition constantly shows itself in kind and gentle words and deeds toward all. No effort is needed to make them so. They are natural and amiable, for they feel courteous, and their outward manners are but the reflex of that which is within. Such persons are charming; they like everybody and everybody likes them. We all know a few such, and are thankful.

The chief desideratum appears to be a good heart. If we truly love our neighbors we cannot fail to be kind and sweet to them. And if we are indeed refined, all the cares of life will be lightened, and the troubles of life will be more endurable, and all our stylish conversation will be as dust and ashes.—Home Journal.

A Modest Check.

In the negotiations made some years ago by the English Government for a loan of $8,000,000 on the successful company, the house of Messrs. Rothschild, in paying the first deposit toward this loan, sent to the Government the check they drew was for the sum of $8,000. The check was probably the largest check ever drawn by a private banking house.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL.

Outworn and weary, old and gray,
The hopeless world in darkness lay,
And day and summer, woe and crime,
Scared the old man with shameless pall.
Wrinkled life with shameless pall.
Till—doth the tale—the years were dumb,
The prophets and the sage were dumb,
Seeling no hope nor Christmas time.

But there shone a light in the East,
And the night was done;
And a Star lighted the East
Of hope begun,
Where was born to the victim and the priest,
In May's Born,
Then the child of the ancient Writ
To harvest came,
The child of Child unkist
The web of shame,
And the first of faith were lit
With his love-red name.

Through the quivering gulfs of tears
Still darkling flow,
Though winds of the storm-vexed years
Waft men to woe;
To the dreamers mark the helmsman steers
By the beacon's glow.

Dear Child, whose heaven-lit eyes
Scan all our woe,
With the hope that never dies
Our grief-lit eyes,
And let thy sacrafice
Our pain-lit sky.

Though outcast at the rich man's gate,
Thy beggar Lazarus with sores
Though want and woe sad crowd things,
Thy Mary's tears
Deface this day of sacred mirth,
Thy Mary's tears and Christ thy birth
May pat the evil shapes to flight,
Thy Mary's tears wrong and hold the light.

Though chill unfaith, though mists of doubt
May gird our brothers forever about,
Yet for Christ's sake, O soul stray
Forever from the fold of time begun,
And brother of thy brother, man!

GRANDMOTHER'S STORY.

A CHRISTMAS PARTY.

"Tell us a funny story this time!" Grandmothers listened to her rocking-chair, looked into the faces of her little grandchildren, smiled, shook her head, and laughed outright. Then she put her gray, wrinkled white hand on one her eyes, rested her elbow on the arm of her chair, and began again.

"Oh! you have thought of one, I'm sure!" said Ned.

Her grandchildren, with their fathers and mothers, had come spend Christmas at her home, and a story from her lips was usually a part of the entertainment for Christmas eve. And this story, they knew, was to be the funniest, or, rather, a year ago this Christmas.

"What I think of is a story I saw took place about fifty-five years ago, when I was fourteen years old. I cannot say that I saw anything funny in it. And if I didn't think it funny I guess it will be no more so than so many in the events of the one-and-a-half-a-dozen years I cannot recall.

"As I have said, I was fifteen years old and Ebenezer Dill, who was a neighbor and acquaintance, was seventeen. We both went to the same school—a district school, and the teacher was a young, very prim, very prim. We lived about two miles from the school-house, and the district was formed of a few scattered farms, and we had to walk. Ebenezer lived with his father and mother, and he was the only one in either family who ever walked to school that first winter.

"We often walked to and from school together. He was an awkward, bashful boy with a red face, and he was seventeen, but he was not of his choice before there were half worn off the soles of his shoes. Ebenezer's shoes were generally several inches too long for him.

"I am sure, too, that I was awkward and bashful, and even at that age I was a tolerable beauty. I was called by that time a beauty, so possibly it would be a better way to describe me. I remember that I had a red head, who always seemed to be in the way, and I remember that I had a fair skin, but so that his paleness and the redness of my face made my freckles inches too short for him.

"I was, too, that I was awkward and bashful, and even at that age I was a tolerable beauty. I was called by that time a beauty, so possibly it would be about six-and-a-half-a-dozen years old, and I remember that I had a red head, who always seemed to be in the way, and I remember that I had a fair skin, but so that his paleness and the redness of my face made my freckles inches too short for him.

"We had a lively, jolly, good-natured teacher, and we had a school-house full of young people, and we had a very good time. We had to be in the best of spirits, and we had to be in the best of spirits, and we had to be in the best of spirits, and we

A Big Bonanza in Holiday Goods!

An Enormous Stock of Holiday Goods at Tremendously Low Prices.

It will Do You Good to See this Brilliant Display.

YOU

Nor any other person ever saw such a stock of

Dressing Cases.

We offer you this year an Elegant line of these Goods. Something entirely new in Design and Workmanship. Be sure to look them over before purchasing. IT WILL PAY YOU.

NOW IS YOUR CHANCE

To buy a Photograph Album. Our Stock of

Photo. Albums

cannot be excelled anywhere in this region. They consist of HANDSOME PLUSH COVERS, ELECTRO BRONZE TRIMMINGS, BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED, and CHEAPER THAN THE CHEAPEST. DONT FAIL TO SEE THEM.

NOTHING LIKE OUR

Manicure Sets, Toilet Sets, Work Boxes,

ODOR CASES, WHISK-BROOM HOLDERS, GENTS' DRESSING CASES; NEW NOVELTIES in this line. All of these goods are Entirely New Design, and never before have been offered for sale in this market.

REMEMBER THAT WE CAN SHOW YOU A MAMMOTH STOCK OF

Xmas Cards, Gold Pens and Pencils,

DOLLS of all kinds, FANCY STATIONERY, and a long list of Fancy and Toilet Articles to numerous to mentions.

It will do you good to see this Brilliant Display, which includes Hundreds of Gifts suitable for Old and Young. Everybody who expect to make a Christmas Present should be sure and see our ELEGANT HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS. All Visitors are Welcome, whether they buy or not. THIS IS YOUR CHANCE.

Dr. G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

Prospectus for 1888---Beautiful Christmas Number.

The holiday issue, now ready, is complete in itself, containing no serial matter. The cover is enriched by an ornamental border printed in gold. The price is as usual, 25 cents. It contains the most delightful stories, poems, and essays by distinguished writers, and superb illustrations.

Among the important articles to appear during the year 1888 are the following—Send for prospectus:

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON will contribute regularly to each number during the year. He will write of many topics, old and new, and in a familiar and personal way, which will form new bonds of friendship between the author and his thousands of readers. In the first paper, entitled "A Chapter on Dreams," appearing in the January number, he relates incidentally, in connection with the general subject, some interesting facts concerning the origin of the new famous story "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, by W. S. CHAPLIN, will be the first of an especially important and interesting series of papers on railways, their administration and construction, including great engineering feats, famous tunnels and passes, and indeed, those branches of the subject which in this day engage the attention of the whole country. The illustrations which will accompany this series will be very elaborate, original, and beautiful. The authors and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. D. A. SARGENT'S papers on Physical Proportions and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of especial interest will be those on the Campaign of Waterloo, by JOHN C. ROPES; on the "The Man at Arms," by E. H. BLASHFIELD; two papers by EDWARD L. WILSON, illustrating results of recent Egyptian research; a further article by WILLIAM F. APGAR, on a subject connected with his recent contribution on Wagner, and many others of equal interest; Professor SHALER's articles on the Surface of the Earth will be continued; and articles upon two of the most interesting groups of contemporary European writers will be accompanied by rich and novel portrait illustrations.

ELECTRICITY in its various applications as a motive power, Explosives etc., will be subjects of another group of illustrated articles of equal practical interest, by leading authorities upon those topics.

MENDELSSOHN'S LETTERS written to his friend, Moscheles, at a peculiarly interesting time of his career, will furnish the substance of several articles of great interest to musical readers, which will be illustrated with portraits and drawings from Mendelssohn's own hand.

THE FICTION will be strong, not only in the work of well-known writers, but in that of new authors, in securing whose co-operation the Magazine has been so fortunate during the first year of publication. A serial novel, entitled "First Harvests," by FRANCIS J. STIMSON, will be begun in the January number, and early in the year novelettes will be published by HENRY JAMES and H. C. BUNNER. The short stories are of notable strength and freshness.

ILLUSTRATIONS.—The Magazine will show increased excellence in its illustrations. They will be more abundant and elaborate than ever. It is the intention of the publishers to represent the best work of the leading artists, and to promote and foster the most skillful methods of wood engraving.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—To enable readers to possess the Magazine from the first number (January, 1887) the following inducements are offered:

The first number (January, 1887) of the publication of 1887	$4 50
A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887, bound in two volumes cloth, gilt top	6 00

$3.00 A YEAR; 25 CENTS A NUMBER.

Remit by bank check or money order to

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, New York.

A GENTLEMAN, having been cured of Nervous Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Premature Decay, and all the evil effects of early indiscretion and youthful folly, is anxious to make known to others the simple mode of self-cure. To those who wish and will rightly live this method will send (free) by return mail a copy of the recipe so advantageously used in his case.

Address in confidence, JAMES W. PICKETT, 45 Cedar St., N. Y.

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in the thousands of forms, but are equaled by the marvels of transcription. Thousands are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how they can at all ages, can earn money from 50 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free and all need not succeed. Some have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed. $5

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge), a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings County, N.Y.

Love in the Tropics.

Zulu singing—Oh, Rumsefum, sweet Rumsefum, thy ruby lips I—

Unexpected Occupant—Say, young man, I wouldn't wait for Rumsefum if I were you; I am afraid she won't be here to-night.—Life.

Caused Fruits to Tin.

Mr. T. P. White, in a communication to the Chemical society, gives a decidedly negative answer to the question whether the acids of canned fruits may not form poisonous salts with the tin. He reports, as the result of his experiment, that "tin is entirely devoid of danger when taken internally in any form that might arise from being in contact with fruits or vegetables." He believes that the cases of accidental poisoning attributed to tin were due to solder or other impurities—arsenic, copper or lead. Professor W. Martien Williams says that there need be no lead in the solder—that it is only put in for cheapness' sake, and that tin makes a superior solder to any alloy. Therefore all danger may be obviated by prohibiting the use of any other solder than pure tin.—Popular Science Monthly.

Love Surmounts All Obstacles.

A colored man living near Smithville forbade his daughter to receive the attentions of a dusky Adonis who was paying court to her: but having reason to suspect a clandestine meeting of the lovers, the other night he locked the damsel up in the house and went on to his work. Returning, he was surprised to hear low voices in conversation within, though the door was still locked. On entering he discovered the youthful Romeo, who had gained admission by sliding down the chimney, his mahogany countenance besmeared with soot. "Da ain't no use in stoppin' dem," he said. "De debil is sitter dem, but de Lawd work wid me. I'm go long."—Lee County (Ga.) News.

Understood His Business.

Omaha Traveling Man (in Chicago)—I understood a good many Chicago families employ $5,000 a year cooks.

Hotel Clerk—Yes, they do.

"Can you tell me how I can get the addresses of such families?"

"Go to the Highly Caterer's emporium. Do you wish to engage a cook?"

"Oh, no; I am agent for Killercure's dyspepsia medicine"—Omaha World.

For Her Dear Sake.

"Willie," said a young wife, "are you going to take part in this tennis tournament?"

"Yes, I thought of it."

"Please don't, Willie, for my sake."

"Why?"

"Because you might win and it would surely get into the papers."—Washington Critic.

Enrich the Blood.

HAMILTON'S GERMAN BITTERS are highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic. Especially Indigestion, Dyspepsia, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, &c. They enrich the blood, strengthen the muscles, and give new life to the nerves. They act like a charm in the digestive organs, remove all dyspeptic symptoms, and when over the stomach is weak or there is a general loss of appetite, nothing will do more good than what you need. Only 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter. dec

Is Consumption Incurable.

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was given over to my family and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the best medicine I ever made."

Reuben Middleworth, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Has it not been for Dr. King's New discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Trouble. Was given up by the doctors. am well in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at Crouter's drug store.

The Greatest Pain Killer yet found for Cramps, Colic, Stitch in side or back, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sprains, Bruises, &c., is Hamilton's Jamaica Ginger Tonic and Pain Cure. Bound on each bottle. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents. Use it for cure. For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick headache, flatulence, Jaundice, Dysentery, heartburn, sour stomach, &c., it is unequaled. Warranted to give relief. Used both internally and externally. Warranted to cure. Try it. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so regular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise.—A mere mention does not suffice and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the Liver and Kidneys, will remove Pimples, Boils, Salt Rheum and other affections caused by impure blood.—Will drive malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all malarial fevers.—For cure of Headache, Constipation and Indigestion try Electric Bitters.—Entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded.—Sold by us and in a bottle at Dr. Crouter's Drug Store. 5

Are Your Children Pevish and sick fretful? Do they have shocking appetites and look yellow? Constantly fretful? Beware of worms. Very few children escape their ravages. Nothing will can be larger or well while suffering with worms. They sap the very life by preventing the nourishment assimilation of food. There is a sure remedy. It is called Parmelee's Vermifuge or Destroyer of Worms. They are perfectly harmless but will dissolve the worms and pass them off without the bowels. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Beckien's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Ointment.

Ointment for Man, Beast and Bird. Cures Scratches, Wounds, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

STORY & CLARK PIANO ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

N. J. PERRY, Agent, Charlevoix

CHICAGO: Canal and 16th Sts

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE — AN IMPORTANT CLUB OFFER — SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE — $3.00 A YEAR

Gives its readers literature of lasting interest and value; it is fully and beautifully illustrated and has already gained a more than national circulation exceeding 125,000 copies monthly.

PRICE 25 CENTS A NUMBER. $3.00 A YEAR.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS with the Publishers enable us to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE with the Charlevoix JOURNAL for $4.00 per year, Cash in Advance.

Address all orders to CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher Journal, Charlevoix, Mich.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper and neatly bound in attractive covers. They are without question the cheapest books now in the market. Each one is unabridged, and formats to the masses of the people an opportunity to secure the best literature at a price within the reach of all. Ask your newsdealer for them, and if he does not know the prices at which they are here offered, do not let him impose upon you with other books.

Wanderer of the World. A Novel. By Bertha M. Clay. One of the most popular of this popular author's numerous novels. Very interesting and entertaining.

Thrown Upon the World. A Novel. By Charles Gibbon. A powerful story of English life, by a writer who is a prime favorite with novel readers.

Cupid, Jr., Cupidon, and Other Sketches. By Frank R. Stockton. Contains the following: Cupid, Jr., a delightful story; Cupidon, a humorous sketch; Ethelbert's Adventure, a thrilling story of the sea; Ethelbert's Fortune, a sequel to the last story; Ethelbert's Children, a charming story; Ethelbert's Wife, a sequel to the last story; Uncle Lige, a pathetic story; Uncle Lige's Boy, a sequel to the last story; Uncle Lige's Widow, a sequel to the last story; Uncle Lige's Sweetheart, a sequel to the last story; Uncle Lige's Boy's Wife, a sequel to the last story; Uncle Lige's Boy's Widow, a sequel to the last story.

The Diamond Brand. A Novel. By Rev. Hesba Stretton.

The Lady of the Lake. A Novel. By Sir Walter Scott. The strange story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. A Novel. By Robert Louis Stevenson.

Lady Valerie's Diamonds. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander.

Jack Ward. A Novel. By the author of "Rose Mather."

The Vicar of Morwin. A Novel. By R. D. Blackmore.

Uncle Max. A Novel. By Frances Eleanor Trollope.

Dick's Fortune. A Novel. By Frances Eleanor Trollope.

A Long Marriage. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander.

Ready Money Mortiboy. A Novel. By Walter Besant and James Rice.

Good Company. A Novel. By Rev. George MacDonald.

Woodcraft. A Novel. By Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould.

Guy Darrell. A Novel. By the author of "Rose Mather."

Fetters. A Novel. By the author of "Rose Mather."

Lancaster's Cabin. A Novel. By Mrs. E. V. Cummins.

Cousin Trixy's Oath. A Novel. By Mrs. Mary Lee Dickinson.

The Woman Hater. A Novel. By Dr. J. H. Rosmond.

The California Cabin. A Novel. By E. T. Corbett.

These books are published in uniform size and style, and will be sent by mail, postage paid, to any address, on receipt of price, 3 cents each. Address, THE ECHO, DETROIT, MICH.

Send for our complete catalogue, containing over 1,000 of the choicest works in the English language, sent free on receipt of 10 cents. Address as above.

Liberal Terms to Agents.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL.

NUMBER 233. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.: THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1887. $1.50 PER YEAR.

THE JOURNAL

Published every Thursday,

BY CHAS. J. STRANG,

Office on Bridge Street,

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway,

"THE SOO-MACKINAW SHORT LINE."

Only Direct Route to Upper Michigan and the iron and copper districts of Lake Superior, traversing a territory unequaled for health, hunting and fishing.

Double Daily Train Service between Duluth and Houghton without change of cars.

Wagner Sleeping Coaches attached to all night trains.

Observation Parlor Cars on all day trains.

This newly all-rail route to Sault Ste. Marie Tickets over this route are on sale at all principal ticket offices. Full information as to rates, time of trains, maps, folders, etc., may be obtained upon application to W. ALEX. GRIS, Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Marquette, Mich.

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.

Time Card for

PETOSKEY STATION,

In effect Oct. 16th.

Leave, going north, 8.18 p. m., 2.05 a. m.

Leave, going south, 8.20 a. m., †11.00 p. m.

†Daily except Saturday.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL — Niagara Falls Route

The Great Central Route. Shortest, Quickest, Best Line between the East and West. Through Sleeping Cars Between Chicago and New York, Boston and Montreal.

THE DIRECT ROUTE

BETWEEN

MACKINAW CITY

AND

DETROIT AND JACKSON,

The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 7.00 a. m. daily except Sunday, and 10.50 p. m. daily, arriving at

Detroit	3.15 p. m. and 11.00 a. m.
Jackson	12.20 p. m. and 11 20 a. m.
Toledo	10.55 p. m. and 4 45 p. m.
Buffalo	7.45 a. m. and 4.40 p. m.
Cincinnati	6.35 a. m. and 6.40 p. m.

WAGNER PALACE SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.

D. W. JOHNSTON, Mich. Pass. Agt., Grand Rapids. O. W. RUGGLES, G. P. & T. Agt., Chicago.

To Our Readers.

We have made arrangements with the publisher of the Cottage Hearth, Boston, Mass., to offer the Charlevoix JOURNAL with their magazine this year.

THE COTTAGE HEARTH

is a well known Family Magazine, now in its 14 year, and has been published in Boston all the time. It is a large 24 page monthly, with a beautiful engraved frontispiece, Fashion Plates, Household Hints, and Patterns, and is Profusely Illustrated throughout with Engravings. It begins January with a new serial, Mary Lorem, Cottie Thayer Lane, by Mrs. Mary George Hall, Lucy Ware Webb, Margaret Deland, Augusta Moore, Rose Terry Cooke.

It is a large 24-page, 48-column paper, and has a large circulation solely on its merits as a family magazine. Its price is $1.50 a Year, is very low for such a desirable family magazine, but we offer it with our JOURNAL for $2.00 instead, who will send us $1.50 for a year's subscription to the JOURNAL, and 50 cents additional, making the price of the Cottage Hearth and our JOURNAL for a full year. SHUPWAY, Jr., Boston, Mass., Publisher. Send for particulars address THE JOURNAL, Charlevoix, Mich.

BUY THE

Detroit Evening News

10c A WEEK

Delivered at Your Home or Business, or sent by Mail.

It is Universally Conceded to be THE Newspaper of Michigan

Covering all the news of the day with unexampled promptness, it makes it possible for the business man to keep constantly in touch without interference with the duties of his calling, the news which the dollar and cent of the times without reading the tedious matter which crowds the columns of ordinary newspapers. Taking a recreation and a little rest from the cares of business and family, the busy man can find in the Detroit Evening News the news he wants, and nothing else, in the shortest space, and in the most readable form. Starting in October with the opening of the United States Senate, the Detroit Evening News will give the proceedings of the United States Senate in full, and will continue to give the proceedings of Congress in full during the session. Its Washington letter will be continued, and will be found the friend of the people in advocating the general interests of the country, including protection to the industrial interests, and reforms in the tariff, which will lessen the burdens of the people without injuring any industry, and will place the raw material on the free list, while it will be found the friend of the people in advocating the general good in the interest of the people

A Big Bonanza in Holiday Goods!

An Enormous Stock of Holiday Goods at Tremendously Low Prices.

It will Do You Good to See this Brilliant Display.

YOU

Nor any other person ever saw such a stock of

Dressing Cases.

We offer you this year an Elegant line of these Goods. Something entirely new in Design and Workmanship. Be sure to look them over before purchasing. IT WILL PAY YOU.

NOW IS YOUR CHANCE

To buy a Photograph Album. Our Stock of

Photo. Albums

cannot be excelled anywhere in this region. They consist of HANDSOME PLUSH COVERS, ELECTRO BRONZE TRIMMINGS, BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED, and CHEAPER THAN THE CHEAPEST. DONT FAIL TO SEE THEM.

NOTHING LIKE OUR

Manicure Sets, Toilet Sets, Work Boxes,

ODOR CASES, WHISK-BROOM HOLDERS, GENTS' DRESSING CASES; NEW NOVELTIES in this line. All of these goods are Entirely New Design, and never before have been offered for sale in this market.

REMEMBER THAT WE CAN SHOW YOU A MAMMOTH STOCK OF

Xmas Cards, Gold Pens and Pencils,

DOLLS of all kinds, FANCY STATIONERY, and a long list of Fancy and Toilet Articles to numerous to mentions.

It will do you good to see this Brilliant Display, which includes Hundreds of Gifts suitable for Old and Young. Everybody who expect to make a Christmas Present should be sure and see our ELEGANT HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS. All Visitors are Welcome, whether they buy or not. THIS IS YOUR CHANCE.

Dr. G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

Prospectus for 1888---Beautiful Christmas Number.

The holiday issue, now ready, is complete in itself, containing no serial matter. The cover is enriched by an ornamental border printed in gold. The price is as usual, $2.50 cents. It contains the most delightful stories, poems, and essays by distinguished writers, and superb illustrations.

Among the important articles to appear during the year 1888 are the following—Send for prospectus:

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON will contribute regularly to each number during the year. He will write of many topics, old and new, and in a familiar and personal way, which will form new bonds of friendship between the author and his thousands of readers. In the first paper, entitled "A Chapter on Dreams," appearing in the January number, he relates incidentally, in connection with the general subject, some interesting facts concerning the origin of the new famous story "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, by W. S. Crapland, will be the first of an especially important and interesting series of papers on railways, their administrations and construction, including great engineering feats, famous tunnels and passes, and indeed, those branches of the subject which in this day engage the attention of the whole country. The illustrations which will accompany this series will be very elaborate, original, and beautiful. The authors and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. D. A. SARGENT'S papers on Physical Proportions and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of especial interest will be those on the Campaign of Waterloo, by John C. Ropes; on the "The Man at Arms," by E. H. Blashfield; two papers by Edward L. Wilson, illustrating results of recent Egyptian research; a further article by William F. Apthorp, on a subject connected with his recent contribution on Wagner, and many others of equal interest; Professor Shaler's articles on the Surface of the Earth will be continued, and the work of one of the most interesting group of contemporary European writers will be accompanied by rich and novel portrait illustrations.

ELECTRICITY in its various applications as a motive power, Explosives etc., will be subjects of another group of illustrated articles of equal practical interest, by leading authorities upon those topics.

MENDELSSOHN'S LETTERS written to his friend, Moscheles, at a peculiarly interesting time of his career, will furnish the substance of several articles of great interest to musical readers, which will be illustrated with portraits and drawings from Mendelssohn's own hand.

THE FICTION will be strong, not only in the work of well-known writers, but in that of new authors, in securing whose co-operation the Magazine has been so fortunate during its first year of publication. A serial novel, entitled "First Harvests," by Frances J. Stimson, will be begun in the January number, and early in the year novelettes will be published by Henry James and H. C. Bunner. The short stories are of notable strength and freshness.

ILLUSTRATIONS.—The Magazine will show increased excellence in its illustrations. They will be more abundant and elaborate than ever. It is the intention of the publishers to represent the best work of the leading artists, and to promote and foster the most skillful methods of wood engraving.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—To enable readers to possess the Magazine from the first number (January, 1887) the following inducements are offered:

A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887, bound in two volumes $4 50
A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887, bound in two volumes cloth, gilt top $6 00

$3.00 A YEAR; 25 CENTS A NUMBER.

Remit by bank check or money order to

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, New York.

A GENTLEMAN suffering from nervous Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Premature Decay, and all the evil effects of early indiscretion and youthful folly, is anxious to make known to others the mode of self-cure. To those who wish and will give him their symptoms, he will send (free) by return mail a copy of the recipe so successfully used in his case.

Address in confidence, James W. Pinkney, 43 Cedar St., N. Y.

DEAF sea wonders exist in spite of thousands of forms, but are occasioned by the marvels of invention. Of the many in need of profitable advice, can be found here in need of profitable advice, such as one need thinking of writing to Wilson & Co., Portland, Maine, and address in full information, how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free, handsome outfit required. None have made over $5 in a single day of this work. All succeed. 365

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, Rev. Edward A. Wilson, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

Love in the Tropics.

Zulu Singing—Oh, Rumsefum, sweet Rumsefum, thy ruby lips!

Unexpected Occupant—Say, young man, I wouldn't wait for Rumsefum if I were you; I am afraid she won't be here to-night.—Life.

Canned Fruits in Tin.

Mr. T. P. White, in a communication to the Chemical News, gives a decidedly negative answer to the question whether the acids of canned fruits may not form poisonous salts with the tin. He reports, as the result of his experiment, that "tin is entirely devoid of danger when taken internally in any form that might arise from being in contact with fruits or vegetables." He believes that the cases of accidental poisoning attributed to tin were due to solder or other impurities—arsenic, copper or lead. Professor W. Mattieu Williams says that there need be no lead in the solder—that it is only put in for cheapness' sake, and that tin makes a superior solder to any alloy. Therefore all danger may be obviated by prohibiting the use of any other solder than pure tin.—Popular Science Monthly.

Love Surmounts All Obstacles.

A colored man living near Smithville frolic his daughter to receive the attentions of a dusky Adonis who was paying court to her. This marriage season he met a clandestine meeting of the lovers, the other night he locked the damsel up in the house and went on to his work. Returning, he was surprised to hear her voices in conversation within, though the door was still locked. On entering he discovered the youthful Romeo, who had gained admission by sliding down the chimney, his mahogany countenance bedecked with soot. "Da ain't no use in stoppin' dem," he said. "De debil is after dem, but de Lawd work wid me. I'em go long."—Lee County (Ga.) News.

Understood His Business.

Omaha Traveling Man on Chicago—I understand a gold and young man's fortune can place $7,000 a year costs.

Hotel Clerk—Yes, sir, it does.

"Can you tell me how I can get the address of such families?"

"Go to the Highly Caterer's emporium. Do you wish to engage a cook?"

"Oh, no. I am agent for Killercure's dyspepsia medicine."—Omaha World.

For Her Dear Sake.

"Willie," said a young wife, "are you going to take part in this tennis tournament?"

"Please don't, Willie, for my sake."

"Why?"

"Because you might win and it would surely go into the papers."—Washington Critic.

Enrich the Blood.

Hamilton's German Bitters are highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic. Especially Indigestion, Dyspepsia, want of appetite, lack of strength, lack of energy, &c. They enrich the blood, strengthen the muscles, and give new life to the nerves. They act like a charm in the digestive organs, remove all dyspeptic symptoms, and when ever the stomach is weak or there is a general loss of physical vigor, these Bitters will add vigor and speed. Only 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter. dec

Is Consumption Incurable.

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with abscess of lungs, and frends and physicians pronounced me incurable consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jessie Middlecurt, Decatur, Ills., says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by my physicians, now is best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at Dr. Crouter's drug Store.

The Greatest Pain Killer yet found for Sciatica, Colic, Stitch in side or back, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sprains, Bruises, &c. is Hamilton's Jamaica Ginger Tonic and Pain Cure. Bound on with hot well cloths it never fails to cure. Pleurisy, Indigestion, Sick headache, flatulence, diarrhœa, dysentery, heartburn, sour stomach, &c., it is unequaled. Warranted to give relief. Used both internally and externally. Warranted to cure. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise—A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the Liver and Kidneys, will remove Pimples, Boils, Salt Rheum and other affections caused by impurities of the blood. We can not too strongly impress upon the minds of the people the extreme virtues of Electric Bitters as a cure all malarial fevers.—For cure of Headache, Constipation and Indigestion try Electric Bitters. Entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded.—price 50 cts and 1.00 per bottle at Dr. Crouter's Drug Store. dec

Are Your Children Pevish and sad eyed? Do they have abnormal appetites and crave food contrary to nature? Do they look as if they few children escape their ravages. No child can be happy or well while suffering with worms. They sap the very life by preventing the digestion and assimilation of food. There is no sure remedy. It is called Parmelee's Sanlonine Worm Candies. They are perfectly harmless but will shake out the worms and pass them off through the bowels. Buy no other. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

☞ Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by T. O. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

N. J. PERRY Agent, Charlevoix.

CHICAGO + Canal AND 6TH STS

AN IMPORTANT CLUB OFFER

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

Gives its readers literature of lasting interest and value: it is fully and beautifully illustrated and has already gained more than national circulation exceeding 125.000 copies monthly.

PRICE 25 CENTS A NUMBER: $3.00 A YEAR.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS with Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, the Publishers enable us to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE with the

Charlevoix JOURNAL for $4.00 per year, Cash in Advance.

Address all orders to CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher Journal, Charlevoix, Mich.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper, and are worth twice the money we ask for them. They are not cheap publications, but are the best works of the best authors. Number 1 is a very funny book, and Number 2 is a very pathetic story. Number 3 is a work of great merit, and Number 4 is a very valuable work to the lovers of the literature of the day at the most trifling expense. In any other series these great works would cost twenty cents each. Number 5 is a very interesting work, and Number 6 is a very valuable work to the student of the science of medicine.

1 Wanderer of the World. Natural and Urban. Contains a lively description of the most interesting places in the world, and a very interesting story.

2 Wanderer of the Sea. A description of the many wonderful and interesting creatures of the sea, and a very interesting story.

3 "A Pleasure Excursion," and Other Sketches. By Mark Twain. Contains a description of the Sandwich Islands, and the Sandwich Island Question, and other sketches.

4 The Anti Scalpel Papers, by Chas. Ashmun, author of "Medical Sketches," "Medical Sketches of Europe," etc. Contains a very valuable work on the Physiology of Marriage, and other Christmas Stories, by Charles Dickens. Contains a very interesting and pathetic story of Christmas Eve, and a very interesting and pathetic story of Christmas Day.

5 Round the Evening Lamp. A book of Recitations, Dialogues, Speeches, Songs, Music, etc.

6 Popular Medical Adviser. A very valuable work on the Physiology of Marriage, and other Medical Sketches, including the Diseases of the Sexual Organs, and the Diseases of Females in the present.

7 Dr. Ashmun's Medical Sketches. Embracing the origin and author of the Human Race, Spontaneous Generation, Hereditary Transmission, a Medical work of interest.

8 Dr. Ashmun's Medical Sketches, author of which gave perhaps more information than any other work ever published.

9 The Lady Velma. Not an advertising circular, but a thoroughly practical work, which every lady should have.

10 Ten Nights in a Bar Room, and other Temperance Tracts.

11 One Hundred Popular Songs, sentiment, pathetic and humorous, including Dixie and Yankee Doodle.

12 Ten Nights in a Bar Room. Dramatized. Contains the same story as the book, but is more interesting.

13 Old Man's Bank Book. Contains a very valuable work on Arithmetic.

Any one of the above books by mail postpaid, three cents each; any three for ten cents; any six for twenty cents; any twelve for twenty-five cents; any twenty for forty cents; any twenty-five for fifty cents; any forty for one dollar; any fifty for one dollar and twenty-five cents; any one hundred for one dollar and fifty cents; any one hundred and twenty-five for two dollars; any one hundred and fifty for two dollars and twenty-five cents; any one hundred and twenty-five with cloth bound, for $1.50. This is the greatest bargain in books ever offered. Remember, I make no charge for postage or packing. Address, F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 42 Murray Street, New York, "Drawer 1000." Address all letters

F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 42 Murray Street, New York.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL.

$1.50 PER YEAR.

NUMBER 233. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.: THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1887.

THE JOURNAL

Published every Thursday,

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

Office on Bridge Street,

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway,

"THE SOO-MACKINAW SHORT LINE."

Only Direct Route to Upper Michigan and the Iron and Copper Regions of Lake Superior, traversing a territory unequaled for hunting, fishing and health.

Double Daily Train Service between Chicago and Houghton without change of cars.

Elegant Sleeping Coaches attached to all night trains.

Chair and Parlor Cars on all day trains.

The only all-rail route to Sault Ste. Marie. Tickets over this route are on sale at all principal ticket offices. Full information as to rates, time, routes of trains and tickets will be furnished upon application to

E. W. ALLEN,
Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Marquette, Mich.

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.

Time Card for

PETOSKEY STATION,

In effect Oct. 16th.

Leave, going north, 8.18 p. m., 2.05 a. m.

Leave, going south, 8.20 a. m., †11.00 p. m.

†Daily except Saturday.

THE DIRECT ROUTE BETWEEN MACKINAW CITY AND DETROIT AND JACKSON, The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 8.00 a. m. daily except Sunday, and 10.00 p. m. daily, arriving at

Detroit	3.10 p. m. and 11.00 a. m.
Jackson	10.20 p. m. and 11.00 a. m.
Toledo	10.55 p. m. and 4.45 p. m.
Buffalo	6.00 a. m. and 5.00 p. m.
Cincinnati	6.35 a. m. and 6.40 p. m.

HORACE S. HARSHA, Chicago, Ill.
GEO. DE HAVEN, Mackinaw City.

C. J. GRIER, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Charlevoix, Michigan.

Dated December 14, 1887.

MORTGAGE SALE.—A mortgage dated 1872 of Dr. G. W. Crouter, Drugs, Stationery and Wall Paper. Dental Office in Rear of Drug Store.

MORTGAGE SALE.—A mortgage dated 1887 Song of the Wheel. Away from the office and desk at last, The business haunted room, The roar of a city, hurrying past, The heat, the worry, the gloom, To the glorious red of the sunset sky, The sweet, cold wine of the air, On the frozen road, my wheel and I, A dusty, rusty pair!

Push, push, two birds in a bush Are laughing to see me hop; Oh with a bound from the frozen ground, With never a way nor stop.

Over and over the pedals fly— "Come on!" to the twittering bird I cry, As over and over the wheels fly post here Over and over, still faster and faster, On through the ice cold stream of air, On where the road is frozen and bare.

Roll—roll—roll—roll— Silent and swift as a death frost nod, Glide—glide—glide— On the smooth, black tide Of the ocean of sky and a drowing in from the west, Over and over and over, Over and over, till over the crest Of the hill, and down to the valley below, Through the mark of the mist and the white of the snow.

Now my steed falters, as breathless and slow, Up the steep hillside it labors and grinds, Grinds—grinds—grinds—grinds— Across and across in curves and winds, Hand dragged and rock hindered, without hope or fear,

No longer a nod, but a sin burdened wraith— Till, resting the summit, he spurns the dark hill,

And onward he plunges, for good or for ill, Over and onward, and onward and over, He rocks and he rights like a jolly old rover.

Roll—roll—roll—roll— Backward he flies to our one dear goal, Where the whining steel cease, and the rider shall rest, And with trembling lips to my own shall be pressed.

Slow—slow—slow— Slowly—slowly—slowly—we go— What, darling, so far on the road to-night, To welcome us both? Forgive me, I pray, I was thinking of you and was quite right When I said with blame, we've such safe, safe at home, Be quiet, old fellow, we've such safe, safe at home.

Willis Boyd Allen in Outing.

WASHINGTON'S CHAPERONS.

How Some "Leaders" of Society in the Capital Replenish Their Finances.

The wives and daughters of new congressmen and officers are frequently thrown into society without any previous preparation. From the quiet of a country home there is a terrible transition. There are ladies here in Washington whose husbands have been army or navy officers. They have spent years in society, and have held, and still hold, high rank. The mysteries of form and usage are familiar to them, but the death or retirement of their husbands has reduced their finances below the figures of their extravagant tastes. These ladies now must in their position in society be modified by contact through the mysterious mazes. They teach the wives of new senators and members from the back districts the polite forms, and pilot them safely through a winter in Washington.

The relation they hold to the novice is that of a sponsor, or a chaperon to take the part of a friendly adviser or chaperon. They are counselors, friends and pilots! They are women who have been belles in society in the years when debuts in society are now. They now make a business of treasure. They are called upon to advise, to help, to furnish their homes, how to talk and act, how to seat their guests, how to receive, when to call, how to call and who to call on. They tell them the difference between an ordinary tea and a high tea; between a dinner party and a soiree. They tell them the dust of their dialect and teach them polite forms of speech, and tell them what to do with their hands, how to arrange the circle and teach by example. They are consulted about every thing except to those who employ them, and they are the most counsel of all society. They are known in Washington life.

In the morning when they are not attending to their charges they are at the part of private conversationists. There are always a number of wealthy religious, who are account of not yet knowing the ways of society, or of ill health, or prejudice against it, they are in society, and are in the social swim.

As conversationists they know queens and factotums of society being all the gossip and goings on in society in a morning and upon these wonderful memories of society. They tell them who held receptions last night and who was there, what they wore, what they said, and what was said about them. They relate the latest private scandal, the latest different people think of each other, and how each is measured with the other. In short, they report how long Mr. — talked with Miss Millions, and repeat what "everybody" thought of it. They discuss the engagements made, to be made, and broken off. All the little bits of gossip, small talk and scandal they carry with them and repeat to all the interesting details, and keep their secluded patrons as well posted as if they were among the "real set." They furnish up a market, they monopolize.

Some of the most fashionable women who have long been the "leaders" of society earn in this way the money to pay their establishments and to maintain themselves in fashionable luxury. The wives and daughters of many famous men, now dead, are by professional leaders of society, and in society professionally—intriguing, designing.

Not the Computer's Fault.

In a letter read before a recent meeting of the Berlin Anthropological society, Dr. Schlemann energetically protests against the current belief in the salutary effect of the Egyptian climate in patients with any troubles. He writes from Thebes: "Since my consumptive cough, from which I have taken with me in order to save his life, has died, and since I have observed in this city a number of consumptives whom, like the German Consular Agent Tod, I would have preserved for years ago in robust health, I am entirely cured of the belief that Egypt is the panacea for all pulmonary troubles. I would rather advise such patients to go to the Riviera than to Egypt."—Chicago News.

Methods Pursued on a Louisiana Plantation—Work in the Stubble Fields.

Let us follow in their sequence the processes of planting. First is the uncovering with plows of the furrows in which the seed cane has been buried since last fall, the pulling it out of the ground with great iron hooks attached to poles, and the loading it into carts. In the "chucking up" gang I observed two white men working with the negroes. They are Spaniards from the Teres aux Boufs country, the other side of the swamps. There are two others who are neither white nor negroes. They have a brown complexion, high cheek bones, regular features and straight black hair. These are "Manilla men"—natives of the Philippine Islands. The curiously mixed population of lower Louisiana includes 2,000 or 3,000 of them.

Big, stout carts, with broad tired wheels, haul the resurrected canes to the field prepared for planting. Here a gang of women called "choppers" take up the canes by armfuls and drop them in heaps at intervals beside the furrows. They are placed in the furrows by other women called "planters." Another gang passes along the furrows and chops up the canes with rude hatchet like knives. The object of this is to give the seed eyes a chance to draw sap from the stock which would otherwise be at a loss by those which have already a good start. About six tons of cane go to the planting of an acre. One acre of seed cane will plant three acres, and as the planting must be done every third year, one-ninth of the crop average of a plantation must be given up to seed cane. When the seed cane is cut in the fall the stalks are laid between the rows of stubble and covered with a plow run on each side.

After the canes are laid and cut, they are covered with plows or with a machine called a rotary hoe, and the ground is then rolled to press the dirt close to the sprouting eyes. The first crop is called plant cane. Next year the cane sprouts from the stubble, and is called first ratoons. The second year it sprouts again, and is called second ratoons. The third year the stubble is plowed up and the ground sowed with field peas, which incorporates the land, as clover does northern farms. The fourth year it is again put in plant cane. A good yield to the acre is 25 tons of plant cane, 20 of the first ratoons, and 15 of second ratoons. On the upper coast, above New Orleans, it is customary to let the stubble ratoon but once. In Cuba it often ratoons six successive years, but the cane becomes constantly more woody and poorer in saccharine matter.

In the stubble fields the first spring, work consists in "barring off," or moving the dirt away from the roots of the ratoons with plows and repairs the light and air to hasten the germinating of the ratoons. By the middle of April cane should be a good stand of the young sprouts. Then the dirt is worked back toward the rows, and then comes a last cultivation with the plow till after the 1st of July, when the cane is "laid by." No more work is done on it till the cutting begins in September. Now the cane is high that a man driving a mule is lost to sight between the rows. Soon gangs of men and women come up on a man on horseback. The rows are usually seven feet apart and jumpers, hard hit with the clothes—that is, from the river or bayou toward the swamp. July and August was formerly the time for cutting wood in the swamps to run the sugar mill during the grinding season, but now most plantations burn coal. The crop being "made," the planter feels that he can relax from his cares for a time, but he has the means, he goes off to the north with his family to escape the two frosted months of the year in Louisiana and build up his health, in a climate more congenial.—T. Dimitry in The Century.

T. S. Arthur's Method of Writing.

Mr. Arthur said of his manner of writing: "I do not create my stories, but my plots and characters are not prearranged and individualized. I take one or two characters in my mind, put them in motion and but dimly foreshadowed—often not seen at all—and move forward with them, clear that all is simply development, or simply living; nothing comes out as a surprise to me. I have no control in the story, but everything is subject to unlooked for modifications and new relations, as it an intelligence more far seeing than my own was directing the hands of the lines I was writing. New characters suddenly present themselves and take their place in the story, and become often the strongest and most influential. Frequently I do not see the outcome of the story until near the close, and am often as curious to know what is to be the fate of the characters as any reader can be, but rarely, if ever, am I disappointed in the final outcome of the story."

"My work—if I may use the word work—is always a growth. This being true, I do not have to adding sense of what I never feel as if I had any power with my pen to create or to recall with anything. I often begin in weakness, forcing myself to take up my pen, while some other matter has control. To fix this and bring it down into living action seems to me almost impossible thing, but as soon as I fix and localize, touch human life in its outward action somewhere, a sense of power comes to me, and I go on because the subject of new influences, and am often as many surprised at the result as any of my readers can possibly be."—D. L. Milliken in The Writer.

Druggists' Ingenious Device.

A very ingenious device is now generally adopted by drug-nists to prevent the frequent mistakes which occur at night in administering a dangerous medicine for a simple one. This is entirely obviated by putting up prescriptions, containing powerful remedies or poisonous drugs in rough bottles as prickly as the coat of a chinkin. Any one reaching in the dark is at once warned of his danger. Wives have already been spared by this simple contrivance.—Globe-Democrat.

AN ITALIAN WATERING PLACE.

Sea Bathing at Civita Vecchia—Miles of Transparent Water—The Bathers.

In America sea bathing means a stand up fig t with a strong, relentless surf that is bent upon knocking you out of time in every round. To swim in an American surf is to invite drowning, and, unless the sea is exceptionally smooth, to get knocked out. But at Civita Vecchia there is rarely any surf worthy of the name, and no tide to bring in garbage and carry out unwary bathers. You can literally swim for miles in water so transparent that you can plainly see the bottom; and as for drowning yourself, the proprietor of the bathing establishment takes care that you shall not do it.

There are two bathing establishments, or "stabilimenti," as the Italian more briefly spells it. The Italian conception of a "stabilimento" at the seashore is a restaurant, ballroom, cafe and lounging place built on piles a hundred or two yards from shore and connected with it by a long bridge. On each side of this bridge, and inclosed by two rows of bathrooms, are two bathing pools, one for women only and the other for women and men. In these pools the depth of water is never over four feet, while for men or women who swim out from the pools into the open sea there are ropes marking the respective distances within which the "expert" and the "inexpert" are advised to confine themselves, and boats and life buoys are always ready in case a tired swimmer should need them.

I have a little bedroom in one of the establishments, and it gives one precisely the sensation of being at sea in fine weather. The idea has firmly fastened itself upon the imaginative proprietor and frequenters of the establishment. The attendants are dressed in a naval uniform and are universally called "officers." For that matter, they are in the non-bathing season, sailors, fishermen and boatmen, and the public regard them as sailors because they man that saucy vessel, the establishment. The girls who take care of the women's bathing rooms also wear a feminine naval dress, but they are guiltless of any other marine characteristic.

The women bathers nearly all swim. Indeed, an Italian, man or woman, who cannot swim is the exception. There is, of course, the occasional girl, whose idea of bathing is to hold on to a rope, jump up and down, and squeal. She is a type that is universally distributed over the civilized world, but here a sense of shame at her inability to swim renders her squeal mild and infrequent.

Her sister swimmer enjoys herself immensely in the water, and swims and floats fearlessly, though she, too, often has the feminine vice of not striking out properly with her legs and of trying to propel herself with her hands. She cares very little about getting her hair wet, the fear of which calamity usually haunts the American girl when bathing, though, so far as I can judge, fatal results rarely, if ever, follow the wetting of the back hair.

Rude horseplay in the bath is unknown here, and decorum is successfully combined with hearty enjoyment and genuine fun. The women bathe with more modesty than the men, but the fun of women is always comic when bathing. The Italian in the water, as on the shore, is courteous, self respectful, and wholly lacking in self consciousness. Graver than the Frenchman, he does not insult the majesty of the sea with incessant chattering, but treats it with the respect due to a powerful element which may become dangerous if insulted, but which, so long as its rights are duly acknowledged, can be trusted to be magnanimous and courteous.—Cor. New York Times.

The Gypsy's Love at Home.

Gypsies universally revere the marriage and home relation. What other people do I say universally, and was that word unqualifiedly. There is not an exception. The home, under dingy roof or beneath the stars, is the dream, the type, the realization of all attainable good. I do not defend them in their religion, in their fidelity; but the religious faculty as we know it, develop it, detect it, is lacking in them that another seems to have taken its place. That is home worship. Without ambition to rule and rend and remodel the world, their whole mental and heart power concentrates upon and about their own. Every earthly effort of the gypsy man, as of every decent man, is for the home, the sacrosanct divine within his simple holding. The gypsy wife, not being civilized into a social harridan; not being developed into a literary, art or church gadabout; not being cultured into a female devil, reaching her greedy tentacles to every outlying shine and then devouring her own home for self and social distortion, has a whole body and soul and devotion for those who call her wife and mother. And so this gypsy family that you scorn and my old poet friend calls "rascals," form an all sufficient, invincible love force that the combined assaults of all fortune can never shock or endanger. That is surely one thing worth remembering about the gypsies. Yet this is a trait without law. And it even begins back of the making of the tribe at the gypsy's mother's breast. It is bred and inbred in pre-natal assimilation loyalty. Then as the children come along, they are every thing absolutely inner nothing else or different, save about the dangers of non-gypsies, among whom they see all that should be avoided and of whom we know a few things that should be changed.—Edgar L. Wakeman's Letter.

Compliment from th. Bereaved.

"I think, Mr. Smith," said a friend of the family, "that your poor wife looked so lovely as she lay there at rest at last."

"Yes," replied the bereaved husband, "Mary always did look well in white."—The Epoch.

"The trouble with an oyster stew," growled a lover of that composition the other day, "is that it is too big a dish for growing and too cold as the bottom of the dish appears."—Philadelphia Call.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE.

A Dreary Day.

Bobby (Sunday afternoon)—What a dreadful long, dreary day Sunday is, mother.

Mother—Why do you find it dreary, Bobby?

Bobby (after some thought)—I s'pose it's because pa stays home all day.—Texas Siftings.

Revision.

Mr. Robert Johnson, who lives on the Fisher farm, has a little boy, Dave, who is just old enough to be taught to say his prayers. The other evening his mother was teaching him the Lord's Prayer, and got along very well until they reached the line, "Give us this day our daily bread."

The mother repeated it twice, but the child made no attempt to follow her.

"Why don't you say it?" urged his mother.

"'Cause I don't want bread," said the boy "I want pie."—Oil City Derrick.

A Fresh Solution.

Little Mollie was caught by her mother stealing apples from the tree and severely rebuked. Her mother told her she must not touch those apples, as she was going to make preserves of them.

On the following Sunday little Mollie's school teacher, while walking home with her from Sunday school, asked her why God forbade Adam and Eve to eat of the tree in the midst of the garden.

"Because he wanted to make preserves of the apples," was the childish reply.—Texas Siftings.

Not Altogether Friendless.

The small child is to the front again. He had been naughty. The naughtiness of youth and the naughtiness of age are widely different.

"If you do that nobody will love you," the tender mother told him.

"Tain't so. I know one who'll like me," he answered.

"Who?"

"Satan. He likes the bad ones."—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Case of Choke.

Jessie's teacher gave her pupils a party, to which "little brother" was invited. He ate heartily of ice cream and cake, and was found reposing on the bench in the porch, while the other children were at play in the yard. When asked why he didn't join them, he exclaimed:

"Oh, I can't play, my pants choke my so!"—Youth's Companion.

A Hidden Sting.

A little Syracuse boy of Rockefeller want into a market last week, and, helping herself to a green pepper, tried to eat it. After she had asked Aps marchman asked her what the matter was with the fruit, and he replied, between sobs, "Vere was a bumble bee in it."—Middletown News.

A Profound Reflection.

"Grandpa," inquired Johnny, "must everybody die?"

"Yes, my child. Every one in this world must die when his time comes."

"Well"—long pause—"what I'd like to know is, why hasn't he got his man?"—Detroit Free Press.

A Polished Compositor.

A Burlington man told one of her boys that the next time he wrote a composition he should use more polish. The result of his next disquisition was "Noodles."—Burlington Free Press.

Description of a Naval Battle.

Those who have read the narrative of the battle of Lake Erie, published in the Constitution during the war of 1813 remember that it received three broadsides from the British man-of-war, did not fire until she had come to close quarters. Then her fire was so rapid that in a few minutes the "enemy" was silenced. The account of the capture, as spoken by a Frenchman speaking broken English, sets forth the action pretty effectually:

"You see, I was come from Marseilles with sheepload vine and cognac; I was go to so Levant trade. By-by-by Captaine Dacre he come with his sheep; he say, he tak' my sheep; and he tak' all my cognac and he say, he tak' my sheep; he say, he tak' my sheep; he say, he tak' my crew he tak' prisoners an' he burn my sheep.

"Pretty soon he say: 'Ah, Capitaine Dufosse, I go look now for' ant Yankee frigate.' I say, 'Ah, Capitaine Dufosse, he'll kill you.' 'Pin goin' tak' ant sheep in Yankee frigate.'

"Ven he come up with her he give ven broadside, he tore ev'ry t'ing to pieces; he tore ev'ry t'ing to pieces! he other broadside. Ze Yankee he no say nothing!

"Capitaine he say, 'Ah, what is zat?' Br-r-r-r-r-r! from zo Guerriere. Zat Yankee he say nothing!

"Pretty soon ven he came close, br-r-r-r-r-r! br-r-r-r-r! br-r-r-r-r! br-r-r-r-r! br-r-r-r-r! br-r-r-r-r!

"I go below. After avile I come on de deck. Capitaine Dacre vas gire' his sword to Capitaine Dufosse.

"I say, 'Ah, ha, Capitaine Dacre! You say you gotin' tak' ant Yankee frigate in twenty minutes! He tak' you in tain?'"—Youth's Companion.

A Spring of Acid Water.

About fifteen miles south of Meridian, Miss., there is a spring near the foot of a hill. The water is almost as sour as vinegar. With the addition of sugar it makes first class lemonade, with a slight taste of tea. The spring was recently discovered, and it is not supposed to possess any value except as a curiosity.—Scientific American.

THE JOURNAL

Published every Thursday,

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

Office on Bridge Street,

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway,

"THE SOO-MACKINAW SHORT LINE."

Only Direct Route to Upper Michigan and the Iron and Copper Regions of Lake Superior, traversing a territory unequaled for hunting, fishing and health.

Double Daily Train Service between Chicago and Houghton without change of cars.

Elegant Sleeping Coaches attached to all night trains.

Chair and Parlor Cars on all day trains.

The only all-rail route to Sault Ste. Marie. Tickets over this route are on sale at all principal ticket offices. Full information as to rates, time, routes of trains and tickets will be furnished upon application to

E. W. ALLEN,
Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., Marquette, Mich.

DR. G. W. CROUTER,

Drugs, Stationery and Wall Paper.

Dental Office in Rear of Drug Store.

MORTGAGE SALE.—A mortgage dated 1872 of Dr. G. W. Crouter, Drugs, Stationery and Wall Paper. Dental Office in Rear of Drug Store.

MORTGAGE SALE.—A mortgage dated 1887 Song of the Wheel. Away from the office and desk at last, The business haunted room, The roar of a city, hurrying past, The heat, the wor

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, — MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS RECORD.

A Summary of the Eventful Happenings of a Week, as Reported by Telegraph.

Political, Commercial, and Industrial News, Fires, Accidents, Crimes, Suicides, Etc., Etc.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

ANARCHY'S GRAVE.

Spies, Parsons, Fischer, Lingg, and Engel Laid to Rest at Waldheim Cemetery, Chicago.

AFTER lying in the vault at Waldheim Cemetery for five weeks, under the constant guard of those who knew them when living, anarchist beings, says a Chicago special, the bodies of the five dead anarchists, August Spies, George Engel, Albert R. Parsons, Adolph Fischer, and Louis Lingg, were on Sunday consigned to the great Mother Earth. All of the most noted anarchists of the city were present on the train, and also a large number of equally prominent labor-leaders of unpronounced anarchist type. The speakers of the day were Captain William P. Black, Paul Grottkau, of Milwaukee; Albert Currlin, of St. Louis; and Joseph R. Buchanan. The features of the dead all looked as if but life had departed from them, with the exception of Lingg's, around whose eyes were broad purplish-red rings. The grave or vault was open at the top, its sides and floor being made of solid masonry. Its width is that of the length of a coffin, and its length is sufficient to contain the coffins placed cross side by side. Five fire coffins have been brought into this curious vault, an immense flag-stone was lowered down over it, covering the vault entirely, the stone being lowered down into its place with the aid of a derrick. During all the ceremonies excellent order was preserved, and the only show of a want of reverence for the occasion was the use of the word "brave" by several of the authors during the progress of Grottkau's speech.

STERLING F. ROUNDS DEAD.

The Well-Known Printer and Newspaper Man Stricken Down at Omaha.

AN Omaha dispatch announces the death of R. F. Rounds, President of the Omaha Republican Company. He was at first attacked with pneumonia, followed by pleurisy, but had so far recovered as to be considered out of danger, when he was seized with brain trouble, as old affection, which was the direct cause of his death.

Sterling Parker Rounds was a native of Vermont, where he was born in 1836. He learned the printer's trade in Buffalo, after which he went to Racine, Wis., and started a newspaper. He was married in Racine Dec. 8, 1856, and has three sons and two grandchildren. His eldest son, Sterling Rounds, Jr., married the daughter of the wife of Dr. H. Rothmahler, the famous Milwaukee physician, and lived in Milwaukee and Racine, where he was connected as a weekly paper. He afterward went to Chicago and opened a job printing and stationery office on State street, in company with James Campbell, under the firm name of Rounds & Campbell. Two years after on Monday morning of each year they continued business until their failure five years later. In 1861 Mr. Rounds was appointed public printer by President Garfield, and held the office until the coming of the present administration. Mr. Rounds was interested in the Omaha Bee, Omaha News, and has lived there since. His family still living at Eureka, Wis. He has a brother in Milwaukee and a sister in Peoria, Ill.

A WAITING GAME.

Austria Decides to Make No More Inroads Upon Russian Calls Out More Troops.

A VIENNA dispatch says the military council in that city Sunday was presided over by Emperor Francis Joseph. The council resolved that the extraordinary portion of the credit of 52,000,000 florins voted last spring shall be applied to the purchase of horses, and the construction of huts for troops in Galicia. No increase of the forces is intended, but it has been decided upon, and if there is no further augmentation of Russian troops on the frontier, Austria will adhere to the policy of observation.

Higgins' Successor.

A WASHINGTON special says that Secretary Fairchild has decided to appoint Mr. Perry C. Smith, at present Disbursing Clerk of the Postoffice Department, to the position of Appointment Clerk of the Treasury, to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of Mr. Higgins. Mr. Smith is a cousin of the Secretary. Secretary Vilas, in his annual report, speaks of him as a most efficient and economical officer.

Convention of Republican Clubs.

THE Convention of Republican Clubs at New York completed its labors on Saturday and adjourned. Mr. James T. Foster, President of the New York Republican Club, was elected President of the newly created National League. The resolution against the confirmation of Mr. Lamar was tabled.

Telegraphic Brevities.

JACOB F. BRUNSMAKER, of the carriage manufacturing firm of Studebaker Brothers, died in Chicago of peritonitis.

AUGUSTUS, the man who attempted to assassinate M. Ferry, has become violently insane and is now in a mad-house.

THE Israel Walker celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of his birth at his home in Danvers, Mass., on its birthday.

SEVERAL thousand men have been thrown out of employment by the closing of the Bell & Spencer boot and shoe factory in Bradford, Pa.

THE last spike was driven in the construction of the Galveston & Oregon railroad, which is completed to Ashland, Oregon. It had been building twenty-one years.

AS a result of the feud between the Adams and Cassatt factions in Rock Castle County, Kentucky, seven men have killed each other, and each many others wounded, and several houses burned.

THE EASTERN STATES.

AN assignment has been made by Searle, Venneman & Co., jobbers of notions and white goods at Philadelphia for over $500, but the amount of their assets is not known.

DEATH is announced at Philadelphia of General T. K. Smith, who was chief of General Grant's staff at the close of the war.

HENRY IVES, of national notoriety, was arrested at New York upon a warrant issued out by Julius Dexter, President of Dexter and Hamilton and Dexter Railroad, alleging that in June last Ives appropriated a draft for $100,000 which belonged to the railroad company. Ives was held on $20,000 bail, his sister furnishing security.

JOSEPH ENDORY, a man with almost unobtrusive hair and gray beard, is under arrest at Philadelphia on a charge of stealing from $60,000 to $70,000 from the Manufacturers' National Bank, by which he had been employed as book-keeper for thirty-five years. Although always considered a trusty employee, it is, said that Knight had been robbing the bank for twenty-five years.

THE WESTERN STATES.

E. L. Harris the Fidelity Bank wrecker, was found guilty at Cincinnati on a set forth in the thirty-three counts of the indictment, and was sentenced to ten years in the Ohio Penitentiary, whither he was taken in the afternoon.

THE extraordinary case of accidental shooting by which two men lost their lives is reported from Ozark County, Missouri. William Requa, a member of a party that was on a hunting expedition in a remote part of the county, started out by himself, and when at some distance from his companions fired at an object which he took for a bear, but which proved to be W. H. Guinter, also a hunter, from Wyandotte, Kan. After the discharge of his gun Requa rushed forward, and Guinter, who was still alive, though fatally wounded, fired upon him, killing him instantly.

A DISPATCH from Columbus, Ohio, says the Grand Jury has indicted seven men for conspiracy in the daly-street fingerprint swindle in that city two years ago. Among those indicted are Robert H. Montgomery, ex-Prosecuting Attorney; Dr. C. H. Montgomery, Fred Steele, Otto Horn, Algernon Granville, and Jordan C. Blackburn, of Cincinnati. Granville was formerly in the employ of Prosecuting Attorney Montgomery, and is an expert short-hand man and penman.

IN the death at Whatcom, W. T., of the Hon. Isaac S. Kalloch, one who had led a career full of startling sensations has passed away.

The bloody drama in which he was one of the principals in the stormy days of sand-lot domination in San Francisco, in 1877-78-79, and the political prominence that soon followed he has furnished occasion after occasion, and it was an attempt to take the life of Mr. Kalloch he was in a measure lost to public view. The bullet then fired, it was thought, ended the terrible scandal which for two years had been the talk of the town, over a question of a century age. Kalloch was elected Mayor of San Francisco on the workingmen's ticket in 1867. During the campaign he was shot by Charles De Young, at that time editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, because of a number of personal attacks made by both parties. The Chronicle printed the details of Kalloch's life in Boston and Kansas, and Kalloch was equally bitter in his attacks on the De Young family. The shooting in the street occasioned a trial, Mr. Kalloch in the street occasioned a trial, Mr. Kalloch being acquitted. Subsequently office and shot De Young dead, and was afterward acquitted of the charge of murder. At the close of his term as Mayor Kalloch removed to Washington Territory, where he had since resided.

A CHICAGO dispatch says: The building at the northwest corner of Adams street and Fifth avenue, which was owned by Hiram N. Sheldon and occupied by Phelps, Dodge & Palmer, wholesale boot and shoe dealers, was completely ruined by fire Monday night. The loss on the building is placed at $115,000; insurance, $85,000. Phelps, Dodge & Palmer's loss on their stock is placed at $150,000, and any that is about covered by the insurance. Adjacent property was damaged to the extent of $20,000.

THE farm residence of Michael Harris, fourteen miles from Wooster, Ohio, was destroyed by fire, and Mrs. Harris and six children were burned to death. Mr. Harris and one daughter escaped.

A CONSTANT stream of rain has been struck at Fairview, Los Angeles County, California.

A CORONER'S (Kan) telegram reports that a woman named Hall murdered the jail at Iola in Wichita County, Kansas, and made a desperate attempt to lynch Thomas Allen, imprisoned on the charge of having been implicated in the killing of Coulter and Jansen, Feb. 27 last. John H. Edwards, Sheriff of the county, with Dick Wade, his Under Sheriff, was in the jail at the time. The mob broke in the jail door and demanded the prisoner. Their demands being refused by the officers, the mob opened a heavy fire with Winchesters and revolvers on the occupants of the jail. The officers returned the fire, fighting bravely 16; their man, and after a brave fight succeeded in repulsing the mob, severely wounding several of them and saving the life of their prisoner. The news that Allen was attempting to claim his release on bail caused the lynching.

FURTHER particulars of the horrible murder of the Harris family, near Westminster, Dak., are telegraphed from Huron, Dak.:

Mrs. Harris was found in a two-story house about midnight Mr. Harris awoke and found his wife in a pool of blood, cut and bruised, with her eyes blackened and head scan all sliced in a horrible manner. The first and gotten sign he had was that he was obliged to jump from the second story window to escape the axe of the fiend, who was then in the house. He called to him. Pary and Harris' oldest boy jumped out the window, leaving Mrs. Harris to get out the children. Each ran to the lady to her assistance, and was met by the fiend, who at the time drew another axe and one of the children fell dead in his tracks. The fiend then fled, escaping the remaining six children, as the first heard was so great and the wind so strong that it was impossible to recover any sense. All were in their nightshirts. Pary and Harris ran to the house of Mr. Ward, a mile distant, returning with his fast and hardest family. The baby was put in the barn and covered with hay till assistance came, but it was also nearly frozen. The two bodies were received from the coroner late Monday night, and almost unrecognizable condition. The boy's head was hung of some fell off as they were taken up. The family were from Mount Ayr, Ind.

KANSAS CITY special: "Sarah Hopkins has committed suicide by taking laudanum. Deceased was the son of Dr. J. Hopkins, who died twenty years ago, leaving the boy a large amount of real estate, which has since increased immensely in value, and a year ago the victim of last night's tragedy was held to be worth almost $1,000,000. For the last two years he had led a dissolute life, plunging wildly into dissipation, and spending large sums of money in a reckless manner. He was the dupe of gamblers, who bled him for thousands of dollars, and the influence of his dissolute associates and friends to lure him away from those associates proved futile. Sarah was a well-to-do young man, having just passed his twenty-ninth birthday."

WONG AH LUNG, a Chinaman of San Francisco, has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment and fined $2,000 for importing women into the country for immoral purposes.

A FROZEN BOW (Neb.) dispatch says: A young farmer named James Jackson, living twenty eighteen miles northeast of here, started out on the morning of Dec. 19 for a load in a sleigh. When he had reached a point in the woods about half a mile from his father's home his double-barreled shotgun slipped off the seat, and in attempting to draw it toward him the hammers caught and both both discharged into his heart. His clothing caught fire from the flash and was burned off, with the exception of the overshoes. The remains were discovered Thursday morning, lying in the seat of the sleigh, shown a quarter of a mile from the main road, in the woods. His right hand still held the reins firmly, and the horses were standing on the edge of a deep ravine. They had been without food since the accident occurred, and had gnawed the sleigh-tongue nearly in two.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

HENRY FAWCETT'S dwelling, five miles south of Point Pleasant, W. Va., was burned, Fawcett's three children perishing in the flames.

THOMAS FOWELL and his sister, Mrs. Sarah O'Toole, aged 50, keep a general store at Eastern Kentucky Junction, Ky. The other night it was entered by robbers, who strangled Mrs. O'Toole to death to stop her outcry. They then bound and gagged her brother and robbed the store of several hundred dollars in money, beaides goods, and made their escape. Mr. Fowell is 80 years of age.

STOCKMEN from the northern part of the Panhandle, Texas, are calling upon the State and Federal authorities for protection against cattle-thieves. They declare that the public land strip is virtually in the possession of these desperadoes, who have established a reign of terror there. Murders are of daily occurrence, and there is no way of bringing the criminals to justice.

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

THE municipal election in Boston resulted in the re-election for a fourth term of Mayor Hugh O'Brien by a majority over Thomas N. Hart, the candidate of the citizens and Republicans, of 1,726, against 1,600 a year ago, his majority last year being 8,633.

THE Atlanta (Ga.) City Council has fixed the cost of retail liquor licenses at $1,000. The ordinance restricts saloons to certain streets and provides for saloon inspectors.

COMMISSIONER E. HILES, who, it is thought, will be Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, in the forthcoming House, says he will pass a bill reducing the customs duties, which will be presented to the Senate within a short time.

FORTMASTER JOSEPH MANLEY, of Augusta, Me., thinks that Blaine will be nominated by acclamation, and that he is too much of a statesman to be put on such a summons to serve a party and his country.

AN Augusta, Maine, special says the Republican Court of Kennebec County has decided the law making the payment of the United States internal revenue tax a legal voter plain facie evidence that the party paying such tax is a saloon-keeper, and therefore a public nuisance, is unconstitutional.

THE Alabama State Prohibition Convention met at Montgomery and chose delegates to the National Convention. Resolutions were adopted favoring Clinton B. Fiske, of New Jersey, for President, and J. T. Tanner, of Alabama, for Vice President.

A DUBUQUE (Iowa) telegram to the Chicago Herald says:

The Prohibitionists of Iowa have scored a great victory—a victory that foreshadows the downfall of the old Republican party in this the State at an early date. Judge Shiras, of the United States Circuit Court, in his decision to instructions received from Judge Brewer, in the Iowa liquor cases, has held that the Iowa law is constitutional, and that the brewers are so close adhesive in breweries. The defense contended that the Iowa law violated the section of the brewries, and not the adhesive in them. Judge Shiras decided that the law is constitutional, and no longer valid. Since the Fort Dodge decision, which is the most important one in the case, the brewers have been closing up of all the saloons and breweries in the United States, and the Iowa brewers have received from Judge Brewer, in instruction cases before him, some of these cases argued that the plaintiffs aimed at the destruction of the business of the State, and that the business of the State of Iowa was instituted, as no longer valid, since the Fedral Court has decided that the law is constitutional, and that the business of the State of Iowa is nearly as no longer valid.

THE FOREIGN BUDGET.

FRANCE'S new Ministry is composed as follows:

M. Tirard, President of the Council, Minister of Finance, and Minister of Posts and Telegraphs; M. Goblet, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Minister of the Interior, M. Rouvenne, Minister of Commerce, M. Lockroy, Minister of Public Works; M. de Hapy, Minister of Marine; M. Viette, Minister of Agriculture; M. Fayy, Minister of Public Instruction; General Logerotte, Minister of War.

A PARIS cablegram says of President Carnot's message: It will be read in the Chambers immediately after the formation of the Cabinet.

In it he says he is fully sensible of the honor conferred upon him by his election to the Presidency, and of the great duties intrusted to him. He then reviews the work of the last Parliament, and recommends the adoption of the budget, which he says is in good order, and for the equilibrium of income or expenditure. He says the Ministry will present a bill for the establishment of a pension, and a resolution declaring that when the two houses adjourn on Tuesday, Dec. 20, they will assemble until Wednesday, Jan. 4. Mr. Hatch occupies the chair today, and the resolution as modified was agreed to.

As improvement in sugar machinery has been lately made, producing much greater simplicity and economy. The most important feature of this new plan is a vacuum pan for the finishing process of boiling and crystallizing the syrup. The heat is imparted to the pan by the contents of the pan through an inner lining of copper, and by a series of copper coils or worms, and the operation is conducted in vacuo by means of a similar heating apparatus in the engine room. This pan is mounted on an elevated platform, for convenience in discharging its contents into the hopper of the centrifugal drying machines, and the discharge from the pan is could to six tons of dry sugar. The sugar, after being discharged, is cooled and crystallized in the vacuum pan, is run into the hopper, or mixed over the centrifugal sugar-drying machines of improved construction. These machines are well known as self-balancing suspended principle, the cylinder being mounted on a vertical shaft revolving at a high speed and purging the sugar from all molasses.

"HELLO, Gooddriver, where've you been?" "Been down here to a very stable gettin' kicked by a mule." "Yes." "What for?" "I'm goin' up to ask the girl I can marry his daughter, and I wanted to see if I was in condition."—St. Paul Globe.

In every period of five years in England, from 1860 to 1885, the proportion of paupers down here to a very stable gettin' kicked by a mule." "Yes." "What for?" "I'm goin' up to ask the girl I can marry his daughter, and I wanted to see if I was in condition."—St. Paul Globe.

In every period of five years in England, from 1860 to 1885, the proportion of paupers down here to a very stable gettin' kicked by a mule." "Yes." "What for?" "I'm goin' up to ask the girl I can marry his daughter, and I wanted to see if I was in condition."—St. Paul Globe.

NATIONAL LAW-MAKERS.

What Is Being Done by the National Legislature.

THE Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections investigated the West Virginia contested-election case, on the 12th inst, and decided unanimously to report in favor of Mr. Faulkner's seat in the Senate. Mr. Hoar, again introduced bills to remove the limitation of the payment of arrears of pensions, and to granting arrears of pensions to soldiers who served ninety days in the Union army. Mr. Dawes introduced a bill to equalize the rate of pensions. It fixes the pension for loss of sight or disability, when the claimant is in attendance at the pension agency, at the rate now allowed by law, and provides that the United States Commissioner of Pensions shall be allowed the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Senator Pasco of Florida introduced a bill to open the great Sioux reservation in Dakota to settlement. Mr. Sawyer introduced a bill to provide for the distribution of the surplus in the Treasury among the States, and requiring it to be expended for the benefit of the soldiers of 1861. The aggregate is about $15,000,000. The bill was placed on the calendar. The Senate voted to discharge Mr. Cockrell from the committee to inquire into the executive expenditures of the Mormon Church, and Senator Edmunds was made Chairman. Mr. Ingalls filed a bill to repeal the holding of Congressional elections in Dakota, Montana, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana. The bill was referred to the Committee on Territories. Mr. Chandler introduced a bill to provide for the admission of Dakota, Montana, and Washington Territories, and was made Chairman. O'Farrell, Outhwaite, Barry, Mills, Morrison, Springer, Hall, Cox, Blanchard, Morse, Rowell, Hook, Cooper, Lyman, Stephens

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

Complete returns show that Barry county gave a majority of 1,793 for local prohibition.

The supreme court of Missouri has declared the local option law of that state constitutional. This is an important "dry" victory.

THE Menominee Democrat nominates John Powers of Escanaba for successor of the late Congressman Moffatt, in the eleventh district. It will be remembered that Mr. Powers was candidate for that office in '86, and reduced the republican majority of 7,476, in '84, to 2,943.

Give the country an untaxed plow with a farmer behind it in untaxed clothing, who, when his work is done, can eat an untaxed supper prepared in an untaxed kitchen, and no one will object to paying the tax on the "appetizer" before supper or the pipe of tobacco after it.—St. Louis Republican.

S. P. ROUNDS, editor and proprietor of the Omaha Republican, died Dec. 17, of pneumonia, after an illness of ten days. Mr. Rounds was one of the best known men in the west. For many years he kept the largest printers' supply house west of New York, and by his aid hundreds of newspapers were started, that would otherwise have never been in existence. Shortly after president Arthur's inauguration Mr. Rounds was appointed public printer. The esteem in which he was held, was evinced by the crowd of employes that filled the parlors of the Ebbitt House in Washington, on the evening of Sept. 20, 1886, for the purpose of saying farewell to the man who had been more of their friend than superior officer. The parlors and stairways presented him with an elegant silver service of twelve pieces.

Death of Hon. S. C. Moffatt.

S. C. Moffatt, representative in congress from the eleventh district, died last Thursday morning, at Washington. His death was caused by a malignant carbuncle on his chin which resulted in blood poisoning. Mrs. Moffatt who was at home in Traverse City was telegraphed for but did not reach her husband before his death.

Deceased who was a resident of Traverse City, was born in Battle Creek, Mich. Aug. 10th, 1841, and graduated from the law school of the Michigan university in 1863. He was at one time a member of the state senate and later ... the lower house, being the speaker of the latter body. In 1884 he was elected to the Forty-ninth congress and was re-elected to the Fifiieth congress. Mr. Moffatt was a man of considerable ability and stood high in the estimation of his friends.

To Gull the Farmers.

Senator Palmer of Michigan, has been chosen as Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture. As a staunch republican he will proceed to show his friends, the farmers, how happy they should be in paying taxes to a few manufacturers while those manufacturers starve out their hands, stop their coal-breakers and buy their wheat at Liverpool quotations, leaving their hands too poor to buy anything at all. If Senator Palmer can make this clear to the agriculturists he will be a good chairman.—Chicago Herald.

Death of Daniel Manning.

Daniel Manning, ex-secretary of the treasury, died at Albany last Saturday afternoon, Dec 24, at the home of his son, James H., whither he had gone to spend the holidays. The funeral took place Tuesday from St. Paul's Episcopal church at Albany, and was attended by President Cleveland and some members of the cabinet.

Couldn't Aim.

A Boston young man was taken out by some Fort Worth gunners to kill ducks at "Green's lake. As a large flock of canvas backs floated right by him, and he didn't shoot, one of the Fort Worthites got excited and yelled:

"Why in thunder didn't you shoot?"

"Why," answered the Boston man, "every time I got my gun leveled at one, four or five other feathered green headed fools would swim right in between us and I couldn't get a good aim at one."

The party went home.—Texas Colonel.

Mistake of Identity.

Omaha Man—Do you intend to lecture in Omaha?

Eastern Stranger—Lecture!

"Yes, you lecture, don't you, or perhaps you are a writer?"

"I am not a lecturer or an author, sir. I am the manufacturer of new stoves."

"Oh! I beg your pardon. My friend Brown gave me such a mistake. He told me you were a author ... lecturer."

Paris in the Sixteenth Century.

Some curious documents just found in the archives of the Paris prefecture of police throw an interesting and instructive light on the manner in which the streets of Paris were guarded during the night in the Sixteenth century. To begin with, there were stringent rules to the effect that each house should have only one door and should be regularly barbaned. This being the case, it was a comparatively easy task to order that the dwellers in the different houses should in turn keep an eye on what was going on in their respective streets. They were not compelled to tramp up and down the pavement like the modern policeman; the authorities were satisfied if they looked through their windows and watched all that was going on below. If the slightest cry were raised they opened their windows and rang their bells until their neighbors followed suit. The alarm spread from street to street, and soon all the bells in Paris were ringing, the windows were lit up, and the inhabitants, armed to the teeth, sallied forth, barring the road to the malefactors, who were almost always arrested.

I need hardly explain that the Paris of those days was Hippotian in comparison with what it is now; but what an uncomfortable way they had of keeping the peace in the Sixteenth century! The remedy was positively worse than the disease, for it was hard that the inhabitants of one street should be awakened out of their first sleep because the dwellers in a remote avenue imagined that something wrong was going on. One would fancy that in some quarter or another some noise at least must have been made every night. The slumbers of the Parisians generally must often have been woefully curtailed, not to speak of the volunteer watchmen for whom "all night sittings" were a stern reality.—Home Journal.

Poisons in Food.

We are hearing a good deal of late about poisons in food containing protein compounds, such as the cheese of milk and the myeth of lean meat and fish. The protein compounds are prone to decay—that is, to be decomposed by the action of the ferments called bacteria or microbes. In certain forms of decomposition substances of a more or less poisonous nature, called ptomaines, are formed from protein. It appears to be in this way that poisonous compounds are formed in cheese, meats, etc. While the true digestive ferments, such as the ptyalin of saliva and pepsin of gastric juice, are very different from the ferments just spoken of, yet microbes exist in the digestive apparatus of even the healthiest people, and within a short time past it has been found that poisonous compounds, formed probably by the action of microbes, often occur within our bodies.

The natural inference—it is not positively proved, I think—is that there might be cases in which the presence of certain kinds of food is thus transformed into poisonous substances while passing through the alimentary canal. Perhaps this is the reason why certain persons cannot eat milk without pain or nausea, and it is not impossible that many of the cases in which one kind of food or another causes sickness may, in the light of future research, be attributed to such fermentations within the body.—W. O. Atwater in The Century.

A Sleepy Headed Duke.

The Duke of Edinburgh is getting up a reputation as the champion sleeper and also as the champion bore among all the royal personages of Europe. Last spring this sleepy headed admiral laid such stress upon the enjoyment of his slumbers at Cannes, on the occasion of Queen Victoria's visit to that place, that he refused to allow the British fleet under his command to return the royal salute of the French squadron to his mother until he had slept all he wanted to, which did not come to pass until several hours after the time that official courtesy demanded an acknowledgment in kind of the solemn welcome of the French guns. Of course the French admiral and the French people were furious over this marked discourtesy.

But the Duke of Edinburgh sleeps in spite of everything. For example, it is reported that recently the British Mediterranean fleet arrived at an Algerian port and the French officials went on board the flagship to pay their respects to the duke as the commander of the squadron. But Edinburgh was at his usual business. He was so fast asleep that his valet refused to arouse him, and the insulted Frenchmen hurried ashore without a chance to pay their respects. The nations of this boorish duke must certainly be stuffed with poppies.—New York Graphic.

Demand for Water Wheels.

"The day of the water wheel is over," said a large manufacturer. "I don't know of any business that has suffered so much as ours from new inventions. The many excellent portable and gas engines that have been put on the market within the last few years have almost entirely superseded the cumbersome water wheel. There will undoubtedly always be a certain demand for wheels where they have been already in operation and where the water supply is good, but new factories and it cheaper to run by steam than to build mill dams. The new order of things no longer leaves the manufacturer at the mercy of the elements. Fortunes have been lost on forfeited contracts by mills having to close down in the busy season on account of long continued drought. The water wheel trade is now largely confined to foreign markets and new countries. They disappear as population increases and gas is introduced."—New York Evening Sun.

Chili's Orphan Asylum.

In the orphan asylum at Santiago there are said to be 2,000 children of unknown parentage, supported by the church, and this is a city of 300,000 people. There is a convenient mode for the disposition of foundlings. In the rear wall survey adjoining the place is an aperture, with a wooden box or cradle which swings out and in. A mother goes there at night, places the little one in the cradle, swings it inside, and the nurse on guard, hearing a bell that rings automatically, take the infant to the nursery. However this plan may be regarded by modern moralists, it is certainly an improvement on infanticide, which is almost unknown in Chili.—Harper's Magazine.

Guarding Bank Note Plates.

These plates are surrounded with impenetrable safeguards. The large room, nearly the full length of the building, is occupied by the engravers at the windows, Mr. O'Neil, the chief engraver, and the custodian. On one side of the room is a railing and wire screen, such as are seen in banks, behind which are the desks of Mr. O'Neil and his bookkeeper. On the other side of the room, at the door of the vault, is a similar inclosure, where sits the custodian of the plates, dies, rolls, and other property. When the chief engraver comes in the morning he makes a requisition upon the custodian for such of these precious bits of steel as he wants. Each piece has its name or designation, whether it is a bit of latice work, a vignette, or an entire plate, and when they are surrendered to the chief engraver upon requisition an entry is made upon the books of the custodian. The bookkeeper or assistant for Mr. O'Neil makes an entry on his books also, to show what he has received. Then, as the engravers want the different pieces of work, a similar account is kept with them, and no man can leave the room until the books show that every piece of engraving that he had in his possession has been returned, and he has a note from the chief engraver to show that such is the case. The watchmen would not let them out of the building without this. When a bell sounds at noon the engravers go to lunch, but not outside the building.

When the work is over for the day the accounts between the chief engraver and his subordinates are balanced, to show that each has returned all the work placed in his custody. The rolls and dies and plates are returned by the chief engraver to the custodian from whom he got them, and if no one is missing his requisition is returned to him, and the property locked in the vault for the night. Should it ever happen that anything was missing, even if it were but the smallest fragment of engraving, no one would be permitted to leave until it was found. A complete record is then kept of every piece, so that you can tell just where it was at any time, how long it was in any one's custody, and what he had it for.

"We know," said Mr. O'Neil to a reporter to whom Chief Drayne had extended the freedom of the building, "we know that whatever may be said about counterfeits being printed from government plates, that there never was one so printed. There never was a plate stolen. There is no plate that has ever been made that is not in the vault there, and every one can be accounted for for every minute of time. You cannot name a little one, and we can tell you just where it was at any time, how long it was in any one's custody, and what he had it for.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 24.—Mr. Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan, recently nominated by the President for the office of Postmaster General, is staying quietly at the Arlington, so quietly that he is not registered there, and the clerks deny him to all callers. He keeps within doors during the evening, and sees no one but Judge Montgomery and other intimate friends. Just why he has come to Washington at this juncture is not known. His nomination is pending in the senate, but his presence is not required to secure his confirmation, which all admit will be done by the unanimous vote of the senate.

There is no doubt of Secretary Lamar's confirmation as supreme court judge without serious opposition. The republican opposition to Mr. Lamar will be that he is not a lawyer of sufficient experience. A lawyer of Georgia said in regard to the assertions that secretary Lamar is not a competent legal authority: "I can tell all about Mr. Lamar's experience as a lawyer. He was admitted to the bar of Georgia in 1862, moving to Holley Springs, Miss., and practiced there. He was made professor of mathematics in the University of Mississippi, intermitting his practice two years. He then returned to the law and was not out of practice till his election to congress after he came to the bar. When the war broke out he went in. After peace he returned to law and left it no more till he was elected to congress in 1876, though he served a short time also as professor of law in the state university. Lamar, in fact, has been a successful lawyer in the south, and if his name is not found frequently in the law records of his state, it is because, not being contentious or litigious, he always tried to settle cases before they came to the supreme court.

The local courts have been applied to for a writ of mandamus to compel postmaster Conger to admit envelopes with business cards printed on them as third-class matter. Pursuant to instructions contained in a circular issued by the postmaster general, the city postoffice had refused to forward as third class matter enclosures in envelopes bearing any mention of the particular business of the sender, and the petition has been filed in order to make this a test case. The court suggested that there was nothing to prevent an appeal to the court above, and therefore refused to allow the writ.

Among the banal bills presented in the senate in the week past, two are especially deserving of consideration, having possibilities of enormous consequence. The first is that introduced by senator Dolph, of Oregon, appropriating nearly $130,000,000 for coast defenses. The second is the bill offered by senator Eustis, of Louisiana, to provide for a joint celebration by sixteen American republics in 1889 in honor of the centennial of the constitution of the parent of them all—United States.

The majority of people credit President Cleveland with originating the phrase "public office is a public trust." This belief is so universal that there was quite a fluttering in the office of Dr. Tindall, secretary to the district commissioners, over a discovery made last Saturday. On page forty-two of a pamphlet containing the minutes of the school board for the year 1879-8 occurs the famous phrase, differing not a particle from that used by Mr. Cleveland. Everybody at the district offices is wondering how that school report fell into the president's hands.

A neat device for robbing the mails has been discovered in this city. A sheet of stiff paper was passed by the clerks through the opening of the street lamp boxes, with both ends folded and crammed, so that one end adhered to the box, and all the letters dropped in thereafter were caught on the hook and held. At night the paper with its contents was withdrawn and the letters abstracted, opened, and rifled. The department is trying to trace the thieves. The indications are that many letters have been thus stolen.

Miss Susan Walker is dead. During the war Miss Walker was a leader in the care of soldiers and the education of the freedmen. Miss Walker's death was caused by the recent Kibler defalcation in Cincinnati, by which she lost her entire fortune. She was a masculine-looking woman, with a large frame, dominated by a quick intellect and a heroic spirit, but when she heard a week ago of her loss, and that Antioch College was on the verge of ruin, she broke down completely and died in a few days. She was seventy-five years of age.

Mrs. Whitney's pet hobby last year was floral decoration. This year her taste runs towards candy. The huge bouquets which were laid at the plate of each guest have given way to a few modest buds, while the guest's souvenir is a handsome box of bonbons. The most costly novelties in this line are eagerly purchased by Mrs. Whitney, and the candies are, of course perfection. All this is, of course, bad for the florists, but a well known candy manufacturer who has recently come here from New York rejoices.

To Our Subscribers.

Send to F. P. Shumway, Jr., Boston, Mass., for a free sample copy of the COTTAGE HEARTH, a beautiful illustrated magazine, and so realize what an extraordinary offer we are making when we offer to send both the COTTAGE HEARTH and the Charlevoix JOURNAL for a full year for only $2.00 when the price of the COTTAGE HEARTH alone is $1.50 a year. The Boston Transcript says of the COTTAGE HEARTH: "Setting aside its literary excellence, which are of a high order of merit, the collection of receipts for the kitchen and for the sick room, its practical suggestions on the subject of the raising and care of plants and flowers, its instructions for beautifying homes by simple means, and other practical features, make it invaluable to every household."

Enrich the Blood.

HAMLINS'S GERMAN BITTERS are highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic. Especially Indigestion, Dyspepsia, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, &c. They enrich the blood, strengthen the muscles, and give new life to the nerves. They act like a charm in the digestive organs, remove all dyspeptic symptoms, and whenever the stomach is weak or there is a general loss of physical vigor, these Bitters are just what you need. Only 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Crouter. dec

Don't Experiment.

You cannot afford to waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always stems at first only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to impose upon you with some cheap imitation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, but be sure you get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good or just the same. You can depend on this being the best. King's New Discovery which is guaranteed to give relief in all throat, lung, and chest affections. Trial bottles free at G. W. Crouter's.

Millions of Persons die annually by who might be saved if attention was given to the little ills of life. Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, &c. are speedily cured by using Hamilton's Cough Balsam which removes the tickling in the throat and thightness across the chest, helps to throw off the poisonous matter and heals the inflamed membranes. Immediate relief will be found in Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, &c., and even in chronic cases and last stage consumption great relief is received. For incipient consumption it works like a charm. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. For sale by G. W. Crouter.

A Sound Legal Opinion.

E. Bainbridge Munday says, Beaumont, City, Texas, says: "Have used Electric Bitters and with marked results. My brother also was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, but was cured by timely use of your bottle. Am satisfied Electric Bitters saved his life."

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a like testimony, saying: He positively believes he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters.

This great remedy will ward off, as well as cure all malarial diseases, and all kidney, liver and stomach disorders stands unequaled. Price 50c. and $1 at Crouter's drug store. 6

Are Your Children Pevish and cyeli? Do they have abnormal appetites and crave food contrary to nature? Beware of worms. Very few children escape their ravages. No child can be happy or well while suffering with worms. They sap the very life by preventing the digestion and assimilation of food. There is a remedy. It is called Parmelee's Santonine Worm Candies. They are perfectly harmless but will dissolve the worms and pass them off through the bowels. Buy no other. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres of land situated on Pine Lake two miles from Charlevoix village, on the road to Boyne City. Good buildings, orchard, twenty four acres cleared, one leg house, living water. Will be sold in single or all as that work. Addressed, inquire of the purchaser. For further particulars, address E. C. LAMB, Charlevoix, Mich.

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in depths of the unfathomed ocean, but are surpassed by the marvels of the world, which are to be found in every home when Dr. King's New Life Pills are used. Unlimited relief is at home should at once send their order to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either one of six sovereign remedies may be secured free of cost, while a dollar per box is the sum asked for, if actual relief is required. Some of the wonders of the world are given away with each package.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Crate" when I want a box of DEWITT'S LITTLE EARLY RISERS, the celebrated little pills for constipation and liver complaint. Sold by all druggists. Samples free. Address, W. H. HOBBS, Agent, Charlevoix, Mich.

PIMPLES I will mail (sealed) on receipt of stamp, a recipe that will remove Pimples, Blotches, Black Heads, Red, Rough and Oily Skin, in 10 days. This remedy is simple, and only a trial is needed to prove its wonderful efficacy. Address, A. H. DIXON & SON, 337 West 42d St., New York City.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts can be made for it in New York.

ALL SHOULD TAKE IT!

THE Best of Family Papers,

THE WEEKLY

Detroit Free Press

No other paper is so well adapted to the needs of every household.

NINE REASONS WHY!

1.—Much more valuable than any other weekly publication.
2.—It is the only paper in the Northwest which employs the Associated Press, the Associated Press and the United Press.
3.—Special attention is paid to Michigan News, all the news of each week being given.
4.—Its Market Reports and Quotations are always authentic and to be relied upon.
5.—Its Agricultural Department is unsurpassed and contains a great deal of valuable information.
6.—It is a valuable exponent of public opinion, and its editorials are read and quoted without distinction of party.
7.—Its Literary Department is unsurpassed, showing in serial and short stories, poetry, sketch, travel, and miscellaneous reading, the best productions, old, standing in high literary circles, for the use of the family.
8.—Its Miscellany in regard to as an over welcome visitor to every home. We refer you to any of its patrons for its reputation.
9.—Its price, being only

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR,

If you do not take it, SUBSCRIBE NOW.

A GREAT OFFER.

For $3.00 you can have The Weekly Free Press and any one of the following papers: Detroit Tribune, Detroit Post and Tribune, Detroit Evening News, Detroit Evening Journal, Detroit Evening Times, Detroit Evening Star, Detroit Evening Chronicle, Detroit Daily Times, Detroit Daily Star, "Twelve to Twenty," 100 illustrations, 400 pages, Cloth Bound, Gilt Edge, Lives of the Presidents, Cyclopedia of Universal History, Cyclopedia of Poetry, Dictionary of Universal Biography, Cyclopedia of Prominent Men, Cyclopedia of Prominent Women, Cyclopedia of Famous Women, Cyclopedia of Famous Men, Cyclopedia of Famous Women, Cyclopedia of Famous Men, Cyclopedia of Famous Women, Cyclopedia of Famous Men

CHAR...

CHARLEVOI...

Complete r... county gave ... local prohibiti...

The supreme ... declared the l... state constitut... portant "dry"...

THE MANON... nates John Fo... successor of ... Moffatt, in the ... will be remem... was candidate ... and reduced th... of 7,416, in '84.

Give the coun... with a farmer ... clothing, who, ... can eat an unta... in an untaxed ... will object to pa... "appetizer" bef... of tobacco after ... publican.

S. P. ROUNDS, ... of the Omaha R... 17, of pneumonia ... ten days. Mr. R... best known men ... years he kept ... supply house was ... by his sid hunch ... were started, th... have never been ... ly after president ... tion Mr. Rounds ... lic printer. The ... was held, was evi... of employes that ... the Exhibit House ... the evening of Se... purpose of sayin... man who had be... friend than supe... printers and stev... him with an elegan... twelve pieces.

Death of Hon. S. C. Moffatt.

S. C. Moffatt, ... congress from the ... died last Thurs... Washington. His ... by a malignant eath... which resulted in ... Mrs. Moffatt who ... Traverse City ... but did not reach he ... his dhath.

Deceased who w... Traverse City, was ... Creek, Mich. Ang... graduated from the ... Michigan university ... at one time a memb... senate and later of ... being the speaker of ... In 1884 he was selecte... ninth congress and w... the Fiftieth congres... was a man of conside... stood high in the es... friends.

To Gall the F...

Senator Palmer of ... been chosen as Chairm... mittee on Agriculture ... republican he will pr... his friends, the farmer... they should be in paying ... manufacturers while th... urers starve out their ... their coal-breakers a... wheat at Liverpool qu... ing their hands too poo... thing at all. If Senato... make this clear to the ... he will be a good chairm... Herald.

Death of Daniel M...

Daniel Manning, ex... the treasury, died at Alb... urday afternoon, Dec 24, ... of his son, James H., wh... gone to spend the holida... neral took place Tuesda... Paul's Episcopal church ... and a hoop factory at South Ara...

Unprejudiced Gen. Houston.

When Gen. Sam Houston was governor of Texas he was very active and persistent in causing the prosecution of a defaulting officer—so much so indeed that the friends of the accused raised the cry of persecution. The governor, speaking of the fellow's conduct to a gentleman, locked his eye that he was prejudiced against the defaulter, declared that he had no other motive than the enforcement of the laws, and said that he would probably never have the opportunity of convincing the public that he had no feeling or personal animosity against the man. "The evidence against him will be so overwhelming that any grand jury will find a true bill of indictment," said the general, "and no petit jury in the world can fail to convict the scoundrel on such evidence. Then, when found guilty and sentenced, he will change his tune, and I shall find his sympathizer, friends for him will appeal to me for executive clemency. I will be my time to show that I have no prejudice. I shall pardon him, for I will never allow such an unmitigated scoundrel to contaminate the penitentiary of Texas."—Harper's Magazine.

Cousin's Aim.

A Boston young man was ... some Fort Worth gunners to ... Reeve's lake. As a large ... duck floated right by him, a ... shoot one of the Fort Worthia... and yelled:

"Why in thunder didn't you ...?"

"Why," answered the Boston ... "I got my gun loaded at on... other blamed green headed fool... right in between me and your cousi... aim at one."

The party went home.—Texas ...

Mistake of Identity.

Cousin Maud—Do you intend ... Charlie?

Western Stranger—Lectures? ... Yes, you lecture, don't you, ... you only writer?

... I am not a lecturer or an aut... am a manufacturer of car stove... "Oh! I beg your pardon. ... Blank might have made a mistak... you were a school commissioner ...

no rain our crops do not dry up, and never entirely fail.

As a fruit country, we shall always be able to raise our own apples, pears, plums and cherries. We can beat the world raising small fruits, and when we get regular and rapid communication with the large cities we can sell them at a good profit. As they will come into the market after the more southern crop is gone. Home grown apples, beautiful winter fruit of all the standard varieties, were sold on our streets this fall at 60 cts. per bushel.

There are still good openings here for men of small means to build for themselves good homes. We are still a new country, with plenty of wild lands in the hands of the railroad company and others, as good as any we have cleared. Those of us who have been here for 15 or 20 years are just getting out of the old house into the new,—that we have been building over and over again by our fire-side during the long evenings of the past winters. Still the homely old log house is in a large majority.

A man can come here with good health and plenty of grit as his only capital and succeed, but it would be better if he has wish these a few hundred dollars in ready money, say $1,000. Then he would not be obliged to draw quite so heavily on his stock of health and grit.

I know a man who bought 40 acres of wild land and stripped it the first winter he owned it. He sold 2,000 cords of furnace wood and 40,000 feet of hardwood logs—maple, elm and basswood. The timber paid for the land, and paid, with his own work, for a small house and barn and when I saw him he had 15 acres of as good wheat and oats as I ever saw, and 5 acres in potatoes and garden stuff. He was intending as soon as he got through harvesting to get the balance into fall wheat. He felt thoroughly independent and was no mean "third man." Of course this 10 was exceptionally heavily timbered but the point I wish to make is that the first crop a new settler in this county has is his timber, and that it will go a long way towards paying for his farm while he is clearing it up.

General Features of the County.

The surface of the country is every where rolling, and in some parts decidedly hilly. It is well watered and is generally covered with spring brooks of the coldest water. The soil varies from a light sandy to a heavy clay. The subsoil is of as varied a nature as the surface. Sugar maple elm, beech, basswood, hemlock and cedar timber is found in great quantities throughout the county. The principal crops are wheat, oats, corn, rye, clover, potatoes and root crops. The summer resorts at Charlevoix furnish an excellent market for all sorts of garden vegetables. All fruits do well. Grapes, plums, and the earlier kinds of apples are especially successful. Charlevoix county is at the northern extremity of the celebrated Michigan fruit belt. Unimproved lands are held at from $7 $15 per acre, while improved farms average from $15 to $60, in the interior and from $25 to $100 near Charlevoix. The lumber business is an important enterprise in this country. Wood, cedar ties, and posts, hemlock bark and logs are cut during the winter, and are shipped during the summer to Chicago, Milwaukee, Racine, and other lake ports. There are several saw mills in the county, a first-class full-roller flouring mill at Charlevoix, an iron furnace at Ironton, and a hoop factory at South Arm.

CABLING BY CIPHER.

How Cipher Codes Are Made and Why They Are Used by Brokers.

The people who use the cables most are, first, merchants engaged in the import and export trade, who employ it for the exchange of prices and offers, a single transaction often requiring many messages. Second, the stock brokers and dealers here and in Europe, especially the arbitrage brokers, whose business consists in taking advantage of the difference between the price of the same stock at a given time on the New York and London exchanges. For instance, if a stock drops suddenly in New York, by quick work a purchase can be made here and the stock resold in London before the change has lowered the price there. Each of the corresponding brokers realizes a profit wholly due to the close cable connection which enabled them to take advantage of a situation which could exist but a few minutes. A third great class of the cabling public includes the news agencies, the companies sending press reports, commercial reports and market quotations night and day the year round. The class of least importance to the companies is that using the cable only occasionally for private and non-commercial messages.

Cabling by cipher, which is the method most commercial houses employ for the sake of economy as well as of privacy, has become a science. The preparation of many of the cipher codes is most ingenious, and cipher messages demand the utmost skill and care on the part of the operators. A cipher word may stand for as many as six figures, and each one of these figures may stand for a sentence or a price, and its correctness be of the highest importance. The day of the week, the place of a word in a sentence, may each have a special significance, and the wrong use of a single figure may transpose the entire significance of every subsequent character in the message. Cable codes may be made up from words of any language to be found in standard dictionaries of that language, but the companies' rules provide that they shall not exceed ten letters in length and shall not be proper names. Some cable codes use as many as 100,000 words, in different languages, meaning nothing except through the combination figures they stand for. Vastly simpler figures are used for domestic telegraphing, wherein each word stands for a whole sentence. Cheap cable rates tend greatly to do away with the use of cipher messages.

In the making of cable codes exceedingly elaborate tables are required, containing combinations of figures and sentences of the most complicated sort. There are many different systems, but all require great study to make and a great deal of expert skill to use. The danger of mistake is considerable, and anything that would tend to simplify codes is desirable. The most potent influences would be low rates. For while most cipher codes were originally used for the sake of privacy, this is now deemed less important than the economy of brief messages. This is really the chief object of cipher cabling.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Pay of European Legislators.

Some curious statistics have been published concerning the salaries given to members of parliament in various foreign nations. To begin with France, the senators and deputies receive the same remuneration—namely, £1 a day. In Belgium each member of the chamber of representatives gets £17 a month. In Denmark the members of the Landsthing are paid about 10s a day. In Portugal the peers and commons are given the same sum, which is £97 a year. In Sweden the members of the diet receive £69 for a session of four months, but they have to refund a fine of 12s. for every day's absence. That is not a bad idea. In Switzerland the members of the national council get 18s. per diem, and those of the council of state from 6s. to 18s. In Norway the members of the sholthing receive 14s. a day during the session, which lasts about six weeks. In Italy the senators and deputies are not paid, but they are allowed traveling expenses and certain pleasures. In Spain the members of the cortes are also unpaid, but enjoy many advantages and immunities. In Greece the senators get £80 a month and the deputies £10. In Germany the representatives receive an average of 15s. a day; in Austria the pay is the same as in France, £1 a day. England is the only country where members of parliament are not only unpaid, but have no right to privileges.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Cash Club Rates

For the convenience of our friends who want a city paper the coming year, we will furnish either of the following with the JOURNAL one year at the price named:

Price.	With the Journal.
1 00 Babyland	1 85
1 00 Chicago Weekly Herald	2 00
1 00 Chicago Weekly Times	2 00
1 00 Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer	2 00
1 00 Cosmopolitan Monthly (monthly)	2 35
1 00 Cottage Hearth, monthly	2 00
1 00 Detroit Weekly Free Press	2 00
4 00 Harper's Bazar	4 70
4 00 Harper's Magazine, monthly	4 70
4 00 Harper's Weekly	4 70
2 00 Harper's Young People	2 60
1 00 Little Men and Women	1 85
1 00 Montreal Herald and Star	2 00
2 50 New York Weekly Graphic	3 00
1 00 New York Weekly Star	2 00
1 00 New York Weekly World	2 00
1 00 Puck	2 10
4 00 Scribner's Magazine	3 75
1 00 Toledo Weekly Blade	2 00
2 00 Wide Awake	2 60
1 00 Young Folks' Journal	1 85

LIVERY

Feed and Sale Stables.

Burns, Stevens & Co.,

The Oldest and Largest Livery Stable in Charlevoix County. The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand. Rates Low.

BRIDGE STREET,
CHARLEVOIX. MICHIGAN.

NEW LIVERY AND Feed Barn.

LITNEY & STEIMEL
PROPRIETORS
Opposite Bridge Street House Charlevoix.

FIRST-CLASS RIGS
REASONABLE RATES.

E. B. HODGE & CO.
Have a full stock of
HEAVY HARNESS,
Horse Blankets,
Buffalo and Plush Lap Robes, Sleigh Bells, Whips, Etc.
CHARLEVOIX. MICHIGAN.

MILLINERY,
Dressmaking,
Ladies' Fancy Goods.

A Splendid Line of Ribbons Ladies' Gloves, Zephyrs, Laces, Ladies' Fine Underwear, and Stamping Goods always on hand at Lowest Prices.

ALDRICH SISTERS,
At the Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

Jos. Beauvais
BOAT-BUILDER.

The Best Modeled, Easiest Rowing, and Best Sailing Boats in Northern Michigan, for the Least Money. Give me a Trial. I am bound to Please.

Boat Livery
In connection with shop.
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

WM. J. STEVENSON,
HORSE-SHOEING,
Wagon Shop.
BLACKSMITHING, ETC.
Heavy Wagons on hand and made to order. Repairing promptly attended to. Prices of the best market. WARRANT ALL WORK. Call and examine before buying elsewhere.
SHOP ONE BLOCK WEST OF CARPENTER, GARTHOLOMEW & CO.'S STORE, CHARLEVOIX.
Agent for the OSBORNE MOWING MACHINE on hand and for sale. 17

John Nicholls,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.,
Manufacturer of and dealer in
HARDWOOD AND PINE
LUMBER!
ALSO
Dressed lumber, Oar Blades, Wagon Tongues, Shingles, Lath, etc.
LUMBER SAWED AND BILLS FILLED TO ORDER.

NEW - GOODS!
Call and see my new assortment of
WATCHES, JEWELRY
SILVERWARE,
OPTICAL GOODS, ETC., ETC.
NEW PATTERNS IN SILVERWARE
A large assortment of Spectacles and Eye Glasses, for all ages, for both far and near sighted.
Repairing done Promptly and Warranted. Reserve articles not called for in six months are subject to sale for charges.
C. R. BELLINGER,
Bridge St., - Charlevoix.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charlevoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.
Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.
Come and see me.
GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!
We are headquarters for everything in our line.
A great Reduction in the prices of CLOAKS and Wraps, to close them out.
Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

CALL AND SEE OUR
Christmas Goods!
We can show you Something New.
Toys a Specialty!
F. A. Cochran & Co., Charlevoix.

Bargains IN BOOTS & SHOES
The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.
FOX & MILLER

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS
Hardware Iron and Nail Merchants.
CHAMPION FORCE PUMPS
PLOWS, BARBED WIRE, ETC., LEAD.
SAVE YOUR DOLLARS
And buy them of Yours Truly,
STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,
Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.
TERRACE FARM. - - - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Proprietor.
Charlevoix - Michigan.
Finest location in town, giving good view of lakes and resorts. Express office, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages. Good comfy rooms for commercial travelers adjoining hotel.

WILL H. FRANCIS,
Furniture and Jobbing Shop.
Will also do Contracting and Building in Charlevoix and Summer Resorts. Also prepared to do all kinds of Turning and Jobbing, which enables me to do Jobbing, Repairing, Etc., on short notice. Shop on South Terrace, opposite Harrison Berdan's residence.

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF CHARLEVOIX, MICH. (1884).

Charlevoix Summer Resort.

The land in the vicinity of Charlevoix being formed of a series of terraces, a point of land facing Round Lake, the channel, and Pine Lake seemed to the writer in hand, naturally adapted for the location of a pleasure resort. In 1877, several parties wanted to locate at Charlevoix a summer resort, but as it seemed impossible to secure the proper amount of land, the project fell through. Later several of the enterprising citizens of the village took the matter in hand, and assisted by H. W. Page, an association was formed, the call for the first meeting being filed with the county clerk of Kalamazoo county on May 23, 1878, and with the Secretary of the State of Michigan, May 24, 1878. The first regular meeting of "The Charlevoix Summer Resort" was held on June 21, 1878, at 63 Lovell street, Kalamazoo. In Charlevoix a committee consisting of J. Milo Eaton, E. Carpenter and R. Cooper, solicited $625, and bought of M. J. Stockman twenty-five acres of land which was presented to the association on condition that the latter should make improvements amounting to $1,000 within two years.

Previous to October 1st, 1878, six cottages were erected and a deed received from the citizens committee, executed by M. J. Stockman. The season of 1879 witnessed fourteen new cottages added to the Resort, and in May, 1880, all of the land between the resort and the bayou and channel, to the north was bought and added to the original plat. The season being very prosperous, the resort was still further enlarged in October, by the addition of the wooded land to the south of lands east of the resort lands, old and new, to Pine Lake, making a most beautiful square of seventy-five acres on three terraces, facing Pine Lake, the channel, the bayou and R and Lake.

The beach is very pleasant, resembling the ocean beaches from its freedom of pebbles, and the water for a long distance is so shallow, it makes both a pleasant and safe bathing place for children, and is well patronized, and a tier of bath houses on the beach makes bathing convenient. Most of the avenues are provided with plank walks, and the resort is connected with the village, one-half mile distant, by a continuous walk. The bayou is utilized by the resort as a harbor for its fleet of yachts, sail and row boats. At its south side is a steamboat dock, and on either shore are lines of boat-houses. The larger steamboat dock is located on the channel near the bayou, and will be a fixture as the government recently dredged the channel in a permanent manner. New cottages are erected every year, but it is not the aim or ambition of the resort to grow rapidly, but to add to its members fitted of its tastes, as those already here, and in this way in a few years have a handsome a resort as any locality, for nature has location has given all that could be desired. The sunrise views of Pine Lake, and the sunset views of Lake Michigan are unsurpassed. The cottages built in the different styles of fancy architecture and brightly painted, add to the beauty of the scene. The breezes coming in the morning from off the sweep of Pine Lake, and in the afternoon from a distance of one hundred miles, over the waters of Lake Michigan, give vigor to the body, and infuses new life into ones' system. There is no better asylum for hay fever subjects than on this resort; the air being pure, and the waters on two sides producing a circulation seldom found at any resort.

The members of the resort live in cottages, or at the Belvedere House. Some cottagers keep house, but many take table board entirely at the Belvedere, as the rates to members' families are very low. This enables persons to devote all their time to rest, recreation and eating, without the annoyance of housekeeping, and they feel more like new people at the end of the season.

The amusements are varied. Music hall is used for religious meetings, also for social parties, dances, spelling school, concerts, lectures and musicals. The bowling alley is open at all times, and is well cared for. Of course boating, sailing and steamboat excursions stands first in the line of regular amusements. Excursions are of daily occurrence.

This resort is not the location of any particular sect or locality. It is to transient travelers until last season, and then only to a limited number.

The grounds are nicely laid out and well cared for, and have excellent boating privileges, boat-houses, etc. Mr. S. M. Moore of Chicago is president of the club, and for two seasons Mr. N. W. Edgar of Jackson, Mich., has been steward. The dealings of the club with the people of Charlevoix have been generous and pleasant, the members being especially liberal in their contributions to our churches and religious societies. We understand that they also granted freely the right of way for the D., C. & E. R. R. across their premises on the beach of Pine Lake.

Wm. Dougherty has been warden for the club since '83.

Sent His Girl the Wrong Postal Card.

A Millinstown young man not long since wrote two postal cards on entirely different subjects. He then turned them over and addressed them, but by mistake placed the address on the wrong cards. The result was that the shirt maker in Harrisburg got a polite invitation to take a carriage ride in Ruff Warde's barouche, while the young man's girl was made frantic by receiving the following: "Please send me a sample of the stuff your shirts are made of."—Newport Ledger.

MAP OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY.

Charlevoix Village Schools, 1887-8.

OFFICERS.

Moderator—E. Carpenter.
Director—Oscar Upright.
Assessor—O. S. Washburn.

TEACHERS.

H. M. Enos, superintendent and high school.

Miss Nettie C. Gray, assistant in high school and seventh and eighth grades.

Miss Flora Nelson, fifth and sixth grades.

Miss Maggie O'Neil, third and fourth grades.

Miss Lottie M. Mason, second and third grades.

Mrs. Oscar Upright, first grade.

ESTIMATED EXPENSES.

Teachers' wages	$2,345 00
Fuel	175 00
Janitor	150 00
Rent	250 00
Taking census	10 00

Whole number of children in the district, 361.

Charlevoix Township Library.

Rooms in Village Hall, open Tuesday and Friday afternoons and evenings. Contains 629 volumes. Gurley Boak, librarian.

Charlevoix Churches.

Church goers in Charlevoix have an advantage seldom enjoyed by residents of other towns of the same size in the fact that during the resort season many eminent clergymen consent to occupy our pulpits. There is probably not a Sunday during July and August without one or more reverend gentlemen from leading churches in eastern, southern or western cities, addressing our people. The religious work of the community has attained a higher average effectiveness than most villages of its size.

M. E. CHURCH.

Class was organized during the summer of 1867. Since that time the following named gentlemen have served the church as pastors:

1867-8—J. Golick.
1869-70—A. J. Wheeler.
1871—Wright Barrett.
1872—Mark Browning and George L. Cole.
1873-4—George L. Cole.
1875-6—Wm. L. Tridem.
1877-9—B. H. Whitman.
1880—Mr. McElwer.
1881-2—G. Daniels.
1883-5—J. T. Hilings.
1886-7—W. H. McCartney.

Trustees for 1888—M. J. Stockman president, E. H. Green treasurer, and F. J. Meech secretary.

Number of members of the church, 120; number in the Sunday school; teachers, 16, scholars 105.

The house of worship was erected in 1874-7.

Sunday services at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Sunday school at the close of the morning service. Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:00 o'clock.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

This church was organized July 5, 1870, with Rev. A. M. Parmenter as pastor. Mr. Parmenter closed his pastorate in 1882, and for four years the church was without a pastor. In 1886 the church was reorganized with a membership of sixteen.

The present pastor, Willis G. Clark began his pastorate April 1, 1886. The church now numbers 38 members, with a Sunday school of about 40 members. Trustees are Messrs. C. Y. Cook, Sullivan Parker, A. J. Mudge, A. T. Washburne and R. W. Kane.

Sunday service at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sunday school at the close of morning service. Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:30. All meetings are held at Green's hall.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Organized Sept. 19, 1882, by Rev. Leroy Warren, superintendent of home missions. Pastors:

1882-6—Chauncey F. Van Auken.
1886-7—Alfred T. Waterman.
1887—Allison O. Downs.

Trustees for 1888—J. L. Hurd, Wm Kanagy, John Nichols, A. D. Chruickshank, John Burns, E. M. Clark.

Church clerk.—Horace S. Harsha.

Superintendent of Sunday school, Prof. H. M. Enos.

No. of members—80.

No. in Sunday school—7 teachers, 100 scholars.

House of worship erected in 1883-4.

Sunday services at at 10:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Sunday school at close of morning service. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7:00 o'clock.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Christ Church Mission was organized Jan. 16, 1887, by Bishop Geo. D. Gillespie, D. D., who appointed W. P. Brown warden, Mrs. Genevieve Guyles secretary, and Mrs. Geo. Bates treasurer. The warden was also licensed lay reader, catechist and instructor.

The following clergymen have officiated one or more Sundays: Rt. Rev. Bishop Gillespie, Rev. J. W. Banerott, general missionary, Rev. Campbell Fair, D. D., Rev. W. H. Van Antwerp, D. D., Rev. Frederick Lee, Rev. J. W. Rippey, D. D., Rev. R. E. Jones, and Rev. C. T. Stout.

Sixteen persons have been baptised. The bishop confirmed 14 persons June 26th.

The Ladies Guild hold in trust for the mission two lots on Antrim street, on which they have paid one-half the purchase price, and have undertaken to pay $100 per year on the balance. There is a building fund for a chapel, amounting to about $200. Plans and specifications are in preparation for it, and it is proposed to erect and enclose it for summer use, by the opening of the resort season.

There are about 60 members of the church by baptism, 39 communicants by confirmation, 10 catechistes for baptism and 6 candidates for confirmation.

At last Easter day, Christ church Sunday school was organized, with three grades: First, primary, all who are taught orally; Second, intermediate, all catechumens or candidates for baptism; Third, seniors, all others. Each grade has its teacher. Primary, Mrs. Geo. Bates; intermediate, Mrs. Henry Cooper; seniors, W. P. Brown, who is warden has supervision. The school was organized with 14 persons. Whole number enrolled since, 91. Number who have attended two or more Sundays, 72. Average attendance, 36. The church catechism is the basis of all instruction. The sole aim is to bring all children to Christ in His way, and when brought in, to train them up in the Lord. Of the whole number, 41 are baptised into Christ. Of this number 20 are confirmed and communicants. There are ten candidates for baptism, and six candidates for confirmation.

On Christmas day, Carl Grines Clifford, Florence Ometa Hanson, Ethel Irene Hanson, and L...

NYE AT THE PLAY.

The Allurements of a Bowery Theater.

It is to be regretted that during the past week so little attention has been paid by the bright and able amusement and theatrical writers of the New York press to the bill nightly presented by the London theater, of this place. Certainly for those who enjoy an evening of uninterrupted, at a trifling expense there is naught to compete with the Lonsdaleans of solid fun that anybody can get, together with thirty or forty others, are very merely offered in twenty-five cents, and it certainly is time to enter in an era of prosperity and feeling among the plain people a spectacular, musical and dramatic treat rates.

I was lady with me to the London that I would go first and see myself. I found that the rest consisted of gentlemen who did the same way.

Starts with a can opener and an organ which rapid fiddling is done to the gain porosity on each side dash, followed by the Lonsdale brawn accounts of the ... is a medley, and admirable by the audience, led by two bear me, dressed up in their ... a chew of tobacco spices, ... side of their faces and consequently an amateur expression and a tinge of the concealed. When the vast audience was ... it frequently was after a ... from the stage, I fancied ... the salivary glands of these ... filing on bejeeks, through ... a bit of life in Paris. ... Life spinds, which is really ... than anything else, the ... stuff, consisting of four bandits ... in full dress and poises ... few strains, during which ... their notes with some diffi... popular value. The dance ... very much, especially ... sing, say more. I think ... only superior to the Gilmax ... by the Little Mammoths or ... quartet.

... have produced with Eden ... and, with a calcium light ... used me much better than ... der.

... next devoted to selections ... by Dolmar and Delmar, ... their clothes several times, ... lovely women are discovered ... the stage dressed in men's ...

... women sing a song which ... other songs that have been ... are or less sinning down ... making up several hons ... constitutional social scoop ... which one of the sins ... ing a baseball uniform, ... like a flannel doll that has ... heavy wagon, distinctly ... nk manner winks toward ... hat on again to cover my ...

... oung woman sings a song, ... ally understood that it is ... it sounds similar, though ... her gestures that it has ... and instead of strolling ... he wanders by the brook ... bank of sadness falls on ... he clutches at her heart ...

... TARTS. Van Lung and Mr. ... well back on the ... ty, intimates that the ... relief. They claimed ... rest in order ... ee-one night stand. ... Lung's show begins ... the Grotto ... Dyke, for 3 days.

... Rye ... in New York World.

... of Rev. Sam Houston ... was governor of ... active and persistent in ... of a defaulting ... that the friends of ... prosecution. ... conduct, he said ... against the defaulter, declared ... no other motive than the ... of the laws, and that he ... opportunity of ... public that he had no feeling ... against the man. "The ... against him will be overwhelming ... any grand jury will find a true bill of ... and the general, and no petit ... in the world can fail to convict the ... on such evidence. Then, when found ... and sentenced, he will change his tune, ... and his sympathizer, friends for him ... appeal to me for executive clemency. ... will be my time to show that I have no ... prejudice. I shall pardon him, for I will ... never allow such an unmitigated scoundrel ... contaminate the penitentiary of Texas."—Harper's Magazine.

... Dr. Fowler's Extract ... Cholera Morbus ... Diarrhœa ... Dysentery ... Cholera Infantum ... Sold by all druggists. ... Price 35 cents. ... Mattie Messenger ... Proctor, diphtheria would carry off a million people per year. ... tobacco quids were found ... in the new st. beans Gulfer.—Bill Nye ... New York World.

... fect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Kromer. ... done.

CHAR

Com county local p

The declare state c portant

Tra
notes J success
Moffatt,
will be
was can and red
of 7,475,

Give t with a f clothing can out a
in an un will enjo
"appetiz of tobac publican

S. P. R
of the On 17, of ne
ten days.
best know
years he supply ho
by his ab were star have neve
by after p
tion Mr. P
lic printer, was hold,
of employ the Exhibit the evenin purpose o man who friend the printers n him with a twelve piec

Death
S. C. M congress fr died last
Washington
by a malign
which resul
Mrs. Moffatt

Isabel Cross, who have a perfect record for attendance, lessons, and good behavior since Easter, were enrolled and constitute the League of Honor. On Easter day, all others will be added who may be alike worthy. Have a Sunday school library of 90 volumes. Have a session every Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Officers of Societies.

CHARLEVOIX ENCAMPMENT NO. 103, I. O. O. F.

C. P.—A. D. Cruickshank.
S. W.—J. E. Wood.
H. P.—John Burns.
R. S.—Robert O'Neill.
A. S.—W. A. Brown.
Treas.—L. D. Bartholomew.
J. W.—R. S. Shapton.
Rep. to G. E.—Jas. A. Kent.

CHARLEVOIX LODGE NO. 293, I. O. O. F.

N. G.—F. W. Mayne.
V. G.—Geo. Madison.
R. Sec.—Jno. Burns.
F. Sec.—Chas. E. Swallow.
Treas.—L. D. Bartholomew.
Trustee 3 yrs.—L. D. Bartholomew
Rep. to G. L.—Chas. E. Swallow.

CHARLEVOIX LODGE NO. 282, F. & A. M.

W. M.—W. A. Smith.
S. W.—A. J. McLeod.
J. W.—A. McNeil.
S. D.—A. M. Ross.
J. D.—J. L. Price.
Chaplain—John Shapton.
Treas.—R. Cooper.
Sec.—A Rosenfield.
Stewards—A. E. Mason and J. M. Ackert.
Tyler—Ben Campbell.

BAXTER POST NO. 119, G. A. R.

Commander—Dr. D. C. Chamberlin
S. V. C.—L. D. Porter.
J. V. C.—D. J. Bigelow.
Surgeon—Dr. J. A. Carlstein.
Adjutant—B. H. Krebs.
Chaplain—E. B. Hodge.
Quartermaster—Wm. Kanagy.
O. D.—Morris J. Stockman.
O. G.—Thomas Bonk.
Q. M. S.—M. J. Bartlett.
S. M.—R. Miller.
Guard—James Awassakezhik.
Delegate—E. H. Green.
Alternate—Dr. J. A. Carlstein.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

President—E. H. Green.
First Vice Pres.—R. W. Kane.
Second Vice Pres.—Flora Nelson.
Secretary—Alice Coehran.
Treasurer—Mrs. O. S. Washburn.
Librarian—H. M. Enos.
Executive committee—Rev. W. G. Clark, Dr. N. J. Perry, Mrs. A. T. Washburne, Miss Nettie C. Gray, and Miss Luna Washburn.

W. C. T. U.

President—Mrs. L. E. Mudge.
First V. P.—Mrs. C. J. Strang.
Second V. P.—Mrs. C. E. Sec.
Third V. P.—Mrs. A. J. Mudge.
R. Sec.—Mrs. Ella Stevenson.
Asst. R. Sec.—Mrs. L. Benson.
Cor. Sec.—Mrs. J. A. Hawkins.
Treas.—Mrs. D. J. McElroy.

CHARLEVOIX LODGE 227 I. O. G. T.

C. T.—W. H. Phelps.
V. T.—Lola Carter.
Sec.—Orville Phelps.
F. Sec.—Pearl Dartt.
Treas.—W. W. Washburn.
Chaplain.—Edith Phelps.
I. G.—Annie McCartney.
O. G.—Fred Hemmings.

Population.

	1874	1880	1884
Bear Lake a	...	366	550
Boyne Valley	91	204	501
Chandler t	...	...	164
Charlevoix	620	419	1,350
Evangeline	799	850	1,367
Eveline	312	554	1,303
Hayes	...	452	662
Hudson d	...	148	117
Marion	221	306	446
Melrose a	...	79	360
Norwood	302	366	431
Resort t	...	156	174
South Arm	399	737	1,368
Springvale p	...	206	192
Wilson	333	261	518
Totals	2,285	3,115	9,232

a Organized in 1877 from Charlevoix township.
b Organized in 1880 from Springvale.
c Organized in 1877 from Charlevoix.
d Organized in 1877 from Boyne Valley.
e Organized in 1877 from Evangeline.
f Organized in 1880 from Bear Lake.
g Organized in 1877 from Charlevoix and Evangeline.

NO HOME BLESSED WITH A BABY is complete without the monthly visits of Raymond, that delight, comfort and aid of the mother. Only publication in the world devoted to the care of young children. We are $5 to recommend it. (5 Beekman St., N. Y.) $1.00 a year; 15 cents a copy.

Jenny Lind and Her Husband.

At the Goldschmidt house, in the Morton gardens, Bolton, S. W., there are a number of portraits of the great cantatrice, and though none of them give the impression of beauty, one can scarcely realize that they once looked like this curious little old lady. She is the plainest, most old fashioned little body imaginable, dressing in the style of thirty-five years ago, with a plain skirt gathered into a tight fitting bodice, and not a loop or bit of trimming of any kind. Over her shoulder is a little cape, folded like a Quaker. She wears her hair smoothed down over her ears under a big white cap. Jenny Lind's husband, Otto Goldschmidt, though he is quite bald, is fifteen years younger than his wife. The story of their marriage is a romantic one and little known. During her travels through America Sir Julius Benedict, her accompanist, was obliged suddenly to return to England, and then she remembered a poor young German musician who had met the year before and sent for him at once to supply Sir Julius' place.

It was not long before the young musician was violently in love with the prima donna, but, being poor and unknown and so much her junior, he had no hope of any success. Finally he became so unhappy he resigned his place, and being pressed by the cantatrice to tell the reason for such a step, he confessed his hopeless love, and was astonished and delighted when she fell into his arms and declared she had loved him from the first. They have been extremely happy together, and now people scarcely guess that she is the older of the two.—New York World.

County Officers.

Circuit Judge, 13th circuit—J. G. Ramsdell, Traverse City.
Judge of Probate—James A. Kent, East Jordan
Acting Sheriff—Willis Hard, Boyne.
Clerk—Samuel R. Thatcher, Boyne.
Treasurer.—Orlando Blair, Boyne.
Register of Deeds—F. J. Meech, Charlevoix.
Prosecuting Attorney—R. L. Corbett, Boyne.
Circuit Court Commissioner—Will N. Moore, East Jordan.
Coroner—Dr. Sanderson, Boyne; Dr. Bennett, East Jordan.

Charlevoix Village Officers.

President—A. J. McLeod.
Clerk—H. S. Hawkins.
Treasurer—A. J. Mudge.
Trustees—A. Cameron, J. Milo Eaton, A. E. Mason, W. C. Newman W. A. Smith, S. M. Sec Street Commissioner—Gurley Boak.
Chief of Fire Department—O. S. Washburn.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

ARTHUR E. MARTIN, Attorney at law, Boyne City. Collections promptly attended to.

CRUCKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law and Proctors in Admiralty. Office in Bellars Block, Charlevoix, Mich.
A. D. CRUCKSHANK. C. J. GRIER.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney and Counselor Real Estate business promptly attended to MONEY TO LOAN

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

W. M. MOORE, Attorney and Solicitor, East Jordan. Admiralty a Specialty.

DENTISTRY.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office at Cochran's Drug Store. CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

PHYSICIANS.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office and residence Mt. Murray St. Office hours, 9.00 to 10.00 A. M., and 4.00 to 5.00 P. M.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Office in the Lewis block, Charlevoix, Mich.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

ISAAC S. HAKSHA, Notary Public, Real Estate, Loan, and Insurance Agt., Charlevoix.

W. F. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Ass't Cashier.
Brown & Co's Bank of Charlevoix
CAPITAL $25,000.
Drafts drawn direct upon the principal cities of the world. Collections receive prompt attention. Good securities always for sale. Travelers to and from all points in Europe by best lines. Correspondents—National Bank of Commerce, New York; First National Bank, Chicago; Merchants National Bank, Grand Rapids; Detroit National Bank, Detroit; Fourth National Bank, Grand Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank
Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.
O. D. WOOD, President. A. SUTTARS, Vice President. F. A. SMITH, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
O. D. Wood, A. Suttars, F. A. Smith, John Nicholls, M. H. Wood, F. W. Mayne, J. L. Hunt.
CAPITAL, $25,000
Surplus, 2,000
The liabilities of stockholders in all State banking institutions, Act 174, Sec. 40 Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, thus doubling the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.
Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued payable at sight.
We respectfully solicit your patronage.
CORRESPONDENTS:
National Park Bank, New York.
Commercial National Bank, Chicago.
National City Bank, Grand Rapids.
Detroit National Bank, Detroit.

A. J. McLeod
Can be found at the old stand with a
FULL STOCK OF MEATS
At Wholesale and Retail.
HIDES, PELTS, & FAT STOCK WANTED

F. E. WOOD,
BARBER SHOP
And Bath Rooms.
Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

Poster Printing
Quick and Cheap,
At the Journal Office.

List of all the Notaries of Charlevoix County.

NAMES.	Date of Appointment.	Date of Expiration.	P. O. Address.
Barnes, Judge W.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Boyne Falls.
Blair, Orlando	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	East Jordan.
Bontinger, Fred.	Feb. 5, 1887	Feb. 5, 1891	East Jordan.
Brown, Walter F.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Charlevoix.
Bullars, Archibald	May 14, 1887	May 13, 1891	Boyne City.
Campbell, Peter M.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Clark, Jay H.	April 16, 1887	April 15, 1891	Charlevoix.
Cook, Elisha S.	Feb. 17, 1880	Feb. 16, 1884	Charlevoix.
Cook, Elisha S.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	East Jordan.
Corbett, Roscoe L.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Cruickshank, Andrew D.	May 14, 1887	May 13, 1891	Boyne City.
Durrall, John E.	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	Boyne City.
Eaton, Jerome C.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Charlevoix.
Dixon, John H.	Jan. 14, 1887	Jan. 13, 1891	Charlevoix.
Dixon, Joseph R.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Charlevoix.
Fraser, Alex.	Jan. 16, 1886	Jan. 15, 1890	Boyne City.
Emery, J. Reed	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	Charlevoix.
Fairchild, Geo.	Feb. 17, 1887	Feb. 16, 1891	East Jordan.
Frink, Joseph S.	Feb. 17, 1887	Feb. 16, 1891	East Jordan.
Gee, Wm. M.	April 16, 1887	April 15, 1891	Charlevoix.
Green, Edward H.	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	Norwood.
Harris, William	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	Norwood.
Haksha, Horace S.	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	Charlevoix.
Healey, Alfred F.	Feb. 17, 1887	Feb. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Hill, Levi	Feb. 17, 1887	Feb. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Hunt, James A.	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	Charlevoix.
Kent, James A.	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	East Jordan.
Lanway, F. R.	Jan. 14, 1887	Jan. 13, 1891	South Arm.
Lewis, Edwin A.	May 14, 1887	May 13, 1891	Pentwater.
Martin, Arthur E.	Feb. 5, 1887	Feb. 5, 1891	Boyne City.
Martin, Geo. E.	Feb. 5, 1887	Feb. 5, 1891	East Jordan.
Mayer, Fred W.	April 16, 1887	April 15, 1891	Charlevoix.
Miller, Geo.	Feb. 5, 1887	Feb. 5, 1891	East Jordan.
Miller, Hugh R.	Feb. 5, 1887	Feb. 5, 1891	Bay Springs.
Miller, Robert A.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Nash, Garret V.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Norwood.
Nicholls, Harry	April 16, 1887	April 15, 1891	Charlevoix.
Norton, Lillie E.	April 16, 1887	April 15, 1891	Boyne City.
Pearson, Jas. E.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Pearson, William J.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Reigle, Jacob L.	Feb. 11, 1886	Feb. 10, 1890	Dist.
Reinhart, Charles A.	April 16, 1887	April 15, 1891	East Jordan.
Robinson, Hoork N.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Sargent, Elisha H.	Mar. 17, 1887	Mar. 16, 1891	Boyne City.
Stauffer, Isaac	Feb. 11, 1886	Feb. 10, 1890	Carpenter.
Shepherd, Jas. E.	Jan. 14, 1887	Jan. 13, 1891	East Jordan.
Thatcher, Sam R.	April 16, 1887	April 15, 1891	Charlevoix Cty.
Upright, Oscar	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	Charlevoix.
Waggoner, James A.	Jan. 19, 1887	Jan. 18, 1891	Bear Lake.
Winner, Oscar F.	Feb. 5, 1887	Feb. 5, 1891	South Arm.
Wood, O. D.	Mar. 27, 1885	Mar. 26, 1889	Charlevoix.

G. W. CROUTER
DRUGGIST AND STATIONER.
A FINE LINE OF PHOTO. ALBUMS, ALBUMS OF CHARLEVOIX, AND DRUGGISTS SUNDRIES.

A New Attraction in Town
AND LOCATED IN THE
Dry Goods & Carpet Store
OF
A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.
Who are pleased to announce to the people of Charlevoix and vicinity that in this store a great

5c., 10c., and 25c. COUNTER

Has been placed, and invite all friends and customers to call in and see for themselves if they cannot get bargains in

A General Line of House Furnishing Goods.
All for 5c., 10c., and 25c.

These counters being a new attraction, you are invited to call and see them. Having obtained them through a Chicago house that makes it their business to buy these goods for a great deal less than they are worth, by purchasing from Auctions, Job Lots, at Forced Sales, Sheriff Sales, and in fact from anyone that is obliged to have money and forces their goods onto the market for much less than their real value, are prepared to offer you these goods at prices much cheaper than ever sold at before. You can find hundreds of very useful articles on these counters to select from, and if you will call and see them you will certainly be surprised and buy here as long as the attraction lasts.

Why pay 25 and 50c. and even 75c. for goods that you are using and buying every day, when you can buy the same goods, New, Fresh, and Clean, on these counters for 5c., 10c., and 25c.? These goods will positively be retailed at these cheap prices. Come and see for yourselves.

To give you a full list of all these great bargains would be next to an impossibility, as the line is so large.

Call in and Inspect these Counters. All the goods are displayed to view, and only three prices, 5c., 10c., and 25c.

Call and see this stock, and see if you cannot save 40c. on every dollar's worth of goods you buy. Remember, a full line of GLASSWARE, TINWARE, WOODENWARE, QUEENSWARE, HARDWARE, NOTIONS, and in fact a little of everything on these Great 5c., 10c. and 25c. Counters.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.
Green's Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

THE ATKINS SAWS
NEW PERFECTION AXES
Round Oak Stoves.
Job and Tin Work.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL
Eight Pages, 48 Columns.
$1.50 PER YEAR
Published Every Thursday.
Address CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher, Charlevoix, Mich.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Dec. 29, 1887.

OUR HOLIDAY SUPPLEMENT.

Extra copies of our supplement, for circulation abroad, can be had at the office for five cents each. As this is our only source of pay for the extra labor involved, we hope no one will consider the price too high. If the scheme is considered of any value in advertising our town and county, and enough copies are sold to pay the cost, we will undertake a larger sheet next year.

Local Notes and News.

☞For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. 1021

Charlevoix Lodge F. & A. M. is now in its 16th year of work.

There really is a Santa Claus, so say many of Charlevoix's children.

The Baptist Sunday school were out for a sleigh ride Monday afternoon.

Elmer Mayne and Will Horton cut a cedar tree yesterday that made twenty ties.

A load of young people from Ironton attended Sunday evening service at Charlevoix.

The ladies netted about $18 from their Christmas dinner at the Bridge Street House.

The children of the Congregational Sunday school were treated to a sleigh ride Saturday afternoon.

The High School Reading Club h ave a public reading next Monday evening at the village hall.

There is so weekly newspaper printed and sent for a year for One Dollar that excels the Chicago Weekly Herald.

☞It is admitted that the Help-Mate sewing machine is the best in the market for the money. Sold by S. M. See & Sons.

☞Don't pay a travelling agent $40 for a sewing machine when you can get a first class machine of S. M. See & Sons for $30

The fine printing of the Chicago Weekly Herald makes its illustrations unexcelled by those of any other newspaper—very attractive. The Herald is only One Dollar per year.

Saturday and Sunday seemed to be merry days in Charlevoix, especially for the little folks. Besides the special exercises of the several Sunday schools, there were numerous family gatherings in town.

The house of Nick Shores, in Norwood was burned Tuesday night. Mr. Shores was not living in the house himself, but it was occupied by another family, who succeeded in getting most of their furniture out.

Notice.—Parties owing the Charlevoix manufacturing Co. are hereby notified that our accounts with such parties must be paid at once. Legal steps will be taken to enforce the collection of all past due notes and accounts. Settlements can be made at Stockman & Iddings' store.

Round Lake Lodge I. O. O. F. has amended its by-laws so as to become a benefit lodge, and all members in good standing incapacitated by sickness from pursuing their daily labor will receive three dollars per week during their sickness.

Rev. A. O. Downs of the Congregational church, has been supplied with blank petitions addressed to congress against the admission of Utah to the Union so long as she continues her polygamous practices. A general movement has been inaugurated throughout the entire country on this subject.

The public installation of officers of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday evening was an elegant affair. Of the feast in connection, 120 persons partook. Those in charge were bent on making this the biggest day in the history of the lodge, and that they succeeded is attested by all who were present.

One of the men who lately left here for southern California, writes back that board is ten dollars a week, work to be obtained, and that those who can get back will do so at the first opportunity. The writer also says that any man who has got even twenty acres in Charlevoix county is a king by the side of anyone who hopes to earn a living by manual labour in the west.—Enterprise.

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of Munn & Co., patent solicitors, in another column. Their name is familiar to patentees throughout the country. By connection with the publication of the Scientific American for the past thirty years, they have made the business of obtaining patents a specialty. They have prepared pamphlets, which they will send free, on the subject of patents, and they transact business in connection with the Patent Office in Washington, D. C., as well as with the patent offices of the various foreign countries. Their facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued payable at sight.

We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

National Park Bank, New York.
Commercial National Bank, Chicago.
National City Bank, Grand Rapids.
Detroit National Bank, Detroit.

A. J. McLeod
Can be found at the old stand with a
FULL STOCK OF MEATS
At Wholesale and Retail.
HIDES, PELTS, & FAT STOCK WANTED

F. E. WOOD,
BARBER SHOP
And Bath Rooms.
Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

Poster Printing
Quick and Cheap,
At the Journal Office.

Paretly Personal.

F. D. Philips is on the sick list this week.

A. F. Draper, of South Arm, has been appointed postmaster.

Elmer Mudge expects to leave Charlevoix to-day for Florida.

Perry Weed will award the prize dictionary and rack next Monday.

George Weaver of Reed City is spending a week in town with friends.

Mrs. C. I. Cook left Charlevoix last Saturday to join Mr. Cook in Florida.

Miss Nettie Gray is spending the holidays at her home in Traverse City.

Mrs. G. B. Guyles went to Norwood on Tuesday, for a visit with friends.

Miss Jennie Harris, of Elk Rapids, is spending the holidays at the home of S. M. See.

Ben Weaver and wife, of Boyne, spent Christmas with friends in Charlevoix.

If at any time you are in need of a first-class Santa Claus, just call on Elmer Mayne.

M. J. Stockman leaves today for a business trip to his possessions at Fort Orange, Florida.

We are pleased to see E. A. Spaulding of Norwood on the street again, after his recent illness.

Prof. Allen and wife left Monday morning for East Jordan, where they will spend a few weeks.

Mrs. M. J. Mathews of Detroit arrived Saturday, and is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. A. T. Washburne.

C. J. Strang has been confirmed by the senate as postmaster of Charlevoix. Mr. Lamar has not yet been confirmed.—Sentinel.

Fred Hemmings is laid up this week with a stiff neck. We had a good week's work laid out for him in our job department, but had to get along sort-handed.

Coming Events.

The W. C. T. U. will meet in Jefferies' hall Friday at 2.30.

Baxter Post, G. A. R. will have a public installation of officers Monday evening, Jan. 9th. Program of exercises next week.

The Methodist society meets at the house of W. P. Brown, Friday evening. A special program will be prepared. Prof. Enos will read the paper of the evening.

On account of storm the entertainment for Sunday school appointed at the residence of W. P. Brown tonight is postponed; another appointment will be made next Sunday; cause and see when.

On Sunday next the Rev. C. F. Stout, of Petoskey, will hold divine service with holy communion and sermon at Odd Fellows hall at 10.30. Afternoon service at Green's hall at 3 p. m. and address to the Sunday school; all members of the mission are requested to attend both these services, all others invited.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning the subject will be "Thoughts for the New Year." In the evening will be an "Home Missionary" address. The week of prayer will be observed by a gospel address every evening, followed by a prayer and conference meeting. The pastor requests that all bring their Gospel Hymns.

Baptist service Sunday morning at 10.30; Sunday school immediately following; Preaching in the evening, at 7.00 o'clock; The week of prayer, beginning Jan. 1 will be observed by meetings every evening. Regular prayer meetings of the church every Thursday evening; to all these services non-attendants at other places of worship are most cordially invited.

Boyne.

Everyone was good-natured on Saturday. The young people were bubbling over with happiness, and the sleigh bells rang merrily. The next day being Christmas accounted for it, also for the frequent dodging in and out of stores by everybody, and the vigilant watchfulness of purchasers. The result appeared in the evening at the Presbyterian church, where a fine Christmas tree, the sequence of the united efforts of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches of this place, furnished innumerable valuable, interesting, artistic and useful presents, in the distribution of which Santa Claus seemed to take great satisfaction. Prof. Weaver and wife were particularly favored; so also were Wallace Bailey, Miss Mattie Mossenger, Mrs. Phil Jubenville, and Mrs. A. E. Martin. Nearly everyone was remembered.

On Sunday, Dec. 18, Minnie D., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Kerry, died suddenly of membranous croup, aged 10 years. Her loss will be sadly felt in both day and Sunday schools, but most of all will be bereaved home, of which she was the oldest child. The sympathy of all is with the parents.

G. W. White, who has been threatened with diphtheria, is convalescent.

Mrs. Joy Falmer is on the sick list.

Pine Lake, as seen from Boyne, was nearly half covered with snow and ice on Christmas.

Wm. White left on Friday for Essex Centre, Canada, to visit his wife through the holidays. Mrs. White, who is an invalid, is spending the winter at that place.

Since sleighing commenced, the Boyne City mill yard has been rapidly filling up with logs. Sawing will commence in two or three weeks.

On Sunday, Dec. 18, W. H. Coon, proprietor of the harness shop, went to his shop about noon, and as there had been no fire built in the stove since the night before, he took up the salve in a wooden box, supposing of course the fire was out. The spark which is always left did not burn up the box and a hole in the floor of four or two in diameter until evening. Fortunately it was discovered and extinguished without serious damage.

J. C. McFellin's store was closed on Thursday by creditors, who are now selling out the stock.

On Saturday, Dec. 17, E. H. Sheppard, who was admitted to the bar at the last term of the circuit court, tried his first case, in justice court.

Mrs. Denney and husband of Echo, Antrim county, spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jones of Boyne.

The M. E. church has lately received repairs to the value of nearly ninety dollars, in paper, paint, etc., and at the reopening service, which were conducted by Rev. Mr. Robinson of East Jordan, on Dec. 18th, the full amount was raised by subscription.

Wilson.

Dec. 19.—Lumbering is lively now.

Ferry Barber and Charles and Harry Hudkins spent Sunday in Boyne.

Mr. Folsom had the misfortune to crush his foot by a falling limb last week.

Meetings by the "saints" denomination are held nearly every evening in the Healey neighborhood.

Wm. Harris of Norwood, secretary of the board of examiners, visited the school on Friday last.

A company of young people gave Martha Kunitel a party on her 11th birthday.

The young folks Bible class went to hear Rev. J. Burge preach at the M. E. church on Sabbath evening.

This should have been published last week, but was omitted by our intelligent compositor.]

Dec. 26.—Several family parties convened on Christmas day.

Some of our young folks took in the sights of East Jordan on Friday evening.

Esther Stacy preached at the school house on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodkins ate turkey with Mr. and Mrs. Stackus at Boyne on Christmas.

The Bethel Sunday school had a Christmas tree Saturday evening. Literary exercises were a part of the program. Everything was displayed on the tree, from elegant lap robes to spoons for Christmas dinner.

Wedding bells in the near future.

Eveline.

Ironton, Dec. 27.—The furnace charcoal kilns are again in operation.

A petition for local option was circulated here last week.

Joe Purris who has been at his home in Canada for the past year has returned to Eveline and is stopping with Jos Guyles.

It snowed every day last week, which makes excellent sledding. Wood and logs are going to the beach of Pine lake at a lively rate.

A good time was had at the Christmas tree at the Congregational church in Ironton Monday evening. The church was well filled. The presents were numerous and many were valuable.

Chas. Hicks is on the sick list.

Miss Clara Hayden is quite sick again.

Two weeks vacation at Ironton schools.

A party of young people in the mountain district, spent at Mr. and Mrs. Mead Benson's on Christmas eve and a jolly, good time was had. The program consisted of an oyster supper and a Christmas tree.

Miss Mary Johnson, teacher in mountain district, spent Christmas at her home near Eastport.

Mr. Austin, of Petoskey, is here at work in Peterson's camp.

Ellsworth.

Dec. 26.—Mr. Peebles is drawing lumber to East Jordan.

J. Williams, of Eastport, stopped here on his way to Charlevoix with a load of apples.

Christmas evening, while a wedding party, whose in Frank Cutler and Miss Minnie Wilson were most prominent, was on the way to East Jordan in passing another sleigh the team became unmanageable and the sleigh was overturned. Some of the party were slightly injured and all considerably scared but no serious damage done.

CHARLEVOIX SCHOOLS.

Report for the Term Ending December 23, 1887.

The following is the report of the Charlevoix public schools for the term ending Dec. 23d, as furnished by Prof. H. M. Enos, principal:

NUMBER ENROLLED.

First department, Mrs. Upright	64
Second department, Miss Mason	46
Third department, Miss O'Neill	45
Fourth department, Mrs. Nelson	44
Fifth, grammar section, Miss Gray	53
Fifth, high school, H. M. Enos	39
Total	291

NUMBER BELONGING.

First department	61%
Second department	38%
Third department	41%
Fourth department	44
Fifth, grammar section	48
Fifth, high school	38%
Total	270%

DAYS ATTENDANCE.

First department	2720½
Second department	2409
Third department	2714
Fourth department	2835
Fifth, grammar section	2916½
Fifth, high school	1551
Total	15146½

DAYS LOST BY ABSENCE.

First department	148
Second department	314½
Third department	114
Fourth department	39
Fifth, grammar section	92
Fifth, high school	204½
Total	546

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE.

First department	40
Second department	25½
Third department	40
Fourth department	41½
Fifth, grammar section	42.3
Fifth, high school	34.3
Total	223

CASES TARDY.

First department	20
Second department	13
Third department	19
Fourth department	20
Fifth, grammar section	7
Fifth, high school	32
Total	111

ATTENDANCE, PER CENT OF NUMBER BELONGING.

First department	95.5
Second department	92.3
Third department	95.7
Fourth department	97.9
Fifth, grammar section	96.9
Fifth, high school	97.5
Average	95.5

PUNCTUALITY, PER CENT OF ATTENDANCE.

First department	93.6
Second department	95.1
Third department	97.5
Fourth department	99.5
Fifth, grammar section	99.3
Fifth, high school	99.8
Average	97.1

PUPILS NEITHER ABSENT NOR TARDY DURING TERM.

First department, 11—Jennie Brown, Clara Eaton, Frank Gilsen, Edith Lewis, Lillie Newman, Gusta Horton, Ethel Herron, Hiram Rose, Bernie Taylor, Archie Nowlund, Grace Emrey, Frank Lawrence, Roy Washburn, Alta Brink, Minnie Jones.—14.

Fourth department—Florence Phelps, Eva Swain, George Nowland, Rice See, Clarence Sherwood, Lena Goss, Mattie Lamoreaux, Harry Lawrence, Wallace Newman, Charles Russell, Carrie Brown, Perry Gotham, Walter Krebs, Frank Gotham.—14.

Fifth department, grammar section—Edith Phelps, Chauncy Upright, Geo. Newman, Chas. Lawrence, Maggie Young, Annie McKertney, Lillian Eaton, Carl Clifford, Winifred Bartholomew, Chas McCartney, Aggie Lawrence, Mary Wood, Maida Krebs, Hettie Brown, Willie Lawrence.—15.

Fifth department, high school—Phila Wood, May Brown, Fred M. Green, Pearl Dartt, Clara Aiken, Sarah Washburn, Herbert See, Orville Phelps.—8.

Total, 57.

Burgess.

Dec. 27.—Philip and George Howe have each purchased a swell box cutter.

Vacation week in district No. 4, 6 and Hop yard school this week.

Willis Chew and wife are on a visit to his father, A. W. Chew. He reports having colder weather in Indiana than we have had here.

The Christmas Tree at Soller's was a success in every way.

A Christmas Present.

To any subscriber whose account is paid one year in advance, we will furnish the JOURNAL one year to the name of any friend they may desire, who does not now take the paper, for one dollar cash in advance, if paid before the first day of January. Next year Charlevoix will "boom," and the best way to let your distant friends know all about it is to send the Journal regularly. And the best way to sustain this paper in advertising Charlevoix county is to send one or more copies to friends abroad. We collect, one dollar cash pays the bill, if your own account is settled one year in advance.

The Greatest Pain Killer yet found for Cramps, Colic, Stitch in side or back, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sprains, Bruises, &c., is Graeff'ton's Jamaica Ginger Tonic and Pain Cure. Bound on with hot wet cloths it never fails to cure. For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick headache, flatulence, diarrhoea, dysentery, heartburn, sour stomach, &c., it is unequaled. Warranted to give relief. Used both internally and externally. Warranted to cure. Try it. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter. dec

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures Piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

An Almost Human Monkey.

Minnica was a female chimpanzee, kept in the Dresden zoological gardens. She was remarkable, not only in her habits, but in her disposition. At one moment she would sit still, with a brooding air, occasionally darting a mischievous glance at the spectators; at another, she took pleasure in feats of strength, or roamed about in her spacious enclosure, like an angry beast of prey.

Mimica was frequently ungovernable. She would obey no one but the director of the garden. Sometimes when she was in a good humor she would sit upon his knee, and put her muscular arms about his neck, with a caressing gesture; but, in spite of this occasional decency, he was never safe from her roguish tricks.

She knew how to use a giddet, writing out wet clothes, and put a handkerchief to its legitimate use. If allowed to do so, she would draw off the keeper's boots, scramble with them to some place out of reach, and then throw them at his head.

Once she succeeded in opening the lock of her cage, and, having done so, stole the key. It was kept hanging on the wall outside, and Mimica, observing it, took it down, hid it in her armpit, and crept quietly back to her cage. When occasion again served her purpose she easily opened the lock with her key and walked out.

She died of consumption. Just before her death she put her arm about the director's neck, locked at him pitefully, kissed him three times, stretched out her hands to him and died.—Youth's Companion.

Vegetable Pearls.

It has long been known that in some specimens of bamboo a round stone is found at the joints of the cane. This is called "tabasheer," and is supposed to be deposited from the silicious juices of the cane. Another curiosity of this sort is the "cocoanut stone," found in the endosperm of the cocoanut in Java and other East India islands. It is according to Dr. Kimmins, a pure carbonate of lime, and the shape of the stone is sometimes round, sometimes pear shaped, while the appearance is that of a white pearl without much luster. Some of the stones are as large as cherries, and as hard as feldspar or opal. They are very rarely found, and are regarded as precious stones by Orientals, and charms against disease or evil spirits by the natives. Stones of the kind are also found in the pomegranate and other East India fruits. A gizzite has also been discovered in the midst of teak wood.—Engineering.

Education of Russian Women.

Statistics have just been issued as to the number of women who have studied at Russian universities in 1886. The total number of female students amounted to 779, and of these 243 studied philology and 536 different branches of mathematics; 287 belonged to the Greek church and 189 were Jews; 748 were unmarried and 31 married; 437 of the fellows were the daughters of noblemen, officers, or government officials; 89 were daughters of Russian priests, 195 of merchants, 117 of private citizens, 10 of peasants, 41 of soldiers, and 3 were foreigners. The aim and fatal to female education in

THE KINGDOM OF LOVE.

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

In the dawn of day, when the sea and the sky
Reflect the sunrise shore,
I set forth with a heart full of courage and youth
To seek for the Kingdom of Love.
I asked of a poet I met on the way
Which cross-road would lead me aright.
And he said: "Follow me, and I can bring you will be
The glittering turrets of night."

And soon in the distance a city shone fair:
"Is this the place?" he said. "Then good-bye!"
But, alas! for the hopes that were dressed in "Beyond!"
It was only the Kingdom of pretend.
Then the next man I asked was a gay cavalier
And he said: "Follow me, follow me,"
And I laughed and was ready to go, speeding with him
By the shores of life's beautiful sea.

"I'll soon be a king in the Kingdom of Love,"
I said as I mounted my steed,
And I pass forever a face like a flower
Smile out on the world like a weed.
And he said: "We have conquered humanity's soul,
Here love and delight are intense."
But, alas! and alas! for the hope of my soul—
It was only the kingdom of sense.

As I journeyed more slowly I met on the road
A youth with exhaustion behind,
And they said: "Follow us, for our lady's abode Belongs to the realm you will find."
"Twas a plain, simple place, but a newly wed pair
Followed, encouraged and bold.
But my hopes died away, for the last gleams of day
Found me still on the Kingdom of Gold.

At the door of a cottage I asked a fair maid,
"I have heard of this kingdom of Love," she replied,
"But my feet never roam from the Kingdom of Home
So I know not the way," and she sighed.
I looked on the cottage—how restful it seemed!
The maid was as fair as a dove.
Great light glorified my soul as I cried:
"Why, home is the Kingdom of Love!"

FILSEY.

A Christmas Sketch from Life in Hoosierdom.

BY ED R. PRITCHARD.

RECKON this is goin' ter be a tuss-tle," said old Uncle Billy Rotsworth, as he came in to the family sitting-room of the old farm house by a great load of wood on his shoulders. With a crash he deposited his burden on the spacious hearth, where a huge fire was already blazing, and proceeded to pile on the long dry sticks of beech and hickory, until, in a few moments, a perfect sheet of flame was roaring up the wide-throated chimney.

Grandma Rotsworth, who sat in her accustomed corner by the "jamb," busy with her knitting, made no reply; while Uncle Billy proceeded to remove his coat, hat and boots, and, having filled and lighted his pipe, sat down to enjoy himself. Outside, a furious snow-storm was raging, and already the ground was heavily carpeted with white. Presently his two sons, Jacob and William, came in from doing up the chores, and, like their father, were soon divested of caps, coats and boots, and seated before the roaring fire talking over the events of the day. A little later Mrs. Rotsworth joined them, and then the family circle was complete. No, not complete, either; a daughter was missing. Three years ago this Christmas eve she had gone out from the parental roof to marry one man she loved, but whom her father had forbidden some time before to enter his doors. But Mary had gone; and she and her husband, a poor mechanic, went out West to build up for themselves a home and fortune. After they were married, a day or two before they were to start for Dixie, Mary and her husband came to the old home, where she got out of the buggy and started to go into the house to my good-by. She did not ask nor expect forgiveness from her father for what she had done; but she knew her mother and her brothers still loved her, and would gladly have her come to see them. So she just had her hand on the gate-latch, and, with tear-filled eyes, was taking in the dear and familiar surroundings, when her father, coming round the corner of the house, saw her.

"Now, you come in here," he yelled, hoarsely. "Don't any more your foot inside of that gate. Mary Ellen Rotsworth. You've no darter o mine. Take yer hatchet-faced paint-slinger, an' git."

For a moment she stood as if stunned at his words; then, without a word, turned and went to the buggy. Her husband helped her in, and then standing up and shaking his whip at Uncle Billy, said: "Pull Rotsworth, if you wanter; my wife's father I'd thrash you 'till you couldn't walk for a week. You object to me for a son-in-law only because I am poor; but I'll show of Mr. Ike Rotsworth. You're no darter o mine. Take yer hatchet-faced paint-slinger, an' git."

Here Mary laid her hand on his arm and said, "Stop, Will; it won't help things any to quarrel; let's go."

"I'm well pull that Will beaded her advice, for old Uncle Billy had started for the house from behind his eye; and there is no telling what might have happened had one Mother and Jacob at the opportune moment, made their appearance and urged him to be quiet.

So Mary went from home an outcast; and, as the heavy clouds rolled around the bend in the road, Milton turned to his father, and, with tears in his eyes, said, regretfully:

"Pap, you oughtener have done it."

And Mrs. Rotsworth, who had come to the door just in time to take in the affair, echoed her son's words:

"Yes, pap, you were too hasty," she added. "Mary Ellen was alius a roughly good girl; an', though I'd rather she'd not married Will Kenney, yet I hope the Lord will prosper 'em both."

"You are right, mother," said Jacob, the elder of her sons, "you are right, mother. Filsey" (the nickname he had bestowed upon Mary when she was a toddler) "was the best girl in Indiany. And so she is, an' a sister worth the havin'."

As for Uncle Billy, seeing his whole family un in arms against him, he vouchsafed no reply, but turning, strode rapidly away in the direction of the barn.

From that time on he never spoken to his daughter's name. And although he would not look upon a letter in her handwriting coming from her, yet he never by sign or inquiry, showed that he cared the breadth of her, or had the slightest interest in knowing whether she was dead or alive.

But on the Christmas eve that I have introduced him to your notice, all this was yet remained silent, and each family relation, always held on Christmas day, he had missed her. And as the evening drew on he held at his house, and his brothers and sisters with their families would come, he, with some bitterness of feeling, was brooding over the past. Mary was his favorite of his be-reasoned, the child he had forbidden some time before to enter his doors. But Mary had gone; and she and her husband, a poor mechanic, went out West to build up for themselves a home and fortune. After they were married, a day or two before they were to start for Dixie, Mary and her husband came to the old home, where she got out of the buggy and started to go into the house to my good-by. She did not ask nor expect forgiveness from her father for what she had done; but she knew her mother and her brothers still loved her, and would gladly have her come to see them. So she just had her hand on the gate-latch, and, with tear-filled eyes, was taking in the dear and familiar surroundings, when her father, coming round the corner of the house, saw her.

"Now, you come in here," he yelled, hoarsely. "Don't any more your foot inside of that gate. Mary Ellen Rotsworth. You're

FARM AND GARDEN.

A GRAIN CHEST FOR POULTRY THAT PREVENTS WASTE.

A Double Bagonia That Promises to Become Popular—For and Against showing Farm Horses—A Clever Contrivance for Tightening Wagon Tires.

The extreme drought and heat of last summer caused much trouble and anxiety, which would often get clear off the wheel before the driver suspected that they were loose. In the cut is represented a convenient device for replacing a tire when any amount of pounding with a stone or ax would fail. The device, which was originally illustrated in Rural New Yorker, may be made as follows:

DEVICE FOR TIGHTENING A TIRE.

Procure a horseshoe with long heel calks to catch on the edge of the tire; after putting the tire on as far as possible with the hands, then put a strong stick or iron rod through the horseshoe and against the felloe of the wheel. By prying downward the tire is drawn on.

Country Made Soap.

The alkalies for sale at the stores will make a very fair soap, with less trouble than the old time method with lye from wood ashes, but the product of the latter is much stronger and in every way more satisfactory. The ashes from hickory is the very best of all for soap making purposes, although ashes of any hard wood make excellent soap. In sections, therefore, where most ashes are produced it will pay to make soap from their lye, as the leached ashes will still be of value for fertilizing purposes and all refuse grease utilized that would otherwise be wasted. When saving ashes for the leach be careful not to burn any decayed or unsound wood. Oil barrels may be placed on an inclined platform for the leach or one can be cheaply made for the purpose.

Shipping Apples to England.

The experience of T. S. Gould, secretary of the Connecticut State Board of Agriculture, in shipping apples to England is not very encouraging to small shippers. His first cost of barrels, freight to New York and trucking expenses across the city, with the injury to the condition of the fruit in consequence of rough handling, are liable to consume the amount of sales in a number of fluctuating. The export trade may prove profitable to large shippers with good judgment in the selection of fruit and of the time to market it. Small shippers, however, Mr. Gould says, had better not engage in this rather venturesome business.

Fine Variety of Tuberous Begonia.

The fine variety of tuberous begonia shown in the accompanying illustration is one which is an winner from its well known New York florist, Vick, thinks will soon be cultivated. It bloomed on his grounds at Rochester this spring for the first time, and proved very attractive. The plants are about a foot in height, quite bushy and neat in habit, and the flowers are borne in great abundance, on long, slender stems, by which they are usually pendent. The staminate flowers are double, while the female ones are single. The color is a bright scarlet.

BEGONIA LOUIS BOUCHET.

Novelties as a rule are looked upon with incredulity. However, when Vick and the English florists who have been interested in introducing it to notice agree that the above named double begonia is the coming plant, and will, within a short space of time, be seen in every market and window, as is the fuchsia and gloxinium, it is time the public should be informed something about it. All the author seems to require is propagation like dahlias. The begonia Louis Bouchet regained in England at the Royal Botanic shows first class certificates as a striking novelty, and connoisseurs, both abroad and at home, are encouraging the cultivation of begonias with double blossoms having grown tired of the ordinary blossoms.

Shoeing Farm Horses.

Numbered with other questions that are among by practical, sensible and likely never to come to any decided settlement, is the one, "shall farm horses be shod or not?" That this controversy must be settled by each man for himself like to the fact that some horses under certain conditions can go without shoes, and in truth are better without them; but that no horse under all conditions can work or must be shod. In an article on this subject in The American Agriculturist appears the testimony of various to a diversity in different sections of the country.

A correspondent writing from Iowa considers it an unnatural proceeding to shoe a horse. He says:

"If one examines the hoof of a colt that has never been shod it will be found that there is a sharp edge on the under side. The object of this is that the animal may go on smooth roads. If the horse is never shod this protection remains as long as the animal lives, but in shoeing it has to be cut off and it will never grow as perfect again as it was naturally." This correspondent believes that unshod horses can do all necessary farm work in both winter and summer. A correspondent from Ohio writes: "My advice is don't shoe your horses. Keep the colt's feet properly trimmed while growing, as you would shape a fruit or ornamental tree, and when he is old enough to work he will be able to do without shoes, unless it be for some special purpose."

From Wisconsin a correspondent writes of his experience with both shod and barefooted horses: "Our roads are not very hard, being country roads, where gravel is not plentiful. My horses are sound and their feet good, but when I tried to work them without shoes I found it would not do; their feet soon became tender and sore. If I were obliged to use them every day, even in winter, I should keep them shod; for there are days when the roads are in such condition that it would not be safe, neither could they draw a load without them."

Many farmers do not give sufficient attention to their horses' feet, though they may carry and rub their hide well. The feet, however, should have close inspection and care, for if these become unsound there is little work to be gotten out of the animal. To this end the floor and bedding should always be kept dry and clean, that manure may not become caked under the foot, and every morning the hoofs should be examined and freed from any such accumulations. A soft frog should be guarded against, for it causes an animal to go lame with very slight cause. A little alum water and brine applied once a week hardens the frog.

Suggestions About Squirrels and Gophers.

In Texas, we are told, the ranchmen kill prairie dogs by saturating balls of cotton rags with bisulphide of carbon, pushing them well down into the holes and firmly packing earth into the entrances. The preparation, being extremely volatile, quickly evaporates, and forms a heavy, fatal gas, which occupies every chamber and gallery of the dogs dwelling. The same course is pursued with rabbits in Australia, and with good success. Why not, asks Minnesota Farmer, try this on ground squirrels and gophers? The material is quite inexpensive.

Economical Contrivance for Poultry.

In the cut here given is shown an economical grain chest for fowls, recently described and recommended in Stockman.

GRAIN CHEST FOR FOWLS.

It will be observed that the trough (f) is two inches high. The front of the chest extends downward no further than the top of the trough, thus leaving a free passage for the grain from the chest into the trough. The dotted line (b) shows the position of a board in the chest, placed there to conduct the grain into the trough fast as it is eaten out by the fowls. The platform (d) is for the fowls to stand upon while eating. It should not be wide enough to induce them to form a habit of sitting upon it. A board is fastened to the front of the chest and extends over the trough to prevent filth from falling into it. The cover of the chest (b) should extend a little over the front, that it be handily raised, and should rest inclined to prevent fowls from roosting on it.

The aperture of the back of the chest (b) with two holes in it, is provided so that it may be hung on corresponding wooden pins. If it is hung up in that way it will be necessary to put some kind of a hoop through each of the pins, to prevent its being jarred off from them. It should be hung so that the platform will be at least two feet from the floor. It may be made any length. A square chest, for a pen in the yard, can be made on the same principle.

How to Use Fertilizers.

There remains not a doubt about the economy of supplementing the manurial pile of the farm with commercial fertilizers. On few if any farms in the older states is there enough manure made to keep the soil in good tilth, consequently resort must be had to green manuring and artificial fertilizers. In the use of the latter much money is saved by men who sit down and do a little thinking before ordering such fertilizers as are to be bought. First should be decided as nearly as possible what elements are specially deficient in the soil; second, what elements of plant food are specially required for the crop to be grown; and, lastly, how much of these lacking elements can be supplied from the manure heap and compost pile at home. Some crops, as Irish potatoes, for instance, thrive better in soil that is enriched by an artificial fertilizer than with barnyard manure; and these crops, therefore, are more economically fed by a commercial fertilizer, the manure being reserved for crops that needed more.

In green manuring the value of pea vines at the south and clover at the north, as an improver of soils, has been repeatedly proven. Pea vines and lime furnish a very effective means of improving and maintaining the productiveness of soils in which phosphoric acid and potash are not too nearly exhausted. The suggestion is made that some gain is effected by utilizing as much as possible pea vines, clover or any other valuable forage crop to feed for stock first, by turning on the cattle to crop it, and then their droppings are saved along with the roots and stubble that are eventually plowed under for a fertilizer.

Things Told by Farmers.

"The honey crop is a poor one.

Manitoba boasts of a big potato crop.

Professor Beal advises skillful green manuring for silting sandy soils.

F. D. Curtis, New York, says blue grass ought to be mixed in all pastures.

Joe Harris regards clover as the great renovating crop of American agriculture.

All experienced poultrymen aver that provision for dust baths are a necessity to fowls.

J. H. Springer asserts that nothing on the farm can be raised with greater profit than swine.

Professor Budd, of Iowa, advises planting the south side of all trees in this climate with corn.

W. D. Philbrick, of Massachusetts, says that potatoes and roots of all kinds keep best in pits out of doors.

To dispute the excellence of milk made from good ensilage is to fly in the face of facts, says John Gould.

Attention is called to the dairy school opened at Houghton farm, Mountainville, N. J., by Mr. Valentine. It is a novel idea worth studying, and the first of its kind in this country.

Mr. Cushman, of the Ohio Horticultural society, says: "There is no other berry that can be planted in our section of country that will bring as much money to the grower as the early harvest blackberry."

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for each and this paper together
Wide Awake	$1.40	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	2.00
Pansy	1	2.00
Little Men and Women	1	2.00
Babyland	0.50	1.50

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want, with a sample copy, enclosing a trifle in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a dead-head. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother amuse even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Chautauqua Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"Brawny, manly, play-house, life at home and abroad, companionship of the wise and good"—depend for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in thus clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liminent

CURES

Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Sprains, Scalds, Burns, Bites, Bruises, Sprains, Toothache, Sore Throat.

Sprains, Swellings, Strains, Bruises, Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, Backache, Gulls, Sores, Spavin, Cracks.

Contracted Muscles, Strengthens Weak Ankles, Knees, Weaves, Founder, Gall Gulls, Jilts.

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY accomplishes for everybody exactly what is claimed for it. One of the reasons for the great popularity of the Mustang Liniment is found in its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine. The Lumberman needs it in case of accident. The Housewife needs it for general family use. The Teamster needs it for his team and himself. The Mechanic needs it always on his work bench. The Miner needs it in case of emergency. The Farmer needs it for his family and his stock. The Sportsman or the Boatman needs it in illness or in case of accident. The Horse-fancier needs it—it is the best friend and relief of his favorite. The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars and a world of toil. The Railroad man needs it and he knows it so long as he is in danger of accidents or dangers. The Backwoodsman needs it. There is nothing like it as an outfitter for the depths of life, both and comfort which surround the shanty. The Merchant needs it also in the stores among his employees. Accidents will happen, and when these occur the Mustang Liniment is wanted at once. Keep a Bottle in the House. It is the best of economy.

Keep a Bottle in the Factory, instead of one in case of accident seven miles and loss of wages. Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for use when wanted.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence with artists of no superior.

Combines every improvement and every position, time and money can procure.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL. EVER! CHICAGO WAS RAN FOR FIVE YEARS

These excellent Organs are ordered if for no one, quality of tone, quick, prompt, very ear of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect workmanship, durability, and withal they are within the reach of moderate orders for home, schools churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTABLE. UNEQUALLED FACILITIES. SKILLED WORKMEN. ENTIRE MATERIAL.

COMMEND MAKE THIS THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, free.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN CO.

831 BLUE ISLAND AVE.,

CHICAGO, ILL.

MUNN & CO. PATENTS NEW YORK

After Forty years' experience by the publishers of the Scientific American continues to act as solicitors for patents, caveats, trade marks, copyrights, etc. Patents obtained through us are brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the Scientific American. Thousands of inquiries are made at our office for information relative to patents. Every week an average of one hundred patents are allowed. Our facilities are unequaled and their facilities are unexcelled.

Drawings and specifications prepared and filed in the Patent Office on short notice. Terms very reasonable. We make no charge for examining models or drawings. Advice by mail, free. Patents obtained through Munn & Co. are noticed in the Scientific American, the largest, most widely circulated, most influential and most valuable newspaper of its kind published in the world. Weekly, 52 numbers, 4 pages, 400 illustrations. Price $3.00 a year.

This large and splendidly illustrated newspaper contains the weekly record of progress made in the mechanical, chemical, electrical, mechanical, scientific, engineering works, and industrial arts, including agriculture, horticulture, and home industry. It contains the choicest and most reliable information, and is the most valuable and interesting weekly publication now published in advancement.

Send for Hand Book about patents sent free. Address, MUNN & CO., 37 Park Row, (Cor. Ann St.), N. Y. Branch Office, Corner F and 7th Streets, Opposite Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

Chicago Weekly Herald

IS UNEQUALLED FOR

$1 PER YEAR

Eight Large Pages

Are filled every week with carefully collected news, correct market reports and miscellaneous interesting reading. The illustrated special articles, which appear in the Herald, are FAR AHEAD of any pictorial reading matter of any other newspaper. New features are being added from time to time, and continuously the Herald will be found the most complete and reliable FOUR PAGE SAMPLE COPY before addressed for any PAPER newspaper. ADDRESS

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD,

CHICAGO, ILL.

Chicago's Best Morning Newspaper is

THE DAILY HERALD,

8 PAGES FOR 2 CTS.

Sold by newsmen everywhere or sent by mail for 60 Cents per month. ADDRESS

THE CHICAGO HERALD,

139 & 141 Fifth-av., CHICAGO.

JAMES W. SCOTT, Publisher.

For Hard Times

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL

AND

DEMOREST'S ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY MAGAZINE

With Twelve Cut Paper Patterns of your own selection and of any size.

BOTH PUBLICATIONS, ONE YEAR,

$3.10 (THREE TEN).

DEMOREST'S THE BEST

Of all the Magazines.

CONTAINING Stories, Poems and other Literary Attractions, combining Fashion, Art and Household matters.

Illustrated with Original Steel Engravings, Photogravures, Fashion Plates and Art Models, making it the Model Magazine of America.

☞ Each Magazine contains a COUPON entitling the holder to a choice selection of ANY PATTERN illustrated in that number, FROM ANY ISSUE.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY is justly entitled to the title of "Queen of Fashion." It is the Form, the Largest in Circulation, and the best TWO Dollar Family Magazine issued. 1888 will be its Twenty-seventh year of its publication. It is continually improved, and so extensively as to place it in the front rank of Family Magazines. Each number of DEMOREST'S contains 80 pages, large size, 11 x 14 inches, handsomely printed and fully illustrated. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, New York. AND BY SPECIAL AGREEMENT COMBINED WITH THE Charlevoix Journal at $3.10 For Year.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung diseases. Hoping the hopeless all sufferers will try his Remedy as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

A GENTLEMAN having received from a Prominent Seminary in Switzerland, the Prescription, Dosage, and all the Secrets of early indiscretion and youthful folly, is anxious to make known others the simple means of self-cure. To those who wish and will give him a stamped, addressed envelope, he will send (free of charge) a copy of the recipe. Address in confidence, JAMES WILSON, 49 Cedar St., N. Y.

PRESBYTERIANS READ THIS

Send into the Mission and Pioneering, a large eighty page Presbyterian weekly; subscription price, $1.25 per year; to any address in the United States or Canada, from now to the end of the year, for only 25 cents. Address, PRESBYTERIAN, 156 Fifth Ave., Chicago.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We have on hand, in supplement form, Parker's latest sermon, preached in Boston, Sunday, Dec. 2, 1888, and a Thanksgiving sermon by Rev. Robt. Collyer. Both of these we will send free to any one who will send us the name of a new subscriber with the money, $1.25 for the paper for one year. Address, THE INTERIOR, 156 Fifth St., Chicago.

☞ Send Specimen Copy of THE INTERIOR and mention this paper.

THIS PAPER may be found on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where contracts may be made for it in New York.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

Prospectus for 1888---Beautiful Christmas Number.

The holiday issue, now ready, is complete in itself, containing no serial matter. The cover is enriched by an ornamental border printed in gold. The price is as usual, 25 cents. It contains the most delightful stories, poems, and essays by distinguished writers, and superb illustrations.

Among the important articles to appear during the year 1888 are the following—Send for prospectus:

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON will contribute regularly to each number during the year. He will write of many topics, old and new, and in a familiar and personal way, which will form new bonds of friendship between the author and his thousands of readers. In the first paper, entitled "A Chapter on Dreams," appearing in the January number, he reintes incidentally, in connection with the general subject, some interesting facts concerning the origin of the new famous story "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, by W. S. CHAPLIN, will be the first of an especially important and interesting series of papers on railways, their administrations and construction, including great engineering feats, famous tunnels and passes, and indeed, those branches of the subject which in a this day engage the attention of the whole country. The illustrations which will accompany this series will be very elaborate, original, and beautiful. The authors and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. D. A. SARGENT'S papers on Physical Proportions and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of especial interest will be those on the Campaign of Waterloo, by JOHN C. ROPES; on the "It Man at Arms," by E. H. BLASHFIELD; two papers by EDWARD L. WILSON, illustrating results of recent Egyptian research; a further article by WILLIAM F. APGAR, on a subject connected with his recent contribution on Wagner, and many others of equal interest. PROFESSOR SHALER'S articles on the Surface of the Earth will be continued; and articles upon two of the most interesting groups of contemporary European writers will be accompanied by rich and fine portrait illustrations.

ELECTRICITY in its various applications as a motive power, Explosives, etc., will be subjects of another group of illustrated articles of equal practical interest, by leading authorities upon those topics.

MENDELSSOHN'S LETTERS written to his friend, Moscheles, at a peculiarly interesting time of his career, will furnish the substance of several articles of great interest to musical readers, which will be illustrated with portraits and drawings from Mendelssohn's pencil.

THE FICTION will be strong, not only in the work of well-known writers, but in that of new authors, in securing whose co-operation the Magazine has been at great pains during the past year. A powerful novel, entitled "First Harvests," by FREDERIC J. STIMSON, will be begun in the January number, and early in the new novelties will be published by HENRY JAMES and H. H. BOISEN. The short stories are of notable strength and freshness.

ILLUSTRATIONS.—The Magazine will show increased excellence in its illustrations. They will be more abundant and elaborate than ever. It is the intention of the publishers to represent the best work of the leading artists, and to promote the most skilful methods of wood engraving.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—To enable readers to possess the Magazine from the first number (January, 1887) the following inducements are offered:

A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887 ..... $4 50
A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887, bound in two volumes cloth, gilt top 6 00

$3.00 A YEAR; 25 CENTS A NUMBER.

Remit by bank check or money order to

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, New York.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on good paper, and many of them handsomely illustrated. They are without exception the cheapest books ever issued from the press, and should be in every family. Any one of the following books will be sent to any address on receipt of three cents, in stamps or coin. Address, THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL, Charlevoix, Mich.

Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on the Prodigal Son. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Decoration Day. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on the Ten Commandments. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on the Mistakes of Moses. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Science and Religion. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Progress. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Liberty. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Human Rights. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Ingersoll. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Paine. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Vivisection. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Foolishness. Address of Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll on Superstition

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - - - MICHIGAN.

THE WORLD IN A WORD.

The Latest Intelligence, Domestic and Foreign, Transmitted Over the Electric Wires.

Political, Railroad, and Commercial News, Accidents, Fires, Crimes, Etc., Etc.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

DASHED FROM THE TRACK.

Wreck of a Minnesota and Northwestern Excursion Train—Miraculous Escape of the Passengers.

TWENTY-FIVE persons were injured by a wreck on the Minnesota and Northwestern Road, near Prescott, Ill. No one was killed, but two of the injured will probably die. The wreck was a bad one, and it is wonderful that many persons were not killed outright. A Prescott dispatch gives the following particulars of the accident:

The train was one loaded with 120 excursionists from the Northwest, bound for Montreal and Canada points, and consisted of two sleepers, two boilers, cars, a day coach, a smoker, and a baggage car, all crowded with people. The half was being taken Stillwater and Lake Valley, a wheel of the tender jumped the track, causing the train to jump the track and run along on the ties for a hundred feet or more before it could be stopped, when it broke through down the steep embankment on either side. One car was turned bottom side up, and the other was thrown sideways, lying partly on top of them in an alarming but many of the passengers. One sleeper was also turned over, but the other was left only partially down the embankment. Nearly all the cars were thrown entirely from their tracks, and most of them were badly broken up. The day coach was the worst of the wreck was one that cannot be described. Without premonition, the cars were crushed and the occupants hurled against the sides so violently that many of them were injured. The only death vessel to be the portion of each passenger. That car containing forty people was literally turned fifty feet, turned completely over, and crushed almost to splinters, and yet every one of its passengers escaped with comparatively slight injuries. The trainmen and those not injured in the day coach immediately set to work with axes, and within a quarter was sent to telegraph to Prescott for physicians and necessary supplies. Twelve doctors immediately boarded a special car and reached the scene as soon as possible, and attended to the injured. Not more than three were seriously injured were taken off in stretchers.

A Similar Accident on the Wisconsin Central.

A FITFIELD (Wis.) telegram says:

In the heart of the great pine forests between Tifold and Fitfield, on the Wisconsin Central road, the passenger train that left Ashland at 7:30 o'clock last night met with a terrible wreck. Two fatalities and the injury of a score of passengers resulted. When the broken rail was encountered it threw the sleeping car and the first and second class coaches from the track, leaving the baggage car and engine remaining on the rails. The first and second class coaches were turned on their sides, and were literally smashed to pieces. There were sixty passengers aboard. J. McMain, of Butterfield, Wis., attempted to get out of a window, when he fell and was caught under the car and crushed to death. Conductor G. H. Greenfield, who was passing through the train at the time, had his right arm broken and received a jagged wound in the temple. He received injuries and had a leg broken. Both will probably die.

CONDITION OF BUSINESS.

General Trade Represented as Active and Prosperous.

R. G. DUN & CO., of New York, in their last weekly review of trade, say:

Business throughout the country is active for the season, and though collections at some points are slow and credits are strained, the reports are generally satisfactory. Great uncertainty and hesitation affect important branches of commerce, and speculation is very active in some of the leading products, but generally in good trade, even where payments are slowest a large profit is realized. Speculation in cotton has been less active and the general level of prices, though improved, has not risen to most speculative marks. Sales on the whole have been about 500,000 bales, and the average price is somewhat less than last year, 10c. per cent., with the tendency still upward, while the average of sales in all other prices had been 6.8c. per cent., with the later tendency downward. Other leading products have been fairly active and demand. The business failures during the week number for the United States 201, and for Canada 20, total 221, compared with 206 the preceding week, and 262 for the corresponding week last year.

POSTAL TELEGRAPHY.

Bills Before Congress—What Senator Sawyer Says.

WASHINGTON (Special.)—Senator Sawyer, Chairman of the Senate Postoffice Committee, says he will bring the subject of the postal telegraph before the committee very early after the holiday recess. He does not know whether it will be necessary to hear arguments from parties who favor or oppose government interference with the telegraph. There is already, he says, a vast amount of literature on the subject, and personally he has heard enough, as he doubts not Senator Salisbury has, to enable him to reach a conclusion for himself. Both were members of the Postoffice Committee of the last Congress, where the subject was studied extensively. Five members of the present committee were members of the last Congress, which reported a postal-telegraph bill.

The Balance of Trade.

THE Chief of the Bureau of Statistics reports that the total value of the exports of merchandise from the United States for the twelve months ending Nov. 30, 1887, was $713,996,018, and the total value of exports for the same period $727,460,653.

A Bitter Fight.

THE fight for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Louisiana waxes hot every day between the factions headed by Governor McEnery and ex-Governor Nicholls. Several killings have occurred.

THE WESTERN STATES.

THE recent cold snap caused much suffering as many points in Kansas, where the supply of fuel is almost exhausted. A Leavenworth dispatch says the demand on the mines are far greater than can be filled, and messages to Kansas City from points in Kansas report freezing, trees and fences are imported from Mead and Clark counties, where several persons have been frozen to death. At Dighton a mother and three children sought refuge in a neighbor's and were frozen to death while crossing the prairie.

JAMES LONDY, his wife, and three children, of Lima, Ohio, were fatally injured in a natural gas explosion, which wrecked their dwelling.

IN Kansas, a colored man, living near Concordia, placed some dynamite cartridges in the oven of his stove to thaw them out. An explosion followed, nearly destroying his house, killing his 18-year-old daughter, an infant 1 year old, and seriously injuring John son and his wife.

THE brewers at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, have been given until March 1 to dispose of the stocks they have on hand, upon their promising to close after that date.

THE EASTERN STATES.

AN accidental discharge of fourteen thousand gallons of naphtha into one of the boilers of Pratt's main sewers produced a remarkable disaster.

The heavy stone covering of a man-hole of the sewer was blown into fragments, and the force expanded, and almost immediately a second explosion occurred beneath the Clinton floating-mill on Mill street. The sidewalk were followed by a large line of flame that shot over fifty feet high, and lasted for a few feet high. The Clinton mill, owed by J. H. Hoes & Co., and the Jefferson mill, owned by J. H. Hoes & Co., and the Jefferson mill, owned by J. H. Hoes & Co., and the Jefferson mill, owned

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX. - - MICHIGAN.

NORTH America has a larger mileage of railroad than Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia together.

It is highly gratifying to learn of such eminent men as James Russel Lowell renouncing the principles of the republican party and joining the forces of democracy.

PROTECTIVE tariff is a system of robbery. If an article can be produced in this country profitably without a protection, it is robbing the consumers to tax that article in order to give the manufacturer an exhorbitant profit, and if the article cannot be manufactured without the protection, then it ought not to be manufactured at home at all, but the consumers should be permitted to purchase such article where they can get it for the least money.

Non-Partisan Free Traders

At the meeting of the Massachusetts tariff reform club in Boston last week resolutions were adopted indorsing president Cleveland's message. After the banquet James Russell Lowell, minister to England under Garfield and Arthur, delivered an address in which he said: "I confess that I feel myself strongly attached to Mr. Cleveland as the best representative of the higher type of American that we have seen since Lincoln was snatched from us. I think we have all recognized in him a manly simplicity of character and an honest endeavor to do all that he could of duty. Whatever be the effect of Mr. Cleveland's action on his personal fortunes, let us rejoice to think that it will be a stimulating thorn in that august chair for all that may sit in it after him. Would that all our presidents might see and lay to heart that vision, the silent shape of woman sweeping and ever sweeping without pausing. Our politics call loudly for a broom. There are rubbish heaps of cant in every corner of them that should be swept out for the dustman Time to cart away and dump beyond sight or smell of mortal man. Mr. Cleveland, I think, has found the broom and begun to ply it." Speeches followed by Messrs. Morgan of Alabama, Breckinridge of Arkansas, Wilson of West Virginia, and Rogers of Arkansas, all of whom lauded the president, and his annual message.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

The Clare Democrat issued a 16-page holiday edition on tinted paper.

Indian agent Stevens has received orders to move his office from Flint to the Sault.

Ten counties in Michigan have declared for prohibition and adopted local option.

M. G. Smith & Son of East Saginaw write that they will take possession of the Dunham house at Manistee on Jan. 15.

A monkey tipped over a kerosene lamp in a variety theater at Wakefield and started a fire that destroyed forty buildings involving a loss of $100,000.

Gladstone is about to build a town hall with firemen's hall, and will vote this month on the question of bonding the village to buy an outfit for fire protection.

Gov. Luce has designated Tuesday, February 14, as the date of the special election in the eleventh district to choose a successor to congressman Seth C. Moffatt, deceased.

It is said that more tonnage passed through the Sault Ste. Marie canal during the last season than through the Suez canal during the same time, and the business will be increased next season.

Through trains will run over the G. R. & I. Ry., from Manistee to Grand Rapids next year. The G. R. & I. will run over Peters' road to Manistee, the latter having been laid with broad iron and he says that competitively little work will be necessary for the running of trains.

Before 10.

Judge B. (with emphasis)—Clara, is that fellow coming round here again to-night?

Clara (hopelessly)—I believe so, papa.

Judge B.—Well, daughter, remember this: This home closes at 10, sharp, and—

Clara (hastily)—Oh, George will be here before that, papa; please don't worry.—Harper's Bazar.

In the "Thieves' Quarter.

A.—What's going on over at your house? I hear music and dancing.

B.—Yes, we have got a little early celebration.

"What's the occasion?"

"One of the boys has just got home from the penitentiary."—From the German.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 30.—Christmas at the white house was passed quietly by the president and Mrs. Cleveland. Mrs Folsom is with her sister in Michigan, and there were no guests to assist in the peaceful and quiet enjoyment of a day off from official duty and social interruption.

Mrs. Cleveland has keenly enjoyed the freedom from social obligation at the white house during the past week and has spent much of the time shopping and wandering around enjoying the many pretty things so temptingly displayed this season. Her Christmas shopping expeditions have been among the pleasant events of the week.

The sympathies of all classes at the capital are directed toward the young wife who is undergoing the culminating affliction of humanity at Albany. When ex-secretary Manning was first stricken nearly two years ago, his friends then expressed anxious fears for his future health. The severe labors of the Cleveland administration; the exacting nature of his arduous duties, not only as the head of the most difficult branch of the executive, but as the most trusted adviser in political affairs, were more than his powers of endurance could stand.

Just before congress convened it was stated in this correspondence that no new states would be admitted at this session. This statement can now be more confidently repeated. At the same time it is not improbable that four if not five new states will be in the Union by the beginning of the next presidential term. The republicans are very anxious and determined to get in one of the Dakotas before the adjournment of this session, thinking to secure its electoral vote. While the democrats admit that if a new state wishes to come in, complies with all the conditions and has the requisite population, it cannot in justice be kept out, yet they do not mean to permit any undue haste about it. Since the meeting of congress, prominent democrats of the two houses have conferred with a number of their republican associates, and the program seems to have resolved itself into something like this, yet of course there has been no formal understanding about it. It is thought now that enabling acts for North and South Dakota, for Montana, New Mexico and Washington will be admitted, and that the house will, if the senate agree, pass the bills in such a shape that all can be admitted at the next session of congress, but neither to have any vote in the presidential election.

Senator Morrill of Vermont, read a long speech last week on the restriction of foreign immigration. His speech was above the average of senatorial eloquence in ability, but so languid was the interest of the senate in it, that although upon a roll-call a few minutes before, between sixty and seventy senators had answered to their names, within five minutes after Mr. Morrill began to speak there were by actual count less than twenty senators in their seats and of these not one-half were listening. The only reason that senators have for thus occupying the time of the senate is, that it is the only way gentlemen have, under the rules, to secure the publication of their speeches.

Senator Sawyer, chairman of the senate post office committee says he will bring the subject of the postal telegraph before the committee very early after the holidays' recess, and he expresses the opinion that the committee will set about the study of the question involved at once and in earnest.

The United States supreme court has appointed Maj. J. M. Wright, of Louisville, Ky., marshal of the court, in the place of J. G. Nicolay, who has held the position for over fifteen years. The appointee is a son of Gen. George Wright, U. S. A., who commanded the department of the Pacific during the war. Mr. Nicolay with John Hay has for some years been writing a biography of Lincoln, being published in the Century Magazine, and he resigns the office of marshal that he may have more time for his literary work. He grew up in the same region with Mr. Lincoln and they were intimate in boyhood, and the very first commission Lincoln signed as president was that of Mr. Nicolay to be his official private secretary. He held this position throughout Lincoln's term of office.

Get your neighbor to subscribe for the JOURNAL.

THE "SCARE CAT" DEVICE.

A New Invention That Must Meet with General Approval.

Mr. Bert Kane, of Brooklyn, E. D., president of the Scare Cat club, has the thanks of this office for a copy of his new invention, called the "Scare Cat." Thinking that a little that descriptive of the device would not be devoid of interest to the public I have, in company with the author, examined and criticised it and must heartily endorse it.

The machine or appliance consists of a delicate black walnut box, around which an elastic cord band is lightly attached. Inside the low neck box a small bait is arranged in such a way as to catch the eye of the common, midnight, predatory Tom cat. Hence a low, passionate wail, sends the bait and limits for it. When he takes his head out of the low neck inch counter a common elastic band goes with him at a rapid rate across the state of New York.

The following day a cat with a woeful appearance and apoplectic bulging eye is found dead in the corner of a fence in St. Lawrence county. Thus does the "scare cat" save much in the outlay of boarding in New York, and add to the business of the corner in St. Lawrence county.

The attractive features of the "scare cat" are so apparent to the fiscal observer that when the president of the Scare Cat club of Brooklyn opened out in the corner of the City Hall park, near the postoffice, not long ago, the crowd overwhelmed Mr. Kane, and a policeman had to prohibit the sale of this great boon on the streets of our town.

I can truly say that after carefully using the "scare cat" for a night or two on a delegation of silver tinsel wrapped sinners of Saint Island, who have been in the habit of coming under my casement at evening and singing, "Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer," that it is a good thing. Nine barbers case with purple faces and bulging eyes tried to catch the 12 o'clock boat for New York, and died before they could get their tickets chopped.

I sleep well now and miss that seal brown taste in the mouth which I formerly noticed on getting up. Life seems to me more roseate hue, and I say frankly to Mr. Kane that he is my benefactor. The common sheller band sold at stationery stores is all the outlay required each night, and it will make a common bottom shell out of hickory nuts to far that any physician can readily ascertain what is the matter with him.

The "scare cat" has a wonderful career ahead of it, and I have no doubt that in the near future it will be so far perfected that by putting a nickel in one corner it will catch a contrabe cat, pull his tongue out nine inches, give a tune and bury the cat.—New York World.

Killing Beef for Hebrews.

As is well known, the Israelites are very particular as to the use of butchers' meat, which, in order to be kosher—i. e., to comply with the ritual requirements—ought only to be taken from animals that are killed not only in the presence of, but by a person of the faith, specially appointed for the purpose. Complaints in this respect have been of frequent occurrence, many butchers or dealers of game and fowl offering their Jewish clients "unclean" meat. At a recent trial of this kind in Berlin the rabbi of the principal synagogue was called upon the stand and testified as follows: "The Mosaic law requires that the Jew should be a person of good reputation and morals, and, after undergoing an examination by the rabbis, should only exercise his particular function on the strength of a certificate. One of the tests of his fitness for the post is that he promptly resharpening a knife which he has just properly blunted. During the act of butchering he has to say certain prayers; he must see that the blood falls upon the sand in a pent, and, above all things, he must avoid being touched by any one while in the act, this in itself rendering the slaughtered animal unclean. He is required to put his ear upon the carcass, giving the date on which the animal is killed. No Israelite is permitted to eat fowl which has been killed more than three days before."—Paris American Register.

Peculiarities of the Swordfish.

When excited, Professor Goode says, the swordfish's motions are very quick and nervous. The fish are sometimes seen to leap entirely out of the water. The pointed head, the fins on the back and abdomen simply fitting into grooves, the absence of ventrals, the long, lithe, muscular body, sloping slowly to the tail, fit it for the most rapid and forcible movement through the water. It strikes with the accumulated force of fifteen double headed hammers. Its velocity is equals that of a swivel shot and is as dangerous in its effects as a heavy artillery projectile. Many very curious instances are on record of the encounters of this fish with other fishes, or of their attacks upon ships. What can be the inducement for it to attack objects so much larger than itself it is hard to surmise. It surely seems as if a temporary insanity sometimes takes possession of the fish. An old swordsfisherman told Mr. Blackford that his vessel had been struck twenty times. There are, however, many instances of entirely unprovoked assault on vessels at sea.—New York Mail and Express.

Why Waste Time and Money on that which does no good. Your child can have worms and are Gross, Always Hungry, Sleepless, Pray and Weak from the presence of Worms in the stomach which prevents the food taken up to nourish the child. Parmelee's Santonine Worm Candies will dissolve and remove the worms and then all will be well. You cannot do better by your children than to attend to their health. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr G. W. Crouter. 237

The Throat is often diseased on account of Catarrh, producing Bronchitis and a Constant Desire to Cough. That Tickling Sensation and Hoarseness that is so common to public singers and speakers especially is relieved at once by Piso's Cough Troches which are prepared from the most approved formula. Do not wait till Acute Bronchitis or even Consumption takes firm hold of you. Price only 25c per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Beckner's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

A HOME FREE

Two and One-Fourth Acres of Land, Less than Three-Fourths of a Mile from Charlevoix, to be GIVEN AWAY.

Every person paying Five Dollars in CASH for goods or on account at our store will receive one chance to obtain the prize.

One number, between 1 and 1,000, will be sealed in an envelope, and deposited in the bank, and will not be opened until all the numbers are given out. After the 1,000 numbers are given out, the sealed number will be opened, and the person holding the ticket calling for that number will receive a deed of the above premises.

A general stock of GROCERIES on hand.

A. J. MUDGE & SON,
Cor. Antrim and Grant Streets, Charlevoix.

To Our Readers.

We have made arrangements with the publishers of the Cottage Hearth, Boston, Mass., to offer the Charlevoix JOURNAL and this magazine this year.

THE COTTAGE HEARTH

Is a well known Family Magazine, now in its 11th year, and is ably conducted. It introduced to its readers Miss Ella Rhoads Foster and Josephine Lazarus Fancy Work, Sabbath Reading, Dressmaker's Patterns, Approved Receipts, Household Hints, and Prize Puzzles for Children. The Beautifully Illustrated monthly magazine has among its many contributors Louisa May Alcott, Rose Terry Cooke, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Celia Thaxter, Louise Chandler Moulton, George Macdonald, Margaret Deland, Augusta Moore, Rose Hartwick Thorpe.

It is a large 32-page elegantly-printed magazine, and has attained a circulation of 75,000 on its merits as a family magazine.

Price $1.50 a Year.

Is very low for such a desirable home magazine, but we offer to send it a year FREE to anyone who will send us $1.50 for a year's subscription to the Charlevoix JOURNAL, or to any one in the Charlevoix JOURNAL office, the Cottage Hearth and the Charlevoix JOURNAL for a full year's subscription for $1.50. Address all orders to F. F. SHUMWAY, Jr., Boston, Mass. For further particulars address THE JOURNAL, Charlevoix, Mich.

MORTGAGE SALE.—Four hundred and twenty dollars and twenty cents (420.20) will be due on a mortgage made August 20, 1884, by Ole Nelson and Ingeborg Nelson, of Chicago, Illinois, to Charlevoix County Bank, of Charlevoix, Michigan, which said mortgage was assigned to Ora D. Wood on December 20, 1887, and the assignment recorded in Liber 3 of Mortgages, on page 478, Charlevoix County Records, on the 6th day of January, 188, and the power of sale contained therein has become operative, the premises described in said mortgage, to wit: The north half of the southeast quarter of section 1, in township twenty-four north, of range one west, containing eighty acres more or less, will be sold at public auction, at the front door of Lewis Hall, in the village of Boyne Union, in said county, on Saturday, the 21st day of March, 1888, at one o'clock in the afternoon of said day, to satisfy the amount then due, with costs.

Dated Charlevoix, Mich., January 4, 1888.

MILO B. EATON,
Attorney for Assignee. Assignee of Mortgage.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

Grand Rapids' best paper.

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Wood at 12½ cents a week.

INVENTION has revolutionized the last half century. Not least among the inventions of the century is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; anyone can do the work; either sex; no matter what age; no special ability required. Capital not needed; you are your own boss. Get this out and return to us and we will send here free something of great value and importance to you that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right from the first than everything else in the world. Address Stinson & Co., Augusta, Maine. 5c4

Poster Printing

Quick and Cheap,

At the Journal Office.

PIMPLES. I will mail (sealed) a recipe for a simple VEGETABLE CURE that will remove PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, FRECKLES, TETTER, ECZEMA, ROUGH SKIN, and leave the skin soft, clear and beautiful. Address, A. H. DAVIS, Box 1, Station D, Brooklyn, N. Y.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Proprietor.

Charlevoix Michigan.

Finest location in town, giving good view of the lake and resorts. Express office, and headquarters for Fishing Parties. Bass Bait a specialty. Good sample room for commercial travelers adjoining hotel.

WILL H. FRANCIS,

Furniture and Jobbing Shop.

Will also do Contracting and Building in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Keeps on hand a full set of hand and foot-power machinery, enabling him to do Jobbing, Repairing, Etc. on short notice. Shop on South Terrace, opposite Harrison Bertram's residence.

FRED W. CROCKER,

COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW And Solicitor of Patents.

ROOM 32, 234 BROADWAY, New York, N. Y.

FARM FOR SALE.

Eighty acres of land situated on river Jordan, in Eveline, Charlevoix county. Best sugar bush in the county. Fifty tons of hay in stack. Will take part down; balance on time to suit the purchaser. For further particulars inquire of E. G. JAMA'S, Trustee, Mich.

PENSION BLANKS.

And all other blanks used in prosecuting claims before the U. S. Pension, Patent, or Land Office for sale at the JOURNAL office.

J. H. WHEELER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, 425 Seventh St., Washington, D. C.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charlevoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

We are headquarters for everything in our line.

A great Reduction in the prices of CLOAKS and Wraps, to close them out.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

DO YOU WANT

PURE DRUGS

Or Carefully Compounded Prescriptions,

CALL ON US.

DO YOU SMOKE? We Keep the Best Cigars.
DO YOU LIKE MUSIC? We will take pleasure in showing our well-selected Stock!

Yours Respectfully,

F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,
Druggists and Pharmacists,
Opera Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

S. & I. 1888 S. & I.

You will need something in our line during 1888. Do not fail to buy of us. You will SAVE YOUR DOLLARS by so doing.

There's Saws, Axes, Files, and Tools of all kinds. Then you may want a New Stove. If you do, you can win it if you don't get one of ours. A majority, a large majority, of the Stove Buyers of the county will tell you, "I got their names, and can refer direct to them." The Champion Pumps, too; what a splendid record they have, working easily and quickly.

Come and see us; if you want anything, BUY OF US. Yours in the belief that we will not fail to please you.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

Cash Club Rates

For the convenience of our friends who want a city paper during the coming year, we will furnish either of the following with the JOURNAL one year at the price named.

Price		With the
Name.		Journal.
50	Babyland	1 80
1 00	Chicago Weekly Herald	2 00
1 00	Chicago Weekly News	2 00
1 00	Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer	2 00
2 00	Cosmopolitan Magazine, monthly	3 30
1 50	Cottage Hearth, monthly	2 00
1 00	Detroit Weekly Free Press	2 00
1 50	Harper's Bazar	4 20
4 00	Harper's Magazine, monthly	4 50
4 00	Harper's Weekly	4 20
2 00	Harper's Young People	2 50
1 50	Little Men and Women	2 10
1 00	Montreal Herald and Star	2 00
2 50	New York Weekly Graphic	3 00
1 00	New York Weekly Star	2 00
1 00	New York Weekly World	2 00
1 00	Pansy	2 10
3 00	Scribner's Magazine	3 75
1 00	Toledo Weekly Blade	2 00
2 45	Wide Awake	3 00
1 00	Young Folks' Journal	2 40

PRESBYTERIANS

READ THIS

Read this the Home and Presbyterian, a large eight-page religious weekly, regular price $2 per year, Free to any person who will send us $1.50 for a year's subscription to the Charlevoix JOURNAL, or to any one in the Charlevoix JOURNAL office, the Cottage Hearth and the Charlevoix JOURNAL for a full year's subscription for $1.50. Address all orders to F. F. SHUMWAY, Jr., Boston, Mass. For further particulars address THE JOURNAL, Charlevoix, Mich.

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in profusion in the waters of Florida, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who write to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day at work. All succeed. Grand outfit free. 5c4

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts can be made for it in NEW YORK.

THE STAR

A Newspaper supporting the Principles of a Democratic Administration.

Published in the City of New York by

WILLIAM DORSHEIMER,
EDITOR.

Daily, Weekly, and Sunday Editions.

THE WEEKLY STAR,

An Eight-page Newspaper, issued every Wednesday.

A clean, pure, bright, and interesting

FAMILY PAPER.

It contains the latest news, down to the hour of going to press.

Agricultural, Market, Fashion, Household, Financial and Commercial, Political, Poetical, Humorous and Editorial.

Department of the kitchen ability, be relieved will be found crowded with good things from beginning to end.

Original stories by distinguished American and foreign writers of fiction.

TERMS OF THE WEEKLY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, subscribe one dollar for one year.

ONE DOLLAR FOR ONE YEAR.

Cases of ten in one name P. O. address, with an extra copy to organizer of Club, - - $10 00
FOR THREE MONTHS, on trial, - - - 25 cents

Special terms and extraordinary inducements to Postmasters and Club Organizers.

THE DAILY STAR.

The Daily Star contains all the news of the day in an attractive form. Its special correspondence by cable from London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Dublin is a commendable feature.

At Washington, Albany, and other news centers, the ablest correspondents, specially retained by The Star, furnish the latest news by telegraph.

Its literary features are unexcelled.

Its Commercial and Market features are unusually full and complete.

TERMS OF THE DAILY STAR TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Free of Postage in the United States and Canada, subscribe for the Daily Star of New York City:

Every Day, for one year (including Sunday),	$7 00
Every Day, six months,	3 50
Every Day, six months,	2 00
Daily, without Sunday, six months,	2 00
Daily, without Daily, one year,	4 00

Address, THE STAR,
Broadway and Park Place, New York.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Gate" and 50 other Popular Ballads, in book form, with words and music. Sent, post-paid, for ONLY FOUR CENTS. Stamps taken. AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., 8360 Fairmount Ave., Philadelphia Pa.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Jan. 5, 1888.

Local Notes and News.

A new sign in front of G. W. Miller's store.

For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. 2m1

We have three columns of good temperence literature on the third page and also some thoughts on the tariff question.

Petitions for local option election containing 597 names have been presented to the county clerk, and 243 came from Charlevoix.

The man who moves down life's path, and finds it strewn with sweet surprises, is he who knows just how it's done, and keeps a store and advertises.

The ladies' band concert at Norwood is reported as very successful, both as a pleasant entertainment and for the benefit of the treasury. It is to be repeated at Boyne in the near future.

Mrs. D. F. Meech received the dictionary and rack at Perry Wood's having purchased the largest amount at that store during December. She held 241 tickets. S. H. Boardsley had the next highest number.

Notice.—Parties owing the Charlevoix Improvement Co. are hereby notified that any and all such amounts must be paid at once. Legal steps will be taken to enforce the collection of all past due notes and accounts. Settlements may be made at Stockman & Iddings' store.

Scarcely a day passes that some farmer, "too poor to take a newspaper" does not get swindled by a patent right shark, Bohemian oat swindler, or some other sharper. And it is getting so that a newspaper man can view such occurances with a complacency as serene as a morning in June.

The Scientific American published by Munn & Co., New York, during more than forty years, is, beyond all question the leading paper pertaining to science, mechanics, and inventions published on this continent. Each weekly issue presents the latest scientific topics in an interesting and reliable manner, accompanied with engravings prepared expressly to demonstrate the subject. The Scientific American is invaluable to every person desiring to keep pace with the inventions and discoveries of the day.

James Inwood celebrated his 78th birthday yesterday. The occasion was remembered by his friends, who made the afternoon a continuous reception from two o'clock until six. So complete was the surprise to Mr. Inwood, that he had no intimation of a reception until his friends commenced to gather in. Callers were at once conducted to the dining room where a sumptuous board was served, after which compliments were paid to Mr. Inwood and family. All were greeted with pleasant smiles and kind words. In response to the accustomed inquiry as to his health, our host answered that he was feeling unusually well, and it is hoped that he may enjoy many similar gatherings.

The following paragraph we find in the Clare Democrat, and "adapt" it to the needs of Charlevoix by simply changing such words as may be necessary: "What does it signify to boom a town or community? What is a boom anyway? The general understanding is that it is the introduction of money and skill from somewhere else. If Charlevoix enjoys great natural advantages, and there is plenty of money among our business men to open manufactories and industries, of all kinds that will give employment to the people now here, and bring others among us, why wish for some man from Chicago to come and tell us how to set ourselves to work. We are all waiting for a boom but are waiting for someone else to do the booming. Is that good sense? If it is good sense it is not enterprise. If the claim we make of great natural advantages is true, why are we not making use of them? Must we confess that we haven't brains to do it? Why do we wait for some man from Oshkosh to tell us what might be done? Why not do it ourselves? If people outside find out that our own people have got faith in the town and are not afraid to put their money in to developing new industries they will be naturally attracted to the place, but as long as our own people hold back from investing their money in enterprise calculated to build up the place, just so long will the outside world hold aloof from the community despite all its natural advantages. If Charlevoix is ever to experience a genuine boom it must be inaugurated among her own business men and people; so lets have a boom."

Purely Personal.

Capt. A. G. Aldrich returned home Saturday.

Mr. J. A. Hawkins is expected home this week.

Mr. Butters returned from his visit at Reading last Saturday.

F. A. Watson and Capt. Carter returned from Frankfort Wednesday.

Mrs. G. B. Guyles and little daughter May returned from Norwood yesterday.

Mrs. A. G. Aldrich expects to leave to-morrow for a visit in Cadillac and Coldwater.

Frank Smith has sold his farm in Marion to James Simpson, recently from Canada.

Horace Eastman and wife, of Harbor Springs, spent New Year's day with the family of L. Benson.

Rev. J. J. Kanagy has finished his pastoral work at Vanderbilt and returned to his home last week.

W. C. Newman returned home Saturday from Saginaw where he has been putting in a number of his patent bridge gates.

Fred W. Mayne seems to have made a study of the size of beans and thereby received the new Davis Sewing Machine at Dr. Crouter's. There were 2057 beans in the jar, and he guessed 2055.

Coming Events.

The firemen have decided to have a calico masquerade Feb. 22d.

A special meeting of the Business Men's Association will be held next Monday evening.

Remember the public installation of officers and picnic social of Baxter Post G. A. R. at the opera hall near Monday evening.

The subject of discussion at the Congregational church Sunday morning will be "Snow Like Wool." In the evening, "The Mission of the Common People." All are invited to be present and especially members of labor associations.

Observing the week of prayer, meetings are being held by the Baptists at Green's hall every evening. Subject of discourse next Sunday morning, "Is it I?" Sunday school after morning service. Preaching in the evening at 7. A hearty invitation to these services is extended.

The Grand Traverse district lodge, I. O. G. T., will hold a two-days' session in Charlevoix, Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 11 and 12, 1888, to be held in Green's hall, commencing on Wednesday at 2 o'clock p. m. There will be an open meeting Wednesday evening, to which all are invited. Good entertainment will be furnished.

Public installation of officers of Baxter Post, G. A. R., in connection with a picnic social, will be held in Bartholomew's opera hall, Jan. 9th. The post will meet in their hall at 6.30 p. m. sharp, for transaction of its regular business. At 8 o'clock the post will march in a body to the opera hall, where the following programme of exercises will be given: 1, Music by the band; 2, Music by quartette; 3, Installation; 4, Music by the band; 5, Camp songs and scenes; 6, Address by the past commander and commander elect; music; 7, refreshments, with hot coffee for everybody. The public is expected to furnish the cup cakes. Spoons and plates will be furnished by the post. Admission fee will be 15 cents. Opera hall will be open at 6 p. m. for early comers from a distance, and the band will be on hand to entertain the public until the post exercises commence. Cups and confections at the sutler's stand.

Harnard.

Jan. 4.—Good lumbering weather. Mrs. William Clark is on the sick list.

The Christmas tree here was a success. The house was full and the presents numerous.

Sunday school closes next Sunday, Jan. 8th, for one quarter.

Miss Chew, who is spending her holidays at her home in Hayes, will commence her school again Monday.

Historical Society.

The society met with the family of W. P. Brown last Friday evening. The paper of the evening entitled, "The three Edwards" was read by Prof. Enos. Mrs. A. O. Downs and Miss Faith Wood favored the society by reading choice selections, and Miss Maggie Green by an instrumental solo. The next meeting will be on Friday 13, at the home of Prof. Enos.

Boyne.

Jan 2—The petition for an election under the local option law was presented to county clerk Thatcher to day; it contained 595 signatures; as under the law 296 signers would have been sufficient, it is probable that an election will be held.

Services will be held each evening during the week of prayer, commencing January 1 in the M. E. chapel, by the Rev. J. Burdge, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Wm. R. Norton.

Another blacksmith in town; junior partner of the firm of G. M. Kerry & Co. Small but active.

On Thursday night, Dec. 29th, the last open water on Pine Lake, as seen from Boyne, was frozen over.

A marriage in town a few days ago. The parties were more successful than Pyramus and Thisbie, of classical fame.

More snow every day for over two weeks.

The coldest night in November the thermometer registered at zero, and it did not get there within eight degrees during the month of December.

On New Year's eve a few friends gathered at the M. E. parsonage, at which time Mrs. Burdge being called from the room a few moments, on returning found her parlor illuminated by a fine hanging lamp, a holiday present to herself. A small collection of substantials compensated Mr. Burdge for his lack of interest in the lamp. Owing to the inclemency of the evening the gathering was small but was much enjoyed by those present.

The ladies of the Boyne W. C. T. U. wish to return thanks to the unions of the county who assisted in circulating local option petitions, also, to all who rendered aid in the matter especially to Charlevoix, who did nobly, sending in 243 signatures. Charlevoix union has a president whose heart is evidently in the work. Irons and Boyne Falls unions also did nicely.

Mrs. Fischer, of Bay Springs and Mrs. Staley, of Advance were buried on New Year's day.

Wilson.

Jan. 2—Elder Grover preached at the school house on Friday evening.

Miss Clara DeLong spent a week with Mrs. Hudkins recently.

G. W. Jones, of Boyne is canvassing for Talmage's new work "The Beautiful Story."

The first blizzard last week.

In closing the first month's school G. W. Fast reports that out of 19 pupils 9 were neither absent nor tardy.

The elopement which occurred on Christmas night is the topic of the hour. The parties are well known and highly respected. [Why not give the names?—Ed.]

Bethel Sunday school elected officers on Jan. 1st. The result was J. R. Vance, supt. Elder Scofield assistant superintendent, Wm. Saunders, secretary, Miss. Ruth Barclay treasurer.

A sad accident occurred at the Vance mill on Wednesday last. Mr. Anstenburg's right hand coming in contact with the circular saw was badly mutilated, one of the bones of the arm broken and several gashes cut. Doctors Bennett and Warne, of Lake Jordan, amputated the hand and dressed the other wounds. He is now doing as well as can be expected.

A TRIBUTE TO THE JOURNAL.

May Christmas greetings come to thee;
Pressmen a smile, mayhap a tear;
Yet every hope of future bright
Rallies around the glad New Year.

In truth and temperance be thou first,
And never swerving from the line,
A rich reward will be thy right,
Long life, prosperity will be thine.

Eveline.

IRONTON, Jan. 3.—Old year has gone the way with good cause. Did you begin the year with good resolutions? If so, keep them. New year's day passed quietly in this town.

George McMulkin and Miss Anna Williams were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Williams, by Rev. J. Dorrance, of Ironton. George has for the past four years been in the employ of the Pine Lake Iron Co., as wood boss. The newly-married couple went to Mancelona for a few days' visit. On their return they will go to keeping house in the residence in Ironton which George has prepared for this occasion.

No school in mountain district on Monday. Teacher away.

Johnny Peterson spent his vacation at the Peterson camp, hunting.

The readers in this section were well pleased with the supplement to the JOURNAL last week. All should read it, why carefully, and be convinced that we do not live in a wilderness, but in a country that is fast becoming cleared up into splendid farms.

Pine Lake froze over Friday night, Dec. 30,—one day earlier than last year.

Our good-natured ferryman, Robert A. Miller, has been relieved of his duties, and the ferryboat is laid up.

All the young people of the mountain district, and the families of Mead Benson and Chas. Hicks, spent New Year's eve with Peter Tuttle. The program included supper, ice cream, taffy and games. A jolly time was had.

M. J. Staley is at Foreman's camp, drawing logs to Dwight.

Mrs. William Staley, living about three miles southeast of Advance, died Dec. 30, after two weeks illness. The funeral occured Sunday, and the remains were taken to the Advance cemetery for interment.

Burgess.

BURGESS, Jan. 3.—The social dance at Solter's hall, Dec. 30, was such a success that the door-keeper could not resist the temptation of skipping out with the receipts for the tickets sold, amounting to $14, together with a new suit of clothes furnished him for the occasion by a friend.

A. W. Chew was home for the holidays.

Mrs. Almira Ganson came from Chicago one day last week, where she has been visiting for several months past, called here by the sickness of her father, Mr. Peter Long.

We understand that Mr. Harris was not very well pleased with the way some of the schools were conducted in this town.

The stage still makes regular trips from Charlevoix to Petoskey, but it has to go through the fields part of way since last Wednesday.

Mr. Charles Hamlin returned home one day last week from Indian territory, where he has been for the past 18 months.

Unclaimed Letters.

List of letters remaining in the postoffice at Charlevoix, Mich., Dec. 31, 1887. If not called for in two weeks they will be sent to the Dead Letter Office. When calling for any of these letters, please say "advertised," and give the date of this list.

Baker, Zina	Hoffman, Carrie
Ball, Owen C.	Isaacson, Kitchiffer
Clark, Miss Carrie	Pickrell Chas
Cock, Miss Hattie	Sherman, Timothy J.
Dickinson, Albert	Taylor, Alonzo
Dickinson, Albert J	Walker, Richard
Donaldson, Frank O.	Wynne, James
Davis, Maggie

INDIAN LETTERS.

Steve Mequoinjah.

CHAS. J. STRANG, P. M.

BORN.

GUARD.—On Jan. 2d, to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Guard, a daughter.

At Home or Abroad; at church and theater, in the counting house and work room, in fact everywhere is heard that backing cough which soon develops into Consumption or Inflamation of the Lungs, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Consumption Be wise in time. Immediate relief and cure can be promptly obtained. Hamilton's Cough Balsam will surely give you relief from these Throat and Lung troubles that often terminate in death. Instant relief in Croup, and a sulsher of Whooping Cough. Your consumptive friend will be greatly benefited. Price 25 and 50 cents. Told by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Personal.

Mr. H. N. Prisbrey, Seattle, Ala., writes: I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, having used it for a severe attack of Bronchitis and Catarrh. It gave me instant relief and entirely cured me, and I have not been afflicted since. I also beg to state that I have tried other remedies with no good result. Have also used Electric Bitters and Dr. King's New Life Pills, both of which I can recommend.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, is sold on a positive guarantee. Trial bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's drug store.

Eating and Starving, it is all the same, for you are sure to suffer from Piles. No worse torture can be conceived of. Blind or Itching Piles are unequalled for annoyance, but by a few applications of Parmelee's Pile Suppositories they entirely disso, keep them. New year's day passed qu

A YEAR'S EVENTS.

A Record of the Notable Occurrences of 1887, Chronologically Arranged.

Brief Mention of the Important Political, Social and Financial Happenings.

Necrology of 1887—Death's Busy Record in the Ranks of the World's Distinguished People.

The Casualty Record—A Long List of Accidents Involving Loss of Human Life.

A Catalogue of the Legal Executions and Victims of Mob Law During the Year.

CHRONOLOGY.

Noteworthy Occurrences of the Year.

JANUARY.

1—Steamer La Champagne is landed her passengers at Havre, France, having sailed from New York on Christmas day. Celebrations were celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of his coming to the throne of Spain.

4—Sunday law cases in all New York courts once generally closed; no liquors given away.

5—Fort Wood is completed, the work is of best quality and superior marble exported by houses from the Lehigh.

—Four young men hanged at Sydney, N. S. W., for murdering a family named Kelly.

6—Sonia Cortina, a young lady of high rank, fell to death of one foot; result of volcanic disturbances.

10—Indio Hayes, negress, who killed a police magistrate in St. Louis, sentenced to imprisonment for ninety-nine years.

FEBRUARY.

6—Jackson Mississippi, people startled by thunder and lightning during an hour, will never say boom now.

—To commemorate the jubilee of Queen Victoria, 50,000 persons were released from jail.

17—Steamship Great Eastern, built in 1858 at a cost of $5,000,000, sold at auction for $25,000.

—A bill proposing to change the flag law so as to legislate in Pennsylvania was unfavorably reported in the Pennsylvania House.

—Death cost of Forty-ninth Congress compared thirteen months in Senate and House.

15—A note, declaring war to midnight spread over the region of Charing Cross, Wolverhampton, Birmingham, London, some startling damage.

16—Emperor William assured the French Consul, Marquis d'Ancre, that he would use all his influence to maintain peace.

—Cholera (in time) entered upon his fifth year.

—Citizens of Buffalo decided upon the removal of overhead wires, because they proved effective work by the city department.

22—Scientists birthday of Emperor William of Germany.

—Chinese troops refused to participate in the Tonquin expedition. Rebellion in Tonquin. Chinese troops invaded a Chinese village, and were feared for the inhabitants into a tumult which was then fired, only forty of the wanderers escaped.

—Eleven inches of snow fell at Lexington, Ky.

—Heavy snowstorm prevailed in Virginia.

—The Pennsylvania Senate passed a bill providing that murderers may be put to death by electricity.

—Sarah E. Howe, the Boston banker, fed with 200,000 intrusted to her by credulous people.

—The Delaware Senate passed a bill to prevent the manufacture and sale of bogus butter.

MAY.

4—Earthquake shocks at El Paso, Texas, Albuquerque, San Marcial, and Lake Valley, N. M., attended great gaiety, forming a part of the news coming Wednesday, Wheelock, and San Jose Mountains, Arizona.

7—Gov. Hill signed the bill making Saturday a half holiday throughout the State of New York.

—The inauguration of a great strike and lockout at Chicago of workingmen connected with the building trades, including 40,000 carpenters, laborers, masons, painters, etc.; the building layers insisted that Saturday should be payday, while the master builders had set Tuesday or Wednesday.

—Three fires occasioned by unknown persons at Cocoa, Fla., making the forty-third incendiary fire in the circuit of Circuit Court's operation.

—Queen Victoria began the fifty-first year of her reign over circuit Britain, and her jubilee was celebrated in an impressive manner by a magnificent procession in London, the most imposing pageant of modern times.

—Is a beautiful day, warm as a white woman of our white and twelve on reel, a lady author of colored people were invoked.

—At Cornell, Pa., Judwin dropped a mile from a balloon to the earth.

—Trade in Chicago, building trades at Chicago, 40,000 carpenters, laborers, masons, painters, etc., Dr. McGlynn, of New York, was reinstated from his Roman Catholic church.

—Extremely warm weather in the country east of the Mississippi and south of the Lakes, Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Kansas City, Leavenworth from 10 to 20 degrees, the latter reporting noted at Streator, Ill., with 10 degrees at Detroit, Mich., Indianapolis were numerous at Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago the day was the hottest, Chicago, Cincinnati, the latter city, double from Pittsburgh.

26—The Constitutional Convention received a request from a Kansas petitioner to be taken off the list of Government pensioners, the Kansas man claimed that his disabilities were cured by faith.

JUNE.

9—John Beall, aged 15, of Eaton, Ohio, contracted the disease of his mother.

6—Tom Woodfolk, living near Macon, Ga., was arrested on the murder of his brother and other members of his family, the perpetrator enjoyed being in jail possession of his father's property.

—Arrest in Indian Territory of Jake Pratt, who, thirty years ago, was sentenced to death in Forsyth County, Georgia, for murder; escaped from the penitentiary.

4—A Pyrotechnic Mr. Randall Blakeslee fell from a balloon, 50 feet in the air, and was killed instantly.

—Labor holiday celebrated throughout the country, the Knights of Labor and the social reformers in the possession, and by socialist and labor organizations.

—Ex-Senator Edward Bretton, of Kansas, died.

—Major Angelo Mye, Tilton, Gilmore, founder of St. Mary's Academy at Notre Dame, Ind., died.

—Indian Bayes, negress, who killed a police magistrate in St. Louis, sentenced to imprisonment for ninety-nine years.

FEBRUARY.

6—Jackson Mississippi, people startled by thunder and lightning during an hour, will never say boom now.

—To commemorate the jubilee of Queen Victoria, 50,000 persons were released from jail.

17—Steamship Great Eastern, built in 1858 at a cost of $5,000,000, sold at auction for $25,000.

—A bill proposing to change the flag law so as to legislate in Pennsylvania was unfavorably reported in the Pennsylvania House.

—Death cost of Forty-ninth Congress compared thirteen months in Senate and House.

15—A note, declaring war to midnight spread over the region of Charing Cross, Wolverhampton, Birmingham, London, some startling damage.

16—Emperor William assured the French Consul, Marquis d'Ancre, that he would use all his influence to maintain peace.

—Cholera (in time) entered upon his fifth year.

—Citizens of Buffalo decided upon the removal of overhead wires, because they proved effective work by the city department.

22—Scientists birthday of Emperor William of Germany.

—Chinese troops refused to participate in the Tonquin expedition. Rebellion in Tonquin. Chinese troops invaded a Chinese village, and were feared for the inhabitants into a tumult which was then fired, only forty of the wanderers escaped.

—Eleven inches of snow fell at Lexington, Ky.

—Heavy snowstorm prevailed in Virginia.

—The Pennsylvania Senate passed a bill providing that murderers may be put to death by electricity.

—Sarah E. Howe, the Boston banker, fed with 200,000 intrusted to her by credulous people.

—The Delaware Senate passed a bill to prevent the manufacture and sale of bogus butter.

MAY.

4—Earthquake shocks at El Paso, Texas, Albuquerque, San Marcial, and Lake Valley, N. M., attended great gaiety, forming a part of the news coming Wednesday, Wheelock, and San Jose Mountains, Arizona.

7—Gov. Hill signed the bill making Saturday a half holiday throughout the State of New York.

—The inauguration of a great strike and lockout at Chicago of workingmen connected with the building trades, including 40,000 carpenters, laborers, masons, painters, etc.; the building layers insisted that Saturday should be payday, while the master builders had set Tuesday or Wednesday.

—Three fires occasioned by unknown persons at Cocoa, Fla., making the forty-third incendiary fire in the circuit of Circuit Court's operation.

—Queen Victoria began the fifty-first year of her reign over circuit Britain, and her jubilee was celebrated in an impressive manner by a magnificent procession in London, the most imposing pageant of modern times.

—Is a beautiful day, warm as a white woman of our white and twelve on reel; a lady author of colored people were invoked.

—At Cornell, Pa., Judwin dropped a mile from a balloon to the earth.

—Trade in Chicago, building trades at Chicago, 40,000 carpenters, laborers, masons, painters, etc., Dr. McGlynn, of New York, was reinstated from his Roman Catholic church.

—Extremely warm weather in the country east of the Mississippi and south of the Lakes, Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Kansas City, Leavenworth from 10 to 20 degrees, the latter reporting noted at Streator, Ill., with 10 degrees at Detroit, Mich., Indianapolis were numerous at Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago the day was the hottest, Chicago, Cincinnati, the latter city, double from Pittsburgh.

26—The Constitutional Convention received a request from a Kansas petitioner to be taken off the list of Government pensioners, the Kansas man claimed that his disabilities were cured by faith.

JUNE.

9—John Beall, aged 15, of Eaton, Ohio, contracted the disease of his mother.

6—Tom Woodfolk, living near Macon, Ga., was arrested on the murder of his brother and other members of his family, the perpetrator enjoyed being in jail possession of his father's property.

—Arrest in Indian Territory of Jake Pratt, who, thirty years ago, was sentenced to death in Forsyth County, Georgia, for murder; escaped from the penitentiary.

4—A Pyrotechnic Mr. Randall Blakeslee fell from a balloon, 50 feet in the air, and was killed instantly.

—Labor holiday celebrated throughout the country, the Knights of Labor and the social reformers in the possession, and by socialist and labor organizations.

—Ex-Senator Edward Bretton, of Kansas, died.

—Major Angelo Mye, Tilton, Gilmore, founder of St. Mary's Academy at Notre Dame, Ind., died.

—In Paris, Mlle. Aimee, singer, John B. Finch, impressive orator.

—Ex-Governor and ex-Senator William B. Washburn, of Massachusetts, died in Paris.

—Mrs. Alice, Marcel Blanc Mrs. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston.

—Commodore Wm. A. Truxton, U. S. N.

—Cardinal Jacobini, the Pope's Secretary of State.

5—Chief Justice Morrison, of the California Supreme Court, died at San Francisco, a participant in the Irish rebellion of 1798, aged 109 years.

7—Ex-Congressman Edward Breitung, of Michigan.

—Major Angelo Mye, Tilton, Gilmore, founder of St. Mary's Academy at Notre Dame,

FARM AND GARDEN.

THE COUNTRY'S CROPS—BRIEF REPORT OF THE FAT STOCK SHOW.

The Famous Jersey Cow Eurotas and Her Descendants—How to Make a Cheap and Serviceable Ice House—Matters of General Interest.

Ice is regarded in many sections of the country as a necessity, and most farmers who have built ice houses and harvested and put up their own ice claim that it pays a good profit in addition to affording a luxury. There are many plans for ice houses; the success of all these in large measure depends on ventilation at the top, dampness below and plenty of packing material all around the ice.

FIG. 1—ICE HOUSE.

The illustrations show an above ground ice house described and approved by Minnesota Farmer. The house is constructed of a single wall boarded up on the inside. It may be built with double walls if preferred, but the wall is not necessary to the cost. The filling and removing is done at the side, hinged doors being provided to close the opening; a swinging door may be used if preferred. The building is left open at the gables, as shown, or horizontal slats may be used, being sure to leave space enough sufficient for ventilation. Diagram No. 2 shows a cross section and the manner of packing the ice; a drain pipe is shown underneath.

FIG. 2—SECTIONAL VIEW.

The walls may be of well matched, rough boards, and the roof the same, well battened so as to shed rain. See that the drainage is good; if not naturally underdrained, put in tile or a stone drain. The small squares in Fig. 2 represent the blocks of ice, which are best cut of uniform size. The small dots show packing material—saw dust, tan bark, finely cut straw, or some other non-conducting material. If cut straw is used the layer must be at least a couple of feet in thickness, and there should be a similar amount above and below the ice; it is safer to put still more on top, and be sure to weight it down well. Of course, if double walls are used, less of the packing material will be needed at the sides. Pack the ice blocks firmly together so that there will be no air spaces between. A solid mass of ice is what is wanted.

Crops of the Country.

The quality of the corn crop is much lower than usual. The last estimate made by the department of agriculture placed the yield at 19.9 per acre, or about 1,453,000,000 bushels.

The final estimate for the potato crop is 131,000,000 bushels, against 165,000,000 bushels last year.

The apple crop, while small everywhere, is, according to Statistician Dodge, the largest in the eastern states, the average standing being Maine, 55; New Hampshire, 65; Vermont, 58; Massachusetts, 61; Connecticut, 83, and New York, 76. These figures are very low compared with prosperous years, yet from New Jersey westward to the Carolinas there is no return of over 45.

There appears to be no question but the cotton crop of the country is short of expectation and smaller than the world's requirements. Hence it is predicted that cotton growers will receive enhanced prices for their crop.

The American clover seed crop is short, but it is thought there will be enough for home consumption. From England come reports of an average crop.

The onion crop, it appears, is a short one all over the country.

Death of the Famous Cow Eurotas.

The death of the famous Jersey cow Eurotas, at Mr. A. B. Darlington's farm, at Darlington, N. J., recalls the wonderful cow's record as a butter producer, and the fabulous prices at which her descendants have been sold at public and private sales. Eurotas (14,451), calved in the 1871, bred by R. M. Hoe, Mordsania, N. Y., by Rioter II (460), dam Eurosa (176). When two years old she became the property of Mr. Darlington, and has since been a prominent feature of Valley Farm, at Darlington. The fame of Eurotas came with the astonishing butter record she made throughout one year. She gave 778 pounds 1 ounce of butter in eleven months and six days and dropped a fine calf within the year. Her second bull calf, Pedro, sold for $10,000, another bull calf, Michael Angelo, sold for the enormous price of $12,500. To Eurotas and her descendants is due, in large measure, the popularity of the Jerseys and the lively competition among breeders, which has resulted in the many fine specimens that today exist in this country, not only of the various strains of Jersey blood, but that of other breeds.

Making Apple Butter.

Apple butter is old fashioned, but it is also very palatable and very healthful—two excellent reasons for calling attention to it. In any farmhouse that boasts of a kettle large enough to cook the apples in, and a pair or two of young, strong arms to assist in stirring the apple butter, it is recommended as one of the best possible products into which to tranform apples that have become bruised or specked and which will not keep long in the natural state.

To make old time apple butter, boil down sweet cider to a little less than half its volume. Pare and cut up the apples and place in a large brass or copper kettle and fill up with the boiled cider. Boil over a slow fire until the apples are thoroughly cooked. Skim the mass occasionally with a wooden paddle or blade set at right angles on the end of a stick long enough for the one using it to stand back from the fire, and with the blade long enough to reach the bottom of the kettle, thus keeping the contents in motion all the while. This is instant motion is required, else the pulp will settle and burn on the bottom of the kettle.

Flavor with allspice, cinnamon and cloves to suit individual taste. When quinces are available a few added to the apples improve the flavor for most tastes.

Cooking Food for Swine.

The perennial question, "Does it pay to cook food for swine?" was agitated at the annual meeting of the National Swine Growers' association, at Chicago, members being about equally divided on the pros and cons of the subject. A member from Indiana advocated cooking food, especially when Professor Stewart's plan is followed, and plan being a mixture of clover hay or similar bulky substance with meal or shorts. This mixture steams the meal thoroughly and mixes with cut clover hay, making eighteen to nineteen pounds of pork from a bushel of meal. He uses oats, bran, a little corn and clover hay, even in summer, to get the desired bulk. In winter he gives the feed warm, his idea being that fattening animals should never be chilly.

Professor Henry, of the Wisconsin Experiment station, claims that he has data sufficient to warrant the statement that there is a positive loss in cooking food for fattening purposes. In addition to the loss by cooking, Professor Henry avers that hogs fed uncooked food do not consume so much, as a rule, in a given time. As gain in weight comes from the excess of food digested above that required for maintenance, the extra amount consumed all goes to give increased weight. Hogs when given dry food consume it much more slowly than when wet. In eating slowly there is probably a much larger amount of saliva mixed with the food, which may go far in adding more complete digestion.

The Drive Well Patent Void.

The drive well patent, which has been a source of both loss and annoyance to farmers in many sections of the country, and which has heretofore been sustained by the supreme court, has been declared void. This decision was based on the record in the case of Andrews, Green and others against George Hoey, brought to Washington by an appeal from the United States circuit court for the southern district of Iowa. This court holds that the fact now made to appear for the first time in the drive well litigation that the invention was for the first time used at Cortlandt, N. Y., by others than Green, more than two years before the application for the patent was made, is fatal to the patent's validity.

The Christmas Turkey.

Turkeys designed for the holiday market, or, indeed, to grace the festive board at home, ought to be confined four in a pen, warm pens and given plenty to eat. Corn meal and sweet potatoes cooked together make an admirable breakfast, on which the birds will fatten rapidly, the meat at the same time gaining a fine flavor.

The Fat Stock Show.

The fat stock shows have increased in popularity with each year, and it is safe to say that the tenth annual exhibition recently held in Chicago, Ills., stands ahead of the shows that have preceded it. The different states were well represented and the show of stock was a large one, with the quality of the exhibits quite up to the standard. Shorthorns took the sweepstakes for the best single animal and several of the prizes in special classes. The Aberdeen Angus took the award for the best herd shown. The exhibition of grades or crossbred animals was an interesting one.

The horse show held in connection with the fat stock show, although a recent feature, proved one of the finest exhibits of the kind ever made in this country. The exhibits in the various draft classes were very fine and there were also some excellent specimens of the American trotter—Cleveland bays, carriage and park horses, The draft horses represented the Percheron, Clyde, English shire, French draft, Belgium, etc.

A TAMWORTH SOW.

In the swine exhibit there were seventeen exhibitors with about 100 animals all told, including Poland-Chinas, Berkshires, Yorkshires, Duroc-Jerseys, Essexs, Suffolks, Yorkshires, Chester Whites, two Gothlands, one Tamworth, with various grades and crosses. The heaviest hog on exhibition was Sir Robert, a Tamworth, 5 years old and belonging to Thomas Bennett, Roseville, Ills. The weight of this animal was 560 pounds.

The sheep exhibit was a fairly good one, a novelty was the Dorset horned. Dorsets were well represented. There was a very creditable show of swine. The poultry show was immense, and included every known breed.

The premium list is said to have reached this year $17,000. Next year the word "fat" will be omitted from the name of the show, and the exhibition will include only fat cattle, but breeding cattle as well.

Hove and There.

At the National Beekeepers' convention in Chicago, Dr. A. B. Mason, of Toledo, O., was elected president for the ensuing year. The next annual convention will be held at Cleveland.

The lowest yield reported to the department of agriculture from the great corn states is from Kansas, where the estimate is only twelve bushels per acre.

Dakota reports a larger apple crop than the average.

Mr. C. J. Wetmore, secretary of the California board of state viticultural commissioners, reports the wine crop as a light one, about 15,000,000, and the raisin crop at from 750,000 to 800,000 boxes.

Truck farmers throughout southern Louisiana are making extensive preparations for the coming season. It is reported that 2,000 acres will be planted in strawberries, beside a large area in fruit trees and early vegetables of all kinds.

The cranberry crop is some 60,000 bushels less than was that of last year.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for one and this paper and this paper
Wide Awake	$1.00	$1.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	1.00
Puck	1	1.00
Little Men and Women	1	1.00
Scribner	4.00	4.50

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a dime in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a deadhead. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Scribner, full of pictures and songs and stories, Wide Awake comes even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Puck comes with the Sunday School age.

Christopher Penny Folks' Journal is for young women.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"Library, study, playhouse, life at home and abroad, companionship of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all impressing people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magnificent magazines that we encourage civilized life wherever they go.

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES

Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Scalds, Burns, Sprains, Bruises, Stiffness, Stiff Joints, Scratches, Galls, Sores, Spavin Cracks, Contracted Muscles, Exposure, Hoof Ail, Screw Worm, Swinney, Saddle Galls, Piles.

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY accomplishes for everybody exactly what is claimed for it. One of the oldest and best of all the Mexican Mustang Liniments is found in its well-earned popularity. Everywhere it works a marvelous work.

The Lumberman needs it in case of accidents.

The Housewife needs it for general family use.

The Canaller needs it for his teams and himself.

The Mechanic needs it always on his work bench.

The Miner needs it in case of emergency.

The Pioneer needs it—can't live without it.

The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, his stock yard.

The Horseman uses it the Horseman needs it in liberal supply at hand always.

The Sportsman needs it—it is his best friend and safest reliance.

The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars and a world of troubles.

The Railroad man needs it as it is used in so many his life is a round of accidents or dangers.

The Rack-breaker needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the dangers to life, limb and property which surround the shunter.

The Merchant needs it about his store among his employees, customers and hands, and when he uses the Mustang Liniment he is used as one of the family.

Keep a Bottle in the House. "In the heat of the moment" it may be needed.

Keep a Bottle in the Factory. Its immediate use may prevent accidents and loss of wage.

Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for use when wanted.

ALL SHOULD TAKE IT!

That Best of Family Papers.

THE WEEKLY

Detroit Free Press

No other paper is so well adapted to the wants of the people.

NINE REASONS WHY!

1—Each issue contains of The Large Folio 78 with the Sunday issue 104 of the best reading matter it is possible to put into a newspaper.

2—It is the only paper in the Northwest which has the Associated Press dispatches, the Associated Press and the Associated Press Night Report, which is the fullest and most complete report of the world's doings.

3—Special attention is paid to Michigan News, all the news of the State being condensed into a Michigan Page, which is a feature of the paper not to be equaled in any other paper.

4—Its Market Reports are the fullest and most reliable of any paper in the Northwest, including Chicago Daily Market Reports by telegraph, Detroit Market Reports, Lumber Market Reports, Detroit Produce and Provisions Market, Detroit Wool Market, Detroit Live Stock Market, Detroit Lumber Market, Detroit Grain Market, Detroit Seed Market, Detroit Hay

THE JOURNAL
BY CHAS. J. STRANG.
CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

FRESH FROM THE WIRES.

Events of Interest and Importance in Every Quarter of the Habitable Globe.

News Relating to Politics, Religion, Commerce, Industry, Labor, and Other Topics.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

HONORING THE POPE.

Rome's Great Jubilee—A Magnificent Spectacle.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH, in Rome, was literally packed with distinguished people from all parts of the world, to celebrate the success of the Pope's golden jubilee on the 1st of January. A cable dispatch from Rome says:

The crowning feature, the celebration of the Pontiff's high mass in the church, by his secret chamberlain, was a most magnificent spectacle. The church was literally transformed into a Valhalla of the dead, the cardinals representing the living. The decorations were simply beautiful. Nothing in the way of mortuary adornment was left out. The church was hung with black, and the altars were all draped in black, with the exception of the high altar, which was ablaze with lights. Hundreds of wax candles were lighted. The church was filled with the cardinals, who were seated in the choir, and with the representatives of the Roman Catholic hierarchy from all parts of the world, who occupied the nave. The church was packed to its utmost capacity, and many people were profoundly affected. The Pope, the Holy Father withdrew from the Cathedral, amid a scene of great enthusiasm, the nave almost the entire nave accompanied by waving of hats and handkerchiefs, clash clapping of hands, and other manifestations of affection, which continued long after he had disappeared. The Papal Guards, foreign diplomatic representatives, and other distinguished visitors from other lands occupied the Pontifical Chapel, which is the Sistine Chapel. The presents were of great celebration. Statesmen and prelates from the United States of America were seated and filled and even royal visitors from other lands were present. The presents were of great beauty and of the utmost intrinsic value. Jewels, jewels, jewels, and more jewels, and treasures, have been for months flowing to the Vatican. Protestants, Catholics, and Mohammedans have been contributors. The first present of note came from the Sultan in the shape of a magnificent set of jewels, in a gorgeous casket, and valued at $50,000. The Queen Regent of Spain sent another ring of magnificent value, valued at $10,000. The Emperor of Germany sent a mitre worked in gold, with rubies, emeralds, and pearls, and the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria sent a mitre of the Queen Victoria, which was used in the celebration of the pontifical mass.

THE EUROPEAN WAR CLOUD.

It Neither Diminishes Nor Grows Larger—Russia and France Unknown Factors in the Diplomatic Complications.

A special cable dispatch from London says:

The danger of war has existed for a whole year, and too only new point in the situation at the moment is that the relations between the Powers are more perfectly friendly than they have been for some time past. The prospect now is that the danger will pass away with the end of the spring, though undoubtedly very little comfort can be derived from this fact. France and Russia are still in a large extent unknown factors in the diplomatic calculations. France, indeed, has passed with wonderful quickness through a prolonged crisis and has emerged from it, to all appearances, in the best condition. Russia and, since in France or elsewhere, is convinced that calm which is apparent there now is the result of the removal of the causes of disturbance. In the East the danger of war cannot pass away, as there are no indications on her part to abandon the position she has taken up, and her fate opposition with Austria. Russia is determined to have her way in the Balkans which is incompatible with the existence of Austria as a great power. This is the really important element, and nothing has been answered there will be no assured peace in the east of Europe. Austria, on the other hand, may postpone the struggle or affect its conclusion by her diplomacy, but she can do little or little the present generation will see a definitive settlement of the question of the Balkans and of Constantinople, but the issue whether the future development of the Southern Slavs shall take place under Russian or under Austrian influence.

Railroad Disasters.

FIVE men were killed and a dozen injured by a collision on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad, near Marion, Ohio.

AN accident on the Cincinnati Southern Railway, near Greenwood, Kentucky, resulted in the death of seven persons and the injury of a large number, some of whom may die as a result.

NEWTS, Indiana, is again brought into notice as the scene of a railroad disaster. Two sections of a fast live-stock train going at full speed collided on the Chicago and Atlantic road. A brakeman was killed and a fireman, and a carload of cattle was also destroyed.

National Finances.

The receipts of the Government from all sources during the past month were $23,325,285, and the expenditures $19,490,662, leaving a net gain of receipts over expenditures of $18,924,622. Out of this net gain, however, must be paid about $6,500,000 for interest upon the public debt, which will leave the actual surplus for December $15,424,623. The public debt was also reduced during the month to the amount of $15,254,000. For the entire calendar year of 1887 the debt was diminished by $117,016,005.

Fire Losses.

A FIRE at Hickeville, Ohio, destroyed property to the value of $65,000. The flames devoured about one-half the town of Homer, Ia., and two fires at Memphis did damage amounting to $100,000. Seven business houses were wiped out at Laingsburg, Mich., entailing a loss of $25,000. A fire at Carrollton, Ky., destroyed property valued at $50,000. A blaze at Kansas City, Mo., wiped out $110,000 worth of property. Big Rapids, City, N. J., had a $60,000 fire, and Aitkin, Minn., suffered a loss of $50,000 from fire.

Political Tragedy in New Orleans.

The city of New Orleans has been thrown into a fever of excitement by an affray between partisans of Nicholls and Kellogg, rival candidates for Governor, resulting in the killing of Hon. Patrick Healy, and the wounding of two or three other men. Over 100 shots were fired. Healy was Commissioner of Police, and the most popular Democratic leader in the city.

THE EASTERN STATES.

THE funeral ceremonies over the body of the late executor Pauline Markham were held at Albany December 27, and it was placed in the mortuary chapel of the Rural Cemetery to await interment in the family lot next spring. Flags were hung at half-mast in the city out of respect for the memory of the dead statesman, and in accordance with the Mayor's request business was suspended during the time of the funeral. The President, all the members of the Cabinet, and many other prominent people were present.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY MARTINE, of New York, has filed the following memorandum in the matter of the charges against Jay Gould and Russell Sage by the bondholders of the Kansas Pacific Railroad:

This is an application to present to the Grand Jury a charge of larceny against Jay Gould and Russell Sage under the 384th section of the Penal Code, which reads that with the intent to defraud any person shall be charged constitutes a crime. A possible statute of limitations is involved in the question complained of in the statute of limitations, the statute of limitations, which provides that offenders in such cases shall not be tried unless the offenders in such cases shall not be tried unless which it is sought to prosecute may be so contrived as to prevent the people from proceed, notwithstanding the statute of limitations, and the question of fact which would involve a disposition of some and much more, which would be so close and the interests involved here—as well of the people as of the defendants—are so important it seems proper to leave the determination of the question of law to the courts and in order to effect that purpose to present the facts to the Grand Jury, and if proper, an indictment should be found and tried.

SOMETHING very like a tidal wave of moisture swept upon the headlands of the outside of Portland harbor. The great mass of water may fast above high-water mark, carrying everything before it.

THE WESTERN STATES.

A FIRE which broke out in Wakefield, Mich., burned the entire business part of the place. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The insurance is small. The fire started in a variety theatre, and was caused by a monkey which overturned a lamp.

THE Adventists of Battle Creek, Mich., full persuaded that the day of doom is close at hand, are discarding jewelry and making other preparations. At a meeting the other night $5,000 was raised to establish missions.

A JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) special announces the death of Governor Marmaduke, of powerful, after an illness of two days. Governor John S. Marmaduke became Governor of Missouri January 1, 1885. During the war he served in the Confederate army, where he gained his title of "General." He became, however, as a man of influencing courage, and in September, 1864, fought a duel with General Walker, of Memphis, also in the Confederate army. Walker and Marmaduke were officers of the same rank, but neither would recognize the other as his superior. His words caused and the duel was the result. The conditions of the meeting were that the men should use their side arms at thirty paces, advance, and fire until one or both were killed. At the third shot Walker fell mortally wounded, dying without uttering a word. Shortly afterward Gen. Marmaduke succeeded to the command and conducted the Confederate retreat from Little Rock. During this retrograde movement the fighting was almost continuous, and the reckless bravery displayed by Gen. Marmaduke was attributed to a desire to end his miserable existence. Ex-Governor of Missouri he got into a dispute with Mayor Sawyer, and a duel was imminent, but the matter was amicably settled by friends.

A PASSENGER car on the Toledo, Ann Arbor and North Michigan Road was upset at Alma, Mich., by a bad frog. Six persons were fatally injured, and the north-bound train was detained for hours.

A ranger telegram from Wichita, Kan., says: "Charles George, a cattle dealer from 'No Man's Land,' has arrived here, and gives some details of the capture and lynching of the Kelly family, whose horrible crimes, published widely a few days ago, were so exceedingly atrocious as anything committed by the Border ruffians. The Kelly family left their home near Oak City, going south. A posse of citizens started in pursuit, and found them fifty miles south, in Texas. The old man escaped, but the son, Bill, was hanged, and the mother and daughter were shot while the posse was endeavoring to capture them.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

AT Jonesville, Va., Daniel Newton, colored, was fatally burned in trying to rescue his children from his burning house. The stairs leading to the attic where his three children were sleeping were burned. He reached the room by means of a ladder, and found the bed enveloped in flames. He made a desperate attempt to save the children, but they were burned to death.

WILLIAM FINCHUM was hanged at Harrisonburg, Va., for the brutal murder of his own brother, Preston Finchum. He had prearranged a meeting in the woods with his brother, and sent him to a distillery for brandy for the purpose of making him drunk, and also to nerve himself for the horrible deed. When Preston got so drunk as to be partially oblivious of what was going on William stepped behind him and shot him in the head. He then clubbed him several times, crushing his skull to make his victim's death certain.

ALBERT PETERS was hanged at Marianna, Ark., for the murder of William Dickinson, near Fordyce, in April, 1885.

JOHN SURGERLAND, a white boy of 20 years, was executed at Conway, S. C., for the murder of his stepmother.

WILLIAM HERSEY, the Arkansas farmer who murdered his wife and her lover, was hanged to a tree under which he was found sleeping. He and he was ready and willing to die, and had no cause for regret.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

A WASHINGTON correspondent telegraphs that "there is a strong probability that the next vacancy the administration will be called upon to fill will be that of Commissioner of Indian Affairs. General Atkins, the present incumbent, is anxious to escape from the assurance and drudgery of the office, and has repeatedly of late, intimated to his friends his anxiety to resign. The death of Mr. Atkins, which recently occurred, is not without its influence."

THE INDUSTRIAL REALM.

Representatives of the Union Labor party, of Indiana, met at Indianapolis last week and decided to issue a call at once for a State convention to nominate a full ticket, from Governor down. The convention will be held March 7.

A PHILADELPHIA dispatch says that "Chairman John I. Lee and Henry I. Bennett, a member of the Executive Committee of the Knights of Labor, tried to hold a conference with the Reading officials. Superintendent Swoger refused to talk with them in their capacity as members of a labor committee. Lee was afterward discharged. Trains were made to run, and further trouble in the thirty-odd collieries in the Schuylkill region were being averted when the news came from Elizabeth, N. J., has been resumed. Two steamboats arrived with 175 new men, whereupon the men left the place of the strikers and guarded by detectives. The railroad strike is thought to be over, but fears of a miners' strike are growing." President Corbin, of the Reading Company, in a letter to the General Manager of the road, says:

Hereafter we will operate this property with employes who consider their first duty is to the

STRIKES AND LOCKOUTS.

Annual Report of Carroll D. Wright, Chief of the Bureau of Labor.

Details of Industrial Troubles Occurring in the United States for Six Years.

Vast Sums of Money Lost by Both Employer and Employe—Success and Failures.

[Washington special.]

Commissioner Carroll D. Wright has submitted to the Secretary of the Interior the third annual report of the Bureau of Labor, which relates entirely to strikes and lockouts for the period of six years ended Dec. 31, 1886. The report is regarded as of special importance, as it is the result of the first general investigation ever made by any nation of the facts concerning strikes and lockouts for any extended period of time or for any wide extent of territory. The report covers about 700 printed pages, and gives the details of 6,728 strikes and lockout occurring in the United States during the period named. It exhibits the force belonging to each industrial troubles, and shows how such troubles are feeds without attempting to establish or decide the connection between them. The following table shows the number of strikes occurring during each of the last six years, with the number of establishments involved:

Year.	Strikes.	Involved.
1881	451	81,264
1882	478	2,152
1883	354	2,117
1884	696	3,886
1885	641	4,635
1886	1,572	92,328
Totals	3,703	92,328

In 1887, the report says, there were, according to the best information obtainable, 853 strikes, details of which are not available. Of the 6,728 strikes and lockouts in the period covered by the investigation, New York had the largest number, 1,051, and Pennsylvania 1,027. The number of establishments affected by strikes and lockouts, or, there being for the former 9,247 and for the latter 3,386.

The building trades furnished 6,660 of the total number of establishments engaged in strikes. The total number of employes involved in the strikes and lockouts for the entire period is shown to have been 1,149,347. The number of employes originating the strikes was 1,020,271. The number of employes in the establishments before the strikes occurred was 1,503,040, while the number actually locked out was 159,548. There were 19,976 new employes secured at the close of the lockouts, and 5,682 were brought from other places than those in which the lockout occurred.

"It should be remembered, however," says the report, "that these figures do not represent the total number of individual establishments, or different employes engaged in the strikes, inasmuch as the two or more strikes or lockouts affecting the same establishment are in many cases in such cases the establishment and the employes are counted in each case thus affected." Of the whole number of employes involved in strikes during the six years trades, 531; clothing, 273; metal and metallic goods, 76; and tobacco, 226; or a total of 1,107.

Besides compiling the field work for this report, and the compilation of the last year's statistics, the bureau has carried on almost to completion the investigation begun last year concerning the moral, physical, and economical conditions of the working women of great cities, and has continued its investigation into the cost of great single products. It has also undertaken, according to Congressional instruction, the collection of statistics of marriage and divorce in the United States, and expects to have the work completed before the close of the present session of Congress.

THIRTEEN THOUSAND.

That Is the Number of Miles of Railroad Constructed During the Year.

Kansas Leads, with Nebraska and Texas Following—Interesting Figures.

[Chicago special.]

The current number of the Railway Age says that the year 1887 has surpassed all other years in the extent of railroad mileage constructed in the United States. Nearly six months ago, this paper predicted that the total new mileage for the year would not be less than 10,000 miles, with the likelihood of surpassing the record of 1882—the year of greatest railroad construction in the history of the country," it was not generally believed. That this figure obtained by careful investigation throughout the year and continued to be the last figure given, now prove the prediction to have been more than conservative. The figures show that during 1887 no less than 12,724 miles of new main line track were added to the railway system of the United States, account being taken in this of the number of miles of second, third, and fourth tracks, and of the thousands of miles of main track laid with steel instead of iron. These figures show that in this one item of mileage the record of 1882 has been surpassed by 2,024 miles, or 20.80 per cent. of the whole.

By lockouts 504 establishments, or 26.85 per cent. of the whole number, were affected, involving their points; 149, or 8.71 per cent., partly succeeded, and 355, or 20.85 per cent. failed.

As to causes or objects of strikes, it is shown that increase of wages was the principal one, 44.14 per cent. The other leading causes are given as follows: For reduction of hours, 19.46 per cent.; against reduction of wages, 7.75 per cent.; for increase of wages and reduction of hours, 7.57 per cent.; against increase of hours, 10.65 per cent.; total for the five leading causes, 79.57 per cent. All other causes 22.17 per cent. Disclaiming absolute accuracy, the report makes public the following figures:

Losses to strikers during the six years cost, 41.47 per cent. The other leading causes are given as follows: For reduction of wages, 15.45 per cent.; against reduction of wages, 7.75 per cent.; for increase of wages and reduction of hours, 7.57 per cent.; against increase of hours, 10.65 per cent.; total for the five leading causes, 79.57 per cent. All other causes 22.17 per cent. Disclaiming absolute accuracy, the report makes public the following figures:

Losses to strikers during the six years cost, 41.47 per cent. The other leading causes are given as follows: For reduction of wages, 15.45 per cent.; against reduction of wages, 7.75 per cent.; for increase of wages and reduction of hours, 7.57 per cent.; against increase of hours, 10.65 per cent.; total for the five leading causes, 79.57 per cent. All other causes 22.17 per cent. Disclaiming absolute accuracy, the report makes public the following figures:

Maine	2	Indiana	8
New Hampshire	3	Illinois	17
Vermont	1	Wisconsin	11
Massachusetts	12	Minnesota	2
Rhode Island	1	Iowa	6
Connecticut	3	Missouri	10
New Jersey	2	Kansas	4
Pennsylvania	1	Nebraska	1
Delaware	1	Texas	1
Maryland	1	Colorado	2
Virginia	1	Utah	1
North Carolina	2	California	1
South Carolina	2	Oregon	1
Georgia	1	Nevada	1
Alabama	1	Dakota	1
Mississippi	1	Total	174
Louisiana	4
Tennessee	1
Kentucky	3

RECAPITULATION.

	No. Lines.	Miles.
New England States	3	10
Middle States	5	19
Southern States	19	54
Middle Western States	59	164.1
Northwestern States	44	122.5
Southwestern States	40	111.5
Pacific States	4	11
Total of the 7 States	174	492.6

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

For the purpose of comparison we repeat the following summary of total railway mileage in the United States for twenty years ending 1887:

Year.	Miles.	Year.	Miles.
1867	35,000	1877	74,096
1868	36,000	1878	75,057
1869	39,000	1879	76,808
1870	46,844	1880	86,416
1871	52,914	1881	93,296
1872	60,293	1882	103,708
1873	66,171	1883	114,677
1874	70,268	1884	116,844
1875	72,385	1885	119,293
1876	73,092	1886	122,671
1887	136,171

The Railway Age says: Not only is the great mileage of last year much more generally good, but the number of different lines in operation was in surprisingly large, aggregating, after deducting for the duplicating of lines lying in two or more States, no less than 136,171 miles, or about the number of companies building these lines, and the number of miles of road, which may be called a "trunk" line, or main line, or branch, or feeder, or spur, or line, or road, or railway, or road, or railway, or road, or railway

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

Hampton as a Democrat.

In the first issue of the Independent Democrat as a combined paper, Chas. S. Hampton publishes his resignation as Secretary of the Greenback State Central Committee, and gives his reasons at length for deciding to leave that party, and in the future voting and working for democracy, from which we take the following:

The greenback party was organized to resist the legalized robbery of republican legislation. The republican party had become a mere tool in the hands of the money power of the east, and Wall street had such a strong grip upon the organization of the democratic party that a third party was imperatively necessary. The ceaseless agitation of the new party opened the eyes of the people to some of the impending dangers, and the ruinous contraction of the currency was stopped, while in a few years time much of the remedial legislation for which the greenback party was organized has been adopted.

The destruction of the greenback was stopped.

The usurpation of gold sovereignity has been dethroned.

Silver has been restored to its rightful place.

The greenback doctrine has been approved by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The scheme for the perpetuation of the bonded debt has been buried.

The perpetuation of the national banks has been defeated several times, and the rapid payment of the public debt is bringing that dangerous and expensive currency to a close.

While these reforms have unquestionably been due to the persistent discussion of the question which the greenback party forced upon the old parties, greenbackers should not forget that there has never been a handful of their party in congress, and that we had to depend upon the democrats and a few western republicans for all the greenback and anti-monopoly legislation we secured.

With the party organization abandoned in most of the states, and weakened here by the United Labor faction, I feel that the only hope of completing the work we begun is in the democratic party.

The republican party, which was responsible for all the evils which we organized to resist, still remains a power in the land, and is still the tool of aristocracy and monopoly and the enemy of the people. It was the republican party which swindled the American people out of a billion of dollars in the bond transactions; it was the republican party which debased the greenbacks for the benefit of the bond-holders, cheating the soldiers out of a large share of their meager pay, and afterwards refused to right the wrong; it was the republican party which demonetized silver to enrich the money lenders by robbing the borrowers; it was the republican party that instituted the national banking system, and thus gave private corporations power to control the currency and make prices high or low as they pleased; it was the republican party, which, to put the people more completely in the power of the bankers, burned up the greenbacks and brought bankruptcy, ruin and misery upon the country; it was the republican party which stole our public domain, giving away a greater extent of territory than that of a dozen European nations combined; it was the republican party which squandered millions upon millions in corrupt jobs in the navy department, and left us nothing but half a dozen rotten and unseaworthy hulks as a reminder of the American navy which had twice humbled the mistress of the seas; it was the republican party which destroyed American commerce and swept the American flag from the seas; it was the republican party which built up the railroad monopoly, the telegraph monopoly, the Standard Oil monopoly, and encouraged and stimulated all the syndicates, pools and "trusts" which have fattened on the people; it was the class legislation of the republican party which has made a few men millionaires and keep the masses poor.

These facts became so apparent that the people finally took the presidency and the lower house out of their hands. But the senate is not chosen by the people, and the immense wealth, which republican legislation has permitted the millionaire aristocracy to wrest from the people has enabled them to buy seats in our "American House of Lords" by purchasing corrupt republican legislatures, and as the president and lower house can do nothing without the senate, they thus defy the will of the people.

The republican party of today is the money party, opposed to democracy, the party of the people. The republican party is responsible for the hundreds of millions of surplus that is being taken from the people and piled up in the treasury, making times hard and threatening another panic; the republican party in the last congress refused to allow the matter of preventing that needless and dangerous surplus to be even taken up for consideration; the republican party will not allow the democrats to relieve the people of the burdens of the war tariff imposed over a quarter of a century ago; the republican party is doing its best to prevent the democratic administration from restoring to the people the land which were stolen from them under republican rule; the republican party is determined that the banks shall still control the currency, and has proposed a scheme to substitute municipal in place of United States bonds, thus virtually re-establishing the old "wild cat" system.

In short, the republican party represents the money power, whose aggressions every greenbacker always has and always will oppose. The greenback party has been the skirmish line in the attack upon the enemy of the people. But our efforts would have been powerless had it not been that back of us were the rank and file of the democracy! The treacherous commanders who held them have been superceded, and the grand old democratic party has advanced until we find ourselves shoulder to shoulder.

In Michigan for four years past we have maintained two distinct party organizations with but one set of principles. Greenbackers have often remarked that the only difference between the platforms of the allied parties in '86 was that the principles of the greenback party were a little better expressed in the democratic platform.

The fact is that Greenback Principles are Democratic Principles. Jefferson said "Bank issue must be suppressed, and the circulation restored to the government, where it belongs"; and Jackson made as brave a fight against the bank power of his day as Weaver has in his.

In view of these facts, are not Michigan greenbackers wasting their strength and endangering the success of their principles by keeping up a separate party organization? I shall not assume to decide for others, but for myself I do not hesitate to say that I feel it an imperative duty to enlist in the democratic ranks.

If the tariff reformers and currency reformers in these western states sustain the democratic party in its efforts to advance their principles, our national affairs will no longer be dominated by the monied interests of the east.

President Cleveland has stated what the money power has always denied, that the panic of '73 was caused by a contraction of the currency, and he warns congress not to permit a repetition. His brave and patriotic stand for the people against legalized robbery makes him a target for every extortionist, and entitles him to the support of every voter who prefers democracy, the rule of the people, to aristocracy, the rule of the money lords.

As I am sincere in my own convictions, I am ready to admit that others may be equally sincere, even though they differ from me. But so long as the democratic party remains true to these principles of Jeffersonian and Jacksonian democracy, I shall be proud to call myself a democrat.

The Scientific American, published by the great patent agency firm of Munn & Co., New York, is the most practically useful publication of its kind in the country. Indeed it occupies a field distinctively its own. Not alone for the machinist, manufacturer, or scientist, but it is a journal of popular format and study. It is the standard authority on scientific and mechanical subjects. It is placed at a very low rate of subscription, $3 per annum, which places it within the reach of all. Subscriptions will be received at the office of this paper.

It is said that the Canadian Pacific railroad is encouraging matrimony among young men in the Northwest territory by offering "matrimonial tickets" to those who go back to Ontario to get married. The tickets are sold at the usual rates, and when the happy man returns with his wife, he presents his marriage certificate, and the ticket goes free.

PLATFORM ECHOES.

John B. Gough's Last and Best Book.

This new and splendidly illustrated volume; the last written by the world famous John B. Gough, and was completed by him just previous to his death. Everyone is familiar with the story of his early life, and of his rescue from a drunkard's grave and how this once wretched and despised sot became one of the most famous men of our time. For seven years he stood amid the horrors of delirium tremens, an abject slave to the bottle; and his condition and wretched appearance were such as to cause people to exclaim, "There's the man who has been in hell." The rich and poor, the high, the low, the learned and unlearned, have been alike thrilled and moved by his burning words. He swayed brilliant audiences of royalty and fashion; spoke in state prisons, jails, poor houses, penitentiaries, reform schools, and houses of correction; to the deaf, and dumb, and blind; to audiences composed wholly of out casts, and to audiences numbering thousands of children. At his feet more than ten million people sat and listened in admiration and wonder. In his library may be seen a set of large volumes—a far better memorial of his life and labors than any monument of marble or bronze—containing the original signatures of one hundred and fifty thousand men and women who were induced to sign the pledge; through his personal efforts. These names—many of them tear-bedewed and written with trembling hand—represent stories of happiness and woe, of ruin and remorse, of blighted hopes and wasted lives, of battles fought and victories won. To give some of these thrilling life histories, to depict scenes of joy and sadness; to lift the curtain on life's stage and show its tragedy and comedy; and to draw "living truths" from the lessons thus taught, and bring them home to every heart, is the prime object of this volume. It also contains the history of Mr. Gough's life and career, from the cradle to the grave, and the story of his death told by Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, the eminent editor and divine.

"Platform Echoes" is John B. Gough in print. Stranger stories are here told than romance ever dreamed of, every one of them drawn from real life by a master hand. In every chapter he weaves in anecdote after anecdote, incident after incident, story after story, and underneath them all lie "Living Truths", that stand out as beacon lights. He plays upon the readers feelings as with an enchanter's wand, at one time filling his heart with tears. At his bidding hearts are melted, and stern, strong men as well as sensitive women, weep tears of compassion, are aroused to indignation, or moved to uncontrollable laughter in spite of every effort to control their feelings.

Its illustrations are the best we have ever seen. It contains two hundred and twenty seven fine engravings by the best artists and engravers in the world. Many of these illustrations are "too funny for anything" while others depict wretchedness and woe. Sixteen of these engravings are full page ones, and are magnificent specimens of art. Two hundred and nine are text illustrations. There are two fine steel plate portraits. One is from a life-size full length painting of Mr. Gough as he appeared shortly after his rescue. The other is from a photograph taken just before his death. All in all, it is one of the finest ever produced by the American press.

We advise our readers to buy Platform Echoes at the first opportunity. They can, in our opinion, much better afford to do without a dozen other books than not to possess this. Once begun it will not willingly be laid aside till the last page is finished.

Two Stories With a Shave.

"Was anyone ever what we haven't got," remarked a philosophic barber, as he rubbed some Croton water on the reporter's head and charged him for his run. "Twenty years ago one of my customers was complaining that his mustache wouldn't grow, and now when he has a mustache he is kicking that his hair won't grow. When a man gets so bad as that he either becomes a Socialist or else makes a barrel of himself and rolls over the problem as to who their life is worth living.

"A man came in this morning and asked me if I could cut his hair without blowing in his face. He said he had been trying to get his hair cut for a whole week. The first barber he went to blew away the clippings at each movement of the shears, and his breath detected that whisky was his chief enemy and diet. It was bad whisky, and it smelt worse at second hand. So the man skipped out of the chair with one side of his head cropped. This one didn't drink whisky. He ate garlic. The man hurried out of the place with his neck half shaved. This was the condition I found him in, but I soon had him presentable. When he was going out he asked me why I never blew the hair off a customer. 'Because I can't,' said I. 'Don't you see I have the cutting?'—New York Evening Sun.

At Home, or Abroad, at church and theater, in the counting house and work room, in fact everywhere is heard that hacking cough which soon develops into Consumption or Inflamation of the Lungs, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Consumption. Be wise in time. Immediate relief and cure can be obtained by using Hamilton's Cough Balsam will surely give you relief from those Throat and Lung troubles that often terminate in death. Instant relief in Croup, and a sufeiner of Whooping Cough. Your consumptive friend will be greatly benefited. Price 25 and 50 cents. Told by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Eating and Starving, it is all the same, for you are sure to suffer from Piles. No worse torture can be conceived of. Blind or Itching Piles are unequaled for annoyance, but by a few applications of Parmelee's Pile Suppositories they entirely disappear. The knife is resorted to by physicians, for the removal of protruding piles but such barbarity is not a necessity for Parmelee's Pile Suppositories used according to directions, quickly reduce, replace and drive them away. Warranted to cure. Price 50 cents per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and therapeutics by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its claws upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Louisa Lutz." This write, W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Get a free trial bottle at Crouter's drug store. 2

Why Waste Time and Money on that which does no good. Your children have worms and are Cross, Always Hungry, Sleepless, Puny and Weak from the presence of Worms in the stomach which prevents the food taken up to nourish the baby. Porter's Scientific Worm Candies will dissolve and remove the worms and then all will be well. You can not do better by your children than to attend to their health. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr G. W. Crouter. 22

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Salt, druggist, Pippa, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of rheumatism of 10 years standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belpville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years experience is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half a dollar a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's drug store.

The Throat is often diseased on account of Catarrh, producing Dryness and a Constant Desire to Cough. That Tickling Sensation and Hoarseness that is so common to public singers and speakers especially is relieved at once by Hamilton's Cough Troches which are prepared from the most approved formula. Do not wait till Acute Bronchitis or even Consumption takes firm hold of you. Price only 25c per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

25 Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

A HOME FREE

Two and One-Fourth Acres of Land, Less than Three-Fourths of a Mile from Charlevoix, to be GIVEN AWAY.

Every person paying Five Dollars in CASH for goods or on account at our store will receive a number which will give one chance to obtain the prize.

One number, between 1 and 1,000, will be sealed in an envelope, and deposited in the bank, and will not be opened until all the numbers are given out. After the 1,000 numbers are given out, the sealed number will be opened, and the person holding the ticket calling for that number will receive a deed of the above premises.

A general stock of GROCERIES on hand.

A. J. MUDGE & SON,

Cor. Antrim and Grant Streets, Charlevoix.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Proprietor.

Charlevoix - Michigan.

Finest location in town, giving good view of lakes and Pinery and Fountain City and boat landings. Free bus to house. Rates reasonable. Room for commercial travelers. Adjoining hotel.

WILL H. FRANCIS,

Furniture and Jobbing Shop,

Will do Contracting and Building in Charlevoix and summer resorts. I keep in my shop a full line of furniture and foot-power machinery, and can undertake any job in Jobbing, Repairing, Etc., on short notice. Shop on South Terrace, opposite Harris or Dennis's residence.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Gate" and will give either Popular Ballads, in book form, or 56 of Sweet Music. Sent, postpaid, for ONLY FOUR CENTS. Stamps taken. AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO. 8999 Lancaster Ave., Philadelphia Pa.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charlevoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

We are headquarters for everything in our line.

A great Reduction in the prices of CLOAKS and Wraps, to close them out.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

DO YOU WANT

PURE DRUGS

Or Carefully Compounded Prescriptions,

CALL ON US.

DO YOU SMOKE? We Keep the Best Cigars.
DO YOU LIKE MUSIC? We will take pleasure in showing our well-selected Stock!

Yours Respectfully,

F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,
Druggists and Pharmacists,
Opera Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

S. & I. 1888 S. & I.

You will need something in our line during 1888. Do not fail to buy of us. You will SAVE YOUR DOLLARS by so doing.

There's Saws, Axes, Files, and Tools of all kinds. Then you may want a New Stove. If you do, you miss it if you don't get one of ours. A majority, a large majority, of the Stove Buyers of the county will tell you. We've got their names, and can refer direct to them. The Champion Pumps, too; what a splendid record they have, working easily and quickly.

Come and see us; if you want anything, BUY OF US. Yours in the belief that we will not fail to please you.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

HARD-TIMES PARTY.

You are most cordially invited to attend a Hard Times Party, to be given by the W. C. T. U. of Charlevoix, at JEFFERIES HALL, on MONDAY EVENING, JANUARY 16, 1888.

Mush and Milk and Doughnuts, or Coffee and Doughnuts will be served.

This is not a Fancy Dress Party, and you are requested to represent "Hard Times" by wearing ragged Clothes. No gentleman will be admitted without at least two patches on his suit, and ladies are expected to appear in calico or some well-worn dress.

A Cup and Saucer will be awarded to the gentleman wearing the raggedest suit, and to the lady wearing the most poverty-stricken dress a Bread and Milk Set will be given.

ADMISSION AND SUPPER, 12 CENTS.

Cash Club Rates

For the convenience of our friends who want a city paper the coming year, we will furnish either of the following with the JOURNAL one year at the price named:

Price	With the Journal.
80 Inland	1 00
1 00 Chicago Weekly Herald	2 00
1 00 Chicago Weekly News	2 00
1 00 Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer	2 00
2 00 Cosmopolitan (monthly)	3 00
1 50 Cottage Hearth, monthly	2 00
1 00 Detroit Weekly Free Press	2 00
1 50 Harper's Bazar	4 00
4 00 Harper's Magazine, monthly	4 00
4 00 Harper's Weekly	4 00
2 00 Harper's Young People	3 00
1 00 Little Men and Women	2 00
3 00 Montreal Herald and Star	3 00
2 00 New York Weekly Graphic	3 00
1 00 New York Weekly Star	2 00
1 00 New York Weekly World	2 00
1 00 Puny	2 00
4 00 Scribner's Magazine	4 75
1 00 Toledo Weekly Blade	2 00
1 00 Wide Awake	3 00
1 00 Young Folks' Journal	2 00

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in the thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive by return mail, free, information how all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free, capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed. 8e1

WM. J. STEVENSON,

HORSE-SHOEING,

Wagon Shop,

BLACKSMITHING, ETC.

Heavy Wagons on hand and made to order. I use none but the best of stock, and my work is warranted to give satisfaction. Repairing done promptly and at reasonable rates. Call and examine before buying elsewhere.

SHOP ONE BLOCK WEST OF CARPENTER, BARTHOLOMEW & CO.'S STORE, CHARLEVOIX.

I HAVE THE OSBORNE MOWING MACHINE on hand and for sale. 13

INVENTION has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the victories of inventive progress has resulted and will result from the work performed by us for the country with which we are now dealing from their homes. Pay liberal approve on the work either sex, young or old; no special ability required. Capital not needed, you are started free. Call this out and return to us and we will send you something of great value and importance to you that will bring you in money rapidly while being you in money rapidly while being you in the world. Grand outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Maine. 8e

FRED W. CROCKER,

COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW

And Solicitor of Patents.

ROOM 32, 234 BROADWAY,

New York, N. Y.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Jan. 12, 1888.

Local Notes and News.

For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. 22tf

A. J. Mudge wants to give you a home. See advertisement.

The firemen have decided to have a calico masquerade Feb. 22d.

A post of sons of veterans is about to be organized in Charlevoix.

Perry Weed has bought John L. Wood's interest in the news depot.

For proceedings of the board of supervisors, see Boyne correspondence.

Geo. W. Cook has been awarded the contract for cleaning the streets of snow.

The Enterprise figures up $25,000 for new buildings in East Jordan during 1887.

Stockman & Iddings call attention to some specialties in the hardware line. Save your dollars.

A. T. Washburne & Co. have a nut for you to crack. You will find it in their new advertisement.

The Sentinel has the republican slate for the next campaign in this county nearly completed.

Miss Cochran's class gave another of their interesting musicals at L. E. Allen's Wednesday evening.

W. W. Washburne is canvassing for "Platform Echoes," John B. Gough's latest and best work.

The grand worthy chief I. O. G. T. discussed the temperance question at Green's hall Wednesday evening.

The Detroit Free Press is out in a new dress of type, but with no change of style except of a few head lines.

The Charlevoix Journal issued a supplement last week that reflects great credit.—East Jordan Enterprise.

J. F. Smith has bought Mr. Cross' interest in the grocery business of Cross & Smith, and Mr. Smith will conduct the business alone.

F. A. Cochran & Co. desire to call attention to their pure drugs. They will also take pleasure in showing you a stock of well selected sheet music.

The Daily issue of The Chicago Herald is now eight large pages, and it is sent one month for fifty cents. How so much can be afforded for so little money is a wonder to every Herald reader.

S. M. See received a parcel Tuesday from his son Will, now at Los Angeles, Cal., containing hand-painted bread plate and saucer, which, imported from China, which are rare specimens.

To those wanting a heating stove that will do good service, both in economy of fuel and keeping fire all night, we can recommend the Capital Oak, manufactured by E. Bement & Sons, Lansing, and sold by Stockman & Iddings.

An exchange says that "The Chicago Herald is the cleanest, sharpest and most readable paper published in the West," and it might have added that its Weekly issue is only One Dollar per year. See advertisement in another column.

Wm. Black has resigned as president of Charlevoix county agricultural society, on account of his failing health. Mr. Black made a good officer, and we regret the necessity for his action, both for himself and for the society.

Wood Wanted.—Proposals for furnishing 100 cords of good maple four-foot wood for the school board will be received by Oscar Upright or O. S. Washburn up to Saturday evening, Jan. 21st. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

The mortgage of $10,000 given by Mr. Watson and wife to the Scranton & Watson lumber company, has just been pronounced void in the Wayne circuit court by Judge Jenison. This is a matter of considerable interest to many in this vicinity.—East Jordan Enterprise.

C. I. Hood & Co., of Lowell, Mass., are this year sending out three million calendars, in rich colors, which consumed in their manufacture 45 tons of paper, barrels of eye-lets, and nearly 100 miles of wire, and 40 per sons were occupied four months in producing them.

The Charlevoix Journal published a supplement last week containing a brief review of the business transacted at that place during the year past, and discussing the prospects of the future. The JOURNAL proposes to make that a special feature at the close of each year.—Independent Democrat.

Every seat at the opera house was filled before eight o'clock last Monday evening, to witness the public installation of officers of Baxter Post G. A. R. The program was substantially as published in these columns last week. An excellent supper had been prepared, and was passed on plates. The audience dispersed at a late hour, after a very pleasant evening.

The first number of the Petoskey Independent Democrat as a combined paper came to our table last week. It seems to retain the commendable qualities of both the old papers, and is a great improvement in many respects on each. Under Mr. Hampton, who is in all things just what the name of the paper implies, the Independent Democrat will be a success for its owner, and a benefactor to its patrons.

Purely Personal.

W. H. Downer is in Petoskey this week.

I. W. Austin has been granted an original pension.

"Cap" Taylor is "brakeing" on the Michigan Central this winter.

Mrs. Fred See went to Elk Rapids Monday, to visit her mother.

Roy Washburn entertained a party of his young friends last Thursday afternoon.

Miss Gladys Jefferies is at Bay View near Eastport teaching a class in penmanship.

W. P. Brown is suffering from slight injuries received by a fall on Tuesday evening.

Chas. E. Swallow and Levi Lamphear started Monday for Tallapoosa, Ga., to work until spring.

Capt. A. G. Aldrich went to Grand Rapids last Friday on business. He will visit Detroit before returning.

W. A. Brown has been elected representative to grand lodge, I. O. O. F., in place of C. E. Swallow resigned.

James Inwood left for South Bend, Ind., Monday, in response to a telegram announcing the death of his brother.

A. D. Cruickshank was called to Harbor Springs last Thursday by A. J. Southard, as counsel in relation to the bank failure.

C. H. Ball and wife returned home from Detroit, and are stopping a few days with Mrs. Ball's people before going to Marquette.

E. W. Fuller and Mrs. Ellen Hosley of Petoskey, were married at the Bridge street house Saturday evening, by Rev. W. H. McCartney.

W. S. Johnson and son Charles, of Sutton's Bay were in Charlevoix on their way to East Jordan, and made the JOURNAL a pleasant call.

Will Aldrich, son of Capt. A. G. Aldrich, and Miss Ida Cummings, of Traverse City, were married at Benzonia, Wis., Wednesday, Dec. 28. They will make Chicago their home.

Coming Events.

Tuesday, February 14 has been designated as the local option election day.

Remember the W. C. T. U. "Hard Times" party at Jefferies hall Monday evening. See advertisement in another column.

The ladies band concert will be given at Lewis hall in Boyne, Friday evening. Lovers of music in that vicinity will do well to attend.

This historical society will meet with Prof. Enos Friday evening of this week. Miss Gray will furnish the paper, on "Life and Times of Henry V."

Sunday morning the ministers of the several churches change work. Mr. Downs will preach for the Baptist people, Mr. Clark for the Methodist, and Mr. McCartney for the Congregational. Each will occupy their own pulpit in the evening.

The business men's association met at Bridge street house Monday evening, and adjourned to next Monday evening at same place at which time it is hoped there will be a full attendance. Among other important business will be the election of officers.

Episcopal service next Sunday at 3 o'clock p. m., with Sunday school, at Green's hall. Subjects of study: For intermediate grade, "The Christian Name;" for senior grade, "The Fourth Commandment." Rev. J. W. Bancroft, general missionary, will visit the mission next week. Divine service at Odd Fellows' hall at 10.30 a. m., Sunday, Jan. 21st, with holy communion and sermon. At Green's hall at 3 p. m., sermon to children, with sacrament of baptism. Everybody invited to all the services.

BORN.

WASHBURNE—On Jan. 8th, to Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Washburn, a daughter.

Boyne.

BOYNE, January 9, 1888.—I wrote it 88. Did you?

Last Tuesday James White returned from Essex Centre, Canada, and is now at work in the Boyne mill, which having undergone repairs will begin sawing to-morrow.

The pastor of the M. E. Church has decided to hold a series of meetings commencing this evening, Jan. 9th.

The Boyne schools reopened this morning, after a vacation of two weeks.

Local option petitions aggregating over a hundred names were received after the petition was presented to the clerk and the election ordered, which election is to be held on February 14th.

Vernie Cook, who has been employed in the store of H. R. Perkins the last two years, and for the past year has served the M. E. Sunday school as secretary, has resigned both positions to attends school in Charlevoix this winter.

Married—On Friday Jan. 6th in the Village of East Jordan. Charles Thompson, of Wilson to Miss Sena Tyler of the same place. The truth of the adage, "The way of true love never did run smooth" was verified in this instance. In the engagement which took place between the groom and the step-father of the bride the day previous to the marriage, the gore which stained the whiteness of the snow by the roadside was not Charlie's.

On Thursday, Jan. 5th, the board of supervisors met and besides the transaction of ordinary business ordered the purchase of two safes costing $300 each, one of them to contain a burglar proof chest. A committee was appointed to confer with E. F. Allen to ascertain his price for his set of abstracts. Mr. Allen refused to set a price, preferring to consider an offer from the board; none was made, however, but it was resolved that each supervisor be a committee in their respective townships to receive deeds and discharges of mortgages and forward the same to the register for the purpose of being re-recorded at the expense of the county. The board also considered an offer from Messrs Nicholls & Morgan of lots for county seat purposes, and considering the lots desirable, their offer was accepted.

Wilson.

Jan 9.—Frank Wilks is on the sick list.

F. L. Smith has a new cottage organ.

Mr. Charles Thompson and Miss Cora Tyler, of Deer Lake, were married at East Jordan recently.

Miss Sarah L. Jones, of Boyne, formerly teacher in this town, visited friends here last week.

Harry Hudkins badly mutilated his thumb last Friday. He now carries it carefully.

Supervisor Hudkins sat on the town board and board of supervisors last week.

Mr. Joseph Stacer, of Boyne, and Miss Alice Preble, of this place, were married at Boyne on Dec 26th. Although a storm arose at the beginning of the nuptial voyage, they carried their many friends wish them favorable winds and peacable seas in future.

Mr. Albert Todd and Miss Ruth Burley, of this place, were married at East Jordan on Jan 4th. The parties having lived here since childhood are well known and highly respected. They are now living in their neat little cottage, where their many friends will find them, as cordial as ever. May prosperity attend them.

The "Joyful Gleaners" surprised Harry Hudkins Thursday night, which chanced to be his 14th birthday.

Mrs. Stacker and daughter were guests of Mrs. Hudkins last week. Maudie remained a week with her aunt.

Eveline.

INGMAN, Jan. 10.—Eveline is booming in lumbering business these days.

A man crossed Pine lake on the ice last Friday. Teams cross the arm near the ferry.

The town company will soon begin hauling wood from their place near Bedwin's, where they have a gang of men chopping.

George Allen of Mancelona arrived here last week, and will work at the Peterson camp.

John Peterson returned to his home in Petoskey last Friday, after spending his holidays here.

Charles Graham, who has been at work in the upper peninsula since the middle of last summer, returned to his home here last week.

A dance at Schoffen's hall last Friday night.

Geo. McMulkin and wife returned to Ironton last Tuesday, after a few days visit with friends in Mancelona. A large number of their friends enjoyed a supper at the Lakeview hotel the following evening, at George's expense.

After two weeks vacation, the Ironton public school opened again Monday. During the vacation, J. M. Harris attended the state teachers association at Lansing.

Mrs. J. B. Backenstoss and Mrs. Sarah Zimmerman, of Advance, each received a fine cottage organ as Christmas presents. VonPlatten & Son have sold 57 of these organs since midsummer.

Burgess.

Jan 10.—Jack Saunby has moved his family down near his place of business.

The people of this county are to vote on the local option question February 14th. Hope it will be unanimous for prohibition.

The Hamlin boys have got all the timber off the George Cook place and are about to commence on Dr. Lewis' place.

We hear that Mr. Austin has received pension and back pay to the amount of $600. Glad of it.

Mr. Bennett has four teams busy hauling logs for the Pine Lake Lumber Company.

Unclaimed Letters.

List of letters remaining in the postoffice at Charlevoix, Mich., Jan. 7, 1888. It not called for in two weeks they will be sent to the Dead Letter Office. When calling for any of these letters, please say "advertised," and give the date of this list.

Anderson, James	Mosher, Jared
Baker, David C.	Miller, Walter
Brown, Hannah	Morrison, R. D.
Cooper,	Moulton, Eli H.
Granger, F. C.	Morgan, Mrs. Mary
Hunt, Wm. Jay 2	Perrin, Ed
Leaner, Felix	Smith, Mrs. Ellen M.
McMorgay, W.	Smith, W. B.

CHAS. J. STRANG, P. M.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

The Delta is still booming Gladstone.

At Kalkaska the streets are made passable by packing the snow with a huge roller.

The oval wood dish factory will be rebuilt at Mancelona, although several other towns are bidding for it.

Senator Stockbridge introduced a bill last Thursday, appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Lansing.

Since January 3d, Michigan's supreme court has five judges, with Thomas R. Sherwood, of Kalamazoo, chief justice.

E. L. Sprague has been appointed postmaster of Traverse City. After many years of faithful service the department recognizes his merits.

The supreme court has granted an order, on the application of the attorney general, requiring the board of supervisors of Sanilac county to comply with the new law in relation to the listing of mortgages.

Judge Fuller has decided not to prosecute his suit for libel against the Big Rapids Herald in the supreme court, and the case has been discontinued. We trust the case now pending against the Manistique Sunday Sun will terminate in the same way.

The Armies of France Today.

Yes, France has made tremendous strides since 1870, and her military strength today has assumed really formidable proportions. One of the most praiseworthy acts of the war ministry was the immediate change effected after the war in the general staff, and the condition of the body of men is now on a par with any organization in Europe of the same nature.

Formerly the officers of the general staff were not taken from the army. They were first educated at the Polytechnic, or at St. Cyr, and then passed into the school of application for the general staff; thence they were sent for one year to an infantry regiment, one year to a cavalry regiment and lastly for half a year to the artillery, but it must be remarked that during this service they did no actual regimental duty. After they passed through these so called schools they at once entered the general staff as captains, and, unfortunately, usually as aides-de-camp to general officers. Now a man may be socially, very amiable, and, socially, very accomplished, and therefore extremely well fitted to be an aide-de-camp to a general, to manage his menus plaisirs, and yet not be in the least qualified for a staff officer in the proper sense of the word. So when many of the general officers were promoted and their aides-de-camp carried up a grade with them, it often placed these young officers in positions of immense importance, often calling for the performance of duties which they were incapable of performing. And these were the officers to whom the defending of many of the fortresses in 1870 was intrusted, and who had been ordered to their strengthening previous to the breaking out of hostilities.

What could one expect from such material? Today the armies of France are well officered, the cousin of the line excellent, the esprit de corps good and the frontier defense formidable.—Godfrey Dumont Carden in San Francisco Chronicle.

G. W. CROUTER

DRUGGIST AND STATIONER.

A FINE LINE OF PHOTO. ALBUMS, ALBUMS OF CHARLEVOIX, AND CROUCOTS' SUNDRIES.

The JOURNAL Readers Now Have

A NUT TO CRACK

The following puzzle with a Big reward of something useful to wear will be given to the first one who will send it, or bring us the correct solution.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

THE LEADING

Dry Goods & Carpet House

OF

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Green's Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

THE ATKINS SAWS

NEW PERFECTION AXES

Round Oak Stoves.

Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

Bargains

IN

BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,

Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.

TERRACE FARM. - - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

Cotton Creek Anti-Scandal Society

"TO THE EDITOR:—I thought maybe you would like to hear about our Anti-Sham'ness Society; and so I'm a-goin' to write you a short 'count of our last meeting.

We met about 2 o'clock of a Wednesday afternoon, at Sister Sawtell's. After we had tuk off our bunnets, an' sat down, an talked about the weather a few minutes, Sister Deacon Buzbee (she's the Presidentess) she rapped onto the table with her thimble an' says,

"This here meeting will now come to order quicker n scat. An' the fust thing on the program is for the Sista-tian to read the minutes."

We all hustled round and come to order, an' Sister Goodall read the minutes; but they might better have been called hosts, from the time it tuk her to read 'em. But she got 'em read at last, and then Sister Deacon Buzbee says:

"Before we perceed to any further business, I will explain the objects of this here society, seein' there is some new members come in that ain't never been here before. We her got two objecks:

"1, no of 'em is to sew and an' make up different articles, of all sorts, like lace aprons, lamp-mats, pin-cushings, and sich, to sell, an' the money to be gave to help s'port the preacher. The money has to be got rizz, somehow, or other, an' Sister Goodall read the minutes; but they might better have been called hosts, from the time it tuk her to read 'em. But she got 'em read at last, and then Sister Deacon Buzbee says:

"Before we perceed to any further business, I will explain the objecks

FARM AND GARDEN.

CONTRIVANCES THAT KEEP PLANTS FROM INJURY IN TRANSPLANTING.

Observance of Christmas on the Farm—An Authority Tells About Colic in Horses—Wire and Board Fences of Desirable Construction.

In the first cut is represented a wire and board fence similar to one in use on the great home farm of W. L. Elwood & Co., Illinois, and originally illustrated in Prairie Farmer. Several miles of this fence have been built around the pastures in which this company's herd of Percheron Norman horses are kept. It is high, strong, easily seen by stock and the wires are so hitch on to rarely do injury to the limbs of the animals. It is also an excellent fence to place around a bull pasture.

FIG. 1—HORSE AND OX FENCE.

Posts and long posts must be used, as the fence is five feet high. The distance to the first board, between the several boards, between the top board and the bars were and between the two wires is in all cases six inches.

Fig. 2 shows an excellent tight fence for the general farmer, being cattle, sheep and hog proof.

FIG. 2—CATTLE, SHEEP AND HOG FENCE.

The authority quoted from says that it has all the advantages of the wire fence by being proof against the larger animals and, is perfectly adapted to sheep and hogs. It is remarkably cheap.

Colic in Horses.

Dr. Detmers, in a recent report of the Ohio Experimental station, classifies colic into two kinds, true and spurious colic. True colic he again divides into essential and symptomatic colic. Essential colics may or may not be caused by anomalies of the contents of the intestines. In the latter case they only be produced by over feeding, the development of gases (wind colic, or by solid obstructions in the intestinal canals, as hard feces, concrements, stones, etc. Symptomatic colics are caused (1) by entozoa (worms), (2) by poisons, (3) by displacements and morbid changes in the textures of the intestines, (4) by peritonitis. Until recently the real predisposing cause of colic, and probably the sole cause in numbers of cases was unknown. It was discovered by Professor Bollinger, in Munich. A small worm causes an aneurism in the anterior mesenteric artery. Coagulation of blood, exudation and finally degeneration of the inferior coat of the artery ensue, followed by obstruction of the circulation. Professor Bollinger found this condition—the worm and aneurism—in 34 per cent. of all old horses killed for examinical purposes in the Royal Veterinary school at Munich. Three old horses were killed but another for anatomical purposes at the veterinary school of the O. S. university, and the aneurism was not found in every one of them! These facts show that such an aneurism is a frequent occurrence, at least in old horses. As a parasitic worm is the cause, it is not strange that this trouble exists largely in one part of the country and another is comparatively free from it. The aneurism embargement of artery may exist for years, however, and the horse remain free from colic as long as no exciting cause arises. Contrary causes are colic in overfeeding, large feeds of food difficult to digestion, fermentation, etc.

Treatment should have fat one object, the restoration of the circulation of the blood and the peristaltic action of the intestines. The latter will follow the former. Nature indicates the proper remedy. A horse that has colic paws, lies down, gets up, rolls, and turns himself in various mechanical forces that sooner than anything else aid in removal obstruction and overcoming the flow of blood. Hence these movements of the horse mind and his frenzy with, but, when given full play, unless they become so violent as to threaten injury to the animal. If a horse shows a tendency to lie down and not move, and if there is fever, rapid pulse and quick breathing, force the animal, and make him go on at least every twenty or thirty minutes. Gentle friction along the abdomen, particularly on the flank side, if the animal should, is useful, but violent exercise, as compelling the horse to trot or run, is decidedly objectionable.

In cases of great agony and violent exertion, a subcutaneous injection of a warm soapsuds or oil can do no harm and may do much good. In cases of so called wind colic, with dangerous bloating, use the trocar with the intestinal trocar. It is known that the animal has swallowed large quantities of food, a physic of linseed is advisable, and if spasms are very severe a few doses of camphor will relieve.

Christmas on the Farm.

The spirit of joy of the holidays brings up the subject of Christmas decorations in the minds of every body who delights in making Christmas a happy time for the younger members of the household. A Christmas tree and presents is not so great an undertaking as many are inclined to believe. The cedars and pines will be found ready to go in search of suitable material when these cannot be purchased in the markets. Christmas decorations appropriately include whatever green and bright hued plants and berries can be found in one's own locality. Ferns and mosses have a place in holly, with its dark green shining leaves and crimson berries. Not counting the mistletoe, which, as everybody may not know, is found in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, as well as the more southern states. Other attractive Christmas greens are the arbor vitae hemlock, spruce and red cedar. In many localities these may be brightened by combination with the climbing bittersweet, red alder berries, or the pretty scarlet partridge berry. Mountain laurel is also beautiful for Christmas purposes. Ground pine and running pine afford a valuable addition for winter trimmings.

While oil may not be safe to decorate their harness at Christmas, every one can at least give a holiday air by arranging a few brackets of Christmas greens here and there about doors and windows, small wreaths and in graceful festoons upon the walls. The Christmas dinner if it can not all the better for an attempt to make bright and cheery this holiday of holidays.

Antiseptics on Apple "Scale."

In a paper read by A. M. Hatch on Apple Scale before the American Pomological society, he explained that apple scale is caused by a fungus that also attacks the leaves. Where it attacks the leaves it caused them to drop, weakened the trees and led to winter killing. Like other fungi it thrives best in warm, wet weather, and, therefore, a number of drought is unfavorable to its development, and to this extent a blessing. Crab apples are especially liable to the disease in its leaf form. In reference to prevention and cure, the disease belonged to the same family of fungi the Peronosporas that causes one kind of grape rot, and that is too deep rooted to be prevented by outside applications. He advised checking such varieties as are most liable to its attacks. Some varieties of apples develop a waxy secretion upon the fruit and leaves, and he finds that such varieties are less liable to contract the disease.

E. S. Goff, of New York, said that he had tried sulphate of soda for this disease with good results. The operation was not expensive. His trial of the sulphate of copper, as recommended by the Department of Agriculture, resulted in destroying most of the leaves in three applications. A. W. Campbell, of Ohio, who tried the sulphate of copper for grapes, said that he found it much weaker than the department's recipe, as he suspected it to be too powerful.

Suggestions on the Care of Horses.

During the shedding of a horse's coat the skin is very sensitive, and at this period he needs the comfort of a nicely warm stable. If while pulling on the winter coat the horse is exposed upon to severe cold the hair bulbs become chilled, the coat becomes broken off all winter long it is remarked that the horse's coat is not what it ought to be and gives him an unthrifty look.

Cleanliness of the body and legs is next to be considered for after the horses have been in a condition of nature, and they are suddenly brought into the artificial state of domestication, they cease to roll or shake off the dirt accumulative on their bodies and legs. Now it is desirable will attend, cleanse and dry the legs of horses by gentle elbow grease, the trouble they call scratches will never be heard of again. Scratches, crracked heels and grease are all the result of bad stable management and chronically lazy grooming.

Cutting Corn with a Reaper.

The comparatively new plan of cutting fodder corn with a reaper has been reported on this season from several sections as an expeditious and economical method. A New York farmer who has tried it two seasons says the reaper will cut the fodder as fast as five men can pick off the ears of corn, this being done as soon as the corn has become generally glazed. If near three horses on the reaper and started the pickers at each corner, so as to keep but two rows ahead, by which they had to throw the ears only outside of the two rows at a time. The ears thrown in hoops, tipped as well as any corn ever husked, while the fodder was better condition for cattle food than if permitted to turn into wood fiber through exposure to the sun and wind, as is usually the case.

Alcs in Transplanting.

The little implement illustrated in the accompanying cuts is an invention now much wheewhili one can transplant any sort of plant, herb or flower without injury. The genius who invented it gives the following description in Ice Culture:

FIG. 1—HOW TO CUT THE SHEET OF TIN.

Take a sheet of tin, cut it as at fig. 1, the sheets of 12 by 20 (in the) have. Set the squaring's heavy as as to cut a sheet of tin into six equal pieces. The dotted lines in the diagram shown indicates where to make these cuts.

Now, these pieces will be 10 inches long by 4 1-2 inches wide, or perhaps a trifle more. Make a bend on each side of each piece, the same as for locking together a cup or a pail, then roll the piece up and lock the ends together. No soldering is necessary, so as to make the tube here shown. Make as many of these tubes as may be required. Stand them in wooden trays or transplanting boxes, set on a wheelbarrow and take where your plants are. Suppose it is strawberries you want to take up. Gather up the leaves of your young plants and slip the tube over them, adjusting it so the crown is as near as possible to the center of the tube. Now set your foot squarely on the tube and force the tube into the soil, say half its depth; then pick the tube up and set it back into the tray. The operation of forcing the tube into the ground cuts off the runners. When you have a wheelbarrow full of potted plants run it into the field where you are going to set out the plants. If the soil is soft and mellow you can scoop it out and set the tubes in full their depth almost as fast as you can crawl along on your hands and knees. No pruning is necessary, for the plant inside just as it did; the roots are all spread out and the same dirt it was feeding from before you moved it will feed it in its new location.

When ready to pull the tubes out, fill up with water, let stand a few minutes, take hold of the tin and pull a little; it will slide out easily, leaving the plant in its surrounding soil saturated with water, and nicely mulched with dry earth all around it. These tubes may be made any size, the one given being especially designed for straw berries, raspberries (where the plants are small), celery, cabbage, cauliflower, lettuce and tomatoes.

Purslane.

Purslane chopped in thick milk is recommended as food for the Thanksgiving turkey.

Hog Pens.

Make poultry houses and barns snug and warm before it gets very cold. It will pay.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for it and this paper together,
Wide Awake	$4.00	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	"	2.00
Puck	"	2.00
Little Men and Women	"	2.00
Babyland	"	2.00

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a trifle in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a dead-head. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother since ever a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Funny comes with the Sunday School age.

Christmas Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"library, study, playhouse, life at home and abroad, entertainment, and the wise and good" are designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES

Bilities, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Sprains, Bruises, Bruises, Scratches, Spavins, Sweeny, Stiffness, Stiff Joints, Backsaddle, Galls, Scrus, Spavin Cracks, Contracted Muscles, Ringbone, Hoof Ail, Screw Worms, Swinney, Saddle Galls, Pile.

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY

Of the proprietors has been known to all good men and women for years. Its wonderful healing qualities are world wide. Of the many imitations and substitutes offered, none are genuine but the original. Everybody needs such a medicine. The farmer can't do without it in case of accident. The Housewife needs it for general family use. The Druggist needs it because he keeps what his customers call for. The Mechanic needs it always on his work shop.

The Miner needs it for cuts of enemies.

The Planter needs it—can't get along without it.

The Farmer needs it in his house, in his stable, and his stock.

The Steamboat man or the Boatman needs it for liberal supply of cuts and bruises.

The Horse-fancier needs it—it is his best friend and adviser.

The Stock-grower needs both as it saves him thousands of dollars and a world of care too.

The Railroad man needs it and we if such a man can be little or a month of accidents or disasters.

The Lumbermen needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the disasters to life, limb and comfort which surround the lumber.

The Merchant needs it not to be used among his employees. Accidents will happen, and when they occur the Mexican Liniment is at hand.

Keep a Bottle in the House. "'Tis the best of manners."

Keep a Bottle in the Factory. Unmanned use in case of accident saves pain and loss of time.

Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable: for use when wanted.

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD

IS UNEQUALLED FOR

$1 PER YEAR

Eight Large Pages

Are filled every week with carefully collected news, correct market reports, valuable special articles on farming, stock raising, etc., and contain have attracted universal praise. THE HERALD'S pictures excite admiration of any other newspaper. Its Chicago Letter, Washington Letter, and continuous income the interest in the home circle. Be sure to SEND FOR A FREE SAMPLE. Cost but a trifle for any single newspaper.

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD, Chicago, Ill.

Chicago's Best Morning Newspaper is

THE DAILY HERALD,

8 PAGES FOR 2 CTS.

Sold by newsmen everywhere or sent by mail for 50 Cents per month. ADDRESS

THE CHICAGO HERALD,

JAMES W. SCOTT, Publisher. CHICAGO.

BUY THE Detroit Evening News.

10c A WEEK

Delivered at Your Home or place of Business, or sent by Mail.

It is Universally Conceded to be THE Newspaper of Michigan

Covering all the news of the day on its know ing or world-wide range, it is presented in a manner so unlike it possible for the honest work to be done. Its Editorial Page is the work that is to keep—treat of the times without fear or favor, political or social, as the case may be, making it rather a recreation and a pleasure than a task. Its Sunday issue is a marvel, yielding such other and interesting reading—the week's work of the world, in a form and dress which will not offend the most fastidious, and nothing physical reader of greater or less density. Its "Sunday Morning" is a marvel of what ever be found the friend of the people, advocating the greatest good to the greatest number, expressing righteous indignation at the wrongs of the oppressed, and reforms that will tend to the elevation of humanity. Its carrying so a watchful supervision as shall make its patrons feel that it is their paper, and in other times, whose merits will become more and better appreciated. In a word, it is what its publisher shall be permitted in its columns that can effect a change or make it more and more a paper that patriotism may feel free to introduce to its family circle, and be sure of its reading, with the assurance that nothing baleful will be admitted.

THE EVENING NEWS is based to keep at the head of the newspaper procession in Michigan, and "duly set forth."

THE EVENING NEWS, by mail, $5 per year.

THE SUNDAY NEWS

Issued every Sunday morning, is an 8-page paper, with as fine a "layout" of interesting reading matter as can be revealed into an column, embracing the cream of the week's news, articles, etc. Price, $1.50 per year.

THE ECHO

8 PAGES, 56 COLUMNS, $1 A YEAR.

Each issue replete with stories by well-known writers, sketches from life, and both instructive and entertaining matter. Its Editorial

The Michigan edition contains a large amount of matter not in the other editions of the general Book premiums worth the cost of the paper given to each subscriber.

Send for sample copy. Address

THE NEWS, Detroit, Mich.

Liberal Terms to Agents.

PRESBYTERIANS

READ THIS

Should take the Blue and Paneroon, a large eight page Presbyterian weekly; subscription price, $2.00 per year; the Blue and Paneroon and the Detroit Free Press one year for $3.50 and the Blue and Paneroon and the Detroit Free Press one year and a copy of the engravings

"Longfellow in His Library,"

Regularly in Colors. Size 20x24 inches. Add 15 cents postage and packing if expressed.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We have on hand, in supplement form, Parker's latest sermon, "Ancient Ruins," and will send it with the Blue and Paneroon one year for $2.50 and the Blue and Paneroon and the Detroit Free Press one year for $3.50 and the Blue and Paneroon and the Detroit Free Press one year and a copy of the engraving "Longfellow in His Library" for $3.50. Only one dollar more in order to secure the Blue and Paneroon and the Detroit Free Press.

HERALD & PRESBYTER,

197 ELM ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Mention this paper. Address as above and our price-list will be sent you free.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co.'s Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts can be made for it in New York.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

Prospectus for 1888—Beautiful Christmas Number.

The holiday issue, how ready, is complete in itself, containing no serial matter. The cover is enriched by an ornamental border, printed in gold. The price is at a uniform 25 cents. It contains the most delightful stories, poems, and essays by distinguished writers, and superb illustrations.

Among the important articles to appear during the year 1888 are the following: Send for prospectus:

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON will contribute regularly to each number during the year. He will write of many topics old and new, and in a familiar and parochial way, which will form new bonds of friendship between the author and his thousands of readers. In the first paper entitled "A Chapter on Dreams," appearing in the January number, he relates incidentally, in connection with the general subject, some interesting facts connecting the origin of the new famous story "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, by W. S. CHAPLIN, will be the first of an especially important and interesting series of papers on railways, their administrations and construction, including great engineering feats, famous tunnels and passes, and indeed, those branches of the subject which in this day engage the attention of the whole country. The illustrations which will accompany this series will be very elaborate, original, and beautiful. The authors and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. D. G. SARGENT'S papers on Physical Exercises and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of especial interest will be those on the Campaign of Waterloo, by JOHN C. ROPES, on the "The Men at Arms," by E. H. BLAKESLEE, two papers by EDWARD L. WILSON, illustrating results of recent Egyptian research, a further article by WILLIAM F. APGAR, on a subject connected with his recent contribution on Wheat, and many other articles of great interest: PROFESSOR SHALER'S articles on the Surface of the Earth, and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. DALE'S SARGENT'S papers on Physical Exercises and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of especial interest will be those on the Campaign of Waterloo, by JOHN C. ROPES on the "The Men at Arms," by E. H. BLAKESLEE, two papers by EDWARD L. WILSON, illustrating results of recent Egyptian research, a further article by WILLIAM F. APGAR, on a subject connected with his recent contribution on Wheat, and many other articles of great interest: PROFESSOR SHALER'S articles on the Surface of the Earth, and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. D. G. SARGENT'S papers on Physical Exercises and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of especial interest will be those on the Campaign of Waterloo, by JOHN C. ROPES on

TRAMP.

BY PERSIMAS.

He carried a pack, he begged and he traded;
Sometimes, I ... at stealing he tried his hand
He got through this world—how he did it no one asked
Was a wonder, a mystery to all in the land.
He was always at home, in seaside or country,
And sweetness, half sunny, half wanton, was his sample.

He sold the maids ribbons, their fortune he told;
At times he quite slyly took kisses in pay.
The fathers and mothers all said him no harm
And they coaxed their goods when the chaffer was gone.
They watched not their daughters so sly and slack;
They were the attractions to this man with the pack.

He was thirty years old, his eyes piercing and black;
The misses all gazed on his curly black hair;
He stole all their hearts, and they wished he had some back;
They knew not his vows were as light as the air.

He promised to marry each blushing young lass;
That he broke all his oaths was no cause for regret.
There are maidens to-day whose bosoms will pass
If they chance an old peddler to meet in the street.
And oft to themselves ancient ladies will say:
"I wish I could meet Tommy Pedler to-day!"
Tommy Pedler! the name I shall never forget,
And all of the trinkets he peddled are relics.

TEARS TURNED TO SMILES.

BY JEFFIE FORBUSH HANAFORD.

Those little tiffs that sometimes exist a shade
On wedlock oft are love in masquerade.

"Once, and for all, Blake, I can not go,"
Royce Lonsdale put down his cap, not very gently, and pinned a bright tie artistically in the above remark.

They were seated in their cozy little breakfast-room, surrounded by all the comforts of a charming and beautiful home.

Elsie returned his glance with a decided frown on her pretty face as she threw the letter she had been reading down on the table.

"It's really too provoking, Royce. You can not spare the time to go anywhere. One would think we had been married a year, instead of six months. Violet writes they expect to have a lovely time. Ned isn't afraid to leave his business. Oh, I want to go so much! I am sure you could spare it if you were half a mind to." Elsie paused for breath, and waited exactly for a reply, but received none.

Royce evidently thought the subject settled, and proceeded to finish his breakfast with unimpaired appetite.

Passing up his cup for a second cup of coffee, he discovered his wife's eyes filled with tears, and that she was eating little or nothing.

"Do be reasonable, Elsie," Royce spoke rather impatiently. "I would be very glad to take you if it were possible for me to get away this week. But it really is out of the question—quite impossible."

After saying this Royce left the table and put his arm affectionately around his wife. But Elsie was in no mood for caresses, and snatching her hands away from him she suddenly left the room, with the invisible alacrity of the deer that is absolutely necessary when one is thoroughly angry.

Elsie, when she quarrelled with any one she loved, was bound to cry so the next ten minutes were spent in tears.

Royce, feeling very angry with everything in general, and his wife in particular, snatched up his hat and hurried down to his office.

After the lapse of half an hour, Elsie felt thoroughly ashamed of herself, and wished she had not been so provoking. She was the only one of her that she had not said many unkind things to, and her tender heart ached for the lonely French clock ticking away o'clock, and Elsie sprang to her feet hastily opened the door, and hurried towards the breakfast-room.

Rachel, Rachel, and Royce invariably left the house for the office at quarter of 8, and now, because she had quarrelled with her temper, he would, of course, be late.

The door stood wide, Rose pushed it open and paused in expecting to see Royce sitting there in a dejected attitude. But instead the room was empty. Gone! Elsie could not realize it. Indeed, she could not believe it. But a careful search of the house proved that he was really gone, and with no parting kiss or good-by. The first time he had failed to do so since their marriage.

What should she do? Elsie was undecided.

The low French window opened on to a veranda that ran entirely around the house, and as it stood invitingly open, she obeyed a sudden impulse and went out.

As she did so something white caught her eye—a letter lying on the steps that led down to the lawn. Elsie hastily picked up the roses, pink, white, and crimson, sent up their sweet fragrance.

Elsie picked it up, her thoughts too busy with the events of the morning to wonder why it was there or who could have dropped it.

Turning it carelessly over in her hand, her eye caught her husband's name, in a trembling hand. She opened it out and read the following:

"SEPT. 15th, 1887.

"FRIEND ROYCE—Yours received, and I gladly undertake your commission. I am surprised at what you wrote. I will do my best for you. I do not see the lady very often. The whole affair is quite romantic. I can remember the time when every one here expected you would marry her, and you surprised every one by doing nothing of the sort. She always appears sad of late, and now you have told me the reason, fate, and, if she consents to forget and I pity her. I will take a trip into Lexington this week and see her safely to your office. Sincerely yours,

"KEN HALLET."

Elsie read it through to the end. Her heart seemed to stand still. She crushed the paper in her tightly clenched hand, and she trembled with indignation. Was this the girl her husband was so interested in? Then, there was no wonder he could not leave his business. She understood it all now. What should she do?

Her heart ached as young hearts only can ache.

Again she read the letter, standing there on the veranda, the sunlight falling on her slim, girlish figure in its pale-blue morning dress, glinting like sunbeams on her brown hair, and falling prettily on the sweet, pale face bent over that fatal letter.

She could never be happy again.

Once more she turned her attention to the letter and read it through for the third time. Then she ordered her horse, and, changing her pretty morning dress for a dark street suit, she soon walked rapidly in the direction of her husband's office.

Let us now follow Royce. Before he had reached his office he felt sorry he had left home without bidding Elsie good-by. He blamed himself for all the trouble. If he had only explained to her why he could not leave at this particular time, everything would have been all right. But he wanted to wait until the whole affair was settled before he told her. "Never mind," he said to himself. "I will go home early to dinner and make it all up."

Then an old friend of his came in to letter-lay on his desk.

"From Ken!" he exclaimed, as he quickly read it through.

Then, taking up his pen, he hastily wrote the following note:

"MY DEAR LITTLE WIFE—Forgive me for going away without my good-by kiss. I be lonely in Lexington for some time good news for you. You may write Violet that we will join the party. Will explain note fully when I see you. Your loving

"ROYCE."

Calling the office-boy, he sent him off with the note, just as the door opened to admit a gentleman, who greeted Royce constructed hand as though he would never let it go.

"Royce, old friend, how can I thank you for all you have done for me?"

"By being true to your wife in the future," replied Royce, warmly.

Arthur Gwendon sank down into a chair and pushed back his dark hair. "Would of Miller! Tell me about my wife, Royce. Do you really think there is any hope for me? I shall die if she does not come back to her to my heart, and we begin a new life together."

"Yes, Arthur, your wife has forgiven you, and is, even now, on her way here. I received a letter from an old friend of mine, Kent Hallett, this morning. She is in his care, and will soon be here. Hark! the sound of carriage wheels! Come on the hard pavement, then stopped suddenly. "Remain here, Arthur; you shall see her alone."

Saying this, Royce left the room, and met a lady and gentleman just entering the building.

Millie Gwendon put aside her veil as she entered the hall and held out both her hands. "Royce, kind friend," was all she could say.

Kent Hallett, as he opened the outside door looking into the big hall, saw Royce coming forward to meet them, so he did not enter with Millie, but let her meet Royce alone, while he remained standing on the marble steps just at the entrance.

Almost instantly his attention was attracted by a lady hurrying toward him from the opposite side of the street. He did not gazee at him, however, but pushed the heavy door open, and entered.

As she passed by him Kent caught a glimpse of a pair of big brown eyes, and the sweetest, at the same time the saddest, face he had ever seen.

It was Elsie Lonsdale, and she entered the Millie Gwendon had given both her hands to Royce. And she heard Royce say: "From now on, Millie, I hope you life will be a happier one."

Elsie waited to hear no more. She turned and almost fled out of the building, with so much haste, in fact, that she ran against Kent Hallett and nearly caused him to lose his balance and go down the steps too suddenly for comfort.

Recovering himself, he was not a little surprised to see the lady who had entered a minute before leaving in such desperate haste and evident confusion.

Again the door opened and Royce came out with Gwendon hands with Kent, he hastened to glance down the street. There, just a block away, walking very rapidly, was the familiar figure of his wife.

"I forgot to ask a minute, Kent," he said, hurriedly; "there goes my wife, and I want to speak to her."

"Your wife," exclaimed Kent Hallett in surprise; then he told Royce how the lady now fast disappearing in the distance had entered the door and came out again in such desperate haste.

Royce waited to hear no more, but cracked rapidly down the street in the direction Elsie had taken. As he came in sight of his home he caught a glimpse of Elsie's dress as the door closed behind her.

Hurrying forward he entered and soon stood at the door of their room. He hesitated only an instant, then softly opened the door. Elsie had lay on the floor, and Elsie herself face down upon the bed crying as though her heart would break. Royce, my husband, how could you deceive me, when I loved you so dearly?"

In an instant Royce had her in his arms and was raining kisses on her sweet, tangled brown hair. Her face was turned from him.

"Elsie, my darling little wife, do not cry so. I have never deceived you."

It was soon explained. Royce told Elsie the whole truth concerning Arthur Gwendon and his wife. "I shall not go into details here, because, for both their sakes, I had rather forget the whole affair. I want to believe that their future life will be a happy one.

"Let's bear were soon turned to happy laughter, and with a little exclamation of joy she nestled against her husband and hide her face on his breast.

"My darling," he murmured, and his voice trembled with the intensity of the most tender of lingering touches, which Elsie whispered, "I will never doubt you again, my husband; never again."

CHARLIE'S LETTER.

BY JEFFIE FORBUSH HANAFORD.

A little incoherent-looking epistle, dated at nearly three the man who found it said with money and pain.

It read as follows:

MY DEAR CHARLIE—You can not imagine how much I would like to see you. I can not bear to think how far apart we are just now. But this letter will prove very unusual, for I love you as much as ever, "distance makes the heart grow fonder," you know. I will write you a long letter soon. I have many to tell you, but my time is limited to-day. Do write soon, and tell me how much you miss me.

Yours, with love,

JENNIE HUNTER DEMONY.

It was summer time. The golden sunshine poured in through open window, the breezes stirred the grass, and the sweet perfume from the flowers was wafted into the room.

The man with the letter in his hand stood as if turned to stone, trying to realize what he had just read.

There was his wife's name in full, "Irene Hunter Demont." What could it mean? Who was Charlie? What a fool he was to think there was ever a thing so perfect happiness in this world.

He remembered having read in a paper that very day—yes, scarce two hours ago—of the death of a little girl known as Charlie's case.

He remembered how long and how hard he had striven for her sake. He could not see her sorrowful eyes, hear her sighs, and deaf to all else, he had gone to the presidential chair has a man in it, and he had ever seen. They were all weighted with what he is. We are here to-day, and to-morrow we are gone. We are perhaps gone. It is estimated that the area about the place of the shade, and, at the same time you will see a little boy, who has been sent by his mother to see the man who is the man closed up and begins to speak—

"Now, my darling, say you love me."

"Love you! Why, Charlie, you know I love you—that I never knew what it was to love until I met you."

"Do you love me as you never loved any other man, Irene?"

"Yes, Philip! How strangely you talk. Of course I am sure."

He had already finished breakfast Philip, instead of going at once to his office, sat down with his cousin, imposed by the window, gazing out in an abstracted manner.

Irene had always been in the habit of giving him her letters to mail, and this morning she had forgotten to do so.

As Philip stood looking out of the window, he saw a little boy coming.

At last, taking up his hat, he said, carelessly, "Any letters for me, Irene?"

To his surprise Irene jumped to her feet, exclaiming: "Charlie's letter! How could I be so forgetful! Wait just a minute, Phil, and I will have it ready for you."

"Charlie's letter," Philip could not believe his ears. Evidently, Irene was not in the habit of receiving letters.

Presently Irene reappeared with a letter in her hand, and she was folding ready for the envelope.

"I am so glad you mentioned letters, Philip, for yesterday morning I wrote to my old friend, Charlie Hunter Tracy, or "Charlie," as we always called her, and I forgot to mail it."

How easily it was all explained. Philip had been jealous—or fearful he might be. How happy he was to prove it all a mistake. Since Irene he would tell his wife all about it, but not now.

THE QUEERNESS OF THINGS.

Some of the Unaccountable Inconsistencies of Life.

This is a sort of "queer-story world. No one seems to be satisfied. One man is struggling for justice, and another for a place.

One man is working to buy a house, and another is working to sell his dwelling for less than it cost, to get a home.

One man is spending all the money he can earn in taking a girl to the opera, and another is saving up all the hope that he may eventually make her his wife, and his neighbor is spending all the gold he has saved to get a divorce.

Spain is drinking imported ale to put fire on, while Johnson is living on crackers and water, because I was married I would forget you. But this letter will prove how much I love you, and how I love you as much as ever, "distance makes the heart grow fonder," you know. I will write you a long letter soon. I have many to tell you, but my time is limited to-day. Do write soon, and tell me how much you miss me.

Yours, with love,

JENNIE HUNTER DEMONY.

It was summer time. The golden sunshine poured in through open window, the breezes stirred the grass, and the sweet perfume from the flowers was wafted into the room.

The man with the letter in his hand stood as if turned to stone, trying to realize what he had just read.

There was his wife's name in full, "Irene Hunter Demont." What could it mean? Who was Charlie? What a fool he was to think there was ever a thing so perfect happiness in this world.

He remembered having read in a paper that very day—yes, scarce two hours ago—of the death of a little girl known as Charlie's case.

He remembered how long and how hard he had striven for her sake. He could not see her sorrowful eyes, hear her sighs, and deaf to all else, he had gone to the presidential chair has a man in it, and he had ever seen. They were all weighted with what he is. We are here to-day, and to-morrow we are gone. We are perhaps gone. It is estimated that the area about the place of the shade, and, at the same time you will see a little boy, who has been sent by his mother to see the man who is the man closed up and begins to speak—

"Now, my darling, say you love me."

"Love you! Why, Charlie, you know I love you—that I never knew what it was to love until I met you."

"Do you love me as you never loved any other man, Irene?"

"Yes, Philip! How strangely you talk. Of course I am sure."

He had already finished breakfast Philip, instead of going at once to his office, sat down with his cousin, imposed by the window, gazing out in an abstracted manner.

Irene had always been in the habit of giving him her letters to mail, and this morning she had not remembered to do so.

As Philip stood looking out of the window, he saw a little boy coming.

At last, taking up his hat, he said, carelessly, "Any letters for me, Irene?"

To his surprise Irene jumped to her feet, exclaiming: "Charlie's letter! How could I be so forgetful! Wait just a minute, Phil, and I will have it ready for you."

"Charlie's letter," Philip could not believe his ears. Evidently, Irene was not in the habit of receiving letters.

Presently Irene reappeared with a letter in her hand, and she was folding ready for the envelope.

"I am so glad you mentioned letters, Philip, for yesterday morning I wrote to my old friend, Charlie Hunter Tracy, or "Charlie," as we always called her, and I forgot to mail it."

How easily it was all explained. Philip had been jealous—or fearful he might be. How happy he was to prove it all a mistake. Since Irene he would tell his wife all about it, but not now.

THE QUEERNESS OF THINGS.

Some of the Unaccountable Inconsistencies of Life.

This is a sort of "queer-story world. No one seems to be satisfied. One man is struggling for justice, and another for a place.

One man is working to buy a house, and another is working to sell his dwelling for less than it cost, to get a home.

One man is spending all the money he can earn in taking a girl to the opera, and another is saving up all the hope that he may eventually make her his wife, and his neighbor is spending all the gold he has saved to get a divorce.

Spain is drinking imported ale to put fire on, while Johnson is living on crackers and water because I was married I would forget you. But this letter will prove how much I love you, and how I love you as much as ever, "distance makes the heart grow fonder," you know. I will write you a long letter soon. I have many to tell you, but my time is limited to-day. Do write soon, and tell me how much you miss me.

Yours, with love,

JENNIE HUNTER DEMONY.

It was summer time. The golden sunshine poured in through open window, the breezes stirred the grass, and the sweet perfume from the flowers was wafted into the room.

The man with the letter in his hand stood as if turned to stone, trying to realize what he had just read.

There was his wife's name in full, "Irene Hunter Demont." What could it mean? Who was Charlie? What a fool he was to think there was ever a thing so perfect happiness in this world.

He remembered having read in a paper that very day—yes, scarce two hours ago—of the death of a little girl known as Charlie's case.

He remembered how long and how hard he had striven for her sake. He could not see her sorrowful eyes, hear her sighs, and deaf to all else, he had gone to the presidential chair has a man in it, and he had ever seen. They were all weighted with what he is. We are here to-day, and to-morrow we are gone. We are perhaps gone. It is estimated that the area about the place of the shade, and, at the same time you will see a little boy, who has been sent by his mother to see the man who is the man closed up and begins to speak—

"Now, my darling, say you love me."

"Love you! Why, Charlie, you know I love you—that I never knew what it was to love until I met you."

"Do you love me as you never loved any other man, Irene?"

"Yes, Philip! How strangely you talk. Of course I am sure."

He had already finished breakfast Philip, instead of going at once to his office, sat down with his cousin, imposed by the window, gazing out in an abstracted manner.

Irene had always been in the habit of giving him her letters to mail, and this morning she had not remembered to do so.

As Philip stood looking out of the window, he saw a little boy coming.

At last, taking up his hat, he said, carelessly, "Any letters for me, Irene?"

To his surprise Irene jumped to her feet, exclaiming: "Charlie's letter! How could I be so forgetful! Wait just a minute, Phil, and I will have it ready for you."

"Charlie's letter," Philip could not believe his ears. Evidently, Irene was not in the habit of receiving letters.

Presently Irene reappeared with a letter in her hand, and she was folding ready for the envelope.

"I am so glad you mentioned letters, Philip, for yesterday morning I wrote to my old friend, Charlie Hunter Tracy, or "Charlie," as we always called her, and I forgot to mail it."

How easily it was all explained. Philip had been jealous—or fearful he might be. How happy he was to prove it all a mistake. Since Irene he would tell his wife all about it, but not now.

REVENUE REFORM

Meeting of the Massachusetts Tariff Reform League at Boston.

The Evils of Protection and the Necessity for Reduced Taxation Set Forth.

Speeches by James Russell Lowell and Other Notables — Cleveland's Views Indorsed.

[Boston special]

The meeting and banquet of the Massachusetts Tariff-Reform League, which brings together a large number of prominent politicians and businessmen from all parts of Massachusetts and elsewhere, among the number being James Russell Lowell, Gen. John M. Corse, Patrick A. Collins, Congressman-at-Large Breckinridge of Kentucky, W. L. Wilson of West Virginia, and Senator John T. Morgan of Alabama. Resolutions indorsing the message of President Cleveland were unanimously adopted.

Officers were then elected, after which the party proceeded to the banquet hall.

After the banquet James Russell Lowell was called to order. In the course of his address Mr. Lowell said:

"One of the measures that chiefly suggested the opportuneness of our coming together is the Tariff-reform message, and at the opening of the present Congress, which I hope may be long, I feel myself strongly attracted to Mr. Cleveland as the best representative of the higher type of statesmanship we have seen since Lincoln. He has exactly the right place, and we are here to thank him as the head of a party. We are here to declare that this party stands politic to mean business, not chicanery, plain speaking, not dissimulation, in the sensible sense; that he has had the courage to tell the truth to the country without regard to personal or party consequences, and that he trusts that the country not worth telling the truth is not worth living in; may, deserves to have lies tons it is sent to him, inevitable consequences in calamity. Our politics, I fear, are a broom. Mr. Cleveland, I think has found the broom and begun to use it. Mr. Cleveland, Mr. President has set us the example not only of courage but of patience and moderation. He has kept strictly to his text and his purpose. He has shown us that this was not a thing as being precoded too much, and that we had protected our shipping industries so effectually that they had ceased to be protected by the tariff. I think limiting the field of his warning and his counsels he has done wisely, and we shall do wisely to follow his example. His facts and his figures I feel sure will stand unfortunately, and we must be patient with them that expect them to work clear. Excessive taxation is a tax upon all the more interests are involved and must be treated tenderly.

"Mr. Lowell was interrupted frequently by storms of applause. At his first appearance to President Cleveland Mr. William Everett, Jr., proposed three cheers for Cleveland, which were given with will.

Upon concluding his speech Mr. Lowell introduced Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama. The Senator said:

"I believe we are here to assist to relieve our country of some of the fatuous enormous burdens we have imposed on our own wealth. To me it is a pleasant thing to be here with you to-day, and to-day confirming upon a question which I feel to be dear to all of us. We have and will find forever that there is no reason why the interests should be antagonistic. Sectional lines of distinction no longer exist and we are now just one people. I feel to that system which wrings money from the people to be used upon political purposes. We have injured our country. The system of taxation for tariff has not grown, but it has grown so that it will cut down the revenue to one water, or that we keep the revenue at a fixed point, and shall we dry up the sources of the country?

"Congressman Breckinridge, of Kentucky, said that he was glad to be present at the tariff question and the pressing need of tariff reform.

"Protection is never healthy, nor, in the long run, secured to the people. Inferiorish strength and restlessness proceed from it. It stimulates the weak and enervates the strong. The present rate of taxation are excessive, and hurtful to the interests of those employed in the industries protected. The tariff is not protection, so far as taxation is unnecessary for the necessities of the Government, economical and efficient, it is unjustly imposed and illegally collected from the people. Protection is distinct from the revision of the tariff, to which both the great political parties are committed, and must be made gradually and cautiously, with a view to the interests involved. Some long established cannot readily be changed, and that great industry cannot be left in the path of any reform. In the nature of the case all legislation which means lays a demand of instability and uncertainty. There are a few things which this system is indeed a manna; to all others it is an injury and a wrong."

Congressman Wilson of West Virginia, Congressman Breckinridge of Kentucky, and others, followed in brief addresses. It was past midnight when the gathering broke up.

Farm Mortgages and the Tariff.

We commend to the farmers of Michigan, and especially to those who are interested in farm mortgages, the following from our esteemed contemporary, the San Antonio Express:

"The report of the Commissioner of Labor shows that mortgages on farms in the States of Washington County are mortgaged to an amount equal to two-thirds of the value of the property. It is estimated that the area about the place of the shade, and, at the same time you will see a little boy, who has been sent by his mother to see the man who is the man closed up and begins to speak—

"Now, my darling, say you love me."

"Love you! Why, Charlie, you know I love you—that I never knew what it was to love until I met you."

"Do you love me as you never loved any other man, Irene?"

"Yes, Philip! How strangely you talk. Of course I am sure."

He had already finished breakfast Philip, instead of going at once to his office, sat down with his cousin, imposed by the window, gazing out in an abstracted manner.

Irene had always been in the habit of giving him her letters to mail, and this morning she had not remembered to do so.

As Philip stood looking out of the window, he saw a little boy coming.

At last, taking up his hat, he said, carelessly, "Any letters for me, Irene?"

To his surprise Irene jumped to her feet, exclaiming: "Charlie's letter! How could I be so forgetful! Wait just a minute, Phil, and I will have it ready for you."

"Charlie's letter," Philip could not believe his ears. Evidently, Irene was not in the habit of receiving letters.

Presently Irene reappeared with a letter in her hand, and she was folding ready for the envelope.

"I am so glad you mentioned letters, Philip, for yesterday morning I wrote to my old friend, Charlie Hunter Tracy, or "Charlie," as we always called her, and I forgot to mail it."

How easily it was all explained. Philip had been jealous—or fearful he might be. How happy he was to prove it all a mistake. Since Irene he would tell his wife all about it, but not now.

CHARLIE'S LETTER.

BY JEFFIE FORBUSH HANAFORD.

A little incoherent-looking epistle, dated at nearly three the man who found it said with money and pain.

It read as follows:

MY DEAR CHARLIE—You can not imagine how much I would like to see you. I can not bear to think how far apart we are just now. But this letter will prove very unusual, for I love you as much as ever, "distance makes the heart grow fonder," you know. I will write you a long letter soon. I have many to tell you, but my time is limited to-day. Do write soon, and tell me how much you miss me.

Yours, with love,

JENNIE HUNTER DEMONY.

It was summer time. The golden sunshine poured in through open window, the breezes stirred the grass, and the sweet perfume from the flowers was wafted into the room.

The man with the letter in his hand stood as if turned to stone, trying to realize what he had just read.

There was his wife's name in full, "Irene Hunter Demont." What could it mean? Who was Charlie? What a fool he was to think there was ever a thing so perfect happiness in this world.

He remembered having read in a paper that very day—yes, scarce two hours ago—of the death of a little girl known as Charlie's case.

He remembered how long and how hard he had striven for her sake. He could not see her sorrowful eyes, hear her sighs, and deaf to all else, he had gone to the presidential chair has a man in it, and he had ever seen. They were all weighted with what he is. We are here to-day, and to-morrow we are gone. We are perhaps gone. It is estimated that the area about the place of the shade, and, at the same time you will see a little boy, who has been sent by his mother to see the man who is the man closed up and begins to speak—

"Now, my darling, say you love me."

"Love you! Why, Charlie, you know I love you—that I never knew what it was to love until I met you."

"Do you love me as you never loved any other man, Irene?"

"Yes, Philip! How strangely you talk. Of course I am sure."

He had already finished breakfast Philip, instead of going at once to his office, sat down with his cousin, imposed by the window, gazing out in an abstracted manner.

Irene had always been in the habit of giving him her letters to mail, and this morning she had not remembered to do so.

As Philip stood looking out of the window, he saw a little boy coming.

At last, taking up his hat, he said, carelessly, "Any letters for me, Irene?"

To his surprise Irene jumped to her feet, exclaiming: "Charlie's letter! How could I be so forgetful! Wait just a minute, Phil, and I will have it ready for you."

"Charlie's letter," Philip could not believe his ears. Evidently, Irene was not in the habit of receiving letters.

Presently Irene reappeared with a letter in her hand, and she was folding ready for the envelope.

"I am so glad you mentioned letters, Philip, for yesterday morning I wrote to my old friend, Charlie Hunter Tracy, or "Charlie," as we always called her, and I forgot to mail it."

How easily it was all explained. Philip had been jealous—or fearful he might be. How happy he was to prove it all a mistake. Since Irene he would tell his wife all about it, but not now.

HE STILL LIVES.

The Weekly Editor and His Editorial "We."

"Last Friday night, while we were engaged at the office and Our Wife was over to see the Widow McGinnis, some base thief entered Our house and stole Our watch, which was out of repair, but valued at $3. We directed to have his whereabouts published, and Our Constable Hank Smith was elected to sit on his coattails in Green's saloon and hold the watch, so if he put over the people from the hands of the despoilers? Hank is a good fellow, and his subscription to the Kickers is always paid in advance, but that is dunning the man in a good humor, and the shock of losing Our watch has almost upset her. Our dog has also been acting strangely of late, leading Our bulldog lor, Judge Hobbs, who, by the way, is building an addition to his woodshed, and will probably be a candidate for Governor this fall, to remark that he may have been poisoned. May Heaven forgive the human hyena who took Our watch, for neither We or Our wife can ever do so."

"EXPLANATORY—That refined and cultured reptile, Bill Bosworth, whose chief occupation is sniffing down forty-rod whisky and lying about his betters, is circulating the story that he gave Us a licking last Saturday night. Now, the truth of the matter is that Bill has been insulted on our eldest daughter and he called at Our house Sunday evening to ask Our permission to spark her. We promptly and indignantly showed him the door, while Our wife, who is hard of hearing, thought Bill dared Us to come out and We went. We hit him three times, and We know of, on the spot count of five kicks We got in on him, and, to be minute he was kicked for mercy. We don't pretend to be any fighter, but if We can't lick Bill any tighter, we can hand tied behind Us. We will go out of the newspaper business, first thing Our mother asked Us to shoot him, and if it wasn't for Our wife We'd do it. Bill, when you found stealing around Us no more!"

"A STRANGE CASE.—Last Thursday night, while We were sound sleeping in Our bed, Our wife, Hedgeby, gave Us the startling information that something was going on in Our back yard. We at once sprang out of Our bed to investigate. Hastily pulling on a pair of Our clothes—the suit made by Weston, the popular tailor—We were at lunging Our various parts in Our residence until reaching the kitchen. There We found the window wide open. The following diagram will explain matters to Our readers more nearly:

W.	D.	S.
T.	B.	W.

W—Window.
D—Door.
S—Sink.
T—Table.
B—Broom.
W—We.

The open window stared Us in the face as We stood there ready to pursue the fiend. Suddenly, calling on a prayer, We sprang out of Our bed to overhead. But it became to be necessary to go to the window and look out over Our back yard. Who was that window? What for? Was the object to murder Us and Our family? Was it to rob Us? Perhaps we may did he escape? It will ever remain a bloody mystery. —Detroit Free Press.

Funny Writing.

No, my boy, there are no rules for funny writing that I know of, that is to say, none that are worth following. If I have any rule, it is to try to put them easy and natural like, it is little or nothing more than that. If you tell you that," he said, "but I can tell you of one thing I am sure there was no lawyer. He was only a private in the artillery. But he seemed to have read a good deal. Now, you don't know what I mean? Well, I can't tell you. You ask if it is funny to be a funny man. Yes, certainly. A funny head is one of the most important points in the finest people. Funny people are rather the greatest enemy, and they feel secluded famous as well as the serious. Yes, I think so, most gay. They lighten up a melancholy morning.

"Funny men are the fashionable women who have long been the "leaders" of society and who have had to keep up their exhilaration, and to keep up their exhilaration, and to maintain themselves in fashionable society, and to keep the daughters of some famous men now dead are proud of their ancestors." —Philadelphia Telegraph.

Abstraction of Genius.

"Bookworm is fearfully absent-minded." said Shortweight. "Hasn't noticed it." replied Straightedge. "Well, he is, anyhow. I went to him the other day. "Hello, old man, he shouted, "glad to see you home." "Anything over, says I, 'about twenty till back hours to-morrow?' And I that man didn't get up and walk over to the water-basket, and stand there for half an hour with it. All the time softly whistling 'Good-by, Sweetheart, Good-by' and never knew I was there to run him, and he never heard me. What do you suppose he's got on his mind? Why, he's got that straightedge shoes his head and said he was afraid bookworm was reading the newspapers too much. —Burdette.

THERE is a great difference between the Kansas and Nebraska prairie chickens. St. Louis people don't seem to appreciate the merits of one bird over the other, but in Kansas the prairie chicken sells readily for a shilling more than the other. The Nebraska bird is always heavier and fatter and is not near so heavily feathered. A Nebraska sportsman ventured all over from Omaha all the way down his legs to the tips of his toes to shield himself, the cold weather, and while he is fighting for existence in the snow his southern relative was growing and having a good time in open grain fields.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE shirt that Craig Tellfer wore when he made his acquaintance in a Louisville lager-room.

BIRDS THAT KNOW SOMETHING.

Some Wonderful Educated Parrots in Paris—Tricks They Perform.

Says La Nature: An exhibition of educated parrots held in Paris showed very clearly to what a high state of perfection these birds are capable of being trained. Their stage was along table, at one end of which were perches, on which were grouped half a dozen parrots. Four of these were cockatoos—white, with yellow crests; the other two were gray parrots, with red heads and under parts rose color.

Among the tricks which they perform at the bidding of their owners, Mr. Andry, are the following: Two fakes are on quaint supports are placed on the table; a parrot climbs upon one of them, turns a somerset, keeps his head downward, and, passing on to the second bar, goes through the same exercise. Their owner then calls Tom, a small white parrot, who comes toward him as if about to climb on one of the bars, but runs back again, holding down his head and shaking his wings in a grotesque way. Tom is evidently the bottom of the mischief. A ball is then brought, with a handle which forms a lever; a parrot climbs upon it and, with one foot on the lever, rings the bell. The trainer asks his parrots how many of our rings they wish for; some one exclaims "seven" and the parrot rings the bell seven times.

The bird is then asked how much one is added daughter and he called at Our house Sunday evening to ask Our permission to spark her. We promptly and indignantly showed him the door, while Our wife, who is hard of hearing, thought Bill dared Us to come out and We went. We hit him three times, and We know of, on the spot count of five kicks We got in on him, and, to be minute he was kicked for mercy. We don't pretend to be any fighter, but if We can't lick Bill any tighter, we can hand tied behind Us. We will go out of the newspaper business, first thing Our mother asked Us to shoot him, and if it wasn't for Our wife We'd do it. Bill, when you found stealing around Us no more!"

"A STRANGE CASE.—Last Thursday night, while We were sound sleeping in Our bed, Our wife, Hedgeby, gave Us the startling information that something was going on in Our back yard. We at once sprang out of Our bed to investigate. Hastily pulling on a pair of Our clothes—the suit made by Weston, the popular tailor—We were at lunging Our various parts in Our residence until reaching the kitchen. There We found the window wide open. The following diagram will explain matters to Our readers more nearly:

W.	D.	S.
T.	B.	W.

W—Window.
D—Door.
S—Sink.
T—Table.
B—Broom.
W—We.

The open window stared Us in the face as We stood there ready to pursue the fiend. Suddenly, calling on a prayer, We sprang out of Our bed to overhead. But it became to be necessary to go to the window and look out over Our back yard. Who was that window? What for? Was the object to murder Us and Our family? Was it to rob Us? Perhaps we may did he escape? It will ever remain a bloody mystery. —Detroit Free Press.

Funny Writing.

No, my boy, there are no rules for funny writing that I know of, that is to say, none that are worth following. If I have any rule, it is to try to put them easy and natural like, it is little or nothing more than that. If you tell you that," he said, "but I can tell you of one thing I am sure there was no lawyer. He was only a private in the artillery. But he seemed to have read a good deal. Now, you don't know what I mean? Well, I can't tell you. Ask if it is funny to be a funny man. Yes, certainly. A funny head is one of the most important points in the finest people. Funny people are rather the greatest enemy, and they feel secluded famous as well as the serious. Yes, I think so, most gay. They lighten up a melancholy morning.

"Funny men are the fashionable women who have long been the "leaders" of society and who have had to keep up their exhilaration, and to keep up their exhilaration, and to maintain themselves in fashionable society, and to keep the daughters of some famous men now dead are proud of their ancestors." —Philadelphia Telegraph.

Abstraction of Genius.

"Bookworm is fearfully absent-minded." said Shortweight. "Hasn't noticed it." replied Straightedge. "Well, he is, anyhow. I went to him the other day. "Hello, old man, he shouted, "glad to see you home." "Anything over, says I, 'about twenty till back hours to-morrow?' And I that man didn't get up and walk over to the water-basket, and stand there for half an hour with it. All the time softly whistling 'Good-by, Sweetheart, Good-by' and never knew I was there to run him, and he never heard me. What do you suppose he's got on his mind? Why, he's got that straightedge shoes his head and said he was afraid bookworm was reading the newspapers too much. —Burdette.

THERE is a great difference between the Kansas and Nebraska prairie chickens. St. Louis people don't seem to appreciate the merits of one bird over the other, but in Kansas the prairie chicken sells readily for a shilling more than the other. The Nebraska bird is always heavier and fatter and is not near so heavily feathered. A Nebraska sportsman ventured all over from Omaha all the way down his legs to the tips of his toes to shield himself, the cold weather, and while he is fighting for existence in the snow his southern relative was growing and having a good time in open grain fields.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE shirt that Craig Tellfer wore when he made his acquaintance in a Louisville lager-room.

STRUCK BLIND.

The Deadly Poison that Blighted the Optic Nerve.

[Rochester Union and Advertiser.]

Our reporter was very much struck with a conversation between two well-known citizens, a short time ago.

"I know you wear very strong eyeglasses,"

"Yes, you; I am a period since to my eyes, for, it is such a long time, I forgot what eyes eyeglass tells some all cases, I should appear, yet, I have been in good condition. Even the Young Doctor's pupil has been great."

"Well, I know very much the theory and the old notion that poor light, dim gas, etc., is responsible for it."

"Just what you say. If you consult an oculist for eye treatment, you will find new is almost sure to analyze the fluids passing before he will commence treatment; you come and the last and of the failing eyesight was attributed to diseases of the kidneys, because, for her inability of eyes to see and treat the kidneys."

"How is that?"

"I do not know. He claimed that failing eyesight was one of the most prominent symptoms of advanced kidney and Bright's disease."

Reasoning more interested our reporter, thought he would carry on investigations and further, and called upon an eminent whisky several prominent physicians and employing, and the following ensued:

"Why is it that urine and or kidney poison affects the eyes?"

"Because the eyes are reversed, the nerve that the eyes say many than any other organ. It is the most delicate and sensitive organ. The system becomes saturated with uric acid, and the blood becomes thick and unable to suffer. It may be the lungs, heart, brain, liver, stomach, or any other organ, some of the other organs, and the person so affected, perhaps, is unaware of it for years, nature cold age, when in reality it is but the effect of age, and continued poisoning of the system, gradually exhausting the power, and the person is blind, and, perhaps, many years before the cause of the blindness is discovered, and the person, perhaps,

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. SHIRK, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THERE are 26 men in the eleventh district who greatly desire to succeed the late Congressman Moffatt.

JAMES B. BECK, of Kentucky, was on the 11th, re-elected United States Senator, and the nominations, speech-making and balloting only occupied ten minutes.

UTAH'S legislature which has just met for business is composed of thirty-one mormons and five gentiles. And yet Utah wants to become a state. In the name of the prophet, Cheek.

AFTER Mr. Lamar's confirmation Monday the nomination of Dickinson as postmaster-general, Vilas as secretary of the interior, and General Bragg, minister to Mexico were taken up and unanimously confirmed.

THE blizzard in the Northwest during the past week was the most severe storm on record. Over 150 victims have already been reported, principally in Dakota, and thousands of people are said to be in a destitute condition. The loss of property will reach hundreds of thousands.

S. G. HOWES, the young newspaper reporter who some weeks ago sent a sham informal machine to Chief Justice Waite for the purpose of creating a sensation, and selling news pleaded guilty last Tuesday, to a charge of attempting to obtain money by false pretenses and was fined $100.

THE President will have to appoint territorial judges to take the places of the following, whose terms expire during the year 1888: Chief Justice Zane, of Utah; Associate Judges, Palmer, of Dakota; Beck, of Idaho; Blair, of Wyoming; Broderick, Idaho; Francis, Dakota; and Turner, of Washington.

JOHN ARENDORF, the Sioux City brewer, recently acquitted of the charge of murdering the Rev. Dr. Haddock, has removed to Milwaukee, where he intends to make his permanent residence. This is a remarkable move. Why should Mr. Arendorf so suddenly quit the community which left untried no expedient to save him from the gallows? The friendship of a public that sacrificed every claim to the respect of the world at large in order to fetch Arendorf from the toils of justice—such a friendship would we fancy, be more congenial to Arendorf than any other to be met with.

Home Knowledge for January has reached our table, and like previous numbers, is filled with first-class home reading. Subjects of every day interest are treated in a purely scientific manner by eminent authors. This number has among other articles, "Home Education," by Oswald; "To Society Women," by Gunn; "A Word to Self-Supporting Women," by Drayton; "A Plea for the Nervous," by Howie; "Old Father Time," by Clair; "The Business Man's Story," by Peters; "Despotism on Wheels," by Pratt. "Some Literary Relics" and the "Editor's Table Talk," which is full of "Home Knowledge." This magazine is worthy to be in every home.

THE showing of the last month's trade in the United States, according to the figures quoted by bradstreet's is a cheerful one for the year to go out on. Since 1880 the increase in population is estimated at about 28 per cent; but the increase in industrial activities has far more than kept pace with it. The comparison of this year's failures with last year's show a decrease of some eight hundred, or at the rate of sixteen a week, and the proportion of assets to liabilities has risen from 46 per cent in 1885 and 49 in 1886 to 49.5 in 1887. When we bear in mind the fact that speculation has run riot through the west, this array of figures means a good deal, and the study of it will help many a business man to take fresh heart of hope on entering upon the new year.

MR. LAMAR was confirmed as Justice of the United States Supreme court Monday by a vote of 32 to 28. It is just six weeks since President Cleveland sent his cabinet nominations to the Senate. These six weeks have been devoted to the shallowest partisanship that has yet disgraced the days of republican decadence; six weeks of petty annoyance of the Executive; six weeks of embarrassment to great governmental departments; six weeks of Republican bigotry and folly, and of Democratic patience. It is all over now. The result has been reached that every intelligent observer knew would be from the beginning. The executive nominations have all been confirmed and the republican Senatorial majority has for its pains the knowledge that it has newly solidified the South, disgusted the North and wearied the whole country.

Democrats and Pensions.

The people in general and veteran soldiers in particular have certainly no reason to find fault with democratic management of the pension office. More money has been disbursed for pension purposes, and it has been disbursed more economically than under any previous administration of the department. Last year the treasury paid out nearly $75,000,000 on pension account. There were at the close of the fiscal year 406,000 pensioners, nearly 58,000 of whom were added during the year. The estimates for the fiscal year amount to $76,200,000. In 1884, under the republican regime, the disbursements were $57,102,395; the expenses $296,430, or $5.19 per $1,000. Last year the disbursements were $73,440,038 the expenses but $243,293 or $48,000 less than it cost in 1884 to disburse $16,338,000 less money. The cost per $1,000 was only $3.38, a reduction in expense of nearly 36 per cent over the last year of republican administration. The original certificates issued aggregated 55,194, a number unprecedented in any single year, and for the first four months of the present fiscal year the increase has been 6,873 in excess of the corresponding period last year. This record speaks for itself. The veteran soldiers especially have reason to rejoice over the fact that there is neither waste nor inefficiency in the handling of the millions reserved for their benefit. —Utica Observer.

Protects American Labor.

The corporations which are most clamorous for a continuance of a high protective tariff system are voluable in their declarations that protection is necessary to aid and benefit honest American labor, and yet we notice that the Alabama & Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company has just leased the labor of 550 Alabama convicts. That's helping honest labor with vengence.—Muskegon News Repoter.

The Oxidation of Zinc.

The expensive outdoor use of zinc by builders at the present time has directed attention to the peculiar process of oxidation which this metal undergoes, and which is so important to be considered in all applications involving exposure. The rusted surface does not rub off or blow away, but forms a sort of hard crust or enamel upon the surface of the metal, and when laid upon boarding which is or may become damp or exposed to steam or condensation below, it runs on both sides. The thin zincs first introduced in this way were rusted through, brittleness ensuing, and failure being the result. But if the zinc be of sufficient thickness, after a certain time oxidation ceases, and the result is a body of solid, sound metal, incased above and below by a solid coating, thoroughly impermeable to the accidents of weather or temperature, and which requires no painting. The various ways of spreading zinc consist mainly in laying it in a corrugated form without boarding, the trusses of iron or wood of the roof carrying the weight, or in rafters about one foot, more or less, apart, with a corrugation at each rafter only, or upon a general surface of boarding, in the manner of a lead flat.—Boston Budget.

A Chestnut, but Still Toothsome.

The late Justice Patrick Grattan, a man of the most popular citizens of West Troy, where his memory will ever be green, and reminiscences of his witticisms continue to bring smiles to the countenances of his surviving friends, at passing events recall the name of the genial "Pat." It was but seldom that his quick wit would not serve through any practical joke that was intended to be played upon him, and he used to relate that the most completely that he was ever taken in was by a redlicking son of Erin, who stood arraigned and convicted before him for public intoxication. The fellow pleaded for mercy, saying that he had a large family dependent on him for support. "How many children have you?" asked the kind hearted Grattan. "Oh! aye! seven byes and a sister for every wan o' 'em," was the reply. He was let off with the payment of a light fine, and it was not till several minutes had elapsed that the court comprehended that one girl could be a sister to seven boys, just as easily as seven girls, as he at first thought.—Albany Argus.

A Few Articles.

Vulcanite is the name of a new article intending to combine all the valuable qualities of asbestos and India rubber. It forms a substance of the toughness of horn, although it can be made of any degree of flexibility; it is a non-conductor of electricity, and stands the severest test of acids, steam, gases, etc. One of the most important uses of the new article is as a molded piston rod packing ring, made to fit any steel rod or stuffing box, and to be sprung in place with a slight pressure, one or more rings to be used, as desired, and forming a perfectly tight steam joint. These rings do not wear the rod, and they are self lubricating. —Chicago News.

What the Book Says.

Amateur Actress (rehearsing)—You must not say "good-by" when you retire from the stage, Mr. Bizy.

Amateur Actor (triumphantly showing her the book)—That's what the book says, Miss Cookington.

Amateur Actress (contrite)—Why, so it does.—The Epoch.

How "Protection" Protects.

In olden times a hermit gray
Lived on an island far away,
Where robbers roamed the whole night long
With sword and gun and ribald song.
The hermit, to protect himself
And make secure his scanty pelf,
Procured a lion near the shore
And placed him in his cabin door.
Alas! Just hear the hermit's groans—
The lion's feasting on his bones.

A farmer lived in our own land,
But dangers lurked on every hand.
So he married out a great forest
And formed a noble government,
Just to protect his home and life
And save himself from ceaseless strife.
Alas! He saw his land and rest
Both swallowed by his government.
—Mrs. M. A. Stubbs, in Jackson Patriot.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 13.—Mrs. Cleveland's first reception of the season Saturday afternoon was largely attended by many prominent in political and social life. At the stroke of three from the "Grandfather's Clock," in one corner of the inner corridor, the Marine band struck up one of its most popular airs, and Mrs. Cleveland, escorted by Colonel Wilson, descended the main stairway, and entered the blue room, followed by the ladies of the receiving party, who immediately took their stand in the usual order, and the doors were thrown open to the public. Mrs. Cleveland wore an exquisite robe of pale blue French faille dotted dwarf rosebude in pink chenille. The skirt fell in long, soft, full folds terminating in a train.

At this season there are many woman of reduced circumstances in Washington who manage to keep up appearances by teaching the newcomers how to shine in society; providing for their taste and culture as a supplment to wealth. These experts in etiquete and in the arrangement of furniture and bric a-brac, have all been reduced from higher sphere. They are the wives or daughters of men who have held high positions in the army or navy, or perhaps in congress, and have died leaving nothing for their families.

Alexander G. Bell, the telephone man is a very rich man, and so are all of his relatives. While he cannot be deprived of his present riches, yet his future income is very much in doubt. Should the United States Supreme court be adverse to Bell, the people of the country will get cheaper telephone service, and the coffers of a great monopoly will no longer be stuffed full to overflowing. Mr. Bell is a handsome Canadian, and enjoys the luxury of the handsomest home in Washington, for which he paid $110,000. He is a well built man, with black hair and beard just beginning to turn gray, and has a young looking face. The interior of his home is a superb. Water colors, rare paintings, and soft etchings surround you on every side. The furniture of the house is a marvel of taste and richness. The library, which adjoins the main entrance, is a model room of its kind, contains thousand of rare literary productions. The binding of the books is of the highest perfection, and you almost fear to touch the covers. Many of the chairs are of carved sandal wood. Mrs. Bell is a deaf mute, although she can converse with her husband readily, who understands every movement of her lips. She was rich before she married the telephone magnat, but has largely increased her income from his principly gifts to her of large blocks of telephone stock. Just across the street from Mr. Bell's house is a little cottage where he teaches deaf children. He has given great attention to this subject, and has made many wonderful discoveries in the sign language, which he is endeavoring to supplant by a libial sound language of his own.

Representative MacDonald, of Minnesota, yesterday introduced in the House a pension bill which differs materially in character from any general pension bills heretofore introduced. It is entitled "A bill to prescribe and define the evidence in a case of certain Union soldiers and widows, and orphans of the same," and, as its title indicets, is confined to the matter of evidence in the claim of pension cases therein referred to. The author says that its object is to simplify and relax the present rules of evidence established by law. It will do away with the necessity of proving prior soundness. The fact that a soldier was accepted into the service is to establish the fact that he was sound at enlistment.

The party of distinguished foreigners composing the Corean embassy arrived yesterday and were driven to the Ebbitt house, where they registered. Besides several wagon-loads of baggage the party brought a supply of interpreters and servants and all the paraphernalia necessary to establish a Corean legation here. With one exception, none of the embassy can speak our vernacular. The members are all from the very upper crust of Corean society, and are bedecked with jewels. They wear a picturesque and handsom, consisting of silks and velvets. In appearance they greatly resemble the Japanese.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

The once flourishing town of Solitaire, in Arizona, is now entirely deserted. The man who named the town builded better than he knew.—Norristown Herald.

Miss Puth has decided to learn to play the banjo, and if at any time within the next two months a man with disheveled hair, a wild, haunted look in his dark eyes, buttons missing from his pants and socks that wont a pair, be seen, he is found wandering aimlessly around solitary places in Europe, his name will probably be Nicolini.—St. Paul Globe.

A bright newspaper woman in New York gained admission as a lunatic to an insane asylum and remained there a couple of weeks taking notes, which she worked up into a graphic newspaper article. It is suspected that she deceived the physicians in charge by wearing a fashionable bustle as large as a flour barrel and having her hair brushed within half an inch of her eyebrows.—Norristown Herald.

Natural gas is a great boon to the people of Pittsburg, but the people there make light of it.—Norristown Herald.

"I was in hopes, professor," said a hospital under surgeon, "that I would be given the leg operation in the poor ward." "No, I assigned it to Young Newcomb, but I'll give you a wheack at the autopsy."—The Epoch.

It costs something to die respectably in Omaha. On the one hand we have the body of a man sent from there to Akron, O., for burial, with the following attached bill, to be collected on delivery or contents returned: Undertaker's bill, $60; hospital expenses, $20; physician's fee, $10; livery, $6. The bill was paid, but the rest of the family will get back to Akron in time to die there.—Exchange.

Husband (suffering from influenza)—Do you know why id is, by dear, that cods always sdick by id the head? Wife (thoughtfully)—Why, I believe, John, physicians hold that colds always attack the weakest spot.—The Epoch.

At Home or Abroad; at church and theater, in the counting house and work room, in fact everywhere is heard that hacking cough which soon develops into Congestion or Inflamation of the Lungs, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Consumption Be wise in time. Immediate relief and cure can be cheaply obtained. Hamilton's Cough Balsam will surely give you relief from these Throat and Lung troubles that often terminate in death. Instant relief in Croup, and a substitute of Whooping Cough. Your consumptive friend will be greatly benefited. Price 25 and 50 cents. Told by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Eating and Starving, it is all the same, for you are sure to suffer from Piles. No worse torture can be conceived of. Blind or Bleeding Piles are unequaled for annoyance, but by a few applications of Parmelee's Pile Ointment they entirely disappear. The knife is resorted to by physicians, for the removal of protruding piles but such barbarity is not a necessity for Parmelee's Pile Ointment and careful attending to directions, quickly reduce, replace and drive them away. Warranted to cure. Price 50 cents per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Why Waste Time and Money on that which does no good. Your children have worms and are Cross, Always Hungry, Sleepless, Puny and Weak from the presence of Worms in your premises when a remedy which prevents the food taken up to nourish the body, Parmelee's Vermifuge Worm Candies will dissolve and remove the worms and then all will be well. You cannot afford to be better by your children than to attend to their health. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Dr G. W. Crouter. 27

Brace Up.

You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with headache, you are fidgety, nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap, bad whiskey, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then brace you even more condition than before. What you want is an alterative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of liver and kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's drug store.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

J. F. SMITH,
Confectionery, Tobacco, Cigars.
GROCERIES
And Provisions,
HOT AND COLD LUNCH,
At all hours.
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

WM. J. STEVENSON,
HORSE-SHOEING,
Wagon Shop,
BLACKSMITHING, ETC.
Heavy Wagons on hand and made to order. I manufacture my own spring work, of the best material. WARRANT ALL WORK. Call and examine before buying elsewhere.
SHOP ONE BLOCK WEST OF CARPENTER, BARTHOLOMEW & CO.'S STORE, CHARLEVOIX.

The OSBORNE MOWING MACHINE co. has land for sale. 12

WILL H. FRANCIS,
Furniture and Jobbing Shop.
Will also do Contracting and Building in Charlevoix and vicinity, at reasonable rates. I keep in stock a full set of hand and foot power machinery which enables me to do Jobbing, Repairing, Etc., on short notice. Shop on South Terrace, opposite Harrison Berdan's residence.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Proprietor.
Charlevoix - Michigan.
Finest location in town, giving good view of lake and surroundings. Express office and headquarters for Petoskey and Mt. Dutch Stages. Good sample room for commercial travelers adjoining office.

PATENTS.
FRED W. CROCKER,
Counselor at Law & Solicitor of Patents,
ROOM 32, 234 BROADWAY,
New York, N. Y.
PENSION BLANKS,
And all other blanks used in prosecuting claims before the U. S. Pension, Patent, or Land offices Send for prices. Address
J. H. WHEELER,
Mar'87 352 Seventh St., Washington, D. C.

For 1888 is better than ever, containing 176 pages, with hundreds of illustrations, and nearly 700 engravings of the choicest Flowers and Vegetables with prices for honest guests. Price of Collins' only of seeds, including a German Text Book of Flowers, 25 cents.
JAMES VICK, ROCHESTER, N. Y.
Rochester, N. Y.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Gate"
and 50 other Popular Ballads, in book form, are in Thomer's Music Scrap Book, for only FOUR CENTS. Stamps taken. Send to AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO. 3060 Tuckerman Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE.
BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED.
This Magazine portrays American thought and life from ocean to ocean. It is filled with pure high-class literature, and can be safely welcomed in any family circle.
POSTS 20c. $2.50 A YEAR. SEND 25c. for specimen copy and premium list, or 15 cts. for specimen copy of 20 cts. / back numbers, 15 cts.
Premium List with stamp.
Address
A. T. BURR & SON, Publishers,
130 & 132 Pearl St., N. Y.

GET UP CLUBS

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charvleoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.
Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

We are headquarters for everything in our line.

A great Reduction in the prices of CLOAKS and Wraps, to close them out.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

DO YOU WANT
PURE DRUGS
Or Carefully Compounded Prescriptions,
CALL ON US.
DO YOU SMOKE? We Keep the Best Cigars.
DO YOU LIKE MUSIC? We will take pleasure in showing our well-selected Stock!
Yours Respectfully,
F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,
Druggists and Pharmacists,
Opera Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

S. & I. 1888 S. & I.

You will need something in our line during 1888. Do get full to buy of us. You will SAVE YOUR DOLLARS by so doing.

There's Saws, Axes, Files, and Tools of all kinds. Then you may want a New Stove. If you do, you miss it if you don't get one of ours. A majority,—a large majority,—of the Stove Buyers of the county will tell you. We've got their names, and can refer direct to them. The Champion Pumps, too; what a splendid record they have, working easily and quickly.

Come and see us; if you want anything, BUY OF US. Yours in the belief that we will not fail to please you.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

THE JOURNAL

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Jan. 19, 1888.

Local Notes and News.

For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. myr

Albert Mason has moved his stock of groceries from the See building into his own store.

J. F. Smith is now well established at the Cross stand, and carries a full line of groceries and provisions. He also serves hot and cold lunch at all hours.

A. T. Washburne connected his residence and store by a galvanic telephone this week. Squire Kane or Cashier Smith can speak more particularly of the working qualities of the instrument.

Give your friends in other states an idea of Charlevoix village and county, by sending, one or more copies of our holiday supplement. A few copies on hand, at five cents each or fifty cents a dozen.

Never judge a man by his appearance. A shabby old coat may contain an editor, while a man wearing a broadcloth, high plug hat, and sporting a dude cane, may be a delinquent subscriber.—Bellaire Breeze.

Wood Wanted.—Proposals for furnishing 100 cords of good maple four-foot wood for the school board will be received by Oscar Upright or O. S. Washburn up to Saturday evening, Jan. 21st. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

Direct from Baltimore: The freshest, the largest, and the cheapest Oysters ever unloaded in this county. Oysters that are Oysters. We have the agency for one of the largest Oyster packers in Baltimore, and the people will get a big benefit; also the most Crackers made, at O. W. Smith's specialty house.

Edith Cole, teacher in district No. 6, Hayes, reports the following pupils not absent during the month ending Jan. 13th: Clara Starmer, Herbert Tuttle, Nellie Starmer, Philip Brecheisen, Charles Sterzik. Other members of the school are to be praised for their attendance and good scholarship.

Lots of sport was had at the ladies' hard times social Monday evening. Mrs. J. A. Hawkins represented a neat and tidy but hard-working, poverty-stricken woman, and took the prize, which was a bread and milk set. Elmer Mayne represented a tramp, and outdoubted all competition. His prize was a cup and saucer. The receipts of the evening were $9.50.

For the information of the editor of the Boyne Citizen, who criticised the JOURNAL'S holiday supplement, last week, we would state that the shipments from the mills and docks at Advance, Boyne, Bay Springs, and Undine, were reprinted at the custom house at Charlevoix, and are therefore included in the totals of this county, while some fifteen to twenty cargoes from East Jordan and points on the Arm were not; neither were Norwood or Smithson's (with one exception). Look to your figures, friend, we will call on you for some statistics for special mention next year.

After you get angry and stop your paper just poke your finger in it and pull it out and look for the hole. Then you will know how badly you are missed. A man who thinks a paper cannot survive without his support ought to go off and stay awhile. When he comes back half his friends will not know that he was gone, and the other half will not care a cent while the world is sorry for the account of his movement. You will find things you cannot endorse in every paper. Even the bible is rather plain and hits some hard licks. If you were to go and and burn your bible the hundreds of presses would still go on printing it; and when you stop your paper and call the editor names the paper will still be published. The world is more—you'll read it on the sly.—Exchange.

Purely Personal.

Fred W. Mayne went to Grand Rapids yesterday on legal business.

Miss Ina Gage had a narrow escape at a fire in Charlotte last week.

Nelson White was called by telegram, Tuesday, to his home in Manceloua, on account of the sickness of his mother.

George McRoberts had his right leg broken in two places Wednesday afternoon while at work in Stanby's saw-mill in Hayes.

Sidney Jolliffe, of Atwood, and Miss Emma Cooper, daughter of John Cooper, of Charlevoix were married Tuesday evening at the bride's home, Rev. W. H. McCartney officiating.

F. D. Phillips starts on Friday for a week's lecture tour through the upper peninsula, speaking first at Harbor Springs, Friday evening. He will also take orders for cigars, and undoubtedly build up a good trade.

Mrs. Carpenter and daughter Lillie, left for Kalkaska, Monday where they will visit until to-day, when they will be joined by Mrs. Stockman, Miss Mary Wakefield and Cassie Allen, and all will go together to Port Orange, Fla.

Coming Events.

The Historical Society will meet with E. H. Green Friday evening of this week. Fred Green will furnish the paper on the Life and Times of Henry VI.

Mrs. P. J. Howard, of Bay View, will give a temperance talk on Friday evening, in Jefferies hall, at 7.30. Mrs. Howard will review some of the proceedings of the national W. C. T. U. convention, and make some remarks on local option. This is a free public meeting. She will also meet with the ladies at the same place during the afternoon.

Prof. Henry Gordon, of Petoskey, will open a singing school in the Congregational church, on Monday evening, Jan. 23d, at 7 o'clock, for the instruction of old and young in vocal music. The term will consist of 12 lessons, of two hours each, and will be held one or two evenings each week. Terms, $1.25 per scholar, or if 80 paying scholars attend, $1.00 each, payable on the sixth night of the term.

Rev. J. W. Bancroft will meet for counsel and instruction the candidates for baptism, at the residence of W. P. Brown, on Friday evening of this week, at 7 o'clock. Parents, sponsors, teachers, and friends are especially invited, and requested to come with the children. On Saturday evening, at same hour and place, will meet all candidates for confirmation, or any inquiring the Way of Life; also all members of the choir for rehearsal and drill. Divine service, with sermon and holy communion, on Sunday next, at 10.30 a. m., in Odd Fellows' hall. Evening prayer, with the sacrament of baptism and address to children, in connection with the Sunday school service, at 3 o'clock p. m., at Green's hall. All are welcome.

A Remarkable Dream

A story in connection with the recent finding of the body of Mrs. Gallagher of Beaver island, a victim of the Vernon disaster, is going the rounds. According to it, before learning that the body had been recovered, Mr. Gallagher dreamed that he and his lost wife were on the beach between Cookmans and Manistees and talked of the disaster. He went to Manistee after the body was found and related his dream to the coroner. The latter was surprised to find that the description given of the place where the man dreamed he had met his wife was an exact description of the place at which the body was found. The log on which he fancied they sat and talked was really on the beach exactly in the position revealed to him in his dream and on the spot where his wife was found. The woman had on her person $300, which was returned to the husband. The body was exhumed and was identified by the husband.—St. Ignace Republican.

Hayes.

BURGESS, Jan. 18.—Snow still continues to fall.

William Clark butchered several pigs for McLeod's meat market this week.

We understand that Thomas Connor is coming back on his farm soon.

Farmers are busy cutting logs and wood.

Mrs. William Clark received a purse and gold ring from a Connecticut firm as a premium for the longest verse in the bible.

Unclaimed Letters.

List of letters remaining in the postoffice at Charlevoix, Mich., Jan. 14, 1888. If not called for in two weeks they will be sent to the Dead Letter Office. When calling for any of these letters, please say "advertised," and give the date of this list.

Brown, Mrs. E. Johnson, Tassie L.
Bush, Miss Nina Kane, Walter
Cook, Joseph Lewis, Peter M.
Hunt, Miss Clarie Webb, Adam

INDIAN LETTERS.

Elias Answaynkoka

Chas. J. Strang, P. M.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

There are 376 veterans at the soldiers home.

Kalkaska county will vote on local option February 7.

Frankfort votes to bond itself for $10,000 to build water works.

Gogebic county has voted to build a new $50,000 court house and jail.

Fort Austin has no public library, but a book seller rents books at a cent per day.

There are over thirty cases of typhoid fever in the Jackson States prison.

The new transfer steamer, St. Ignace is expected to be put on the Straits of Mackinaw about Feb. 1.

A bill has been introduced to congress appropriating $7,000,000 for the Sault Ste. Marie canal and locks, and Hay Lake Channel.

D P. Whitmore, of the Ingham County Democrat, has sold a half interest in that paper to Mr. A. L. Rose, who has been an employe of the office since 1876.

Michigan does fairly by her soldier heroes. Two men occupy seats on the bench of the supreme court who have an empty sleeve to their coats. they are Major Morse and Capt. Long.

Our Beaver Island neighbors havn't had a mail for over a month, and they are probably wondering how the world wags along without hearing from the Beavers.—Independent Democrat.

A little daughter of Geo. Mooney, of Salem, Allegan county, was burned to death Monday during the absence of the family. She was trying to get dinner when her clothing caught fire.

President Angell, of the state university, states that of the 1,406 students at that institution, the parents of 502 were farmers, 171 merchants, 93 lawyers, 89 physicians, 52 manufacturers, 54 mechanics, and 51 clergymen. He estimates that as many as 45 per cent belonged to the class who gained their living by manual toil.

It is reported from Washington that William L. Webber of the Flint & Pere Marquette, O. M. Barnes of the Jackson, Lansing & Saginaw, and T. J. O'Brien, Attorney of the Grand Rapids & Indiana road are there, and more Michigan men are on their way there, to take action in opposition to Governor Luce's efforts to recover the state swamp lands held by the railroad companies. The roads are defendants in the suits recently begun by Attorney-General Taggart. The lands are valued at more than 100,000.

The state forestry commission will meet at Grand Rapids Jan. 26 and 27. The commission will inquire into the extent to which the Michigan forests are being destroyed by fire and wasteful cutting for consumption, or for the purpose of clearing land for tillage; and also as to the effect of the diminution of the wooded surface of the land upon peoples, rivers, and waterways, and in disturbing and deteriorating the natural condition of the climate. Information will also be obtained regarding forest fires, together with the probable amount of property destroyed.

"Old Joe Logan" died at Mackinaw Island last week. He was in the employment of the American Fur Company at the beginning of the century and used to travel along the shores of Lake Michigan as far as Chicago in a large open rowboat carrying furs. There were no steamboats in those days on Lake Michigan, and Chicago was a dreary swamp. "Old Joe" died on the day he had completed his 92d year. For the last few years of life he lived in a small wooden hut on market street, and spent most of his time in rocking himself in a chair crooning snatches of old French voyageur songs.—Cheboygan Tribune.

Our earnest and energetic citizen, Gen. A. C. Litchfield, proposes to go to Washington at an early day to confer with the Michigan delegation relative to the establishment of a naval station at Harbor Springs, and advocate the measure with congressmen generally as one of great importance. He claims that, in addition to being the finest harbor on the lakes, and the one easiest of access in all kinds of weather for vessels of any draught of water, it is so far removed from foreign waters or settlement, and can be so easily protected from the natural fortifications which surround it, as to make it appear to any disinterested person that Harbor Springs, in preference to all other ports, is the place for such a station.—Petoskey Record.

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

Evelina.

IRONTON, Jan. 17.—The snow is getting too deep for comfort.

The health of our town is generally good. Come to Evelina for good health.

Chas. Peterson cut his leg last week.

Ira McKee has been on the sick list.

There is much sympathy felt for Wm. Black, of Marion who, we learn has almost lost his eye-sight.

Services next Sunday at mountain school house at 2.30 by Rev. J. Dorance. It is hoped there will be a full house.

Owing to the vast amount of snow Pine Lake and South Arm are almost impassible for foot-men and unsafe for teams.

As this is leap year, some of our old bachelors are living in hopes.

A magic lantern show at Ironton school house on Saturday evening. All present enjoyed a good laugh.

Mrs. R. Bedwin who has been quite feeble for some time, has greatly improved.

When you want a first class suit of clothes just call on the enterprising merchant Chas. Bedwin opposite Ironton. He has just received a fine lot of samples from Chicago.

Boyne

January 16—Snow has fallen every day for five weeks; today is pleasant however, and the sun is shining brightly with the thermometer at 8 degrees above zero.

Fred Helfrich, who about three months since moved his stock of groceries to Mancelona, has returned satisfied to remain among his friends and to-day opens out in his old stand.

The Boyne mill whistle again rouses us from slumber at 5 o'clock in the morning.

Our mutual friend William Nye Esq., expresses himself in The World, upon the tariff question with his usual clearness and precision, and in language lucid and resonant as it is philosophical.

James Slater and family will leave for California the last of the week.

Calling at the county offices to day we noticed that deputy Register Weaver was very busy re-recording deeds which had been forwarded for that purpose.

J. C. Schaub is buying furnace wood for the Pine Lake Iron Co. and wants all he can get at $1.75 per cord.

We understand that a musical and literary society was formed in Boyne last week. Time will develope its tendency and capacity.

To the Auditor General:

The following is a full and correct statement of the receipts and expenditures, disbursements, assets and liabilities, upon the business of Manufacturing, Selling, or Keeping for sale Distilled or Malt Liquors during the year ending December 31, 1887.

County Treasurer's Office, Charlevoix County, January 16, 1888.

Receipts from Manufacturers' Special Tax
Receipts from Rectifiers' Special Tax
Receipts from Brewers' Special Tax
Receipts from Retail Liquor Dealers' Special Tax	$ 8888 88
Receipts from Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Special Tax
Receipts from Peddlers' Special Tax
Receipts from Manufacturers' Sales Tax
Receipts from Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Sales Tax
Receipts from Retail Liquor Dealers' Sales Tax
Receipts from Peddlers' Sales Tax
Receipts from Brewers' Sales Tax
Receipts from Rectifiers' Sales

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

NEWS BUDGET.

Fresh Intelligence from Every Part of the Civilized World.

Foreign and Domestic News, Political Events, Personal Points, Labor Notes, Etc.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

LAMAR.

The Secretary of the Interior Sends His Resignation to the President.

SECRETARY LAMAR has tendered to the President his resignation as Secretary of the Interior, and it has been accepted by the President. Mr. Lamar's letter is dated Jan. 7, and closes as follows:

In terminating my relations to you as a member of your official family, I desire to express my appreciation of the courtesy shown me by you personally for the consideration and kindness which have always characterized your treatment of me, and for the generous confidence and support which you have steadily given to the policy of the Interior Department. Association in this department, I shall always be proud to have been associated with the honored name you bear, and to look upon the page of your country's history.

The President, in accepting the resignation, says:

I am sure that the close confidence and the relations of positive affection which have grown up between us need no expression or interpretation. And yet I find it utterly impossible for me to think this action without asserting that that the things which have characterized your official relations with the Interior Department are now more relevant than ever to your country and your chief; your self-sacrificing care and solicitude for public interests, and the zeal at which your official service has conferred upon the administration of the affairs of the Indian and pensioners you have so often exhibited to—and me personally—I shall constantly remember with kindness and gratitude.

THE NEXT WHEAT HARVEST.

Present Condition of the Plant in the States of the Central West Better than Anticipated Last Fall.

THE Farmer's Review, of Chicago, prints the following summary of the condition of the winter-wheat crop:

The winter-wheat crop is in better condition than could have been hoped for before the breaking of the drought in the fall. This is attributable to late rains just before the setting in of winter and the snow mantle which has quite generally covered the growing wheat. Late reports of crop correspondents indicate a decided improvement in the general condition as compared with an average: Ohio, forty-one counties, condition 95 per cent; Indiana, sixty-six counties, 92 per cent; Missouri, forty-nine counties, 95.5 per cent; Kansas, ninety-three counties, 95.5 per cent; Nebraska, twenty-one counties, 94 per cent; Michigan, twenty-two counties, 95.5 per cent; Kentucky, twenty counties, 95.5 per cent. These figures indicate an average condition of about 95 per cent in the winter-wheat States of the Central West. November reports on the acreage sown show a decrease of about 10 per cent; and it has been accepted by the Department of Agriculture that the acreage sown is about 40 per cent of an average amount of crop for the country, harvest, provided average conditions are assumed with regard to seed.

MANY ROADS HAVE FAILED.

Annual Statistics Show Rarity for Railways —The Alton Is still Fighting.

In its last issue the Railway Age, of Chicago, published a statement showing that:

During the year 1887 thirty-one railroads in this country, with an aggregate funded debt of $184,272,000, and capital stock of $265,520,000, have been foreclosed and reorganized. In 1886 twenty companies contributed to a similar list, and in 1885 twenty-four companies, representing a funded debt of $1,000,000,000, and capital stock of $1,000,000,000, have been foreclosed and reorganized. Late reports of crop correspondents indicate a decided improvement in the general condition of vegetation as compared with an average: Ohio, forty-one counties, condition 95 per cent; Indiana, sixty-six counties, 92 per cent; Missouri, forty-nine counties, 95.5 per cent; Kansas, ninety-three counties, 95.5 per cent; Nebraska, twenty-one counties, 94 per cent; Michigan, twenty-two counties, 95.5 per cent; Kentucky, twenty counties, 95.5 per cent. These figures indicate an average condition of about 95 per cent in the winter-wheat States of the Central West. November reports on the acreage sown show a decrease of about 10 per cent; and it has been accepted by the Department of Agriculture that the acreage sown is about 40 per cent of an average amount of crop for the country, harvest, provided average conditions are assumed with regard to seed.

MANY ROADS HAVE FAILED.

Annual Statistics Show Rarity for Railways —The Alton Is still Fighting.

In its last issue the Railway Age, of Chicago, published a statement showing that:

During the year 1887 thirty-one railroads in this country, with an aggregate funded debt of $184,272,000, and capital stock of $265,520,000, have been foreclosed and reorganized. In 1886 twenty companies contributed to a similar list, and in 1885 twenty-four companies, representing a funded debt of $1,000,000,000, and capital stock of $1,000,000,000, have been foreclosed and reorganized. Late reports of crop correspondents indicate a decided improvement in the general condition of vegetation as compared with an average: Ohio, forty-one counties, condition 95 per cent; Indiana, sixty-six counties, 92 per cent; Missouri, forty-nine counties, 95.5 per cent; Kansas, ninety-three counties, 95.5 per cent; Nebraska, twenty-one counties, 94 per cent; Michigan, twenty-two counties, 95.5 per cent; Kentucky, twenty counties, 95.5 per cent. These figures indicate an average condition of about 95 per cent in the winter-wheat States of the Central West. November reports on the acreage sown show a decrease of about 10 per cent; and it has been accepted by the Department of Agriculture that the acreage sown is about 40 per cent of an average amount of crop for the country, harvest, provided average conditions are assumed with regard to seed.

IOWA FARMERS SQUEEZED.

Unable to Take Up Mortgages Resulting from Meager Railway Facilities.

A Keokuk dispatch from Des Moines, Iowa, states that—

Complaints of the scarcity of cars continue to come to the farmers of Northwestern Iowa, and the Commissioner of Railways recently made a visit to that part of the State, and has since been informed by the officials of the roads that furnishing necessary facilities for farmers to move their grain to market is now the chief difficulty they have to contend with. The Keokuk dispatch states that while there is a shortage of cars for all purposes the hay men only get about one-tenth or one of the cars they want. Thousands of dollars of mortgages are lost due in that part of Iowa, the farmers being unable to take up the notes, owing to their inability to have grain to sell. The bankers, loan companies and attorneys, if collections are enforced, will create a panic, and they have as a rule received credit during the season and perhaps could continue to get along with, with the exception of a market for the hay and chances are hopeless.

REQUISITES FOR STATEHOOD.

Enabling Acts for Some of the Territories Likely to Be Passed.

MR. STRAHORN, Delegate of the House Committee on Territories, in an interview at Washington the other Day, said:

Very probably enabling acts will be passed for some of the Territories; that is we may pass an act enabling some of the Territories to form State constitutions, and do other things preparatory to admission as States, without necessarily a State is a very important matter and cannot be done in a mere resolution on my mere sentimental basis. I remember an impression has prevailed that a Territory could come in with a population of only 50,000 inhabitants. There is no such idea in the minds of the committee. The admission of a Territory is a matter of mere legislative discretion. It is within the power of Congress to admit Cow Boy Land into State and admit it to the Union. The State of Illinois was admitted with 40,000 people, or so, and Nebraska was admitted over Govs. Dakota with only about 70 Mans Land.

THE EASTERN STATES.

Five men were killed and a dozen injured by a collision on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad near Conneaut, Pa.

JANUSCHEK, the actress, has instituted suit for $20,000 damages against Henry Hall, Jr., proprietor of the Ferry House at Newport, R. I., for injuries sustained by falling down stairs, May 17, 1887, and breaking her arm.

A DESPERATE fight between drunken Polanders is reported by telegraph from Wilkesbarre, Pa. A large part of the population consists of Hungarians and Polanders. A grand debauch was in progress over a chris-

GAME

"No, the time to an is when the race Bull-Dog quiz. "No, wrong I'll let you "Ave "I fre plied, a know that is m.ro, man comes but tak class a has be morni half bed be unlock break the door "Yo mind event omen lucky York lady the co way had o the m morni ing wo must

THE JOURNAL

THE NEWS BUDGET

THE EASTERN STATES

THE WESTERN STATES

THE SOUTHERN STATES

THE FOREIGN BUDGET

THE INDUSTRIAL REALM

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

THE COMMITTEES

CONGRESS

THE MARKETS

ST. JOHN,

A Stirring Address by the Able and Courageous Prohibition Leader.

It Bristles with Telling Points, and Will Well Repay a Careful Perusal.

At the annual business meeting of the National Prohibition Union, in New York, ex-Gov. John P. St. John, of Kansas, spoke as follows:

The twenty forty years this country has been under the control of the two old parties, and what is its legal, social, moral, and political condition to-day? Let us examine a little.

"Ye hang and imprison, murder, and perpetuate all manner of villainies, if ye think ye can profit thereby, and fancies the crimson stain of your hands washed out in the blood of your victims."

Our jails, prisons, and penitentiaries are full to overflowing, the hospitals where cared for by our public charities, and fastness, the criminal courts are busy trying the victims of rum, and the poor houses are full of the victims of rum. Our legislatures, State and National, are busy in the enactment of laws for the protection of the liquor traffic, and drives the defenders from power, and the people are poorer, sorrowful, poor, and happiness to all our homes, and made this country a hell upon earth. Is this too dark a picture? Let the facts and figures speak for themselves, make, by adding to this good work?

ALL IS SERENE IN IOWA.

Prohibition Sentiment Is Invincible and the Law Is Increasingly Dominant in Tight Quarters.

[Des Moines corr. of the Voice.]

The liquor men seem to have given over to fight a place as now, and with the cool impudence that they have been showing of late assume whenever very hard pressed, they claim that prohibition is a dead issue in this State, and that the people in all parts of the country claiming that the saloons are quite prosperous, and that it would be useless to wipe out Prohibition at one fell swoop. The following from Cool Hiffs in the New York Tribune, asserting that the Clark prohibitory law is practically dead, and that prohibition is "odious," was evidently inspired by the liquor ring and their allies.

Of course, the usual desperate effort will be made by the whole liquor interest to repeal the Clark prohibitory law, and the coming Legislature to repeal the Clark law. If the combination can be seen with the jug brigade will help, but the attempt will be made, and it will prove been powerfully intrenched in this State.

The decisions of the United States Supreme Court was hailed with joy by all the friends of the liquor traffic, and congratulations were showered upon the heads of the judges, and the decisions were hailed as the death knell of prohibition. Well, the decisions were not so very bad, after all, and the

FARM AND GARDEN.

A HUMANE AND EASY WAY OF CATCHING CHICKENS.

Lessons Learned About Keeping Eggs at the London Dairy Show—Ventilation Arrangement for Tightening Wire Fences. A Crop of Promise.

Among the challenges for fame in the fruit line is the Jewell grape, a variety that originated ten years ago with Mr. John Barr of Leavenworth, Kan., but only recently put on the market. It is a seedling of the Delaware, which it resembles in some respects. The cut here gives, in which both bunch and berry are reduced in size one half, will give an idea of the form of the grapes and the manner in which they grow on the cluster.

THE JEWELL GRAPE.

These grapes are of a purplish color, with a juicy pulp of fine vinous flavor and seeds few and small. The skin of the grape is strong, though thin, and covered with an attractive bloom. It is claimed that the vines are not only healthy and productive but hardy and free from rot. It has been recommended by various state horticultural societies, among which are the Missouri, Illinois and Kansas societies. Good words have been spoken of it also by growers in Ohio. A very general impression prevails that the Jewell grape will succeed wherever the Concord thrives.

How to Keep Eggs.

At the recent London dairy show, as in previous seasons, the managers offered prizes for the best method of preserving eggs. Professor James Long, one of the judges, gives an account of the examination and conclusions made by the judges at the time of the exhibition. In this report are many opportune hints of value, some of which are here reproduced.

There were a very large number of entries, and after having seen every sample opened, there remained no question as to the perfection of preserving eggs in lime water and in salt, though several other articles were used for the purpose. A strange fact noted was that while many exhibitors employed both lime and salt, some articles were prepared in a different manner. In past years it was observed by the judges that eggs have repeatedly failed where they had been packed in salt, on account of their being imperfectly packed. As a result of the competition, the opinion is expressed that when salt is used it is advisable to obtain a box in which the bottom is screwed on. A layer of an inch of salt is followed by a layer of eggs packed close together, but not touching each other. These are again covered with a layer of dry salt well pressed in and followed by another layer of eggs, and so on until the top is reached, care being taken that the salt is perfectly dry throughout, and that it is thoroughly well pressed in the box. When the box is filled the lid is fixed, and when it is necessary to commence to use the eggs the bottom of the box is unscrewed, and the stalest taken out first.

Where lime is adopted as a preservative, a different course must be observed from that which is common. It has been the custom to recommend a thick mixture of lime and water, or lime cream, but it is found in practice that the eggs become firmly imbedded in the lime that it is frequently difficult, or even impossible, to take them out, and as there is no advantage in using a large quantity of lime, the water can take up only a certain proportion, it is found preferable to simply drop the eggs into lime water, such as would be made from a mixture of a good handful of lime to a gallon of water. In preserving it is better to use a large vessel than a small one, and all should if possible be of earthenware, the mouth being perfectly secure, and made airtight when the vessel is filled.

The numerous systems of preserving with mixtures containing salt lime besides tartaric acid and oil are all inferior to the methods referred to. One other system, however, appears to succeed. It is that of packing the eggs in sawdust in boxes which are turned once every week. In some instances sawdust is used for packing eggs which have been dipped in some preserving composition, but sifted sawdust they are preferred, a flavor is conveyed to the white corresponding to that of the material in which they are packed.

Preserving Posts.

Experiments conducted at the Iowa agricultural college, with a view to ascertaining the relative value of tar, crude petroleum and the two combined as preservatives when applied to fence posts, evidence upon the point that tar is valuable for all woods. Petroleum alone seems to have little or no effect. Tar applied alone made a better showing than where the posts were tarred after being painted with petroleum. Posts painted first and then tarred did not absorb the tar. When unpainted posts were immersed in the tar it was observed that the tar had penetrated the wood one-eighth or one-quarter of an inch, this forming a coat that could not scale. Petroleum did no good when applied alone and harm when preceding the use of tar. Tarring is estimated to cost two cents per post. The expense attending the use of tar appears to prove that the cost of application is greater than the profit where the application is to basswood and willow. What the profit will prove to be in the case of cedar and oak posts time enough has not yet elapsed to indicate.

Cost of Making Pork.

While it is not true that the bulk of corn fed to hogs does give a return of ten pounds of pork, live weight, to the bushel, it is established that a bushel of corn will make that much and more, if properly handled, and where it does, the following will serve as a basis for calculations, being approximately correct: Feeding corn worth 10 cents per bushel standing pork costing 1 1-2 cents per pound, worth 17 cents per bushel, 2 cents per pound, 25 cents per bushel, 2 1-2 cents per pound; 33 to 40 cents per bushel, 4 cents per pound; 50 cents per bushel, 5 cents per pound. Or, pork at 5 cents per pound, grass, given 50 cents per bushel for corn; at 4 cents per pound, grass, 33 to 40 cents per bushel for corn; and at 2 1-2 to 3 cents per pound, grass, pork given from 25 to 30 cents per bushel for corn.

French Duty on Fatables.

One of the hardest impositions in Paris is the octroi or duty on eatables and drinkables collected at the various barriers of gates. As each market cart passes through the fortifications in the morning it is stopped and a small tax charged on each and every article brought into Paris. The same system is vigorously practiced for all articles going out of Paris. The barriers are now composed of some dozen townships lying outside of the fortifications and numerous straggling villages which extend for miles around Paris. Each of these places has its own barrier and custom house. An English friend of mine, recently settled here, had a dreadful experience with this system yesterday. He lives at Connelieu a suburb some three miles out of the city proper, and to reach which he is obliged to pass through six different townships. He purchased at an English butcher's on Rue Sainte Honore a leg of Scotchdown mutton as a treat for his wife. He was stopped at each of the six custom houses on his way home and was obliged to pay a sum equivalent to ten cents every time on the unfortunate leg of mutton.—Paris Cor. New York World.

White Leghorns for Eggs.

Mr. Carman, editor of The Rural New Yorker, says: For eggs we are convinced that for this climate white Leghorns will give us the greatest weight of eggs the year round, and, if kept warm and clean, will prove the best winter layers. The egg of a Dorking will average as large as that of a Leghorn, and they will lay as many in hot weather. But they cannot stand our winters as well. Leghorns and Dorkings will stand all the food they will eat and not get too fat. The Brahmas, if over fed, will get too fat and stop laying. We have known four pounds of fat to be taken off a single Brahma hen.

American Horticultural Society.

The eighth meeting of the American Horticultural society is announced to take place at Riverside, Cal., beginning Feb. 14, 1888. Full particulars, giving railroad and hotel rates, will be given on application to W. H. Ragan, secretary, Greencastle, Ind. This society, of which Parker Earle, the well known horticulturist, of Cobden, Ills., is president, is doing a good work, and it is hoped that this meeting will be largely attended.

Seed Corn.

Waldo F. Brown, a practical Ohio farmer, claims that seed corn smoked brown as bacon grows stronger than that unsmoked. He would have seed corn cured in a smoke house, on lath racks, and the room made uncomfortably hot to stay in. He thinks corn cured by fire heat will not rot nearly so soon, when planted during cold, wet weather, as corn less thoroughly heated.

Wover Wire Fence Tightener.

Wire contracts in cold and expands in hot weather. Consequently in warm weather the panels of woven wire fences are liable to sag.

WIRE FENCE TIGHTENER.

The simple device illustrated on this page is suggested by Prairie Farmer. This can be readily made by sawing a slot in the end of a straight iron bar, just wide enough to admit the wire used on the fence, and long enough to cover the two strands of wire close to the post. All needed is to slip the opening over two wires where they fork and twist them a little. Two or three twists on each panel will straighten the fence up as good as new. Two forms of tighteners are shown.

One Way to Catch Chickens.

A plan used in cities by poultry dealers to catch stray chickens that escape from the coops is advised by Southern Cultivator as a decided improvement over the usual one of chasing the fowls all over the farm.

AN INGENIOUS CONTRIVANCE.

The improved plan calls for the ingenious contrivance shown in the cut, which is nothing more or less than a long slender pole, made in sections, and with a wooden handle on one end. With this little implement in the hand, one may slip up behind the chicken and before the bird knows what is going on one leg is caught securely in the crook at the end of the wire.

Agricultural News.

Another new cotton picking machine is attracting attention. This one is the invention of Mr. Groves and is reported to have given satisfaction in the vicinity of Galveston, Tex., where it has been put to field tests.

A big find of chestnuts in Virginia.

The King apple brings a high price in the leading markets of Great Britain.

The board of control of the New York State Experiment station, at a recent meeting, elected Peter Collier director, in place of Dr. E. Lewis Sturtevant, resigned.

According to Dr. Salmon there are two contagious diseases known as hog cholera. The first affects the bowels and is genuine hog cholera; the second affects the lungs and is swine plague. An animal may have both at once.

It is thought the tobacco crop will be one of the smallest on record. The cigar tobacco crop is uniformly reported safe in good condition, while the prospect is more unfavorable in Wisconsin.

The wool report prepared by the bureau of statistics estimates the wool clip for the year at $70,000,000, and it says that the number of sheep has increased since the last census from 35,000,000 to 40,000,000.

Save wood ashes for the garden.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. "We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine.	Our price for it and this paper together
Wide Awake	$1.50	$1.90
Young Folks' Journal	1	1.50
Pansy	1	1.50
Little Men and Women	1	1.50
Babyland	0.50	1.50

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want in a sample subscription, a trifle in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a dead-head. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother amuse even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

The Pansy and Wide Awake take the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Christopher Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"Library, study, playhouse, life at home and abroad, correspondence of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD

IS UNEQUALLED FOR

$1 PER YEAR

Eight Large Pages

Are filled every week with carefully collected news, correct market reports and miscellaneous interesting reading matter, combined THE WEEKLY HERALD is the cheapest paper in the United States. All the pictures excelling those of any other newspaper. New features are being added from time to time, and continually increasing the value of THE WEEKLY HERALD. SEND FOR A FREE SAMPLE COPY. Address subscriptions to the office of publication.

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD,
Chicago, Ill.

Chicago's Best Morning Newspaper is

THE DAILY HERALD,

8 PAGES FOR 2 CTS.

Sold by newsmen everywhere or sent by mail for 50 Cents per month. ADDRESS

THE CHICAGO HERALD,
CHICAGO, ILL.
JAMES W. SCOTT, Publisher.

ALL SHOULD TAKE IT!

That Best of Family Papers,
THE WEEKLY
Detroit Free Press

No other paper is so well adapted to the wants of the American People.

NINE REASONS WHY!

1.—Each issue contains a story by a first-class author—of solid reading matter. It is complete in the issue of one week.

2.—Its political department is the ablest and most editorial in the country. Its news department is the fullest and most complete. The Washington letter is the best. Its miscellaneous matter is the acme of the choicest.

3.—Its Agricultural department is the ablest and most practical in the country. Its Market reports are the most reliable.

4.—The Market page, for the farmer, is always a valuable feature.

5.—Its several new features is its splendid Agricultural Department, its well conducted and great value to Farmers, its Household department, its Young Folks' department, its department of public affairs, its editorial and miscellaneous articles are read with avidity and appreciative taste.

7.—Its Sunday issue is a marvel. It abounds in serial and short stories, sketches, poetry, wit and humor, pleasing miscellany, the thousandth part of which cannot be known except to readers of the paper.

8.—Those who take it regard it as an ever welcome visitor, and many of them say it is worth more to them than the price of the paper. We take pleasure in quoting from our thousands of testimonials.

9.—It gives more for the money than any other paper in the world.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

If you do not take it, SUBSCRIBE NOW.

A GREAT OFFER.

For $3.00 we can buy The Weekly Free Press and THE AMERICAN ANNOUNCEMENT, each for one year, and will send, free of postage, a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, containing 3000 pages, 1500 illustrations. The value of "Webster" is well known. The value of the Free Press is well known. Address

THE FREE PRESS CO.,
Detroit, Mich.

INVENTION has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that has recently placed in the country's hands the means of procuring patents at Low Rates. For thirty years, anyone can do the work either sex, young or old, no special ability required. Capital not needed, you are started free. Of this and other returns in clean money, I send you free something of great value and importance to you (as all will find who write for it). Many have made fortunes by following right paths, many have failed by taking the other. Grand gold free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Maine. 8th

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in the thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Many of these are in need of profitable work, that can be done by any one, young or old, and we send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, who will receive free, full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made fortunes in a six day day at this work. All succeed. 8th

FRED W. CROCKER,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
And Solicitor of Patents.
ROOM 32, 234 BROADWAY,
New York, N. Y.

BUY THE Detroit Evening News
10c A WEEK

Delivered at Your Home or place of Business, or sent by Mail.

It is Universally Conceded to be THE Newspaper of Michigan

Covering all the news of the day worth knowing in world, nation, locality, in the most readable form. Unequaled for the business man to save time, the family circle to keep in touch with the duties of the business leaver, the workingman to have profitable hours, and all making his newspaper reading liberalizing, elevating, and yet entertaining. In fact, making it a home paper, and for the sake of keeping abreast of the times with such other and interesting reading matter as may happen to give to the tired brain, wife an opportunity to enjoy herself while wearing the mental faculties of the family, and thus throughout the day, the family feel that it will be time enough for all of the people, advocating the greatest benefit to the greatest number, exposing recklessness in the interest of the general welfare, advocating all reforms that will benefit the masses, and generally contributing to the well being of the community in which it is entered, that the extra cent spent in getting the Evening News will become more and better apparent to them the longer they continue its acquaintance.

Nothing shall be permitted in its columns that can offend refined sense or mar in any way its purpose to be a welcome and welcomed visitor to the home circle of the family capable of reading, with the assurance that nothing baleful shall reach

THE EVENING NEWS is bound to keep at the front of the newspaper procession in Michigan, and "don't you forget it."

Subscribe with any newsdealer, or with the publisher, at 10c a week, by mail, $5 per year.

THE SUNDAY NEWS

Issued every Sunday morning is an 8-page paper, with as fine a "layout" of interesting matter, literary, social, political, and general, including the best of the current foreign and home topics, as any 8-page paper issued. Price, $1.50 per year.

THE ECHO
8 PAGES, 56 COLUMNS, $1 A YEAR.

Each issue replete with stories by well-known writers, sketches from life, and both instructive and entertaining miscellaneous matter.

The Michigan edition contains the cream of the news of the week, with special attention to news of the west and the blood market reports of Detroit, Chicago, Buffalo, Pittsburg and Boston.

Send for sample copy. Address

THE ECHO, Detroit, Mich.

Liberal Terms to Agents.

PENSIONS!

WILLIAM F. GROVER, late Assistant Chief of Bureau of Pensions, 1877 to 1885, Washington, and other competent attorneys, prosecute claims for pension and all other soldier claims.

His thorough experience in the Pension Office and in the prosecution of these claims renders his services especially valuable.

Special attention given to obtaining increase of pension for disabilities resulting from the war.

Co-operates with respectable attorneys throughout the country in cases which require attention at Washington.

Many pensions now allowed are entitled to increase and back pay. Many due on application. Many such cases are improperly rejected. Many claims are allowed at wrong rates.

No fee unless successful. Advice free.

Refers by permission to

Hon. S. W. Townsend, of Illinois.
Hon. E. Y. Ross, of Illinois.
Hon. F. N. Morrill, of Kansas.
Hon. Thos. Ryan, of Kansas.
Hon. D. B. Henderson, of Iowa.
Hon. Jas. S. Negley, of Penn.
Hon. J. S. Morrill, of Iowa.

Address,

WM. F. GROVER, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liminent

CURES

Colic, Scratches, Contracted Muscles,
Cholera Morbus, Sprains, Sprains, Stiffness, Lumbago, Strains, Rheumatism, Bruises, Swellings, Backache, Sore Throat, Old Sores, Galls, Worms, Scurvy, Fevers, Spavin, Spasms, Crocks, Fistula, Piles.

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY

Is offered for everybody's use by every wise housekeeper who knows what a good article is when she sees it. Its wonderful healing powers are found in its universal use by man and beast for nearly twenty years, and its use has been added to in case of accidents. It is now offered to the public with the confidence that it will do for them what it has done for others, and that it always can be relied on in case of emergency.

It needs it in case of emergency, if you have no horse or Boston terrier handy, to use it on yourself or neighbor without fear, as it heals it in six hours, in six minutes, if you use it as we direct.

Horsemen need it about the stable always. Anything which will do what we claim for the Mexican Liniment is valued at more than a dollar to them. In the pens it keeps Scours out of the Factory. Tax-collectors and sheriffs serve papers on it. Lots of accidents happen every day in the shop. Keep it handy. The Little Always in the Stable Is Best.

ARBUCKLES'
name on a package of COFFEE is a guarantee of excellence

ARIOSA
COFFEE is kept in all first-class stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COFFEE
is never good when exposed to the air. Alw ays buy this brand in hermetically sealed ONE POUND PACKAGES.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising can be placed for it in NEW YORK.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

Prospectus for 1888---Beautiful Christmas Number.

The holiday issue, now ready, is complete in itself, containing no serial matter. The cover is enriched by an ornamental border printed in gold. The price is as usual, 25 cents. It contains the most delightful stories, poems, and essays by distinguished writers, and superb illustrations.

Among the important articles to appear during the year 1888 are the following—Send for prospectus:

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON will contribute [illegible] each number, covering the interval [illegible] and in a familiar and personal way, which will form [illegible] between the author and his thousands of readers. In the first paper, entitled "A Chapter on Dreams," appearing in the January number, he relates incidentally, in connection with the general subject, some interesting facts concerning the origin of the new famous story "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS, by W. S. Chaplain, will be the first of an especially important and interesting series of papers on railways, their administrations and construction, including great engineering feats, famous tunnels and passes, and indeed, those branches of the subject which in this day engage the attention of the whole country. The illustrations which will accompany this series will be very elaborate, original, and beautiful. The authors and the titles of the future articles will be announced later.

DR. D. A. SARGENT'S papers on Physical Proportions and Physical Training will be continued by several of increasing interest, with as rich and unique illustrations as those which have already appeared.

ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of especial interest will be the Campaign of Wateeloo, by Count Henri de Lorenzo; "Paris," by H. H. Blasherfield; two papers by Edward L. Wilson, illustrated with recent Egyptian research; a further article by William F. Apthorp on a subject connected with the recent discussion on Wagner, and many others of equal interest; Professor Sharpless's articles on the Surface of the Earth and the titles of the future articles will be announced later. A great deal of [illegible] will be continued; and articles upon two of the most interesting groups of contemporary European writers will be accompanied by much [illegible] portrait illustrations.

ELECTRICITY in its various applications, [illegible] etc., will be subjects of another group of [illegible] articles of great interest to general readers. [illegible] peculiarly interesting time of his career, will [illegible] articles of great interest to musical readers. [illegible] portraits and drawings from Mendelssohn's own hand.

THE FICTION will be strong, not only in the work of well-known [illegible] ists and in those new authors, in addition to those already introduced, who have been so fortunate during its first year of publication. A serial novel, entitled "First Harvests," by Frederic J. Stimson, will be begun in the January number, and early in the year novelettes will be published by Henry James and H. C. Bunner. The short stories are of notable strength and freshness.

ILLUSTRATIONS.—The Magazine will show increased excellence in its illustrations. They will be more abundant and elaborate than ever. It is the intention of the publishers to represent in its pages the best work that is being done and to promote and foster the most skilful methods of wood engraving.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—To enable readers to possess the Magazine from the first number (January, 1887) the following inducements are offered:

A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887, [illegible] $4 50

A year's subscription and the numbers for 1886, bound in two volumes [illegible] 6 00 cloth, gilt top [illegible]

$3.00 A YEAR; 25 CENTS A NUMBER.

Remit by bank check or money order to

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, New York

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type and many of them handsomely illustrated. They are without question the cheapest literature ever issued, and should be in the hands of every person who can read. Ten cents is the usual price for any one of these books, but we are able to offer them at the following low prices, which are less than one-third the usual price at which they are here offered. Each one is complete in itself.

[illegible] "Lucille." By Owen Meredith. "Ivanhoe." By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake." By Sir Walter Scott. "Marmion." By Sir Walter Scott. "Paul and Virginia." "Evangeline." "Enoch Arden." "Snow Bound." "Tom Brown's School Days." "The Deserted Village." "Sketch Book." "Knickerbocker." "Vicar of Wakefield." "Irving's Life of Washington." "Irving's Life of Mahomet." "Irving's Life of Columbus." "Irving's Life of Goldsmith." "Irving's Life of Mary and Washington." "Irving's Life of Columbus." "Irving's Life of Goldsmith." "Irving's Life of Mary." "Irving's Life of

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

PERISHED BY SCORES.

Terrible Losses of Life in the Recent Blizzards in the Northwest.

Six Children of One Family Frozen to Death While Returning from School.

Probability That the List of Victims Will Aggregate More Than a Hundred.

The terrible storm which swept over the Northwest last week was the worst blizzard experienced since 1873. The victims of its fury are counted by the scores. From Dakota Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, and Montana come pitiful stories of suffering and death from the icy blast which swept down from the regions of Boreas. The wild blow came the early of fifty miles an hour, and the snow, like so powder, was hurled along by the gale, which became at times of such fast distract could not be seen. A man's voice could not be heard six feet from his ear. It was full of snow as fine as flour, and the roaring of the wind and the darkness caused by so much snow in the air made the scene the most dismal, drear and forsaken that man ever looked upon. Every railroad in Dakota and Minnesota and many in Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota were blocked. Telegraph wires everywhere were down, and it was not until last night that the awful reality of the storm became known. The following are lists of deaths so far known, while fifty more persons are missing:

In Dakota—Ole Lofgren, at Hitchcock; a boy at Ipswich; two sons of William Iryer, at Raymond; two Mitchell children, near Clark; Carrie Adams, at Spink; Frederick Curtis, at Delamere; Mr. Davis and son, W. B. Headly, at Burbank; Rowland Chambers, T. B. Gellerson, and James Newcomb's son, at Ipswich; Mr. Hoxie and two children, near Wilson; Joe Vygl, Mrs. Jacobs, Adam Geiser, and J. W. Jodice, at Bangor; Mr. Gaskill, Jr., and Joseph Anderson, at Mitchell; four farmers, two bridgewater men, Emil Gilman, and Oscar Merriman and son, at Bridgewater; Jacob Gerber, Guide G. Grundsteen, three unknown men, near Canistota; Mr. Hoxie and son, three Crystal people, two Wakonda men, Jacob Kruhl, an unknown teacher, J. Paige, at Dowdle; Peter Palynka, near Lesterville; a White Lake man, four school children, James Smith and two others, near Ethan.

In Minnesota—Miss Lee, at Lavoma; Mr. Rankison; Ole A. Eggs at Albert Lea.

In Iowa—Three children of Mr. Lessing, Inwood; two boys; an unknown man at Sioux City.

In Nebraska—Child of John Pellinger at Dunlap; Mr. Dunn, at Bancroft; Mr. Lewis and daughter, at Oakdale; Mrs. Fitzgerald and John Sparks of Cuge County; Emil Grossman of Fort; Mr. Chapman and her two little grandchildren at Stuart; Mr. Mason near Stuart.

In Montana—Mathew near Hamilton; a child near Stevensville. Others are reported lost, and a number of cases were frozen feet and hands are reported.

In Montana—Patrick Hanley at Maryville; William Overman at Belgrade.

In Kansas—James Kennedy, in Sherman County.

The following special dispatch from Huron, D. T., tells a graphic story of thrilling scenes in Southern Dakota:

As the express rounded the curve two cars left the rails and went crashing into the water-tank house, demolishing it. In the house proper, section-hands were eating dinner. Fourteen of them were killed outright. Others were taken to the section-hands and was killed, together with William Taylor, one of the foreman. The car that crashed into the tank house knocked the foundation out, letting the tank down on the track. Engineer Sewell, through the fog, saw the danger and doing fearful work within. The next car behind telescoped the one ahead of it, adding to the havoc. The killed and wounded were mostly in these two cars. Fifty persons were killed almost instantly, and between forty and fifty more or less seriously injured.

A NORWEGIAN special says that "Mrs. Eunice Cottrell, who was known throughout North Stonington as 'Aunt Eunice,' died Monday at the age of 115 years on the Pequot Indian Reservation, in the wild country near Lantern Hill. 'Aunt Eunice' was a great grandchild of King Philip, and at the time of her death she could count descendant of the Pequot Indians."

IN the case of Miss Campbell against Mr. Senator Aldrich for a breach of promise, a jury at New York rendered a verdict giving the plaintiff $45,000 damages. The court also granted the prosecution's request for a new trial. The defendant's counsel at once made a motion to set the verdict aside was rejected, and the case probably will be appealed.

FULLER, the man who murdered Archbishop Sepicers in Alaska last year, has been found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1,000.

THE WESTERN STATES.

A DISPATCH from Manchester, Green Lake County, Wis., announces the death of Michael Kroeger, the oldest person in Wisconsin. He was born in Germany 114 years ago.

THE Wisconsin Supreme Court, through Justice Cassidy, in the case of Paul Gruhlkan, of Milwaukee, appealed on a writ of error, has affirmed the judgment of the Milwaukee Municipal Court, and directed the execution of the sentence. By the judgment of the Supreme Court Grothlan will be found to go to jail for one year, according to the decision of the trial court.

HENRY SCAMPY, who murdered Miss Peck, near Ashland, Wis., on Christmas, in the 13th inst. In his speech from the scaffold the condemned man said that Elison T. Smith instigated the crime, and had also offered him $500 to kill Abram Leonard, Schmidt's father, it is said, committed a murder in Bavaria, Germany, where he now lives.

GENERAL reports from Dakota show the recent storm to have been the worst ever experienced in the Territory. Many persons are missing in different parts of Dakota and Minnesota, who started for their homes. An Omaha dispatch says:

The indications are that the present blizzard has resulted in more damage, suffering, and loss of life than any which has visited the state for a number of years." Two stock trains arrived at St. Joseph, Mo., with every animal frozen to death. The storm was heavy at Superior, Wis., that some of the inhabitants had to tunnel out of their dwellings.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

CONSIDERABLE interest has been aroused in the South by some statistics which have been collected, showing that Southern and Western lands are fast passing into the hands of foreign and Eastern money-lenders. At Atlanta (Ga.) special says:

In Georgia these companies have placed many millions of dollars, loading mortgages on farms and plantations. Much of the money paid out by the farmer mortgagees. Capital of this kind is still being poured into the South, notwithstanding the fact that Judge Speer, of the United States Court, has decided that the interest charged by the loan companies usurious and illegal. The syndicates are principally foreign capitalists, and they have such a hold in the South that they hope to reverse Judge Speer's decision. The borrowers have already lost interest payments to lapse, hoping that Judge Speer's decision will be reversed, and they will not be forced to pay either principal or interest. In the Southwest there is, perhaps, not less than $250,000,000 invested in this way in Kansas alone over $9,000,000 has been placed.

A ROCKVILLE (Tenn.) special reports the death in that city of Aunt Mary Young, colored, at the age of 115. Records of the family to which she belonged show that she was born at Fairfax Court House, Va., in 1775. She retained her mental faculties up to a few days before her death.

THE war of extermination goes bravely on between the McCoys of Pike County, Kentucky, and the Hatfields of Logan County, West Virginia. A telegram from Catlettsburg, Ky., says:

As soon as the last and rites of the late butchery were over the McCoys organized a posse and visited the Hatfield settlement in West Virginia, for the purpose of annihilating the Hatfields root and branch. They succeeded in killing one on sight, and then fled back to the woods to meditate a few moments. They succeeded in killing Jim Hatfield, the Hatfield gang was soon upon them, and a fierce battle was fought. After the smoke had cleared away it was found that the Hatfield party had lost two men killed, and their number was thinned, while none of the McCoy posse were hurt. These known to be killed were Johnson Hatfield, Thomas Chase, and John Vance. The authorities are now in pursuit of the posse, and if they are caught until one side or the other is completely exterminated, so one in authority seems to care.

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

A DUBUQUE dispatch says: "Out of 100 interrogations on the choice for President and other questions of National and State interest, sent out to Republican officials and leading politicians in Iowa, seventy replies have been received. These replies are conservative, establish the fact that Iowa's choice for President is Senator Allison. He leads the list in a handsome majority, as the first and also as the second choice for President. All of the State officials, from Governor Larrabee down, name Allison as their first choice, except Auditor Sims, and he for the nominee of the convention. For Vice President, Harrison, of Indiana and Hawley, of Connecticut are the favorites, Allison being third. To the question, 'Do you favora protective tariff?' all answer yes, with four exceptions. As to national prohibition, 37 favored it, 25 opposed it, and 10 expressed no opinion, thirty four of the entire number opposed the continuance of prohibition in Iowa."

THE Bitter educational bill will doubtless have the same experience in the Congress that it had in the last, says a Washington special. There is a large majority in the Senate in favor of its passage, but when it reaches the House it will unfortunately be voted down, if it is not smothered, as it was before, in the Committee on Education. That committee was made up to defeat the bill, for the chairman and a majority of the members are decidedly opposed to it.

THE Louisiana Democratic State convention in session at Baton Rouge on the first ballot nominated Gen. Francis T. Nichols for Governor. The convention has been in session four days. The nomination of Gen. Nichols is a victory for what is known as the Reform Democrats over the regular State administration faction. The caucus over the nomination had been carried on with increasing bitterness since June, and it was thought would result in a split and two nominations; but State administration Democrats accepted their defeat. Gen. Nichols the nominee, was a graduate of West Point, and commanded at one time Jackson's Stonewall brigade, and lost an arm and a leg in the Confederate service. He was elected Governor in 1876, and got the office, although the State was counted for Hayes.

THE FOREIGN BUDGET.

A CABLE dispatch from London states that—

Thousands of persons packed Fleet street, attracted by a public notice that the great Parnell forgery case would be continued. A special dispatch, which contained the name of the person whose members had all their wits about them, was read to the crowd. It was to the effect that Pigott, who was known throughout North Stonington as 'Aunt Eunice,' died Monday at the age of 115 years on the Pequot Indian Reservation, in the wild country near Lantern Hill. 'Aunt Eunice' was a great grandchild of King Philip, and at the time of her death she could count descendant of the Pequot Indians."

IN the case of Miss Campbell against Mr. Senator Aldrich for a breach of promise, a jury at New York rendered a verdict giving the plaintiff $45,000 damages. The court also granted the prosecution's request for a new trial. The defendant's counsel at once made a motion to set the verdict aside was rejected, and the case probably will be appealed.

FULLER, the man who murdered Archbishop Sepicers in Alaska last year, has been found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1,000.

THE WESTERN STATES.

A DISPATCH from Manchester, Green Lake County, Wis., announces the death of Michael Kroeger, the oldest person in Wisconsin. He was born in Germany 114 years ago.

THE Wisconsin Supreme Court, through Justice Cassidy, in the case of Paul Gruhlkan, of Milwaukee, appealed on a writ of error, has affirmed the judgment of the Milwaukee Municipal Court, and directed the execution of the sentence. By the judgment of the Supreme Court Grothlan will be found to go to jail for one year, according to the decision of the trial court.

HENRY SCAMPY, who murdered Miss Peck, near Ashland, Wis., on Christmas, in the 13th inst. In his speech from the scaffold the condemned man said that Elison T. Smith instigated the crime, and had also offered him $500 to kill Abram Leonard. Schmidt's father, it is said, committed a murder in Bavaria, Germany, where he now lives.

GENERAL reports from Dakota show the recent storm to have been the worst ever experienced in the Territory. Many persons are missing in different parts of Dakota and Minnesota, who started for their homes. An Omaha dispatch says:

The indications are that the present blizzard has resulted in more damage, suffering, and loss of life than any which has visited the state for a number of years." Two stock trains arrived at St. Joseph, Mo., with every animal frozen to death. The storm was heavy at Superior, Wis., that some of the inhabitants had to tunnel out of their dwellings.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

CONSIDERABLE interest has been aroused in the South by some statistics which have been collected, showing that Southern and Western lands are fast passing into the hands of foreign and Eastern money-lenders. At Atlanta (Ga.) special says:

In Georgia these companies have placed many millions of dollars, loading mortgages on farms and plantations. Much of the money paid out by the farmer mortgagees. Capital of this kind is still being poured into the South, notwithstanding the fact that Judge Speer, of the United States Court, has decided that the interest charged by the loan companies usurious and illegal. The syndicates are principally foreign capitalists, and they have such a hold in the South that they hope to reverse Judge Speer's decision. The borrowers have allowed their interest payments to lapse, hoping that Judge Speer's decision will be reversed, and they will not be forced to pay either principal or interest. In the Southwest there is, perhaps, not less than $250,000,000 invested in this way in Kansas alone over $9,000,000 has been placed.

A ROCKVILLE (Tenn.) special reports the death in that city of Aunt Mary Young, colored, at the age of 115. Records of the family to which she belonged show that she was born at Fairfax Court House, Va., in 1775. She retained her mental faculties up to a few days before her death.

THE war of extermination goes bravely on between the McCoys of Pike County, Kentucky, and the Hatfields of Logan County, West Virginia. A telegram from Catlettsburg, Ky., says:

As soon as the last and rites of the late butchery were over the McCoys organized a posse and visited the Hatfield settlement in West Virginia, for the purpose of annihilating the Hatfields root and branch. They succeeded in killing one on sight, and then fled back to the woods to meditate a few moments. They succeeded in killing Jim Hatfield, the Hatfield gang was soon upon them, and a fierce battle was fought. After the smoke had cleared away it was found that the Hatfield party had lost two men killed, and their number was thinned, while none of the McCoy posse were hurt. These known to be killed were Johnson Hatfield, Thomas Chase, and John Vance. The authorities are now in pursuit of the posse, and if they are caught until one side or the other is completely exterminated, so one in authority seems to care.

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

A DUBUQUE dispatch says: "Out of 100 interrogations on the choice for President and other questions of National and State interest, sent out to Republican officials and leading politicians in Iowa, seventy replies have been received. These replies conservatively establish the fact that Iowa's choice for President is Senator Allison. He leads the list in a handsome majority, as the first and also as the second choice for President. All of the State officials, from Governor Larrabee down, name Allison as their first choice, except Auditor Sims, and he for the nominee of the convention. For Vice President, Harrison, of Indiana and Hawley, of Connecticut are the favorites, Allison being third. To the question, 'Do you favora protective tariff?' all answer yes, with four exceptions. As to national prohibition, 37 favored it, 25 opposed it, and 10 expressed no opinion, thirty four of the entire number opposed the continuance of prohibition in Iowa."

THE Bitter educational bill will doubtless have the same experience in the Congress that it had in the last, says a Washington special. There is a large majority in the Senate in favor of its passage, but when it reaches the House it will unfortunately be voted down, if it is not smothered, as it was before, in the Committee on Education. That committee was made up to defeat the bill, for the chairman and a majority of the members are decidedly opposed to it.

THE Louisiana Democratic State convention in session at Baton Rouge on the first ballot nominated Gen. Francis T. Nichols for Governor. The convention has been in session four days. The nomination of Gen. Nichols is a victory for what is known as the Reform Democrats over the regular State administration faction. The caucus over the nomination had been carried on with increasing bitterness since June, and it was thought would result in a split and two nominations; but State administration Democrats accepted their defeat. Gen. Nichols the nominee, was a

THE PACIFIC RAILROADS.

A Story of Jobbery and Robbery Not Fully Revealed by the Official Investigations.

How the Schemers Lined Their Pockets at the Expense of the Government.

A Plot to Defraud the Government of Its Dues—Statement of Charles Francis Adams.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

The majority and minority reports of the Pacific Railroad Commissioners, starting as they are in their arraignment of the men that have mismanaged and wrecked these corporations, fail far short of revealing the actual condition of affairs. The history of both the Central and Union Pacific Companies is full of notables from the start. It may almost be said that they were conceived in sin and born in iniquity. The original idea of building a railroad across the American land of the continent, from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean, was a grand one, and if it had been left to the honest men that projected it it would have been carried out and have been delivered many years. As originally planned and surveyed, the Pacific Road was divided into two sections—the first, the Union Pacific, to run direct from Omaha to Ogden; the second, the Central Pacific, from Ogden to San Francisco. The company was to have, and there and the results too uncertain to attract private capital, the government, and Congress to insure construction, voted aid at an average of $32,000 a mile. That was found soon ascertained that this would amount to more than the actual cost of building, and began to flock in, vultures like, to feast on the carcass that was left to be devoured.

The history of the Union Pacific from its inception is peculiarly interesting, and is far refer of the operations of both sections of the Pacific Railroad. Credit Mobilier, and showed his hand in the Pacific Railroad was divided into two sections—the first, the Union Pacific, to run direct from Omaha to Ogden; the second, the Central Pacific, from Ogden to San Francisco. The company was to have, and there and the results too uncertain to attract private capital, the government, and Congress to insure construction, voted aid at an average of $32,000 a mile. That was found soon ascertained that this would amount to more than the actual cost of building, and began to flock in, vultures like, to feast on the carcass that was left to be devoured.

The history of the Union Pacific from its inception is peculiarly interesting, and is far refer of the operations of both sections of the Pacific Railroad. Credit Mobilier, and showed his hand in the

AUSTIN CORBIN.

President Corbin's refusal to see the committee of the strikers, his abusive answers to the business people of Schuylkill County that he will not treat with any body of men as a labor organization, are all looked upon as evidence that he has decided to defy the public. The company's scrip is now daily, and many of the dealers are entirely out and can not supply the demands of their customers."

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

CATTLE—Steers	$4.00	$6.00
HOGS—Live	4.25	4.80
WHEAT—No. 1 White	.90	.91
No. 2 Red	.90	.91
CORN—No. 2	.49	.49
OATS—White	.40	.46
PORK—Mess	15.62	$15.75

CHICAGO.

CATTLE—Choice to Prime Steers	$5.25	$5.75
Good to Choice	4.80	5.20
Common to Fair	3.50	4.25
HOGS—Shipping Grades	4.30	4.50
FLOUR—Winter Wheat	4.75	6.25
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	.91	.92
No. 3 Spring	.83	.85
OATS—No. 2	.31½	.32
RYE—No. 2	.57½	.58
BARLEY—No. 2	.74	.76
CHEESE—Full Cream, new	.10	.12
BUTTER—Choice	.27	.32
POTATOES—Choice per bu	.45	.50
PORK—Mess	15.15	15.20

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—Cash	.78	.78½
CORN—No. 3	.49	.49½
OATS—No. 2	.32½	.32½
RYE—No. 1	.57½	.58
PORK—Mess	15.00	$15.50

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—Cash	.87	.88
CORN—Cash	.49½	.49½
OATS—No. 1 White	.36	.36½
DETROIT.
WHEAT—No. 1 White	.90	.90
CORN—No. 2	.50	.50½
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.90	.91
CORN—No. 2	.51	.51½
OATS—No. 2 Mixed	.35½	.36
RYE—No. 2	.58	.59
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.87½	.88
CORN—No. 2 Yellow	.47½	.48
OATS—No. 2	.31½	.31½
BUFFALO.
CATTLE	5.00	$5.50
HOGS—Live	4.50	4.60
WHEAT—No. 1 Hard	1.00½	1.01
CORN—No. 1 Yellow	.50	.50½
INDIANAPOLIS.
BEEF CATTLE	4.00	$5.25
HOGS	4.00	4.50
SHEEP	3.75	$4.75
WHEAT—No. 2 Red	.90	.91
CORN—No. 2	.49	.49½
OATS—Mixed	.34½	.35
EAST LIBERTY.
CATTLE—Prime	5.00	$5.25
Fair	4.50	4.75
COMMON	3.50	4.00
HOGS	4.50	4.60
SHEEP	4.50	$5.00

JOHN SHERMAN.

His War-Tariff Speech Answered by the Chicago Tribune.

A Strong Editorial from the Leading Republican Journal of the Northwest.

The burden of John Sherman's speech on the tariff was, "No reduction of war-tax burdens on the people of the Western states, lest the planned, robbed, overcharged lief to the planned, robbed, overcharged Western farmers." To avoid any reduction of taxation Sherman has innumerable schemes for dissipating surplus revenues and making continued high taxation necessary—premature bond redemption, increased expenditures for coast defenses, indirect criminate pensioning, refunding of internal revenue and a liberal Union Army Marshal. Laid on the table, Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, from the Committee on Commerce, reported the Hiles Educational bill, after a discussion of various measures the senate was in executive session, and Mr. Edmunds from the Judiciary Committee, made an adverse report on the bill introduced by Mr. Ingalls, of Kansas, to authorize judges of the Supreme Court, while Mr. Pugh, in behalf of a minority of the committee, submitted a favorable report. Mr. Edmunds also reported from the Judiciary Committee the nomination of William P. Wharton, of Pennsylvania, to be Assistant Secretary of State, and after a long discussion in favorable report on the nomination of Dr. J. L. M. Curry, of Virginia, to be Minister to Spain, reports were placed on the calendar. In the House Mr. Randall, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported the Constitution of the United States, and the Senate Committee on Finance, reported a bill to amend the internal revenue laws, and Mr. Morrison, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported a bill to amend the internal revenue laws. Mr. Randall, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported a bill to amend the internal revenue laws.

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - - MICHIGAN.

"Luke Sharp," well known to the readers of the Detroit Free Press, is to begin a new story next week, entitled "James and I."

ROSCOE CONKLING's repudiation of Blaine, and approval of Cleveland and the administration, following so soon after that of James Russell Lowell, is causing quite a ripple of excitement in political circles.

The Cincinnatti Weekly Enquirer is just the paper every thoughtful reader should take. It is a large paper, containing all the current news of the world. In politics it supports the administration and advocates the reduction of the tariff to the actual requirements of the government.

The Blizzard in Dakota.

Extract from a letter written by Ralph Enos, now teaching school at Scotland, Dakota, dated Sunday, January 15th 1888: For two weeks, blizzard has followed blizzard in quick succession, and not a day has passed without the government thermometer registering 25° below zero. This morning at 8 o'clock it was 30°, and tonight my thermometer says 29° below. Thursday forenoon it seemed as though it was going to be pleasant, it seemed warm and bright. At 1 o'clock I went over to school without mittens or overcoat. In fifteen minutes the worst blizzard of recent years came sweeping down from the north west. Snow, fine as sand, filled the air, making it extremely difficult to breathe. Though I forbade any teacher allowing a pupil—old or young—to leave without their parents, yet several who left in charge of parents lost their way right in town, and narrowly escaped freezing. So fine had the day opened that many farmers, glad of an opportunity of getting out of doors, came to town only to perish on their way home. Though it is impossible to get but the most meager reports from the country, as no one has dared to venture out of doors, yet it is known that over forty persons, men and women, perished from the cold in this county alone, and besides, the prairie is dotted with the frozen forms of little school children who had been allowed by foolish teachers to leave for home. You have no idea,—can have none,—of the terribleness of the storm, right here in town. It was absolutely impossible to see as in the blackest night, and to be on the prairie meant death. This for example. A man and wife and child had been to town and started home just before the storm came up. After having gone as far as he thought it was to his place, and while suffering intensely from the cold, he turned his horses heads into what-he-thought was a hay stack. They covered their heads with robes, hoping to live till the storm had spent its fury. In the morning persons and horses were found frozen stiff. All the farmers houses are banked up high with straw or hay, and this man had run his horses' noses right into the straw on the side of his own house and had died not ten feet from his own door. It is supposed that he was so numb with cold that he could not leave the sled. To-day, not far from town, were found a team and sled, and in the sled were a trawveling man and driver, all frozen. Tonight, at the edge of town, leaning against a wire fence was found the body of a boy. These are some of the tales of horror which we hear on every side. In order to assure myself that all was well with my children, I left the brick building about 4 o'clock and went over to the wooden building only half a block away and in returning a wire fence alone served me from wandering out on the prairie to death. As it was, when I got to the brick building again I was completely exhausted. Forty miles of railroad on each side of us are buried 10 feet under the snow. No mails since Wednesday, and none probably until next Wednesday.

Cooking to Take the Stump.

The New York Times says it is authentically reported that Roscoe Conkling has declared to some of his friends that if the next presidential campaign is fought on the tariff issue between Blaine and Cleveland, he is prepared to take the stump for Cleveland, believing that the republican party cannot, without violating its pledges and bringing reproach upon its name, refuse to reduce the taxes which weigh so heavily on producers and consumers. Mr. Conkling's further credited with the remark that president Cleveland's last message was one of the wisest, boldest, and most patriotic evidences of statesmanship of recent years.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

Grand Rapids has 160 lawyers.

Muskegon wants $500,000 for her harbor improvement and public building.

In 1880 4,300 barrels of salt were manufactured in Michigan; in 1887 the salt product of the state was above 4,000,000 barrels.

The Labor convention at Ishpeming last week nominated Bartley Breen as a candidate for congress, to fill vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Moffatt.

According to the Marquette Mining Journal, the total gross output of ore in the Lake Superior region in 1887 was 4,667,502 tons, an increase of more than a million tons over last year.

The veneering company are skidding logs within one mile of the Charlevoix county line. They intend next year to reach over into Charlevoix and Emmet counties for timber. They have now over 1,000,000 feet of elm in yard at Wolverine and on skids.—Cheboygan Tribune.

The report of the Cleveland committee recommends the location of a fog signal on the west side of Beaver Island, Lake Michigan, and the establishment of a light and fog signal on Squaw Island, one of the Beaver Island group, the establishment of a light on the White Shoals, at the north end of Lake Michigan; the removal of the McGulpin's point light at the Straits of Mackinac to old Mackinac Point, and the establishment of a fog signal there; a fog signal at Twin River Point.

There are now under contract at the shipyards of the lakes sixty boats, all but five of which will be propelled by steam. Seventeen of the steamboats will be made entirely of steel, and their average valuation is about $250,000. The total valuation of the new tonnage under contract is $8,325,000, the boats representing an aggregate carrying capacity of 108,525 gross tons. The new boats under contract at this time a year ago numbered thirty one. Their valuation aggregated $6,074,000 and their combined carrying capacity was 65,780 gross tons. Thus it will be seen that the tonage which will be built this winter is about double that of a year ago.—Sault St. Marie Democrat.

A Noted Preacher's Method.

I take a great deal of outdoor exercise, either by walking or in a carriage. I retire early and rise early, invariably at the same hours every day. I indulge in light gymnastic exercises almost daily, and bathe three times a week during the summer in water that is comfortable to the feelings, and twice a week during the cold weather. I believe in the old saying that "cleanliness is next to godliness," for without it and attention to diet, it is of little use to try to keep from disease. There is nothing like a correct diet and a well regulated general regimen. Considering the many dangers to which the average man is exposed, it is surprising that he should remain in health so long as he does. But parental nature frequently repairs the injury, unknown to him. I believe that if a man eats sparingly and drinks little, he is sure of bringing no ill health upon himself, and that a moderate supply of food nourishes the body best. The quantity of food which nature really requires for her support is small, and he that lives temperately and drinks moderately at each meal, as Hippocrates says, stands fair to enjoy sprightliness, vivacity and freedom of spirits.—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

Disease Which Follow Anger.

In diseases of the heart, anger is a potent agency of evil. If death does not occur from a sudden, intense shock, the organ is enfeebled by every fit of passion. In persons of a plethoric habit and given to excesses in eating, and in those in whom the seats of the blood vessels of the brain have been weakened by degenerative changes, anger increases the danger of apoplexy. A variety of other diseases is liable to follow immoderate anger; among them may be mentioned paralysis, epilepsy and hysteria. Anger, or violent or unpermurable temper, as it is sometimes expressed, holds, according to the reports of the different lunatic asylums both in Europe and America, a prominent place among the causes of insanity.—Good Housekeeping.

The Throat is often diseased on account of Catarrh, producing Dryness and a Constant Desire to Cough. That Tickling Sensation and Hoarseness that is so common to public singers and speakers especially is relieved at once by Hamilton's Cough Troches which are prepared from the most approved formula. Do not wait till Acute Bronchitis or even Consumption takes firm hold of you. Price only 25c per box. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Worth Knowing.

Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla., was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing cough and running into consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced to death, had difficulty in breathing, and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and found immediate relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles found himself well, and has had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show as grand a record of cures as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Guaranteed to do just what is claimed for it. Trial bottles free at Dr. Crouter's drug store. 4

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 20.—A pile of 150 note books, nearly three feet high and two feet square, was in the room of the official reporters of the house debates. The sessions of the house during the present Congress have been so short and infrequent that the reporters have had a comparatively easy time. Now, however, as the house has commenced work in earnest, the pile of note books will soon be used up. Mr. John H. White, one of the official stenographers, called attention yesterday to a change in the house proceedings which his long experience had led him to regard with interest. "Years ago," he said, "the floor of the house was the forum of the country, the great debating ground where the statesmen eloquently and vigorously opposed or defended important measures. Of late years this has changed. Nearly all the work of the house is now done in the committee rooms and the house with rare exceptions acquiesces in the report of the committee without question. In the senate it is different. That body has now become the debating society where long speeches, carefully prepared, are the rule."

The house has passed without any opposition the bill which permits printing on second, third or fourth-class matter in the mails, but there must be left on the address side or face of the package a space of at least three and one-half inches in length and two and one-half inches in width, in which nothing shall be placed but the address of the person to whom the matter is sent.

The wool men have, after a week's wrangle here at the capitol, agreed upon a tariff schedule that will satisfy them. It raises the price of every article used by the people into which, as the schedule says, "the wool or hair of any animal enters." A Brussels carpet is to be taxed forty cents a yard and 50 per cent ad valorum. Ready-made clothing, clothing and wearing apparel of every description, including hosiery, gloves, mittens, boots and shoes, and all articles made up in whole or in part of felt, or any other woven fabric, not specially enumerated, 50 per cent ad valorum. Oil, castor, 6 cents a gallon. Linseed, 3 cents a gallon. Flaxseed, 1 cent a bushel. Sugar, 1 cent a pound. Molasses, 2 cents a gallon. Salt, 12 cents a bushel. Cotton, 1 cent a pound. Pickles, 10 cents a gallon. Potatoes, 10 cents a bushel. Onions, 10 cents a bushel. Beans, 10 cents a bushel. Peas, 10 cents a bushel. Barley, 10 cents a bushel. Oats, 10 cents a bushel. Corn, 10 cents a bushel. Wheat, 10 cents a bushel. Rye, 10 cents a bushel. Buckwheat, 10 cents a bushel. Potato starch, 1 cent a pound. Starch, 1 cent a pound. Cotton seed, 10 cents a bushel. Cotton seed oil, 1 cent a gallon. Cotton seed meal, 1 cent a pound. Cotton seed hulls, 1 cent a pound. Hops, 1 cent a pound. Hay, 50 cents a ton. Hemp, 1 cent a pound. Flax, 1 cent a pound. Flaxseed, 1 cent a bushel. Flaxseed meal, 1 cent a pound. Flaxseed oil, 1 cent a gallon. Cotton

OVERHEARD.

BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.

The thunder our hands in blindness spin
No self-made law of man weaves in;
The alchemy of the unseen powers
Works out a pattern not as ours.

Ah! small the choice of him who sings
What sound shall leave the smithy rings;
Vain hands and clothes the hand of art;
The singer is the instrument of a part.

The wind harp chooses not the tone
That through its trembling strings is blown;
The patient organ cannot guess
What hand its passive keys shall press.

Through wish, resolve, and act, our will
Is swayed by undreamed forces still;
And no man measures in advance
His strength with untried circumstance.

As streams take hue from shade and sun,
As rains the tire his song must run;
But, glad or sad, to this good end
God sings that very song notes may lend!

CONTRIBUTING TO THE EBOE INDIAN FUND.

"So you would give us nothin' for the subscription?" said Mrs. Biggard, folding her mittened hands sanctimoniously upon her lap. "Remember, Mary Hay, 'he who giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord.'"

"Yes, I know, Mrs. Biggard," said Mary Hay, with the color coming and going on her cheek, while a sense of the ridiculous strove within her against a meek, contentment of the sobering of her face. "We have just quoted; but the farm hasn't done as well this year as we expected it to do, and until all the outstanding debts are paid I think it would be scarcely fair to the lodge myself in the luxury of subscribing to the 'Fund for Evangelizing the Eboe Indians.'"

Mrs. Biggard clasped the little red morocco subscription-book with a clicking sound.

"Hump!" said she, "why don't you say at once that you had rather spend your money in navy-blue silk gowns and fancy bonnets?"

Mary reddened to the roots of her hair.

"Perhaps you are not aware, Mrs. Biggard," said she, "that the navy-blue silk was mother's old one dyed at home, and that the bonnet was a present from my aunt in Springfield."

All very well to talk," sputtered Mrs. Biggard, shaking out her multitudinous flounces. "But I know that Mr. Mildmay will be powerfully disappointed. He wants something besides empty talk from the leader of his flock."

Once more the rosebud color suffused Mary's cheeks.

"My duty is my duty," she said, "and I cannot swerve from it to please anyone, not even Mr. Mildmay."

And the sensible Mrs. Biggard went straight to the rectory and told Mr. Mildmay "that Mary Hay said she wasn't going to subscribe to the fund to please Mr. Mildmay nor any one else."

Mr. Mildmay listened in silence, but he was conscious of a pang of inward annoyance.

He had scarcely expected so cut a message from Mary Hay, in whose dove-like blue eyes he had so often read the light of sympathy, whose dewy-soft head reminded him of the beautiful "Mater Dolorosa."

"So different from my Rosy, now, ain't she?" said Mrs. Biggard. "Why, Rosy she's fairly walked through the sides of a pair o' boots a solicitin' subscriptions for the fund. There never was nobody so devout as she is. And she wants to know—my Rosy does—whether old man and Almiry wasn't come over to the rectory an' put up the parlor curtains for you this afternoon?"

"Thank you!" said Mr. Mildmay, with something of an embarrassed air, "but I dare say that Bridget will do very well."

"Humph! trouble Miss Zermiah, then."

"Oh, it won't be no trouble at all," said Mrs. Biggard.

And off she went to give the needed directions to Zermiah and Almira, her sallow, middle-aged daughters.

"I do feel such a motherly sympathy for a bachelder clergyman!" said she. "There ain't no more helpless creature in the face of the earth."

Mary Hay, busy at her work in the farmhouse kitchen, was puzzling her brains to think of some possible or impossible plan to get a little money to help kind Mr. Mildmay's plan along.

"I wish I could spare something," she said, "if it was only a dollar.

"I wish you could, my dear!" said gentle Mrs. Hay, who had overheard the eager words.

"Mother," cried Mary, "there are the quinces—down by the railroad! My! I couldn't I sell them at the store? The trees hang full this year, and the fruit is beautifully perfect!"

"I never thought of that," said Mrs. Hay. "We will go to-morrow and gather them, Mary, you and I."

Mary went singing about her work that afternoon. Her heart was light as any feather. Why, why had she not remembered the quince tree before? Quinces were rare and high-priced this season, and she thought she was certain of at least $5 for the crop.

But the next day, when she and her mother—Mrs. Hay carrying the basket and Mary merrily trundling the barrow along before her—went down to the orchard, whose slopes extended to the glittering steel rails of the railway, lo, and behold! the trees were utterly stripped of their golden loot.

Mary burst into tears. She sat down on the edge of the wheelbarrow and hid her head in her mother's apron like a child.

"O, mother, who has done this?" she cried. "Who can have been so wicked—so cruel?"

"Its the boys, I'm afraid," said Mrs. Hay. "Don't fret, daughter—don't! It's done, and it can't be helped."

"The boys never moved us so before," said Mary between her sobs. "Yes, and yet, you are right. There is no end of the sin we go home."

Slowly and sadly the two women toiled back up the hill with the wheelbarrow and the basket. Mr. Hay, just returned from the harvest-field, heard their story with amazement.

"It's the first time that ever a tree of mine was robbed," said he. "I didn't know as we had such boys in this neighborhood. But, look here, Polly, don't cry, laying his broad brown hand soothingly on his daughter's shoulder. "It's always darkest just before daylight. Here's a $5 gold piece that Mrs. Blake paid me for the hay in the up meadow. I was going to take it toward the taxes, but I guess taxes can wait.

"No, father," said Mary, "our just debts are our first debts. I oughtn't to touch this money."

"Squinches, eh," said Luke Larrabee, who had come to help at the hoeing for a spell, son of Mrs. Hay's elder sister. "Squinches is mighty comfortable stuff. I see Mrs. Biggard's folks doin' up a sight on 'em when I was over t'other morning."

Mrs. Biggard, she's dreadful busy, you know, and the parson he's said he was partial to preserves of quinches; and there was she and Rosy and Almiry bottlering like all possessed to get 'em done."

"Boys?"

"Why, what did ye get all them 'ere squinches?"

"Boys also."

"I thought 'em of a boy at the door."

"Says I,

"'No, ye didn't, Electa Biggard; ye got 'em last night outen old Farmer Hay's acre-hill squinch orchard, clus to the railroad, says I, 'cause I seen you and Rosy scurryin' the clothes basket between you, and it was cram jam full o' big yeller quinches.

"And so I did, for our cow she got outen the field and wandered quite a ways down the railroad, and I was a lunatic of her by moonlight when I seen them from behind them ere casafras bushes down by the track. Wal, you should have seen her turn redder than the big bell-peppers out in the garden patch.

"'What ails' if I did' says she. 'Mary Hay she gives 'em to me.

"'O, says I, 'that's a horse of another color,' says I.

"'But now it appears,' with his shaggy, gray eyebrows slightly elevated, 'that ye didn't give 'em to her, hey?'

Mary and her mother looked blankly at each other. The good father chuckled.

"Them quinces was worth $5 at the very least," he said. "I guess, Polly, if I was you, I'd collect the money."

The ladies of the Fund Committee were at Mrs. Biggard's house that afternoon. A good many faithful and devout sisters were present, and some of the brokerhood as well.

Mr. Mildmay sauntered in toward teatime and was thunderstruck and taken Biggard for the beautiful jars of preserved quinces which had found their way to the rectory, when Mrs. Biggard's shrill voice sounded above the hum of general discussion.

"Now that the minister is here there ain't no reason that we shouldn't render in our accounts," she cackled. "And I'm happy to say that every lady in the parish has given something to the Eboe Indian fund except Miss Mary Hay."

Mr. Mildmay bit his lip. Zermiah cast down her white-lashed eyes, Almira giggled faintly.

"Its is so frank spoken," she said.

"I scarcely think," quietly observed Mr. Mildmay, "that there was any necessity for particularizing in such a matter as this."

"I hain't no patience with mean folks," said Mrs. Biggard, speaking in a stage-aside.

But Mary Hay had risen calmly from her seat among the younger ladies.

"Neither have I," said she. "And so I propose to subscribe to the fund the $5 which Mrs. Biggard is going to pay me."

She moved easily and gracefully toward the lady of the house, and held out her hand with an air of calm expectancy.

"Me!" cried Mrs. Biggard. "Gets to pay you $5! I guess that gal is crazy! What in the world should I pay you $5 for?"

"For the quinces," said Mary, enjoying the sensation which turned the matron's rubicund face to the color of badly risen dough, "the quinces which you bought of us last night and forgot to pay for."

Mrs. Biggard uttered something—nobody knew exactly what it was, but the changes of her complexion would have reminded one of the proverbial "dying dolphin," as she drew one her purse and deposited a crumpled five-dollar bill in Miss Hay's quietly extended palm.

"I—I confess I've been neglectful," said she, "I spose I ought to have attended to it before."

"I think you ought, indeed," was Miss Hay's calm reply.

"I didn't know's you cared nothin' for the quinces," snuffed Mrs. Biggard, "or I wouldn't ha' touched 'em, not on no account.

"You might at least have paid us the compliment of asking us," said Mary, quietly.

And she put the five-dollar bill in the little blue-ribboned "collection basket," which was in Miss Zermiah Biggard's capable care.

Mr. Mildmay walked home with her that evening. She did not tell him the story of the quinces, to her credit be it spoken. Mary Hay was not one to strike a fallen enemy. And perhaps she and Mr. Mildmay had pleasanter topics of conversation than any of the numerous faults and failings of Mrs. Biggard.

But honest Luke Larrabee was by no means so reticent. He related the little incident of the moonlight raid on the quince orchard far and wide.

"And then Biggards is always a quotin' Scripter texts," said he. "And the old lady sings hymns the loudest of any one in church, and Zermiah is setting her cap at young minister. I'd just like to see her face when she hears that Mr. Mildmay and Mary Hay is to be married in the spring."

But if you want to shut up the old lady's mouth any time, all you've got to do is to ask her for her recipe for 'putin up quinces.'"

Why the Sentinel Was Stationed There.

There is a good story still told in the Pension Office to the effect that for ten years a soldier was stationed in this passageway leading to the Minister's private apartments, with orders not to let people touch the walls. Dignitaries seemed to know why this was done. Now, a new Minister of an inquisitive turn of mind determined to find out the explanation of a circumstance that his fifty predecessors had never remarked, but no one could give him any light; not even the chief clerk, nor the subordinates who had been in the office half a century. But a certain doorkeeper, an old fellow with a good memory, recollected that on a certain occasion a soldier was placed there because the walls had been painted, and the Minister's wife had got a spot on her dress. The paint had dried, but the sentinel had been told to stay.—Exchange.

The Penalty of a Joker's Reputation.

President Lincoln said once that the best story he ever read in the papers or himself was this: Two Quakeresses were traveling on the railroad, and were so busy discussing the probable termination of the war, "I think," said the first, that "Jefferson will succeed."

"Why does thee think so?" asked the other. "Because Jefferson is a prayin' man."

"And so is Abraham a praying man," objected the second. "Yes, but the Lord will think Abraham is joking," the first replied, conclusively.—Boston Bulletin.

"Sports that Kill."

"Football is a dangerous game," said Rollo's father, solemnly. "Young Lambergs played it only one season, and it broke him all up." "What's nothing," said Rollo. "I heard Uncle George say that Parson Weekway played only a game of a game of three-card monte, and it broke the whole church up."—Burdette.

EARLY in the sixteenth century King Emanuel of Portugal sent an elephant to Pope Leo X. This animal, having, no doubt, been well tutored beforehand, immediately on appearing in the presence of his Holiness fell down upon his knees, an action which greatly impressed the Pope and his retainers.

THE TUG OF WAR.

An Exciting Game that Calls for Great Strength and Endurance.

Interesting Chat with an Ex-Member of a College Team.

Among all the sports of summer or winter, in-doors or out-doors, there is none that excites more popular interest, when it can be seen, than the tug of war, and there is hardly one that calls more strength and skill from those than this game. It has experienced a peculiar evolution from a crude unorganized game played by country boys, to one of those sports which take their places legitimately among organized pastimes by reason of their rules and systematic way of going about it. It is a distinct feature to-day of college and regimental exercises, and the great emulation is aroused between the different institutions which are rejoicing over the victory of their athletic the sport calls particularly for strength of a peculiar kind, it is nevertheless necessary, to accomplish the best results in it, to utilize the method to some considerable extent. People who have not indulged in sports frequently fail to recognize the influence of the mind upon success in a game, and do not think for a moment that there is any mental stimulus or training or exercise called for in it. Nevertheless it does exist to a great degree. Aside from the loss in the muscular exercise known as the tug of war. The game has to be controlled and directed by a captain, and that captain has to exercise his mind in the soonest way, has to be on the alert to watch his opponents, and has to know a great deal about the distribution of force in order to do his work well. How this comes about may best be told in the words of a well-known member of a tug-of-war team, Mr. Charles Morrill, formerly of the Dartmouth College team.

He says of it: "In a well-contested tug of war weight does not count as much as is ordinarily supposed; brawn and muscle, a good staying power, with coolness and a shrewd anchor, are what is required. The exercise has advanced a great deal during recent years under the fostering influence of college athletes and regimental gymnasts. In the old days the tug-of-war was a rough, irregular affair, wherein men caught hold of oneend of a rope and tried to pull along a similar crowd of men who held on to the other end. Now, there are very few places where the tug of war is pulled, that the game consists in dragging the other side at all. There are several ways of playing it, three of which may be considered as the most important, and in none of those three does the element of pulling the other crowd enter into it. It is at the very start, and it is a signal that they are ready to be pulled up from that position.

"The two methods of pulling in this country may be termed for convenience the 'farmer's pull' or 'cleat pull.' The farmer's pull is practiced at Dartmouth College very successfully. There they do not pull upon a board or in-doors, but upon the turf. A hole is dug in the ground for each contestant. It is in the shape of a right-angled triangle. The competitor is almost seated in this hole, his foot being braced against its perpendicular wall. This, of course, gives the strongest kind of purchase for the puller.

"The strain in a tug of war contest really comes upon the whole body, but the muscles of the back are perhaps those which are most important to be used in it. The hands have to grip the rope very hard in order that it shall not slip through, but there will be no danger that it will slip through if the muscles of the body are strong enough to prevent the other side from pulling harder. The muscles of the legs are of course very important in this exercise as upon them comes a great deal of the strain in bracing against the wall of dirt. The chance of victory in this kind of pull is reckoned by the tape upon the rope, which originally is placed directly over a middle line between the two teams, and if it is pulled more than six inch to one side or the other during the time allowed, for the contest the victor is won. This recalls another essential difference between the English style and the American. The English rules do not mention any time for the endurance of a pull. The side of the tape which is on the side where allowed an hour; if during that time one side or the other has not pulled a good distance actually along the ground the contest was considered a draw. The improvements of to-day necessitate the exercise of so much more strength and strain upon anchor thinks that he sees an opportunity of pulling the tape over at first, or wishes to pull the tape over as far as possible, he gives the word to heave, and the men on his side straighten their legs and tug for all they're worth, while the anchor leans forward ready to gather in the slack in case they get the advantage, and if the other side happens to pull the stronger and the tape begins to move that way, the anchor has to loosen the slip-knot in front of him and let it go a moment, in order to prevent his men from being pulled over their cleats. If he should not let it go, such an event would be almost sure to happen, and it is, therefore, plain that a great deal of responsibility rests upon the anchor, who must be a man of the coolest nerve as well as of giant strength. One of the best men in such a tug-of-war contest has to practice to attain is quick action. If the four men drop to the plank at the pistol-shot, at exactly the same instant, they are at once at an advantage over the other team, and when the word is given to heave by the anchor, they all pull at exactly the same instant, the same result is secured. But this usually happens, therefore, that the best trained team will win, and weight does not count as much as might be expected. The limit of weight in a team is variable. In the Seventh Regiment it is six hundred and sixty pounds, allowing an average weight of one hundred and sixty-five pounds for each man. The anchor is in almost constant consultation with his men during the contest. He advises them by a quiet word just previous to any order that he proposes to give.

TAKING TIME AND EMPHASIS.

"Concerning weight, I remember a contest pulled in 1885 at Dartmouth. There was a fat team, each one of whom tipped the beam at over two hundred. The contest was pulled on the 'farmer's' system, with holes in the ground, and the fat team were fairly pulled out of their holes by light weights whose combined avoirdupois was not more than six hundred and fifty pounds.

"Gymnasium-made muscle does not tell so much in a tug-of-war contest as might be expected. A man whose history are described from football and ring work may not have the vigor of tough muscle. Football and ring players always make good tug-of-war men, and rowing is one of the best exercises that can be taken to fit one's self by training for a contest.

"The Dartmouth method of digging holes for the foot and large enough for the whole lower part of the body, for the anchorman to brace against, is deep, makes their tug of war a very tough strain. This competition is of the kind that seems to be most well directed to exhibiting than acquiring strength, and is much hard, trying work; but it is also a very manly sport, and will doubtless continue to hold its well established place among the athletic position in the realms of sport.

DEFEATED.

A Coplan Lily.

A still more pleasant afternoon I spent in visiting the haunts of the famed Nymph of the Caspian. Neither rock nor tree bars the approach to this coy beauty; but as the siren can swim only in water, it will take luxurious heat of which she draws not a few of her charms, one might well be to prefer both Scylla and Charybdis to the peril of the brink to which this fascinator lures unsuspecting travelers at Chyulyun. Yet the danger is much more apparent than real. The Nymphs Caspian has broken up no households and precipitated no fratricidal wars; for the sirens are not fond of the Caspian itself.—Atlantic.

Another Ten-Thousand-Dollar Beauty.

Kansas City Girl—"Oh, I think photography is just lovely. I have a picture I look myself."

Omaha Artist—"Beg pardon, but really I see no picture.

"No picture! Why, I see nothing else for anything. It's perfectly divine.

"But what under the sun is it?"

"Why, it is an instantaneous photograph of a ten-thousand-dollar corner lot."—Omaha Herald.

MICHIGAN AFFAIRS.

—Lansing spent $515,000 for new buildings in 1887.

—Mrs. Charles Watson, of Menominee, has been fined for violating the game law.

—Secretary Stone says there are 110 business men's associations in this State.

—Gov. Luce has appointed Alonzo M. Harper circuit commissioner for the Eighteenth Judicial District.

—Mrs. Woollcott, an estimable widow, aged 70 years, dropped dead recently at her home in Bridgeport.

—The annual meeting of the Kalamazoo County Husbandman's Club will be held at Schoolcraft, Feb. 1 and 2.

—Muskegon's street cars are now drawn by two horses. There is very little about Muskegon now that is one-horse.

—The Ann Arbor City Council have elected retiring Circuit Judge Chauncey Joslyn to be City Attorney to succeed Judge-elect Edward D. Kinne.

—William Le Barron, an old resident of Newaygo County, was instantly killed by a falling tree, which split and, kicking backward, disembowled him.

—Mrs. Fayette Depuy went coasting with her children, at Clinton, and on going home to get warm was taken with heart disease and died in her chair.

—Old Joe Logan," a trapper and hunter, died recently on Mackinac Island, in the 90s and in the year in which he should pass away. He was 72 years of age.

—Prosecutor Morgan, of Adrian, has warned police and other officials that unless the liquor law is enforced he will take action to have them prosecuted, in accordance with the mandates of the statute.

—Ralph Jones, aged 11, had his scalp terribly cut and his leg broken while coasting at Jackson. His recovery is considered doubtful. Others were injured with him, but not so seriously.

—Concord has now five general stores, three drug stores, two grocery and three jewelry stores. It is fast becoming a live business place. The shifting factory is doing a thriving business, about ninety hands being employed.

—The report of the Prosecuting Attorney of Hillsdale County to the Attorney-General shows that there have been 130 convictions for crime in Hillsdale County the past year. Of these cases two were punished by imprisonment and fifty-eight paid fines.

—The cider makers and fruit manufacturers of this State will meet at Jackson January 23 and 24. The promises to be a very interesting meeting and will doubtless be larger attended. Programmes are being made out and will soon be ready application to W. A. Herring, South Allen.

—W. H. Tallman, of Hillsdale, has been presented with a gold-headed cane, made in the Cont House at Coldwater forty years ago. Mr. Tallman was a resident of Coldwater at that time, and is considered by old pioneers entitled to the distribution of the relics of the old-time Court House.

—M. M. Lemke of Menominee, has already sold this season about 1,000 cars of paving posts, 300,000 of which go to Kansas City and 250,000 to Minneapolis and St. Paul. He ships for purposes to have twenty miles of her streets paved next summer. The greater portion of the cedar will be shipped from the northern part of Michigan and Wisconsin. Shipments will be made from points along the lines of railroad.

—An epidemic of typhoid fever has raged in the State Prison at Jackson, and investigation shows that during the past few weeks thirty prisoners have come down with the fever and are now in the hospital. Several free men are also down with the disease, and a large number of cases are reported in the city. A thorough investigation at the prison failed to discover the cause of the trouble. The Board of Health is of the impression that the milk used is the real cause, and is having an analysis made of the milk used.

—New commissions were issued from the Adjutant General's office recently for the following-named officers of the State troops: Company G, First Regiment, Muskegon, Geo. H. Armstrong, Second Lieutenant; Company H, First Regiment, Jackson, Edward L. Lennon as First Lieutenant, Frank M. Drumm, Second Lieutenant; Company B, Second Regiment, Grand Rapids, William S. Kinney as Captain, Jacob Schroder, Second Lieutenant; Company H, Second Regiment, Manistee, C. H. Crane as Captain, John L. Thorburn, First Lieutenant, J. V. McIntosh, Second Lieutenant; Company K, Third Regiment, Houghton, Ed F. Douglass as Captain, George Miller, Second Lieutenant. Certificates of re-election were issued as follows: John A. Tyrrell, Captain, Company H, First Regiment, Jackson; W. W. Staley, Captain, Fred Stanford, Jr., First Lieutenant, Andrew Purcell, Second Lieutenant, Company E, First Regiment, Lansing; Geo. E. Childs, Captain, E. A. Aldrich, First Lieutenant, Chas. S. Martin, Second Lieutenant, Company A, Third Regiment, Flint, Joseph W. Acres, Captain, F. J. Schmidt, First Lieutenant, H. C. Barber, Second Lieutenant, Company E, Third Regiment, East Saginaw; Chas. Dupont, Captain, Geo. W. Gross, First Lieutenant, Henry B. Lathrop, Second Lieutenant, Company D, Fourth Regiment, Detroit.

—During the past year Pitts & Cranage, of Bay City, have cut from their timber tract, near Ogemaw, 18,600,000 feet. These logs are rafted to Bay City. It will take two years to clear up this tract, which will cut in all about 50,000,000 feet.

—Judge Cortland Hill, of Bengal, who died recently, aged 77 years, was judge of probate for six years, prosecuting attorney for five years, register for many years, and justice of the peace continuously ever since 1844.

FREE TEXT BOOKS.

How the State of Minnesota Fixes the School-Book Monopoly.

(From the Rockford (Iowa Register.)

While in St. Paul, recently, we thought we would look up the school text book law of Minnesota, with a view of throwing a little light on a question that is bound to compel considerable attention when our Legislature meets.

The Legislature of the State of Minnesota in February, 1878, passed a law, of which the following is the substance:

The Governor, Secretary of State, and Attorney General were directed to immediately enter into contract with D. D. Merrill, of St. Paul, who was to give a $25,000 bond that he would for a term of fifteen years, furnish all school text books required by the people of the State. The books furnished were to be equal to certain standard text books in general use, each of which was designated in the act. A commission of competent educators was appointed to examine and pass on this question. The books so accepted to be subject to change and revision not oftener than once in five years.

We quote section 2 of the act. It is quite interesting reading:

SEC. 2. The prices to be paid by the State for the above-named books shall be as follows: Spoller 15 cents, present price 25 cents.

First Reader 20 cents, present price 30 cents.

Second Reader 30 cents, present price 45 cents.

Third Reader 30 cents, present price 60 cents.

Fourth Reader 40 cents, present price 90 cents.

First Grammar 25 cents, present price 60 cents.

Practical Grammar 50 cents, present price 85.

First Arithmetic 15 cents, present price 25 cents.

Second Arithmetic 25 cents, present price 40 cents.

Third Arithmetic 50 cents, present price 75 cents.

First Geography 50 cents, present price 90 cents.

Second Geography 80 cents, present price $1.50.

Physiology 50 cents, present price $1.50.

For other books than those in this section named a proportional price, and no more, shall be paid by the State.

The books so published were furnished to book agents throughout the State upon the requisition of the County Superintendent, the people getting their books from these agents.

The agents were opened immediately on the passage of this law. The then State Superintendent, lots of County Superintendents, prominent men and ex-men, of them with a commission in the old system, the school book publishers, their agents and the whole crowd, interested in the old syndicate set up a fearful, terrible howl, and have kept it up steadily until just this very time. Of course they gave it up as a bad job and quit. They all said:

"The law will be repealed."

"Merrill can not buy or hire any politicians to defend his books."

"Merrill can not buy or hire any politicians to defend his books."

The publishers have all combined against him.

The publishers can afford to spend half a million dollars to defeat the law.

The books were issued, however, just the same, and are in general use all over the State. Not a complaint of them is made. The people are satisfied with them. They are well pleased with them. They are well pleased with them. They are well pleased

FARM AND GARDEN.

HOW TO KEEP POTATOES THAT ARE DESIGNED FOR SEED.

Interesting Reports from the National Department of Agriculture—All About the Big Poultry Show and the Toney and Standard Fowls There Exhibited.

The first annual exhibition of the New York Poultry exchange, held recently in New York city, was attended by many society folk as well as fanciers. The display of domestic poultry was one of the best ever seen in the city. The brahmas, both dark and light, were well represented. There was a fair assortment of white cochins; the buff cochins were well represented, as were the partridge cochins. Among the Plymouth Rocks were quite a number of prize winners. White, black and brown leghorns were represented, and there were some fine specimens of Japanese. The white, also the buff, Wyandottes were much admired; and the late English fad, the minorcas, attracted considerable attention. These fowls are remarkable for their peculiar comba, along with other things. Among the fancy breeds appeared white Wyandottes and white Plymouth Rocks. Derkins and houdans were present in small numbers.

JAPANESE BANTAM. WHITE POLISH BANTAM.

The exhibition of bantams pleased both connoisseurs and children. The varieties of bantams are great and show signs of increasing, for experiments are constantly being made in order to obtain miniature specimens of the large breeds. As a rule they are simply small specimens, though in some cases differences can be discovered. All bantams are purely fancy fowls, being popular chiefly on account of their beauty and because they can be kept in places where larger fowls cannot, as well as from the fact that they raise capital pets. We give illustrations of two varieties—the white Polish and the Japanese bantams.

The show of turkeys was an interesting one, some of the birds being enormously large. A bronze turkey shown by Sherman Hartwell, which had been fattened with a view to its gracing the Wine House table on Christmas, weighed forty-four and three-quarters pounds and naturally attracted much attention from visitors. The bronze turkey, as all may not know, is the most rapid in growth, quickest to fatten and heaviest of all the turkeys of this country. Narragansetts and whites are the most domestic. The wild turkey, even when bred in domestication, is the hardiest, most fleet and highest flavored of all the turkeys.

A BRONZE TURKEY.

The pigeon department proved an interesting one, for it included some well-known carriers, among whom were Volunteer, Ali Baba, Lady Fitzsimmons and other birds with good records.

When one recalls the fact that the eggs used in this house every year, imported and domestic, have been estimated at nearly $112,000,000, and that the chickens eaten by our people are worth at least half as much, so that we consume annually in fowls and eggs $168,000,000, the importance of well managed poultry shows its apparent. Every effort made that tends to the improvement of domestic fowls is of wide spread importance.

Farm Prices of Agricultural Products.

In the December report of the department of agriculture occurs the following statements in relation to farm prices of agricultural products: The average value of corn is 44.8 cents per bushel against 36.6 cents last year, and 32 cents in 1885. In 1881 it was 65.8 cents. The average value of wheat is 69 cents, only three mills higher than the average last year. It is 82 in New York, 81 in Pennsylvania, 74 in Michigan, 73 in Ohio, 71 in Indiana, 70 in Illinois, 64 in Wisconsin, 62 in Missouri, 61 in Iowa and Kansas, 59 in Minnesota, 53 in Nebraska and 52 in Dakota. The average for oats is 30.7 cents, against 29.5 last year. Barley average 57.2, instead of 53 last year. Buckwheat, 56.1, or 1.1 cents higher than last year. The value of potatoes is greatly enhanced, being 68.5 cents, against 48 last year. It is higher than for seven years, except in 1881. The value of hay is much increased, being $8.26 against $8.34 per ton, against $7.36 last year. The advance has been in the drought area of the west.

Commissioner Colman's Report.

In his annual report the commissioner of agriculture advises the division of the seed division of the department and the transfer of its duties to the state and territorial experiment stations. He disapproves the efforts to make the department an executive branch with a member of the cabinet at its head. Its position, in his opinion, ought to be that of an adviser in those investigations and enterprises which bear upon the agricultural interests of the country.

Regarding the present year's experiment in the development of sorghum sugar manufacture, the results will, he believes, be such as to justify the production, of a sugar supply from a plant as easy of cultivation as corn, but little circumscribed by climatic influences, and one whose by-products have a value equal to the cost of raising.

Commissioner Colman says on the subject of our wheat surplus: "The comparative prominence of this country in its wheat surplus may not be popularly realized. Where our exports have exceeded 125,000,000 bushels per annum for ten years, those of Russia were about 60,000,000 bushels and those of India 24,000,000 bushels in round numbers for the last decade. Other lands contribute only a very small surplus—Australia, Chili, the Argentine Republic and others only a few millions each—and the combined surplus of all nations does not equal that of this country."

It is stated in this report that pleuro-pneumonia is now restricted to smaller areas than at any previous time in many years. There is now every assurance that the present policy of the Federal and state authorities, continued for another season, will entirely exterminate this disease.

Five Years' Experiments with Manures.

The results of five years' experiments with commercial and barn yard manures on the Agricultural college farm at Columbus, Mo., as set forth in a recent report on the same by Professor J. W. Sanborn, are briefly as follows:

In good years, with a peaceful supply of moisture, chemical manures gave a larger wheat yield than yard manure; while in dry years the result was the reverse. The gain of the land treated with chemicals over that on which no fertilizer of any kind was used, was mostly, or possibly wholly, due to the nitrogen in the chemicals. Chemicals may be uselessly used and it is such misuse or unintelligent use that gives rise to the cry that they are valueless.

Professor Sanborn advises farmers to attempt to use chemicals not including lime, plaster or salt only after intelligent buying, a careful study of the soil by comparative trials, and then on horticultural crops mainly, including potatoes. This advice will not apply, however, when wheat approximates $1 per bushel, or when soils are largely deficient in potash or phosphoric acid.

Cutting Hay for Stock.

Experiments to determine the best ways and means for feeding stock economically at the Agricultural college farm of Ontario, Can., have given results that make it appear a profitable plan to cut hay. It was ascertained that by cutting the hay for feeding horses, sheep and other stock, 12 per cent. is saved. The animals do not waste and eat more of the coarser parts.

By using their own grinding mill and cutter for feed, the cost is but 55 cents per ton, or 1 1-2 cents per head of cattle daily, including interest on cost of engine, fuel wear and tear, oil, engineer and other labor, including the mixing of food.

Pumpkins for Milk Cows.

As good authority as Dr. Storer, says that a ration of about thirty pounds of pumpkin per cow daily will increase the flow and improve the quality of milk. More than this quantity should not be fed. Pumpkins are a very cheap food, as a couple of tons can readily be grown to the acre with the corn crop. The seeds of the pumpkin ought to be removed before feeding.

Saving Potatoes for Seed.

The probabilities are that seed potatoes will be scarce in numbers and high in price next spring. Hence great care ought to be observed in the handling and storing of tubers designed for seed. Potato growers generally agree that sprouted potatoes are inferior to those so kept that no large sprouts appear before planting, the planting having weakened their vitality.

In the east is given an illustration of a plan of keeping seed potatoes, advised by a Michigan correspondent in Rural New Yorker. When the potatoes are dug they are not allowed to lie in the sun more than two hours, after which they are put in a pit covered with straw or cornstalks for a few days, and then they are covered with boards and earth, the ends of the pit being left open. Later on the ends are closed and a very small amount of ventilation is afforded by means of a wisp of straw which extends up through the center of the covering to the open air. Care should be taken to leave a space of at least eight inches clear between the top of the potatoes and the covering of the pit, which should be five by eight or ten feet and large. The first covering of six inches of soil is not put on until danger of frost makes it necessary, and the remaining coverings are added as the weather demands. A representa pole supporting the boards, is six inches of soil; e. eight inches of straw; d, six inches of soil; e, eight inches of manure; f, a straw ventilator, and g a space of eight inches between potatoes and boards.

In the same journal a Massachusetts grower, to avoid sprouting, places the tubers in a dry, cool cellar of an even temperature. A New York farmer gets his potatoes in lots of 400 to 600 bushels each in a cellar on the ground, first sprinkling plenty of lime on the ground. In this way potatoes can be kept for eating purposes up to July. To keep them from sprouting he cuts them up for planting just at the time they show signs of budding. This will keep them from sprouting for three to four weeks if they are stirred over often; for they will sprout sooner when not stirred, so that a person can gauge the time for planting.

STORING POTATOES.

A Pennsylvania correspondent advises that seed potatoes be kept at a few degrees higher temperature than is best for table use, say 45 to 50 degrees. Then there will not sprout, and the fiber matter reports has been so fortunate during its first year of publication. A serial novel, entitled "First Harvests," by FREDERIC J. STIMSON, will be begun in the January number, and early in the year novelettes will be published by HENRY JAMES and H. C. BUNNER. The short stories are of notable strength and freshness.

ILLUSTRATIONS.—The Magazine will show increased excellence in its illustrations. They will be more abundant and elaborate than ever. It is the intention of the publishers to represent the best work of the leading artists, and to promote and foster the most skillful methods of wood engraving.

SPECIAL NOTICE. To enable readers to possess the Magazine from the first number (January, 1887) the following inducements are offered:

A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887 ..... $4 50
A year's subscription and the numbers for 1887, bound in two volumes cloth, gilt top 6 00

$3.00 A YEAR; 25 CENTS A NUMBER.

Remit by bank check or money order to

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, New York.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, printed from good readable type on fine paper and many of them handsomely illustrated. They are without exception the cleanest books ever issued at 3c. Ask your newsdealer for them, and if he does not have them in stock, he will get them if you insist on it. If you cannot get them of your newsdealer, we will send them to you at 3c. each, postpaid, upon receipt of price. Remember, they are here offered. Each one is complete in one volume.

1 Ben Hur. Lew Wallace.
2 Ivanhoe. Sir Walter Scott.
3 The Last of the Mohicans. J. F. Cooper.
4 The Old Curiosity Shop. Charles Dickens.
5 The Pilot. J. F. Cooper.
6 Pelham. Lord Lytton.
7 The Last Days of Pompeii. Lord Lytton.
8 Paul and Virginia. St. Pierre.
9 The Deerslayer. J. F. Cooper.
10 The Last of the Barons. Lord Lytton.
11 The Last Days of Pompeii. Bulwer.
12 Last of the Mohicans. J. F. Cooper.
13 Ben Hur. Lew Wallace.
14 The Last Days of Pompeii. Bulwer.
15 The Last of the Barons. Bulwer.
16 The Last of the Mohicans. J. F. Cooper.
17 The Pilot. J. F. Cooper.
18 Ben Hur. Lew Wallace.
19 The Last of the Barons. Bulwer.
20 The Last of the Mohicans. J. F. Cooper.
21 The Pilot. J. F. Cooper.
22 Ben Hur. Lew Wallace.
23 The Last of the Barons. Bulwer.
24 The Last of the Mohicans. J. F. Cooper.
25 The Pilot. J. F. Cooper.
26 Ben Hur. Lew Wallace.

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS.

Intelligence Gathered In by Wire from Every Quarter of the Nation.

Also a Few News Sandwiches from Lands Beyond the Broad Ocean.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

CREMATED.

A Boarding House Swept Away in the Night Like Tinder—A Dozen of the Occupants Consumed with the Burning Structure.

A terrible occurrence at Tower, Minn., and a dozen persons perished. A dispatch from the scene of the horror gives the following meager particulars:

Fire broke out in the Barnsby boarding house at about 1 o'clock in the morning, and before the inmates could be awakened the structure was in flames. Twenty-two men are known to have been burned to death. The bodies taken out were burned to a crisp and so disorganized that the cause of their death was fully undetermined. The bodies were found in the burned house lying with each other in the same passageway, like wild beasts in their endeavor to reach an exit, but the conflagration had been too much for those engaged in the struggle perished. Once out of the house, the men had a fair chance to escape, and some, as a rule in the instance, who was laid up with rheumatism, tried to get his partner out by a window, but he was at the door, and finding that locked kicked it open. Turning around he could see his face for the flames and was compelled to let his companion shift for himself, and he was burned to death. The morning was so before dawn, and absolutely nothing could be done to extinguish the flames. Of the boarders there were 35, and two were found lying together in one corner of the building, one having his head on the other's breast, had evidently been caught on the stairs leading from the third floor in their efforts to escape. Some of the men who escaped from the third story say there were sign of fire on the floor just below in the hallway. Most of the dead were woodsmen.

CHICAGO HAS THE CALL.

It Is Said the Lake City Is Ahead in the Contest for the Democratic Convention.

A WASHINGTON special to the Chicago Herald says the first direct six cents that—

The Democratic Convention will be held in New York City in deference to the expressed wishes of the President that the same country be entrusted with the management of the affairs of the Republicans, when he requested that the party convention be held in Chicago, and he gave as his reason that William Rudolph Cornell, of New York, should meet Western Democrats absolutely sure that any such preference has been expressed by the President, it is known that he positively repelled all offers to commit himself in any way, and he gave the witnesses that, while the President is not indifferent to the place, he will be content with whatever may be decided by the National Committee in meeting in the city of New York, as can be ascertained, the members of the committee are not at all agreed as to the place, the feeling seems to be that the Chicago contingent appears to be the strongest, and that Chicago is already far ahead in the race, if Illinois Democrats have their way, Illinois has 58 votes in the convention, and the votes to be by the constitution of 1884 over again. Quite a certain contingent of New York Democrats want the convention held in that city the movement that is for the special interest of Mr. Cornell.

Echoes of the Blizzard.

A ST. PAUL paper states that 253 persons perished in the recent blizzard.

An Indian man was found frozen to death three feet from the door of John Ward's dwelling, near Falls, Minn. The thermometer at Chippewa Falls, Wis., registered 65 below, and at other points stood at 40 and 50. On the Missouri Pacific the coal trains were stopped at Shelton and unloaded by the people. Fort Scott, Kan., probably claim the honor of the wildest range of temperature of any place on earth. On the occasion of the recent blizzard the thermometer marked 65 below. During the hot weather of last summer it ranged from 120 to 130. This make a range of 195 degrees within the year. The recent storm was one of the severest, if not the most severe, ever known in that region. Edward Dunn, a prominent cattle-buyer, was found frozen to death near Adrian, Mich.

Death of Grandma Garfield.

GRANDMA GARFIELD died at Mentor, Ohio, at the ripe age of 86. She will be remembered with affection and interest as the mother of the President whose administrative career was cut short by Guiteau's bullet. Her health had been failing for a long time.

Telegrams in Brief.

A GAS well near Dunkirk, N. Y., is yielding 1,000,000 feet per day.

A FIRE at Montreal, Canada, destroyed property to the value of $250,000.

The firm of Kurtz, Blanchard & Co., New York, failed a "crash," and advanced the price of fuel in some localities.

The firm of Kurtz, Blanchard & Co., New York, dealers in lags, made an assignment, with preferred claims to the amount of $1,000,000.

BREWER ARENSDORF, who was twice tried for the Haddock murder, spent a fortune. His defense cost him over $175,000, and he now reduced to travelling for a Milwaukee concern.

CORNESSMAN HAYES of Iowa, who as Judge decided the prohibitory law to be invalid, returned a petition to Washington ladies in favor of prohibition in the District of Columbia, declining to lay it before Congress.

WILLIAM MURNOUS, an old resident of Pittsburgh, was victimized by a bunko man out of $10,000. He was so hot by a man who had just drawn $20,000 in a lottery and got a certificate cashed.

MR. CRISP, of Georgia, called up the Thorbe case in the House of Representatives on the 21st of January, the pending question being on the resolution of the majority of the committee to seat. The vote stood 157 to 14, maps 8 no answer to the roll call, showing that the vote had changed. Mr. Thorbe's case was so opposed present, moved that the House adjourn, which was agreed to; yea 125, nays 115—a strict party vote.

THE WESTERN STATES.

A MYSTERIOUS box sent to Judge Woods, of the United States Court, at Indianapolis, on the 22nd, contained two cartridges, two carbridges, loose powder, and matches carefully prepared, so that an explosion would have been unavoidable if the box had been opened without suspicion. There is no clue to the sender.

A REVISED list of the victims of the recent Blizzard in the Northwest shows that 195 persons have perished and that 55 are still missing. The dead are distributed through the Northwest as follows: In Dakota, 107; Iowa, 6; Nebraska, 17; Montana, 3. The following is a list of the dead:

In Dakota—Six unknown people, near Scotland; Joseph Kocarek, at Scotland; Mrs. Fullmer, at Ashton; Mrs. Ole Olson, at Ashton; Springfield; a son of Michael Hoff, at Tyndall; Mrs. Ole Johnson, near Tyndall; Mr. Wolters, near Tyndall; Wm. Swanking, near Scotland; a mail driver, between New Salem and Hebron; Miss Sarah Ireland, of Yankton; four unknown farmers, near Wakefield; Mr. Dayton, near Wakefield; Mr. Hurrey, near Wakefield; Mr. Hurrey, near Wakefield; Mr. Dolan, near Wakefield; a school teacher, near Wakefield; a school teacher, near Wakefield; Walter Munger, at Mitchell; Jacob School, a lawyer, near Mitchell; Mr. Keeler, two unknown persons, near Mitchell; Mr. Ward, near Mitchell; Thomas Christenson, at Huron; Frank Bullard, at Huron; Sam Nirsem, and Robert Chambers, at Huron; D. Gunderson and three unknown persons, near Sioux Falls; Jacob Kratz, at Lesterville; three brothers and a sister, near Lesterville; Mrs. Ireland, near Yankton; Mrs. Ireland, near Gary; two unknown men near Bridgewater; one unknown man near White Lake; Emil Gilbertson at Altona; Pierson Brothers, at Altona; Mrs. Gilbertson, at Altona; Mrs. Hutchison, near Jackson; Mrs. Ole Johnson, near Jackson; Mrs. Ole Johnson, near Jackson; Mrs. Sawyer, near Canton; Miss Jacobson, a school teacher, a pupil named Goode, Miss Brandt, near Canton; Mrs. Ole Johnson, near Canton; Mrs. Ole Johnson, near Canton; Mr. Ingebretson, near Canton; Mr. Ingebretson's child, near Canton; Mr. Ingebretson's child, near Canton; Mr. Ingebretson's child, near Canton; Mrs. Corn Curtis, at Delamere; four school-children, near Canton; Miss Bessie Stanford, at Canton; Canton; Miss Bessie Stanford, at Canton; at Canton; Miss Bessie Stanford, at Canton; Miss Bessie Stanford, at Canton; Miss Bessie Stanford,

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

REV. S. S. STEEL, of Manistique was nominated by the prohibitionists in congressional convention at Ishpeming last Thursday.

THE theory of "protection" is that by taking from John, Dick and Harry and giving it to Peter will enhance the property of all four.

IS the republican congressional convention held at Ishpeming last week, H. W. Seymour, of Sault Ste. Marie, received the nomination on 110th ballot.

THERE is nothing that will knock so-called protection out of a man so completely as a thorough understanding of the subject. Therefore let everybody read and study both sides.

BARTLEY BLAKES, of Menominee received the unanimous nomination of the democratic convention at Marquette last week for congressman in the eleventh district and the democrats intend to make a strong campaign.

"IF farmers need protection against anything it is against 'protection.'" So said Emery A. Storrs eighteen years ago in an address to a meeting of farmers at Springfield, Ill., which is found in the JOURNAL this week on page 2, under the head of "Tariff Truths."

THIS week we present to our readers an address of Hon. Joseph E. McDonald, of Indiana, in an address before a state democratic conference, in which he discusses the president's message and replies to John Sherman, setting forth the fallacies of "protection."

A copy of the Chicago Daily News Almanac and Political Register for 1888, has reached our table. The present issue of this annual publication presents many improvements over former numbers. Neither pains nor expense seems to have been spared to make it complete and correct in all departments of statistics it undertakes to present. The price is only 20 cents and can be had of newsdealers, or Victor F. Lawson, publisher, 123 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill.

How naked Esquimaux children play on a bear's skin, in a snow hut or igloo, where the temperature is below zero, is one of the many interesting facts set forth by Lieutenant Fred K. Schwatka in his article in the February number of the Cosmopolitan, on "Wintering in the White Zone," beautifully illustrated by W. P. Snyder. The lieutenant tells in a most delightful way, how this curious structure the igloo, is built of snow and ice sometimes and how, when one enters it from a temperature seventy degrees below zero, one finds a temperature of four or five degrees below zero, positively uncomfortable.

The logging railroad of David Ward, the pine king of Michigan, is now building. It will run from Frederica, on the Michigan Central to Alba, on the Grand Rapids & Indiana. Thirteen miles are graded. The right-of-way is being lumbered, and from two to three million feet will be cut from it. The logs will be put into the Manistee. The road will connect Mr. Ward's great tract of cork pine and enable him to bring it by rail to the Bay City market. The Ward railroad, connecting the two greasy stems that run to Mackinaw, will give Bay City a short line to Petoskey and the summer resorts for which the west side of the state is famed. The Michigan Central will doubtless acquire possession of the Ward railroad and in time operate it as a branch.—Bay City Tribune.

When a Cure is Guaranteed.

Why will you refuse to be relieved of that cough which is liable to become seated in your lungs and to cause you many a suffering day and sleepless night? Your children are liable to be taken with Croup and Colds before a doctor can be summoned. Be wise and obtain a remedy that will not fail to give relief from Coughs Colds Whooping Cough, Croup and all other lung difficulties. Hamilton's Cough Balsam will do all this and costs but a trifle. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

Toothache.

Money is a great cure for aching hearts, but a twenty dollar gold piece placed on an aching don't seem to have the least effect. In fact nothing is sure to cure but Hamilton's Toothache Drops, which are warranted to cure in one minute. Price only 25 cents. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

Bedtime's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter, sole agent for Charlevoix.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 28.—Mrs. Cleveland held a pleasant reception Saturday afternoon. These events are much enjoyed by the general public, as well as those whose position in society entitles them to pass behind the receiving line. The visitors have all of the reception suite of rooms to stroll about in, excepting the blue parlor, and the conservatory is open to them. The rooms are warm, soft lighted, the band plays, and they see the latest fashions from all over the country, and from all lands.

Col. McDonald, the new Fish Commissioner, has been connected with the Fish Commission work for many years. He was one of Prof. Baird's chief assistants, and had special charge of the distribution of fish. He has been engaged largely in the work of shad propagation and had charge of the recent experiments in cod culture.

The senate committee on postoffices and postroads heard Mr. Norvin Green, president of the Western Union Telegraph Co., in opposition to a postal telegraph. He said the history of postal telegraph systems, wherever in existence, was one of negligence and delay, and that the commissioner in charge of the French system said to the late Mr. Orton, the president of the Western Union, that he made a mistake in conducting his lines as if the telegraph was made for the people. "We, in France," he added, "think ze people vos made for ze telegraph." Mr. Green maintained that rapidity and accuracy of services is of more value than moneyed consideration, and while he believed the United States government would conduct a postal system in a manner superior to European nations, it would not make it as efficient as a company with its money invested and profits depending upon character of service rendered.

Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard also addressed the same committee. He is in favor of the postal telegraph system proposed in the bill introduced by senator Dawes. He gave it as his opinion that of the $88,000,000 of capital of the Western Union about $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 had been paid in cash by the stockholders, and probably as much more by stockholders of other telegraph companies, which had become bankrupt and had then been bought up by the Western Union, and that the rest of it had been taken from the public in the shape of telegraph tolls.

The contract for the La Fayette monument has been signed by Messrs. Falguire and Mercie, the French sculptors, and returned to this country for the signatures of the commission authorized to make contracts. It has been signed by them and sent back to France. The contract stipulates that all the artistic work shall be executed by the hands of Messrs Falguire and Mercie, and by no others. It is further stipulated that the monument shall be completed and set up in Washington in two years after the date of signing the contract.

Postmaster-General Dickinson, on behalf of the United States, has signed a parcel post convention with British Honduras. Its provisions are the same as those recently entered into with Jamaica and other British colonies. New Orleans has been designated as the exchange office for the United States.

The report made by Senator Platt chairman of the committee on territories, to the senate, to accompany the bill for the admission of South Dakota, says the bill is substantially the same as that passed by the senate last session.

Beware.

Coughs, Colds and Slight Throat Diseases often develop into Bronchitis, Seated Cough, Consumption, etc, and should have immediate attention and be removed in the first stages. Not only public speakers, but all, are liable to throat troubles and to obtain relief should use Hamilton's Cough Troches, which relieve Coughs, and hoarseness, making the articulation clear. Warranted to give satisfaction. Price 25c per box. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

Renews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay Co. Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and can walk to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth, and removed completely all disease and pain." Try a bottle, only 50c, at G. W. Crouter's drug store.

Additional Local.

For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. myl

The maps of the D. C. & E. R. R. have been approved by the State Railroad Crossing Commissioners.

Byron See calls attention to some special bargains in ladies' wraps and jackets that he is closing out at cost.

Frank Merritt, a lad of 15 years, was instantly killed in a collision on a toboggan slide in Charlotte last week.

Dr. Crouter announces that he will be found until further notice in his dental office in the rear of the drug store.

Maj. E. H. Green, camp No. 122, Sons of Veterans mustered in on Tuesday evening of this week, and the officers installed.

Manistee, through her Business Men's Association is endeavoring to become connected with Grand Rapids either by the G. R. & I. or the C. & W. M. railroads.

O. W. Smith has bought the fruit stand and leased the lot on the east side of Bridge Street, opposite his lapidary, and expects to fit up a fruit and vegetable market which he proposes to call the "Central Market." His intention is to make it attractive and pleasant as well as convenient. We shall probably have more to say concerning it when he gets to work.

Purely Personal.

Amos Fox returned from Mt. Clemens Friday.

Chas. See, Jr. is in Elk Rapids visiting friends.

Mrs. M. Litney returned Monday form her visit of Traverse City.

J. S. Dixon has been appointed signal service observer at Charlevoix.

Capt. A. G. Aldrich is now chaircar conductor on the Michigan Central.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholls left this morning for a few weeks visit in Florida.

Wm. Harris and G. V. Nash, of Norwood attended the banquet Monday evening.

John Tencate, of East Jordan was in town this morning and made us a pleasant call.

Prof. J. B. Allen who is spending the winter at East Jordan was in Charlevoix Tuesday.

Rev. W. H McCartney spoke last Friday evening at East Jordan on the question of Local Option.

John A. Auld, of Strathroy, Ont., brother of Mrs. Crouter, accompanied the remains to Charlevoix.

We are pleased to note that Chas. Gagnon is again able to be upon the streets after his recent illness.

Coming Events.

The singing class will hold two sessions each week, Monday and Tuesday evenings at 7 o'clock sharp.

Sunday morning the subject at the Congregational church will be "Growth in Grace." In the evening there will be a praise service consisting of recitations and solos with remarks historical and illustrative of each hymn.

The K. of L. literary society have changed the night for holding their meeting from Wednesday evening to Friday evening. The first meeting will be held on Friday evening Feb. 3, at which time the tariff question will be discussed. Great efforts are being made to make this an interesting meeting to all. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Historical Society.

The parlors of Byron See were filled last Friday evening, and an enjoyable time was had.

The program opened with an instrumental solo by Miss Sadie Miller, and was followed with a select reading by Miss Gray.

The paper of the evening, Richard III, was read by C. J. Grier.

After intermission the society was favored with an instrumental trio by Mrs. Guyles, Mrs. Kane and Miss Cochran; a recitation by Mrs. G. R. Brown. After which the conversation was led by Rev. A. O. Downs, and Mrs. F. J. Meech.

The society will meet to-morrow evening at the residence of W. A. Brown on north Bridge street. The paper will be Henry VIII, by Prof. Enos.

Secure Admission.

Who can help admiring a lovely face, a clear, smooth, beautiful complexion? These can easily be obtained by the use of Hamilton's Oriental Balm. It will surely remove Freckles, Tan, Pimples and Blemishes of every sort and is in no way injurious to the skin, but is the most harmless and elegant preparation of its kind. Price 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

Beaman—Cooper.

A very quiet but very delightful wedding occurred in the township of Marion on Wednesday evening of last week, when Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Cooper gave their second daughter, Adah, to Geo. W. Beaman, our newly arrived druggist. Only a few intimate friends of the family were invited. At 8:30 o'clock the bride and groom, preceed by Miss Mate Cooper, sister of the bride, and Geo. A. Wilson, who acted as bridesmaid and groomsman, took their places before Rev. W. H. McCartney, who married them. The bride was neatly attired in a cream colored dress and the groom wore a Prince Albert coat. The happy couple were recipients of many warm and very impressive congratulations, which, if synonymous of a future, will be a bright and happy one. At a late hour the company dispersed after again extending congratulations. Besides the family there were present the Misses Mattie and Maggie O'Neil, Miss May Papineau, Miss Bertha Mills, and Messrs. Harry Branch, of East Jordan, Claude Smith, Nelson White, of Charlevoix, and T. F. Nelson, of Cheboygan.

Evel'ue.

IRONTON, Jan 31.—George Rodgers lost one of his mules recently. This team of mules are claimed to have been in the late civil war.

Mr. J. V. Lane sold his yoke of steers to Mr. Johnson.

Mrs. Allen Brown near Advance is reported very low with typhoid.

A hop at Mavelle's, at Advance last Friday evening. A boss time.

Miss Clara Haydan is again quite very sick.

S. R. Austin has returned to the Peterson camp again.

It was currently reported Friday that Walter Manney formerly a resident here, but now a resident of Nebraska, was among the victims of the recent blizzard in that state. It now seems that the report was not true of his father, who was also well known, was the victim.

Mrs. Hause who went to the southern part of the state last November to spend the winter died January 19. Mr. and Mrs. Hause have been residents of Ironton for about four years. She leaves a husband and four children.

Mrs. Mead Benson contemplates a trip to Lorain Co., Ohio, in a few weeks or a visit, to be absent during next summer.

Mr. Wm. Vought has recovered from his recent illness.

Examination for scholars at the Ironton schools Friday evening.

Mrs. Lon Sheldon, we understand, is convalescent.

Ed Newville, the liveryman at Boyne, now runs a tri-weekly stage line between Boyne and Ironton via Advance.

A party at Mrs. Trimble's last Friday night. All report a good time.

Why not start a singing school at Ironton?

Chas. Bedwin received more goods Saturday. Give him a call.

Hayes.

BENOSS, Jan. 31.—Mr. Mineer has the best rig for northern Michigan winters. It consists of a movable caboose that can be put on or taken off in a couple of hours, and is what all farmers need.

Mr. Bonnett is rushing his logs for Pine Lake Lumber Co., down to lake Michigan.

Jack Sanby has concentrated his business lately by moving his family down where his mill is.

Mr. Geo. McRoberts who had the misfortune to break his leg at Stanby's mill, doing as well as could be expected.

Morrell Long, of Bay, was visiting relatives in Hayes Saturday. His father, who had a paralytic shock is better.

Sportsmen would do well shooting rabbits near the shore 'of Pine Lake, as they are getting so thick that they bother some nervous persons nights.

Mr. Austin has bought a yoke of oxen and lots of farming implements since he received his pension.

Harnard.

Mr. James Anderson, of Wisconsin who has been visiting his brother George here, returned to his home Monday. George accompanied him as far as Petoskey.

Henry Harkness sold his oxen last week to George Clark.

William Burns is stocking his mill with basswood and ash logs.

Mr. William Clark went to Torch Lake Wednesday. He is agent for creameries.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Jolliffe were in the neighborhood Saturday

Get your neighbor to subscribe for the JOURNAL.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charvleoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

The only exclusive stock of DRY GODOS in Charlevoix, at the corner of Bridge and Main Streets.

GRAND CLOSING OUT SALE of LADIES' WRAPS AND JACKETS AT COST.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

DO YOU WANT

PURE DRUGS

Or Carefully Compounded Prescriptions, CALL ON US.

DO YOU SMOKE? We Keep the Best Cigars.
DO YOU LIKE MUSIC? We will take pleasure in showing our well-selected Stock!

Yours Respectfully,

F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,
Druggists and Pharmacists,
Opera Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

S. & I. 1888 S. & I.

You will need something in our line during 1888. Do got fail to buy of us. You will SAVE YOUR DOLLARS by so doing.

There's Saws, Axes, Files, and Tools of all kinds. Then you may want a New Stove. If you do, mind it if you don't get one of ours. A majority, a large majority, of the Stove Buyers of the county will tell you. We've got their names, and can refer direct to them. The Champion Pumps, too; what a splendid record they have, working easily and quickly.

Come, see us; if you want anything, BUY OF US. Yours in the belief that we will not fail to please you.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

BORN.

Jan. 30—On Sunday the mercury went up to freezing point; it is one degree above at this writing.

On Jan. 23d T. J. Hill, of this place started on a trip to southern California, going by the S. P. R. R. through Texas, will return by way of Santa Fee.

R. K. Crane was recently called to southern New York, on account of news of the severe illness of his father.

F. W. Mayne, of Charlevoix, was in Boyne a couple of days last week looking after a saw mill at Boyne's "lay out." W. A. Smith, of Bellevue also stayed over to take in the wrangling over the nag that several own but no one possesses.

Wm Harris, secretary of the county board of school examiners was in town Friday looking after the interest of the schools in our vicinity.

Long year party in town last week; number of proposals unknown to your chronicler.

Did you see the moon's eclipse on Saturday night?

C. G. Lewis, of East Jordan was greeting friends in Boyne, several days last week.

NOTICE OF ELECTION. Notice is hereby given to the electors of the township of Charlevoix, Mich., that a special election will be held at the Township City House in the village of Charlevoix, Mich., on Tuesday, the 14th day February, A. D. 1888, for the purpose of voting upon the following proposition, for their determination, viz: The question whether or not intoxicating liquors as mentioned in section two of an act number one hundred and ninety seven, of the session laws of the state of Michigan, for the year eighteen hundred and eighty seven, of which a copy is attached, shall be sold in said township. All the electors voting at said election, that the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for use as a beverage in said county, shall be prohibited, shall have printed or written, or partly printed and partly written on their ballots, the words "Prohibition to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors." And all the electors voting at said election that such manufacture and sale shall not be prohibited in said county, shall have printed or written, or partly printed and partly written on their ballots, the words "For the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors." The polls of said election will be opened at nine o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as may be, and continue open until five o'clock in the afternoon, unless the board shall in their discretion, adjourn the polls for one hour at noon or any time prior to the hour of five o'clock in the afternoon, as in the judgment of the board of inspectors of said election may be deemed advisable for the purpose of receiving the votes of said township.

Dated at Charlevoix, Mich., Jan. 30, 1888.

HORACE S. HARRIS, Township Clerk.

Jos. Beauvais

BOAT-BUILDER.

The Best Modeled, Easiest Rowing, and Best Sailing Boats in Northern Michigan, for the Least Money. Give me a Trial. I am bound to Please.

Boat Livery

In connection with shop.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

WILL H. FRANCIS,
Furniture and Jobbing Shop.

Will also do Carpetcleaning and Building Work in the Village of Charlevoix. Shop on Mason street, opposite Dr. Cook's residence. Yard adjoining shop, which enables me to do Jobbing, Repairing, Etc., on short notice. Shop on South Terrace, opposite Harrison Bradley's residence.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Proprietor.

Charlevoix - Michigan.

Finest location in town, giving good view of lakes and rivers. Express office, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages. Rates $1 per day, room for commercial travelers adjoining for $1.

PENSION BLANKS.

And all other blanks used in prosecuting claims before the U. S. Pension, Patent, or Land offices need for principle, address

A. J. H. WHEELER,
Jan 27 1888 429 Seventh St., Washington, D. C.

THIS PAPER is on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.) where advertising contracts may be made for it IN NEW YORK.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Feb. 2, 1888.

THE BUSINESS MEN'S BANQUET.

Members and Friends Enjoy an Evening of Social Improvement.

One of the stated objects of the business men's association is the cultivation of better social relations among the members. The practical application of this idea resulted in one of the most pleasant gatherings of the season, at the Bridge Street house last Monday evening.

The ladies most intimately connected with the association had provided a feast that would astonish one not acquainted with the hospitality of Charlevoix ladies in general, and at nine o'clock the dining room of the hotel was packed to its utmost with an eager, happy people, and so thoroughly had the committee in charge done their work that all were seated and served without a hitch or an unpleasant word.

President L. D. Bartholomew called the assemblage to order, and Rev. A. O. Downs asked Divine Blessing, after which the feasting continued nearly an hour.

At the close of this interesting exercise, ex-president John Nicholls toastmaster for the occasion, announced the first toast as follows:

Charlevoix: Her advantages and opportunities. Queen of the Lakes, she shows her wealth of forest, field waters, climate, and scenery upon us and bids us be loyal up in maintaining her supremacy. Long live the Queen.

Response by A. D. Cruickshank.

Mr. Cruickshank referred to the general location and surroundings of Charlevoix, and to the fact that for a number of years it had been dear to him as a home, that the maps of Michigan less than forty years ago, did not recognize the existence of such a place, that all the pioneer work of settlement had been done since that time, and a few are still of us who built the original houses. The growth of Charlevoix was slow at first, but more rapidly within the last few years. Our harbor is central and accessible for a large territory.

Blessed by nature to be a magnificent harbor. Charlevoix is favored by nature in very many of her advantages. Tributary to this harbor is a vast body of timber only partially developed. Located as we are by nature, at the gateway of a beautiful valley, where all roads by land, and last few years. Our harbor is central and accessible for a large territory.

Blessed by nature to be a magnificent harbor. Charlevoix is favored by nature in very many of her advantages. Tributary to this harbor is a vast body of timber only partially developed. Located as we are by nature, at the gateway of a beautiful valley, where all roads by land, and travel by water leads to Charlevoix, this vast product of timber must pass through our gates in search of raw or manufactured condition as we choose to make it. We have a soil adapted to the best and most abundant crops. We have the purest and clearest springs, creeks, and lakes. We have a climate not surpassed by any locality in the United States. In the hot summer, when other localities are suffering from the intense heat, the breezes from the lake keep the atmosphere around Charlevoix pure, cool, and healthful. The summers are never uncomfortably hot, and the winters are tempered by the lake so that while we have an abundance of snow, we do not suffer from excessive cold. Our advantages for engaging in manufacturing enterprises cannot be excelled. No city or village in the Grand Traverse region can have a supremacy over Charlevoix, if the people here determine to continue in the lead. Manufacturers of products from hardwood timber are looking to this region for supplies. We have the opportunity of manufacturing this timber at our own door, instead of shipping the raw material. It was once said to be impossible to make a harbor here in Charlevoix, but by organized effort the desire was made to be felt in Washington, and we have the harbor. By organization we propose to have a railroad to further assist in maintaining the supremacy of Charlevoix. The work is progressing most satisfactory, and by this time next year you will see the cars running to Charlevoix. Let the artist travel the world over, visit all the scenes of beauty and grandeur, and paint a model home with its surroundings, and I have no doubt you would recognize in that painting an exact counterpart of Charlevoix.

Following Mr. Cruickshank's remarks, the assemblage was favored with an instrumental trio by Mrs. Guyles, Mrs. Kane, and Miss Cochran; also by a vocal duet by Mr. W. A. and Miss Florence Smith.

The next toast announced was—

The Village Newspaper. The embodiment of truth, the encyclopedia of the neighborhood, the inspiration to all that is noble and useful; how could we do without it?

Response by Chas. J. Strang.

The village newspaper is everywhere recognized as one of the most potent factors in the march of improvement of the human family. The success of the press in general is but the development of this recognition. Societies recognize the power, the influence, and the value of the press when they subscribe for some newspaper or periodical devoted to certain fields of work with which to accomplish their proposed reforms and improvements; communities recognize it when they contribute funds to establish a local newspaper to represent them before the world, villages and cities recognize it, and show their recognition and appreciation by a generous support to those organs which represent the best elements of society, of education, and of, material growth and progress within their jurisdiction, politicians and political parties recognize this power when they seek to obtain control of the utterances of those newspapers having the largest circulation and most influential business patronage. That newspaper which at all times upholds and works for the community which gives it sustenance, which is true to itself and its supporters, deserves, and generally receives the support of a majority of the business men in their community.

To deserve this recognition, however, every event of local interest in the town, every improvement in the neighborhood, every meeting of citizens, every project for the general good must be treated in a spirit and manner to avoid jealousies, and to give the readers a confidence in the truth of the statements made.

I deny the allegation so often heard that you cannot believe what you read in a newspaper. There is not a more careful, pains-taking, truthful body of workers in any business or profession than the reporters and editors of local newspapers who are striving to build for themselves honor, reputation, and a competence in any community. They realize that their utterances are imperishable, and are capable of being proved or disproved. If you meet a man on the street and he makes what seems to be a statement of fact, and you afterward learn that it is false, and speak to your informant about it, he can persistently deny ever having made such a statement, and you have no way of proving it. Not so with the editor and reporter. He reduces every statement to a tangible form, which when printed and circulated are beyond recall. He may undertake to explain them or to place the blame on some other person who gave him the information, but his explanation will never follow the original statement, and he stands before the community as its author and creatures. On this account his reputation and standing in the community depends to a very great extent on the frequency with which he violates the truth.

We cannot afford to give expression to anything but truth for another reason. The newspaper is the mirror of the community, and the resident look into it for everything. As soon as the child can read he looks for the weekly visits of the newspaper with as much interest as the business man. The child reads the death notices, the marriages, and each year enlarges his interest until every column of every page is read diligently, and without stupidity. If there be a birth, marriage or death in the neighborhood, the village newspaper is expected to give all the dates and details. If a lecture, concert, or public meeting, not only an outline of the evening's program, but a synopsis of the addresses are expected to be given in the newspaper. And this report must be written in such a manner as to do justice and fidelity to truth and it must be read aloud and discussed in the family without danger of violating the finest conceptions of social instruction. Every item in every department of industry is looked for with the same interest and fidelity to truth. Every the capacity and ability of the editor and reporter to write in such language and with such fidelity to truth as the editor would use in his own family, at his own fireside.

The newspaper is ever ready to give all the prominence possible to every movement for prosperity and progress of the community. It is ever ready to place Charlevoix in being in the world; we have schools with an average in per cent of attendance and average standing in per cent of scholarship, which will bear comparison with any schools in the state. We have churches, societies, and associations of all denominations and societies, people and for the common good of the people. The press of this country gave us our magnificent system of free public schools, and the development of our manufacturing and shipping interests, has so far outstripped the ability of our schools to meet the demands of the hard pressed public, that the demand for more schools is now heard from every quarter. The improvement of our harbor, the building of our new sawing mill and look the initial steps in the direction of a railroad to connect with the great world beyond, the organization of our new Men's Association whose hospitality we enjoy to-night, were each developed and made successful in their work by the support of the newspapers, and social and social reform in the community were its success to the support of the newspaper.

The newspaper looks for an expression of appreciation of his efforts to supply the latest news, the best goods, the most increase of daily or weekly visitors, and the most of the work against the labor of European countries as much as American capital is protected, not only against foreign capital but against foreign labor as well.

Our country has always been the dumping ground for paupers from the old world, until the country is overrun with cheap labor which comes in direct competition with native born American labor. It is time to call a halt. Let not another foreigner land on our shores unless he brings wealth enough to become an employer in stead of seeking employment, and the time would come in which there need be no idle hands and we would secure what we all want, shorter hours and better pay.

This was followed by a vocal quartette by Mrs. E. M. Clark, Mrs. Hines Dr. Carlstein, and Mills Kanagy.

The toastmaster next announced—

The Business Mens Associations. Labor is organized, Capital is organized, the Church is organized, everything else is organized; why should not the Business Men organize to foster their own interests and the interests of the community in which they live?

Response by R. W. Kane.

This toast is a new one. It is the first time it has been proposed in Charlevoix, therefore what is said in response cannot be hackneyed. The real object perhaps in the mind of the originator of these associations was the collection of bad debts, and the placing of the dealings between the merchant and the customer on a better basis, by shortening credits and working as rapidly as possible toward a cash system. The collection department of our association has attracted wides attention, and has done most excellent service. We congratulate ourselves that so powerful a weapon is being used with such discretion. The Charlevoix Association challenges any man to cite an instance where it has done a person injustice in its collection department. One man thought to deal as a crank, ing blow and perhaps to wipe us out of existence by sending a complaint to the state association. His case was investigated. The state secretary informed us that after the fullest examination they found the complaint groundless. And he added, "this is only the second complaint of injustice that has ever been brought to our notice, and we are happy to inform you that the other complaint was as groundless as yours". But the foundations of our organization rest upon a broader and grander principle than the collection of bad debts and their prevention. The great, central, predominating idea of this association is the idea of brotherhood and union. The idea that the welfare of the community is the welfare of each individual in the community. By actual experience, business men are learning that it is a great deal better to work for their common interests and the interests of their town than to expend their energies in decrying the goods, methods and reputation of their competitors and rivals in business.

Among our professed objects as expressed in our constitution are the regulating and obtaining fair rates of insurance and freights, shorter hours for business men and their clerks, and the promoting of any scheme for the improvement of our town and community. But how can an insurance company or railroad company be compelled to fairness or to make change in rates, if they are not confronted by the united business interests of the place? How can any scheme for the development of our resources be successfully promoted if the business men do not join hands in a united effort to push it through? We realize in these things very forcibly that "in union there is strength." Without it, there is impotence. Without it, railroad and steamboat companies, insurance companies and others, may tyranize over us and do with as they will and we can do nothing but grumble.

We have tonight listened to the eloquent and truthful description of the advantages and opportunities of Charlevoix. Our possess are glowing with a just pride in the many advantages we possess, and swelling with hope at the opportunities which are ours. But how are we to see these resources developed and these opportunities realized if we do not put our united strength to the wheel and keep pushing until they stand as accomplished facts before us?

It is for these purposes we exist. If we give our association the support it deserves; attend its meetings, take hold of the work and earnestly try to realize its objects, we cannot fail to work out a noble future for our place. If however as business men, we are content, each for himself to say, "I will attend to my own affairs and let matters of public interest take care of themselves," we shall witness the melancholy spectacle of our public affairs going to rack and ruin, and our own affairs going to rack and ruin with them. Gentlemen, which shall it be?

This was followed by a vocal trio, by Mrs. E. M. Clark, Mrs. Hines, and Mrs. Kane.

The toastmaster then announced the closing toast of the evening—

The Ladies. They bewitch us in youth, they sustain us in manhood, they comfort us in old age. The best bargain any man ever made, is when he obtained a true, sensible, loving wife.

Response by E. H. Green.

Mr. Toastmaster, gentlemen of the Business Men's Association, and Ladies: It is somewhat singular, that in nearly all banquets, the toasts to the ladies comes in last, and it has always been a mystery to me why this should be so, for surely no banquet can be a true genuine success without the presence of those who bewitch, sustain, and comfort us throughout our life.

The lateness of the hour admonishes me that I must necessarily be very brief in my response.

Ancient history informs us that of the side of a man named Adam. She was not made of his head, to toys him, nor of his feet to be trampled upon by him, but out of his side to be equal with him, taken from under his arm that she might be protected by him, and from very near the heart to be beloved.

The corn help-mate was no insignificant title as applied to man's companion. She is a help-mate in every hour of darkness, difficulty and sorrow of life, and thus she sustains and comforts man and makes it her special lot to soften his misfortunes.

"As unto the bow the cord is, so unto the man is woman; though she bends him she obeys him; though she draws him, yet she follows; useless each without the other."

While the committee of arrangements has done most excellent work, I think the crowning success of this the grandest event of the season is due to the fair ladies who have prepared the refreshments, and have honored the banquet hall with their presence. And I want to say, if there is a business man here who has not somewhere a lady who believes in him, trusts in him and loves him, then his membership ought to cease at once.

In conclusion, I will state that President Bartholomew and toastmaster Nicholls unite with me in saying that the ladies of Charlevoix "are the daughters of beauty, choice of beings made, much praised, much loved, and dearer than all earth most dear. Stars of creation, images of love; whose eyes hold the passenger forgetful of his ways; whose steps were majesty; whose words were song, whose smiles were hope, whose love the solace, glory and delight of man, his boast, his riches, his renown; when found, sufficient bliss; when lost, despair."

An instrumental solo by Mrs A. T. Washburne closed the exercises.

Before dispersing, the business men extended a vote of thanks to the ladies who provided so generous a banquet, and attended so industriously to the wants of all present.

As a whole, the event was one to be long remembered in the annals of Charlevoix.

Death of Mrs. G. W. Crouter.

The announcement made on our streets last Saturday morning of the death of this estimable lady cast a feeling of sadness over the entire community, notwithstanding it was expected by all acquainted with her decline of health and attempt to recover by a change of climate.

Most readers of the JOURNAL are aware that Mrs. Crouter's health began to fail during her weary watching at the bedside of her daughter Effie a year ago last fall, and that after Effie's death she did not regain her usual cheerfulness and hope for a long life. Dr. Crouter has supplied every aid and every comfort that money could buy, yet her decline has been gradual and sure. A change of climate was suggested as a last hope, and she was taken to California last October, but this did not arrest the disease. Having reached a stage where it was quite certain that death was a question of but a few days or a few hours, she expressed a desire to see her mother and brothers in Canada. Dr. Crouter engaged a special car attached to a fast train, and on Jan. 26th she was taken from the car to her mother's home in Strathroy, Ont. She lingered until the morning of the 28th, retaining her mental faculties to the last moment, and died at peace with all the world and with her God.

Mrs. Crouter was a member of the M. E. church, and was everywhere recognized as a true Christian woman. None knew her but to be impressed with her excellent qualities.

As soon as her death was announced here, members of the Odd Fellows' Lodge, (of which order Dr. Crouter is a member) immediately took the necessary steps to meet him at Petoskey, and assist in the last ceremonies of earth. The casket containing Mrs. Crouter's remains was taken to the residence of Dr. Carlstein, Tuesday afternoon, and from there to the M. E. church at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon, for final services. A committee of ladies made every possible arrangement for a proper expression of their love for the deceased, and their sympathy for the bereaved husband, and there were numerous floral tributes at the house, at the church, and at the grave.

The services were conducted by Rev. W. H. McCartney, assisted by Rev. Mr. Clark, Rev. Mr. Downs, and Rev. Mr. Inwood.

The church was packed to its utmost, and a large number followed the remains to the cemetery.

Geo. W. Beaman,

(Successor to G. W. CROUTER.)

DRUGS AND STATIONERY,

Charlevoix, - - Michigan.

Quarter Off!

OUR ANNUAL SALE

of one-fourth off

DRY GOODS, CLOAKS AND

Carpets.

We always Give our Customers a benefit when it is of some use. On February 1st Everything in our immense stock will go at 1-4 off. Now is a rare chance to secure a Cloak, of which we have a great many in Children's, Misses' and Ladies'.

RULE:—You purchase goods at regular retail prices and 1-4 will be deducted from the entire bill or One Dollars worth of Goods for Seventy-five Cents. This sale will continue until March, to get best value come early.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

THE ATKINS SAWS, NEW PERFECTION AXES

Round Oak Stoves.

Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

Bargains IN BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,

Milk, Butter, and Vegetables,

TERRACE FARM. - - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

BASE-BALL.

A Highly Interesting Chapter on the American National Game.

Some Noteworthy Episodes of the Past Season's Play.

Welch's Trick—A Wonderful Triple Play—Death on the Ball Field.

[NEW YORK CORRESPONDENCE.]

Henry Chadwick, the well-known baseball expert, was asked to tell about several of the remarkable episodes of the past season's play, as he had witnessed them.

"Just about the most noteworthy," he replied, "was that which marked the game of May 21st, at Philadelphia, between the Chicago and Philadelphia nines. The game opened favorably for Chicago, but in the second inning the hit. Pat Welch, in running to catch the ball, tried a trick on the runners which succeeded admirably. As he ran out to get under the ball, though he saw that it was going beyond his reach for a catch, and would surely strike the fence at center field, he settled himself with lifted hands in such a manner as to lead the runners to think that a catch would be certain. So Nelson waited on second base until the catch should be made, ready to start for third the moment the ball was handled. To his disgust, however, he saw it returned from the fence and picked up by Welch, and before Nelson could get a chance to leave second the ball was back in the infield, and Orr had to be content with a single base for his hit for three bags.

THOMPSON'S ACCIDENT.

"One of the best tests of a pitcher's skill which the progress of a game presents is that afforded by the position in which the first man at the bat in an innings play makes a three-base hit, and obliges the pitcher to put forth his very best efforts in the form of skillful strategic play in the position, in order to prevent his batter-runner from scoring his run. A striking illustration of this point was shown in the contest at Philadelphia on May 21, between the Philadelphia and Chicago teams. In the eighth innings of this game, while the Chicago team were within one of tying the Philadelphia team's score, Sunday, the Chicago outfielder, opened the innings at the bat with a clean bansh1t to left center field, on which he earned third base. Ferguson was in the box as the Philadelphia pitcher, and the point he had to attend to was to keep Sunday on third while retiring out the next three batsmen. He began by retiring Ryan—the next batsman—on strikes. Sullivan came next, and after two strikes had been called on him he was retired on a foul fly. Next came Daly, and he, too, after barely escaping being put out on strikes, was finally caught out on a sharp fly tip, and this left Sunday on third base, the innings play ending in a blank. It was a feat in strategic pitching well worthy of special record.

"In the contest at Chicago, on Sept. 15, between the Chicago and New York teams, a point of play occurred which plainly pointed out the necessity for the introduction of an amendment to the rules regulating the position at the bat of players whose names are printed on the score cards. The play in question was as follows: The score card in naming the order of batting, placed the names of "O'Rourke or Brown" as the occupant of the catcher's position on the New York side, and the order of their batting as fifth on the list, while the names of Nelson and O'Rourke were placed eighth on the list as third-base players. At the

RADFORD'S TRIPLE PLAY.

O'Rourke caught, Nelson was to play third base, and if Brown caught, O'Rourke was to play third. According to the order as placed on the card, it O'Rourke played at third base he was to be the eighth striker, but if he played catcher then his batting order would have been fifth. In the fifth inning O'Rourke, who had been playing third base, went to the bat after Connor, and in accordance with the order of the card was not in his proper position to bat. O'Rourke then put Nelson out on a fly to him, and as he came in Anson stepped into the umpire and claimed that the run could not count as O'Rourke had batted out of order, and his appeal was granted, and the run was disallowed 'no count.' The New-Yorkers claimed that as both O'Rourke and Brown's names were on the card for fifth place either had the right to bat; but this was not so, inasmuch as the position alone gave the right to bat, and as O'Rourke was not to play both at catcher and third base, the order belonged to the position he filled; as that was third base, his batting order was eighth on the list. As it happened the loss of the run by the New York team did not result in that of the game, as New York won by 5 to 4.

But the incident showed very plainly that the rule governing the play should be changed so as to give the legal order of batting under such circumstances.

"In one of the May games between the Louisville and Baltimore teams at Louisville Hecker and Verrick played a successful trick on the visiting batsmen in the following manner: The player in question occurred in the second innings while Dawes was on first base and Fulmer on second. Fulmer made an attempt to steal to third base, and in doing so the fielders allowed that he had run out of the line of the base to avoid the ball in the hands of the baseman, Werrick, who then placed the ball on Fulmer safe. During the dispute over the decision Werrick, who held the ball, had it up his sleeve, and when the umpire—Eddy Caldbert—called play at the close of the dispute Hecker entered the pitcher's box and acted as if he had the ball in hand ready to deliver it to the bat. Fulmer, deceived by this action, left the base he had previously occupied and stood off it ready to run home. As he did so, Werrick slipped the ball from up his sleeve and laughingly sent it up to Palmer and touched him out, greatly to the amusement of the astonished crowd looking on, not one of whom had noticed where the ball had gone. It was a lesson to Fulmer to make a special note of the old base-ball saying, 'keep your eye on the ball.'

"On July 9 the Metropolitan team met the Cincinnatis on the home grounds, and on the occasion found themselves opposed to the strong battery of Foster and Mullane, who for that day was in fine form for his best strategic work. It was a lesson to the active pitching of Mullane, to the splendid support given behind him by his catcher Bailey, who was especially a noteworthy feature of the contest. But the Metropolitans also played a remarkably fine game, and the most striking feature of it was the splendid triple play of Radford, who was playing second base for them on the occasion. Baldwin was at the bat, Carpenter at second base, and Tebeau at third. Both the runners had taken ground in base running and were ready to start on the first fair hit. Baldwin caught the ball square on the bat and hit a hot liner just as both the runners ran for their respective bases. But Radford caught the swift line ball beautifully, and touching second base with it before Carpenter could get back, promptly threw the ball to third base in time to cut of Tebeau. The play the side out by a model triple play, and Radford's skillful performance brought out tumultuous applause.

"One of the saddest events of the season of 1887 was the fatal occurrence at Lincoln, Nebraska, on June 13, which resulted in the death of young Edward Likely, of Lincoln, the accident did not occur in a match game, but only while a party of ball players were practicing for a contest arranged for the next day. The party had a dozen or so balls playing when young Likely took the bat and stepped up to the home plate for a hit. Clasby was at the pitcher's box, and he was sending in very swift balls. As Likely struck at the ball it just touched the bat near the handle and glanced off like a rifle shot to the baseman's face, striking the latter with such force as to cause him to fall unconscious with his head striking the ground heavily on the top. He was taken up insensible and carried from the field to the nearest hotel, where he was promptly attended to by physicians. But he never recovered from the effects of the blow and fall combined, and within ten minutes time the poor boy was dead. He was a bright youth, just twenty-three years of age, and highly esteemed by his companions. Various theories as to the immediate cause of death were advanced, but it is probable that it was due mainly to the severe shock to the nerve center. The blow on the face was not alone sufficient to have caused death. It was the only actual death on the ball field last season.

A DEATH ON THE FIELD.

"A curious incident happened in the contest of May 14th, at Bridgeport, Conn., between the Bridgeports and Danbury teams. It is a rule of the game that any ball hit to the fence, if be legally caught, provided it is not caught on a rebound from the ground, and an object other than the person of a fielder. But if it is caught after rebounding from any object or part of any fielder engaged in the game the catch is a legitimate one. In the game in question a fair ball was batted to the field, and both Lovett and Wilson ran to catch it. The ball as it fell first struck Wilson's hands, but singular to relate, after he had three times failed to hold it securely as it rebounded from his hands, it went to Lovett's hands, who was standing close by ready to assist in the catch. But Lovett simularly failed to hold the ball securely, and it again bounded out from his hands Wilson grasped it, and then ran home and claimed that the run could not count as O'Rourke had batted out of order, and his appeal was granted, and the run was disallowed 'no count.' The New-Yorkers claimed that as both O'Rourke and Brown's names were on the card for fifth place either had the right to bat; but this was not so, inasmuch as the position alone gave the right to bat, and as O'Rourke was not to play both at catcher and third base, the order belonged to the position he filled; as that was third base, his batting order was eighth on the list. As it happened the loss of the run by the New York team did not result in that of the game, as New York won by 5 to 4.

But the incident showed very plainly that the rule governing the play should be changed so as to give the legal order of batting under such circumstances.

"In one of the May games between the Louisville and Baltimore teams at Louisville Hecker and Verrick played a successful trick on the visiting batsmen in the following manner: The player in question occurred in the second innings while Dawes was on first base and Fulmer on second. Fulmer made an attempt to steal to third base, and in doing so the fielders allowed that he had run out of the line of the base to avoid the ball in the hands of the baseman, Werrick, who then placed the ball on Fulmer safe. During the dispute over the decision Werrick, who held the ball, had it up his sleeve, and when the umpire—Eddy Caldbert—called play at the close of the dispute Hecker entered the pitcher's box and acted as if he had the ball in hand ready to deliver it to the bat. Fulmer, deceived by this action, left the base he had previously occupied and stood off it ready to run home. As he did so, Werrick slipped the ball from up his sleeve and laughingly sent it up to Palmer and touched him out, greatly to the amusement of the astonished crowd looking on, not one of whom had noticed where the ball had gone. It was a lesson to Fulmer to make a special note of the old base-ball saying, 'keep your eye on the ball.'—Sporting News.

WELCH'S TRICK.

THE PACIFIC ROADS.

A Message from President Cleveland to Congress on the Subject.

Astonishing Features of the Administration of the Affairs of the Companies.

The Government's Rights—Suggestions as to Necessary Legislation.

The Cancellation of Unpatented Land Grants Is Urged Upon Congress.

The following is the President's message transmitting his Pacific Railroad reports to Congress:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

On March 7 last I sent to Congress the reports of the appointed Pacific Railroad Commissioners, with a view to mitigate such relations as were then and still are existing between the Government and certain other roads, the ordinary fulfillment of whose obligations to the Government was then and is now threatened with disaster. The facts and circumstances then presented in the reports of the commissioners, in my judgment, justified the belief that some of the roads were then insolvent, and that the condition of others was such that their ability to meet their obligations was greatly impaired, and that the approach of the period for the payment of the principal of the Government claims was hastening the time when, in the ordinary course of business, the ability to pay would be wholly destroyed. It was also made clear that the Government was, in the transaction of its business with these railroads, and in the protection of its interests as a creditor, suffering from the want of authority of law to act upon the facts and conditions disclosed by the reports of the commissioners, and that the interests of the Government would be better cared for if such authority was conferred upon the Executive.

I ventured to express the opinion that the Government's interest would be better subserved if the Government should be authorized to extend the time for the payment of its claims upon the railroads, and I suggested that such extension might be safely made upon such terms as would secure the payment of the entire indebtedness of the roads to the Government, with interest, and would also secure to the Government a share in the earnings of the roads while they were in the hands of their present managers, and before the period for the payment of the principal of the Government claims should arrive, and I suggested that such extension might be made with the consent and upon the application of the companies, and that if such consent and application could not be obtained, the Government might with propriety and advantage, in the exercise of its sovereignty, and in the protection of its interests as a creditor, impose the extension upon the companies.

I also

FARM AND GARDEN.

THRESHING CORN—VALUABLE VINES FOR INDOOR CULTURE.

The Honey Crop in Various Sections. How to Ship Honey—A Movable Roof for a Hay Shed Described and Illustrated.

A practical farmer describes in The Country Gentleman a movable roof for protecting hay, straw and the like, which is readily heightened or lowered to any desired position and which has given satisfaction in his section of the country.

FIG. 1.—MOVABLE ROOF FOR HAY SHED.

Fig. 1 represents the roof supported by pins in the corner posts and elevated a few feet. It also shows the lever, A, and a movable upright, B. Fig. 2 gives a view of one corner of the roof, together with lever and upright, the pin, C, in the upright being in contact with the under side of the frame.

FIG. 2.—MOVABLE ROOF FOR HAY SHED.

A glance will show that as the long end of the lever is brought down, the upright, together with the corner of the structure, is carried up. Securing this corner in its new position by moving the pin in the corner post a hole higher, lever and upright are moved to the three other corners successively. Coming round again to the first corner, the pin, C, is placed a hole higher in the upright and the process is repeated. With this contrivance two men can with ease elevate a roof twenty feet square to the desired position.

Threshing Corn.

During the past few years reports have been occasionally received in regard to the utility of threshing corn in an ordinary threshing machine. This past season reports of the successful results of threshing corn have been such as to make it appear that the practice is on the increase, not only in the west but in the New England states as well.

A correspondent in Minnesota Farmer claims that a neighbor threshed with a steam thresher 500 bushels of corn in one short day, using thirteen men and three teams. It also required four men to stack the fodder. The corn was of the flint variety.

Near Mankato, Minn., a farmer used his Case thresher, the same as for small grain. The fodder was shredded in fine shape for the cattle to eat, and the shelled corn was well cleaned. Nine acres gave 380 bushels of shelled corn, and it took but one day to thresh it. Near Sac City, Ia., Mr. H. H. Blodgett threshed 360 bushels of corn in a day. The corn came out in good condition and the stalks and cobs were so crushed and mixed that the stock will eat them up clean. Ralph Hazen, near Osseo, Wis., and several others of that vicinity threshed their entire crops in this way and are entirely satisfied with the results.

The journal quoted from says: "The old threshers do well, we presume, when the stalks and ears are not too large, but the work will be done better and with less liability to damage machinery, when a new machine made especially for the purpose shall have been introduced. We understand that such will soon be put upon the market."

Iowa Homestead tells how a farmer in Iowa threshed about 200 bushels of corn per day; this farmer prepares the machine for threshing by taking out the front concave and each alternate tooth of the rest. The journal in question says that threshing corn is a little risky and most economical way of disposing of it, cutting but little more than husking and shelling the corn, and the saving in the value of the fodder is about 40 per cent.

The Honey Bee Interests.

Numbered with interesting reports received and read at the meeting of the American Beekeepers' Association in Chicago were the ones on the honey crop. Florida reported a light crop and little honey on hand; Iowa, very poor crop; Pennsylvania, exceedingly light yield; Georgia, below average but sufficient to carry the bees through winter; Indiana, loss did not occur throughout the season, but the honey crop was light; Vermont apiaries lost heavily in swarms last winter, and there was a scarcity of early honey; probable yield of the season one-third of an average crop; Quebec, fair for honey gathering, especially in the autumn; Ontario, bees wintered well, but many died during spring; yield per colony about twenty-five pounds per colony.

A diversity of opinion prevailed among the apiarists in session as to the best packages for shipping honey. Finally a vote was taken, with the results as follows: Thirteen beekeepers in favor of tin packages, four gave preference to wood packages, while forty members use both wood and tin, on occasions suggests. There was a general denouncement of the cheap "feed tin" packages. Oak barrels were approved of by several for shipping large quantities of honey. While the cost of production varies largely, it was estimated that a general average was about ten cents per gallon.

Care of Cows in Winter.

The essential requisites for keeping up a good flow of milk from cows are: First, Warm stabling, abundant supply of food and plenty of water with the chill taken off. It pays to warm the water. When milk cows are kept out of doors in inclement or severely cold weather, even though they may be protected by a shed, if they are forced to drink ice cold water a speedy drying up of milk is a certain result. Exposure to a cold, searching wind for a half hour or so will show its effects in a decreased yield of milk at the next time of milking. The decrease is, of course, more or less noticeable according to the length of the exposure and the severity of the weather. Some exercise for the animal is all right enough in comfortable weather, but warmth and quiet are great producers of milk.

In winter an extra amount of food is required to keep up the normal condition of the animal, and if milk is also to be produced an additional quantity must be eaten, out of which the milk is to be made. This cannot be done wholly with the coarse winter food such as hay, fodder and the like; something more is required to take place of pasturage. For this purpose an excellent ration, to give twice per day, is composed of six quarts wheat bran, one quart Indian meal and one quart cotton or flax seed meal. Give this in form of a bran mash, and feed the coarse ration in its natural state; or, better still, run both hay and fodder through a cutting box and mix all up together with warm water. As a large per cent. of milk is water, the latter may be given with good results three times a day slightly warm. A little salt and a quart of bran to the bucketful of water acts as an inducement to the cow for drinking more than the usual amount. Roots are a valuable adjunct to a milch cow's feed.

Curing Meat.

Cut the pork to suit the demands of the market in which it is to be sold, or the various uses for which it is intended, but remember always to have it in such form that it will pack snugly. Above all, take care that is cold through and through, before packing it down.

Salting with and without brine are both popular methods, and it makes little difference which is practised providing proper care is observed. When brine is used, allow salt at the rate of 8 pounds to each 100 pounds of pork. If it is desired to make a brine in which sugar, saltpetre, etc., are added, the following is a good recipe: For 100 pounds of pork take 4 ounces of saltpetre, 5 pints of molasses or 2 pounds of brown sugar and 7 pounds of salt. Dissolve all in water and pour over the meat. None of the meat at any time could to be allowed to remain above the brine.

For curing hams and shoulders without brine, a favorite recipe is 12 pounds fine salt, 2 quarts molasses, 1-2 pound powdered saltpetre, well mixed. This mixture is to be rubbed in thoroughly and the hams and shoulders laid snugly in a cool, dry place. At the end of the first and of the second week, rub them again as at first, then expose to continuous smoke for ten days. The above formula is sufficient for 150 pounds of meat.

Mice in Orchards.

A writer of experience gives a preventive for mice in orchards, which he affirms is a sure one. Late in the season, before the ground is frozen, cut out all grass near the trunks of your trees with a sharp hoe, then shovel up to them clean soil, hilling up somewhat and to extend a foot or more around the trees, and pack with shovel or trample soil with feet. Mice will then find no harbor next the trees, nor will they injure them in any way.

Vines for Indoor Growth.

Vines known under the general name of ivy are exceedingly attractive for house decoration. The German ivy is a rapid grower, but will not bear the cold as will as the English ivy. The coleseum ivy is beautiful when growing in a hanging pot at the window. It is easily raised from seed or cuttings.

IVY GROWING INDOORS.

English ivy, properly treated, will live for many years, and few plants give less trouble. Vick advises that water be given occasionally to ivy grown in pots during the winter. If one has an English ivy that appears to be dying, and its leaves wither and fade, these must not says this well known florist, be picked off, but must be left to drop off. If the leaves are picked off when they show signs of decay, the tiny leaf bud at the stem, so small as to be unnoticed, will be liable to be killed; but if let alone a new leaf or shoot will come out of each one.

A New Grape.

Messrs. Ellwanger & Barry have a new grape, which they call Sultana. It is a cross of a foreign variety, Mill Hill Hamburgh upon our Creveling. It has the large size, the tough skin, the foreign flavor, the adhesity of the Hamburgh, with the red pulp, the juiciness, the sprightly sweetness of the native variety. The vine is vigorous, apparently quite healthful, heavily loaded with immense, compact bunches of large, very solid blue black berries of an exceedingly rich, sprightly aromatic nature. As would naturally be expected from the texture of the grape, it is a good keeper, and was shown at the horticultural meeting last January in an excellent state of preservation.

Warts on Horses.

A southern correspondent of The Cultivator finds that a pure article of hog's lard well rubbed in is most excellent remedy for warts on horses, and will invariably effect a cure at the first application. In a varied experience with horses, cattle and mules, he has never known a wart to return after once being thoroughly rubbed out by the above application, and to all appearances without the slightest pain.

Suggestions for the Roupy Season.

As the roupy season is at hand trustworthy authority in poultry matters calls attention to creolina as a useful preparation that gives off dense fumes as it burns, the inhalation of which operates very beneficially upon the fowls. With chlorinated soda as a wash, creoline as an inhalation and German roup pills as a tonic and alterative, roup can be successfully warded according to this authority, in all curable cases.

BILL NYE AS A PLAYWRIGHT.

He Describes a New Opera of Which He Is the Author.

I HAVE just returned from a private rehearsal of a new operetta of which I am the author, and hasten to write a few hasty, but critical notes of it for the press. In this criticism I shall try to be perfectly fair, though to mention any defects, and yet I shall try to avoid hurting the author's feelings. I hasten to score the operetta with a merciless hand, and yet I do not wish to give myself needless pain.

The operetta itself is called "The Ringed Calf," because it is really so much better than it seems to be. The music was composed partly by myself and partly by a count who plays on the ferryboats in summer and has his winters to himself. He does not wish to have his name used, because, as he says, he is afraid that "foreign powers will get on to it and make him come back to attend to his count business again." He says it is very disagreeable to be a count and live on a long, slim pedigree and what the neighbors bring in from time to time.

The orchestra opens the performance with a sailor song from the "Flying Dutchman." Difficult as it may appear, the orchestra makes a good selection from this opera, and it is played well after everything is ready. It takes some little time for an orchestra to get ready, however. The man who blows the first notes of the clarionet breathes a few liquid notes, the first violin sounds "A" and the gentleman with the large violin sits in the dark, patiently as if any expense or kittens have been deposited with him. Then they all have a good time of it for the large violin stands it upon end and feels of its sounding-board. He then chalks his bow and the leader whispers in a low voice to the man who salutes the tenor. The snare drum soldier gets his assortment of drums into a semi-circle, hangs his triangle where he can get at it, runs his eye over the xylophone, sleigh bells, bird call, pocket pipes, tubes, cabinet, cymbals, the bell and fortissimo. The leader writes his autograph in the atmosphere with his stick and the band goes into committee of the whole with a will. A difficult piece then follows. Some of the audience are heard to state that they wish it had been so difficult that the orchestra could not have played it.

The curtain rises, and a primary school of over 500 pupils is seen passing in review across the stage, singing a song of forty-nine verses, namely, commencing the system of calisthenics. In making one night stands with "The Ringed Calf," most any primary school will do with a few rehearsals for this chorus. Get them drilled on the record in advance and all their parents will come to see the show. We never can look on the stage, I thought of this myself.

A beautiful soprano now comes on, accompanied by her voice, and wonders where Felix is. She decides to sing a small song while waiting for him. Thinking is an arpeggio with diatonic scales on it. It begins low and finishing, like the cry of a wounded clay pigeon, and gradually soars upward, like the cries of wool, and ends with some artistic gargling which suggests a water-fall in the lower register.

THE SCHOOL.

THE SOPRANO.

As she gets more confidence in herself she becomes more irritated because Felix did not get there at the same time he said he would.

The prima donna of the "Ringed Calf" has a pleasant voice, full of timber and fine allegro movement, bordering on the andante. The lady who has heard her says that when she pulls out the last joint on her crescendo and opens her upper register, her mouth looks not unlike a stale in the dark. She sings with the whole arm movement, and her action is good as she sits by the jardiniere stand. She has a selection in the second act called "Back to Our Mountains," in which she starts off with a strain in which she emits a sound not unlike that of the acoustics of the hall, that she is tickled to get back to her mountains, such as they are, and is pleased with the altitude. She has assisted in "The Damnation of Faust," but otherwise has been pretty good. She is a widow, her husband being deceased. Her husband died from a cold buzz saw near Stillwater, Minn., in 1875, and ever since she has been accompanying confidential to communicate and desired to take up her abode in the Sunny Andes, for she was in that condition when they found him. For that reason she wears a very sad, tearful and often soliloquy in spots. Her repertoire is very large and has a fall on it. The only criticism that I have to make on her singing, and I hate to do that, is that she has slightly ruptured her voice by trying several years ago to sing a duet with herself and thus free two sweethearts.

When the applause has died away Felix comes in with a baritone voice and climbs a tree. He thinks of the first verse while the piccolo makes a few shallow remarks, and then he explains how he could not get there when he agreed to be present. They finally embrace, or some thing of that kind, and he swallows an infernal agonizing chew with his shoulders, and begins in a low, pause round-by which develops into a duodecimo run. He is accompanied by a running mate, consisting of a flute with a large red mustache over the main entrance.

The Ringed Calf will be produced at the Pole grounds early in January. It will be a full house.—Bill Nye in New York World.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine	Our price for it and this paper together
	$ c.	$ c.
Wide Awake	2.40	2.50
Young Folks' Journal	1	2.10
Puck	5	3.10
Little Men and Women	1	2.10
Babyland	0.50	1.60

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a trifle in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a dead-head. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother amuse even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Christmas Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it: "Story, song, and pleasure, for the home and abroad, companionship of the wise and good"—describes the young, intelligent, progressing people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

Worth Knowing.

Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla. was taken with a severe cold, attended with hoarseness, cough and running into consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies without avail, and grew worse. Was reduced in flesh, had difficulty in breathing, and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and found immediate relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles being relieved well and has had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures as Dr. King's New discovery for Consumption. Guaranteed to do just what is claimed for it. Trial bottles free at all Druggists' drug store. a

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE

Beautifully Illustrated. 25 cts., $3 a Year.

ITS SCOPE.—THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE gives conference to national leaders and women, and to the best thought of the best men and women in every line of living, whether of home or of the world. Its departments are—Home, Society, Education, Art, Music, Literature, Science, Invention and Work, Ethics, Religion, Current Events—embracing the foremost problems of the period, and, in each, the best thought.

Distinctively Representative of American Thought and Progress.

It is admirably adapted to the family, and is the most popular and entertaining of the high-class monthlies.

IMPORTANT. A Specimen Number of THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE and our Premium List will be sent free to any address on receipt of 15c., if this paper is mentioned.

Responsible and energetic persons wanted in every town in America. Write us for exclusive territory.

ADDRESS

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE CO.,

740 Broadway, New York.

For 1883 is better than ever, and should be in the hands of every lover of a beautiful home or garden. Published in English and German.

PLANTS—BULBS—SEEDS.

Elegantly illustrated, and nearly 176 pages, telling how to grow the best flowers and vegetables. Its engravings are all from photographs from life. Including a Catalogue and Floral Guide, $1.00.

JAMES VICK, SEEDSMAN,

Rochester, N. Y.

PENSIONS!

WILLIAM F. GREENE, late Assistant Chief of the Western Division, U. S. Pension office, now engaged in the prosecution of pensions and all other soldiers' claims.

His thorough experience in the Pension Office gives him special advantages in securing pensions promptly and properly.

Special attention given to the working up of rejected or abandoned claims. Average fee in such cases, $5.

Pensions are collected by responsible attorneys in all cases where there is a pension allowed.

Many persons who are entitled to increase do not obtain it because they do not apply or because their claims are improperly rated. Particular attention paid to such cases.

No fee unless successful. Advice free.

Refers by permission to

Hon. B. W. Ferguson, Supreme Court of Illinois.
Hon. C. C. Matson, of Indiana.
Hon. Geo. W. Ryan, Chicago.
Hon. Thos. Ryan, of Chicago.
Hon. D. B. Henderson, of Iowa.
Hon. J. Sterne Letcher, of Nebraska.
Hon. I. S. Struble, of Iowa.

Address,

WM. E. GREENE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

INVENTION has revolutionized the world during the past half century. The world during the last half century. Not least among the inventions of the age is a patent which has given to every man and woman in the country without separation the workers from the farmers. Pro liberal terms are offered to the world either sex, young or old, no special ability required. Address, with stamp, Hon. Jos. Jones, Washington, D. C.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

AN IMPORTANT CLUB OFFER

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

Gives its readers literature of lasting interest and value; it is fully and beautifully illustrated and has already gained a more than national circulation exceeding 125,000 copies monthly.

PRICE 25 CENTS A NUMBER. $3.00 A YEAR.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS with Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons the Publishers enable us to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE with the

Charlevoix JOURNAL for $4.00 per year, Cash in Advance.

Address all orders to CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher Journal, Charlevoix, Mich.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE

N. J. PERRY Agent, Charlevoix.

CHICAGO + Canal AND 16TH STS

ALL SHOULD TAKE IT!

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES

Bruises,	Scratches,	Contracted
Lumbago,	Swellings,	Muscles,
Rheumatism,	Strains,	Exuptions,
Burns,	Stiffness,	Tired Ail,
Scalds,	Stiff Joints,	Screw
Stings,	Backache,	Worms,
Bites,	Colds,	Scrimmy,
Grunses,	Sores,	Saddle Galls,
Sprains,	Spavins,	Piles.
Corns,	Cracks.

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY

Is universally recommended and has maintained its first. One of the reasons for the great popularity of the Mexican Mustang Liniment is its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine. The farmer needs it in case of accidents with his Housewife needs it for general family use. The mechanic needs it in his business. The Mechanic needs it always on his work bench.

The Miner needs it in case of emergency.

The Plantsman needs it for his stock.

The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, and his stock yard.

The Steamboat man or the Boatman needs it in his business.

The Horse-racker needs it—it is his best friend and adviser.

The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars and a world of trouble.

The Railroad man needs it and will need it, so long as life is a round of accidents and dangers.

The Backwoodsman needs it. There is nothing in life is so at ease for the dangers to life, limb and comfort which surround the pioneer.

The Stockman needs it above all others among his employes. Accidents will happen, and when those occur the Mustang Liniment is needed at once.

Keep a Bottle in the House, "'tis the best of company."

Keep a Bottle in the Factory, Remember this is one of accidents never pain and loss of wages.

Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for use when wanted.

ARBUCKLES'

name on a package of COFFEE is a guarantee of excellence.

ARIOSA

COFFEE is kept in all first-class stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COFFEE

is never good when exposed to the air. It always buy this Popular Coffee in carefully sealed ONE POUND PACKAGES.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

Grand Rapids' best paper.

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Weed at 12½ cents a week.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD

IS UNEQUALLED FOR

$1 PER YEAR

Eight Large Pages

Are filled every week with carefully collected news, correct market reports, and interesting reading matter. The illustrated supplies are the best and cheapest ever given. The ALL-YEAR-ROUND STORIES alone are worth the price of the paper. New features are being added from time to time, and no pains are spared to make the WEEKLY HERALD a first-class family paper. SAMPLE COPY before subscribing for any class newspaper. ADDRESS

CHICAGO WEEKLY HERALD,

Chicago, Ill.

Chicago's Best Morning Newspaper is

THE DAILY HERALD,

8 PAGES FOR 2 CTS.

DELIVERED EVERYWHERE IN CHICAGO AND SUBURBS AT 60 CTS PER MONTH.

THE CHICAGO HERALD,

150 to 158 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

JAMES W. SCOTT, Publisher.

PATENTS.

FRED W. CROCKER,

Counselor at Law & Solicitor of Patents,

ROOM 32, 335 BROADWAY,

New York, N. Y.

Best Book of Family Papers,

THE WEEKLY

Detroit Free Press

No other paper is so well adapted to the wants of the people of the West.

NINE REASONS WHY:

1—Each issue contains a complete story, the production of solid reading matter. It is much more than a story paper.

2—It is the only paper published which regards the interests of the farmer, and which, at the very outset, has given to the farmer a department devoted to his interests, which has been from the commencement of the general publication of the Free Press, and which has been the mainspring of the general success of the Free Press.

3—Every effort is made to make the Weekly Free Press a home paper, and to make it the equal of any paper in the United States in the completeness of the general information it contains.

4—Its editorial department is ably conducted, and its tone is such as to make it a welcome visitor in every family.

5—The Market Reports are always to be relied upon, and are given in full.

6—A special new feature is its scientific department, which is ably conducted by a competent scientist.

7—A faithful exponent of public affairs, its political teachings are based on principles which have by trial and experience been found to be the best for the interests of the people.

8—Its price is only $1 per year, which is the lowest price at which a paper of its class can be published.

9—Those who take it regard it as an error without a parallel in the history of the publishing business that a paper of its class can be sent for $1 per year to 10,000 Michigan subscribers.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

If you do not take it, SUBSCRIBE NOW.

A GREAT OFFER.

For $2.00, we will send THE WEEKLY FREE PRESS and THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY, each for one year, to any person who will send us the name of a new subscriber to the WEEKLY FREE PRESS, or to THE FREE PRESS ART ATLAS, or to THE FREE PRESS ART ILLUSTRATIONS. The value of the Atlantic Monthly is $4.00 per year. The Atlas is a 32 page collection of beautiful and valuable maps.

Address THE FREE PRESS CO.,

Detroit, Mich.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL.

NUMBER 239. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.: THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1883. $1.50 PER YEAR.

THE JOURNAL

Published every Thursday,

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

Office on Bridge Street,

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

ARTHUR MARTIN, Attorney at Law, Bayne's Block, Collections promptly attended to.

CRUCKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law and Proctors in Admiralty. Office in Bayne's Block. Chicago, Mich.

A. D. CRUCKSHANK. C. J. GRIER.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney and Counselor at Law, Collections promptly attended to. MONEY TO LOAN.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

W. N. MOORE, Attorney and Solicitor, East Jordan. Admiralty a specialty.

DENTISTRY.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office at Cushman's Drug Store, CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

PHYSICIANS.

J. A. CARLSTEN, M. D., Office and residence at Mrs. Joslyn's. Office hours, 8.00 to 10.00 A. M., and 6.00 to 8.00 P. M.

LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office at his residence, Charlevoix, Mich.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

HORACE S. HAESHA, Notary Public, Real Estate, Loan, and Insurance Agt., Charlevoix.

W. F. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

Brown & Co's Bank of Charlevoix

CAPITAL $25,000.

Drafts drawn direct upon the principal cities of the world. Collections carefully attended to. Good securities bought and sold. Interest allowed on time deposits. Passage tickets to and from all points in Europe. National Bank Correspondents.—The National Bank, Chicago, Merchants' New York, First National Bank, Detroit, Merchants and Manufacturers' National Bank, Detroit, Fourth National Bank, Grand Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

O. D. WOOD, President.

A. BUTTARS, Vice President.

F. A. SMITH, Cashier.

DIRECTORS

O. D. WOOD,	M. H. WOOD,
A. BUTTARS,	W. F. MAYNE,
F. A. SMITH,	J. L. HURD.
JOHN NICHOLLS,

CAPITAL, $25,000

Surplus, $25,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Act 314, Sec. 40 of Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed capital of $50,000 to depositors. Facilities for the transaction of a general Banking business. Drafts drawn on the principal cities of Europe. Interest allowed on time deposits. Collections promptly attended to. Exchange on Europe for sale at lowest rates.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued payable in one, two or three years.

We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

National Park Bank, New York. First National Bank, Chicago. National Bank, Chicago. National Bank, Detroit. National Bank, Detroit.

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.

Time Card for

PETOSKEY STATION,

In effect Oct. 187.

Leave, going north, 8.18 p. m., 2.05 a. m.

Leave, going south, 8.20 a. m., 11.00 p. m.

daily except Saturday.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

Chicago & Grand Trunk Jointly.

Time Card, Nov. 19, 1882.

Leave Charlevoix for Petoskey, Bay City, Saginaw, Detroit, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, New York and Boston, 7.00 A. M. Leave Charlevoix for Petoskey, Bay City, Saginaw, Detroit, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, New York and Boston, 2.00 P. M. Leave Charlevoix for Petoskey, Bay City, Saginaw, Detroit, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, New York and Boston, 11.00 P. M. Leave Charlevoix for Petoskey, Bay City, Saginaw, Detroit, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, New York and Boston, 2

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

THE WIDE WORLD.

A Catalogue of the Week's Important Occurrences Concisely Summarized.

Intelligence by Electric Wire from Every Quarter of the Civilized World.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

ATTACK ON A FIGHTING EDITOR.

He Shoots Fatally a Man Who Objected to Strictures.

AS JAMES F. BURK, the city editor of the Journal says a Knoxville, Tenn., special, was entering St. James' Episcopal Church on Sunday morning, accompanied by his wife, he was accosted by John Wm. William West, and a friend of theirs named Goodman. They attacked Burk on account of a communication in the Journal reflecting upon Dr. T. A. West, father of John and William West. Rule refused to give the name of the author of the communication or to make any satisfactory answer to questions. John West struck Rule, and all the parties drew revolvers and opened fire. John West was shot through the body and fell, carried home in a dying condition, while Rule received a bullet through the wrist and a slight scalp wound, besides seven cuts in the back from a knife in the hands of John West. His injuries are not dangerous. Goodman received only slight injuries.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Lawyer Goudy Thinks It Will Be Held at Chicago Next to the Lake.

MR. GOUDY has returned from Washington, says a Chicago telegram, bringing with him a large and sanguine hope that the Democratic National Convention will meet in Chicago.

Mr. S. S. Gregory, chairman of the local committee on the national convention, says that members of the national committee are very encouraged by the national committee's action in the way of the convenience of New York by coming to Chicago. Mr. Goudy says the national committee will probably hold an early convention. The Democratic leaders want to get their tickets in the market and their platform before the country before the Republican convention meets June 15. By a sort of unwritten law, based on custom, the minority party for over a quarter has held its convention first. The Democrats propose to follow this custom. They will probably hold their convention a week or two before the Republican convention. Mr. Goudy, who is a member of the committee, thinks June 5 will be the choice of that body.

INDIGNANT MANITOBANS.

The Province on the Eve of the Greatest Agitation It Has Ever Had.

A WINNIPEG special says a perfect storm of indignation has been created among the independent members of the conservative party over the proposition for a compromise with the Dominion Government and the Canadian Pacific outlined in the conservative meeting at Brandon. A plan therein proposed for the selection of Norquay as the successor of Dewdney, and declares that all agitation for the completion of the Red River Valley railroad should be abandoned if the Canadian Pacific makes certain concessions, among them that the monopoly shall be abandoned in 1891. It is the general belief that Manitoba is on the eve of an agitation far greater than any previous one.

Fire Losses.

FIRE destroyed the Peoria Chamber of Commerce, entailing a loss of $250,000. The destruction by fire of a business block in Pittsburg caused a loss of $300,000, and Mamaroneck, N. Y., suffered a loss of $200,000 by a similar disaster. The printing establishment of H. W. Booker, State printer at Springfield, Ill., was burned, and valuable documents and manuscripts destroyed; the loss is estimated at $100,000. The Chappell block at East Saginaw, Wis., was destroyed, loss, $60,000. The Chemical Paper Company's mill at South Holyoke, Mass., burned; loss, $75,000. The Western Theological Seminary, Ridge avenue, Allegheny City, was damaged to the extent of $15,000, while many students lose their books and clothing.

Tally-Sheet Forgers Convicted.

THE jury in the trial of the election workers at Indianapolis returned a verdict, finding Simon Coy and W. F. A. Bernhamer guilty as charged, and declaring Stephen J. Marmon not guilty. Judge Claypool, one of the lawyers engaged in prosecuting the cases, was assaulted by John E. Sullivan, County Clerk, whom Claypool denounced in the trial as a villain.

Telegrams in Brief.

GERMAN ice has been excluded from the St. Louis public schools.

AN explosion of natural gas at Indianapolis injured several persons.

THE jury has declared the famous Cora Lee "not guilty," at Springfield, Mo., as recited.

AN order has been issued suspending the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Pennsylvania.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., is wildly excited because a colored clergyman has been placed on the Board of Education.

COL. WIMODE, of West Virginia, has been called upon by the authorities of Logan County to send troops to suppress the McCoy-Hatfield feud.

AN express train on the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Road was derailed near Ferrand, Mich. One passenger was fatally and several badly injured.

THREE negroes were taken from jail at Plymouth, N. C., by a party of masked men and shot to death. The prisoners were charged with the murder of a peddler.

A MOVEMENT is on foot in Congress to suppress lotteries of all kinds, and pass a bill prohibiting newspapers containing lottery advertisements from circulating through the mails.

THE EASTERN STATES.

A TERRIFIC explosion, the effects of which were felt for miles around, occurred at the dynamite factory at Dethayer's Station, near Jenkintown, N. Y. Four men were engaged in the manufacture of dynamite cartridges when a large can of deadly stuff exploded, tearing the building to pieces and blowing the unfortunate workmen to the air and landing their torn and bleeding many yards away. All were badly injured. The force of the explosion was so great that it rent the earth in many places a hundred yards away. Hugo Pieces of timber were scattered for a distance of a mile and a half, while every pane of glass within a half-mile of the spot was shattered into fragments.

NEAR Huntingdon, Pa., three masked men entered the hut of Henry Merritts, an aged bachelor, with the intention of securing the money which he possessed. He refused to confess the hiding place, upon which they bound and gagged the man, held his bare feet to the fire, and otherwise maltreated him. The robbers carried off $2,000 which they had concealed under the flooring. Merritts is not expected to recover.

THE Eastern States, notably New England, have been suffering from the effects of a blizzard which, judging from the telegraphic reports, was not a bit less severe than some of the boreal waves that so frequently sweep over the Northwest. The temperature was below zero, the wind blew sixty miles an hour, and snow fell to the depth of from fifteen to twenty inches, placing a complete embargo on railway traffic. Several serious railroad accidents are reported as a result of the disorganization which spread among train men all along the various lines.

THE WESTERN STATES.

A MAN was found in a lumber yard at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the other day, with his throat cut. He was taken to the hospital, and was found to be Wendl Cermey, a Bohemian carpenter of Scotland, Dakota. He claimed he had been in Sioux City, where he was accused of complicity in the Haddock murder, and was threatened with lynching. This preyed on his mind and led him to attempt suicide. Before his wounds were dressed, he waited to repeat of the Haddock tragedy, but when told he would live he refused to talk further about it. When, in spite of himself, he was assured that the Haddock murderer had been caught, he said: "No, they haven't got him yet." The physicians say he is case, and it is thought he knows much of the Sioux City crime.

A ST. LOUIS dispatch announces the death of George Clark, one of the best known printers in the United States. He had been twice President of the International Typographical Union, and President of the local union times without number. Mr. Clark was a prominent candidate for the office of Public Printer previous to the appointment of Benedict, and had the indorsement of all the typographical unions as well as the support of the Missouri delegation in Congress. He would have been appointed had not the President preferred an Eastern man. Mr. Clark was proof-reader on the Globe-Democrat at the time of his death. He is alleged that half the citizens of Bainbridge, Ohio, have been involved in coal thefts of a singular character. A miner, Constable Marshal, a hotel proprietor, and twelve prominent citizens have been arrested, and many other persons will be locked up. Although coal is universally used at Bainbridge, not a car-load has been billed to a resident this winter.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

A NUMBER of Democratic members of the House of Representatives from Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, Texas, Missouri, and other tobacco-growing States held a meeting at Washington the other day and decided to unite in a request for the removal of Mr. J. B. Dodge, Statistician of the Department of Agriculture, on account of the alleged effects in his estimate of the tobacco crop last summer.

MR. SPOONER, of Wisconsin, has introduced in the United States Senate a bill "to regulate commerce carried on by telegraph," a synopsis of which is telegraphed from Washington.

The bill applies to persons or corporations engaged in interstate telegraphy or in telegraphing from a foreign country to points in the States. It declares that all rates shall be reasonable and just, and forbids discrimination of any sort against persons or places, or against other telegraph companies. It requires the publication of rates and the allowance of reasonable time for other telegraph companies are also required to publish their rates and file a copy with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and also to notify the commission by days notice of any lower changes. Telegraph companies violating the provisions of the act are liable to the aggrieved persons injured thereby for damages which may be recovered either by suit before the commission or in the courts. In suits for damage the telegraph company is required to prove that the charge complained of was a reasonable one. The commission is empowered to investigate matters whether of a criminating nature or otherwise, when demanded by petition signed by five citizens, or on its own motion against them in any criminal case. The commission is empowered to call for the attendance of witnesses, compel their testimony, and enforce the production of the books and papers of the telegraph companies. The commission is empowered to inquire into the business of telegraph companies, and to investigate complaints under substantially the same provisions that constitute the Interstate Commerce Bill, which provisions have been canvassed into by the commission.

AFTER some discussion, says a Washington special, the House Committee on Banking and Currency on Thursday referred to a sub-committee Mr. Weaver's bill providing for the issue of $20,000,000 in fractional currency to meet the public demand for currency that can be readily nailed in small amounts. The discussion tended generally to develop a sentiment in favor of omitting about $20,000,000 in currency of this description.

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

THE Republicans of the District of Columbia met in convention at Washington on Tuesday to choose delegates to the National Convention. What followed is thus told by the Associated Press agent:

Most of the delegates were negroes. In less than half an hour the convention was little more than a pandemonium, and the rival factions were struggling for mastery in possession of the stage. Frederick Douglass, who was chosen temporary chairman, called the order and had money, but he had no sooner finished then both factions broke again. Chairs were thrown and shouting continued until about 4 o'clock, at which time there was more of the appearance of a prize fight than when it assembled. The police who had been passive spectators of the disorderly proceedings, then took possession of the stage and cleared the hall. Half an hour later the Douglass faction, which claimed to be the majority, were readmitted one by one and the convention reassembled. Douglass was chosen, and the delegates who belonged to the majority faction in the Chase faction finally succeeded in getting a vital control of the convention, and elected delegates. Their Chairman, Mr. Lewis, of Ward 2, was chosen temporary. The Carson faction then took possession of the hall, and elected another set of delegates, known to be favorable to Sherman.

THE Louisiana Republicans assembled in convention in New Orleans and nominated the following State ticket unanimously: For Governor, H. C. Warmoth; for Lieutenant-Governor, H. C. Minor; for Attorney-General, W. G. Wyly; for Treasurer, A. H. Breer; for Auditor, James Foverth; for Secretary of State, J. H. Patty; for Superintendent of Education, S. F. Flanders. The candidate for Governor, H. C. Warmoth, was the first Republican Governor of the State. H. C. Minor, the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, is a large sugar planter in Terre Bonne Parish. Andrew Herz, the candidate for Treasurer, is an ex-Confederate soldier. J. F. Patty, the candidate for Secretary of State, is the only colored man on the ticket. The platform adopted by the convention contains a strong protection plank, and indorses the Blair educational bill.

On the 16th ballot the Republicans of the Eleventh Michigan District broke a deadlock in convention at Ishpeming, nominated Henry W. Seymour for Congress. The Democrats met at Marquette, and named Barthel Breen, while the Prohibitionists, in convention at Ishpeming, named S. S. Stalle for the vacant Congressional seat.

The following Albany special to the New York Sun tells briefly the story of the meeting of the Democratic State Committee:

The Democratic State Committee failed to agree on a chairman to represent New York in the National Committee. Senator Hill was not at the Delaware House, and after thirty ballots adjourned without day. The vote was 17 for J. Jewell T. Flower and 17 for William C. Mowry on each ballot. This leaves the state without a representative on the committee. It was a square issue, and it was down between the friends of the President and the friends of the Governor, and neither won.

JULIUS S. GRINNELL is growing as a candidate for Governor of Illinois on the Democratic ticket, says a Chicago telegram. His party in Cook County is not united on him, but the contest promises to be hopeless to place his name at the head of its columns.

THE FOREIGN BUDGET.

REPORTS of dullness in the bituminous coal trade come from Pittsburg, and a tendency to a reduction in prices in Chicago and other Western points is announced.

J. R. COG, Nationalist member of Parliament for Clare, was arrested in London, after having been hunted long days and nights from back to Ennis, where he will be tried for addressing proclaimed league meetings. A row occurred at the railway station at Galway between a crowd which was awaiting the arrival of Fathers Dunlea and Francis and the police. The latter charged the people, using their baton freely, while the crowd retaliated by throwing stones at the police. Several persons were injured, among them a member of the Municipal Council, who received three cuts on the head from a policeman's baton.

MR. FAYRER, of Tipperary, M. P. for the North Division of the County Monaghan, has been sentenced to four months' imprisonment in Dundalk and Clonmel for offenses against the coercion act in a speech delivered in County Donegal last January. The other gentlemen were sentenced at the same time for similar proceeding—one to four, the other to three months. Notice of an appeal was given, but they were allowed out on bail, but no sooner had the member of Parliament given his recentities than the police put him under arrest again for a speech delivered in County Kilkenny.

THE WORLD AT LARGE.

A COMMUNICATION transmitted to the Senate of the United States from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shows that since the present system of internal-revenue taxation went into effect, September 1, 1862, down to June 3, 1887, there was collected from the taxes on distillers, $25,128,819; brewers, $5,952,963; manufacturers of tobacco, $2,271,002; manufacturers of opium, $2,000; on dealers in leaf tobacco, $2,000; on dealers in manufactured tobacco, $2,000; on dealers in manufactured opium, $2,000; on distillers having a distilling capacity exceeding a certain fixed amount, $7,836,487. The production of distilled spirits during this time was 1,645,063,194 gallons, and of fermented liquors 369,719,292 barrels. The amount of tax collected on the spirits was $1,090,357,880, and on fermented liquors $249,596,119.

THE British Columbia mining disaster proves to have been of greater magnitude than the first reports indicated. A telegram from Victoria says:

A dispatch received here from Nanaimo, about fifteen miles east from the accident occurred, says the bodies of the men who lost their lives in the colliery explosion were found thirty-one white men and forty-one Chinamen. The men were found in a heap in the east slope when the accident occurred, and it is thought they died from the effects of the explosion or by the foul gas. The bodies of the men were found in the location of the bodies when found in the location of the bodies when found in the location of the bodies when

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

Representative Blount, of Georgia, introduced a bill in the house authorizing the issue of letter-sheet envelopes, which shall be sold at cost of manufacture, with the addition of the value of the stamp.

A SPECIAL from Marquette to the Grand Rapids Democrat, says that "W. R. Bates, chairman of the republican state central committee, has arrived here to take charge of the campaign. Orders have gone forth to the mining bosses to have the miners vote solid for Seymour against Breen. As one of the wealthy republican mine owners stated to-day, 'I'll be blanked if we're going to have our men crowing over us.' The railroad magnates have been called on to put up money for the election of Seymour, who as chairman of the railroad committee in the senate last winter championed the railroad interests. Breen's friends are making a plucky up-hill fight." And a special from Detroit states that besides secretary Bates, ex-governor Blair and senator Babcock have also gone to the rescue of the eleventh district from the hands of the laboring men. It is needless to add that the "barrel of boodle" is also there, and "on tap."

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

Detroit has $3,000,000 in churches.

Emmet county will vote on local option Feb. 28

Calhoun county goes "dry" by about 3,000 majority.

Ingham county gives nearly 3,000 majority for prohibition.

It is said that a Michigan girl has found 2,125 four-leaf clovers, and isn't married yet.

St. Ignace prosecutes her marshal for failure to levy and collect poll taxes according to a city ordinance.

Michigan originally had 150,000,000,000 of pine, but it is now estimated from 12,000,000,000 to 20,000,000,000 feet.

John Tad-gas-ong, the chief of the band of Indians near Oceola, says his people have lived in that region for 400 years.

A lecturer at Grand Rapids says he can prove it to be a physical and moral abomination to wear mustache, and the fashion ought to be fired out.

A man over in Antrim county, on his way home from town, drank until he was tired, then laid down in the snow to rest. He was found frozen to death.

It is proposed to have the skin of "Old Buckskin," the horse that Lieut. Baker rode at the capture of J Wilkes Booth, mounted and placed in the state military museum at Lansing.

The business men's association of Lansing has passed resolutions declaring it a commercial necessity that congress authorize the issuing of fractional currency in denominations of 5, 10, 25, and 50 cents, for the convenience of sending small sums of money through the mails.

The seductive Bohemian cat industry has received its death blow. It comes in the shape of a straight-from-the-shoulder decision of the supreme court, and as a result many thousands of dollars will be saved to farmers, and hundreds of deluded agriculturists throughout the state will draw a long breath of relief. The supreme court's decision is on an appeal from Gratiot county, which has been generally regarded as a test case.

American Wages.

Wages are higher in this country than in other countries, because our workingmen are more intelligent, do better work and more of it, and are better organized. The present war tariff has about as much to do with raising the rates of wages as last year's almanac.—Albany Argus.

Voorhees and Chamberlain.

Joe Chamberlain is accused of bad behavior on the floor of the senate while Mr. Voorhees was delivering his speech in reply to Sherman. Mr. Chamberlain's conduct should occasion no astonishment. If there is anything which can make an Englishman of the ruling class squirm it is to hear the principles of true Democracy set forth in due and ancient form.—St. Louis Republican.

Of the "Hurrah Boys" Order.

The Minneapolis Journal remarks that the "unanimity of Minnesota for Mr. Blaine is not so unanimous as it was." No, the Blaine enthusiasm is of the "hurrah boys" order, and will be hard to find by next November.—Farrington Tribune.

An Interesting Spectacle.

Next to Blaine himself making a speech for civil service reform, it is hard to imagine anything funnier than Eugene Hale playing such a part.—Philadelphia Times.

Get your neighbor to subscribe for the JOURNAL.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 4.—The House has been in session nearly two months without developing anything characteristic. The qualities of timidity of humbuggery appear most marked. There are plenty of young men and there are some fine heads and bright eyes, but no one has said anything. All the members seem to have settled down to the dullest sort of common-place.

General Weaver, of Iowa, who used to sit just on the edge of the democratic side, and of whose democracy there was some doubt, has got right into the heart of the party, and has jumped into a prominence that is astonishing to some of his old associates. He comes to the front with more boldness than any man on that side, and has developed qualities as a leader. He is conferred with by Mr. Mills, who, as leader of the House, relies on him for assistance and support. He is listened to with more respect than he ever was before. The House seems to have just discovered that there is a great deal in him.

The complaints of congressmen on account of interruptions by callers during the sessions of the house multiply in number and daily become more emphatic. Some men who represent near-by districts in Maryland and Virgidia declare that they spend at least one-half of each sitting, of the house in the outside corridors listening to the complaints, appeals and demands of importunate constituents, while other representatives do not fare much better. Some of them have been compelled to deny themselves to callers, while others have prohibited the delivery of any cards to them when the house is in session. The assistant doorkeepers at the various entrances to the hall of the house kept tally on Tuesday of the cards sent in to members during the day. It was estimated that there fewer people at the capital than usual, yet 1,700 cards were sent in, 800 of these going in by the main door. This does not include all the cards sent in from the ladies reception room, which must have numbered at least 700.

The resolution introduced in the House by Representative Anderson, of Iowa, to authorize the institution of judicial proceedings against the various Pacific railroad companies, contains in a preamble the charge of mismanagement and fraudulent manipulation of the affairs of the companies embodied in the Hosley resolution of last year, and directs the Attorney-General to bring suit against the companies to enforce the forfeitures prescribed in the Thurman act. He is directed to include as parties defendant in the suit against the central Pacific, C. P. Huntington, Leland Stanford, and Charles Crocker, and in the case of the Union Pacific, John B. Alley, Elijah Atkins, Ezra H. Bacon, Sidney Dillon, Jay Gould, Frederick L. Ames and Russell Sage. The Attorney General is also directed to make application to the United States courts for the appointment of receivers to manage the trusts.

The accumulation of bills in the senate and house of representatives providing for the construction of new public buildings, illustrates the temptation to extravagance that will always be afforded by a large surplus in the treasury. These bills number 60 in the senate, providing for the expenditure of about $13,000,000, and 150 in the House, appropriating in the aggregate $15,000,000. The amounts vary from $50,000 to $2,000,000 with little reference to the actual needs of the public service in the matter of new buildings. Nobody pretends that the bills will be closely examined with reference to those needs and dealt with on their merits. It will be a grand demonstration of logrolling. Supporters of meritious bills will be given to understand that they cannot have votes enough to pass them unless they give their support to others that have no merit. It is a grand scramble to give one hundred thousand-dollar post-offices to towns in which ample accomodations can be obtained at a rent of 1 per cent of that amount. There seems to be little hope that civil service reform will be found in either house to stem the tide of reckless extravagance, and though congressmen may be depended upon to veto the worst of the schemes, it is a question if he will be sustained even by one-third of the members. The manner in which these appropriations are made, without any proper examination of the actual needs of the government, is a disgrace to our national legislation.

The inventor of the Maxim automatic gun some few weeks ago presented the navy department with two of the pieces and desires to get the United States to adopt the gun. A trial was given of the invention this week and the results are all that is claimed. It is a rapid-firing, small-caliber weapon, operating solely by the action of the recoil. Its chief advantages are its small weight and its portability, the whole gun in its box weighing less than 70 pounds, the box being about 6 feet in length and a foot square. The gun is provided with a water-jacket around the barrel, which prevents overheating. Seven hundred shots a minute can be fired. The action is started by the operator, who sits on a saddle on the rear leg of the tripod, pressing on a spring in the breech, when the firing begins. The feed is from belts holding about one-hundred shots each, which are contained in a box fitting under the middle of a gun. Sighting is done by means of a pair of handles at the breech, and the gun, being so light, can be readily moved so as to sweep the horizon in a very extended field.

Senator Hoar has introduced a joint resolution authorizing the president to open negotiations with the government of Great Britain and the dominion of Canada for the purpose of having the Welland canal made free to the merchant ships of the United States, and also for the construction and opening of a free ship canal from the Bay of Fundy to the Gulf of St. Lawrence at the joint expense of both nations. The president is also requested, in view of the probable competition in the building of the proposed canal and ship railway to unite the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, to enter upon negotiations with the proper authorities to secure the freedom of the canal in perpetuity to the American merchant marine. Also to take similar steps to obtain the freedom of the Suez canal for the American mercantile service.

Wide Awake for February.

February Wide Awake has come; bright with pictures and full of entertainment and wisdom for young folks.

One series of papers alone is enough to make the fortune of a magazine, "The Children of the White House" by Mrs. Upton; a familiar sketch of the children of John Adams with many curious portraits and relics.

"About Rosa Bonheur" by Henry Bacon is accompanied by copies of several of her pictures with a portrait of the artist herself in her studio.

"My Uncle Florimond" by Sidney Luska comes to its third instalment.

Mrs. Sherwood takes "Those cousins of Mabel's" to Richfield Springs.

Olive Bisby Seward visits the Great Wall of China.

Oscar Fay Adams occupies himself with Æsop the story-teller.

And many more. The number is very rich, varied and interesting.

A sample copy can be obtained by sending five cents to the publishers, D. Lothrop Company, Boston.

Detroit Journal For $1.00.

The Sunday's issue (eight pages) of the Detroit Evening Journal will be mailed to any address for one year for one dollar ($1.00), or every day for $5.00.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever sores, Tetter Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

F. E. WOOD,

BARBER SHOP

And Bath Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COWEN, Proprietor.

CHARLEVOIX - - MICHIGAN.

Finest location in town, giving good view of lake and resorts. Express office, and headquarters for hunters and Elk Rapids stages. Good sample room for commercial travelers adjoining hotel.

PENSION BLANKS.

And all other blanks used in prosecuting claims before the U. S. Pension, Patent, or Land offices Send for price-list. Address,

J. H. WHEELER,

Rooms 512 Seventh St., Washington, D. C.

Old Newspapers for Sale.

THE FRENCH NURSE.

Her Career as Queen of the Household. A Recognized and Expensive Institution.

Her first care is to provide for her own infant, which she farms out to some acquaintance similarly situated, and who, for a small compensation, undertakes the care and nourishment of two, or even three, babies at the same time. By determinedly supplementing her meager food supply with potatoes, bouillon and cow's or goat's milk, this brevet mother manages to feed her duplicate or triplicate charge, but although the little ones have a hard time of it. If they live it is only to inherit a life of toil and privation. If they die, what matter? And they do die in such numbers that statistics show that of the farmed out children of France less than 40 per cent. live to reach the age of 5 years.

Thus emancipated from her own trouble, the nurse enters upon her career as queen of the household. She appreciates the importance of her role and is not slow in compelling the entire family to recognize it. Her wages are not only nearly double those of the cook or chambermaid, but she is precious and must be tenderly nourished and cared for. She can eat only the choicest food. She must have her regular sleep and not be startled by scolding or fault finding; otherwise the effect might be disastrous to the baby. She must have abundance of fresh air, and nothing is so exactly to her mind as gossiping with other nurses and their charges from under the trees in the park or public promenade on pleasant afternoons.

She is the one servant in the establishment who cannot be discharged for any misdemeanor and replaced by a substitute, and she makes the utmost profit out of this circumstance. Her exactions are specific and conceded by custom so old as to have almost the force of law. When the baby is christened she is entitled to a liberal present of money, when it cuts its first tooth she expects another; when it walks alone she expects another, and when the event must be celebrated by a substantial gift to the nurse, who has developed these manifestations. If she be thoroughly competent and knows her trade well, she has come into service in her shabbiest clothes, so that madam, who cannot bear to have her infant exhibited in the arms of a slattern, has had to supply the divinity of the nursery with a presentable wardrobe.

It is thus that the nursing of children in France has become not only a recognized industry, but so expensive withal, and so troublesome as to lay a serious embargo upon the reproductive capacity of the people. In that country, where labor is cheap and opportunities for acquiring wealth comparatively few, the keynote of all domestic life, especially in the provinces, and among the laboring classes everywhere, is economy. While people in easy circumstances deprecate large families of children by reason of the restraints and troubles they entail, the peasant and operative classes dread the advent of a baby on account of the expense which it must involve.

"We love children," say many of these poor people," but how can we afford so costly a luxury?"

Such are the elements of the vital problem in France, against which all the elaborate machinery now being invented, admired and talked about in Paris can hardly a very limited influence. The difficulties are too deep to be reached by nursing bottles, hobby horses or bath tubs.—Philadelphia Times.

J. Russell Lowell on Blaine.

The Courier-Journal refers to The New York Tribune to deliverances by Mr. Lowell, even more personal and obnoxious than those contained in his recent Boston speech. We find for instance the following lines in the "Biglow Papers," and they apply with peculiar aptness to Mr. Blaine as the Republican candidate in 1888:

Case exonerates air dead an' gone, and some has been defeated,
Which reminds yo pooty much the same, fer it's been proved repeated
A heap o' breed that hain't ris once ain't goin' to rise agin,
An' yer jest money thrown away to put the magine in
But there's times folks won't never liars; they must have to go,
Arter you want their room, no more'n a bullet begged beer;
There's other's chaps a-langin' roun' that can't see position's part;
Mr'ble as roosters in a rain, heads down an' tails half sunk:
It ain't disgraceful bein' beat, when a hull nation does it,
But chance is like an amberill—it don't take twice to lose it.—Interior-Journal.

The Union Is Restored.

Mr. Lamar had been a rebel during the war and a Democrat since the war. On this ground the Republican senators were urged to submit action on his nomination to the decision of a political caucus. The defeat of the attempt is gratifying, because its success would have indicated a disposition to give a partizan complexion to the highest court in the United States. The people would not have objected to the most searching scrutiny of the nominee's legal qualifications for the high position. They did very generally object to the consideration of his pretended political qualifications. The result marks William E. Chandler's first failure as a bloody shirt leader in the senate.—New York World.

They Can't Cope with Randall.

Mr. Randall, the Democratic leader in the house, took some of the Republican orators in hand the other day and wiped the floor with them. The debate was over the little deficiency bill. Fred Mussey, who is a Republican, writes to The Commercial Gazette as follows: "It must be acknowledged that what Mr. Randall said was a little bit ugly for the Republicans to tackle, and it was remarked that he was not replied to from the Republican side." There is no Republican congressman capable of coping with Mr. Randall on the floor on the house.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Good Thing All Around.

We congratulate the cabinet on the accession to its counsels of so able and energetic a member as Postmaster General Dickinson. We likewise congratulate Mr. Vilas on his transfer to a broader field of usefulness, as well earned recognition of the ability with which he has administered the office of postmaster general. We congratulate the president that, at the same time that he has well settled a mighty issue by the appointment of Justice Lamar, he has so felicitously completed a harmonious and efficient cabinet. —New York Star.

The attitude of The Tribune toward Mr. Lamar is the attitude of the Republican party toward the south, and, taken in connection with Mr. Chandler's electoral bill, it makes impossible any Republican gains in the south during the next campaign.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charvleoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

The only exclusive stock of DRY GODOS in Charlevoix, at the corner of Bridge and Main Streets.

GRAND CLOSING OUT SALE of LADIES' WRAPS AND JACKETS AT COST.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

DO YOU WANT

PURE DRUGS

Or Carefully Compounded Prescriptions,

CALL ON US.

DO YOU SMOKE? We Keep the Best Cigars.
DO YOU LIKE MUSIC? We will take pleasure in showing our well-selected Stock?

Yours Respectfully,

F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,

Druggists and Pharmacists,

Opera Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

S. & I. 1888 S. & I.

You will need something in our line during 1888. Do get fail to buy of us. You will SAVE YOUR DOLLARS by so doing.

Yours Respectfully,

S. & I. CHAPPEE.

Charlevoix, Mich., Jan. 1, 1888.

Stoves, Saws, Axes, Files, and Tools of all kinds. Then you may want a New Stove. If you do, you miss it if you don't get one of ours. A majority, a large majority, of the Stove Buyers of this county will tell you, We've got their names, and can refer direct to them. The Champion Pumps, too; what a splendid record they have, working easily and quickly.

Come and see us; if you want anything, BUY OF US. Yours in the belief that we will not fail to please you.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,

Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.

TERRACE FARM. - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

Bargains

IN

BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

THE ATKINS SAWS

NEW PERFECTION AXES

Round Oak Stoves.

Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Feb. 9, 1888.

Local Notes and News.

☞ Valentines at Weed's. Call early.

☞ For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. my1

☞ Perry Weed has put in a full line of legal blanks.

See to it that you are registered Saturday, if not already.

☞ Perry Weed is carrying a large assortment of legal blanks.

☞ You will find it easy to select a valentine at Perry Weed's.

☞ For legal blanks of all kinds, go to Perry Weed's book-store.

☞ Perry Weed has a large assortment of valentines to select from.

☞ The handsomest valentines ever brought to Charlevoix are found at Perry Weed's.

☞ Call on G. W. Beaman when selecting Valentines. He has the finest line in town.

☞ If you want to pay part of the cost of a new organ with green wood, call at this office for particulars.

The singing school promises to be a success. A large number joined Monday evening, and the class now has over 60 members.

A. I. Mudge will soon move his stock of groceries into the Crouter building, two doors north of the post office, recently occupied by J. F. Smith.

S. M. See & Sons have purchased the store building lately occupied by Will See & Co. and will move their stock of furniture into the same in about ten days.

☞ If you want something nice, or something comical in the line of Valentines, just drop into G. W. Beaman's where you can have a large assortment to select from.

Many of his friends have received hand-books and circulars descriptive of Salt River Valley, Arizona, from Ed. F. Parmelee, who has been sampling fruit in that region the last few weeks.

C. S. Hampton, of the Petoskey Independent Democrat has been sued in Emmet circuit court for $10,000 damage by E. F. Allen, of Boyne, for the publication of an article in that paper alleged to be libelous.

F. A. Watson has purchased the engine and boiler lately used in Horton & Budd's lapidary and placed them on the second floor of Pappin's blacksmith shop where he will engage in turning brush handles.

A. Buttars, Stockman & Iddings, John Nicholls and a number of others are making arrangements to cut all the cedar bolts into shingles that they can purchase. They will lease power of the Charlevoix manufacturing company.

A. M. Bennett has bought thirteen acres of land on the shore of Pine lake. Clay, suitable for brick-making, is found there in paying quantities, and Mr. Bennett intends to engage in that business as soon as work begins on the D. C. & E. railroad.—Bellaire Breeze.

C. Badd has just finished an elegant secretary for C. H. Whitford, of Undine, of native wood, which is so fine as anything in that line we have seen in a long time. It is made of dark-colored cherry, with birds-eye maple panels and mouldings, and is altogether, a rich piece of furniture.

Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba railroad company proposes to condemn property enough for right of way across the land of Charlevoix summer resort company, which owns beautiful grounds practically within the limits of that charming little city. Railroad officials say they can have the road bed ready for iron within forty days from the time work is commenced on the division between Kalkaska and Charlevoix. They propose to build huge dock at Charlevoix with side tracks on one side, and prophesy for the town a splendid growth on account of its location relative to rail and water transportation facilities, its excellent harbor and its adaptation for manufacturing industry.—Otsego County Herald.

Coming Events.

The subject at the Congregational church Sunday evening will be Local Option, by the pastor.

Remember that next Tuesday is the only chance for three years that you will have to express your sentiment on the question of local prohibition.

Ladies should not forget the regular weekly meeting of the W. C. T. U. at Jefferies hall Friday afternoon at 2:30; also the half hour prayer service at same hour and place.

The ministers exchange pulpits next Sunday morning. Rev. H. G. Clark will occupy the Congregational church, Rev. A. O. Downs the M. E. church and Rev. W. H. McCartney the Baptist church. Each will occupy his own pulpit in the evening.

Don't forget the calico masquerade ball to be given by the Charlevoix fire department, at the opera hall on Wednesday evening, February 22d. Music by Blakeley's full band. Tickets to dance 75 cents. Spectators' tickets 25 cents. An oyster supper will be served at the Fountain City house, 75 cents per couple. The department have spared no labor and expense to make this party the grandest success of the season.

Purely Personal.

J. Milo Eaton returned from Saginaw Saturday.

Mrs. Cash. Rifenburg went to Muskegon Monday.

Ira. H. Morehouse has been granted an original pension.

Miss Lula Gray, of Alanson is the guest of Miss Lula Bacon.

Elsie Webb expects to go to Cadillac next Monday for a visit.

S. H. Beardslee left Monday for Chicago on railroad business.

A. F. Draper of South Arm made us a brief call Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. N. J. Perry returned Saturday from his three months visit at Pontiac.

F. D. Phillips has returned from his business trip to the upper peninsula.

W. A. Brown will represent Charlevoix Lodge I. O. O. F. at Lansing next week.

Mrs. Eunice Allen of Hastings is visiting at the home of her brother, J. A. Hawkins.

W. H. Downer left Monday for points in Georgian Bay looking up the cedar business.

Bryant Weed returned Tuesday from the state normal school, on account of poor health.

A. D. Crinckshank left Monday for Battle Creek to attend the Grand Encampment I. O. O. F. in session there this week.

G. W. Jefferies and daughter, Miss Gladys left yesterday for a visit at Clare. Miss Gladys will remain about six weeks

Dr. Crouter goes to Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. this week, to be followed by a few days with friends in Canada, after which he expects to devote his entire time during business hours to dental work, in the office in rear of Beaman's drug store. He will be back to business in about ten days.

Eveline.

INGERSOL, Feb. 7.—The shortest month in the year.

Has it occurred to you that next Tuesday, Feb. 14, is St. Valentine's day?

Born—to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tridgeon Jan. 26, a son.

Miss Clara Hayden has gone to East Jordan, to stay a short time with the family of Chas. Hosler.

Quite a crowd at Mrs. Trimble's last Friday evening. The ticket was 75 cents which entitled the holder to a chance of drawing a silver watch. As yet we have not learned who was the lucky one.

The small saw-mill at Dwight started up Monday.

Local option is all the talk now-a-days in this town.

Miss Mary Johnson, teacher in mountain district spent Sunday in East Jordan.

Industrial school meets every Saturday afternoon at 1:30; the little boys are requested to come in at 3:30 and learn to sing.

A. D. Jones, formerly of Eveline, but now of Ruminus writes that his wife has presented him with a fine 10 pound boy.

Miss Sibbie Miller is home from Norwood where she has been for the past two months.

Services next Sunday at the M. E. church at 7:30 by Rev. J. Dornance.

The following is the report of the school in mountain district for the month ending Jan. 27, as handed to us by the teacher Miss Mary Johnson: The pupils present every day were Ephraim Tuttle, John Galbraith, Ivy Gregory, Edith Hammond, Alma Freeman, Selina Saunders, Sadie Benson. Average daily attendance fifteen.

Historical Society.

The historical society will meet this week with Dr. Carleton. The paper will be presented by Miss Carrie Hilton; subject, "Mary and the Monarchy." The conversation will be lead by Robert Miller and Mrs. W. H. McCartney.

DEATH OF MRS. G. W. CROUTER.

She Passes Peacefully Away at her Mothers Residence Here.

From the Strathroy (Ont.) Dispatch.

It is our painful duty to record this week the demise of the above estimable lady, wife of Dr. G. W. Crouter, of Charlevoix, Mich., and second daughter of Mrs. E. W. Auld, of this town, which sad event occurred at the residence of the latter on Saturday morning last, after an illness of some nine month's duration. Deceased was born in Warwick village on the 28th Nov. 1854, being but in the 34th year of her age at the time of her death, and came here with her mother in 1860, where she resided until her marriage with Mr. Crouter in 1874, who had been also a resident of Strathroy for some time, engaged in the drug business, both being well and favorably known to most of our older residents. Since that time, Charlevoix has claimed them as two of their most respected citizens. About a year ago their only daughter, 11 years of age, was taken from them after a long and lingering illness, during which the fond mother was in constant attendance, and to which is attributed in great measure her own early death. Some nine months ago it was apparent that the strain had been too much for her, and although everything possible was done, and the best physicians consulted, nothing appeared to give her relief. In October last, thinking that Southern California might effe t a change, her husband took her there, purchasing a residence at Pasadena, with the intention of remaining if the climate afforded the benefit sought. During the first month the effect appeared to be excellent, but afterwards this wore off, and a gradual decline set in, until on Friday afternoon, 20th ult., she expressed a wish that she might be taken home to die among her friends in Strathroy. This was promptly acceded to, and on Saturday a special Wagner was chartered and the sad journey commenced. Owing to the patient being so low, Dr. Crouter found it necessary to engage special trains to make connection at several points, arriving here on a special from Detroit, via Komoka, on Thursday evening of last week, having made the run from that city in two hours and fifteen minutes. She was immediately taken to her mother's residence, where she peacefully passed away on Saturday morning at six o'clock, surrounded by members of the family and near relatives, which was a source of great comfort and satisfaction to her. As each of the well known faces appeared, it seemed to brighten her up wonderfully, and for each she had a special message or request when bidding them a long farewell. To the last she was sensible and clear, thoroughly realizing her position, and by a long and constant Christian life, well prepared for the call that everyone must obey. Her principal regret was that her brother, Mr. W. H. Auld, of the Forest Free Press, was unable to be present on account of serious illness.

It being her desire that she should be interred beside her daughter at Charlevoix, the remains were taken there on Monday, being escorted to the station by a deputation from Howard Lodge, I. O. O. F., of which her husband and brother John A., of the Amherstburg Echo, are honored members, and numerous friends of the family. We might further state that Mr. Auld, Dr. Crouter, and the family feel very grateful to the many friends for their kind sympathy on the sad occasion.

The Journey from California.

Dr. Crouter, who brought his dying wife home from California to Strathroy last week on a special Wagner palace car, speaks very highly of the treatment received from the officials of the Southern Pacific, Wabash at Detroit, and particularly of Supt. R. Larmour, of the G. T. R. They left Los Angeles Saturday afternoon, reached Detroit at 5:50 p. m. on Thursday, and arrived at Strathroy at 8:30 the same day. It only took fifteen minutes to arrange for a special engine from Windsor.—Strathroy Dispatch.

Resolutions Adopted by the Charlevoix Historical Society, Feb. 3d.

Whereas, The death angel has again entered our ranks, and taken from us our accomplished and beloved associate, Mrs. Dr. Crouter, who for many years has been an esteemed member of this society, a faithful and efficient officer, and a personal friend, therefore

Resolved, That in Mrs. Crouter's death this society has sustained a great loss.

Resolved, That we desire to place on record our appreciation of her worth, and of the benefit we have derived by her work and presence as a member of this society.

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved husband and other relatives our most sincere sympathy in their great sorrow.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished our village papers for publication, and that a copy be given to Dr. Crouter.

MRS. DR. CARLETON,
MRS. O. D. WOOD,
REV. W. G. CLARK,
Committee.

CHARLEVOIX SCHOOLS.

Report for the Month ending February 3, 1888.

The following is the report of the Charlevoix public schools for the month ending Feb. 3d, as furnished by Prof. H. M. Enos, principal:

NUMBER ENROLLED.

First department, Mrs. Upright	40
Second department, Miss Mason	42
Third department, Miss O'Neill	46
Fourth department, Miss Nelson	46
Fifth, grammar section, Miss Gregory	46
Fifth, high school, H. M. Enos	26
Total	246

NUMBER BELONGING.

First department	37
Second department	42
Third department	44
Fourth department	45
Fifth, grammar section	27
Fifth, high school	23
Average	218

DAYS ATTENDANCE.

First department	646
Second department	716
Third department	869
Fourth department	865
Fifth, grammar section	567½
Fifth, high school	490½
Total	4654

DAYS LOST BY ABSENCE.

First department	44
Second department	29
Third department	32
Fourth department	21
Fifth, grammar section	46½
Fifth, high school	71
Total	174

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE.

First department	32.2
Second department	35.8
Third department	40
Fourth department	43.2
Fifth, grammar section	45.2
Fifth, high school	34.5
Total	231.6

CASES TARDY.

First department	4
Second department	10
Third department	7
Fourth department	6
Fifth, grammar section	3
Fifth, high school	1
Total	26

ATTENDANCE, PER CENT OF NUMBER BELONGING.

First department	92.62
Second department	96.1
Third department	96.19
Fourth department	97.62
Fifth, grammar section	95.81
Fifth, high school	96.49
Average	96.34

NUMBER OF PUPILS NEITHER ABSENT NOR TARDY DURING THE MONTH.

First department	11
Second department	26
Third department	20
Fourth department	24
Fifth, grammar section	27
Fifth, high school	20
Total	132

Mrs. Wright's Lectures.

The churches waived their prayer meetings last Thursday evening, and came together at the M. E. church to listen to the lecture given by Mrs. E. C. Wright, of Port Huron, upon the subject of local prohibition. The speaker arrived late, and found the meeting in progress, with the ministers in charge. The singing was led by W. A. Smith, prayer was offered by Rev. O. A. Downs, and Rev. W. H. McCartney led the subject with some excellent remarks. Mrs. Wright thought it scarcely necessary that she should speak, as the subject seemed to be thoroughly agitated already. She gave, however, an interesting address, showing in apt illustrations the great evils of intemperance. On Friday evening, Mrs. Wright spoke in Green's hall, to the young ladies, on the subject of social purity. The W. C. T. U. also enjoyed two of her interesting talks while she remained here.

W. C. T. U.

Ellsworth.

Feb. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hillman rejoice in the possession of a young daughter.

W. A. Boss, who has been quite sick the past week is much better.

School on the peninsula closed last Saturday, and the teacher, Wilbur Smith, returned to his home at Central Lake.

The series of revival meetings that were being held on the peninsula are now closed. We earnestly hope that the good done will be permanent.

Wm. Madill sr. and wife, of Leetsville, Mich., are visiting relatives here.

Secure Admission.

Who can help admiring a lovely face, a clear, smooth, beautiful complexion? These can easily be obtained by the use of Hamilton's Oriental Balm. It will surely remove Freckles, Tan, Pimples and Blemishes of every sort and is in no way injurious to the skin, but is the most harmless and elegant preparation of its kind. Price 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Beaman. 6m

Boyne

Feb. 6.—Our thaw, a very mild one has taken cold; it was 6° delow zero last night.

Oss son of Frank Smith, of this place has been very sick for several days

Richard Crane arrived home last Wednesday from New York, after having buried his Father, whose sickness called him thither some time since.

Marshall Holmes is on the sick list, having been confined to his bed for about a week.

Mrs. Suth Coon died in Bay City Jan.30 after a long and severe illness, leaving an infant child. Mrs. Coon, for several years previous to her marriage was a highly respected citizen of Boyne.

Rev. Conley, pastor of the German Evangelical church has been ill some days.

The revival services at the M. E. church will continue for this week.

Matt. Canningham, lumber in the Cadillac Pine lake mills has hammered saws when out of repair, for several sawmills in this vicinity lately, and always with success.

The Business Men's Association of Boyne held their first annual banquet last Wednesday. A very enjoyable time was had and a goodly attendance.

Hayes.

BURGESS, Feb. 7.—The many friends of Mrs. Burgess, one of the pioneers of this place, will be pained to learn of her death last Sunday.

Mr. Blyth's mother came from Canada last Thursday, to visit her son, who is working for Mr. Bennett.

Mrs. Edna Kane has been over in Evangeline a few days, visiting her father and brothers. Her father, Mr. Long, is some better.

Mr. Ed. Bartlett visited his friends in Hayes Monday and Tuesday of this week.

School closes in district No. 4 this week Friday.

More snow Monday night and Tuesday.

Wilson.

FEB. 6.—A mild week followed by cold winds again.

Elder Tracy preached at the school house on Sunday evening.

Elder Grover has gone to Advance to hold meetings.

F. B. Brower of Bronson now "sets" at the saw-mill.

Mrs. J. R. Vance visited relatives at East Jordan and South Arm last Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jason Lewis of Advance visited friends here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Hutkins spent Sunday with Mrs. H's parents, D. Delong.

Business has been lively the past week at the mill. Ten teams drawing logs, six drawing lumber, one drawing saw-dust, and one drawing slabs.

Arthur Cook, who has been in Cadillac for the past year, is shaking hands with friends here.

Wm. LeClair of South Arm was the guest of F. L. Smith one day last week.

James Wilson of Echo visited friends here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Vance were guests of J. R. and wife recently.

Harsard.

Feb. 7.—Mr. Rodney Bogart is expecting friends next week from Canada.

Miss Jennie Harkness is visiting at Rev. B. H. Whitman's in Norwood this week.

DIED.

BURGESS.—On Feb. 5, at the residence of E. H. Burgess, in Hayes, Mrs. Sylvia A. Burgess, aged 80 years and 4 months. Funeral services yesterday at 1 o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. H. McCartney.

VALENTINES!

The Finest Line in Town.

Geo. W. Beaman,

(Successor to G. W. CROUTER.)

DRUGS AND STATIONERY,

Charlevoix, - - Michigan.

VALENTINES!

The Finest Line in Town.

Quarter Off!

OUR ANNUAL SALE

of one-fourth off

DRY GOODS, CLOAKS AND Carpets.

We always Give our Customers a benefit when it is of some use. On February 1st Everything in our immense stock will go at 1-4 off. Now is a rare chance to secure a Cloak, of which we have a great many in Children's, Misses' and Ladies'.

RULE:----You purchase goods at regular retail prices and 1-4 will be deducted from the entire bill or One Dollars worth of Goods for Seventy-five Cents. This sale will continue until March, to get best value come early.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

SIBERIA.

Russia's Annual Crop of Criminals Amounts to Thirty Thousand.

That Number of Men and Women Exiled to Bleak Siberia Every Year.

How the Long and Dreary March of Three Thousand Miles Is Accomplished.

Wretched Life of the Unfortunate Creatures in the Far-Away North.

Recently received Russian statistics show that during the year 1887 no less than 30,000 people were sent from Russia as exiles to far away and inhospitable Siberia. John P. Jackson, a well-known journalist who spent some years in Siberia, has contributed to current literature an entertaining article on "Siberia and Its Exiles." He says that each year this great number of exiles join the army already in Siberia, and that its great exodus over the Imperial Russian Siberian Road, perhaps by steamer from Odessa via the Suez Canal to Sagalin, where they are condemned to labor in the mines, or to the country of the Trans-Baikal. They are the Guiteaus of Russia who believe in destruction rather than development, or in despair shoot their arrows against the heavens and are themselves the victims. Their favorite target for some years past has been the Czar, whose life has been made a burden to him ever since his coronation, and who may yet fall a victim to the assassin's bomb, as did his father, Alexander II. Then the exile army of Siberia would again be largely increased, the telegraph would throb with the dread news over the vast empire ruled by the White Czar, from the Baltic to the Black Sea, from Orenburg to Merv, and along the great line that extends four thousand miles from Ekaterinburg to the shores of the Pacific. And where the telegraph ends the news would be sent by couriers in sleds from governor to governor, from ispravnick to ispravnick, until the news reached the Tongusse and the Tchukchees dwelling on the shores of the Polar Ocean from the White Sea to Behring's Straits.

When the news of the assassination of Alexander II. reached Irkutsk, the courier who took the dispatches from the Governor General of Eastern Siberia to the Governor of Irkutsk, two thousand miles further to the north, the great journey was made within nine days, and the story of it causes a Yenshik to this day to shiver. But the officer did this at high pressure, eating and sleeping in his sled, and beating horses and drivers with his whip when speed was not rapid enough for him. In one place, however, he nearly came to grief. The Yenshiks refused longer to submit to his furious lashings, and getting round him, and supported by an entire village of sled-holders, they assumed a very threatening attitude. The officer had to draw his revolver in order to defend himself, but it is certain he would not have been allowed to proceed further had he not told the people the value of the important news of which he was the bearer. On his return from Irkutsk the officer was called to account for his brutality on the road, but as the nature of his mission was supposed to justify the harsh measures employed, he received only a slight punishment. Whether he met with adventures with wolves on his journey is a matter which may be left undecided. Wolves are not very plentiful on Siberian post roads, but then who ever heard of a Siberian adventure in which they did not take part?

But let us glance at a Siberian post road—a beautiful sledding-ground, 6,000 miles long, dotted every ten or fifteen miles with sleds bearing exiles to eastward, or with the convoys of unfortunates wearily plodding through the snow, the chains on their legs clanking musically in the crisp air, with the guards, like themselves, shivering in the biting blast of the pourge. Its strange feeling comes over you when, mounted among your trigs in your comfortable sled, you first hear the clank of the exiles' chains. You look out and there you see a procession, on the march from one steppe prison to another. It is fully three months since they left Moscow, in the bright autumn days. They were transported to Nishni-Novgorod by rail then they were transferred to the big cages on the exile steamboats as far as Perm; then by rail across the Urals to Ekaterinburg, and then further by steamboat to Tomsk. Then the weary marching commences in earnest; winter has come, but the great army must be kept on the march so as to leave the temporary prisons vacant for their successors. They are on their way to Irkutsk, or to the mines on the Lena, or of the Transbaikal. Their fetters are fastened round the legs just above the knees, so that though they can walk they cannot run away. They are the worst class of dangerous criminals. After the chain gang, who march ahead, preceded by soldiers with loaded rifles and fixed bayonets, follow sledges or wagons with the sick, the weak and exhausted, and the women and children.

In one such army I noticed several women and boys and girls who wandered freely alongside the men. They were the wives and children of some of the exiles. The former were peasant women, generally with coarse features, whose appearance was not calculated to awaken much sympathy. Yet they had women's loving hearts, had once been young and beautiful, had sworn to love, honor and cherish their husbands till death should them part; and they had willingly forsaken civilization to follow them to the unknown, in spite of the fact that a sentence of banishment at the same time is one of divorce. Some of the men were most debased and wretched-looking creatures—cutthroats, who looked as if banishment were not more than a sufficient punishment for them. But all exiles are not traveling over the Siberian snow wastes thus painfully. Those who can afford to do so can engage their own private vehicle and special guard, and make the journey to their destination as comfortably as the ordinary traveler. In such a way travel the "hooders" and erring bank presidents of Russia, and their destination is usually one of the great cities like Omsk, Tomsk, or Irkutsk, where they live as comfortably as their means will allow, and in time, if they have wealth enough, have a good chance of moving in good society, in something the same way that our boodle aldermen and embezzlers make themselves at home among our Canadian friends. Such an exile has not a very wretched time of it, for the large Siberian capitals are well-built, handsome cities, with amusements in plenty, and the millionaires who have gained wealth in the mines are not exclusive in their choice of companions. The only thing they have to do is to report occasionally to the police; otherwise they can do what they please, and life again, and make themselves useful and respectable citizens. Irkutsk is a pleasant place of abode for such exiles. It has been called the civilized beings and compelled to return to primeval methods of securing a subsistence by hunting and fishing. The so-called political exiles are perhaps the unhappiest, because they are not allowed to do any kind of work, but are kept in enforced idleness and allowed a small sum monthly for the necessaries of life.

The Pullman Conductor.

The attitude adopted by the Pullman Company toward its employes is so rigorous and unnecessarily exacting, and so much is expected for the low wages paid, that it is a wonder a sufficient number of men answering the requirements are always to be found who will engage and be blighted for the opportunity. A conductor is "to suit the regal carriage then will be a new style of speaking, of course. It will be slow, yet free from drawl; dignified and commanding. I am afraid it will not be more easily acquired than the imperial walk itself. Endless practice will be necessary for both, and, given even industry and perseverance, there will be many failures. The capacity for being dignified is not born in every woman. And then there is the question of height. The tall girls will have the advantage this season. How can one be stately if one is short? It is almost an impossibility. Queen Victoria is the only woman in the world, I believe, who has accomplished the feat. The girls who stand, stop, too, are 'out of it,' and so are the ones who poke their heads forward, or swing their arms, or raise one shoulder higher than the other, or bury their chins in their collars, or shuffle their feet, or turn their toes in, or are addicted to any of the other thousand and one bad habits which young women fall into at that interesting period when, see-ring to the poet, they stand

Antedating History.

At that vague period of time touched by the earliest ray of historic knowledge, the eye of the student of human annals discovers the Iberians, a race of men called Iberians. These Iberians were not a tribe or a clan, but a people, numerous and potential, with a fully developed and virile language, which they spoke on the working of precious metals, and which, notwithstanding its antiquity, can be clearly inferred from the extent of their territory and the resonant or sonorous character of their names and habits, which still remain. This old people, themselves a colony from some other country, once existent and highly civilized in the remote past, spread from the Mediterranean Sea to the slopes of the Pyrenees, and all over Southern Gaul, as far as the Rhone, and flowed westward with a movement so forceful that it subdued all the British Islands. All this happened 1000 to 5000 B. C. They are older than the Egyptians probably by 1,000 years, and were strong enough to attempt the conquest of the known world.

These Iberians colonized Sicily. They were the original settlers in Italy, and pushed their way northward as far as Norway and Sweden, where can still be found among the present inhabitants their physical characteristics—dark skin and hair. The ancient people were not barbarians, but highly civilized. They had the art of writing and a literature. Poetry was cultivated. Their laws were set in verse, and for these laws they claimed an antiquity of 6,000 years.

This ancient race has passed away, as all great races do. The rise and decline of a people are as a day. They have a sunrise, a noon, a sunset, and then comes the night of oblivion. Their glory has passed, their splendor nothing but a gloaming, a twilight of a thousand years, perhaps, and all that remains of them and their splendor and civilization will be a few ruins. The capacity for being dignified is not born in every woman. And then there is the question of height. The tall girls will have the advantage this season. How can one be stately if one is short? It is almost an impossibility. Queen Victoria is the only woman in the world, I believe, who has accomplished the feat. The girls who stand, stop, too, are 'out of it,' and so are the ones who poke their heads forward, or swing their arms, or raise one shoulder higher than the other, or bury their chins in their collars, or shuffle their feet, or turn their toes in, or are addicted to any of the other thousand and one bad habits which young women fall into at that interesting period when, see-ring to the poet, they stand

MAP SHOWING THE ROUTE OF ESCAPE FOR THE VERCHOYANSK EXILES.

SIBERIAN EXILES ON THE MARCH.

A RUSSIAN COURIER EN ROUTE.

TAKING PRISONERS TO THE PETER-PAUL FORTRESS IN ST. PETERSBURG.

A RUSSIAN STUDENT.

A CROWD OF EXILES IN VERCHOYANSK.

THE MURDERER.

WALKS THAT ARE OUT OF DATE.

a large number of persons who are classed as "suspects," and banished by judicial authority without trial. It may be that if the cable reports from St. Petersburg respecting a new attempted assassination of the Czar turn out to be true, a small regiment of students from St. Petersburg will be added to the army of Siberian exiles, for it is from this class that the great army of exiles is steadily recruited.

It would be of interest to seek the reason why the student classes of Russia furnish so many revolutionists. "The young men are, for the most part, sons of poor people of the peasant class, who receive free instruction at those institutions of learning, which, strange to say, produce more discontent than the army itself, comparatively speaking. In this case the old adage that a little learning is a dangerous thing seems to hold good. The revolt is usually the result of despair. The young men are exhausted for petitions beyond their usual station in life; they have learned to hope to take an interest and a share in the government; but they find themselves excluded from all official positions; they are too proud to return to the occupations of their fathers, and they indulge in revolt that brings them in the chain gangs, or at least in the convoys that are sent from Moscow every year eastward to the land of snow and desolation. Except in cases of absolute crime, however, the class of prisoners is treated with some degree of consideration. But Nihilists, who plot against the life of the Czar, are not

A RUSSIAN EXILE.

FLOATING INTO THE ARMS OF THE LAW.

IT IS QUEENLY.

The Style of Woman's Walk for the Season Definitely Settled Upon.

It Is Called the Regal Walk, and Is All the Rage in Chicago and Elsewhere.

CHICAGO CORRESPONDENCE.]

What a splendid carriage that girl has!" was remarked by a Chicago man as the daughter of a well-known South Side millionaire slowly turned the corner of a street.

The young woman's chin was elevated, her shoulders thrown back, and he had the general air of being monarch of all she surveyed.

"Yes, that's the latest thing in walks—the regal, the stately, the slow, the swaying, the swing-swing-swing-spring. It is decreed that the young woman of 1890 must be 'queenly' and 'dignified.' She must indulge neither in the style of her sister the scroll of '85, nor the twistings and contortions of the gawky girls of '86, but follow she will avoid, but all masculine dash and go will be equally abhorrent to her. She will be graceful, but with an imperial, not languid, grace, and a touch of hauteur will be considered desirable. By the end of the winter you will see the regal walk adopted by the society novels, especially those which come out in the fashion magazines, will have adopted the regal walk. At present they are in a sadly unsettled condition. Sometimes they are guilty of an offence they stride, and occasionally they 'drift.' It would be a great comfort to these young women when the style of walk for the season is definitely settled on.

"In the higher class of novels I don't know whether the heroines have more usually followed or set the fashions in movement. Charles Reade's supple, swaying, swinging, giving women are said to have had at one time a marked influence upon the carriage of a certain London clique, and Thackeray's nauby-pauby Amelia and Rowena also fitted into the room and 'nestled' upon George's shoulder like true followers. Miss Burney's Evelinas and Cecilias, like the ultra-fine ladies of Queen Elizabeth's time, given to 'sinking' upon chairs and 'casting' themselves about promiscuously, and Miss Austen's and Miss Braddon's heroines invariably 'entered' the 'apartment' and 'seated' themselves—usually upon a 'settee'—all the properties of a 'drift.' Miss Edgeworth's heroines invariably 'entered' and 'seated' themselves—usually upon a 'settee'—with all the primness of their day. Miss Young's country prince dance or moved quietly and sedately; Miss Bradon's and Thackeray's heroines of twenty years ago by 'sweeping' into the presence of the Valued Object; now they either 'dash' or 'start' upon him. It is reserved for the young women portrayed by the Duchess to 'dawn' upon the afternoon tea-table, to 'float' into the ball-room, and to 'sway' and 'shrink' when they are invariably large and black fans.

"Mr. Henry James's matter-of-fact heroine of course, 'walks' into the room; very likely the heel of her left shoe is slightly worn, and she turns it out on the right shoe the seventh button from the top is missing. Mr. Henry James's heroines are usually looking at Him; they stand so much that one would be moved to pity were it not for their propensity to lean against the piano or the table.

"There have been just as many different way of speaking. Twenty accents' went out long ago, and Harlitha, Tone's book her departure with 'esthetic.' 'Faltering,' 'whispering,' 'breathing into his ear,' and 'sighing embrace' are all out of date, and the 'long, musical voice' is now 'bad style.' For a long time the 'heroine sinks delicately,' and then 'sinks into a chair' is the fashion to 'announce' and 'declare,' always with compounce. 'Caressing tone must not be forgotten; they had a long season of popularity, and are still occasionally employed. The 'low murmur' which reigned for a time was sufficiently irritating when met with in books, but language fails to describe the power of annoying one in real life. To attempt to keep up a conversation with a woman who drops her voice so that you can hear only one word in ten and are obliged to guess at the rest is enough to drive one mad.

"To suit the regal carriage then will be a new style of speaking, of course. It will be slow, yet free from drawl; dignified and commanding. I am afraid it will not be more easily acquired than the imperial walk itself. Endless practice will be necessary for both, and, given even industry and perseverance, there will be many failures. The capacity for being dignified is not born in every woman. And then there is the question of height. The tall girls will have the advantage this season. How can one be stately if one is short? It is almost an impossibility. Queen Victoria is the only woman in the world, I believe, who has accomplished the feat. The girls who stand, stop, too, are 'out of it,' and so are the ones who poke their heads forward, or swing their arms, or raise one shoulder higher than the other, or bury their chins in their collars, or shuffle their feet, or turn their toes in, or are addicted to any of the other thousand and one bad habits which young women fall into at that interesting period when, see-ring to the poet, they stand

THE LATEST WALK.

FARM AND GARDEN.

A SELF EMPTYING BUCKET FOR NARROW WELLS.

Information About Ordinary and Contagious Foot Rot—Ventilating Roof for Poultry Houses—Simple Way to Measure Fields or Orchards by Proportion.

In the accompanying cut is shown a simple method, originally illustrated in Southern Cultivator, to measure fields or orchards by proportion.

MEASURING A FIELD.

Take a plank an inch more than one or two feet square, planed and smoothed, leaving outside say an inch; draw a line exactly, with the best carpenter's square obtainable, making the line so as to leave the margin all around—marking the 1, 1-2, 1-4, 1-8, 1-16, 1-32, etc., as far as you can for the fractions to be paid, and be very careful to have your line around perfectly square and every fraction as exact as possible, for a small error here will become greater the larger the field to be surveyed. Fasten in the center on the under side a block with a hole in it, so it will set on a staff, the upper end of which is to be fitted in, the lower end sharpened to stick in the ground. Select a place, on the straightest line of your ground is best, but any place where you can see some of all of the various angles the fence makes, will do.

Stick your staff firmly in the ground and get your little plank to stand in exact center of your line have a small hole and a rule with a peg, so it will fit, and two pins for sights, the length of your rule or line. Then sight your objects and measure, turning your rule or instrument to sight the objects in succession. Note carefully the distance on your table marked by the rule. Then you have a series of right angled triangles, whose like sides are proportional. Any one who understands the "single rule of three" can then measure in a few minutes a field that would take hours with chain and compass with suffi cent accuracy for all practical purposes. Illustration:

To find distance C to O we have two similar triangles: COA and BAE. Suppose BE=8 inches, or 2-32, or 1-16, it does not matter which, so far as the proportion is concerned; CD and AE=12, say—then Base.	Horizontal.	Base.	Horizontal.

BE :	CD ::	AE :	CO
8 :	12 ::	12 :	x

12 times 12=144; divided by 2=48—CO=48 inches, or fraction, as the case may be. Taking other points, by turning your table, find other distances, and knowing these it is very easy to find the area. It is not necessary to stay in one place. Stick a stake at first place and you can then measure other distances from it. Any boatlipent school boy can make this instrument and measure with sufficient accuracy for ordinary farming purposes. The more accurate your instrument the more accurate the result. Of course, by taking a long plank and marking it the more correct you would be, as your sight would be farther off and the triangle larger.

Treatment of Foot Rot.

Common foot rot is caused by decay of the horn or excessive moisture, and in where the outer rind of the foot grows so that it turns under the sole and gathers sand and gravel, which wear the surface of the sole and make the foot sore. In cattle the space between the hoofs is affected in the same way, and the soft horn wears and decays. Then the tissues under the horn become inflamed and sore, and suppurate, and this is what is known as ordinary foot rot. It is easily cured by paring away the dead decayed horn, washing the diseased tissues under it, and applying some healing dressing. Lanigar recommends for this purpose tincture of benzoin, or the cerate ointment made of four parts lard, one part venice turpentine, one part spirits of turpentine and one-half part acetate of copper, all well mixed by melting the lard and well stirring.

Contagious and malignant foot rot occurs in sheep and is a more serious and neglected ordinary foot rot. The purulent matter gathers under the horn and burrows in the vascular parts of the foot and destroys the bones, which become uncovered. A diseased sheep fouls the pasture and the floors of the sheds, and virus other sheep pick up their feet the virus thus scattered, and so the disease thus spreads. The remedy, according to the authority already referred to, is to pare the feet and remove all loose horn; to thoroughly clean the feet, down to healthy tissue, from all diseased matter, by a solution of one ounce blue vitrol (sulphate of copper) in a pint of water, and then dust them with air slaked lime. The sheep should be put into a clean grass field or into a shed with a clean floor, or sprinkled with air slaked lime, and the feet should be dressed with the copper solution until the purulent discharge ceases and then smeared with pine tar and boiled oil.

Ventilation of Poultry Houses.

The question of ventilation is an important one in the construction of poultry houses, which are too often built without any consideration of how the fowls in closed winter chaste boundaries are to be supplied with air.

VENTILATING ROOF.

The failure to make arrangements for the escape of vitiated air and the introduction of pure air in poultry houses is the prolific source of two-fields the ailments that attack domestic fowls, damp, cold quarters accounting for the remainder. The droppings of domestic fowls decay so rapidly, and so quickly emit offensive gases, which, if confined so that the fowls inhale the polluted air, prevents thrift and occasions serious diseases.

A way often adopted is to make a few holes in one end of the house and let the air out in and out the best way it can. Occasionally a very shrewd manager will leave a board or two off for the purpose, or, with malice aforethought, build a house with the boards left a little apart for ventilation. These methods, while induce draughts, are worse than no ventilation at all, almost, because draughts of cold air invite colds, and colds quickly run into that most dreaded of all diseases, the roup.

The plan illustrated in the cut is a very simple one and costs almost nothing beyond the labor of carrying it out. It is equally suitable to a single slope or to a gable roof. The latter way is desirable, but readers can easily adapt it to the former.

In the roof of the house form a small chamber by nailing half inch boards across the same, about midway between the eaves and the apex. The cross boards forming the bottom of the chamber may either be closely nailed together and have holes bored in them, or be left a quarter of an inch apart. At each end of this chamber, in its gables, flat cross bars, or "louver boards," as these are termed, should be so placed as to exclude the rain or a ventilating trap, such as is for sale at hardware stores, may be put in. Holes bored in both ends will do, but not so well.

The system of ventilation described enters a constant current of air through the ventilating chamber, carrying off the vitiated air, and this prevents any draught whatever in the house itself, but, at the same time, fresh air is in a day and night for the fowls to breathe. In winter some of the ventilating holes can be stopped up, for fewer are required than during the hot summer months. The facility with which the current can be regulated is the advantage the trap ventilators have over the holes or louver boards, though the latter serve well and are at the command of all.

Readers are cautioned against making holes near the ground or doing anything to create a draught upward, as when this is done there is danger of the fowls having to roost midway between two openings—a plan which, sooner or later, results in diseases so fatal to cattle.

The floor of the house ought to be higher than the ground outside to prevent the water running into the house, which it will do if below or upon the level. A dirt floor is an excellent one when the soil is well drained so as to insure freedom from dampness. Cement when well laid makes a good floor. An excellent plan is to spade up the ground and rake it over fine and even, then overlay it with ashes, a little fine gravel, etc. This top layer ought to be removed every few days and a fresh one supplied.

Bucket for Narrow Wells.

If buckets with a pulley or windlass are used in deep, narrow wells, it is best, says Prairie Farmer, to have these long and of small diameter, so as to pass each other easily and not upset by knocking against the walls. The kind shown in the cut at A is common in some parts of the country but unknown to others. It was recently illustrated and described as follows in the journal quoted from.

LOOG, SELF EMPTYING BUCKET.

It is made of heavy tinned or galvanized sheet iron with a wooden bottom 1 1-2 or 2 inches thick, having a hole through its center 2 inches in diameter. Over this hole, inside of the bucket, is a valve like those used in wooden pumps. To the top is hinged or riveted a bail. In the bottom which is attached to the curb to conduct the water to the pail is a peg of wood or iron 4 or 5 inches long. To empty the bucket set it in the trough so this peg will go through the hole in the bottom and then push open the valve. There will be no trouble in pouring out just the amount wanted. A sinker is never needed, as the bucket's own weight causes the water to push through the valve at the bottom.

One Way to Make an Egg Tester.

A cheap and simple egg tester may be made of a pasteboard box and about half a yard of any light weight, dull black cloth. The box should be seven inches long by six inches wide and deep. Cut a hole in each end of the box, one hole large enough to fit over the largest part of a common lamp chimney and the other so that it will just fit over the top. Cut another hole in one side about the shape and a little smaller than the average size of an egg. Line the inside of the box and the cover with the cloth and fasten the cover of the box on tightly, so that no light can reach the inside of the box. Also cover the outside of the box, cutting out three holes in the cloth, drawing the inner and outer linings together and the edges of the holes so that they will not come in contact with the lamp. Light your lamp, put the tester over the chimney, exclude all light from the room and you are ready. Place the eggs against the hole in the side of the tester and you will find that it will work to your complete satisfaction. Care should be taken to get the hole in the side of the tester opposite the flame of the lamp, so as to get the full strength of the light through the egg.

Good Effects of Drainage.

Experiments conducted at the Experiment station at Uniontown, Ala., according to a bulletin recently issued, show that the average yield of corn on drained land was 36.84 bushels to the acre. The average yield without drainage was 21.03 bushels per acre. Drainage therefore caused an increase of 53.4 per cent. There was neither excessive rainfall nor drought during the season.

On the Country Road.

Moderate confinement and plenty of corn meal and boiled potatoes will put on the desired "pound of flesh" on the young goose.

The Niagara grape seems to have established itself as a favorite along the grape growing regions of eastern and southeastern New York. It has proved to be a meritorious market variety.

The common American chestnut is far more delicate, as well as better flavored, than any of the foreign varieties.

Avoid a southern or western slope for the pear orchard; all others are preferable, and an eastern one is the best.

Our Little Men and Women, 1888.

This aim of this magazine is to interest children just at the time they begin to read for themselves and lead them along for a year or two with pictures and stories and plea-sant tasks so pleasant as to make them forget the task part altogether.

The following outline includes the larger topics of the year:

Pocahontas teaches a little early American history through the year.

A French story, Susanna's Auction, fall of amusement.

A story a month entitled Laura's Holidays suggests to other little girls what they can do on holidays.

A story a month on Tiny Folks in Armor; which means beetles.

A flower poem in every number.

Buffy's (six) Letters to his Mistress. Buffy is a coon-cat.

Six Mexican stories on Little Plaza; also about some Mexican animals.

Besides there are many, too many, to tell of, stories short and bright and unexpected.

With all this entertainment of picture and humor there is a serious purpose all through implied in the name, Our Little Men and Women. It is to teach and lead the children to take reading for profit; but pleasure comes first as it ought.

A dollar a year. Five cents for a sample copy.

D. Lothrop Company,
Publishers, Boston.

Vick's Floral Guide.

A silver lining to every cloud! With the short dull days of early winter come the cheery holidays and Vick's beautiful annual and bulb spring already up ears not far distant. We can almost see the greening grass and hear the morning birds. In the way of Catalogue, Vick's Floral Guide is unequaled in artistic appearance and the edition of each year that appears simply perfect, is surpassed by the next. New and beautiful engravings, and three colored plates of flowers, vegetables, and grain, predominate for the issue for 1888. Its lavender tinted cover, with original designs of most pleasing character, will insure it a prominent place in the household and library. It is in itself a treatise on horticulture, and is adapted to the wants of all who are interested in the garden or house plants. It describes the rarest flowers and the choicest vegetables. If you want to know anything about the garden, see Vick's Floral Guide, price only 10 cents, including a certificate good for 10 cents worth of seeds. Published by James Vick, Seedsman, Rochester, N. Y.

Babyland, 1888.

In general it will be about the same as ever.

Nothing in Babyland ever pleased more people than Finger-play rhymes and pictures. They have even been sought by Kindergartners in Boston and elsewhere; and the author has personally taught them. Six of the Six Babylands will contain new Finger-plays.

The other six will have a series of baby stories in rhyme about crickets, how they manage their babies, with many pictures.

Me and Toddlekins is a baby cat story all through; and Mr. Oliver Johnson, wit pictures also by Margaret Johnson.

There will also be a lot a jingle bits and story bits and picture bits, so many as to make a book wonder where next year's entertainment is to come from.

Fifty cents a year; a copy sent for five cents. D. Lothrop Company,
Publishers, Boston.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for it and this paper together
Wide Awake	$4.00	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	1.00
Babyland	1	1.00
Little Men and Women	1	1.00
Babyhood	1.50	1.40

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a rifle in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you are not a deadhead. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother amuse even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Chautauqua Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"library, study, play-house, life at home and abroad, companionship of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

Beware.

Coughs, Colds and Slight Throat Diseases often develop into Bronchitis, Seated Cough, Consumption, etc., and should have immediate attention and be removed in the first stages. Not only pulse sickness, but all are liable to throat troubles and to obtain relief should use Hamlin's Wizard Cough Troches, which relieve Coughs, and hoarseness, making the articulation clear. Warranted to give satisfaction. Price 25c per box. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE

Beautifully Illustrated. 25 cts., $3 a Year.

ITS SCOPE—THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE is a monthly of 128 pages, 9x12 inches, with 100 to 150 illustrations, and 1000 to 1500 articles, stories, etc. It covers 65 to 75 pages with a wide range of subjects, including Biography, Adventure, Art, Social and Short Stories, descriptions of foreign and domestic life, Science, Invention, Essays on the prominent problems of the period, and, in short, this Magazine is Distinctively Representative of American Thought and Progress.

It is acknowledged to be the most popular and entertaining of the eight-and-twenty-cent magazines.

IMPORTANT. A Spring Holiday Premium Offer, and Agents' Illustrated Premium List, and Special Inducements to Cash or Valuable Premiums to Club Raisers, will be sent on receipt of 15c., if this paper is mentioned.

Responsible and energetic persons wanted in all unoccupied territory. Write at once for exclusive territory.

Address
THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE CO.,
740 Broadway, New York.

Vick's Floral Guide

FOR 1888, PUBLISHED IN ENGLISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN.

The Best of Family Papers, THE WEEKLY

Detroit Free Press

No other paper is so well planned to the needs of every member of the family.

NINE REASONS WHY!

1.—Each issue consists of Ten Large Pages, or, with the Sixteen Page Supplement, Twenty Pages, the largest paper.

2.—Its Serial Stories in the Week-end Edition are the best that can be secured, and the purchase of both the great news publications gives the reader the choice of two of the best Serials published in the country every week. Novels in the entire age will be given.

3.—Its Special Departments, Religious Press, all the Market Reports and Quotations are always accurate and to be relied upon.

4.—A special new feature is its splendid Agricultural Department, conducted by a practical farmer, who knows what he knows.

5.—It is a faithful exponent of public affairs. It is Democratic in its political proclivities, but its news is kept free from party bias.

6.—Delicacy features are recognized. It abounds in good, pure, wholesome reading, and no line can be pointed out as to which a lady may not read, aloud, or attempting to interest every member of the family.

7.—Its Sunday issue is a marvel of enterprise. Twenty eight columns of good, pure, wholesome reading, with a special department for the children, and a Sunday School lesson.

8.—It gives more for the money than any other paper in the country.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

If you do not know it, SUBSCRIBE NOW.

A GREAT OFFER.

For $3.00 we will send THE WEEKLY FREE PRESS one year, and any one of the following named papers for a year, and your choice of one of the premiums offered by the publisher of THE FREE PRESS for each of the three publications in full. Mailed post-paid. Sample of THE FREE PRESS and Premium Copy free.

Address THE FREE PRESS CO., Detroit, Mich.

Detroit Free Press	Scribner's Magazine
Detroit Free Press	Wide Awake
Detroit Free Press	Babyland
Detroit Free Press	Our Little Men and Women
Detroit Free Press	Young Folks' Journal

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

AN IMPORTANT CLUB OFFER

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE

Gives its readers literature of lasting interest and value, it is fully and beautifully illustrated and has already gained a more than national circulation exceeding 125,000 copies monthly.

PRICE 25 CENTS A NUMBER $3.00 A YEAR

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS with Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons the Publishers enable us to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE with the

Charlevoix JOURNAL for $4.00 per year, Cash in Advance.

Address all orders to CHAS. J. STRANG, Publisher Journal, Charlevoix, Mich.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

N. J. PERRY Agent, Charlevoix.

CHICAGO Cor. Canal AND 16TH STS

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

ALL SHOULD TAKE IT!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES

Sciatica,	Scratches,	Contracted
Lumbago,	Spavin,	Muscle,
Pain,	Strain,	Strains,
Rheumatism,	Stiches,	Bruises,
Burns,	Stiff Joints,	Heel Ail,
Scalds,	Backache,	Screw
Stings,	Colic,	Worms,
Bite,	Sores,	Swinney,
Bruises,	Spavin	Saddle Galls,
Bruises,	Cracks.	Piles.
Burns,

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY accomplishes for everybody exactly what is claimed for it. One of the reasons for the great popularity of Mexican Mustang Liniment is found in its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine.

The Lumberman needs it for his numerous ills.

The Housewife needs it for generally use.

The Cavalry need it for the diseases of the horse.

The Mechanic needs it always on his work bench.

The Miner needs it in case of emergency.

The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, and his stock yard.

The Stamboat man or the Boatman needs it in illness or any accident whatever.

The Horse-fancier needs it—it is his best friend and adviser.

The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars and a world of trouble.

The Railroad man needs it and we need it so long as his life is a mass of accidents and dangers.

The Backwoodsman needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the dangers to life, limb and comfort which surround the pioneer.

The Merchant needs it about his store among his employees. Accidents will happen, and when they come the Mexican Liniment is wanted at once.

Keep a Bottle in the House. "In the best of seasons."

Keep a Bottle in the Factory. Unprecedented in case of accident save pain and loss of wages.

Keep a Bottle Always in the Stable for use when wanted.

ARBUCKLES'

name on a package of COFFEE is a guarantee of excellence.

ARIOSA

COFFEE is kept in all first-class stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COFFEE

is never good when exposed to the air. Always buy this brand in hermetic ally sealed ONE POUND PACKAGES.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

Grand Rapids' best paper,

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Weed at 12½ cents a week.

PENSIONS!

WILLIAM B. GREENE, late Assistant Chief of the Western Pension Bureau, Office in rear of Office of Attorney.

Prosecution of pension and claims, soldier claims.

His thorough experience in the Pension Office and in the prosecution of these claims renders his services especially valuable.

Special attention given to the working up of rejected claims. Correspondence solicited.

Co-operates with respectable attorneys throughout the country in cases which need attention at Washington.

Many persons who have served in the army do not obtain it because they do not apply for it properly, or claims are improperly rejected. Particular attention paid to such cases.

No fee unless successful. Advice free. Success guaranteed.

Refer to—Hon. W. W. Townsend, of Illinois, Hon. C. C. Bonney, of Illinois, Hon. F. N. Morrill, of Kansas, Hon. Thos. Ryan, ex-Minister, Hon. D. B. Henderson, of Iowa, Hon. Hiram Price, late of Iowa, Col. J. S. Sterling, of Iowa.

Address
WM. B. GREENE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

INVENTION has revolutionized the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Many of the best workers, both men and women, young or old, in special ability required, Capital not needed, you are started free. Those who start at once are sure to send in work you free something of great value and importance to you that will more than double your wages. Nothing you do more easily, more profitably or more honorably. Address at once, Grand outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Maine. ad

PATENTS.

FRED W. CROCKER,
Counselor at Law & Solicitor of Patents,
ROOM 32, 234 BROADWAY,
New York, N. Y.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL.

NUMBER 240. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.: THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1888. $1.50 PER YEAR.

THE JOURNAL
Published every Thursday,
BY CHAS. J. STRANG.
Office on Bridge Street,
CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

ARTHUR MARTIN, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Michigan. Collections promptly attended to.

CHUCKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law and Proctors in Admiralty. Office in Bohnes Block, Charlevoix, Mich.
A. D. CHUCKSHANK. C. J. GRIER.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney and Counselor at Law, Real Estate business promptly attended to. MONEY TO LOAN.
J. MILO MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

W. N. MOORE, Attorney and Solicitor, East Jordan. Admiralty a Specialty.

DENTISTRY.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office at Cochran's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Michigan.

PHYSICIANS.

J. A. CARLETON, M. D., Office and residence on Michigan street. Office hours, 6.00 to 10.00 A. M., and 4.00 to 8.00 P. M.

L. LEWIN, M. D., Physician and Surgeon, Office 2nd floor Bohnes block, Charlevoix, Mich.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

HORACE S. HABISHA, Notary Public, Real Estate, Loan, and Insurance Agt., Charlevoix.

W. F. SHOWS, Cashier. W. A. SHOWS, Assistant Cashier.
Brown & Co.'s Bank of Charlevoix
CAPITAL, $50,000.
Drafts drawn direct upon the principal cities of the world. Collections promptly remitted. Securities bought and sold. Tickets for sale to and from all points in Europe. Exchange on Europe.
CORRESPONDENTS: National Bank, Chicago; Northern National Bank, Chicago; Michigan National Bank, Detroit; Fourth National Bank, Grand Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank
Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.
O. D. WOOD, President.
A. BUTLER, Vice President.
J. A. SMITH, Cashier.
DIRECTORS
O. D. WOOD, M. H. WOOD,
A. BUTLER, J. A. SMITH,
F. A. SMITH, W. D. MAYER,
JOHN TOWNSEND, J. L. HURD.
CAPITAL, $52,000
Surplus, $8,000
The liabilities of Stockholders in all State Banks as provided in Act 351, Sec. 2 of Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, to double the amount of their stock, inures to the benefit of the fund of $20,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers. Drafts drawn on Europe as are consistent with safe banking.
Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved security. Interest bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest.
We respectfully solicit your patronage.

NOTICE.
The annual meeting of the stock-holders of the Detroit, Charlevoix and Escanaba railroad company, for the purpose of electing a board of directors for the ensuing year, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting, will be held at their general offices in the village of Charlevoix, Michigan, on Tuesday, the 13th day of March, A. D. 1888, at 10 o'clock, A. M.
C. M. HOYT, Sec'y D. L. & E. R. R. Co.

NEW GOODS!
Call and see my new stock of
WATCHES, JEWELRY
OPTICAL GOODS, ETC., ETC.
NEW PATTERNS IN SILVERWARE
A large assortment of Spectacles and Eye glasses, for all ages, for both far and near sighted.
Repairing done Promptly and Warranted. Repaired Watches left with me for six months are subject to sale.
E. BELLINGER,
Bridge St., - Charlevoix.

MILLINERY,
Dressmaking,
Ladies' Fancy Goods.
A Splendid Line of Ribbons, Ladies' Gloves, Zephyrs, Laces, Ladies' Fine Underwear, and Stamping Patterns always on hand at Lowest Prices.
ALDRICH SISTERS,
At the Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

John Nicholls,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.,
Manufacturer of and dealer in
HARDWOOD AND PINE
LUMBER!
ALSO
Dressed lumber, Oar Blades,
WAGON TONGUES, SHOVELS, LATHY ETC.
LUMBER SAWED AND BILLS FILLED TO ORDER.

LIVERY
Feed and Sale Stables.
Burns, Stevens & Co.,
The Oldest and Largest Livery Stable in Charlevoix County. The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand. Rates Low.
BRIDGE STREET,
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

NEW LIVERY
AND Feed Barn.
LITNEY & STEIMEL
PROPRIETORS
Opposite Bridge Street House
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.
FIRST-CLASS RIGS
REASONABLE RATES.

Portable Boiler
FOR SALE.
Twelve feet long, 2½ feet shell, 4 feet wood; in perfect order good and cheap. Address
L. E. ALLEN,
Charlevoix, Mich.
200tf

PENSION BLANKS,
And all other blanks used in prosecuting claims before the U. S. Pension, Patent, or Land Office. Send for price-list. Address,
J. H. WHEELER,
320 & 322 First-st., CHICAGO, or
JAMES W. SCOTT, Publisher,
1017 Seventh St., Washington, D. C.

MORTGAGE SALE.—Four hundred and ninety dollars and twenty-nine cents is hereby claimed to be due at the date of this notice on a mortgage made by Ira Dennis, which was recorded in Charlevoix County Register's office, August 28, 1886, in Liber 2 of Mortgages, on page 428. Said mortgage was assigned to Orvin D. Woodin on December 31, 1887, and the assignment recorded in said Charlevoix County Register's office, on the 6th day of January, 1888, in Liber 21 of Mortgages, on page 11. The interest on said mortgage being due and unpaid, whereby the power of sale contained therein becomes operative, the premises described in said mortgage, to wit: The south half of the southeast quarter of section fifteen, in township eighty seven north of range seven west, containing eighty acres more or less, will be sold at public auction, at the front door of Lewis Hall, in the village of Boyne City, in said county, on Saturday, the 17th day of March, 1888, at one o'clock in the afternoon of said day, to satisfy the amount due, with costs.
Dated Charlevoix, Mich., January 4, 1888.
ORVIN D. WOODIN,
Assignee of Mortgage.
J. MILO MAYNE,
Attorney for Assignee.

MORTGAGE SALE.—A mortgage dated January 16th, 1885, executed by Ira Dennis, a bachelor, to Horace S. Habisha, of Charlevoix, County and State of Michigan, of deeds for real estate, recorded in Liber 2 of Mortgages, at page 342, on the 19th day of January 1885, on which there is claimed to be due, interest, to wit: $72.92 in past due and delinquent taxes paid by said mortgagee, including taxes on said premises for the year 1887, the sum of $300 and no suit or proceeding having been instituted to collect the same, the Year Lease from said mortgagee to said mortgagor, of said premises and the power of sale having become operative by reason of default in payment of said taxes, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises therein described, at public auction, at the Lewis Hall, in the village of Boyne City, in said County, at the front door of the Lewis block, in the village of Boyne City, in said County, on Saturday, the 7th day of April, A. D. 1888, at 10 o'clock, A. M. The said premises are described as follows: Lots 1 and 2 of Block 3, Boyne City, in said Charlevoix county, Michigan.
Dated January 7th, 1888.
THE LAKE IRON CO.
A. D. CHUCKSHANK, Attorney for said Company.

NOTICE.
Notice is hereby given that the undersigned will not be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife, Ellen Hunter.
ALBERT HUNTER.
Charlevoix, Mich., Jan. 1, 1888.

SHE MARRIED A SCHOLAR.

Oh, she said she'd never marry any Tom and Dick and Harry,
She'd wed some famous scientist of learning and renown;
But her Tom was quite commercial, and of Arcadia and Hecabe
He was so ignorant, she said, as any circus clown.

So she gave poor Tom the mitten, and as meek as any kitten
He went to making money and forgot his wild Cassandra;
Forsooth, pay, at any rate he hastened to do penance,
Into a social business man, a trifling million aspirant.

But she wed a scientific, and his tastes were quite terrific
For various kinds of insects and for toads and other game;
And instead of plaques and pictures, rattlesnakes and bob cousteroes
He'd take into his sitting room to ornament the same.

As a zealous decorator he preferred an alligator
To a statue of Minerva or a bust of Henry Clay;
And you could to hear him talk awhile of his menagerie
Think he played with it in his parlor just to while the time away!

And his notes di capello, a very charming fellow, Through his dressing room and bedroom used to noisomely infest;
And an elephant's proboscis and two young rhinoceroses
He presented to his children as a fitting Christmas gift.

But he sold his wife's piano to buy lycoonanba, To feed his hippopotamus to cure the mange;
And a shark ate up his baby, for you know how hungry they be,
And he went and pawned his overcoat to feed his rattlesnakes. —Yankee Blade.

Latter Day Tyrants.

Customer—This steak is raw on one side and burnt on the other.
Unfed Waiter—Yes, sah.
"And it's ground all over with olive or something worse; tastes as if flavored with kerosene and gaslite."
Waiter—Yes, sah.
"Take it back, tell the cook what the mailto'er is and see if he can't give me something fit to eat."
Waiter entering kitchen)—Steak for one, —Omaha World.

Well Qualified.

Finmber (to applicant for work)—Where were you employed last?
Applicant—I was walking out bills for an foundry all winter.
Plumber—That's enough! You may consider yourself engaged for the winter.—New York Sun.

Met His Waterloo.

"Jed a minute, if you please," said a man to western Nebraska as he came out of a house and hailed us as we were going past. "Did you happen to see a big Dane in here much when you come past it down here a mile?"

"Yes, we saw it."

"School wasn't called yet, I reckon?"

"No."

"Was the boys down in the yard playing marbles or any other deal like Injuns?"

"No; everything was very quiet."

"Then I guess he broke up way—winders gone or door store in?"

"Guess not."

"See anything of the teacher?"

"Yes; saw him through the door, sitting with his feet on the desk reading a book."

"Was he? Humph! Anything else?"

"He reported that way."

"Was anything of a big, raw boned boy, with long sandy hair and freckles, wearin' a high felt hat painted red, white 'n' blue?"

"Yes; we saw that."

"Wah! he walkin' 'round talkin' loud with his thumb hooked into his suspe'n' clip on his shoulder?"

"No. He was sitting on the ground near the school house, with his back against a tree. His nose was red, his eyes were bloodshot, his hair was tousled, he looked sick. His clothes were about half torn off of him, and one of the small boys in the neighborhood had his hat full of water to hire from the creek."

"Wy-ah! I swar if that don't beat me! Didn't holler no slang at you or offer to fight you?"

"I don't think he saw us at all—one eye was closed up."

"I expect—nothing stirjes me now! I reckon the plan didn't work."

"Why, that fellow's my boy, you see, sir! he 'bowed to hit the teacher this mornin', but I reckon from what you say something went wrong somewhere. The teacher gave him a longer 'rithmetic lesson than he orter, an' says I to him, 'Jed, yer ain's the little dog an' whale him—jes' show him that you understand what's the matter of Jamier?' He said that he'd do it an' that I'd better see the other two school officers to get another teacher another day, for there wouldn't be enough o' this un left to wad a gun when he gets through with it. Says he, 'Pap, don't be scart if you notice small pieces of a school teacher fetched 'round here long durin' the forenoon.' One eye shet an' his nose bloody! I'm sure I expect he was a fighter, too! I'll be tectotally chawed if he ain't been troublin' in the wrong pasture for two years. When I come home wif I don't bring oon the old strap an' hanger him myself then you can shoot me. A black eye an' nose all bloody! Say, wait till 4:30 o'clock an' you'll see a big, lazy, double dead fraid, a good 'n, an' behind by pieces by his old father!—Chicago Tribune.

The Irrepressible Tourist.

Lady—Your clothes are very ragged. Can't I do some sewing for you?

Tramp—Yes, madam; you may sew an overcoat on this button, if please. It seems to feel the need of society.—Brift.

STORIES OF MEN.

Dr. Bryant's Joke Upon a Teller of Old Stories.

Dr. Bryant, who accompanied President Cleveland on his recent tour through the West and south, is a serious man, who never jokes and never uses slang. One day the doctor was walking through the woods on the Belle Meade farm, near Nashville, with Gen. "Bill" Jackson, who is known far and wide as a very successful raconteur. The general was in particularly high spirits that day, and stories ran out of him like sap out of a sugar maple.

At the end of one especially good story the doctor, who did not seem to be much struck by the point of it, continued to look up at the trees, which he had been some time examining, and said:

"General, you raise a good many chestnuts here, don't you?"

All the rest of the day the doctor wondered why Gen. Jackson told no more stories.—Chicago News.

Elihu Washburne, Sr. and Jr.

Elihu B. Washburne, Jr., who was called home by the death of his distinguished father from the college he had been attending at Kingston, N. Y., tells this anecdote of him to a friend at the Coleman house, New York: The ex-minister was entirely lacking in appreciation of American humor. From the time he was recent in the old oak cradle at Livermore he saw the sterner side of life, and failed with the most humorous surroundings to appreciate Yankee fun. Last summer Elihu, Jr., spent some weeks with his father at the old homestead in Maine. During the collegiate year the young man had not failed to draw on his father for funds. As the old gentleman was sitting and reading and meditating perhaps on the expense of trying to make money fly upward, like the sparks, Elihu, Jr., passed by the hall and singing in a fine baritone:

The fifteen dollars
In my inside pocket, wherewith the cider is to be drunk!

Jim Nichols, of Minneapolis, speaking to a friend shortly after a mass in Posen had left him stranded about $200, said: "I've got Bismarck got the money just at the time, when he could get, comfortably horse to ride. He always refused to buy one on the ground that he couldn't afford it. Bismarck is a mighty hard man to deal with. The prices, it will be remembered, has an income of $125,000 a year.

Dickens' Characteristic Reply.

A manuscript phonologist once wrote a note to the late Charles Dickens, asking permission to make an examination of his cranium. Dickens replied: "Dear sir: At this time I require the use of my skull, but as soon as it shall be at leisure I will willingly place it at your disposal."—Manchester Guardian.

The government of the state of Yucatan, Mexico, is making experiments on a new species of silk, supposed to be a wild silkworm, which is closely allied to the domestic silkworm. The silk on the cocoons is elastic and of excellent quality, though rather uncertain in color, varying from white to pale brown, but one difficulty is that it is covered with a gum which is very difficult to dissolve.—New York Sun.

CATTLE ON SHIPBOARD.

An Experiment Cattle Man Describes His Divine Behavior on an Ocean Voyage.

William Reilly is the foreman for one of the largest cattle exporting houses in New York city. He has made about fifty trips across the ocean, taking from 100 to 200 head of cattle each trip.

"We are improving every day," he began, in answer to the reporter's inquiry as to how the exportation is carried on, "but nothing," he continued, "will ever be absolutely perfect until some one builds a ship purposely for cattle exportation.

"When we first began to export, we were new in the business, and—we had to pay heavy for our experience. At that time we used to lower the animals into the hold of the vessel in pens in which they were packed so tight that they couldn't move. It was impossible for them to lie down, and if one managed to, it could not get up again—but soon another would drop from sheer exhaustion, and then the crowd that would follow after the pressure had been broken would dirty the poor fellow. Many in the pen would be either trodden or kicked to death, others have their limbs broken and have to be killed.

"Nowadays the system is more perfect in the hold of the vessel. In big freight ships, whose holds are wide and properly constructed for the traffic, we build stalls running the whole length of the ship.

"When an animal is lowered into the hold of a ship it is led along the passageway and backed into one of the stalls, which are made of strong boards and timber posts. In this it is firmly fastened by a door. The pen is wide enough to allow the animal to lie down, but not broader how heavy the sea it cannot be thrown down, as it is strongly protected both front and rear.

"How do cattle act at sea?

"Well, when first shipped, what with the excitement of being lowered down into the hold and then backed into the stall—and that is no easy job, I tell you—the animal is certainly more or less excited; but when any 200 get excited—and I've taken more than that at one trip—then it is a scene that is apt to try the nerves of a man. Cattle for exportation are selected from the best stock, and are therefore well fed and high metled. For that number of cattle I generally have about thirty men with me, the ship owners allowing so many to go free as helpers to the other side. I have the animals' beds made, their mangers well filled with the most tempting food and plenty of water served them. We generally bring them aboard hungry, and they begin munching, and by the time we get outside Sandy Hook they are like a tired, hungry person, exhausted by travel and feeling satiated and warm. They soon lie down and fall asleep. We never start with a load of cattle in a storm, or in a heavy sea, for if we did the animals would get so scared that even the smallest ship would feel the effect of their tossing to and fro, and it

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, — MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS GRIST.

Important Happenings in Every Quarter of the Civilized Globe.

The Very Latest Intelligence Flashed Over the Telegraphic Wires.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

LABOR RIOTS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Colored Non-Union Roustabouts at Pittsburg Fire Receivers at Jeering Boys, Several of Whom Are Shot.

THERE has been bloodshed at Pittsburg as the result of non-unionizing of the Solar Iron Works. The trouble had been brewing for months because the firm and the employees differed on the question of allowing William Simms, a roiler, to retain two jobs. Saturday morning the mill was filled with negroes, the furnaces idled, and the machinery set in motion. At 4 o'clock p. m. work ceased for the week, and sight of the negroes, escorted by a score of policemen, started for their homes. They were followed by a crowd of about three hundred men and boys. A short distance away from the mill one of a crowd of boys threw a brick at a policeman. Nearly all the negroes at once drew revolvers and fired at the boys. A policeman also fired one shot and the boys scattered in all directions. Joseph Kenny, aged 17, was fatally shot through the stomach. He was shot in the face. Two other boys are said to have been wounded and spirited away by their companions.

A SERIOUS riot occurred at Shenandoah, Pa., between the men who are taking up a Reading mine and the strikers. Several persons were badly beaten. Many of the strikers have armed themselves with revolvers.

DEATH'S DECAD DECREE.

It Comes Without Warning to Ill-fated Passengers of the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

A PASSENGER train on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio road had was thrown from the track by a broken frog while passing Jamesburg station, NY. The engine and first two cars passed over safely, but the third caught in the rails and dashed into the caboose of a freight train on a side track. It is reported that four or five persons were killed, including Conductor Bates and one boy. Several others were wounded. The following persons were killed:

Hans Hansen, aged 17, of Sheffield, Ill., in company with Mrs. Cyra and Miss Jessie Cyra, residents of Sheffield, Ill., who are cousins of Judge Shaw, of Chicago.

Miss Jessie Battey, Sheffield, Ill., right arm cut and leg mangled, died at Jamesburg.

Alfonzi, passenger on route from Dover to Jamesburg, a boy, name unknown, who ran out of the left side door and was crushed.

William McNeil, electrical engineer, Cincinnati, Ky., found in the wreck, with a gaping gash.

Hiram Beatty Schaffer, Montville, Pa., Pleasant Valley, Pa., and Jamesburg, Pa., in consideration of trade; will recover. Two or three other passengers sustained slight injuries, but examination has not been made. Were brought from Randolph and Salamanca, who made the injured cases as comfortable as possible.

EUROPE'S SENSATION.

Excitement at All the Capitals Over the Publication of the Austro-German Alliance.

A SPECIAL cable dispatch from Berlin says that

While the semi-official press refused to regard the publication of the Austro-German treaty as having any special importance, yet the diplomatic circles know as much. The treaty is a defensive one, but it includes a clause providing for assistance in the pursuit of a persecuted peace dictated by the allies. The existence of such a treaty has long been known to both the Austrian and French Governments. At the time of its signing, the Austrian Ambassador, Count Wolkenstein, was recalled from Paris, and in August, 1879, confidential disclosures of the nature and character of the compact were made by Prince Bismarck to the Czar as an incentive to break all negotiations with a Russo-French alliance.

BRAVE MISS ROYCE.

A Nebraska Teacher's Sufferings—The Result of the Terrible Blizzard.

AN Omaha telegram says: "Miss Louise Royce, who remained on Call night with three pupils at Plainview during the terrible blizzard, the children all dying in her arms, is in a most deplorable condition. A consultation of physicians was held Sunday, and it was decided to amputate both feet and one arm. Several thousand dollars have been raised for her benefit here, and the people of Nebraska and Iowa are still responding liberally to the appeals for her."

Telegrams in Brief.

JUDGE NORTON of the Missouri Supreme Court declines the nomination for Governor.

IT is said that Gov. Gray and Gov. Hill favor holding the National Democratic Convention in Indianapolis.

BY the explosion of a boiler in a saw-mill near Belmont, Ohio, five men were killed outright and two more fatally injured.

AGENTS of the Panama Canal Company are negotiating with members of the French Chamber of Deputies for permission to issue a lottery loan of 775,000,000 francs.

THE White-Lowery contested election case occupied the exclusive attention of the House on the 4th inst. Mr. Cockran, of New York, made a two-minute speech in favor of White, saying the whole case rested on his own testimony, that he was naturalization papers, and that he was willing to swear to his belief in the sentiment of allegiance to the Union with blood, if he had to cement the Union with blood, as he had spent his blood in the war. Pending the case of Pennsylvania, the bill for the relief of the sufferers by the late floods in Pennsylvania was taken up and passed. Several other bills were passed, including one for the relief of Mrs. Jessie Benton Frémont, the widow of the famous pathfinder, John C. Frémont, and a bill to extend the Indian depredation bill so as to include claims for Indian depredations in Dakota, Montana and Wyoming Territories. The Senate Committee on Pensions has decided to report favorably the bill for a pension of $50 per month to the widow of Gen. Custer.

THE Senate Committee on Indian Affairs has decided to report favorably a bill authorizing the removal of the Southern Ute Indians from the Ute Reservation in Colorado to a reservation in Utah.

THE President has approved and promulgated a revision of the civil-service rules which makes several very important changes in the existing regulations. Some of the changes applied to applicants for places in the department at Washington and in the classified customs offices and postoffices. The commission has also revised the civil-service regulations to conform to the law of last session.

THREE persons, says a Washington telegram, were drowned in the Potomac River near Washington during the greater part of the night of the 3rd inst. The boat was being used for a pleasure party. Her crew had been hired for several times, and made changes and modifications in her rigging and had threatened to put some of the old rules or regulations remaining in force aboard her into effect. The crew broke into party-goers' rooms, demanded rules, customs rules, and postal rules. There was a fight, and it is said they set fire to the boat, except in one or two particulars, in all respects the rules were complied with. Two men were killed and four injured by the bursting of a boiler at Barnesville, Ohio. Five years ago the 3-year-old son of Capt. E. E. Dickinson, of Commonwealth, Wis., mysteriously disappeared. It is now reported that negotiations for the return of the boy for a ransom are pending, and that $10,000 has been demanded by the kidnapers.

A SAN FRANCISCO dispatch says the Mexican Canal, built to convey water from the foothills of the Sierra mountains a San Joaquin, has been formally opened. The reservoir in which the water is stored contains 643 acres. The canal is twenty-seven miles long, and has been five years in building. It will irrigate over a quarter of a million acres.

AS Indianapolis dispatch says that "Judge Taylor Wouds in the Federal Court overruled the motions for a new trial in the cases of Coy and Bernhamer, the convicted tally-sheet conspirators. Coy was then sentenced to the penitentiary for eighteen months and to pay a fine of $100; Bernhamer to go a year and pay a fine of $1,000. They were remanded to the county jail, where they will remain pending the appeal to Judge Gresham."

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

A CHARLESTON (W. Va.) special says: "The vendette between the Hatfields of Logan County, W. Va., and the McCoys of Pike County, Ky., is settled for the present. The agent chosen Governor Wilson sent to Logan County came back empty-handed, saying that the belligerents on both sides have disbanded and the trouble ended. Governor Wilson has recommended the order calling out the militia."

A YOUNG man in Louisville who smoked forty cigarettes a day has been promotoed of smoked mind by the physicians.

CYRUS S. OBRIEN, brother of Civil Service Commissioner Oberly, died at Houston, Texas. He was a well-known journalist.

THE committee now engaged in investigating the chain-gang scandals of Georgia have unearthed a horrible state of affairs under the convict-lease system of that State. Many of the details are so vile that they will not bear publication.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

THE surviving supporters of Gen. N. P. Banks, at his election for Speaker of the House of Representatives in 1855, celebrated the thirty-second anniversary of the event at Washington the other night.

A WASHINGTON special to the Chicago Daily News says:

Gov. Swineford of Alaska says that as will ask President Cleveland to relieve him because Alaska can be given a proper system of law. He wants local legislation or a council to form laws in lieu and a system of juries, as we to insure titles to occupants. Unless he is satisfied that the matter will be taken up at once in the examination Mr. Swineford intends to leave Washington. In case of his resignation he will not return to Michigan, but will give all his attention to his mining interests in Alaska.

THE Chicago Tribune has written a representative telegraphic that:

The meeting in the Ways and Means Committee have substantially agreed upon the Tariff bill. It will be reported for a total cut of more than $60,000,000, possibly $65,000,000. In the cut on sugar, the Senate Committee has come down to 40 cents. The northern men now making the final revision. A few obvious mistakes in the bill will be made by the force of necessities of the hour, but the leading features of the bill will be adhered to. The cut on sugar is the most important change made in the bill. Sugar is the material in the cost of the pig-iron and the cost of the pig-iron will be lessened. The cotton-tie will not be disturbed. The cotton-tie will stand at 50 cents. The cut on wool will be lessened, and coal will get on the free list. Here is the Senate Committee's reason for the cut on sugar: The Senate Committee found that numerous raw materials of no great importance, were taxed at rates ranging from 20 per ceut up to from 35 to 45 per ceu. Sin plate, about 30 per cent, and the Senate Committee felt that the duties on such articles as tin plate, cotton ties, pleasants and tools, sugar, super cent, tobacco, etc., made the injured cases as comfortable as possible.

EUROPE'S SENSATION.

Excitement at All the Capitals Over the Publication of the Austro-German Alliance.

A SPECIAL cable dispatch from Berlin says that

While the semi-official press refused to regard the publication of the Austro-German treaty as having any special importance, yet the diplomatic circles know as much. The treaty is a defensive one, but it includes a clause providing for assistance in the pursuit of a persecuted peace dictated by the allies. The existence of such a treaty has long been known to both the Austrian and French Governments. At the time of its signing, the Austrian Ambassador, Count Wolkenstein, was recalled from Paris, and in August, 1879, confidential disclosures of the nature and character of the compact were made by Prince Bismarck to the Czar as an incentive to break all negotiations with a Russo-French alliance.

BRAVE MISS ROYCE.

A Nebraska Teacher's Sufferings—The Result of the Terrible Blizzard.

AN Omaha telegram says: "Miss Louise Royce, who remained on Call night with three pupils at Plainview during the terrible blizzard, the children all dying in her arms, is in a most deplorable condition. A consultation of physicians was held Sunday, and it was decided to amputate both feet and one arm. Several thousand dollars have been raised for her benefit here, and the people of Nebraska and Iowa are still responding liberally to the appeals for her."

Telegrams in Brief.

JUDGE NORTON of the Missouri Supreme Court declines the nomination for Governor.

IT is said that Gov. Gray and Gov. Hill favor holding the National Democratic Convention in Indianapolis.

BY the explosion of a boiler in a saw-mill near Belmont, Ohio, five men were killed outright and two more fatally injured.

AGENTS of the Panama Canal Company are negotiating with members of the French Chamber of Deputies for permission to issue a lottery loan of 775,000,000 francs.

THE White-Lowery contested election case occupied the exclusive attention of the House on the 4th inst. Mr. Cockran, of New York, made a two-minute speech in favor of White, saying the whole case rested on his own testimony, that he was naturalization papers, and that his belief in the sentiment of allegiance to the Union, he was willing to swear to the Union with blood, if he had to cement the Union with blood, as he had spent his blood in the war. Pending the case of Pennsylvania, the bill for the relief of the sufferers by the late floods in Pennsylvania was taken up and passed. Several other bills were passed, including one for the relief of Mrs. Jessie Benton Frémont, the widow of the famous pathfinder, John C. Frémont, and a bill to extend the Indian depredation bill so as to include claims for Indian depredations in Dakota, Montana and Wyoming Territories. The Senate Committee on Pensions has decided to report favorably the bill for a pension of $50 per month to the widow of Gen. Custer.

THE Senate Committee on Indian Affairs has decided to report favorably a bill authorizing the removal of the Southern Ute Indians from the Ute Reservation in Colorado to a reservation in Utah.

THE President has approved and promulgated a revision of the civil-service rules which makes several very important changes in the existing regulations. Some of the changes applied to applicants for places in the department at Washington and in the classified customs offices and postoffices. The commission has also revised the civil-service regulations to conform to the law of last session.

THREE persons, says a Washington telegram, were drowned in the Potomac River near Washington during the greater part of the night of the 3rd inst. The boat was being used for a pleasure party. Her crew had been hired for several times, and made changes and modifications in her rigging and had threatened to put some of the old rules or regulations remaining in force aboard her into effect. The crew broke into party-goers' rooms, demanded rules, customs rules, and postal rules. There was a fight, and it is said they set fire to the boat, except in one or two particulars, in all respects the rules were complied with. Two men were killed and four injured by the bursting of a boiler at Barnesville, Ohio.

FIVE years ago the 3-year-old son of Capt. E. E. Dickinson, of Commonwealth, Wis., mysteriously disappeared. It is now reported that negotiations for the return of the boy for a ransom are pending, and that $10,000 has been demanded by the kidnapers.

A SAN FRANCISCO dispatch says the Mexican Canal, built to convey water from the foothills of the Sierra mountains a San Joaquin, has been formally opened. The reservoir in which the water is stored contains 643 acres. The canal is twenty-seven miles long, and has been five years in building. It will irrigate over a quarter of a million acres.

AS Indianapolis dispatch says that "Judge Taylor Wouds in the Federal Court overruled the motions for a new trial in the cases of Coy and Bernhamer, the convicted tally-sheet conspirators. Coy was then sentenced to the penitentiary for eighteen months and to pay a fine of $100; Bernhamer to go a year and pay a fine of $1,000. They were remanded to the county jail, where they will remain pending the appeal to Judge Gresham."

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

A CHARLESTON (W. Va.) special says: "The vendette between the Hatfields of Logan County, W. Va., and the McCoys of Pike County, Ky., is settled for the present. The agent chosen Governor Wilson sent to Logan County came back empty-handed, saying that the belligerents on both sides have disbanded and the trouble ended. Governor Wilson has recommended the order calling out the militia."

NATIONAL LAW-MAKERS.

What Is Being Done by the National Legislature.

MR. PLUMB offered a resolution in the Senate on the 20th ult. instructing the postoffice committee to inquire into the cause of the excellent mail service, especially in the West and south, and presented newspaper extracts and letters to show the "incomparable" course and the service to be adopted. The committee stopped attempt to make a report on the subject, and the postoffice committee reported adversely on a proposition to reduce postage rates to one cent." Mr. Morgan made his third speech in the Senate in opposition to the Blair education bill. The Senate passed the House bill to provide for the appointment of inspectors of agricultural colleges. Mr. Collum introduced a bill to repeal the internal revenue taxes on the manufacture of the Remington Cannon, and appropriating $1,000,000 to pay the claimants. Mr. Cockran, of Missouri, introduced a bill to provide for the payment of a service pension of 1 cent for each day's service, and $1 per month for each year of service. Mr. Palmer introduced a bill to provide for the sale of the Michigan Central Canal and the Michigan Central Railroad to the Hydro Lake Channel, Michigan.

THE bill to increase the pension of the widow of Custer was reported back to the House the 3d inst. Mr. Collum introduced a bill providing for the payment of bounties to soldiers for twenty-one years to draw the pay of the rank they received at the close of the war. Mr. Morgan addressed the Senate on the Blair education bill. The Senate passed the House bill providing for the appointment of inspectors of agricultural colleges. Mr. Collum introduced the bill introduced in the House by Mr. Hewitt, for the construction of the Remington Cannon, appropriating $1,000,000 to pay the claimants. Mr. Cockran, of Missouri, introduced a bill to provide for the payment of a service pension of 1 cent for each day's service, and $1 per month for each year of service. Mr. Palmer introduced a bill to provide for the sale of the Michigan Central Canal and the Michigan Central Railroad to the Hydro Lake Channel, Michigan.

THE bill to increase the pension of the widow of Custer was reported back to the House the 3d inst. Mr. Collum introduced a bill providing for the payment of bounties to soldiers for twenty-one years to draw the pay of the rank they received at the close of the war. Mr. Morgan addressed the Senate on the Blair education bill. The Senate passed the House bill providing for the appointment of inspectors of agricultural colleges. Mr. Collum introduced the bill introduced in the House by Mr. Hewitt, for the construction of the Remington Cannon, appropriating $1,000,000 to pay the claimants. Mr. Cockran, of Missouri, introduced a bill to provide for the payment of a service pension of 1 cent for each day's service, and $1 per month for each year of service. Mr. Palmer introduced a bill to provide for the sale of the Michigan Central Canal and the Michigan Central Railroad to the Hydro Lake Channel, Michigan.

MICHIGAN AFFAIRS.

—Romeo's street lamps are now in good repair.

—Clothes-line thieves are reaping a harvest at Jackson.

—Manistique wants a town hall, jail, library and a few other things.

—A hen in Bay City strangled to death in attempting to swallow a live mouse.

—The inmates of the Soldiers' Home now number 400, and the home is crowded.

—At Bradley's camp, in Midland County, four pine logs from one tree scaled 4,500 feet.

—A home-made mail box on a prominent Jackson street is labeled in large red letters "male box."

—The Linderman & Gray box factory has finally decided to remain a Whitehall, at least for the present.

—Chester Root, an old resident and prominent farmer living near Plymouth, died recently, aged 70 years.

—David Putman, a wealthy farmer of Williamston, was caught in a bay press recently and fatally injured.

—If Muskegon needs one thing worse than another it is a new depot. The present one is a disgrace to the city.

—Rev. M. J. Hall, who was found dead in the woods in Alpena County, is thought to have died from heart disease.

—Emmet County will vote on prohibition February 28, and it is conceded will give a big majority for prohibition.

—There will be no litigation over the will of the late James H. Fleet, of East Saginaw. The estate amounts to $815,000.

—Portland dry goods stores close at 7:30 to give the clerks a chance to attend church. Of course they all go—somewhere else.

—The State Treasurer's report shows cash on hand from the year's receipts and disbursements of 1887 to be $94,600.46.

—The chair of entomology in the experimental station at Columbus, Ohio, has been placed at the disposal of C. M. Weed, of Lansing.

—John Short, said to be a woodsman, recently stumped sunlin at Bay City, by shooting himself in the region of the heart. He will live.

—Tawas Bay, at a distance of about four miles from the shore, is covered with fish shanties. Some trout are caught weighing thirty-five pounds.

—George Hall has been appointed station agent of the Flint and Pere Marquette Railroad at Plymouth to succeed John Jacob, who recently resigned.

—The Kalkaska Business Men's Association elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, A. G. Drake; Vice President, Dr. Ferguson; Secretary, C. S. Blom; Treasurer, H. E. Stover; Executive Committee, B. C. Elms, W. P. Perkins, T. Lynch.

—A base-burner in D. H. Hibbard's office in Jackson refused to operate satisfactorily and was thrown out to the sidewalk, where it proceeded to do business as usual. Two Norwegians, recently landed, passing by, took a seat on the sidewalk and gazed at the fire, and, scenting a couple of boxes, seated themselves by its stove and proceeded to cook up a mess that so pleased them, remarking upon the superiority of America over any country on earth in the matter of stoves, that they would go to Ironwood and get a stove like that.

—Ionia's new postmaster, Mr. Fitzgerald, has a Democratic predecessor who is a Republican and a Democrat. Mr. Fitzgerald is a Democrat and a Republican. Mr. Fitzgerald's predecessor is a Republican and a Democrat. Mr. Fitzgerald's predecessor is a Republican and a Democrat. Mr. Fitzgerald's predecessor is a Republican and a Democrat

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. CRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

MR. BLAINE has come to the conclusion that he does not want to be president. The people came to that conclusion three years ago.

No political theory is valuable unless it benefits, in its application, the business of the people, and when our business men engage more generally in political affairs we shall have safer and better politics.—President Cleveland.

"THE tariff" says the Cleveland Leader, "is purely a question of wages High tariff; high wages. Low tariff; low wages — or no wages at all." What on earth are the workingmen grumbling about their wages for, then? Isn't the tariff high enough!

FEB. 29th is the day congress has assigned for the pronouncing of eulogies upon the life and character of Seth C. Mosdell, late representative from the 11th district. It is expected that addresses will be made by Burrows, Chipman, Ford and Catcheon of the Michigan delegation.

The little three cent nickel piece is doomed to be swept out of existence, and in a few years they will be worth their weight in gold. The house has passed Mr. Mark's bill to discontinue their coinage, and ordering that they shall be melted down as they come to the treasury and go to mrke five-c ent pieces.

JAMES G. BLAINE has written a letter to the chairman of the national republican committee, in which he says that he is not a candidate for the presidency, and that he not permit his name to go before the national convention at Chicago next June, but the entire document is an earnest appeal for the nomination. And in this appeal he evidently seeks to show that he is the only man in the republican party able to carry the nation next fall.

Senator Stanford, of California, has written as follows to a constituent who asked his reasons for voting for the confirmation of Lamar as justice of the United States supreme court: "I voted for him because I considered him one of the best men in the south for the place. He is in my judgment a broad, liberal-minded man of a great deal of learning. He was professor of law in the university of Mississippi, and I think he is a thoroughly converted unionist and I do not think it wise to reject anyone on the ground alone that they were engaged in the late rebellion. I think we want to be one people politically and socially. Gen. Grant expressed the idea when he said: 'Let us have Peace.' Lamar's loyalty and integrity to the union was passed upon most conclusively when both houses of congress provided for the succession to the presidency and made him heir only a few removes from the presidency. I am reluctant to find myself not in harmony with all the republican senators, but it was a case, so far as my action was concerned, entirely for my own judgment and conscience and I voted accordingly."

Seventh District Congressional Election.

Tuesday's election in the eleventh congressional district is a great victory for democracy. This being the first congressional election since president Cleveland's tariff reform message, which placed this great tariff question before the people, and this district being largely made up of an iron region, it was watched with interest from all quarters. The republicans have boasted that the president's message would kill him politically, and his party with him, and they undertook to make this prediction good at this the first opportunity and to distinctly raise the tariff issue.

While Breen is probably defeated by perhaps 200 votes, considering the old time republican majority of that district, the result is a grand vindication of the president in his bold stand for the people's rights.

Breen's defeat is to be attributed to the boodle and bulldozing of the republican managers. But it seems that the voting "like sheep" as Tim Nester, an old-time republican puts it, does not roll up such republican majorities as it did a few years ago. Had there been a fair vote, Breen would have been elected by a handsome majority.

1882, republican majority	.....	8,000
1884, " "	.....	7,000
1886, " "	.....	2,240
1888, " "	perhaps	200

The following telegram from Tim Nester, mayor of Marquette, to I. M. Weston, chairman of the state central committe, is a fair statement of the situation:

I. M. Weston, Grand Rapids:

MARQUETTE, Feb. 15, 1 a. m.—Latest returns show a majority for Seymour of 100, with Benzie, Manitou, and Leelanaw yet to be heard from.

Seymour got 1,500 votes where men were coerced and driven to the polls like sheep. TIM NESTER.

Public Sentiment in the West.

The following letter is from a political observer of unsurpassed experience and excellent judgment:

"I have been travelling pretty steadily in the west for the eight months last past. I have been among the people who will elect the next president. I have talked to thousands of farmers, and I know what the people are thinking about. Mr. Cleveland has made the platform on which the democracy must fight. The tariff is being discussed at every country store. It is the only issue talked about. The people are absolutely indifferent as to who shall hold the offices. They want more of the money which they earn to remain in their pockets. And the talk about southern outrages begins to fall on impatient ears. The writings of the tariff are but imperfectly understood in the west. The farmers know that they are annually growing poorer, but they do not know why. If the democratic speakers will confine themselves to the issue of the tariff, and know what they are talking about, there is not, in my opinion, a sure republican state in the Mississippi valley. The distress among these farmers, the larger portion of whom are republicans, is very great. More than half the farms are mortgaged, and they are on the downward course from freeholders to tenants, and from tenants to peasants. If the speakers can show these men that their financial straits are the result of the tariff they will smash the republican party to flinders, and this can be so clearly shown that every farmer can see it."

The writer of this letter is not a member of any democratic organization, and he has during most of his political lifetime been in sympathy with the republican party. His observations agree with those of many other Star correspondents, who are competent to judge the tendency of political currents.—New York Star.

High Tax and Low Wages.

After the national tube works of Pittsburg (protection, 45 per cent) shall have locked out their 4,000 men, the proprietors will have time to go to Washington and plead the dangers that would accrue to American workmen if the robber tariff were abolished or reduced. The proprietors can make Washington a stopping place, going on to Europe to secure the 4,000 pauper workmen who will take the starvation wages that the "strikers" have refused. When the presidential canvass shall be well under way, we may expect to see James G. Blaine on the hustings, and he will ask these 4,000 defeated strikers if they desire to have free trade and compete with pauper labor. Then the 4,000 will yell with enthusiasm and vote for protection, exactly as the new batch of workmen will do as soon as they shall have been naturalized. In this way Pennsylvania goes 80,000 for high tariff every time.

The man who tries to make a living with cards and bunco and confidence games when the high tariff "cracks" is open to all, is as much fool as he is rascal.—Chicago Herald.

Advertisers and the Cash System.

A merchant of long experience in selling dry goods said recently: "I have tried fancy cards, almanacs and circulars, but the best of all advertising mediums is the newspaper. I pay special attention to my newspaper advertisements and change them every week. The city in which I do business is too small to support a daily newspaper, but I utilize the columns of the weeklies to the best advantage. As it regards the benefit of newspaper advertising over all other mediums there can be no two opinions. When other plans fail of desired results, not so the newspaper. It circulates everywhere, and advertisements if properly displayed, are sure to be read. Advertisements appearing in reputable journals seem to possess an authority and command an attention which is entirely lost in a circular. The former speaks with positiveness the latter seldom makes an impression, and is thrown aside without a thought.

High Tariff, Low Wages.

If the high tariff of this country causes the high wages that are paid here for labor, why does taxation not have the same effect in other countries? Wages in Germany are very low, but Germany has a high tariff. Wages in Russia are lower than in Germany and yet Russia has a tariff far higher than that of Germany.—Kalamazoo Gazette.

Montana All Ready.

Omaha Man—Montana wants to come into the Union, eh!

Montana Man—That's just what we're after, and we'll make it, too.

"I did not suppose Montana had enough population."

"Great Scott! We've got 1,400,000 cattle, 400,000 horses, 2,000,000 sheep and no end of hogs.—Omaha World.

Barking on the Back Seats.

A story comes from Belgium to the effect that once upon a time a dog found his way into the chamber of deputies just as a prosy member was boring the house with a harangue. The facilecousness of the speech was soon appreciated by Carlo, who gave vent to his feelings in barks. And no sooner the stenographers report of the speech had at various points the interpolation (barking on the back seats).—Boston Transcript.

A SAD TALE.

Bill Nye Tells a Story with a Doubtful Moral.

This is the story of William Johnson, a Swede, who went to Wyoming territory, perhaps fifteen years ago, to seek his fortune among strangers, and who, without even a knowledge of the English language, began in his patient way to work at whatever his hands found to do. He was a plain, long legged man, with downcast eyes and nose.

There was some surprise expressed all around when he was charged one day by Jake Paizen with feloniously taking, stealing, carrying away and driving away one team of horses, the property of the afflicted, and of the value of $200, contrary to the statutes in such case made and provided, and against the peace and dignity of the territory of Wyoming.

PLEADING BEFORE THE GOVERNOR.

Everybody laughed at the idea of Jake Peizen owning a team worth $200, and, as he was also a chronic litigator, it was generally conceded that Johnson would be discharged. But his misfortune seemed to sweep down on him like the very first mountain breeze. In preliminary examination Johnson acted like a man who is about to be discharged, and he declared English very well. He failed to get a lawyer. He pleaded guilty, not knowing what it meant, and was permitted to take it back. He had no witnesses, and the court was in something of a hurry, as it had to prepare a speech that afternoon to be delivered to the errand boys on the "Beauties of Eternal Justice," and so it was adjudged that in default of $200 bail the said William Johnson be committed to the county jail of Albany county, in said territory, there to await the action of the grand jury for the succeeding term of the district court for the second Judicial district of Wyoming.

Finally the regular term of the district court opened. Men who had come from a long distance to vaunt their ignorance and other qualifications as jurors could be seen on the streets. Here and there you could see the familiar face of those who had served as jurors for years and yet had never lost a case.

William Johnson was peculiarly unfortunate in the selection of his counsel. The man who was appointed to defend him was a very much overestimated young man who started the movement himself. He was courageous, however, and perfectly willing to wade in where angels would naturally hang back. His brain would not have soiled the finest fabric, but his opinion had a large muscle on it like a leaf of Vienna bread. He was the kind of a young man who goes up to see the drama and explain it along about five minutes in advance of the company in a loud, trombone voice.

He defended William Johnson. Thus in the prime of life, hardly understanding a word of the trial, stunned, helpless, alone, the latter began per his term of five years in the penitentiary. His patient, gentle face impressed me as it did others, and his very helplessness thus became his greatest help.

One lawyer said it was an outrage, and Charlie Bramel said that if Johnson would put up $50 he would agree to jerk arm out of the jog on a writ of habeas corpus before dinner.

Seeing how the sentiment ran, I resolved to start a petition for Johnson's pardon. I got the signatures of the court, the court officers, the jury and the leading men of business in the county. Just as I was about to take it to Governor Thayer, there was an incident at the penitentiary. Wm. Johnson had won the hearts of the warden and the guards to that extent that he was sent out one afternoon to assist one of the guards in overseeing the labor of a squad working in a stone quarry near by. Taking advantage of a time when the guard was a few hundred feet away, the other convicts knocked John son down and tried to get away. He got up, however, and intercepted them till the guard got to him and the escape was prevented. Johnson was tried till all was secure again, and then fainted from loss of blood occasioned by a scaly wound ever which he had a long fight afterward with erysipelas.

This was all lucky for me, and when I presented the petition to the governor I had a strong case, made more so by the heroic action of a man who had been unjustly condemned.

I spoke earnestly of his good character since his incarceration, and the governor promised prompt action. But he was called away in December and I feared that in night, in the rush and pressure of other business, forget the case of Johnson till after the holidays. So I telegraphed him and made his life a burden to him till the afternoon of the 24th, when the 4:30 train brought the pardon.

I went away to spend my own Christmas, but not till I had given Johnson a few dollars to help him get another start, and had made him promise to write me how he got along. And so that to me was a memorable and a joyous Christmas, for I had made my self happy by making others happy.

BILL NYE.

P.S.—Perhaps I ought not to close this account so abruptly as I have done, for the reader will naturally ask whether Johnson ever wrote me, as he said he would. I only received one letter from him, and that I found when I got back, a few days after Christmas. It was quite characteristic, and read as follows:

"LARAMY the twenty-fift day.

"PRENT JIM:

"When you get this Letter I will be in A nother territory where the weeds seize from trubbling & the weery air at Rest on one my Feet writing I refer above to the territory of Utaw where I will begin Life A new & all will be forgot.

"I hop god will Reward you In Caise I Shood not Be Abel to Do so.

"Yo have Bin a good frent off me and so I am shure you will enjoy to hear of my success I hope the sleech hounds of Justice will not try to tolly me for it will be worse than I have Bin if I have a dozzle better team than I had Before.

"It is the Sheriff's team wich I have got & his name is Genis, tell the Governor to Pardon me if I have seemed Rude i shall go to some new Plais where I will not be Looked upon with Sudspicion wishing you a mary Crismas hapy new year and April Fool I will Close from your to Feet

"AN. JOHNSON."

The Wisconsin Decision.

The women of Wisconsin have lost their case before the supreme court. They secured the right to vote for school directors, and, given an inch, they at once took an ell. Because the election judges refused them votes for mayor, when the mayor was to appoint the school board, they sued the unlucky yellow jers, and ran them a pretty race from court to court until at last the supreme justices have settled the matter, and, as it were, patted the brave poll-keepers on the back.

Women do not vote because they do not bear the burdens of citizenship. As a rule they care nothing for politics, except to lament the fact that men should talk on such a subject and go to political meeting when they might otherwise stay at home and hear the children repeat their lessons. It is not settled that the present rule of universal manhood suffrage is fair, for where a woman is the head of a family she is frequently of a mind to take on all the burdens of such a position. Neither should a tramp's vote for war count for as much as the householder's vote against war. These inequalities will be leveled without doubt. But the advocates of women suffrage, while they assert the needs of women for political sovereignty, should also advocate that women escape no part of a citizen's burdens. If there be a draft for jury or war the unwilling woman should be drafted as well as the voting man. In Washington territory, the women, while they demand the ballot, have peremptory declined to do jury service. In such a debate the ordinary privileges granted to women must cease. Having the ballot, there would be no reasoning in reason why woman should not assume all the other obligations of man. In the case of the British subjects, both congress and the state of Illinois have declared this principle. Here the alien must become a citizen and put himself under the authority of the state, or forfeit many privileges as a property-holder. That is only fair. It forces a large body of intelligent men to the ballot box they had hoped to forever escape doing. If British adult male residents did not want the ballot, how much smaller boon must it prove for the housewife happily married and surrounded by a growing family!—Chicago Herald.

Secure Admiration.

Who can help admiring a lovely face, a clear, smooth, beautiful complexion? These can easily be obtained by the use of Hamilton's Oriental Balm. It will surely remove Freckles, Tan, Pimples and Blemishes of every sort and is in no way injurious to the skin, but is the most harmless and elegant preparation of its kind. Price 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

A HOME FREE

Two and One-Fourth Acres of Land, Less than Three-Fourths of a Mile from Charlevoix, to be GIVEN AWAY.

Every person paying Five Dollars in CASH for goods or on account at our store will receive a number which will give one chance to obtain the prize.

One number, between 1 and 1,000, will be sealed in an envelope, and deposited in the bank, and will not be opened until all the numbers are given out. After the 1,000 numbers are given out, the sealed number will be opened, and the person holding the ticket calling for that number will receive a deed of the above premises.

A general stock of GROCERIES on hand.

A. J. RUDGE & SON,
Cor. Antrim and Grant Streets, Charlevoix.

Abstracts of Title

At the Old Rate.

I will furnish Abstracts of Title to all parties desiring them, upon the following terms, viz: One Dollar for the first transfer, and twenty-five cents for each subsequent transfer.

REMEMBER, I have the only Complete Set of Abstracts in Charlevoix county, and will certify to the correctness of all Abstracts made in my office. E. F. ALLEN.

Boyne City, Mich., Feb. 15, 1888.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

Grand Rapids' best paper,

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month; delivered by John Weed at 12½ cents a week.

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in the thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention, to those who are in need of profitable work. We can set them at work earning from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free, capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed. ady

PATENTS.

FRED W. CROCKER,
Counselor at Law & Solicitor of Patents,
ROOM 32, 234 BROADWAY,
New York, N. Y.

Old Newspapers for Sale.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charvleoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

The only exclusive stock of DRY GODOS in Charlevoix, at the corner of Bridge and Main Streets.

GRAND CLOSING OUT SALE of LADIES' WRAPS AND JACKETS AT COST.

ELSEE.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets.

DO YOU WANT

PURE DRUGS,

Or Carefully Compounded Prescriptions,

CALL ON US.

DO YOU SMOKE? We Keep the Best Cigars.
DO YOU LIKE MUSIC? We will take pleasure in showing our well-selected Stock!

Yours Respectfully,

F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,
Druggists and Pharmacists,
Opera Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

S. & I. 1888 S. & I.

You will need something in our line during 1888. Do not fail to buy of us. You will SAVE YOUR DOLLARS by so doing.

There's Saws, Axes, Files, and Tools of all kinds. Then you may want a New Stove. If you do, you miss it if you don't get one of ours. A majority, a large majority, of the Stove Buyers of the county will tell you. We've got their names, and can refer direct to them. The Champion Pumps, too; what a splendid record they have, working easily and quickly.

Come and see us; if you want anything, BUY OF US. Yours, in the belief that we will not fail to please you.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

J. S. & J. R. DIXON,
Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.
TERRACE FARM. - - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

Bargains IN BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

THE ATKINS SAWS
NEW PERFECTION AXES
Round Oak Stoves.
Job and Tin Work.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Feb. 16, 1888.

Local Notes and News.

Circuit court will convene the 28th.

East Jordan is to have a gymnasium sure.

When in town stop at Washburne & Co's.

For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. mp1

Perry Weed has put in a full line of legal blanks.

Perry Weed is carrying a large assortment of legal blanks.

For legal blanks of all kinds, go to Perry Weed's book store.

Tell your neighbor that A. T. Washburne & Co.'s ½ off sale will do them good.

You only pay for ½ of what you purchase during the month, at Washburne & Co's.

James A. Lawrence informs us that he has just filled the Belvedere ice house with very fine ice.

If you want to pay part of the cost of a new organ with green wood, call at this office for particulars.

Washburne & Co. draw trade for 25 miles around. Their ½ off sale is the biggest thing out for the community's benefit.

A. J. Milne has moved his stock of groceries into the Crourter building on Bridge street this week, and is now ready for business in his new quarters.

Those interested in real estate transfers will do well to take notice that E. F. Allen, of Boyne, advertises abstracts of title at reduced rates in another column.

The Delta, of Gladstone, says: "The propeller Champlain which was recently burned, with the loss of 24 lives is being rebuilt, and in future will be known as the Charlevoix."

Major S. Kase came near being obliged to move out of their office without much notice last Saturday. Fire caught in the partition near the chimney, but was discored before it got beyond control.

The East Jordan Enterprise has an item box hung up in the postoffice and those who desire a personal mention of their friends in the papers and are too modest to mention it to, or in the hearing of the reporter, can write the same and drop it into the box.

At the meeting of the railroad commissioners held at Lansing last week, the maps of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba railroad through Antrim and Kalkaska counties were approved, and an injunction ordered at the meeting of the same road with the Bay View and Little Traverse railroad at Petoskey. The maps of the entire road from Kalkaska to Mackinaw City have now been approved.

F. M. Fogg, of Lansing spoke over two hours at the opera house last evening on the Labor question of the day. He came there at the solicitation of the local assembly of Knights of Labor for the benefit of the Schuylkill and Lehigh valley sufferers, and that effort seemed to have had the house packed with those interested in the subject. This lecture was without doubt the most learned address of the character ever delivered in Charlevoix.

Blood Brothers' establishment at Clarion is booming this winter They are working 35 to 40 men constantly, and running 12 hours a day, not even than being able to keep up with the orders On Monday their lathes used 6,000 feet of maple, and it keeps their saw mill busy pretty much all the time to get out lumber to feed the lathes. We are glad to hear of their success, and after their brave fight against many obstacles well and hindrances, they certainly deserve it.—Petoskey Record.

Tourists from Michigan are sending back anything but flattering accounts of their improvidence in northern California. We think that most of the accounts they little to boast of except ite "glorious climate," and that is not half what it has been cracked up to be. The boom there already begins to show signs of collapsing and when it bursts a great many people will find themselves poorer and wiser. There is no doubt whatever that Michigan is a vastly better country for a home than California, in all respects.

Charlevoix county has voted to try prohibition for three years from the first of next May, and now the real battle will commence, and now the advocates of prohibition may demonstrate to the people that they are in earnest. If prohibition is sternly enforced right along and all the time for the whole three years, it will be a good thing. But if prohibition is not enforced effectly and all the time, regardless of expense or trouble,—if, after a few spasmodic attempts at first, the enforcement of the law is relaxed, and free whisky reigns—then a terrible mistake will have been made. The county and the village will lose all the taxes levied upon liquors, and in addition will be compelled to stand heavy expenses for attempting to enforce the law so long as such attempt is maintained. Everybody may as well be certain in advance that the long entrenched evil of liquor selling and drinking will not depart without a stubborn and protracted resistance, during which many taxpayers will grumble at the expense of the contest. Therefore the temperance men and women who have been working for prohibition must not make the mistake of stopping their work now, and regarding their task as done, merely because the people have voted to give prohibition a trial. Their real, practical work has only begun. Those who believe in prohibition have now their work cut out for them, and the community will watch them closely to see whether they take hold of it in earnest. The test is upon them.

Purely Personal.

Capt. Aldrich came home to-day.

W. H. Downer returned from Canada yesterday.

Capt. J. H. Wilson returned from Chicago to-day.

J. A. Hawkins arrived on the stage this noon from Chicago.

Mrs. Chas. Swallow and son have gone to Muskegon on a visit.

Ben Campbell was home from Torch Lake the fore part of the week.

Miss Mattie O'Neill is home from her school this week, on account of illness.

Capt. Harrison Miller and wife arrived this morning with the remains of their son Willie.

Capt. Penfold, of Frankfort, arrived last Thursday, and is the guest of F. A. Watson this week.

George Bates is about to remove to Winona, Minn., where his services are sought by a lumber firm. Mr. Bates has been with Mr. Nicholls a number of years and has many friends in Charlevoix.

The Grand Encampment held at Battle Creek last week by a unanimous invited our townman, A. D. Cruickshank to a position higher up among that order of patriarchs than he held last year. He brought home the regalia of senior warden.

Mrs. A. B. Gates, of Rockford, and Miss Anna Bell, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bell, of Charlevoix were married last Thursday evening at the bride's home, by Rev. W. H. McCartney. Mr. and Mrs. Gates left the same evening for their future home at Rockford.

Chas. See, jr., of Charlevoix and Miss Jennie Harris of Elk Rapids were married at the bride's home Wednesday, Feb. 8, by Rev. A. J. Elliord. Mr. See with his bride arrived in Charlevoix the next day of the same and is receiving congratulations of his many young friends.

Coming Events.

The fire department are making arrangements for the most enjoyable hop of the season Feb. 22.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning the subject will be "Who do God's will know of the Doctrines." In the evening, "Look and Live."

Christ church Sunday school at Green's hall every Sunday at 3 Topic for senior grade next Sunday, honesty, test, 8th commandment. They will meet every Wednesday evening during Lent at the residence of W. P. Brown. All are welcome.

The Vote for Prohibition.

Below will be found the vote on local option in this county, by towns, as reported by our correspondents:

	For Prohibition.	Against Prohibition.
Bear Lake	8	7
Boyne Valley	45	36
Charlevoix	10	10
Charlevoix	119	25
Evangeline	133	7
Eveline	45	10
Marion	25	1
Melrose	55	2
Norwood	35	1
South Arm	189	6

Historical Society.

The historical society will meet this week with Mrs. Gaylee in her rooms at the E. M. Clark residence. Mrs. C. J. Grier will furnish the paper of the evening on "The Era Queen of Elizabeth." R. W. Kane and Mrs. H. M. Enos will lead the conversation subject, "Kenilworth."

DEATH OF MRS. ROBERT MILLER.

Stricken with Heart Disease Last Monday Afternoon.

We were all shocked Monday, a few minutes after noon, on learning of the sudden death of Mrs. Robert Miller, of heart disease, at her house on Mason street. Although she had been ailing for several days, her immediate danger was not thought of except by her most intimate friends.

Mrs. Miller has for many years been one of Charlevoix's most respected citizens, whose Christian character leaves impressions upon society which will long be remembered and felt.

The funeral took place at the family residence yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. C. T. Stout, of Petoskey, of Christ Episcopal Mission Church, of which deceased was a member.

The following was adopted at an informal meeting of Baxter Post, G. A. R., February 15, 1888:

Whereas, Our comrade, Robert Miller, has been bereft of his beloved and cherished companion in life; and Baxter Post, in her death, has lost one of its most faithful, true, and devoted friends; therefore,

Resolved, That the members of Baxter Post extend most heartfelt sympathy and condolence to our afflicted comrade and his family in their sad bereavement. And as a token of our esteem for the deceased, we will now proceed in a body to pay last tribute of respect to her memory.

D. C. CHAMBERLAIN, Commander.
H. B. KEENS, Adjutant.

Eveline.

IRONTON, Feb. 14—Our recent warm weather has caught a dreadful cold.

The oyster supper given by the ladies aid society on Tuesday evening was a success in every way. The receipts of the evening were $20.

Mr. Fairbanks, fruit tree agent of Traverse City, was in town last week taking orders.

Ira McKee is still unable to work.

The thermometer registered 28° below zero last Saturday morning.

George W. Jones, of Boyne, was in town last week taking orders for a book entitled "The Beautiful Story."

We are informed that the school in the Hillsgrove district is in a flourishing condition, with Miss Ellen Beal as teacher.

Mrs. J. Purvis, of Ironton, was called to Lansing by the sickness of her mother, a week ago.

At the examination of the Ironton schools held in the school house last Friday evening a good time was had, and it was a success in every way. The admission fees amounted to $7.50 which is to go toward buying a school library.

Joseph Tuttle gave a party to a number of his young friends last Saturday evening.

Our good-natured treasurer S. B. Brown is keeping himself busy these days collecting our few pennies.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reed have been very sick for some time, but we understand both are convalescent.

M. J. Staley was home Sunday, and reported that Foreman's camp was broken up last week; that all of the teams have been discharged but two, and that most of the men are at work in the Pine Lake mill which started up Wednesday.

Charlevoix to Have a National Bank.

A meeting was held last evening at the Bank of Charlevoix, and the initiatory steps taken toward the organization of a national bank. For some time the operators of the Bank of Charlevoix have felt that their facilities for the large and increasing banking business of this place were not sufficient, hence they are about to enter upon a system of larger proportions, and will make the concern one sufficient to accommodate the business of this region. The present operators will be joined by a number of the best business men of Charlevoix, and the new concern will take the place of the present Bank of Charlevoix. It is expected that the new bank will be ready to do business in about three months.

Hayes.

BURGESS, Feb. 14.—Milder weather for St. Valentine's day!

Levi Lewis left yesterday for Valparaiso, Indiana, where he is going to attend commercial college.

The school house in district No. 4 was burned Thursday evening, Feb. 9. This was a new house and had no insurance.

The treasurer of the township reports taxes as coming in rather slow.

The United States land office located at Detroit, East Saginaw and Reed City are to be abolished and merged into a new office to be located at Grayling.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

St. Ignace talks of a national bank.

The postmaster at Kalkaska allows no smoking in the post office.

There are now over 500 patients in the Traverse City insane asylum.

Grand Rapids manufactures $20,000,000 worth of furniture annually.

Petoskey's wood-pulp-mill grinds up about 600 cords of wood per year.

Montmorency county is about to be all torn up by a rebellion over the county seat.

The Detroit, Bay City & Alpena railroad company is looking toward Mackinaw straits.

Gladstone has a Board of Trade that publishes a circular every month advertising its resources.

Traverse City's new woolen factory is nearly ready to commence work, and when fully completed will have a capacity of about 1,000 yards of cloth per day.

Charges of cruelty and bad treatment of inmates of the insane asylum at Kalamazoo have been preferred against the authorities of that institution, and an investigation will probably follow.

According to the Bellaire Breeze the good, sensible people of Central Lake are about to establish a public reading room, and supply it with some of the best current periodicals, deeming it a more attractive place for young men than the poker rooms.

The state board of corrections and charities has drafted a letter which will be sent to every public charitable and other institution in the state over which they have visiting authority, calling attention to the need of drilling with fire protection apparatus.

Louis Gerard who has been engaged in freighting from Bois Blanc to Cheboygan, had a terrible experience yesterday. His team broke through the ice and horses, sleigh load and harness went down. Gerard narrowly escaped drowning. He reached a fish shanty nearly frozen to death. It is probable that he will yet die from the effects of his terrible exposure.—Cheboygan Democrat.

Under the terms of a bill introduced into the house by Mr. Blount, chairman of the committee on postoffices and postroads, Monroe, Adrian, Coldwater, Niles, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Marshall, Jackson, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Pontiac, Howell, Lansing, Charlotte, Flint, Owosso, Muskegon, Big Rapids, Newaygo Manistee, Alpena, Traverse City, Cadillac, Sault Ste. Marie, Menominee, Escanaba and Houghton, and perhaps others, would be entitled to public buildings costing $25,000 or less, depending on the income of the postoffices.

There was a large attendance at the grand encampment of the Odd Fellows at Battle Creek last Thursday. Deputy Grand Sire of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, Gen. Underwood, of Kentucky, was present. Officers were elected as follows: Andrew Harshaw, Alpena, Grand Patriarch; James M. Crosby, Springport, High Priest; A. D. Cruickshank Charlevoix, Senior Warden; James Dean, Detroit, Junior Warden; E. H. Whitney, Lansing, Scribe; Harrison Soule, Ann Arbor, Treasurer; J. B. Alward, Camden, Representative. The next annual Encampment will be held at Grand Rapids next October.

A Washington dispatch says A W. Wright, a seventeen million aire, of Alma, Mich., and Philip Ketchum, the Saginaw lumber prince, forming the firm of Wright & Ketchum, are the first on Indian Agent Mark Stevens list of prominent Michigan lumbermen against whom suits are to be vigorously prosecuted for cutting timber on the Indian lands of Michigan. Mr. Stevens has been here some time, ostensibly to push the establishment of an industrial school for Indians of Michigan, but more particularly at the order of Indian Commissioner Atkin to work up the final details in many prosecutions, civil and criminal, against leading Michigan capitalists who are accused of having despoiled the Indian lands.

This will remind you that the fire department are making extra efforts to give one of the best parties of the season next Wednesday evening, Feb. 22d. For particulars, read their colored posters headed "grand calico masquerade ball."

Disturbing the Equilibrium.

When, dar, the equilibrum an' slippin'

—Philadelphia Times.

An Opium Eater's Face.

The effect of the drug on the physique of a person varies somewhat. Sometimes he will become dreadfully emaciated, but if the appetite keeps good he will not decrease in weight. There is always, however, a peculiar color about an opium eater's face, and by that he can be known; the complexion assumes the color of old brass, having a peculiar dead, like hue, but it is seldom that the digestion is impaired.

Opium affects the spinal cord and brain principally. The nerve power of the opium eater is very much lessened without the opium, and it is very much increased with the drug until the end comes. The death of the opium eater is not marked by any particular scenes of horror. I have seen several opium eaters die a very pleasant death, and I do not know that I ever saw a very bad death among such patients.—E. N. Carpenter, M. D., in The Epoch.

Thankful for Anything.

Bobby was at a neighbor's, and in response to a piece of bread and butter politely said "Thank you." "That's right, Bobby," said the lady. "I like to hear little boys say 'Thank you.'" "Yes, ma told me I must say that if you gave me anything to eat, even if it wasn't nothing but bread and butter."—Christian Advocate.

Queer Burial Customs in Europe.

The ceremonies for death and burial are alike for men and women. In the hour of death the face is turned towards Mecca or Jerusalem, and when the final moment comes the women of the harem, in regular succession, send forth shrill falsetto cries that rend the air and make the nerves quiver. This cry brings to the home the women of the village, who join in the lament for the dead. All are dressed in soiled, dark blue robes, and have faces, hands, breasts and even the walls of the house daubed with indigo. They unbraid their hair, and often pluck it out and lash themselves into a frenzy. Among the rich the clothing of the dead is strewn about the room, and the dishes and ornaments broken with great noise. Before the chill of death has fallen upon the inanimated form it must be carried to the tomb. The mourners follow the bier, which is covered with a cashmere shawl and carried on the shoulders of men. All are in soiled garments, with coarse cloth on the head.

The night following the burial, the men pass the hours with friends, smoking and drinking coffee, calm and resigned to destiny; the women spend the night in wailing and shrieking. On certain days the mother bewails her dead through the years, and on the festivals of the dead, families take their provisions and shawls and spend the night at the graves of their relations. After the death of a husband the widow must remain in the house a year, with all the covering of the furniture wrong side out, and the mirrors and ornaments covered. She does not offer refreshments to visitors, and the pipes are without their mouthpieces, and she must have, at stated times, professional waiters to perform in the house. The women beautify themselves by tattooing the face and hands, and the men have a cross or star tattooed on the arm. Lips are stained a dark purple, and finger nails and palms of the hands are colored orange with henna. Women of every class put a black rim under the eye, made with kohl, which is not injurious and besides lending size and force to the eye, gives it shade from light.—Alexandria Cor. Milwaukee Sentinel.

Tabor to the Rescue.

"It is a shame," said a patriotic Colorado man to Senator Tabor, "that we have no monuments to any of our great men in this state."

"So it is. I'll have my measure taken for one immediately," was the reply.—Chicago News.

(Successor to G. W. CROUTER.)

DRUGS AND STATIONERY,

Charlevoix, - - Michigan.

Quarter Off!

OUR ANNUAL SALE

of one-fourth off.

DRY GOODS, CLOAKS AND Carpets.

We always Give our Customers a benefit when it is of some use. On February 1st Everything in our immense stock will go at 1-4 off. Now is a rare chance to secure a Cloak, of which we have a great many in Children's, Misses' and Ladies'.

RULE:—You purchase goods at regular retail prices and 1-4 will be deducted from the entire bill, or One Dollars worth of Goods for Seventy-five Cents. This sale will continue until March, to get best value come early.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

Geo. W. Beaman,

REIGN OF THE ICE KING.

St. Paul's Mid-winter Festival a Grand Success from Every Point of View.

An Interesting Description of the Magnificent Ice Palace.

The Entrance of King Borealis—A Magnificent Procession—Storming the Palace.

ROYAL sport was the order of the day in St. Paul from Jan. 25 to Feb. 4. It was the season of the mid-winter festival—the Ice Palace Carnival. Two of these carnivals had previously been held, in the winters of 1886 and 1887, and hundreds of thousands of people have been drawn thither to witness the gorgeous social carnival and participate in the many exhilarating winter sports. The grand central feature of these festivals is, of course, the mammoth castle of glittering ice. The palace of 1886 was the largest of the kind ever builded in the world up to that time, and it contained 10,000 blocks of ice. The one erected in January, 1887 was, however, nearly twice as large, containing 45,000 blocks of transparent ice, and being 223 feet long, 200 feet wide, and 115 feet high. It was a wonderful combination of towers, turrets, battlements, balconies and outworks.

Astonishing as is the achievement of that year, the present ice palace far outshines it in every detail. It covers about an acre of space, and reaches a height of 140 feet. Its ground dimensions are at least 250 feet square, and 75,000 blocks of ice 22x12 inches and about 18 inches thick were used in its construction. The ice, which was taken from a pond lake north of the city, would weigh 16,200,000 pounds, and if used in the building of a wall six feet high and eight inches thick would reach fourteen miles!

The main entrance has a large arch twenty feet in width and seventeen feet in height, flanked by small circular towers on either side sixty feet high. The three other entrances have large openings and are flanked by towers of different heights and sizes. The court walls have an average height of thirty feet, and run at various angles, terminating in small towers of different shapes and designs.

Probably one of the most unique attractions of the Palace is the Maze, situated at the northeast corner of the court walls. It is designed to bewilder those unwary enough to undertake to thread its mystic paths. It is about 80 feet in diameter, and has five separate passages which lead to the center of the pyramid, where circular stairs lead to a platform extending to the exterior of the Maze. The interior of this novelty is divided into a series of circular walks by low walls of ice, and the problem is to reach the staircase—not an easy task, by any means.

The main tower of the Palace starts from the centaur on snow-shoes and runs for four blocks around the park. One copying a large space at the north side as an Indian village, in which a band of fifty genuine red men, squaws, and pappooses reside. They occupy their skin tepees, and have their dogs and ponies with them.

FANCY SKATING.

An elaborate programme had been arranged for the ten days covering the Carnival season, and it was carried out almost to the letter. There were decorations, illuminations, monster processions, snow-shoe races, curling and skating contests, etc.

A correspondent at St. Paul gives the following interesting account of the inauguration of the Ice Carnival: Borealis, king of the hyperborean realm, arrived in the city in a blaze of glory that was chilly yet magnificent. He came followed by a retinue of attendants clad in polar bear skins and flowing beards that hung heavy with frost. He came followed with a blare of trumpets and a wild waving of banners that brought every table-bedecked citizen to the gate of entry and set them wondering at this scene of unique magnificence. The day was a propitious one for the event. The mercury, which had been low-spirited for two weeks past, manifested an inclination to be gay and jubilant, and when the king's chariot reached the city the thermometer registered five degrees below zero, but the air was damp and the heaviest kind of wraps were the order of the day.

An unusual amount of labor and expense had been expended in the construction of the ice palace for the king and the floats occupied by his attendants. They were of elaborate design and extremely rich in finish. The king's chariot was a massive affair mounted on runners. A throne in the rear end of the chariot reached the height of fifteen feet, and over it was a grand canopy sparkling with diamond dust, perfectly representing a coating of hoar frost. On the throne sat his Majesty, massive and imposing, in his robes of polar bear skins. The interior of the chariot was thickly covered with skins of the same kind, and from the back of the throne they hung, their skirts dragging in the snow. Back of the throne slumbered an antelope.

On the front of the chariot a Rocky Mountain goat stood on a pedestal of ice. The framework of the chariot, which was thirty-two feet long, was covered with white canvas, upholstered and painted in realistic representation of ice, snow, and frost. The chariot was drawn by six milk-white horses in elaborate trappings. White frost plumes nodded above their heads, and their harness was covered with diamond dust to represent frost. A man disguised as a polar bear sat on the seat and held the reins, while at the head of each animal walked a white bear in upright attitude.

Following the King's chariot were four floats, built for the benefit of his suite, comprising the Mayors of St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Winona, all hidden under bear-skins and their faces disguised with heavy white beards. The boats of the suite were made in various designs. One represented a big seal, another an Arctic whale, and the two others polar bears. The prevailing colors of each were white and blue-and-green, representing snow, water and ice in infinite forms of picturesque beauty. The horses drawing the floats were white, and across the haunches of each animal was thrown a light-blue blanket, with a white bear in bas-relief in the center. The second float was drawn by three horses tandem, and led by white bears. The third float was drawn by a span of horses driven by a polar bear. The fourth was drawn by two span of horses, led by bears, and the fifth was drawn by four horses abreast.

The carnival clubs, with attendant drum-corps and brass bands, formed for the reception of the royal visitor at 9 o'clock, and fifteen minutes later his Majesty arrived and the procession started on its march to the ice palace through the principal streets of the city. The streets were crowded several hours before the time set for the appearance of his Majesty. There was a scrambling for good positions, and, when an exceedingly good point was secured, nothing would prevail upon its possessor to leave until the last toboggan suit was lost to view around the next corner. In nearly every window along the entire route there were packed anxious spectators, who cheered the Ice King with a will. As the procession started from Seven Corners the crowd assembled there gave a hearty cheer, and this was carried along the line, growing louder at every step.

There were thousands of people from the rural districts and surrounding Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota towns, who were paying their first visit to a celebration of this nature, and the police had hard work to keep excited farmers and wild-eyed woodsmen from the logging districts from climbing telegraph poles and running down the ice statues along the line of march into points of observation. Thousands of women were out, and in their enthusiasm forgot that the keen wind that blew down the valley was covering their noses and chs as with frost. They insisted with dogged determination on getting in the front row of observers, and they got there. Muffs, handkerchiefs and hats were waved in the air, and a chorus of yells went up that made the hills ring. There was a great deal more enthusiasm manifested than has been known before since the first year of the carnival, and the assurance is confident that, financially, this year has proved to be a success.

The procession marched to the Palace grounds, where Mayor Smith tendered the freedom of the city to the Ice King, together with the keys of the Palace. There were upward of 50,000 people on the grounds. The vast concourse patiently stood in the cold and pounded their feet on the snow and watched the tedious ceremonies of giving Borealis possession of his glittering abode. At the close of the ceremonies an immense bonfire, with a polar bear painted upon it, was run up over the central tower of the Palace, and the reign of Borealis had begun. The procession was nearly a mile in length, and several of the clubs carried with them elegant floats of peculiar design, while others carried their bonnie blankets on their shoulders stretched on a frame-work. It is estimated that there were three thousand uniformed men in line, and the sight was a beautiful one.

The storming of the ice palace formed an interesting feature of the ten days' festivities. Each night witnessed Roman-candle rifles, a blazing torch, and other paraphernalia of war.

When the word was given the fire king, clad in his robes of flame, mounted his fiery chariot, drawn by four equally fiery steeds, and escorted by an army of little devils and his glittering followers, set forth to the ice king a roasting. The fire king's forces arrayed themselves around the ice palace and bombarded the crystal walls with red-hot shot and shell. The sight was one of the most beautiful possible to conceive. From every tower and loop-hole of the crystal palace darted forth streams of many-colored fire, and the hissing of gorgeous rockets shooting starward was silenced by the bursting of immense bombs, thrown to an immense height by mortars inside the castle.

The besiegers were not idle by any means, but shot their darts of flame at the palace in the attempt to demoralize the defenders. The glittering walls of the castle reflected back thousands of prismatic rays. The grounds of the palace were filled with gaily uniformed snowshoers, which imparted additional life and color to the scene.

CURLING.

AS MERRILY WE GLIDE.

AT THE BATON.

THE PAPER CHASE.

IN THE GYMNASIUM.

FOUNDING BISMARCK'S HEAD.

THE ICE PALACE.

AN EXPERT ON SNOW SHOES.

FRENCH SPORTS.

Pugilistic, Rowing, Running, or Walking Contests Unknown in France.

The Drafting of the Young Men into Military Service the Chief Cause for This.

Fencing, Billiards, and Lacrosse—The Paper Chase—Pounding Bismarck's Head.

[NEW YORK CORRESPONDENCE.]

Not far from the Bleecker street station on the Sixth avenue road is a little omnibus house, if it ever had any, has been blown away and forgotten. It is the very birthplace of the so-called French quarter. When the frequent snow-storm of a New York winter finds the ground cold enough to retain the flakes unmelted, the little court becomes the dumping place of the snow from the neighboring sidewalks and the overhanging roofs. And when the days and the thermometric mercury elongate simultaneously, and the snow becomes slush and disappears into the soil, the sewer, and the lazy gutter, the French boys of the quarter bring out a big iron frog, and stand it up in the further end of the court, and pitch pennies into its mouth for hours at a time, for fun and profit. I'm one of their most popular games, and, to a certain extent, a typical French sport. For it seems that what Americans understand as sport is little known in France, and little admired by the French. Not all their recreations are colored with the gambling, but very few are calculated to develop muscular prowess, or renown it. Contest for a champion belt in pugilism, or the badge of championship in rowing, or in walking, or in running, or in any of the scores of exercises so popular on this side of the water, are practically unknown in France. Nevertheless, the French residents of America have furnished some of the best-known contestants in several fields, and the undersigned, encouraged, at the one two departments of sport that they say considerable attention to at home Monsieur Alphonse Dumont, a Parisian who is visiting this country, and spending a part of his time in the city, said on this subject:

"The Frenchman cares little to contest in anything where mere muscular ability is at an advantage. He prefers sport as he does art—striving to develop its fine points, aiming to become great, and admiring only the most that may be attained in the exercise. We have no such thing as a national game; nothing that approaches to your base-ball, or polo, or the English cricket. Sport with us means, as a rule, horse racing, and incidentally your jockeys, of whom we think highly, would compare favorably with the best that this country knows. The contest that really occupies our attention as a national institution is fencing, and that probably arises from the military character of the national life. Much of the energy that the American youth puts into play and physical contests is absorbed by the government in recruiting the army. Here the boys of the village have to provide their own amusement, their own exercises, and have to depend upon themselves for acquiring the skill that is so essential to safety and successful sport. With us the amusements of youth are developed and the discipline, and if the young men can get any amusement out of it, so much the better for them. It is the next war that is always uppermost in every Frenchman's mind. It is the necessary preparation for this terrible event that makes the nation one without a typical game for the required service in the army takes all the young men into the military drill at just the time when they would naturally be kicking a ball on the diamond, or striking at the oars on the river; and when the few years of army life are at an end, if no war comes along to keep the enrollment at its highest, those who return to the ranks of civilians find themselves under the stern necessity of making a living, and all the less is their time available for play; and moreover the discipline of the army tends to make a man averse to taking up any new department of physical activity. He has already learned to do certain things, and may be regarded as beyond the age when it is desirable to spend any more time in learning accomplishments. So I think we shall remain as we have been, without a national game, and without any special activity in sport.

"The rare, nevertheless, certain directions in which the love of recreation finds expression. One is rowing. It is a popular diversion in France, and there are clubs and boat-houses floating in the Seine, some of them very elegant and well-appointed, and richly furnished. They are, as a rule, roofed over, but the doors are almost altogether, except for a narrow platform running round the four walls, on the level of the water. Almost on a level with the water of the river into which the swimmers plunge. There are instructors in swimming in all these houses, and clubs, such there is naturally no opportunity for long distance exercise, or practice in making time, there is yet considerable opportunity for fun and unlimited means for cultivating diving to its best. Many good swimmers go to these places to practice; indeed, it would be practically impossible for three-fourths of the population of Paris to learn to swim in any other way, for there is no place in the city, or within many miles of it, where the bathing can be indulged in with safety except in these places. Each establishment of the kind has a corps of men, some of them very skilled in the art, agreed for a wager to swim across the island in the night. Several gentlemen interested in sporting circles were notified, and, in addition to the wager, a purse was offered; the wager, by the way, was that the swimming to go there at all unless they attached themselves to the end of the rope held by the instructor. Some of these bath-houses are free, and others are the result of private enterprise and are open only on the payment of an admission fee. That there is actually an interest in swimming, apart from the limited opportunities in the Seine bath-houses, was evidenced just before I left France at Chelsy. There is an island in the river there that is from a mile and a half to a mile and three quarters in circumference. The hotelry, famous in their locality for their skill in the water, agreed for a wager to swim around the island in the night. Several gentlemen interested in sporting circles were notified, and, in addition to the wager, a purse was offered; the wager, by the way, was that the circuit could be made in an hour. At the appointed time all hands dove into the river. The man who backed them followed in a boat, and I am told that upward of twenty thousand francs were won on the question whether one of the contestants would finish on time. They came to the finish precisely at the same instant, having accomplished the circuit in fifty-seven minutes. The prize money was divided between them. When they were taken from the water the weather was so cold that one forced an hour to elapse before they could be got under shelter. One of them became dangerously ill, but the other suffered nothing from his hardy adventure.

"Fencing is the one everybody knows about, the French are the acknowledged masters in the art, and every educated man in the country knows how to handle the sword. The war department does everything possible to encourage the general cultivation of this exercise, instructors being in himself a famous swordsman, and frequently pass out of his way to add a judge in a public contest. These contests are numerous, much more numerous than I am inclined to think by the sparring exhibitions that take place in New York. And this, I should be said, is distinctly a sport wherein mere muscular power is at a discount; it is skill that counts.

"The French are also experts at billiards, and, in short, will be found the peers of any nation in games of skill.

"We have had some good wrestlers, also, notably Crystol, Terrier and Regnier, but the wrestler with us is not limited to the extent that a champion would be in America."

"Is there no general interest in aquatic sports?"

"Yes," responded M. Dumont laughing. "The wealthy have their yachts as you have here, and there is a form of rowing that, when I think of it, is rather amusing, would hardly pass for sport in the sense you mean. Canoeing is a popular exercise on the Seine, and in fact those addicted to it like it so well that they often spend the entire day at it. That is more than your boat-club men do on the Harlem, is it not? But the canoeist on the Seine is almost invariably accompanied by the lady whom you Americans would denominate as his best girl, and he not infrequently takes along a cargo of friends. Yes, canoeing is good sport, but I do not remember that I have heard of a championship contest. And on our holidays it is not a game of base-ball that attracts the crowds; they go to the Tuileries and listen to the music and roam about the gardens, and, you see, then an irregular kind of football is indulged in. It is not the lingly game by any means, more a kind of indiscriminate kicking.

"In the northern part of France they play a variety of lacrosse, but it is considerably different from the game as it is played in this country. It is played by the same class of people who play it here, and in the winter, when the weather allows, there is some skating, but it is an intensely aristocratic sport, not at all the popular game that it is here. Our champion skater, by the way, is a man who has come, as an American, George Frost. More than that, I believe he is a journalist. Speaking of aristocratic sport reminds me to say that our sport is mostly or somewhat democratic. Such great games as we have are played mainly by the titled persons in the military. The paper chase one I think of is a paper chase on horseback, conducted in very much the same way that the English and American play hare-and-hounds. With us, two of the most intrepid horsemen start from a given point at a good gallop, and, to throw off the pursuit, scattering bits of paper as they go. They stop not for barriers of any description and disregard roads. The pack, also on horseback, pursue them and catch them if they can. This game is always accompanied by a considerable concourse of spectators in carriages, who keep up with the pursuit as best they can by driving along the roads. It is a great game, and calls for the exercise of no little nerve and vigor. The courses are from fifteen to twenty miles in length."

"A striking difference between the French and American ideas of sport may be seen in this, for in harvest hounds as played in this country on foot the course is rarely less than fifteen miles long. It is evidently not a sport for France. M. Dumont continued:

"At the country fairs, with which all Americans are familiar through the comic opera, for what, opera ever was written that did not include as one of its scenes a country fair in France, there are various physical diversions that are more or less in vogue here in modified forms. Perhaps the most popular is pounding Bismarck's head. In this game the player strikes with a mallet on a figure of Bismarck, and the concussion is felt in the base of the skull; with which it is delivered, a soft cheek up in a slit in an upright plank. The game is of course to see who can send the ball up the highest. Then the chasing of a greased pig needs no explaining, I suppose. The best fun with a greased pig, however, is to be found in Paris itself. There they take a pig into one of the swimming houses in the Seine, such as I have spoken of, and having greased his tail force him into the water. Then the swimmers who are contesting for the prize, which is the pig, follow and try to bring him to land. It is great sport, I assure you."

"You have spoken, monsieur, about the government providing exercise for the army. Is there any?"

"Hardly is a boy in school before he is made to enter upon a series of gymnastics. It is a regular part of the curriculum, and increases in importance until the end of the course. Some had the peculiar feature of all this is, that although the government maintains the exercise is calculated to develop bodily vigor, the main thing sought for is uniformity of action. The drilling is all in platoons. In the gymnasium the same feature obtains. You cannot imagine the curious evolutions that the future soldiers have to go through together. There is no individual dose, but, as a rule, if you enter a gymnasium you will see a dozen boys at a long gallop back down the steep descent, with the chisels, all smiles and in full glory, stood waiting to welcome him under the archway with thanks for his generosity. The other guests had not yet appeared, the host became fidgety, automatic, and, at a given signal, ordered the repast to be served without them. The Frenchman's sanguinous were quite allayed by this time. The dishes were exquisite, the wines of the choicest growths. He drank deep, so did the Count; their tongues loosened, jest followed jest, and the host was most excellent company. The merriment was at its height, when suddenly Montmayer's manner changed, and he said in a solemn manner:

"Sacre de Pessigny, are you a good Christian?"

The President laughed, and raising his glass answered, lightly:

"You are very kind, my dear Count; what concern may you have in the state of my soul?"

"Turn round and you will see," thundered Montmayer.

De Pessigny turned and sprung to his feet. The arras behind him had been drawn aside. He saw a funeral bier at the end of the hall, and a dozen monks ranged round it began chanting a litany for the dead. A masked figure, dressed in black, stood at the head, beside a block.

"Through you I lost lands and gold," cried the Count. "Your head is forfeit. Quick, make your peace with heaven, for you have to die."

The scared President tried to laugh. "It is a sorry jest, my lord Count," he stammered, with trembling lips.

"Tis no jest. Make your peace with God."

Then the betrayed man fell upon his knees, appealing to the laws of hospitality, asking mercy for wife and child's sake. But in vain. The Count, from the chief two of the feigned monks dragged the victim to the block, and in an instant the executioner's work was done.

Early the next morning the Count mounted his horse and—again with a leathern bag at his saddle-bow—rode down to the Senate.

"Here is a fresh document connected with my case," he said, laying his bag on the table, and, hastily sainting the assembly, at daybreak the next day he rode away. The Senators sat waiting for De Pessigny's coming, and, when what at his delay, when presently red drops were seen oozing from the leather bag. It was opened and they found the head of De Pessigny.

Festivals of the Devil.

The Devil Festival is said to have originated in a legend of the mother of a fabulous person, Mu-lien; she was about the wicked-est lien in existence; there being no crime which she left uncommitted. After her death the spectre appeared one night to her son Mu-lien with a heavy wooden collar round about her neck, and she harrowed his soul with the tale of her sufferings in the lower regions. She said she was enduring the penalty for her unnumbered sins during her early life, and pleaded with her son to deliver her out of the hands of Pluto. This to him seemed an impossible task, as no human being can enter the dark regions and return alive. She told him he must become a Buddhist priest, and that there was a door in a certain Buddhist temple which he could open, and so let out the prisoners from the shades below. Mu-lien, thus ordered, obeyed the behest of his mother and sought out a well-known Buddhist priest to be his friend in all his plans

FARM AND GARDEN.

A SELF GRACING PORTABLE FENCE FOR POULTRY YARDS.

Experiments of Mr. Bonner and Others in Roasting Coffee—Final Estimates of the Crops—Pork Packing Statistics. Convenient Appliances for Butchering.

At this season all information that in any manner relieves the labor involved in butchering is most welcome. Following are suggestions with illustrations of convenences from The Ohio Farmer that will be appreciated.

TRIPOD FOR HANGING BEEF OR HOG.

The first figure here given represents a tripod for hanging the beef or hog. It is made of ash scantling, 2 1-2x4 inches, and is light. Two of these are fastened together firmly, as here shown, the third one being used as a prop and to elevate the carcass after being hooked on to "A" by means of a short chain or rope around the hind shank. It is a convenient device, enabling the farmers to hang up a carcass without assistance, and take it down when cleaned and ready. The tripod can be folded together and put out of the way when not needed.

A CLEANING TABLE.

The second cut shows a cleaning table. It is made with a slightly curved top to prevent the carcass from rolling off. Its construction is easily seen. The slats on it are 1x3 inches, set on edge and firmly spiked down to the two curved end pieces. It is a very convenient table for cleaning hogs before hanging up, and, indeed, for cleaning and washing almost anything.

A vat for scalding can be made of two inch planks. One described is six feet four inches long and two feet deep. One end is made sloping to facilitate the putting in and drawing out of the carcass. Fill this vat within six inches of the top with boiling water, turn the hog in it several times, until the hair slips off easily, when the animal may be drawn out and placed upon the scraping table. In this last operation the tripod shown in the first cut may be used with advantage. Place over the vat, attach the gambrel stick and elevate the carcass as far as needed, then remove the table.

Treatment of Colts.

The time to prep a colt and lay the foundations for a superior horse is in the first twelve months of its life. Treat well of the weaning and you will have a well developed yearling, and ultimately a horse that is a horse. Frequently breeders no longer allow colts to shift for themselves. They feed the young animals on milk, oats and hay, and follow a system of regular exercise and sufficient shelter. A well known breeder of trotting horses gives his system in Turf, Field and Farm as follows:

The brood mare, after foaling, is fed liberally on grain. When the files are bad she is sheltered during the heat of the day and is given the run of well shaded pastures at night. When the air is chilly she is housed at night and is turned out during the day. Each mare is put in a box as feeling time is that she may enjoy her oats in peace.

The foal will begin eating grain when two weeks old, and if the mother is fed in a quiet place the baby will have more distinction as well as no more room in the trough itself. At five months old the filly is weaned and is goes for the winter into a sunny and sheltered yard used exclusively for yearlings. At night two colts occupy one box, and during the day the whole band enjoy the bright and bracing weather. Each is fed oats in a separate box and is given plenty of good hay, and gathering in a band for exercise promotes cheerfulness and adds dignity.

Mr. Bonner's experiments with colts at his Tarrytown farm are alluded to in the journal quoted from. Majolica, the first foal of Starlite and Jessie Kirk, was raised in the old fashioned way. He was allowed to shift as a youngster pretty much for himself, and in the belief that the foregoing process was beneficial he was given any opportunity to shiver on the bleak hillsides. As a weanling and a yearling his growth was stunted, and the result was that he grew up into a peculiar edition of a trotter. He stands but a shade over fourteen hands. An entirely different plan was followed with Westchester, the brother of Majolica. The dam was fed on grain, and the suckling munched oats with her. As a weanling the colt was shelted of and given oats and bran, and as a yearling he weighed more than his sire. He is now a young and powerful horse of 16.1. There is, in the face of many practical facts, no room for argument as to the best method of maturing yearlings.

Crops of 1887.

The statistician of the department of agriculture, at Washington, gives the following estimates of acreage, product and value of corn, wheat and oats for the country. The area of corn harvested, excluding abandoned or worthless acreage, is 72,000,000 acres in round numbers; product, 1,456,000,000 bushels; value, $446,000,000. Area in wheat, 37,400,000 acres; product, 456,000,000 bushels; value, $300,000,000. Area in oats, nearly 26,000,000 acres; product, 659,000,000 bushels; value, $200,000,000. The report of winter wheat do not show much decrease of area. In Texas there is a considerable increase, and slight increases in Arkansas and some other states. The average decline seems to be between 1 and 2 per cent. In Kentucky the average is 21; Ohio, 22; Michigan, 28; Indiana, 100; Illinois, 98; Missouri, 99; Kansas, 98. Condition is affected somewhat by the dryness of the seed bed in the district that suffered from drought, delaying seeding, germination and growth. The late rains greatly improved the situation. The average condition is 99, ranging in the principal states from 90 to 98. The condition of winter rye coincides very closely with that of wheat.

Digging Ditches in Winter.

There are many places where ditches can be dug in winter, even in the northern states, provided one makes the necessary preparation before the hand is frozen too hard to plow. Joseph Harris' plan, as told in American Garden, is to first stake out the place where the ditch is to be, say from A to B:

A.....E
B.....F

Then take a right hand plow and strike out a furrow from C to D, turn back and plow out a furrow from E to F, and keep plowing till there is a wide "dead furrow" in the center of the proposed ditch A, B. The more you plow the better, not merely because the earth can be more cheaply moved with the plow than with the spade, but because the plowing is necessary to stir up and loosen the soil and thus prevent freezing. A mill repeatedly plowed till it is loose and mellow, a foot deep, will stand exposure to zero weather for several days without freezing more than an inch and a half or two inches deep, and this crust, with loose soil beneath, can be broken with a spade.

I list it must be understood that the plowing should be well done and the land left in mellow condition. The bottom of the dead furrow should especially be well broken up by the plow. The deeper and the more repeatedly it is plowed the less danger will there be of the work being stopped by frost. In sections where there is much snow, the dead furrow, or the space plowed out for the ditch, will be likely to be filled up with snow, and this will keep out the frost. All that will be necessary in digging the ditch will be to shovel out the snow, and underneath the loose mellow, plowed earth will be found nearly or entirely free from frost.

The Number of Hogs Packed.

This season, during November and December, says Cincinnati Price Current, the total number of hogs packed at leading points, was 3,835,000, against 4,175,000 during the same period in 1886. This is a falling off of 340,000 head. The weights show a decrease in the last month. At Kansas City this shortage has amounted to twenty pounds per head, and at Cincinnati twenty pounds. At Chicago the difference has been less, and at Iowa and Nebraska points, the average of weights is nearly the same. It is also stated that there is a reduction in the proportion of dressed to live weight. The above makes it appear that the pork product of the season suffers three reductions—number of hogs, weight and percentage of meat. There has been no falling off in the pounds of pork exported as compared with last season.

Protecting Half Hardy Plants.

Many half hardy plants, which are left in the ground and are destroyed by the severity of our winters, might be saved by covering the plant with a fairly deep coating of ashes, which may be raked over the soil and dug in when spring comes.

Wood ashes also form an excellent manure for the plants, and spread over lawns produce beneficial effects. In dressing a lawn with ashes it is best done when wet weather is likely to follow. After being spread on the lawn ought to be rolled. The results will be a strong, close growth of fresh grass for the ensuing season.

Mules on the Farm.

The mule is a despised animal only in the eyes of those who know little about it. If treated kindly mules are not dangerous animals to handle. They are as precious brutes, and if abused by their drivers are quite likely to return the abuse by kicks. Mules need not be so highly fed as horses; in fact, they will not eat grain to a great extent when put before them. They will leave it and not long after will be found patiently pawing and sipping a thistle. To get good sized, active mules breed a large well made mare with neat limbs to a good sized Spanish jack. If you do not wish to have a lazy mule take care that the mare be lively and active. Mules are less subject to disease than horses and their term of work averages twice as long. For cultivating crops mules are superior to horses as they walk Indian fashion, one foot directly in front of the other.

A Desirable Fence for Poultry Yards.

W. N. Merwin, Vineland, N. J., described in a recent issue of The World the portable woven fence here illustrated. As this is both cheap, durable and effective, it is here reproduced for our readers.

A PORTABLE FENCE FOR POULTRY.

A wire fence is constituted to be the cheapest and best for yarding poultry. The fowls do not attempt to fly over it, because they cannot see the "top rail." Given the Leghorn is unique in her attempts to scale the wire.

The above sketch represents a worm fence made in sections of about ten feet in length and four feet in height, with posts at each end of every section, which may be two inches square. A bottom board six inches wide is to be nailed to these two inch end pieces, and a two inch strip to be nailed in the middle of each section (as is shown in the cut) to secure strength and position to each section.

The warning of the fence will take up but little more room, and is self bracing. The wind cannot get hold of the wires to move it.

The sections are fastened together top and bottom with hooks and staples. This fence is portable, and can be moved very readily at any time. No stakes in the ground are necessary.

Agricultural News.

Farmers' clubs in New York state can have fertilizers analyzed at the general experiment station free of charge.

All the bench and poultry exhibits collected at Columbus, O., for the annual show of the Ohio Fanciers' association were destroyed by fire.

Potatoes are arriving in large quantities in the port of New York from Scotland.

According to a recent estimate, about one-fourth of the cranberry area of the United States is in New Jersey. After New Jersey Wisconsin and Massachusetts rank in the largest areas devoted to the growing of this fruit.

An Opportune Movement.

Castle Garden is known to be the entry way through which all the emigrants landing at New York pass before being distributed to various parts of the country. The great influx of foreigners can be judged when we take into account that eighty-four large steamships arrive every month and land their emigrants at this point. A new enterprise is being started at Castle Garden which proposes to establish an emigrant's home and industrial training school.

Mrs. R. S. Rust gives so much of the proposed work in the following: This movement is specially important in connection with the question of city emigration. A large proportion of the vice and misery abounding in large cities is owing to such facts as these: The people depreciate the dignity of labor, are ignorant of any occupation by which an honest living may be secured, and of the economics essential to home making. Every avenue of employment offering any industrial means is crowded by young women anxious to secure self support. A large majority of the applicants are unable to do anything well. It is not surprising that 10,000 girls a year are lost in the metropolis in a single city. The wrong might be largely remedied if the youth were given industrial training, to improve the advantage of a skilled labor, and assured of employment. If instruction could be provided for girls in all branches of home service, including new ones in making, in bookkeeping, stenography, type setting, etc., and provision could be made for distributing these trained workmen over the country where their skill and strength are in demand, incalculable good could be secured its young girls."—Chicago News.

Governor Gordon's Favorite Dishes.

Governor Gordon, of Georgia, on being asked to name his favorite dishes, said: "I was reared in the country on a farm, and have never quite lost the taste for that which was manad upon plantations before the war. I prefer to eat hoe cakes made of rich milk and fresh butter, with all the usual products of the farm, especially spareribs, backbones and sauerkraut. My favorite dessert for summer is blackberry pie and for winter the old fashioned sweet potato pudding. I also keep up the habit of my early boyhood, not of hunting opossums but of buying one occasionally and having it cooked in the most approved style and laid away to the cat. I always have it cooked with sweet potatoes around it.

This is not only the mode established by immemorial custom, but it is the best. I have one at my house now, already cooked. I will, of admit, as is customary now, that the southern habit of having hot breads and hot batter cakes for breakfast is unwholesome. My own experience is that the most severe attacks of indigestion I ever had was from eating a cold luncheon. One of the cherished memories of my life was an experience with the little negroes and white boys around the fire hog killing days, broiling on the coal hog molts and eating them with corn bread and salt. I think it would make me ten years younger to have that sort of experience now."—Chicago News.

Facts Concerning Respiration.

According to Dr. Walsh, a medical writer of distinction, the agricultural woman, who is ignorant of stays, breathes much less than the town bred woman. During sleep, too, the conditions of pectoral and vocal breathing of the female, he tells us, are much less striking than those of the male. In the male in the waking state, the waist being, for the purpose of dress, constricted, and the lower animals, the male and female dog and the horse and mare breathe alike, he also comes to the conclusion, after a careful study of the respiratory movements of Indian girls in the Lincoln institute, that they had always worn loose clothing, that, "so far as the Indian is concerned, the abdominal is the original type of respiration in both male and female, and that the costal type is the acquired, and is developed through the constricting influence of dress around the abdomen."—New York Sun.

Danger of Centralization.

The tendency toward a paternal form of government at Washington in the last twenty-five years has been marked and ominous. Centralization in Europe, where government is more fatal to the welfare of our people than such even in any part of Europe, to be centralized power in Europe, geographically considered, are really specimens of home rule compared to ours. Abroad there is in each instance a compact body with a government of interests that places the government in direct contact with the governed. We, on the contrary, have a sparse population spread over a continent half as large as Europe, and to have such a power as this proposed at Washington, with all our diversity of interests to be legislated for, is to build above us, under the name of a republic, a dense and odious despotism. It is not only death to liberty, but degradation, for it is done in violation of our written constitutional law.—New York Star.

Hale Proves Cleveland a Democrat.

On the whole, Mr. Hale's great effort must be called pretty small potatoes. The part of his speech which is disingenuous or false need not be considered by fair minded men. The part which is substantially true, that is to say, his charge that Mr. Cleveland has been getting into harmony with the Democratic party, is a charge which the Democrats will admit to be a true bill, and they are glad of it.—New York Sun.

The Nation's Favorite.

Mrs. Cleveland's popular flower is the lily of the valley, the sentiment of which is the "return of happiness." She has certainly returned a great deal of happiness in and around the houses she has graced by many returns of the same in different parts of the country.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Books as a Substitute for Life.

Books are good enough in their own way, but they are a mighty Hoodlum substitute for life. It seems a pity to sit, like the Lady of Shalott, peering a mirror, with your back turned on all the bustle and glamour of reality.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Some of the Republican organs are amused to discover that the Republican supreme court is in favor of state rights. The organs confess state rights with succession, just as the free traders confess protection to be a moral revenue system with opposition to tariff reform.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Mr. Blaine is at Venice. As everything in that beautiful city is conducted over the streets, it is suggested that Mr. Gould may join his friend Jay's Maine.—New York Herald.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for it and this paper one year
Wide Awake	$4.00	$3.00
Young Folks' Journal	1	1.10
Wide Awake	4.00	3.00
Little Men and Women	1	1.10
Babyland	50	50

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a pride in stamps, and if you are enough to show you are not a dead-head. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

These five magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother mind even a little baby, helps him grow, and directs his growth.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Pansy comes with the Sunday School age.

Claxtonian Young Folks' Journal is for young scholars.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it—"Heavy, sturdy, play-house, life at home and abroad, companionship of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

Beware.

Coughs, Colds and Slight Throat Diseases often develop into Bronchitis, Seated Cough, Consumption, etc., and should have immediate attention and be removed in their first stage. Not by palliatives, but all, are liable to throat troubles and to obtain relief should use Hamilton's Cough Troches, which relieve Coughs, and hoarseness, making the articulation clear. Warranted to give satisfaction. Price 25c per box. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

Don't Experiment.

You cannot afford to waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems at first only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to palm off on you with some cheap imitation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption coughs and colds, but be sure you get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good or just the same. Don't be deceived but insist upon getting Dr. King's New Discovery which is guaranteed to give relief in all throat, lung, and chest affections. Trial Bottles free at Dr. G. W. Coomer's.

When a Cure is Guaranteed

Why will you refuse to be relieved of that rough lwhich is liable to become seated on your lungs and to cause you many a suffering day and sleepless night? Your children are liable to be taken with Croup and die before a doctor can be summoned. Be wise and obtain a remedy that will not fail to give relief from Coughs, Colds Whooping Cough, Croup and all other lung difficulties. Hamilton's Cough Balsam will do all this and cos s but a trifle. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

A Sound Legal Opinion.

E. Bainbridge Monday Esq., County Atty. Clay Co., Texas, says: "Have piced Electric Bitters with most happy results. My wife was very low with malaria, fever and jaundice, but was cured by timely use of this medicine. An satisfied Electric Bitters are good." feb

Mr. D. I. wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a like testimony, and he is positively honest, he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters.

This great remedy will ward off, as well as cure all malarial diseases, and for kidney, liver and stomach disorders it is unequaled. Price 50c, and $1 at Crosier's drug store.

Toothache.

Money is a great cure for aching hearts, but a twenty dollar gold piece placed on an aching don't seem to have the same effect. In fact nothing is sure to cure but Hamilton's Toothache Drops, which are warranted to cure in one minute. Price only 25 cents. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

☞ Give your friends in other states an idea of Charlevoix village and county, by sending one or more copies of our holiday supplement. A few copies on hand, at five cents each or fifty cents a dozen.

Beckien's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Coomer.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us of the fact, that the omission may be corrected.

☞ Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Shoop's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

A. J. McLeod

Can be found at the old stand with a FULL STOCK OF MEATS Of all kinds At Wholesale and Retail. HIDES, PELTS, & FAT STOCK WANTED

F. E. WOOD, BARBER SHOP And Bath Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

STORY & CLARK FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

N. J. PERRY Agent, Charlevoix.

CHICAGO + Canal AND 16TH STS

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES

Bruises, Lumbago, Sprains, Stiffness, Numbness, Stings, Bites, Gnats, Mosquitoes, Rheumatism, Corns.

Contracted Muscles, Wrenches, Weakness, Hoof Ail, Scurvy Worms, Swinney, Saddle Galls, Piles.

Scratches, Sprains, Bruises, Stiffness, Stiff Joints, Backache, Colds, Sores, Spavin, Crachs.

THIS GOOD OLD STAND-BY

is everywhere for everybody clearly what is claimed for it. One of the reasons for the great popularity of the Mexican Mustang Liniment is found in its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine. The Lumberman needs it in case of accidents. The Horseman finds it for emergencies. The Farmer needs it for his farm and his stock. The Mechanic needs it always on his work shop. The Housewife finds it for household use. The Traveler needs it for the many accidents to which he is subject. Everybody needs it in case of emergency. The Pioneer knows—can't stop using without it. The Farmer knows it is for horses, cattle, sheep, and his stock fowl.

The Sportsman and man of the Road must keep it in liberal supply, alike and always.

The Horse-dealer's needs no—it is his best friend and salesman.

The Stock-raiser's needs it—he will save him thousands of dollars and a world of trouble.

The Railroad man needs it and will find it among his kits in the round of accidents of dangers.

The Backwoodsman needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the dangers he lifts.

The Mariner needs it—he knows its value.

The Miner and miners should let alone any other liniment to be used in their mines.

Distinctively Representative of American Industry and Progress.

It is acknowledged by the press and public to be the most powerful and extensively used Liniment in the world.

IMPORTANT! A Specimen Wrapper, containing full directions, sent free to any address in Cash or Valuable Premium Coupons. Ask for Mexican Mustang Liniment and take no other. Genuine only in wrapper of 16oz. bottle. This paper is mentioned.

☞ Responsible and energetic men wanted to solicit sub-agentions. Write us for exclusive territory.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE CO., 749 Broadway, New York.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE

Beautifully illustrated. 25 cts., $3 a Year.

ITS SCOPE.—THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE is a representative of the best American life in literature and art, are of the highest standard, and of a character to please the best taste. It contains the serial and short stories, descriptive sketches of the finest portions of the country, and the best of the literary products of the period, and, in short, is the American Magazine.

ARBUCKLES' name on a package of COFFEE is a guarantee of excellence.

ARIOSA COFFEE is kept in all first-class stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COFFEE is never good when exposed to the air, which destroys its aroma. We hermetically sealed ONE POUND PACKAGES.

Jos. Beauvais BOAT-BUILDER.

The Best Modeled, Easiest Rowing, and Best Sailing Boats in Northern Michigan, for the Money. Give me a Trial. I am bound to Please.

Boat Livery In connection with shop. CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

WM. J. STEVENSON, HORSE-SHOEING, Wagon Shop, BLACKSMITHING, ETC.

Heavy Wagons made and repaired to order. I manufacture my own wagons, of the best material, and WARRANT MY WORK. Call and examine before buying elsewhere.

SHOP ONE BLOCK WEST OF CARPENTER, BARTHOLOMEW & CO.'S STORE, CHARLEVOIX.

☞ THE OSBORNE MOWING-MACHINE is based and for sale.

PLANTS AND BULBS, SEEDS, Vegetable and Flower. Our Illustrated Catalogue for 1888 is a beautiful work of 176 pages, with hundreds of illustrations, and nearly 100 pages devoted to the culture of Vegetables, and tells how to grow all the choicest plants, fruits, vegetables and flowers, including a complete Seed Catalogue. Sent free to all applicants. JAMES VICK, SEEDS MAN, Rochester, N. Y.

RICHLY REWARDED are those who read this and then act wisely. Many others are reaping wealth by the use of our system to make $5 and upwards per day who is willing to work. Either sex, young or old; capital not needed; we start you. Everything new. No special ability required; you, reader, can do as well as anyone. Write us at once for full particulars, which we will mail free. Address Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co.'s Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where contracts may be made for it in New York.

THE DIRECT ROUTE BETWEEN MACKINAW CITY AND DETROIT JACKSON, The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 8.00 a. m. daily except Sunday, and 10.00 p. m. daily, arriving at Detroit.....3.00 p. m. and 11.00 a. m. Jackson.....10.20 p. m. and 11.20 a. m. Toledo.....5.10 p. m. and 6.45 a. m. Buffalo.....6.15 a. m. and 2.57 p. m. Cincinnati.....6.30 a. m. and 8.00 p. m.

WAGNER PARLOR & SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.

D. W. JOHNSTON, Gen. Pass. Agt., Chicago. O. W. RUGGLES, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., Chicago. G. P. & T. Agt., Chicago. Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.

Time Card for PETOSKEY STATION, In effect Oct. 1887.

Leave, going north, 8.18 p. m., 2.05 a. m.

Leave, going south, 8.20 a. m., 11.00 p. m.

†Daily except Saturday.

PENSIONS!

WILLIAM H. GREENE, late Assistant Chief of the Western Division, U. S. Pension office, is now engaged in the prosecution of pension and all other soldier claims.

He is the quondam chief of the Pension Office who established the dates of claims prior to the services regularly valuable.

Special attention given to the working up of rejected or abandoned claims on which no action has been taken.

Correspondence with responsable attorneys only.

Many pensioners who are entitled to increase of pension, do not apply for it, simply because their cases are improperly rejected. Prompt attention paid to such cases.

No fee unless successful. Advice free. Refers by permission to

HON. R. W. TOWNSEND, of Illinois.
HON. C. W. SMITH, of Indiana.
HON. J. S. MORRILL, of Kansas.
HON. J. R. HAWLEY, of Conn.
HON. D. B. HENDERSON, of Iowa.
HON. JAMES LAIRD, of Nebraska.
HON. J. SPRIGG, of Iowa.

Address, WM. H. GREENE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

John Nicholls, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., Manufacturer of and dealer in HARDWOOD AND PINE LUMBER, ALSO Dressed lumber, Oar Blades, WAGON TURNOVERS, SHINGLES, LATH, ETC. LUMBER SAWED AND BILLS FILLED TO ORDER.

LIVERY Feed and Sale Stables.

Burns, Stevens & Co., The Oldest and Largest Livery Stable in Charlevoix County. The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand. Rates Low. BRIDGE STREET, CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

NEW LIVERY AND Feed Barn. LITNEY & STEIMEL PROPRIETORS Opposite Bridge Street House Charlevoix, FIRST-CLASS RIGS REASONABLE RATES.

Portable Boiler FOR SALE. Twelve feet long, 54 inches in shell, 4 feet wood; in perfect order, good and cheap. Address, L. L. ALLEN, Charlevoix, Mich. 200tf

PENSION BLANKS. And all other blanks used in prosecuting claims before the U. S. Pension, Patent, and Land offices. Send for price-list. Address, J. H. WHEELER, 234tf 519 Seventh St., Washington, D. C.

THE CHARLEVOIX JOURNAL.

NUMBER 241. CHARLEVOIX, MICH.: THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1888. $1.50 PER YEAR.

THE JOURNAL Published every Thursday, BY CHAS. J. STRANG. Office on Bridge Street, CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

ARTHUR E. MARTIN, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Michigan. Collections promptly attended to.

CHUCKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law and Proctors in Admiralty. Office in Rogers Block, Charlevoix, Mich. A. D. CHUCKSHANK. C. J. GRIER.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney and Counselor at Law. Real Estate business promptly attended to. MONEY TO LOAN.

J. MILO HATCH, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

W. S. MOORE, Attorney and Solicitor, East Jordan, Michigan. Office over Bank.

DENTISTRY.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office at Cochran's Drug Store, CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

PHYSICIANS.

A. J. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office and residence on Main street. Office hours, 8.00 to 10.00 a. m., and 2.00 to 5.00 p. m.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office five in the Lamoreaux Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

HORACE S. HARSHA, Notary Public, Real Estate Agent, and Insurance Agt., Charlevoix Mich.

W. F. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

Brown & Co's Bank of Charlevoix

(Organized as private bank, 1881.)

Drafts drawn direct upon the principal cities of the world. Money received on deposit. Collections and exchange promptly bought and sold. Tickets for sale from all points in Europe. Interest allowed on time deposits. CORRESPONDENTS.—Chase National Bank, New York; First National, Chicago; Merchants and Manufacturers' National Bank, Detroit; First National Bank, Grand Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

O. D. WOOD, President. A. BUTTARS, Vice President. F. A. SMITH, Cashier.

DIRECTORS.

O. D. WOOD, M. H. WOOD, A. BUTTARS, W. L. WOOD, A. A. SMITH, J. L. HURD, JOHN NICHOLLS.

CAPITAL $25,000 Surplus, $25,000

Liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Act 175, 1885, make this bank security double the amount of stock taken. Interest allowed on time deposits. Superior facilities for handling business extended to our customers. Drafts drawn on the leading commercial cities of the world. Collections promptly made and accounts kept subject to check. Interest allowed on approved paper. Exchange drafts for sale on Europe. We invite the patronage of the public, and will endeavor to merit a liberal share of business.

CORRESPONDENTS: National Park Bank, New York; Commercial National Bank, Chicago; National City Bank, Cleveland; Detroit National Bank, Detroit.

MORTGAGE SALE.

MORTGAGE SALE.—Default having been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Jacob Sherman and Mary Sherman, his wife, of Charlevoix County, Michigan, to Henry Bowers, of Charlevoix County, Michigan, dated the 29th day of November, A. D. 1882, and recorded in Liber 3 of Mortgages, on page 428. Said mortgage was assigned by the said Henry Bowers to Orlando Bowers, of Charlevoix County, Michigan, by assignment dated the 29th day of January, 1883, and recorded in Liber 3 of Mortgages, on page 429. Said mortgage was assigned by the said Orlando Bowers to Jacob Sherman, of Charlevoix County, Michigan, by assignment dated the 29th day of January, 1883, and recorded in Liber 3 of Mortgages, on page 15. The said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one bond and mortgage bearing date and signed, whereby the power of sale contained in the said mortgage, is by the terms thereof, made operative, the premises described in said mortgage, situated in the village of Boyne City, Charlevoix County, Michigan, to wit: Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000, 1001, 1002, 1003, 1004, 1005, 1006, 1007, 1008, 1009, 1010, 1011, 1012, 1013, 1014, 1015, 1016, 1017, 1018, 1019, 1020, 1021, 1022, 1023, 1024, 1025, 1026, 1027, 1028, 1029, 1030, 1031, 1032, 1033, 1034, 1035, 1036, 1037, 1038

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN.

A DAY'S DOINGS.

Eventful Happenings in Every Hemisphere, as Transmitted by Telegraph.

Political, Social, Financial, Commercial, Industrial, Criminal and Other News.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

THE SNELL MURDER.

Funeral of the Victim—The Police Working in the Dark.

The body of Amos J. Snell, the murdered millionaire, was consigned to the earth on Saturday, says a Chicago telegram. After the ceremonies at the house fully one hundred and fifty carriages followed the remains to Rose Hill cemetery. When the funeral cortege departed the police took charge of the house, allowing no one but those having a right to do so to enter. While the family was absent they made a thorough investigation of the premises. Not even a burned match or scrap of paper could be found that would furnish a clew to the perpetrators of the dastardly crime. "We are perfectly at sea," said Chief of Detectives Henshaw; "but while we have no positive clew upon which to work we have not given up the case by any means, but, on the contrary, are confident that we will be able before long to run the murderers down."

RUSSIA DEFIANT.

Firmly Resolved Not to Initiate Steps for a Settlement of the Bulgarian Question.

VIENNA dispatches state that "Prince Lobanoff, the Russian Embassador, in a conversation with several diplomats on the Bulgarian question, declared that Russia was firmly resolved neither to initiate steps for another settlement by diplomatic means, nor to discuss the schemes of other powers if at variance with her own policy." A Constantinople dispatch says that "Russia threatens to sever diplomatic relations with Turkey if the latter persists in sending Kiamil Pasha to Sofia as Turkish Commissioner. On the other hand, Bulgaria claims that the Berlin treaty provides for the sending of a Turkish Commissioner to Bulgaria, and that failure to send a Commissioner would be tantamount to assenting to the independence of Bulgaria."

MURDERED BY ROBBERS.

A Marion (Ill.) Tragedy Which Resembles the Killing of Mr. Snell.

A TERRIBLE tragedy, resembling in some of its features the mysterious murder of millionaire Snell, of Chicago, was enacted Sunday last at the little town of Marion, Ill., says a recent St. Louis special.

The victim was George W. Guthrie, one of the wealthiest and best-known citizens of southeastern Illinois, who occupied an elegant residence adjoining the town. When the servants and other members of the family returned from church Sunday morning they found the old gentleman went to his room, where he was found by his father lying dead on the floor, with a bullet wound through the heart, and an examination showed that the pockets of the clothes had been rifled of a watch, a pocket-book, a diamond ring and other articles, and that an unusual amount had been made to drill into a safe which stood in the room. The appearance of the room shows that there was a struggle. The murdered man was at least 70 years of age, and exceedingly popular with all who knew him.

WANT SEPARATE ACTS.

Republicans Object to an Omnibus Bill for Admitting the Territories.

A WASHINGTON special says: "In regard to the admission of the Territories, the Republicans in Congress are determined to keep the enabling acts separate. They are determined not to lump Dakota with Washington, Montana, and New Mexico. They have no serious objections to the House passing separate bills admitting all four Territories, because they can rely upon the Republicans of the Senate to pass the Dakota bill and lay the New Mexico bill on the shelf."

Beheaded in His Office.

A FOUR WORTH dispatch says that the Treasurer's office at Carthage, Panola County, Tex., was robbed and County Treasurer Hill killed. The crime was not discovered for twenty-four hours, when search was made for the missing official. The door of his office was broken open and his body, with the head cut off, was found lying on the floor. The safe was robbed of $6,003.

Mrs. Robinson Convicted.

AT last Mrs. Sarah J. Robinson, the Massachusetts Borgia, has been convicted of murder in the first degree. On a former trial for killing her son and daughter the jury disagreed, but this time she is found guilty of causing the death of her nephew, Prince Albert Freeman. She is believed to have murdered seven persons by poisoning.

The Crown Prince.

REPORTS from the German Crown Prince are not encouraging. He is still alive and said to be doing as well as could be expected after undergoing the operation of tracheotomy, but that is all.

Beating the Record.

ALBERT, the pedestrian, finished first in the six days' walking match at New York, beating the world's record. He made 621¼ miles in the six days.

Telegrams in Brief.

The remains of Stephen J. Meany are to be sent to his mother in Ireland.

A PULLMAN palace-car was levied upon and chained to the tracks near Newport, Ky., for taxes.

A SIEGE has been prepared at Washington looking to reorganizing the Federal judiciary, and giving District Courts the work now done by the Circuit Courts. The object is to relieve the Supreme Court, which is three years behind with its business.

THE EASTERN STATES.

A NEW YORK dispatch says that a Herald reporter interviewed General Sherman in regard to the long article by Senator Wade Hampton on the surrender of Columbia, S. C. The Senator's story of that event filled eleven columns of the Charleston News and Courier. The Herald says:

The article from beginning to end of its eleven columns is a bitter attack upon Gen. Sherman, and bristles with such phrases as "Gen. Sherman recklessly and needlessly," "utterly unworthy of credit," "he shall be dealt with as his conduct deserves," "base and contemptuous," "Sherman's reckless disregard of the truth," "Sherman's charge of having incendiaries, not to use a harsher word," etc., etc. The closing paragraph of Hampton's story begins: "There seems to be here the usual discrepancy between the statements of Sherman and those of truthful persons." Gen. Sherman read the article in question, and said: "I have not time, nor inclination or desire to bandy lies with such a liar. I can't waste my time in this way. I will say, I do not care a damn what the people of Columbia say, but I do care what the people of the North think." Asked if he had any question as to what judicial opinion was uttered by the international commission, a most unofficial body, before the Senate and the Senate committee, he said: "I have always supposed that the opinion delivered was to the effect that the United States carried that decision, and that it was done so. Also they asked, and that settled it."

CLERMONT ARTHUR DAY was executed at Utica, N. Y., on Thursday. The culprit clasped his hands after the death-warrant was read. He smiled as the cap was being drawn over his face, and when the body was cut down the smile was still there. The crime for which Day was hanged was the brutal murder of a loose woman, Johanna Hoss Cross. Day was jealous of the woman, with whom he had been living for some time and feared she would leave him.

At the February meeting of the Board of Trustees of Princeton College the resignation of President McCosh was accepted, to take effect at the end of the present school year. A minute was adopted making provision for his future relations with the college. He will remain at the head of the School of Philosophy, and an honorarium was established for his benefit of $2,500 a year. The board then received the report of its committee on the selection of a successor to Dr. McCosh. The committee unanimously nominated Prof. Francis L. Patton, D.D., LL.D., for President. The board elected him unanimously on the first ballot, there being no other nomination made. Dr. Patton was formerly a resident of Chicago, was for several years editor of the Interior, was the instigator and chief conductor of the famous prosecution against Prof. David Swing, which eventually resulted in the latter's withdrawal from the Presbyterian Church.

A VOLCANIC explosion occurred at the Dupont Powder Works, at Wapwallopen, near Wilkesbarre, Pa., by which four men were killed, many injured, and a great deal of damage done. The new Methodist Church, 200 feet away, was completely wrecked. There were two tons of powder in the building. There is no trace of the packing-house left, not even the foundation. Rocks weighing over a hundred pounds were blown to the top of a mountain a quarter of a mile away.

THE WESTERN STATES.

A TERRIFIC dynamite explosion destroyed two packing-houses of the Hancock Chemical Company's works at Woodside, near Hancock, Mich. Three men employed in the building were blown to pieces—Joseph Tissand, Atanas Uaila, and John Olsson, two being Finlanders, and one a Canadian, all single. The force of the explosion was fearful and was felt for miles.

OMAHA special: "Miss Etta Shattuck, the young school teacher whose exposure to the blizzard made amputation of both limbs necessary, died Monday at Seward, Neb. The Omaha Bee's fund for her benefit has reached $5,700, and will be turned over to her parents."

A FAMILY of five persons in Toledo are seriously and perhaps fatally ill of trichinosis from eating diseased pork.

The Metropolitan National Bank of Cincinnati is a dead concern, and President Scott has been arrested. A Cincinnati special says: "The developments show that the bank has been in a very bad condition for some time. It is known that Scott has loaned his own or other names of the city but it was generally quiet in business circles that he was a Keely-plan banker having been fooled for a long ago. A sensation was caused by the arrest of Scott, President of the bank, and that no sooner was known than that his arrest was contemplated by the Clearing-House Committee. Scott was arrested on a warrant sworn out by assistant Attorney Burnett's office shortly after noon, and voluntarily gave himself up. It is understood that he is charged with signing the statement of the bank, which was made public yesterday to be a true statement of the condition of the affairs of the bank. Means is also charged with the misappropriation of $22,000 of the funds of the bank by loans to himself between Jan. 1, 1887, and Feb. 1, 1888."

TWO MEN were killed and four injured by the bursting of a boiler at Farmerville, Ohio.

DAKOTA is getting very sensitive about her blizzard reputation. The Yankton Board of Trade is out in a circular recitine the history of the fearful storm of Jan. 12, and claiming that not over two hundred lives were lost in an area of 150,000 square miles, while not more than fifty head of live stock perished.

As a cable-car train at Kansas City was rounding the top of a steep grade the car coupling broke and allowed the train to run, injuring the grip-lever with the cable broke and the cars dashed down the incline and collided with another train at the bottom. Two cars were wrecked, three persons being fatally hurt and seven others badly injured.

A Dubuque (Iowa) special says: "Judges Conch, Ney, and Lincoln filed decisions in the Circuit Court, Thursday, granting permanent injunction against the proprietors of the five principal saloons in Dubuque. These are the first permanent injunctions granted in Dubuque County, notwithstanding there have been over two hundred cases pending for nearly four years. All of the Judges took the ground that the defendants, having filling her son and daughter the jury disagreed, but this time she is found guilty of causing the death of her nephew, Prince Albert Freeman. She is believed to have murdered seven persons by poisoning.

The Crown Prince.

REPORTS from the German Crown Prince are not encouraging. He is still alive and said to be doing as well as could be expected after undergoing the operation of tracheotomy, but that is all.

Beating the Record.

ALBERT, the pedestrian, finished first in the six days' walking match at New York, beating the world's record. He made 621¼ miles in the six days.

Telegrams in Brief.

The remains of Stephen J. Meany are to be sent to his mother in Ireland.

A PULLMAN palace-car was levied upon and chained to the tracks near Newport, Ky., for taxes.

A SIEGE has been prepared at Washington looking to reorganizing the Federal judiciary, and giving District Courts the work now done by the Circuit Courts. The object is to relieve the Supreme Court, which is three years behind with its business.

THE EASTERN STATES.

A NEW YORK dispatch says that a Herald reporter interviewed General Sherman in regard to the long article by Senator Wade Hampton on the surrender of Columbia, S. C. The Senator's story of that event filled eleven columns of the Charleston News and Courier. The Herald says:

The article from beginning to end of its eleven columns is a bitter attack upon Gen. Sherman, and bristles with such phrases as "Gen. Sherman recklessly and needlessly," "utterly unworthy of credit," "he shall be dealt with as his conduct deserves," "base and contemptuous," "Sherman's reckless disregard of the truth," "Sherman's charge of having incendiaries, not to use a harsher word," etc., etc. The closing from the officers. This morning his body was found hanging in a tree."

---

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

WASHINGTON telegram: "The Sheridan boom is booming enough to attract the rather thoughtful attention of various Presidential aspirants of both parties."

New York dispatch: "A dispatch from Chicago to the New York Herald, upon the authority of a member of the Republican National Committee, asserts that William Walter Phelps has a letter from Blaine, authorizing the withdrawal of his name whenever such a course seems prudent."

THE Evening Critic quotes a Washington telegram which speaks editorially as follows:

If the editor of the Sun could only see the gathering at the White House on the night of meeting of the New York State Committee at which the decision was reached that Governor Cleveland is a candidate for renomination and is mounted on his political war-horse in hand and ready for the fray, he would be cured of his conflict. Since that time some between the adherents of President and Hill, Col. Lamont has been busy at his friends from all parts of the country who have come to Washington to confer with the President. The Hill element in the Democratic party has been carried on with a zeal that would paralyze a mugwump and astonish the civil-service reformers. Cleveland not a candidate! Why, he is in the fight, a renomination and will certainly get it."

THE Democratic members of the House met in caucus at Washington on the 5th inst., and elected the following Congress-out Committee:

Alabama, James T. Jones; Arkansas, Thomas C. McRae; California, T. L. Thompson; Connecticut, Frank Miles; Delaware, E. W. Houghton; Florida, R. H. M. Davidson; Georgia, Henry G. Turner; Illinois, Scott Wike; Indiana, Benjamin Ind; Iowa, W. P. Hayes; Kentucky, W. C. Taulbee; Louisiana, M. D. Leake; Maryland, Isaac Lefevre; Michigan, Julius C. Burrows; Massachusetts, J. A. Methews; New Hampshire, Cyrus A. Sulloway; New Jersey, Benjamin F. Shermann; Ia. Bryan; South Carolina, F. H. Simonds; Texas, Roland Gibson; Tennessee, Thomas Bobbitt; Tennessee, Benton McMillin; Texas, Roger Q. Mills; Vermont, W. W. Grout; Virginia, John Paul; West Virginia, Charles Hedd; Arizona, M. A. Smith; Montana, J. K. Toole; New Mexico, Antonio Joseph; D. C. Caine; Washington Territory, G. S. Voorhees.

THE Republicans have revised the rolls of Prussia with Russia since 1868. Frequently, he said, they had laid a meaning aspect, and the United States Government continues displayed by the ministers on the subject of the murderer. Hart said that he had made a discovery for protecting human life, and wanted to live to demonstrate its value. One of the ingredients, he said, was safety, which he had been eating for four months.

Mrs. PICKENEY, of Toledo, a well-shooter, and Harry Johnson, a workman, were blown by blown to pieces by an explosion of nitro-glycerine at Bellevue, Ohio.

A SCHOOL existed on the farm of John Spencer, near Lincolnville, Ind., killing two boys. Several others were hurt by the flying pieces of the boiler, but the thickness of the underground saved their lives. Nothing was left of the sawing outfit but a wheel and a few scraps of iron. Pumping cold water into the heated boiler caused the accident.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

A PONCHATOULA (La.) special says: "On last Sun'ay night a negro forced an entrance into the residence of Mr. Albert Tunnage and assaulted Miss Tunnage. The negro was arrested and held here until last evening, when officers took him in charge to convey him to the parish jail at Amite City. As they were about to board the train a squad of thirty men appeared on the scene and took the negro

BLAINE OUT OF THE RACE.

He Says His Name Will Not Be Presented before the Republican Convention.

A Letter to the Chairman of the National Committee Defining His Position.

(Pittsburgh telegram.)

Mr. B. F. Jones, Chairman of the National Republican Committee, has received a letter from Mr. Blaine declining to allow his name to be presented to the National Republican Convention as a candidate for the Presidency. Following is Mr. Blaine's letter in full:

FIRENZE, Italy, Jan. 31.

B. F. Jones, Esq., Chairman of the Republican National Committee:

DEAR SIR—I wish through you to state to the members of the Republican party that my name should not be presented to the National Convention called to assemble in Chicago in June next for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President of the United States.

I am constrained to this decision by considerations entirely personal to myself and which I need not now enumerate in detail. I feel I can not make the decision without giving expression to my deep sense of gratitude to the many friends and my party who have so long sustained me so long and so cordially that I may well regard it as the chief honor of my political life. Such a decision is painful and to partake somewhat of the nature of personal abandonment of the long and honorable history of friendship. I can make no adequate return for the kindness I have received except the assurance that I shall ever cherish the memory of it as the chief incident of my life.

Permit me, I refrain from congratulating the Republican party upon the prospects of success which I anticipate from the opening of the National contest, if only the Republican party will be true to the Republican party throughout the country, and will nominate a ticket which shall embody the opposite Garfield and Arthur in the election of 1880 and which shall be the Republican ticket in the Northern elections unless some Republican shall the election exceeded half a million votes, and which shall be the ticket in the South, divided between the friends of the reform party, gave to the Democrats over three hundred votes out of a majority of one hundred and seven. There was a partial reaction in favor of the Republican party in 1882, when the Democrats, after still held possession of seven Northern States, gave to the Republicans a majority of over three hundred in the House of the National College of the whole country.

The election of last November naturally following the adverse elections of these two years, and the Democrats have had the advantage of the patronage of the Government, the Treasury for information regarding the office-holders, and a large number of Republicans when the act of late limiting their time was passed, and whether any act has been done or stroyed since. Among the measures passed by the Republicans in the House of Representatives for the purpose of aiding them in suppressing facts in their reports; to prevent the Republican Government from a tariff reform, but among protectionists such a tariff is called "protection." Most men, when they hear the word "protection," are men who with the use of language, and know that the word House again, and who knowing that the Bloody Shirt waved in the face of the Southern people can find nothing to tack, cast every thing into the category of "protection." Yet, when we come to consider the matter, we find that the word "protection" is a misnomer, a misnomer of the worst kind, for it misleads the people, and, if it is not intended to do so, it is a misnomer which ought to be exposed to the people.

Protection is a word that comes from nature, and it means the protection of the children of the parents, and the protection of the people in their homes and their firesides. Protection is a word that comes from the people, and it means

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THAT genial, eloquent, and popular mayor "Tim" Nester, of Marquette, has formally renounced republicanism, and identified himself with democracy. Tim says Michigan will give 10,000 majority for Cleveland next November.

The house committee on postoffices and postroads have agreed to report favorably a bill to allow the mailing of packages weighing eight pounds This increase in the limit of weight if adopted, will accommodate a great many people who have no express accommodations, besides increasing the business of the postoffice department.

THE Scandinavian farmers of the fifth district of Minnesota, who have heretofore voted the republican ticket are almost unanimous in their demand for a reduction of all tariff taxes, and for an extension of the free list, by including all staple articles. This is the banner republican district of the state, and is populated almost wholly by Scandinavians. The Scandinavians are this year ignoring candidates and talking almost wholly about "President Cleveland's tariff message." Unless the republicans come out unequivocally for reform they will vote next fall as they talk now.

A NEW YORK World correspondent had an interview with J. H. Manley, chairman of the republican state committee, and learns that Blaine's letter was decided upon before he went abroad last June. It was prearranged that the letter should be sprung as a surprise. The result is being carefully watched by Mr. Manley, and he says the manner in which the letter is received by the press and public will decide Mr. Blaine's future movements. "Mr. Blaine's letter is not to be taken as final," said Mr. Manley. "He does not say that he will not accept the nomination, but merely that he is not fighting for it If the republican convention shall tender the nomination to Blaine I have no doubt that he will accept it."

MAYOR TIM NESTER, of Marquette, in an interview says that three mining locations in Marquette county, whose aggregate majority for Seymour exceeds his plurality in the district, there were only 34 votes cast for Breen, and not one of these came from the mines. These localities were the Palmer, Humboldt, and Champion mines. Lumber companies also coerced their men in many cases, voting them illegally. In other parts of the district mine agents and bosses interfered with the men on election day in Seymour's interest, and but for the intimidation of this sort Breen would have undoubtedly carried the district by 2,000. At mines near the cities the managers were more careful, but there was outrageous coercion at the locations alluded to above.—Bay City Press.

COL. COWLES, the distinguished independent republican of Boston, said in his speech at the Norfolk club the other evening: "I confess that every day I am drawn by bands that I cannot resist to range myself in the ranks of the old democratic party. I had been feeling for a number of years discontented with my party associations; dissatisfied with much that was going on in the republican party; dissatisfied more especially with what seemed its inevitable tendency, namely, to become the champion of the present high tariff, with which I had been for years utterly disgusted. And it only needed the nomination of Mr. Blaine to let that discontent express itself. If I am acting with the democratic party today, it is because I believe the democratic party is returning to its first love. As I remember it in its early days, it was the party that was opposed to taxing the people for the benefit of a few monopolies, and this is, I believe, the principle of the democratic party today; and it is for this reason I range myself with them."

The Republicans of the Eleventh District.

The republicans had a narrow escape yesterday in the eleventh district of Michigan. Their Malakoff and Gibraltar majority there, lies dismantled and in ruins. It is a bad omen for next fall. They are trying to explain it away by shouting "boodle." The fortress was betrayed, not stormed. But what kind of a grand old party is it that can be bought and sold like cattle? A republican proud of its history will not admit that his party defeats can be explained by declaring that its members are in the market for the highest bidder.—Detroit Journal.

Proud of the Record.

During republican control, public honesty was maintained and less money was lost by fraud than under any previous administration or in any other country in the world.—Senator Sherman.

What about the credit mobilier, the star route frauds, the theft of the presidency, the whisky ring, the Pacific railroad steals, and other rascalities too numerous to mention?—Albany Argus.

Fieldings.

A base insinuation—Out on first.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Muffs are common necessities with the ladies at this time of the year. In summer they are frequently seen in the baseball field, where they are not so popular.—Boston Budget.

"An error gracefully acknowledged," says Gascoigne, "is a victory won." It is very evident that Gascoigne was lamentably ignorant of the first principle of baseball playing.—Boston Transcript.

The Proper Thing to Do.

While the Republican organs are trying to persuade themselves that there is a great quarrel between the Cleveland and Hill factions in New York, the proper thing for a sagacious Democracy to do would be to slip quietly into Indiana and fix up that so called pocket borough.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Reasons Why.

We like the suggestion of holding the Democratic national convention prior to the meeting of the Republican convention at Chicago on the 19th of June. The party in control of the administration, with positive principles and policies to affirm, should first take the field.—Pittsburg Post.

Small End of Blaine's Boom.

One of the most remarkable things in politics is the decline of the Blaine boom. Hundreds of prominent Republicans are leaving the Maine man's ranks daily, and it is already evident that he cannot be nominated without increasing the number of Mugwumps ten fold.—Chicago Herald.

They Want Too Far.

It is announced that Mr. Trobe will run for congress again. This is more than the Republicans bargained for. They were just a little too affectionate and reassuring in patting Mr. Trobe on the back.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Let Us Know About It.

There seems to be a Republican effort to retard the publication of the decision series made in consequence of Boutelle's resolution to investigate the rebel flag order. A palpitating public pines for the facts.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Well Up in Grammar.

Pretty School Teacher—James, is "to kiss" an active or passive verb?

James sobbed top in the class—Both.

Pretty School Teacher—How is that James?

James—Active on the part of the feller and passive on the part of girl.

Pretty school teacher blushes and marks James "perfect" in grammar.—New York Sun.

Sentiment vs. Sense.

Reporter—I have been assigned to interview a number of the noted men on the subject of books which have most influenced them.

Great Author—I understand.

"My question is this: What book has been to you the greatest stimulus to mental activity?"

"An empty pocketbook."—Omaha World.

Perhaps it Wasn't the Counsel's Fault.

An Illinois jurryman went insane during the trial. If this thing happens often counsel will have to be prohibited from addressing the jury.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Language of Coattails.

The coattail flirtation is the latest. A wrinkled coattail, bearing dusty toe marks, means, "I have spoken to your father."—Corondo Mercury.

Sick Enough Already.

Mr. Blaine is hearing some very bad news from Mr. Pillsbury and other prominent Republicans just now. Other men in his frame of mind might turn to that great solace for human ills, tobacco; but, notwithstanding his high opinion of that article as a necessity of life, Mr. Blaine never uses it, and a pipe or a chew would undoubtedly make him sick.—Chicago Herald.

Or Fortyoff or Fortybusky.

The fact that the emperor of Russia gave the empress a necklace composed of forty emeralds has been made public. What the empress said in private after the bestowal was something like this: "You dear old bodyovski, why didn't you disguise the truthovich and make the number thirtyoff, or thirty-fiveky, at the most."—Pittsburg Bulletin.

A Matter of Courtesy.

By courtesy, Bill Chandler's southern election control scheme is called "Chandler's policy." It is a policy that is perfectly harmless.—Atlanta Constitution.

Nor Likely to Be.

Justice Lamar has been on the supreme bench of the United States for a long time now, and the constitution is not yet demolished.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Too Modest Altogether.

Senator Ingalls is entirely too modest in acknowledging the authorship of his prophetic letter about President Cleveland. It is a letter which no political prophet should wish to have burned.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

The United States Mail.

Woman (to country postmistress)—Is there anythin' for me today? I'm sot on hearin' from my darlin', Miranady.

Postmistress—There's a postal. Miranady writes she's enjin' herself an' won't be home till nex' week.—Texas Siftings.

The March of Time.

Times have changed since 1861. It is now such men as Murat Halstead who are the real disunionists.—Atlanta Constitution.

Who Does?

We do not regard Gen. Sheridan as a candidate for the presidency.—New York Herald.

Nor Any Body Else.

True Republicans do not believe that they can elect Mr. Blaine.—New York Star.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Notes and News from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 18.—The reception and ball given by the Chinese minister was a large, brilliant, and orderly affair. Stewart's Castle is perfect in its appointments for entertaining, and the beautiful rooms were artistically decorated. The minister, assisted by Mr. Liang and Mr. Shin, received the guests in the grand saloon. In the hall room Mr. Ho Shen Chee presided as floor manager. The dance began at 10 o'clock. The supper room was thrown open, and a superb feast was served by Demonet—oysters, croquettes, terrapin, salads, fancy ices, champagne, punch, coffee, bullion, and cake, and so on. The center was a great basket of flowers, tulips and hyacinths, which presented a brilliant spectacle.

The constitutional amendment changing the date of inauguration day to April 30, is not, perhaps, as comprehensive and far-reaching a measure of reform as could be desired. But it has the merit of simplicity, and is one to which no valid objections can be urged. Doubtless Senator Hoar and the other eminent statesmen who favor this amendment would be glad to secure other changes of equal or greater importance. The advantages to be gained by the proposed amendment are really much greater than would seem at the first glance. With the crowded state of the calendars of congress, the value of nearly two months added to the short session is almost incalculable.

Postmaster general Dickinson has sent to the secretary of the treasury an estimate of $125,000 for deficiencies in appropriations for his department for the current fiscal year, and asks that the items be available immediately. Mr. Dickinson shows in this report that the increase in the volume of business for this year is 12 per cent in excess of estimates predicted on previous reports. He also adds that there are many cases of exceptional, almost phenomenal, increase of population which justly demands relief by additional postal facilities, and the demand should be promptly met by the government.

Owing to the alarming frequency of attacks of robbers upon the mail trains on sparsely settled routes in the far west and the almost constant peril in which the lives of postal employees are placed by these marauders, the post-office department has determined to arm, at the expense of the government, every postal employe on these exposed railroad routes with weapons of the latest and most effective kind. They will be supplied with an abundance of ammunition and every convenience necessary for prompt work, and will thus be prepared to successfully defend themselves and the mails from the attacks of these "road agents," how ever skillfully planned or unexpectedly made. This action has been taken at the earnest solicitation of General Superintendent Phillips, of railway mail service, who has already taken steps to carry the new order into immediate effect. It is said that many of the western railroads are also decided to arm their trainmen, and it is expected that with arms in the hands of the trainmen, express messengers already armed and postal employes, train robberies in the far west will be less frequent in the future.

The postmaster-general has directed such postmasters in lower California who have not the necessary force to handle mail matter at their offices to employ temporary help at once and secure help sufficient to handle the mail. The influx of tourists has had the effect of overcrowding the postoffices in that section so much that several of them are weeks behind in handling the mail.

Col. Moore, the superintendent of police, told me the other day, that for several weeks the detective office had been besieged with hackmen, who complain of having been hired by men who, after being driven to different places about the city, finally ask to be landed at a hotel, tell the coachman to wait, disappear through the entrance and never return, probably passing out at once at some other door so as to avoid paying for the ride. The hackmen, after waiting an hour or two, enter the hotel in search of their customer and can find no trace of him. Thirty or forty of such cases were reported within as many days, and there seemed to be a sort of epidemic in this kind of swindling.

Gov. Swineford has been granted an extension of his leave of absence, and will remain in the capital a week longer.

Recently some visitor at the white house cut a piece of silk out of the seat of one of the new chairs in the red-room. How it could have been done is a mystery, and the damage was not discovered until preparations were being made for the last public reception. It is supposed that a male vandal wanted the silk for a memento, or that a female visitor desired it to put in a crazy quilt. After the receptionons over the chair was carried to the president and Mrs. Cleveland. The former remarked that the mischief must have been done by some fellow on his wedding tour.

An earnest and vigorous exposition in a cheap and handy form, of the moral aspects of the international copyright question, is something that has been much needed. Such a paper has now been published by Chas. Scribner's sons, of New York, in the well-known paper-covered series of this house, at a price which ought to insure for it a circulation of hundreds of thousands throughout the country. The title of the pamphlet is "The national Sin of Literary Piracy," and the author is the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke. Dr. Van Dyke considers the subject under three phases:—The Nature of the National Sin of Literary Piracy, (2) Its Punishment, and (3) Its cure. His paper is well worth reading, and ought to touch the public conscience and have its effect upon public opinion. The publishers will send anyone a copy upon the receipt of 5 cents.

Catalogue of Vaughan's Seed Store.

The annual issue for 1888 is just at hand, and we must say in behalf of western enterprise, that as a work of art it excels anything in this line we have ever seen, both in its exceedingly beautiful gold and colored cover, and in its readable print and handsome wood engravings. It should be in the hands of every one who plants a garden, and we had by sending five stamps to J. C. Vaughan, 88 State street, Chicago.

Secure Admiration.

Who can help admiring a lovely face, a clear, smooth, beautiful complexion? These can easily be obtained by the use of Hamilton's Oriental Balm. It will surely remove Freckles, Tan, Pimples and Blemishes of every sort and is in no way injurious to the skin, but is the most harmless and elegant preparation of its kind. Price 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Beaman. feb

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charvleoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

Dry Goods!

The only exclusive stock of DRY GOODS in Charlevoix, at the corner of Bridge and Main Streets.

GRAND CLOSING OUT SALE of LADIES' WRAPS AND JACKETS AT COST.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

DO YOU WANT

PURE DRUGS

Or Carefully Compounded Prescriptions, CALL ON US.

DO YOU SMOKE? We Keep the Best Cigars.
DO YOU LIKE MUSIC? We will take pleasure in showing our well-selected Stock?

Yours Respectfully,

F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,
Druggists and Pharmacists,
Opera Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

A HOME FREE

Two and One-Fourth Acres of Land, Less than Three-Quarths of a Mile from Charlevoix, to be GIVEN AWAY.

Every person paying Five Dollars in CASH for goods or on account at our store will receive a number which will give one chance to obtain the prize.

One number, between 1 and 1,000, will be sealed in an envelope, and deposited in the bank, and will not be opened until all the numbers are given out. After the 1,000 numbers are given out, the sealed number will be opened, and the person holding the ticket calling for that number will receive a deed of the above premises.

A general stock of GROCERIES on hand.

A. J. MUDGE & SON,
Cor. Antrim and Grand Streets, Charlevoix.

S. & I. 1888 S. & I.

You will need something in our line during 1888. Do not fail to buy of us. You will SAVE YOUR DOLLARS by so doing.

There's Saws, Axes, Files, and Tools of all kinds. Then you may want a New Stove. If you do, you miss it if you don't call at one of ours. A majority, a large majority, of the Stove Buyers of the county will tell you, We've got their names, and can refer direct to them. The Champion Pumps, too, what a splendid record they have, working easily and quickly.

Come and see us; if you want anything, BUY OF US. Yours in the belief that we will not fail to please you.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

Bargains IN BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

Abstracts of Title

At the Old Rate.

I will furnish Abstracts of Title to all parties desiring them, upon the following conditions: One Dollar for the first transfer, and twenty-five cents for each subsequent transfer. REMEMBER, I have the only Complete Set of Abstracts in Charlevoix county, and will certify to the correctness of all Abstracts made in my office. E. F. ALLEN.

Boyne City, Mich., Feb. 10, 1888.

SUBSCRIBE FOR

Grand Rapids' best paper,

The Daily Democrat.

It contains the Associated Press Dispatches.

Sent by Mail at 50 cents a month, delivered by John Wood at 12½ cents a week.

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in the thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the wonders of creation. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done at home, should at once send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed. sels

PATENTS.

FRED W. CROCKER,
Counselor at Law & Solicitor of Patents,
ROOM 32, 234 BROADWAY,
New York, N. Y.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Gate" and 96 other Popular Songs, in back form, sent for 25 CTS PER SHEET. Music. Sent, post-paid, for 25 CTS PER SHEET. Stamps taken. AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO. 5000 Fairmount Ave., Philadelphia Pa.

THE ATKINS SAWS
NEW PERFECTION AXES
Round Oak Stoves.
Job and Tin Work.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

J. S & J. R. DIXON,
Milk, Butter, and Vegetables.
TERRACE FARM. - - CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., Feb. 23, 1888.

Local Notes and News.

Ice harvesting is in order.

For first-class blacksmithing, go to J. W. Kirby's. 2717

Perry Weed has put in a full line of legal blanks.

O. W. Smith has a new soda fountain that is a beauty.

Perry Weed is carrying a large assortment of legal blanks.

For legal blanks of all kinds, go to Perry Weed's book-store.

A boy about 14 years old was killed by a falling tree near Norwood, on Tuesday.

Two cords of three-foot wood wanted, to be delivered in March. Inquire at this office.

Two loads of Charlevoix Good Templars visited the lodge at Horton's Bay last Saturday evening.

If you want to pay part of the cost of a new organ with green wood, call at this office for particulars.

C. R. Bellinger has just treated himself to a new jeweler's lathe, with which he will be able to do very fine work.

The teachers of this vicinity have formed a reading circle, and hold monthly meetings at the library room in Charlevoix.

The house of Geo. Compton, who lives west of Ironton burned last Thursday afternoon, with its entire contents, except two chairs.

The remains of Casper Schaub, victim of the Champlain disaster, and father of J. C. Schaub, of Boyne, were removed to Wisconsin Monday.

Late letters from our Florida friends relate some wonderful snake stories. Stockman and Cook report having killed a rattlesnake 26 feet long.

Applications have already been made by outside parties for stock in the new bank. One party in Iowa desires to invest $25,000 in the concern. Our own parties would also be pleased to invest.

Give your friends in other states an idea of Charlevoix village and county, by sending one or more copies of our holiday supplement. A few copies on hand, at five cents each or fifty cents a dozen.

Remember, A. T. Washburn & Co.'s sale will continue until March 1st, and during that time until the 15th we give a grand remnant sale of dress goods, carpets, hosiery, mittens, corsets in odd pairs—remnants of everything, to clean up, preparatory to invoicing.

The masquerade at the opera house last evening was a splendid success, of which the Firemen may well be proud. The costumes were unusually numerous and varied. The music by Blakely's band was excellent, and a fine supper was served at the Fountain City house. The net receipts were $28.

The organization of the national bank was consummated last Thursday. February 16. The officers elected were W. P. Brown, president; Dr. G. W. Cromter, vice president; W. A. Brown, cashier. The board of directors are the president, vice president, cashier, Byron See, L. D. Bartholomew, R. W. Kane and J. L. Hurd. The new concern will have a capital stock of $50,000 and will supercede the Bank of Charlevoix in about sixty days.

F. D. Phillips brought his factory to Charlevoix last July, and since that time has made about 150,000 cigars. He is building up a large trade on the merits of his goods. He now employs 20 hands, and expects to put in two or three more in the near future. The factory will be moved into the room over Emrey Bros. store this week, where they will have more room for the works. This is becoming one of the important industries of Charlevoix.

The fire department held its annual election of officers last Monday evening. The following named gentlemen were chosen for the ensuing year: Will Horton, president; Robert Miller, vice president; Charles See, secretary; Harry Nicholls, treasurer; O. S. Washburn, chief; A. B. Brink, assistant chief; Andrew Mellish, foreman of the hose; Lee Smith, assistant foreman of the hose. Regular meetings will hereafter be held on the first Monday of each month.

Down They Go.

Large, white, select, Baltimore oysters in bulk, always perfectly sweet and fresh, down to 35 cents per quart, at O. W. Smith's specialty house, opposite Bridge Street house.

Purely Personal.

F. D. Phillips is in Detroit this week buying stock for his cigar factory.

S. J. Lobdell is now selling cigars for F. D. Phillips, and is making excellent sales.

Word from John Cooper, now in the hospital at Toronto, is to the effect that he is doing well.

Dr. Cromter, A. D. Cruickshank and W. A. Brown left Sunday for Lansing to attend the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F.

Clande Smith, who has been with Dr. Cromter for the last year, left Sunday afternoon for his home in Woolsey, Dakota.

Prof. J. M. Harris and Miss Nellie Noyes, daughter of A. B. Noyes, of Ironton, were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. W. H. McCartney.

Coming Events.

Arrangements are being made for a grand social hop at Bedwin's hall in Ironton, March 2.

The historical society will meet this week with Mr. and Mrs. Levi Blanchard. Some one will present the paper; subject, "The Reign of James I." O. S. Washburn and Miss Flora Nelson will lead the conversation on "Fortunes of Nigel."

Next Sunday morning, annual offering for foreign missions will be made at the Baptist church, subject of sermon, "A Profitable Investment." Sunday school immediately after morning service. Evening service at 7 o'clock, subject, "Unreasonable Reasons." Covenant meeting Thursday evening, March 1.

The Vote for Prohibition.

Below will be found the vote on local option in this county, by townships, as reported by our correspondents:

	For Prohibition.	Against Prohibition.
Bear Lake	8	7
Boyne Valley	45	36
Chandler	10	....
Charlevoix	119	25
Evangeline	123	7
Eveline	45	10
Marion	26	10
Melrose	55	2
Norwood	25	18
South Arm	24	6
Springvale	189	2
Wilson	35	6
Totals	717	121

Hayes, and Hudson, not reported.

Wilson.

Feb. 21.—Richard Lewis is on the sick list.

Lerry Barber spent Sunday at Boyne.

W. P. Brown, of Charlevoix was seen on our streets recently.

The mill shut down for repairs two days last week.

H. Barber, of Deer Lake, visited friends here on Sunday.

Elder Tracy preached at the school house on Sunday evening.

A light vote was polled in this township. 35 for, to 6 against local option.

A school exhibition is talked of on the last night of school.

Dar F. Meech, of Charlevoix is buying cedar in this vicinity for F. J. Meech & Co.

Mercury went down to 31° below zero one night last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bower visited friends at Advance over Sunday.

Eveline.

IRONTON, Feb. 21.—Ironton has four street lights.

What became of that leap-year party, girls?

Eveline voted to save the boys, and make homes happy, there being 45 for prohibition and 10 against.

We have the best school teacher this winter we have ever had.

The sad intelligence has been received here of the sudden death of Mr. Moses Dennis, in Grand Rapids. Mr. Dennis was formerly a resident of this place for three years, and was the father of Mrs. Geo. Rogers, of this town.

Miss Mattie O'Neil, teacher in the Ironton school, was compelled to give up teaching on the 10th on account of illness and returned to her home in Charlevoix. Miss Nellie Noyes has been engaged as teacher until Miss O'Neil can return.

W. H. Jarman who has been confined to the house for the past two weeks is able to be at work again.

Mr. John Hammond is very sick.

Born—To Capt. and Mrs. Richard Williams, a daughter.

One of Ironton's best young men went to Boyne last Saturday to transact a little business with the county clerk. We'll tell you more about it next week.

Last Thursday night the house of Geo. Compton, two miles west of Ironton burned to the ground, with all the household effects. When the fire was discovered by Mr. Lennox's family the kitchen was all ablaze and the family had just time to escape. It is a total loss as it was not insured. Mr. James Reed is yet quite ill.

Miss Mary Hawkins contemplates a visit to her parents in Canada soon.

A hop at Schoffen's hall last Friday evening. A good time reported.

Salt Deposit in Colorado.

In the middle of the Colorado desert there is a curious depression in the earth's surface, through which the Southern Pacific railroad runs. The lowest point is 200 feet below the sea level, and here is a great body of salt, more pure than any known to commerce, and in an abundance that may supply the world if all other resources should be exhausted. From a point on the road called Indio the descent is rapid to this place of salt. It was once an inland sea from which the waters have apparently passed away by evaporation, leaving a salt deposit that resembles ice. Standing upon its margin, we look upon a perfectly level and white crust of salt, some thirty or forty miles in length and perhaps twenty in width. A tramway is laid over the crust to a distance of more than a mile, over which a steam dummy and train of freight cars run to the mill where the salt is ground. Beyond the mill a smaller engine pushes its smaller cars further out upon the salt crust where the salt is gathered.

The process of collecting is very simple. Laborers, provided each with a wheelbarrow, shovel and rake, go out upon the salt field, pick the surface to the depth of an inch or two, gather barrow loads and wheel them to the cars. This salt crust varies in thickness; in some places it is but a few inches above the mud and water, and in some places nearly five feet in thickness. Liverpool salt must be kiln dried before being ground. Nature sends this to the mill as dry that it may be ground as fine as flour. At the mill it is bagged and marked for shipment, and is ready for table or dairy use. This salt is 99 per cent. pure, and is placed upon the market as "New Liverpool." It is undoubtedly the best and purest salt in the market.—The Argonaut.

Getting the Worth of His Money.

"How much yer charge for yer mile?" an old negro asked of a street car conductor. "I wanter go out to see Brother Liss Smif. Ain't er flesh an' blood brussier, yes, understa', jes er brudder in de faith."

"Five cents."

"Jes fur er mile? I tell yer dat de man ain' nuer sho nuff brudder—jes er brudder in de faith."

"The fare is five cents."

"Jes fur er mile?"

"Yes."

"How much is it fur two miles?"

"Just the same."

"Look yere, how fur yer take me fur fi' cents?"

"Five miles."

"What's de name o' de place?"

"City limits."

"Take me all de way out dar fur fi' cents?"

"Yes."

"An' won't take me no mo'n er mile wa'k Brudder Smif lifs fur no less?"

"No."

"I ain't got no bimeus out dar at yer limits, but yer may take me on out dar an' I'll walk back yer w' brudder Smif lifs. Yere's yer money, sah. Jes one o' dose yillerd 'coonskins, and hides in dat fur de full worth o' mer money. It would be er mighty fool man dat would pay er dollar fur er pair o' britches w'en he kin git er whole suit o' clues fur de same price. Take me on out to yer limits, sah."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Principles of Insurance.

It is surprising that the public know so little about insurance, when more people are interested in it than in anything else. There is scarcely a family in the land in which there is not one or more persons interested in, either life, fire, marine, accident or live stock insurance—in fact, insurance is something that is of vital interest in every household; it is more talked about and more thought of than anything else. Nevertheless the great mass of mankind are as ignorant of its principles as they are of the component parts of the sun.—Insurance Agent in Globe Democrat.

A Choice of Evils.

Omaha Dame (looking up from the paper)—Dear me! Horrible!

Husband—Eh! Another disaster!

"No. The paper says that a colored barber in Philadelphia became so enraged because a customer had not the money to pay for the barbering he had done that he seized a razor and cut the retreating man horribly about the face and hands. The wounded man's nose was nearly severed from his face."

"Well, well! The poor man wouldn't have looked much worse if he had shaved himself."—Omaha World.

Seeing the Show at Home.

"John, I am afraid we can't go to the theatre any more," said a Chicago woman to her husband.

"No, I'm afraid we can't; money is getting very tight."

"I shall miss it dreadfully."

"So shall I."

"What shall we do?"

"I have it. We'll hang your big hat on the back of baby's chair and sit and look at it."—Merchant Traveler.

His Sorrow Explained.

"George, there is a sadness and melancholy in your eye tonight, and your cheeks seem blanched as though with mortal agony."

"Yes, Naomi, I am far from being happy."

"Speak to me, my life and light. Let me share your sorrow. Have the buffetings of this cruel world cast a gloom over your soul?"

"Well, not exactly, but you see these shoes are new and they pinch like thunder."—Lincoln (Neb.) State Journal.

A Numerous Family.

Mrs. Smith to Mrs. Jones' Servant Girl—What do you want?

Servant Girl—Mrs. Jones sends her regards, and says would you be so kind as to count your children and see if you haven't got one too many, as our Kitty hasn't come home and school has been out two hours.—From the German.

Another Great Living Curiosity.

"What is your specialty, my friend?" inquired the owner of a dime museum Freak.

"Phenomenal intelligence."

"In what direction does it lie?"

"I'm the man who always shuts the door."—Harper's Bazar.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

Cheboygan expects to have another railroad in the near future.

About April 1st, the Bay City Evening Press is to be changed from four to eight pages.

Missouri parties are about to build a wooden ware manufactory at Kalkaska. So says the Leader.

With its new head, (a plain letter, almost like the JOURNAL's) the Manceilona Herald is the handsomest, as well as the cleanest, country paper that comes to this office.

About 15,000 pounds of peppermint oil has been bought thus far by local dealers at Mendon, but the bulk of the crop of 1887 is still held by the growers for higher prices. The oil has ranged in price from $1.40 to $1.90 per pound.

E. C. Cummer, of the Cummer lumber company of Cadillac, was killed last week Tuesday, by being drawn under the wheels of a locomotive, his clothes being caught in the gearing. He was horribly mutilated, but lived nearly half an hour after being released.

The train from the Canadian side of the Sault Ste. Marie bridge, to Sudbury, the point of connection with the Canadian Pacific road, does not run but once a week each way, nor does it proceed to run any oftener. The Soo papers do not dwell on this point very forcibly however.—Detroit Journal.

After a year's experience at the City Evening Press will raise the price of their paper from 35 to 50 cents a month. The raise in price is based on the fact that with a necessarily limited circulation the paper cannot be produced profitably at so small an advance over the cost of the white paper.

The monthly crop report just issued from the secretary of state's office states that wheat suffered no injury in January, the ground throughout the state having been well covered with snow during the month, excepting, perhaps, two or three days from the 5th to the 7th. High knolls and other equally exposed places are, of course, exceptions to this statement. The snow in the southern counties on February 1 averaged, in open, level fields, eight inches in depth; in the central counties 14 inches, and in the northern counties, 27 inches. The report also says that there will number of bushels of wheat marketed in the six months from August to February is 6,435,789 or about 28 per cent of the crop of 1887.

Representative Chipman has introduced a bill in congress providing for new range lights and fog signals on the upper lakes. Appropriations of interest in this region are, for the removal of the lighthouse on the Peninsula Point to the neighboring point upon Eleven-foot shoal, with the addition of a fog signal, $60,000; for the erection of a lighthouse and fog signal on Squaw Island, Lake Michigan, $25,000; for the placing of a fog signal on Beaver Island $5,500; for the erection of a lighthouse at White Shoals, Lake Michigan, $60,000; for establishment of a fog signal at Mackinaw point, $5,500; for the removal of the lighthouse at McGulpin's point to Old Mackinac point $25,000; for fog signal at Cheboygan point light station, $5,500; for fog signal at Presque Isle, $5,500; for fog signal at South Fox Island, $5,500.

One of our Michigan contributors designated, in a late issue of the Timberman, the standard gauge railroad recently constructed by David Ward, the pine king, from Frederick on the Michigan Central road, to Alba on the Grand Rapids & Indiana road, as "a logging road." As a matter of fact, the road is the standard gauge, and as much of a passenger carrying road as a freight transportation route, and is the only road connecting the northern extension of the Michigan Central and the Grand Rapids & Indiana road, between Bay City and Mackinaw, a distance of some 200 miles. It will thus be seen that David Ward's "cross-cut" road will shorten the distance for passenger travel from eastern Michigan and all south and east of Michigan, saving from Detroit, Saginaw, etc., to Petoskey, Charlevoix, etc., from seventy to ninety miles. The road is twenty-five miles long, and runs its entire length except one mile, through a solid body of pine belonging to Mr. Ward.—Timberman.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

A Card of Thanks.

None of us are exempt from the infirmities incident to nature, and when overtaken by any of the many calamities by which we are environed there are none of us but highly appreciate the friendly grasp of the hand; the sympathetic word and kindly act. During our recent affliction and final sad bereavement, we were the recipients of so many sympathetic kindnesses as to overwhelm us with a sense of our obligation to the many who so kindly ministered to the wants of the patient sufferer during her last hours, and kindly placed such rare floral tokens of respect on the casket of her whose foot had ever been swift to the bedside of the suffering, and whose hands were ever ready to bathe the fevered brow. Comrades of the G. A. R., the touch of elbows in days long past, lent confidence and courage for the fate of the day. The same touch to day inspires us to bear up under our misfortunes. The Sons of Veterans who paid such marks of respect, and the friends who sent kind words of sympathy and condolence, to one and all we acknowledge our obligation and tender our heartfelt thanks.

Feb. 20. ROBERT MILLER
MR. and MRS. A. C. JARVIS.

A New Ice-Breaking Vessel.

A remarkable boat is soon to be turned out at the docks of the Detroit Dry Dock Company. It is built for the Mackinaw Transportation Company, and is to be used as a car ferry boat. The boat is 235 feet long, 52 feet broad, and 25 feet deep, and will be able to carry ten freight cars or eight passenger cars. It is, however, as an ice crushing machine that the new boat is expected to be remarkable, and her construction is such that it will be impossible for soft ice to cling to her sides. The propelling power is furnished by a compound engine of 2,000 horse power, with 28½ inch and 53 inch cylinders, having a 48 inch stroke, and driving a 12 foot wheel. In addition to this there is another and smaller engine of about half the power, the chief object of which is to serve as an ice breaker.

It has been found that the easiest and quickest way to get ice out of a slip is to back the boat into the ice, hold her there with lines, and then by working the engine forward throw a column of water under the ice, which never fails to break it up and drive it out of the slip. This fact suggested the peculiar feature of the new boat, —her two wheels. No. 8?, as the new boat is known on the company's books, will go in the ice bows on, and while held there by her larger propeller, the smaller wheel, itself ten feet in diameter, will clear the way into the ice. The top of the buckets of this wheel will be 6 feet under the surface of the water, so that there will be no danger of its being broken by the ice. There are three double-ended boilers, 18 feet long by 11 feet 6 inches in diameter, equivalent to six ordinary boilers. They are placed side by side, and have two smokestacks, one forward of the other, ocean style. Her bows are so constructed as to stand the severest shocks, and her hull is sheathed with steel plates ½ inch in thickness. Naturally requiring great steering power, a special three steering engines has been designed for her by the Manton Steam Windlass Works of Providence, Rhode Island. To prevent her rolling in heavy seas, two tanks, holding about 25 tons of water each, have been placed athwartship. An electric light of 2,000 candle light power will be fastened to her pilot house.—Scientific American.

Old papers five cents a dozen.

Geo. W. Beaman,

(Successor to G. W. CROUTER.)

DRUGS AND STATIONERY

Charlevoix, - - - Michigan.

Quarter Off!

OUR ANNUAL SALE

of one-fourth off

DRY GOODS, CLOAKS AND Carpets.

We always Give our Customers a benefit when it is of some use. On February 1st Everything in our immense stock will go at 1-4 off. Now is a rare chance to secure a Cloak, of which we have a great many in Children's, Misses' and Ladies'.

RULE:----You purchase goods at regular retail prices and 1-4 will be deducted from the entire bill or One Dollars worth of Goods for Seventy-five Cents. This sale will continue until March, to get best value come early.

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

MURDER MOST FOUL.

A Chicago Millionaire Shot Dead in His Own House by Burglars.

He Is Awakened by the Noise Made by Forcing a Door and Confronts the Intruders.

The Latter Fire Two Bullets Into His Body, Either Of Which Would Have Proved Fatal.

(Chicago special.)

Amos J. Snell, the millionaire real estate owner and acknowledged leader of the Republican party on the West Side, was shot and killed in the hallway of his brownstone residence at the corner of Adams street and Washington boulevard yesterday morning at about 2 o'clock. Two burglars who had forced their way into his house by the other in his board. Either wound would have produced instant death. He was found where he fell, five hours later, at the head of the front hall stairway stretched at full length across the last step, lying in a pool of blood. His pistol, within a few feet of his hand, had been fired one shot had been recently fired. The wound in his breast was a ragged one, produced by a bullet of very large caliber, and must have evidently fired at short range and while the man was facing south. His assailants had left side to the murderer or murderers who were making their escape.

AMOS J. SNELL.

SHOOTING THE OLD MAN DOWN.

The crime is one of the most daring grade and sensational nature to have been committed in recent to Chicago criminal annals. It was the direct outcome of an attempt—successful or not, time will tell—to rob a wealthy citizen, who in his footfall, and who, it is generally conceded, has very ample and evidence of ready cash at his disposal. Contrary to the usual sensational accounts of such crimes, there is no clue, beyond a few vague rumors, and that is that in reality, the burglars were interrupted in their work, and in the crime committed instead. Who they were—for it is generally believed there were at least two were concerned in the affair—is not known, and thus far there is not even the slightest clue to their identity. The perpetrators of the crime are the only living witnesses of the affair, and the unfortunate victim of their police will be alive and at his probability fatally, despite the fact that two men are overhauled up in the house when police officers on suspicion of knowing something of the affair.

There were but five persons besides the thieves in the mansion when the burglary occurred—Mr. Snell, Miss Jane Bielenhaber, the cook, and Ida Borcstadt, a Swedish waitress, and Mr. Snell's son, Amos J. Snell, and Edmond Coffin, were asleep on an upper floor.

ALONE WITH THE DEAD.

Miss Bielenhaber was the only one who saw the murder done, and she was prevented from giving an alarm of it at the time by being seized by the heavy rept of a revolver and hearing loud cries of "Leave here!" Her mother was first and a second later four others ran down the stairs and out of the house. The whole affair was over in a few minutes, and the girl was left to the mercy of the murderers.

The window panels were frozen and she was unable to open it, fortunately for her mom, she aroused her companion, Miss Borcstadt, and the two ran to the front door in terror of what she had heard. Again she was so her mom

FARM AND GARDEN.

A DEVICE FOR BREAKING A HORSE PULLING AT THE HALTER.

Comparative Value of Corn, Cornmeal and Oatmeal for Pigs—Causes of and Remedies for Feather Eating Hens. Benches for Husking Corn.

For husking corn under shelter or in the open field, a husking bench is a great convenience. In the accompanying cuts are shown two styles of husking benches that were recommended and illustrated a short time ago by Country Gentleman.

FIG. 1—HUSKING BENCH.

The bench shown in the first cut requires no description. Any one can make one like it, without other guide than the figure here shown. To use it, tip it down against the shock, grasp the top of the shock and tip it back with its load.

FIG. 2—HUSKING BENCH.

Fig. 2 shows another form of husking bench. It is made by using small benches connected by two pieces of wood two by three inches and six or twelve feet long, with cross boards for seats. The shock is thrown on the bench between the buttons. When enough stalks are husked for a bundle, they are bound, without the trouble of tying a band, and thrown to one side. The seats have cleats on the lower side to prevent dropping. They are most convenient when about twenty-seven inches high. By the use of this bench, either in field or under shelter, we find that a man will husk one-fourth more than in the ordinary way.

Growing Lettuce in Cold Weather.

There are four ways of growing lettuce for market in cold weather—in the green house, where steam or hot water is used; by steam heat under dirt in beds, by steam or water over the lettuce beds, and in the old way by manure heat. This last most easiest way is described by a correspondent of American Garden. He uses one cord (128 cubic feet of manure to fill under eight or ten sashes; one foot in depth of manure in this latitude, under eight inches of dirt with six inches of space between glass and soil is about right. The sides of the beds on which the glass rests should be of two inch plank well nailed to posts or joists made tight to keep out cold, well protected on the outside with soil. If sunk almost to the level of the ground, frost is kept out better. The beds need to be sheltered by buildings or a high fence. Sash should be 3x6 feet and two inches thick, made from pine and have two coats of white paint. Glass with 6x8 glass, double thick, bedded, tacked and putted on the outside with oil and whitened over.

The correspondent referred to uses solid shutters of pine boards to cover sash with in place of mats and uses them better. For heating, horse manure is employed. The plants for setting he obtains by sowing a small bed in December. One ounce of seed under two sashes gives plants enough for thirty sashes or more. The plants in time of setting should have four to six leaves and be set six to eight inches apart.

Experiments in Feeding Pigs.

On the agricultural grounds of the Illinois university, a number of experiments have been made in feeding pigs. One series of experiments were made to determine the comparative value of cornmeal and oatmeal. Two lots of hogs were fed. Lot 1 ate during the period of five weeks, 498.23 pounds of cornmeal, costing $3.24, and 403.22 pounds of ground oats, costing $3.35, making a total cost of food of $6.63. The increase made was 145.5 pounds, which makes the cost of food per 100 pounds of increase $3.99.

The increase produced by cornmeal cost $2.58, and by shelled corn $2.30 per 100 pounds. It thus cost $1.32 more per 100 pounds of increase with the mixed food than with corn meal, and $1.60 more than with shelled corn.

Another experiment made was one in feeding corn in the ear, shelled, and ground into meal. Conclusions arrived at from results gained were that, Looked at from all sides, when fed dry, whole corn produces better results than corn meal. Where the difference is simply due to the cost of grinding the corn, the difference in the cost of producing 100 pounds of increase at the low price of twenty-eight cents per bushel for corn, will be twenty-five cents or more, an item worthy the attention of any hog raiser.

Feather Eating Hens.

Feather eating among poultry appears to be a habit acquired rather than the effects of disease, and no one has appeared with a specific for its cure. The experience of many growers, however, seems to point to the fact that the inciting cause may be traced to idleness, too close confinement and a deprivation of exercise, together with a want of green food, worms or insects, and possibly some articles not usually given in their food which are necessary for their contentment when they are not allowed to forage at large for themselves. Charcoal pounded or ground fine and mixed with soft food has been found useful in more than one instance, and a small lump of lime in their drinking water is advised, also the hanging up of a cabbage or piece of meat where they can pick at it, and where the habit has been confirmed in a few it will be best to separate them from the flock. When a hen eats her eggs it is best to kill her before she teaches the trick to others, and for a preventive make the nests in dark places and feed plenty of lime, broken bones and oyster shells to make hard shelled eggs; besides, remember never to throw out egg shells in large pieces where they can get them, as it tends to teach them the habit.

Pyrethum for Cabbage Worms.

In his report on entomology to the Ohio Horticultural society, Professor Alwood states that many remedies have been employed on two species of cabbage worms, consisting of about slaker of different decrees of strength, tansy water, tobacco water, beg-lime, coal oil emulsions of different strengths, Hammond's sling shot, Cayenne pepper, half a dozen preparations from England, several preparations of tobacco soap and pyrethrum.

None proved of any value except the tobacco soaps and pyrethrum. The tobacco soaps prepared with potash were quite efficient, the value of which was ascribed to the potash.

Pyrethrum is recommended as the best remedy, being perfectly safe, easy of application and more deadly on the worms than any remedy used. Powder of good quality, mixed with three times its bulk of flour, was found perfectly effective, applied with a dusting bellows. One pound, costing fifty cents, was enough to cover an acre if properly handled.

Grasses and Clover.

When the dry season began to tell on an improved pasture at the Guelph, Ontario, agricultural grounds, Professor Brown, at the critical time, made the following observations on the appearance of the grasses and clover that composed the pasture:

Meadow fescue, most plentiful of any, alike clover, a large quantity; Canada blue, considerable quantity; white clover, medium in quantity; timothy, a good average; red top, good; red clover, a small quantity; Italian rye, very little; tall oats, very little; perennial rye, none.

The pasture composed of the above grasses and clover furnished ample grazing, until the snow came, for seven head of sheep per acre. Such pasture, it has been demonstrated by Professor Brown, produces milk, beef and mutton in quantities three times as great as the present average of the province of Ontario.

Remedies For Hog Cholera.

A number of South Carolina planters are claiming that soda is a cure-pen for hog cholera. One says that by the use of this medicine alone, he has saved the first symptoms of the disease were noticed, he checked it. Another used soda and salt together, mixed in moderate quantity with the food.

An old Kentucky breeder of swine places salt first in importance as a preventive of cholera, and believes that salt, of all substances, is the best promoter of digestion as well as an antidote against worms. This breeder has adopted the plan of salting all his animals in which tight troughs, keeping a supply of salt on hand continually. He also feeds some charcoal with the salt to swine that are closely penned, and gives ashes occasionally under all conditions.

Laying Tile Drains.

At the annual meeting of the Indiana State Tile association, numbered with other pertinent statements made, were those of a member from Fort Wayne on the way to lay tile in ditches. He advocated the employment of an engineer to lay off the work and letting the farmer put in the tile at his leisure. A member from Noblesville advised that the ditches be dug about three feet deep, sloping from the top to the bottom. Long handled tools were recommended and workmen advised not to stand in the bottom of the ditch, but to lift in the tile with hooks and place carefully in line. He also advised in laying a drain that one should begin at the mouth and work back to the head.

The Kicking Cow.

Take a half inch or three-eighths rope, double it, pass it around the body of the cow forward of the udder, bringing the ends through the loop, draw tight and make fast with a slip knot, and the cow will not kick, says a friend of Mr. Coburn's Indicator, because she can't arch her back. A cow does not kick unless she gets her back up.

Breaking a Horse From Pulling.

Horses properly handled when young give little or no trouble in the halter when grown. But as this is not always done, measures have been adopted to break horses that pull at a halter, some of which are both ingenious and simple.

PULLING AT A HALTER.

In the cut is illustrated a device, said by the Indiana Farmer to be very effective. The authority in question describes it as consisting of an ordinary halter, strong, with two side rings, connected by a strong flexible cord. Whenever the horse pulls the inner part of the cord is drawn forcibly against his jaw, and the pain is a severer punishment than he is willing to endure.

Hens of General Interest.

The council of Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., recently recommended that the $15,000 appropriated by congress for an experimental agricultural station should be divided into two parts—$10,250 for salaries and $4,750 for supplies.

Cows fed with meal mixed with straw eat and mistreated, says Professor Arnold, give more milk and considerably richer than when fed on the best hay alone.

The belief is general that high prices will naturally stimulate the planting of more onions next year in districts where they are not largely grown.

Recent tests appear to confirm the theory that planting whole potatoes is followed by the largest crops.

E. Williams, secretary of the New Jersey Horticultural society, has proved to his satisfaction that bagging grapes prevents rot, provided no rot is on the clusters when bagged.

Farmers in all localities where there are long winters are more and more favoring silos and ensilage.

Potatoes have been coming to this country of late in large quantities; they are of the magnum and bonum variety, and are of good quality.

Advices are growing from the hop growing region of New York and other states, sales are slow, with low prices.

Bradstreets cotton to the cotton crop at 25,000 bales less than last year.

SUCCESS IN JOURNALISM.

Advice to the Ambitious Beginner—Newspapers Now Expensive Than Ever.

This is the golden age of journalism in New York. Never in the history of newspaper making in the city was so much money made by newspapers, and never was so much paid by newspaper proprietors to those who make them. Journalists are better paid now than ever before. Good articles from special contributors are more eagerly sought after and more liberally paid for than at any time since journalism became a profession. First class editors and reporters command much double the pay they did fifteen years ago.

Journalism is finally become a well paid and dignified profession, a profession that brings as many rewards and emoluments as any profession in the land. And it needs new recruits. It needs new life and new blood, and young and women with originality and new ideas. How to begin is the great problem. It was with the view of getting the opinion of an expert, a man who has made a phenomenal success in the line that I called upon Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, the editor of The New York World, and asked him some pertinent questions. The first one was this:

"What chance has a young man, with nothing but brains and pluck, of getting into journalism?"

"There never was a better chance in journalism for a man with brains than just now," replied Pulitzer, "if he is lucky enough. To rise to a commanding position it must be accompanied by character and persistent work. Any man of brains and pluck and principle is sure to succeed."

"What course would you advise a beginner to pursue?"

"To work and work, to think and think and think. Before he will do that, he will have some original ideas, he will not have to wait long to become both prominent and prosperous."

Is it necessary for a successful journalist to be a college graduate?

"The best college is the college of the world—the school of life—the university of actual experience. Knowledge is highly desirable and a college education valuable, but it is not indispensable. The history of our country and the history of the most successful men in America conclusively establish the possibility of self cultivation and self education. Few of our greatest men, even in politics and the intellectual pursuits, were college graduates. Self made men are generally self educated men."

"What branch of the newspaper profession brings the highest honors and emoluments?"

"This is rather a hard question as you put it. There is no particular branch of the paper or mine which commands higher honor than another. It is the man rather than the department. It is simply the capacity, character and force of service which influence me in fixing either the highest honors or highest emolument among my associates. Time of service influences me almost as much as capacity. Long tried and faithful service the test and reward of loyalty, originality and integrity of character. If a man stays with me ten years he will certainly be better and more valuable to me first, or I should not want him to be with me ten years. If I want a man to stay with me I want to make it worth his while to do so. I want to be sure that I would have very little sense if he expected to be as well off the first year as the tenth."

"Newspapers are more expensive now than a few years ago, are they not?"

"Newspapers are very much more expensive than they were a few years ago, and the tendency is irresistibly that way. There is hardly a paper in the country, I should judge from my own experience, the expenses of which are not increasing year by year, and there is no prospect of diminution in the cost of white paper, which is much less now than I ever thought it possible to be a few years ago."

"In most newspaper offices there is a conflict between the editorial and the business office. Which do you consider the most important?"

"There is no such conflict in my office, never was and never can be. That is one reason why I have always maintained absolute control of my papers. It was not on account of the pecuniary element involved, but simply because of the supreme necessity that there should be one head, and that head the absolute control over every department."—New York Mail and Express.

Suboring a Drunken Bridegroom.

As a remedy for dissipation the Turkish bath is sometimes an important factor in social life. Not long since the youthful hope of a Murray Hill family had an important engagement at 11 o'clock in the morning. It was, in fact, no less than a wedding at church, with himself as the groom. At 8:30 o'clock he was scarcely sober enough to summon a devoted friend to his room, where he took him how he had been enticed into the river indulgence the night before and led into a dissipation that had lasted until morning. He had not even dared to go to sleep lest he should oversleep himself, and had reached his house at 8 o'clock, with a brain so befuddled that he could not remember even to his friend that he was liquor that had upset him. Fortunately the man he had summoned knew what a Turkish bath would do. In ten minutes the young man was undergoing a process of heating and cooling and pounding and kneading and rubbing, out of which he emerged a fifty cent wooden new man. His wedding suit meanwhile had been brought to the house, and at 11 o'clock he marched into the church with the suppleness of an athlete and the firm tread of a soldier. It was a close shave, and he made any number of good resolves by way of penance.—New York Tribune.

A New Missionary Movement.

Orthodox Christians will watch with interest and perhaps some fear the new missionary movement in Germany. So called advanced theologians have a well organized society, whose object is to make use of the elements of culture and morality that are found in educated heathen nations, and on this basis build up a Christian culture according to advanced ideas. This society thinks that the old methods fail in that they do not interest the thinkers among educated non-Christian people. It has 7,750 members in Switzerland and Germany, and has a few men at work in Japan and China.—New York Sun.

Magazines for nearly Half.

Club with this paper. We divide with you.

Take this list:

	Publishers' price for each magazine alone	Our price for it and this paper together
Wide Awake	$1.40	$1.60
Young Folks' Journal	1	2.10
Funny	1	2.10
Little Men and Women	1	2.10
Babyland	0.50	1.35

Send to the publisher of the magazine you want for a sample copy, enclosing a trifle in stamps, say five cents, enough to show you we are not a dead-beat. He will send you his terms of course. Compare them with ours.

Ours for magazines are published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Made for families, they actually open a new world to them.

Babyland, full of pictures and songs and stories, helps the mother amuse even a little baby, helps him love, and teach love.

Our Little Men and Women takes the six-year-old when he begins to read.

The Funny comes with the Sunday School age.

Chautauqua Young Folks' Journal is for young folks in their teens.

Wide Awake—this is what the publishers say of it: "Story, song, adventure, life, all the land and broad, companionship of the wise and good"—designed for the young, but for all improving people.

We have the more satisfaction in clubbing with such magazines because they encourage civilized life wherever they go.

Beware!

Coughs, Cold and Slight Throat Diseases often develop into Bronchitis, Seated Cough, Consumption, etc., and should have immediate attention. Take it while it is easy. Be not careless. Not only public speakers, but all are liable to throat troubles and to obtain relief should use Hamilton's Cough Troches, which relieve the throat in a few minutes, making the articulation clear. Warranted to give satisfaction. Price 25c per box. Sold by G. W. Beaman.

feb

Wonderful Cures

Dr. G. W. Crosier, retail druggist of Charlevoix, Mich., says: We have been selling Dr. Kings New Discovery Electric Bitters, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve for six years. Have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. There have been some wonderful cures effected by these medicines in this city. Several cases of prolonged consumption have been entirely cured by use of a few bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always. Sold by Dr. G. W. Crosier.

When a Cure is Guaranteed.

Why will you refuse to be relieved? That cough which is liable to be some seated on your lungs and to cause you many a suffering day and sleepless night? Your children are liable to be taken with Croup and die before a doctor can be summoned. Be wise and obtain a remedy that will not fail to give relief from Coughs Colds Whooping Cough, Croup and all other lung difficulties. Hamilton's Cough Balsam will do all this and much more. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by G. W. Beaman.

feb

Personal.

Mr. H. N. Prettebottom, of Mobile, Ala., writes: "Our great grandmother, Mrs. Winslow, of King's New Discovery for Consumption, having used it for a seven years attack of Bronchitis and Catarrh, It gave me instant relief and entirely cured me, and I have not been afflicted since. I also beg to state that I have tried other remedies with no good result. Have also used Electric Bitters and Dr. King's New Life Pills, both of which I can recommend.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, is sold on a positive guarantee. Trial bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crosier's drug store.

Toothache.

Money is a great cure for aching hearts, but a twenty dollar gold piece placed on an aching don't seem to ease the least pain. In fact nothing is sure to cure but Hamilton's Toothache Drops, which are warranted to cure in one minute. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by G. W. Beaman.

feb

Give your friends in other states an idea of Charlevoix village and county, by sending one or more copies of our holiday supplement. A few copies on hand, at five cents each or fifty cents a dozen.

Beckien's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. G. W. Crosier.

Look at the date on the yellow address label on this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us of the fact, as the omission may be corrected.

Itch, mange, and scratches of every kind on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. This never fails. Sold by F. G. Hines & Co., druggists, Charlevoix, Mich.

A. J. McLeod

Can be found at the old stand with a

FULL STOCK OF MEATS

Of all kinds

At Wholesale and Retail.

HIDES, PELTS, & FAT STOCK WANTED

F. E. WOOD,

BARBER SHOP

And Bath Rooms.

Hot and cold baths at any hour of the day and evening.

STORY & CLARK

FINE ORGANS

SEND FOR ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE—FREE!

N. J. PERRY Agent, Charlevoix.

CHICAGO + CANAL AND 16TH STS

FOR MAN AND BEAST!

Mexican Mustang Liniment

CURES

Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Spavin, Sweeny, Ringbone, Curb, Splints, Contracted Muscles, Tendons, Ligaments, Joints, Bones, Sprains, Bruises, Stiffness, Lameness, Sciatica, Scratches, Sitfast, Tetter, Ringworm, Mange, Barbacoe, Galls, Scurvy, Sores, Spavin, Cracks, Swellings, Sore Throat, Diphtheria, Croup, Toothache, Earache, Frost Bites, Burns, Scalds, Cuts, Wounds, Piles.

THIS COOD OLD STAND-BY

comprises for every body exactly what is claimed for it. One of the reasons for the great popularity of Mexican Mustang Liniment is found in its universal applicability. Everybody needs such a medicine. The Lumberman needs it to cure his accidents. The Housewife needs it for general family use. The Farmer needs it for his stock and himself. The Mechanic needs it always on his work shop. The Miner needs it in case of emergency. The Traveler should never think of going without it. The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, and his dairy. The Steamboat man or the Boatman needs it for himself and for his crew. The Horse-dealer needs it—it is his best friend and stand-by in adversity. The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars in a year. The Railroad man needs it and he does use it in all parts of the world. The Stage Driver and The Backwoodsman need it. There is nothing like it as an outside application for man and beast, and no other which compared the money, can be so universally relied upon. Druggists everywhere are selling it. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Ask your druggist for it. Take no other.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL

Niagara Falls Route

Great Express Train Service between Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, New York, Boston, Montreal, Quebec and Portland. Only one night out between Chicago and New York. Best Equipment. Quick time. Low rates.

THE DIRECT ROUTE BETWEEN MACKINAW CITY AND DETROIT JACKSON, The South and East.

Trains leave Mackinaw City 8.00 a. m. daily except Sunday, and 10.00 p. m. daily, arriving at Detroit ..... 9.10 p. m. and 11.00 a. m.
Jackson ..... 10.30 p. m. and 11.20 a. m.
Toledo ..... 6.35 a. m. and 4.45 p. m.
Buffalo ..... 6.15 a. m. and 8.40 p. m.
Cleveland ..... 9.50 a. m. and 8.00 p. m.

WAGNER PALACE SLEEPING AND PARLOR CARS.

D. W. JOHNSTON, Mich. Pass. Agt., Grand Rapids. O. W. RUGGLES, G. P. & T. Agt., Chicago.

Grand Rapids & Indiana R. R.

Time Card for

PETOSKEY STATION,

In effect Oct. 1887.

Leave, going north, 8.18 p. m., 2.05 a. m.

Leave, going south, 8.20 a. m., 11.00 p. m.

Daily except Saturday.

PENSIONS!

WILLIAM GREENE, late Assistant Chief of the Western Division, U. S. Pension office, is now engaged in the prosecution of pension and all other soldier claims.

Soldiers who served 90 days in the war of the Rebellion and died from any cause, leaving a wife or minor children, are entitled to a pension. Fathers and mothers are now allowed pensions for the death of their sons, if they were dependent upon their sons for support. Soldiers who served 90 days and are now suffering from any disease or disability are entitled to a pension. Veterans who have served 90 days in the war and are now suffering from any disease or disability are entitled to a pension. Veterans who

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS RECORD.

A Summary of the Eventful Happenings of a Week, as Reported by Telegraph.

Political, Commercial, and Industrial News, Fires, Accidents, Crimes, Suicides, Etc., Etc.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

THE SNELL MURDER.

The Crime Fastened Upon William B. Tascott—The Murderer Still at Large.

WILLIAM B. TASCOTT, the stylish, lion-eyed young burglar who murdered Amos J. Snell, the Washington boulevard millionaire, and escaped safely in Europe, has not yet been arrested, says a Chicago telegram of Monday.

He is still secure in the belief that he has an army of spies in on the watch for the appearance of the man he robbed and murdered, says a Chicago telegram of Monday. He is still secure in the belief that he has left no clues behind him, and detectives are going there for some time to come, if they do so at all, to find a city the like of which was Tascott's companion, who stood on guard on the outside of the house while Tascott, the youthful burglar and mock medical student, was ransacking the house of the aged and unfortunate victim of his crime, Mr. William B. Tascott, against whom circumstantial evidence accumulates daily, has already been piled up. Tascott watched night after night the house of his victim, and night after night his surgery was to be completed the next morning. Tascott was not long in finding out that Mr. Snell was in the habit of going to his office upon the kitchen door, which was left unfastened, and he goes to his place. His accomplice remained outside while Tascott went in. The two then went together into the house, and upstairs, where they found the aged man in his night clothes, and he was accosted, but resented the intrusion. Tascott came out, the latter was pale, excited and trembling, and said he had killed the man and said that he had shot the man, and then he and his accomplice walked away together, and escaped. The alarm was finally given at 2:17, when the Madison street The next morning they planned out and mapped, a journey that Tascott was to take to the Northwestern depot and board a train for Canada, and he was to take the train and make his escape. The accomplice was horrified at the murder, and so alarmed lest he might be arrested and held for complicity in the crime that he refrained from giving information to the police, and he was so much in fear of Tascott that he thought that he had no other course of action with the Snell murder, or with any other crime that was planned and executed by young Tascott. The name of this man is well known in the secret service of the United States officers at the Central Station. Sunday were spent in the detective bureau in looking over all parts of the well copies of the following revised circular, which gives the very latest description of the man wanted:

TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD.

DESCRIPTION OF WILLIAM B. TASCOTT, Age, Feb. 19, 1866—Look out for and arrest William B. Tascott, alias T. A. Cathright, alias Moore, alias Scott, alias Clark, the supposed murderer of A. J. Snell, who was killed on the night of Feb. 8. Twenty to 22 years of age, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, 160 pounds weight, slim build, very light complexion, light hair, light blue eyes, very fair complexion, high brown hair, thin on top of head, cut short, prominent blue eyes, small thin dark mustache, may be dyed, may have some front teeth, upper jaw, filled with gold, small mouth, small ears, small hands and feet, talks quick and low, and drawl, with silk hat, square top coat, set with garnets and pearls, gold watch, silver, May carry cane with a round gold head, engraved with "T." Is a good talker, and may be cool-headed and desperate. Has a scar from one and eight inches deep, hung by a strap over his shoulder. Claims to be a newspaper reporter. Is also said to be an expert pool-player, and may be playing pool for his expenses. Tattooed on chest his initials, "W. B. T." Tattooed on arm, "Mamie." The above reward will be paid for his capture and conviction until officer with papers can arrive for him. Send all information to

JAMES H. BURNAND,
Acting General Superintendent of Police.

SHERIDAN WON'T RUN.

Satisfied with His Military Position, and Would Not Exchange It for Any Civil Office.

THE Washington agent of the Associated Press sought an interview with Gen. Sheridan on Monday for the purpose of ascertaining whether he would consent to make an authoritative statement in regard to his alleged Presidential candidacy.

"Well," said the General, "I know nothing more about this alleged boom than what I have read in the papers. I think it would have some friend to look out for and see about getting a candidate. But if the matter is really now discussed seriously, I think that all parties concerned should be informed that they are wasting their time. I have once said that the Presidential bee in my bonnet is entirely extinct. I am for there is nothing I have would induce me to accept the profession in which nearly forty years of my life have been spent to enter upon a civ career. So all talk about my being a candidate or accepting if I should be nominated is foolish and should not be taken seriously. Nominate me? I would not accept. But there is not the slightest probability of my being nominated, and, in any event, I would not accept. No, not under any circumstances. I do not want that or any other civil office.

Four New States.

THE subcommittee of the House Committee on Territories which has been charged with the preparation of the "omnibus" bill to enable the Territories of Dakota, Montana, Washington, and Arizona to secure recognition as States, was busily engaged in framing that measure, says a Washington telegram. The bill provides for the election of delegates to a constitutional Convention in Dakota on the second Monday in August, for the meetings of the four conventions in September, and for the submission of the four Constitutions to the people of the four Territories on the day of the Presidential election.

The Reading Strike.

LETTERS have passed between representatives of the striking miners and the Reading managements looking to a resumption of work, and it is believed that the pits will again soon be manned. The wages question will be arbitrated after the miners return to work, and no man will be blacklisted who has been quiet and orderly during the troubles.

Two Thousand Lives Lost.

CHINESE advices are to the effect that a terrific earthquake has occurred in the province of Yunnan. Two thousand lives are reported to have been lost.

THE EASTERN STATES.

A WILKESBARRE (Pa.) special says that a new Polish Catholic Church was dedicated in Hazelton, Pa., on Sunday, and the Slavic population poured in from all sides. Nancy became drunk on pollish, a Hungarian beverage, composed of beef liver and coarse whisky. A party of them returned intoxicated to their boarding house, where they engaged in a fight, during which a lamp was knocked off a table and the house set on fire. The door was locked and the fire was put out. Nancy escaped through the windows, but the more boozified ones were roasted to death.

Following is the list: John Elias, aged 37; John Sedda, aged 37; John Kobinko, aged 35, and married; Mondy Yankowitch, aged 40; Mrs. Mary Wasilick, aged 16; Paul Sikowitz, aged 30. Martin threw her baby out of the window to save it, but it was fatally burned. Half a dozen others were badly burned.

A NEW YORK telegram says that part of the Brooklyn Elevated structure on Broadway, between Ellery and Fayette streets, Brooklyn, collapsed with fatal results. A local amusement surface car containing half a dozen people was caught under the falling mass and entirely demolished. Three men were killed outright and nine people were severely injured, two of whom are not expected to live. Four horses were killed. The accident resulted from the breaking of the sixty-foot longitudinal girder which ran the sleepers and rails are laid, and was due to carelessness.

THE WESTERN STATES.

TWO MEN were killed and four injured by the bursting of a boiler at Barnesville, Ohio.

WILLIAM BARR ING, the would-be assassin of his stepfather, Barker Dawson, has been sentenced at Chicago to eighteen months in the County Jail on his plea of guilty of an attempt to commit murder.

A dispatch of R. E. Billings, indicted for murder in the first degree for the killing of Henry Kingsley at Waverly, Iowa, who pleaded not guilty, and had a petition for a change of venue, was refused by the presiding Judge.

A Freeman (Dak.) telegram of Wednesday last reports that—

Twenty masked men, from all claiming a coal district in Minnehaha County, Dakota, broke into the jail at the Indian agency and released the prisoners, named Alonzo Holly, a negro, and Frank Lewis, a white man, who had been led into through the streets to a stone near the jail and there hanged to a telegraph pole. Lewis had watched the hanging of Holly, and seemed more than disappointed without hanged himself. The reason for which Holly was lynched was that of criminally assaulting the wife of a farmer. Lewis was charged with being an accomplice in the outrage. He was captured and jailed at Flandreau, 100 miles from the place of the crime, about 50 miles and others raided the jail with a battering ram, and hanged the men. Lewis, however, got wind of the affair and escaped from the jail and ran to the Indian agency. He was kept there until Friday last when, as he had made no attempt to aid other inmates, he was returned to Flandreau. He was a Dakota carter and had served several terms in the penitentiary.

A Denver (Colorado) dispatch announces the death of David Ross Locke, editor of the Toledo Blade, widely known as "Petroleum V. Nasby." The immediate cause of his death was consumption of the lungs. Mr. Locke was a native of New York State, and was in his fifty-first year. In his 15th year he was so enticed to the printing trade in the office of the Courtland (N. Y.) Courier. After serving his seven years he traveled through the United States, working at his trade and acting as a reporter. In 1853 he founded the Plymouth (Ohio) Advertiser, conducting it two years. In 1856 he founded the Bucyrus Journal, and afterward was successively connected with the Mansfield Herald and Findlay Jeffersonian. He was starting the latter paper when the war broke out, and in its columns appeared the first number of the renowned "Nasby" letters, the first bearing the date of April 21, 1861. These political satires spread at once into tremendous popularity. In 1865 Mr. Locke assumed charge of the Toledo Blade, first on a salary, afterward purchasing an interest, and finally entire control.

THE Illinois G. A. R. held a three days' encampment Springfield last week. The attendance was numerically large. Nearly every prominent man in the State was there, bringing with the boys in blue. Col. Sexy Morris, of Chicago, was chosen Department Commander. It was decided to meet next year in Springfield. The seventy-fourth resolution was defeated, and the dependent pension bill, now before Congress, was approved. Commander-in-Chief Fairchild was present and he thought President Cleveland would sign the latter measure. Mrs. Sarah Bradford, of Augusta, was elected President of the Woman's Relief Corps.

THE Wisconsin G. A. R. held their annual meeting at Milwaukee. There was a good attendance, and a good time generally. A. G. Wheaton, of Milwaukee, was elected Department Commander. Mrs. Charity Brink Craig, of Verona, sister of Governor Rusk, was elected President of the Woman's Relief Corps.

THE last hope of the "boodle" faded away yesterday, says a Chicago dispatch of Friday, and the counsel for the State scored a signal triumph when the Appellate Court handed down its opinion and affirmed the finding of the criminal branch of the Criminal Court. Judge Adam Ochs, Dan Wren, Mike Waterman, John E. Van Pelt, Mike Leyden, ex-County Commissioner, and Harry A. Varnell, late Warden of the Insane Asylum, down to Joliet penitentiary for two years each. The sentence of Ed McDonald, ex-Engineer of the County Hospital, and brother of Mike McDonald, was likewise affirmed, and he goes to Joliet for three years. The convicted boodlers will now have to expect a decision favorable to them, and they were sorely disappointed when they were apprised of the court's ruling.

The Chicago police are certain that they know who murdered Millionaire Snell, says a dispatch from that city.

The man under suspicion is William B. Tascott, the son of Col. James B. Tascott, the head of the J. B. Tascott Manufacturing Company, Col. Tascott has been in business in Chicago many years. His house is engaged in the sale of cigars, and his son William has been with his father in the business for many years. He is 22 years old, is married, and has a family of children. He is a fine-looking young man, of good address, and is a fast worker. He is said to be a hard-drinker and a fast young man. He is known to be in the habit of going to his place of business in the morning, and he is said to be a frequenter of the resorts of the city at night. The theory of the police is that he was shot down by a burglar while he was in the act of robbing the aged victim of his murderous shot. The police are of the opinion that the man who fired the shot was not alone, and that he had an accomplice who assisted in the murder, and so alarmed lest he might be arrested and held for complicity in the crime that he refrained from giving information to the police. The young man Tascott is said to have sought the police that he had no connection with the Snell murder, or with any other crime that was planned and executed by young Tascott. The name of this man is well known in the secret service of the United States officers at the Central Station Sunday were all parts of the well copies of the following revised circular, which gives the very latest description of the man wanted:

TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD.

DESCRIPTION OF WILLIAM B. TASCOTT, Age, Feb. 19, 1866—Look out for and arrest William B. Tascott, alias T. A. Cathright, alias Moore, alias Scott, alias Clark, the supposed murderer of A. J. Snell, who was killed on the night of Feb. 8. Twenty to 22 years of age, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, 160 pounds weight, slim build, very light complexion, light hair, light blue eyes, very fair complexion, high brown hair, thin on top of head, cut short, prominent blue eyes, small thin dark mustache, may be dyed, may have some front teeth, upper jaw, filled with gold, small mouth, small ears, small hands and feet, talks quick and low, and drawl, with silk hat, square top coat, set with garnets and pearls, gold watch, silver, May carry cane with a round gold head, engraved with "T." Is a good talker, and may be cool-headed and desperate. Has a scar from one and eight inches deep, hung by a strap over his shoulder. Claims to be a newspaper reporter. Is also said to be an expert pool-player, and may be playing pool for his expenses. Tattooed on chest his initials "W. B. T." Tattooed on arm, "Mamie." The above reward will be paid for his capture and conviction until officer with papers can arrive for him. Send all information to

JAMES H. BURNAND,
Acting General Superintendent of Police.

SHERIDAN WON'T RUN.

Satisfied with His Military Position, and Would Not Exchange It for Any Civil Office.

THE Washington agent of the Associated Press sought an interview with Gen. Sheridan on Monday for the purpose of ascertaining whether he would consent to make an authoritative statement in regard to his alleged Presidential candidacy.

"Well," said the General, "I know nothing more about this alleged 'boom' than what I have read in the papers. I think it would have some friend to look out for and see about getting a candidate. But if the matter is really now discussed seriously, I think that all parties concerned should be informed that they are wasting their time. I have once said that the Presidential bee in my bonnet is entirely extinct. So all talk about my being a candidate or accepting if I should be nominated is foolish and should not be taken seriously. Nominate me? I would not accept. But there is not the slightest probability of my being nominated, and, in any event, I would not accept. No, not under any circumstances. I do not want that or any other civil office.

Four New States.

THE subcommittee of the House Committee on Territories which has been charged with the preparation of the "omnibus" bill to enable the Territories of Dakota, Montana, Washington, and Arizona to secure recognition as States, was busily engaged in framing that measure, says a Washington telegram. The bill provides for the election of delegates to a constitutional Convention in Dakota on the second Monday in August, for the meetings of the four conventions in September, and for the submission of the four Constitutions to the people of the four Territories on the day of the Presidential election.

The Reading Strike.

LETTERS have passed between representatives of the striking miners and the Reading managements looking to a resumption of work, and it is believed that the pits will again soon be manned. The wages question will be arbitrated after the miners return to work, and no man will be blacklisted who has been quiet and orderly during the troubles.

Two Thousand Lives Lost.

CHINESE advices are to the effect that a terrific earthquake has occurred in the province of Yunnan. Two thousand lives are reported to have been lost.

THE EASTERN STATES.

A WILKESBARRE (Pa.) special says that a new Polish Catholic Church was dedicated in Hazelton, Pa., on Sunday, and the Slavic population poured in from all sides. Nancy became drunk on pollish, a Hungarian beverage, composed of beef liver and coarse whisky. A party of them returned intoxicated to their boarding house, where they engaged in a fight, during which a lamp was knocked off a table and the house set on fire. The door was locked and the fire was put out. Nancy escaped through the windows, but the more boozified ones were roasted to death.

Following is the list: John Elias, aged 37; John Sedda, aged 37; John Kobinko, aged 35, and married; Mondy Yankowitch, aged 40; Mrs. Mary Wasilick, aged 16; Paul Sikowitz, aged 30. Martin threw her baby out of the window to save it, but it was fatally burned. Half a dozen others were badly burned.

A NEW YORK telegram says that part of the Brooklyn Elevated structure on Broadway, between Ellery and Fayette streets, Brooklyn, collapsed with fatal results. A local amusement surface car containing half a dozen people was caught under the falling mass and entirely demolished. Three men were killed outright and nine people were severely injured, two of whom are not expected to live. Four horses were killed. The accident resulted from the breaking of the sixty-foot longitudinal girder which ran the sleepers and rails are laid, and was due to carelessness.

THE WESTERN STATES.

TWO MEN were killed and four injured by the bursting of a boiler at Barnesville, Ohio.

WILLIAM BARR ING, the would-be assassin of his stepfather, Barker Dawson, has been sentenced at Chicago to eighteen months in the County Jail on his plea of guilty of an attempt to commit murder.

A dispatch of R. E. Billings, indicted for murder in the first degree for the killing of Henry Kingsley at Waverly, Iowa, who pleaded not guilty, and had a petition for a change of venue, was refused by the presiding Judge.

A Freeman (Dak.) telegram of Wednesday last reports that—

Twenty masked men, from all claiming a coal district in Minnehaha County, Dakota, broke into the jail at the Indian agency and released the prisoners, named Alonzo Holly, a negro, and Frank Lewis, a white man, who had been led into through the streets to a stone near the jail and there hanged to a telegraph pole. Lewis had watched the hanging of Holly, and seemed more than disappointed without hanged himself. The reason for which Holly was lynched was that of criminally assaulting the wife of a farmer. Lewis was charged with being an accomplice in the outrage. He was captured and jailed at Flandreau, 100 miles from the place of the crime, about 50 miles and others raided the jail with a battering ram, and hanged the men. Lewis, however, got wind of the affair and escaped from the jail and ran to the Indian agency. He was kept there until Friday last when, as he had made no attempt to aid other inmates, he was returned to Flandreau. He was a Dakota carter and had served several terms in the penitentiary.

A Denver (Colorado) dispatch announces the death of David Ross Locke, editor of the Toledo Blade, widely known as "Petroleum V. Nasby." The immediate cause of his death was consumption of the lungs. Mr. Locke was a native of New York State, and was in his fifty-first year. In his 15th year he was so enticed to the printing trade in the office of the Courtland (N. Y.) Courier. After serving his seven years he traveled through the United States, working at his trade and acting as a reporter. In 1853 he founded the Plymouth (Ohio) Advertiser, conducting it two years. In 1856 he founded the Bucyrus Journal, and afterward was successively connected with the Mansfield Herald and Findlay Jeffersonian. He was starting the latter paper when the war broke out, and in its columns appeared the first number of the renowned "Nasby" letters, the first bearing the date of April 21, 1861. These political satires spread at once into tremendous popularity. In 1865 Mr. Locke assumed charge of the Toledo Blade, first on a salary, afterward purchasing an interest, and finally entire control.

THE Illinois G. A. R. held a three days' encampment Springfield last week. The attendance was numerically large. Nearly every prominent man in the State was there, bringing with the boys in blue. Col. Sexy Morris, of Chicago, was chosen Department Commander. It was decided to meet next year in Springfield. The seventy-fourth resolution was defeated, and the dependent pension bill, now before Congress, was approved. Commander-in-Chief Fairchild was present and he thought President Cleveland would sign the latter measure. Mrs. Sarah Bradford, of Augusta, was elected President of the Woman's Relief Corps.

THE Wisconsin G. A. R. held their annual meeting at Milwaukee. There was a good attendance, and a good time generally. A. G. Wheaton, of Milwaukee, was elected Department Commander. Mrs. Charity Brink Craig, of Verona, sister of Governor Rusk, was elected President of the Woman's Relief Corps.

THE last hope of the "boodle" faded away yesterday, says a Chicago dispatch of Friday, and the counsel for the State scored a signal triumph when the Appellate Court handed down its opinion and affirmed the finding of the criminal branch of the Criminal Court. Judge Adam Ochs, Dan Wren, Mike Waterman, John E. Van Pelt, Mike Leyden, ex-County Commissioner, and Harry A. Varnell, late Warden of the Insane Asylum, down to Joliet penitentiary for two years each. The sentence of Ed McDonald, ex-Engineer of the County Hospital, and brother of Mike McDonald, was likewise affirmed, and he goes to Joliet for three years. The convicted boodlers will now have to expect a decision favorable to them, and they were sorely disappointed when they were apprised of the court's ruling.

The Chicago police are certain that they know who murdered Millionaire Snell, says a dispatch from that city.

The man under suspicion is William B. Tascott, the son of Col. James B. Tascott, the head of the J. B. Tascott Manufacturing Company. Col. Tascott has been in business in Chicago many years. His house is engaged in the sale of cigars, and his son William has been with his father in the business for many years. He is 22 years old, is married, and has a family of children. He is a fine-looking young man, of good address, and is a fast worker. He is said to be a hard-drinker and a fast young man. He is known to be in the habit of going to his place of business in the morning, and he is said to be a frequenter of the resorts of the city at night. The theory of the police is that he was shot down by a burglar while he was in the act of robbing the aged victim of his murderous shot. The police are of the opinion that the man who fired the shot was not alone, and that he had an accomplice who assisted in the murder, and so alarmed lest he might be arrested and held for complicity in the crime that he refrained from giving information to the police. The young man Tascott is said to have sought the police that he had no connection with the Snell murder, or with any other crime that was planned and executed by young Tascott. The name of this man is well known in the secret service of the United States officers at the Central Station Sunday were all parts of the well copies of the following revised circular, which gives the very latest description of the man wanted:

TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD.

DESCRIPTION OF WILLIAM B. TASCOTT, Age, Feb. 19, 1866—Look out for and arrest William B. Tascott, alias T. A. Cathright, alias Moore, alias Scott, alias Clark, the supposed murderer of A. J. Snell, who was killed on the night of Feb. 8. Twenty to 22 years of age, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, 160 pounds weight, slim build, very light complexion, light hair, light blue eyes, very fair complexion, high brown hair, thin on top of head, cut short, prominent blue eyes, small thin dark mustache, may be dyed, may have some front teeth, upper jaw, filled with gold, small mouth, small ears, small hands and feet, talks quick and low, and drawl, with silk hat, square top coat, set with garnets and pearls, gold watch, silver, May carry cane with a round gold head, engraved with "T." Is a good talker, and may be cool-headed and desperate. Has a scar from one and eight inches deep, hung by a strap over his shoulder. Claims to be a newspaper reporter. Is also said to be an expert pool-player, and may be playing pool for his expenses. Tattooed on chest his initials "W. B. T." Tattooed on arm, "Mamie." The above reward will be paid for his capture and conviction until officer with papers can arrive for him. Send all information to

JAMES H. BURNAND,
Acting General Superintendent of Police.

SHERIDAN WON'T RUN.

Satisfied with His Military Position, and Would Not Exchange It for Any Civil Office.

THE Washington agent of the Associated Press sought an interview with Gen. Sheridan on Monday for the purpose of ascertaining whether he would consent to make an authoritative statement in regard to his alleged Presidential candidacy.

"Well," said the General, "I know nothing more about this alleged 'boom' than what I have read in the papers. I think it would have some friend to look out for and see about getting a candidate. But if the matter is really now discussed seriously, I think that all parties concerned should be informed that they are wasting their time. I have once said that the Presidential bee in my bonnet is entirely extinct. So all talk about my being a candidate or accepting if I should be nominated is foolish and should not be taken seriously. Nominate me? I would not accept. But there is not the slightest probability of my being nominated, and, in any event, I would not accept. No, not under any circumstances. I do not want that or any other civil office.

Four New States.

THE subcommittee of the House Committee on Territories which has been charged with the preparation of the "omnibus" bill to enable the Territories of Dakota, Montana, Washington, and Arizona to secure recognition as States, was busily engaged in framing that measure, says a Washington telegram. The bill provides for the election of delegates to a constitutional Convention in Dakota on the second Monday in August, for the meetings of the four conventions in September, and for the submission of the four Constitutions to the people of the four Territories on the day of the Presidential election.

The Reading Strike.

LETTERS have passed between representatives of the striking miners and the Reading managements looking to a resumption of work, and it is believed that the pits will again soon be manned. The wages question will be arbitrated after the miners return to work, and no man will be blacklisted who has been quiet and orderly during the troubles.

Two Thousand Lives Lost.

CHINESE advices are to the effect that a terrific earthquake has occurred in the province of Yunnan. Two thousand lives are reported to have been lost.

THE EASTERN STATES.

A WILKESBARRE (Pa.) special says that a new Polish Catholic Church was dedicated in Hazelton, Pa., on Sunday, and the Slavic population poured in from all sides. Nancy became drunk on pollish, a Hungarian beverage, composed of beef liver and coarse whisky. A party of them returned intoxicated to their boarding house, where they engaged in a fight, during which a lamp was knocked off a table and the house set on fire. The door was locked and the fire was put out. Nancy escaped through the windows, but the more boozified ones were roasted to death.

Following is the list: John Elias, aged 37; John Sedda, aged 37; John Kobinko, aged 35, and married; Mondy Yankowitch, aged 40; Mrs. Mary Wasilick, aged 16; Paul Sikowitz, aged 30. Martin threw her baby out of the window to save it, but it was fatally burned. Half a dozen others were badly burned.

A NEW YORK telegram says that part of the Brooklyn Elevated structure on Broadway, between Ellery and Fayette streets, Brooklyn, collapsed with fatal results. A local amusement surface car containing half a dozen people was caught under the falling mass and entirely demolished. Three men were killed outright and nine people were severely injured, two of whom are not expected to live. Four horses were killed. The accident resulted from the breaking of the sixty-foot longitudinal girder which ran the sleepers and rails are laid, and was due to carelessness.

THE WESTERN STATES.

TWO MEN were killed and four injured by the bursting of a boiler at Barnesville, Ohio.

WILLIAM BARR ING, the would-be assassin of his stepfather, Barker Dawson, has been sentenced at Chicago to eighteen months in the County Jail on his plea of guilty of an attempt to commit murder.

A dispatch of R. E. Billings, indicted for murder in the first degree for the killing of Henry Kingsley at Waverly, Iowa, who pleaded not guilty, and had a petition for a change of venue, was refused by the presiding Judge.

A Freeman (Dak.) telegram of Wednesday last reports that—

Twenty masked men, from all claiming a coal district in Minnehaha County, Dakota, broke into the jail at the Indian agency and released the prisoners, named Alonzo Holly, a negro, and Frank Lewis, a white man, who had been led into through the streets to a stone near the jail and there hanged to a telegraph pole. Lewis had watched the hanging of Holly, and seemed more than disappointed without hanged himself. The reason for which Holly was lynched was that of criminally assaulting the wife of a farmer. Lewis was charged with being an accomplice in the outrage. He was captured and jailed at Flandreau, 100 miles from the place of the crime, about 50 miles and others raided the jail with a battering ram, and hanged the men. Lewis, however, got wind of the affair and escaped from the jail and ran to the Indian agency. He was kept there until Friday last when, as he had made no attempt to aid other inmates, he was returned to Flandreau. He was a Dakota carter and had served several terms in the penitentiary.

A Denver (Colorado) dispatch announces the death of David Ross Locke, editor of the Toledo Blade, widely known as "Petroleum V. Nasby." The immediate cause of his death was consumption of the lungs. Mr. Locke was a native of New York State, and was in his fifty-first year. In his 15th year he was so enticed to the printing trade in the office of the Courtland (N. Y.) Courier. After serving his seven years he traveled through the United States, working at his trade and acting as a reporter. In 1853 he founded the Plymouth (Ohio) Advertiser, conducting it two years. In 1856 he founded the Bucyrus Journal, and afterward was successively connected with the Mansfield Herald and Findlay Jeffersonian. He was starting the latter paper when the war broke out, and in its columns appeared the first number of the renowned "Nasby" letters, the first bearing the date of April 21, 1861. These political satires spread at once into tremendous popularity. In 1865 Mr. Locke assumed charge of the Toledo Blade, first on a salary, afterward purchasing an interest, and finally entire control.

THE Illinois G. A. R. held a three days' encampment Springfield last week. The attendance was numerally large. Nearly every prominent man in the State was there, bringing with the boys in blue. Col. Sexy Morris, of Chicago, was chosen Department Commander. It was decided to meet next year in Springfield. The seventy-fourth resolution was defeated, and the dependent pension bill, now before Congress, was approved. Commander-in-Chief Fairchild was present and he thought President Cleveland would sign the latter measure. Mrs. Sarah Bradford, of Augusta, was elected President of the Woman's Relief Corps.

THE Wisconsin G. A. R. held their annual meeting at Milwaukee. There was a good attendance, and a good time generally. A. G. Wheaton, of Milwaukee, was elected Department Commander. Mrs. Charity Brink Craig, of Verona, sister of Governor Rusk, was elected President of the Woman's Relief Corps.

THE last hope of the "boodle" faded away yesterday, says a Chicago dispatch of Friday, and the counsel for the State scored a signal triumph when the Appellate Court handed down its opinion and affirmed the finding of the criminal branch of the Criminal Court. Judge Adam Ochs, Dan Wren, Mike Waterman, John E. Van Pelt, Mike Leyden, ex-County Commissioner, and Harry A. Varnell, late Warden of the Insane Asylum, down to Joliet penitentiary for two years each. The sentence of Ed McDonald, ex-Engineer of the County Hospital, and brother of Mike McDonald, was likewise affirmed, and he goes to Joliet for three years. The convicted boodlers will now have to expect a decision favorable to them, and they were sorely disappointed when they were apprised of the court's ruling.

The Chicago police are certain that they know who murdered Millionaire Snell, says a dispatch from that city.

The man under suspicion is William B. Tascott, the son of Col. James B. Tascott, the head of the J. B. Tascott Manufacturing Company. Col. Tascott has been in business in Chicago many years. His house is engaged in the sale of cigars, and his son William has been with his father in the business for many years. He is 22 years old, is married, and has a family of children. He is a fine-looking young man, of good address, and is a fast worker. He is said to be a hard-drinker and a fast young man. He is known to be in the habit of going to his place of business in the morning, and he is said to be a frequenter of the resorts of the city at night. The theory of the police is that he was shot down by a burglar while he was in the act of robbing the aged victim of his murderous shot. The police are of the opinion that the man who fired the shot was not alone, and that he had an accomplice who assisted in the murder, and so alarmed lest he might be arrested and held for complicity in the crime that he refrained from giving information to the police. The young man Tascott is said to have sought the police that he had no connection with the Snell murder, or with any other crime that was planned and executed by young Tascott. The name of this man is well known in the secret service of the United States officers at the Central Station Sunday were all parts of the well copies of the following revised circular, which gives the very latest description of the man wanted:

TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD.

DESCRIPTION OF WILLIAM B. TASCOTT, Age, Feb. 19, 1866—Look out for and arrest William B. Tascott, alias T. A. Cathright, alias Moore, alias Scott, alias Clark, the supposed murderer of A. J. Snell, who was killed on the night of Feb. 8. Twenty to 22 years of age, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, 160 pounds weight, slim build, very light complexion, light hair, light blue eyes, very fair complexion, high brown hair, thin on top of head, cut short, prominent blue eyes, small thin dark mustache, may be dyed, may have some front teeth, upper jaw, filled with gold, small mouth, small ears, small hands and feet, talks quick and low, and drawl, with silk hat, square top coat, set with garnets and pearls, gold watch, silver, May carry cane with a round gold head, engraved with "T." Is a good talker, and may be cool-headed and desperate. Has a scar from one and eight inches deep, hung by a strap over his shoulder. Claims to be a newspaper reporter. Is also said to be an expert pool-player, and may be playing pool for his expenses. Tattooed on chest his initials "W. B. T." Tattooed on arm, "Mamie." The above reward will be paid for his capture and conviction until officer with papers can arrive for him. Send all information to

JAMES H. BURNAND,
Acting General Superintendent of Police.

SHERIDAN WON'T RUN.

Satisfied with His Military Position, and Would Not Exchange It for Any Civil Office.

THE Washington agent of the Associated Press sought an interview with Gen. Sheridan on Monday for the purpose of ascertaining whether he would consent to make an authoritative statement in regard to his alleged Presidential candidacy.

"Well," said the General, "I know nothing more about this alleged 'boom' than what I have read in the papers. I think it would have some friend to look out for and see about getting a candidate. But if the matter is really now discussed seriously, I think that all parties concerned should be informed that they are wasting their time. I have once said that the Presidential bee in my bonnet is entirely extinct. So all talk about my being a candidate or accepting if I should be nominated is foolish and should not be taken seriously. Nominate me? I would not accept. But there is not the slightest probability of my being nominated, and, in any event, I would not accept. No, not under any circumstances. I do not want that or any other civil office.

Four New States.

THE subcommittee of the House Committee on Territories which has been charged with the preparation of the "omnibus" bill to enable the Territories of Dakota, Montana, Washington, and Arizona to secure recognition as States, was busily engaged in framing that measure, says a Washington telegram. The bill provides for the election of delegates to a constitutional Convention in Dakota on the second Monday in August, for the meetings of the four conventions in September, and for the submission of the four Constitutions to the people of the four Territories on the day of the Presidential election.

The Reading Strike.

LETTERS have passed between representatives of the striking miners and the Reading managements looking to a resumption of work, and it is believed that the pits will again soon be manned. The wages question will be arbitrated after the miners return to work, and no man will be blacklisted who has been quiet and orderly during the troubles.

Two Thousand Lives Lost.

CHINESE advices are to the effect that a terrific earthquake has occurred in the province of Yunnan. Two thousand lives are reported to have been lost.

THE EASTERN STATES.

A WILKESBARRE (Pa.) special says that a new Polish Catholic Church was dedicated in Hazelton, Pa., on Sunday, and the Slavic population poured in from all sides. Nancy became drunk on pollish, a Hungarian beverage, composed of beef liver and coarse whisky. A party of them returned intoxicated to their boarding house, where they engaged in a fight, during which a lamp was knocked off a table and the house set on fire. The door was locked and the fire was put out. Nancy escaped through the windows, but the more boozified ones were roasted to death.

Following is the list: John Elias, aged 37; John Sedda, aged 37; John Kobinko, aged 35, and married; Mondy Yankowitch, aged 40; Mrs. Mary Wasilick, aged 16; Paul Sikowitz, aged 30. Martin threw her baby out of the window to save it, but it was fatally burned. Half a dozen others were badly burned.

A NEW YORK telegram says that part of the Brooklyn Elevated structure on Broadway, between Ellery and Fayette streets, Brooklyn, collapsed with fatal results. A local amusement surface car containing half a dozen people was caught under the falling mass and entirely demolished. Three men were killed outright and nine people were severely injured, two of whom are not expected to live. Four horses were killed. The accident resulted from the breaking of the sixty-foot longitudinal girder which ran the sleepers and rails are laid, and was due to carelessness.

THE WESTERN STATES.

TWO MEN were killed and four injured by the bursting of a boiler at Barnesville, Ohio.

WILLIAM BARR ING, the would-be assassin of his stepfather, Barker Dawson, has been sentenced at Chicago to eighteen months in the County Jail on his plea of guilty of an attempt to commit murder.

A dispatch of R. E. Billings, indicted for murder in the first degree for the killing of Henry Kingsley at Waverly, Iowa, who pleaded not guilty, and had a petition for a change of venue, was refused by the presiding Judge.

A Freeman (Dak.) telegram of Wednesday last reports that—

Twenty masked men, from all claiming a coal district in Minnehaha County, Dakota, broke into the jail at the Indian agency and released the prisoners, named Alonzo Holly, a negro, and Frank Lewis, a white man, who had been led into through the streets to a stone near the jail and there hanged to a telegraph pole. Lewis had watched the hanging of Holly, and seemed more than disappointed without hanged himself. The reason for which Holly was lynched was that of criminally assaulting the wife of a farmer. Lewis was charged with being an accomplice in the outrage. He was captured and jailed at Flandreau, 100 miles from the place of the crime, about 50 miles and others raided the jail with a battering ram, and hanged the men. Lewis, however, got wind of the affair and escaped from the jail and ran to the Indian agency. He was kept there until Friday last when, as he had made no attempt to aid other inmates, he was returned to Flandreau. He was a Dakota carter and had served several terms in the penitentiary.

A Denver (Colorado) dispatch announces the death of David Ross Locke, editor of the Toledo Blade, widely known as "Petroleum V. Nasby." The immediate cause of his death was consumption of the lungs. Mr. Locke was a native of New York State, and was in his fifty-first year. In his 15th year he was so enticed to the printing trade in the office of the Courtland (N. Y.) Courier. After serving his seven years he traveled through the United States, working at his trade and acting as a reporter. In 1853 he founded the Plymouth (Ohio) Advertiser, conducting it two years. In 1856 he founded the Bucyrus Journal, and afterward was successively connected with the Mansfield Herald and Findlay Jeffersonian. He was starting the latter paper when the war broke out, and in its columns appeared the first number of the renowned "Nasby" letters, the first bearing the date of April 21, 1861. These political satires spread at once into tremendous popularity. In 1865 Mr. Locke assumed charge of the Toledo Blade, first on a salary, afterward purchasing an interest, and finally entire control.

THE Illinois G. A. R. held a three days' encampment Springfield last week. The attendance was numerally large. Nearly every prominent man in the State was there, bringing with the boys in blue. Col. Sexy Morris, of Chicago, was chosen Department Commander. It was decided to meet next year in Springfield. The seventy-fourth resolution was defeated, and the dependent pension bill, now before Congress, was approved. Commander-in-Chief Fairchild was present and he thought President Cleveland would sign the latter measure. Mrs. Sarah Bradford, of Augusta, was elected President of the Woman's Relief Corps.

THE Wisconsin G. A. R. held their annual meeting at Milwaukee. There was a good attendance, and a good time generally. A. G. Wheaton, of Milwaukee, was elected Department Commander. Mrs. Charity Brink Craig, of Verona, sister of Governor Rusk, was elected President of the Woman's Relief Corps.

THE last hope of the "boodle" faded away yesterday, says a Chicago dispatch of Friday, and the counsel for the State scored a signal triumph when the Appellate Court handed down its opinion and affirmed the finding of the criminal branch of the Criminal Court. Judge Adam Ochs, Dan Wren, Mike Waterman, John E. Van Pelt, Mike Leyden, ex-County Commissioner, and Harry A. Varnell, late Warden of the Insane Asylum, down to Joliet penitentiary for two years each. The sentence of Ed McDonald, ex-Engineer of the County Hospital, and brother of Mike McDonald, was likewise affirmed, and he goes to Joliet for three years. The convicted boodlers will now have to expect a decision favorable to them, and they were sorely disappointed when they were apprised of the court's ruling.

The Chicago police are certain that they know who murdered Millionaire Snell, says a dispatch from that city.

The man under suspicion is William B. Tascott, the son of Col. James B. Tascott, the head of the J. B. Tascott Manufacturing Company. Col. Tascott has been in business in Chicago many years. His house is engaged in the sale of cigars, and his son William has been with his father in the business for

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, — MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS RECORD.

A Summary of the Eventful Happenings of a Week, as Reported by Telegraph.

Political, Commercial, and Industrial News, Fires, Accidents, Crimes, Suicides, Etc., Etc.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

THE SNELL MURDER.

The Crime Fastened Upon William B. Tascott—The Murderer Still at Large.

WILLIAM B. TASCOTT, the stylish, blue-eyed young burglar who murdered AMOS J. Snell, the Washington boulevard millionaire, and sought safety in flight, has not yet been arrested, says a Chicago telegram of Monday.

He is still secure in his place of hiding. An army of spies is on his trail, and he knows wherever he may go, and will go, he will be watched and his movements reported to the police. It is alleged that he was seen in Milwaukee on Friday, and detectives have gone there to watch for him. Sunday last there was arrested in Milwaukee a man who bore a Tascott exterior, and he was kept in a guard of the outside of the Snell residence while the beautiful burglar was moving around lighting tender, and this man has made himself very obnoxious to the police. He is an Wilmette, Illinois, boulevard resident, so much damaging circumstantial evidence has already been piled up against him that he has been watched with some little care. The police have found that Tascott went to the house on Wednesday, the day before the murder, and in the guise of a gas inspector, he managed to get into the house, and, under the pretense of examining the gas fixtures, he made a careful survey of the premises. Tascott went to the house disguised as a gas inspector, and he was so well dressed and so well acquainted with the gas fixtures, that he succeeded in deceiving the servants, who let him in. He was recognized by the servants who had seen him in the house the day before, and they were positive that he was the man who had been in the house. Tascott went to the house a second time, on the night of the murder, and he admitted himself with a key which he had secured from the gas inspector, and he concealed himself in the house until the family had retired, when he began his work of robbery. He was discovered by the wife of the murdered man, who was awakened by the noise he made in his work, and she alarmed her husband, who came down stairs with a revolver, and he was met by Tascott coming out. The latter was pale and trembling. He grasped his friend by the throat, and, before he could realize what he was about, he had shot him through the heart, and, as he fired, he felt a sharp pain in his side, and he knew that he had been stabbed. He ran out of the house, and, as he ran, he fired two shots at his pursuer, who was then in the second story of the house, and he was sure that one of his shots had taken effect. He ran to his home, which is only a few blocks from the house of his victim, and he told his story to his father and mother. He said that he was pursued by a man who had shot at him, and he was sure that he had killed his pursuer. He said that he was stabbed in the side by a man who had attempted to arrest him, and he was sure that he had killed his assailant. He said that he was pursued by a man who had shot at

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. J. GRIER, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THE National Democratic convention is to be held at St. Louis, June 5.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW is an excellent railroad man perhaps, but the road to the White House is not a railroad he will find.

JUDGING from the number of republican candidates alone, the next president of the United States will be a democrat.

THE Chicago News, which is independent in politics, and has the largest circulation of any paper in the city, says that the west and northwest are going to be full of just such surprises for the republican party this year as the unwelcome one given them from the Eleventh district of Michigan, and thinks they may as well get their nerves in trim to with stand the rude shocks which are coming. "Something will have to be done," says the News, "for the grand old party's load of hay has tipped over, and the grand old party itself is under the load."

THE secretary of the state board of health has issued a bulletin stating that smallpox has been reported since January first, in Connecticut, New York, Delaware, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, California, Tennessee and Louisiana, and urging that if the people keep thoroughly protected by vaccination and re-vaccination, no epidemic of the disease will occur. It is to be hoped however, no one in Michigan will be so simple as to run the risk of spreading other diseases by indulging in that old, filthy, barbarous and worthless practice of vaccination.

Our Cotton and Woolen Industries.

Chairman Mills, in a speech at Providence, said: In cotton manufactures you excel the world, and you can do the same in wool. A good many of you have wool over your eyes instead of on your backs. A good many think that American wool is the wool, and that if the government will keep other wool out of this country, there will be of more value. Wool differs in gloss, length, and fiber, and you have got to have all these wools to manufacture goods that meet the needs of the people. Those who are trying to keep foreign wool out of this country forget that we raise but 265,000,000 pounds of wool, where 600,000,000 pounds of wool are needed to clothe the people against the rigorous weather of this country. You are trying to keep the wool from the poor, but it will come and the other fellows will reap the benefit of it. The woolen men of this country have been coming to us and asking for free wool. The first wool tariff was in 1824. Prior to that we had free wool. Our forefathers had greater heads than we have, and they knew when the country was well off. In 1824 the wool tariff was to foster the "infant business" and now, after sixty years, the infant is "mewling and puking in its nurse's arms."

The Sugar Trust.

The object of the sugar trust as explained by the president of that wicked monopoly, is to increase the price to consumers, decrease the amount produced, and lower the price of the raw sugar before being refined. That's just the object of all trusts. Increase the cost to the consumer and cut down the cost of production, and a double action arrangement to grind the laboring masses into the earth. And yet many of the poor deluded creatures will support a high protective tariff, the fostering mother of all trusts and monopolies.—Menominee Democrat.

Utah's Folly.

Utah continues to knock at the door of the Union. She will probably continue her nonsense until Uncle Sam comes out and kicks her off the stops.—Philadelphia Press.

An Electrical Stratagem.

When the electric telegraph was first introduced into Chili, a stratagem was resorted to in order to guard the posts and wires against damage on the part of the Araucanian Indians and maintain the connection between the strongholds on the frontier. There were at the time between forty and fifty captive Indians in the Chilian camp. Gen. Pinto called them together, and, pointing to the telegraph wires, he said: "Do you see those wires?" "Yes, general." "Very good. I want you to remember not to go near nor touch them; for if you do your hands will be held and you will be unable to get away." The Indians smiled incredulously.

Then the general made them each in succession take hold of the wires at both ends of an electric battery in full operation. After which he exclaimed: "I command you to let go the wire!" "I can't; my hands are benumbed," said the Indian. The battery was then stopped and the man released. Not long afterward the general restored them to liberty, giving them strict injunctions to keep the secret, and not to betray it to their countrymen on any account. This had the desired effect, for, as might be expected, the experiment was related "in the strictest confidence" to every man of the tribe, and the telegraph has ever since remained unmolested.—Electrical Review.

A Journalist's Note Book.

In regard to subjects, I have found it a very wholesome and inexpensive plan to carry a little note book around in my pocket. You will find this a very worthy friend. Set apart a pocket sacredly to its use, and always have it there. If you wake up at a quarter of 9, and have to be at the office at 8, and must needs economize on your dressing time, just let your suspenders and collar buttons go, but be sure to have the book. Don't leave your room without it.

Into this book put every odd, whimsical or suggestive thing that you run across, whether you see it, hear it, read it, or whether it comes popping into your head without apparent cause or reason. You'll soon find that you have subjects enough to last the whole family for six months. Then all you have to do, when you feel the divine afflatus creeping down your spine, and hear the inviting murmur of the muse, is to seize your book, run your finger down its pages till you find a theme to suit your mood—humorous, religious, philosophical or Walt Whitmanical, as the case may be, and then, putting your best foot forward, follow it up with equally good feet till the thing is done. You will find, by adopting this plan and putting in your odd moments, that an evening or two, you can average one or two pieces of rather so-so verse every week.—John P. Lyons in The Writer.

A Banking Trial.

It's the hardest thing in all legal practice to convict a banking criminal. While the jury may be convinced that he's a rascal and deserves conviction, there are so many ways in which every questionable banking transaction may be made to look business like that the attorneys of the swindling defendant can easily make it appear to a conscientious jury that there is at least a reasonable doubt in the case, and the prisoner goes free. It is difficult, too, to make a jury understand the points in a banking case. The clearing house is the greatest puzzler of all.

In one banking trial I had I put a St. Louis banker on the stand to explain the clearing house system to the jury, and although he did it in what might have appeared to bankers a most lucid manner, yet never saw twelve men more muddled than these jurymen were when he finished. That trial, by the way, was one of those in which the criminal escaped. After hard work, I convicted the man on five counts, but the supreme court saved him by deciding that the law he had violated did not apply to private banks.—Bank Attorney in Globe-Democrat.

Whites on the Congo.

The engineer on the Congo who has been writing his experiences in Blackwood's Magazine assures his readers that with ordinary good care white men can live there at least as conveniently and in as good health as in Jamaica, and he expresses the opinion that when they have more home comforts they may enjoy life with as much ease and safety as now in India. The white men on the Congo within the past two years have become convinced that the great mortality during the early years of Stanley's enterprise was largely due to the privations and hardships that his followers had to undergo. It is a noteworthy fact that at Boma, on the lower Congo, which Stanley years ago described as a pest hole, the sanitary condition has been so far improved that it is now the seat of government of the Congo state. Among the thirty or forty traders and agents of the Congo state who are living at Boma, not a death has thus far been reported this year.—New York Sun.

Switzerland's Milch Cows.

Switzerland has 660,000 milch cows, all of native breed, and divided into two sharply defined races, the brown and the spotted. The former color varies from deep fawn to mouse gray, the latter invariably being held in the most esteem. The brown race is short horned and considered as the original type. It corresponds to the remains found on the sites of the Roman cities of the Third century of our era. The skulls of this race, furthermore, are identical with those found in the Swiss lake dwellings. The spotted race, peculiar to Berne and Fribourg, is believed to be of Scandinavian origin. From the milking point of view there is not very much difference between either race. The average daily yield is about two gallons, or twelve gallons per 112 pounds of live weight. The percentage of butter to the milk varies from 2 3-4 to 4 3-4 per cent.—Chicago Times.

A Hohenzollern Statute.

According to its family statutes, no member of the house of Hohenzollern is to undergo an operation dangerous to life, save on the battlefield or under like urgent circumstances, without the formal consent of the king of Prussia for the time being and his ministry of state. This is the reason of the state council which was held at Berlin to consider the case of the crown prince, at which the prince regent of Brunswick and the grand duke of Baden were present, Count Stolberg-Wernigerode, minister of the household, presiding. The Emperor William and Prince Bismarck have, of course, requested the crown prince to act as he pleases.—New York Tribune.

The "Maple Sugar Man."

The "maple sugar man" is a character welcomed in the offices of many down town business men. With his marketing basket of five cent cakes of sugar on his arm he travels from office to office tickling the sweet tooth of many a weary clerk and employer. His sales aggregate $50 to $60 daily in the busy season. He orders sugar from Vermont by the ton and car load.—New York Tribune.

Eye Shade for Night Work.

A good thing for those who write much is an eye shade. The one I use is made like a cap visor of light pasteboard covered with black silk. Strings are attached to the points for tying around the head. Do not use rubber, unless you want a headache. This is better than a lamp shade for night work.—"B. H. A." in The Writer.

A resident of India has discovered a tree which is really a weeping curtain. For ten days in spring drops of water fall from the tree, which do not appear to interfere with its natural vigor.

MICHIGAN MENTION.

Sundry Gleanings From Our State Exchanges.

Central Lake has no public hall sufficient for even a magic lantern show.

Charlotte is about to sink a gas well, claiming to possess strong indications of success.

The Big Rapids Herald has another libel suit on its hands, and this time the damages are alleged at $50,000, and James Donovan is plaintiff.

Lansing capitalists have organized the Lansing, St. John's, & Northern railroad company, to build a road from Lansing to Ithaca, Gratiot county, and possibly farther north.

The Gale manufacturing company has decided to move its works from Albion to a more advantageous location, and a number of the cities in the southern part of the state are bidding for it.

The general executive committee of the Knights of Labor at their meeting at Philadelphia recently assigned the members to various parts of the country for the purposes of furthering the interests of the order. Michigan comes under the supervision of Grand Master Workman Powderly.

"The Northern Michigan Gas, Oil, and Mineral Co. (Limited) is a corporation created by some of the substantial business men of Petoskey last week. The mission of this corporation is an exploring expedition of several hundred feet under ground in the vicinity of Petoskey in search of gas or other mineral wealth.

At the institution for the deaf and dumb at Flint, the inmates are called by beating a drum. With the drum resting on the floor and beaten in the usual way, everybody in the building is awakened in the morning. It is also used to call the boys from the playgrounds. The teachers state that those who cannot hear at all feel the vibrations and answer the summons.

A special from Cadillac to the Grand Rapids Democrat says: The locomotive, E. C. Cummer of the C. & N. R. railroad, named in honor of her late victim, has been retired to the round house, never more to be steamed up, but to be kept as a memorial of the evil she has done. Her career has been so disastrous that she has not been sounded since that sad affair.

Andrew J. Blackbird, an Indian chief at Harbor Springs, Mich., has written a book on the traditional history of the Ottawa and Chippewa tribes. The author is a son of Blackhawk, and was a student at the normal school at Ypsilanti 20 years ago. The book contains a grammer of the Indian language, and dates back to the early settlement of the whites in this country.—Evening News.

At Lansing last Wednesday the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., of Michigan elected the following officers: Grand Master, George M. Dewey, Owosso; Deputy Grand Master, D. W. Croton, Charlevoix; Secretary, E. H. Whitney, Lansing; Treasurer, B. D. Pritchard, Allegan; Grand Warden, Charles H. Haskins, Jackson. The Grand Secretary reports a gain of 1,100 members; total membership, 18,404; amount paid for relief of brothers and widowed families, $15,000; for burial and benefits, $5,300; charity, $4,300; cash in treasury, $10,000.

STRAY JOKES.

If this country should ever become involved in a war with England a good many of our young naval officers will know what it is to be sea sick.—The Epoch.

A western paper says that some educationalists are questioning the usefulness of Vassar college. Against them are arrayed in one solid mass the gum manufacturers of the country.—Rochester Post-Express.

"I shouldn't care to marry a woman who knows more than I do," he remarked. "Oh, Mr. De Bapsy," she replied with a coquettish shake of her fan, "I am afraid you are a confirmed bachelor."—The Epoch.

Mistress—I am glad to see that you enjoy sleeping so much. You seem to make a business of it. Bridget—Enjoy it, shape, is it? How could I, I'd like you to tell me. The minit I lay down I'm asleep, an' the minit I'm awake I have to get up. Where's the time for enjoyin' it to come in?—Philadelphia Call.

The famous trotter Dexter is 29 years old. A sort of a horse chestnut, as it were.—Washington Critic.

"Your bill has been running a long time," insinuatingly remarked the butcher to Sipsey the other morning. "That's bad," replied Sipsey, sympathetically. "Why don't you let it waitf"—Washington Critic.

Never employ a doctor who is on speaking terms with an undertaker.—Washington Critic.

Old Men for Council.

Youthful Active Partner—Well, you told me to sell everything for what I could get, and take trade where I couldn't get cash.

Aged Silent Partner—Yes, it seemed the only way to stave off bankruptcy. What is the result?

"Two thousand dollars in cash, one ton of second hand overshoes and five tons of gutta-percha."

"That's all right. We'll start a gum drop factory."—Omaha World.

Scribner's Magazine.

The March number of this excellent magazine presents the following table of contents:

Rancher Uncovered at Lisco. Frontispiece. Drawn by R. F. Zogbaum. Engraved by Peckwell.

The Campaign of Waterloo—I. By John C. Ropes. With illustrations by E. F. Zogbaum and others, and from drawings made on the field by W. T. Smedley. Also with reproductions of old prints and a map furnished by the author.

The Yellow Elms. By Bessie Chandler.

The Niaie. By Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson.

A Shelf of Old Books—Leigh Hunt. By Mrs. James T. Fields. Illustrated with drawings, portraits, and facsimiles.

The Electric Motor and its Applications. By Franklin Leonard Pope. With illustrations.

Natural Selection—A Romance of Chelsea Village and East Hampton Town. In three parts. Part III. (Conclusion.) By H. C. Bunner. With illustrations.

Storm and Calm. By C. P. Cranch.

Mendelssohn's Letters to Moscheles—From the Manuscripts in the Possession of Felix Moscheles—II. (Conclusion.) By William F. Apthorp. With portraits, reproductions of drawings, musical scores, etc.

The Bar of the Cyclone. By Octave Thanet.

Ashcake. By Thomas Nelson Page.

First Harvest—Chapters XIII-X. (To be continued.) By F. J. Stimson.

The Tragedy—Song. By Charles Edwin Markham.

Beggars. By Robert Louis Stevenson.

Wide Awake for March.

The March number of Wide Awake has a short war-story less than two pages long so good—so are all—so ready to say about it that it never was so perfect a little bit of a story. Two little children go between the two hostile bands of soldiers just as they came together. After the scrimmage, the mother comes out in search of them, all the men there were left began to hunt for them. How they found them and carried them home is the story. We shall not spoil it by telling.

Sidney Lanier's story "My Uncle Florimond" takes little Gregory two or three years along in his quest New York life. He is going to school and getting ashamed of the kind old Jew, who is going to make a man of him.

Mrs. Sherwood's party of girls are at Newport. Her story is how to be have at such places.

Miss Seward's paper is on life in Java, a coaching party.

There are many stories and sketches and pleasant bits of verse and pictures. Altogether Wide Awake is as good as it can be. $240 a year; 20 cents a number at your news-stand. In this number is announced a series of ninety-four prizes for contributions suitable for publication in WIDE AWAKE. The contribution may be an essay, story, anecdote, poem, or humorous trifle. In total these prizes foot up $2,000. You can get a back number by sending five cents to D. Lothrop Company, Boston.

Stock Growers

All agree that for general use in cattle, sheep, horses, hogs, a better calculated to give satisfactory results than those prepared by E. M. Parmelee, because they really do contain the valuable remedies claimed, and do not fail to act quickly and effectively in Coughs, Colds, Epizootic, Bad Blood, Stoppage of Water, and Poor Digestion, &c., in horses. For Cattle, Hogs, Sheep, Poultry, they are invaluable. Pail pounds only 35 cents. Sold by G. W. Beaman. sm

Look at the date on the label of this paper, and see if you owe the printer. If you do, come and see us. If the slip does not show a credit the week following payment, please notify us at once, that the omission may be corrected.

As I am the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods House in Charvleoix county, and having lived here for the past twenty years, I think I know pretty well what this trade needs, and you will always find my line complete. In Trunks and Valises, Gloves and Mittens, Neck Wear, Silk Handkerchiefs, and Mufflers, I am headquarters for Presents.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Come and see me.

GEO. W. MILLER.

We have now one nice Thoroughbred BULL CALF, six months old. He is a dandy. Also, several Grade Calves, of both sexes, ready to sing about. Come and see them. It will do anyone good to look over our Stock. MILK, BUTTER, AND VEGETABLES FOR SALE.

J. S. & J. R. DIXON, Terrace Farm, Charlevoix.

Dry Goods!

The only exclusive stock of DRY GOODS in Charlevoix, at the corner of Bridge and Main Streets.

GRAND CLOSING OUT SALE of LADIES' WRAPS AND JACKETS AT COST.

Corner of Bridge and Main Streets. B. SEE.

DO YOU WANT

PURE DRUGS

Or Carefully Compounded Prescriptions,

CALL ON US.

DO YOU SMOKE? We Keep the Best Cigars.

DO YOU LIKE MUSIC? We will take pleasure in showing our well-selected Stock?

Yours Respectfully,

F. A. COCHRAN & CO.,

Druggists and Pharmacists,

Opera Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

S. & I. 1888 S. & I.

You will need something in our line during 1888. Do not fail to buy of us. You will SAVE YOUR DOLLARS by so doing.

We keep Saws, Axes, Files, and Tools of all kinds. Then you may want a New Stove. If you do, you miss it if you don't get one of ours. A majority, a large majority, of the stoves of the county will tell you. We've got their names, and can refer direct to them. The Champion Pumps, too; what a splendid record they have, working easily and quickly.

Come and see us; if you want anything, BUY OF US. Yours in the belief that we will not fail to please you.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

A HOME FREE

Two and One-Fourth Acres of Land. Less than Three-Fourths of a Mile from Village, to be GIVEN AWAY.

Every person paying Five Dollars in CASH for goods or on account at our store will receive a number which will give one chance to obtain the prize.

One number, between 1 and 1,000, will be sealed in an envelope, and deposited in the bank, and will not be opened until all the numbers are given out. After the 1,000 numbers are given out, the sealed number will be opened, and the person holding the ticket calling for that number will receive a deed of the above premises.

A general stock of GROCERIES on hand.

A. J. MUDGE & SON,

Cor. Antrim and Grant Streets, Charlevoix.

F. E. WOOD,

BARBER SHOP

And Bath Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day and evening.

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in the Profundity of Ocean, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who read this will probably learn of a fact that, while living at home should at once send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either sex of all ages can earn from $5 to $25 daily and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Expensive outfit and a start. Some have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed. sdn

PATENTS.

FRED W. CROCKER,

Counselor at Law & Solicitor of Patents,

ROOM 32, 234 BROADWAY,

New York, N. Y.

"I'm Just Going Down to the Gate" and $6 of Sheet Music, Sent, post-paid, for ONLY FOUR CENTS. Stamps taken. AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO. 8560 Fairmount Ave., Philadelphia Pa.

Bargains

IN

BOOTS & SHOES

The LARGEST and BEST STOCK in Charlevoix County. Don't buy until you see our Goods and get our Prices.

FOX & MILLER

THE ATKINS SAWS

NEW PERFECTION AXES

Round Oak Stoves.

Job and Tin Work.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

THE JOURNAL

Charlevoix, Mich., March 1, 1888.

Local Notes and News.

Old papers five cents a dozen.

Two more cigar-makers arrived last Friday.

Circuit court is in session at Boyne this week.

Long-year sleigh-rides are quite popular now.

O. W. Smith opened the banana season last Friday.

For first-class blacksmithing go to J. W. Kirby's. ztyl

Perry Weed has put in a full line of legal blanks.

Perry Weed is carrying a large assortment of legal blanks.

Gallon oil cans only 25 cents, at L. D. Bartholomew & Co's

For legal blanks of all kinds, go to Perry Weed's book-store.

East Jordan expects to have three new stores by the middle of May.

Five of F. D. Phillip's force yesterday made 2,040 hat-band sizes.

It is reported that Dan Jerrue is going a season in Los Angeles, Cal.

F. D. Phillips and D. S. Way exchanged places of business last Friday.

There is but a mile of ice in sight, in lake Michigan. Beyond, is open water.

The Palmiter Bros. new mill at East Jordan, commenced operations last week.

Twenty-eight counties in the lower peninsula have decided in favor of prohibition.

W. J. McGeagh is rejoicing in an upward tendency in the price of broom handles.

Don't fail to read about A. T. Washburne & Co.'s big remnant sale in another column.

The total vote on local option was 890. Against the manufacture and sale, 763; for, 127.

Ten cords of three-foot wood wanted, to be delivered in March. Inquire at this office.

Get kindling-wood at the shingle-mill. Delivered for 75 cents per cord. Telephone, No. 22.

V. F. Thurston organized a lodge of I. O. G. T. at Clarion last Saturday of about forty members.

E. B. Hodge & Co. will sell horse blankets and sleigh bells at cost until they close out their stock.

Capt. Geo. Madison has sold his interest in the harness shop of E. B. Hodge & Co. to R. S. Shapton.

If you want to pay part of the cost of a new organ with green wood, call at this office for particulars.

S. M. See & Sons now have their stock of furniture placed in their new and commodious store opposite opera block.

Our farmer friends will be interested in J. S. & J. R. Dixon's announcement concerning thoroughbred cattle.

Building operations the coming season will include two churches and several residences which are already being planned for.

The shingle-mill was idle most of last week for want of logs. They want all that can be got, and are ready to pay the cash.

Some monstrous loads of logs are going into Nicholls' yard now. One load of eleven large logs passed this office last evening.

Fred Watson starts his lathe this week, with 1,000 dozen potato-markers in the mail. No doubt plenty of orders will soon follow.

Fine comb and extracted honey, gilt edge Florida oranges and Port Lyman bananas at the Special store of O. W. Smith.

Anyone wishing work done by Dr. N. J. Perry, will please call soon, as he is likely to be called away again at any time to be absent a month or more.

D. C. Loveday has sold his vacant lot just south of the Commercial house, East Jordan to Harry Branch, who will erect a brick building thereon during the coming season.

The building opposite O. W. Smith's fruit store, formerly occupied by Mrs. Stewart's lunch room, was removed last Friday. Probably a part of Smith's scheme for a central market.

Look out for bogus $5 and $10 silver certificates. They are of the series of 1880, with a picture of Robert Morris on the face. The paper is soft and spongy, the words "engraved" and "printed at the bureau of engraving and printing" are omitted from the right end of the bill's face. The word "receivable" is spelled "receivable," "reissue" is spelled "reissued." The check letter in the upper left hand corner is omitted.

Give your friends in other states an idea of Charlevoix village and county, by sending one or more copies of our holiday supplement. A few copies on hand, at five cents each or fifty cents a dozen.

As F. D. Phillips' cigars become known, his sales are not confined to the Grand Traverse region, but he is shipping to Chicago, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Bay City, and a number of points in the upper peninsula.

Many of our exchanges are taking a step in the right direction, in their endeavors to impress upon the general public the fact that the advertising columns of a newspaper represent a cash value. No newspaper can afford to give advertising or notices free any more than a merchant can toss over his counters free gifts of groceries or shoes.

The board of directors of the Charlevoix county agricultural society will hold a special meeting on March 5th, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the secretary's office in East Jordan, for the purpose of arranging matters for the fall fair of 1888; also to transact such other business as may come before the meeting. Any members of the society having suggestions to the benefit of the society and cannot be present at this meeting are requested to forward them in writing to the secretary.

In the distribution of political honors in Michigan during the past few years, Charlevoix has not been wholly forgotten, but rather has been quite fortunate. This year we are represented (not political, however) in both bodies of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows, A. D. Cruickshank having been elected (as heretofore announced) to the office of grand senior warden of the grand encampment of patriarchs, at the session at Battle Creek, and Dr. G. W. Crouter to the office of deputy grand master of the grand lodge of Michigan, at Lansing, and these gentlemen will not fail to advertise Charlevoix thoroughly and properly whenever on business pertaining to the order.

Here is an item from the Petoskey Independent which may help to prepare the minds of prohibitionists for the business they have in hand beginning with next May: "The practical workings of the local option law are illustrated by a case at Alanson. We have been shown affidavits stating a certain man there with violating the liquor law, and the attention of both the prosecuting attorney and the editor of the Petoskey Record has been called to the facts. But no steps have been taken to punish the offense from the fact that no one has made a complaint. And after the people vote to tax themselves five thousand dollars for the benefit of the saloon men, that is the way it will be all over the country inside of a year."

The people of this county have declared emphatically for prohibition. They recognize the fact that the open saloon means ruin, more or less complete, to a certain percentage of the boys and young men of the community. The chronic soakers alone cannot sustain the saloon. They get used up, and of no good to the whiskey seller. As they are swept off into the jails and graveyards, a new supply must come from somewhere, or the saloons must close for lack of custom. Where do they come from? The homes of our community must supply the grist—so many bright boys every year—to keep the mills running. As the bums and vags are swept out of the tail race into the gutter, the boys are drawn in above, and homes are more sorrowful than they would be had death entered them. We have said by our ballots that the saloons must go now let us see to it that they do go.—Enterprise.

"Charlevoix shingle men are having their shingles to Petoskey and shipping them by rail. We are glad they come but are liberal enough to hope they will have a railroad of their own next winter.—Ind.-Democrat. We think the local editor was misled in the above. The shingles which have been shipped from here for several weeks past were manufactured in Charlevoix county, but in Springvale township, south-east from here, by the Fell mill, which was removed from Petoskey a few months since.—Record. We were not misled in regard to our statement. It is true shingles are being hauled from Springvale township and other minor points to Petoskey for shipment, but it is also true, that fifteen car-loads of shingles will be hauled from the mills at Charlevoix to Petoskey. One of the mill men was in Petoskey only a few days ago, and secured ground

Boyne

Feb. 28.—Winter again. Eleven degrees below zero last night and only three above to-day at noon.

T. J. Hill is daily expected home from his trip to Arizona and California.

A. B. Goucher has returned from Calhoun county, where he was called a week ago by the sudden death of his father.

Miss Mattie Messenger who has been spending the winter with her sisters, Mrs. E. F. Allen and Mrs. W. A. Norton, left for her home at Grand Ledge last Tuesday.

Oscar Smith, son of Frank Smith died on Wednesday night. He had suffered for some years from occasional sick spells, consequent to a severe attack of diptheria. Funeral services were held by the Rev. J. Burdge at the M. E. Church, on Friday Feb. 24th.

Charles Shaub, who started on Monday to convey his father's remains to Wisconsin, returned home Thursday afternoon.

Willie Hill left Tuesday to visit friends in Eagle, Clinton county.

Amasa G. Davis, of this place and Bertha Wagerman of Boyne Falls were married at the latter place on Sunday, Feb. 19.

Samuel Ward, who lived three miles northeast of Boyne City died Sunday, Feb. 26th, after a short illness, of lung fever.

The L. M. D. society of Boyne gave their first public entertainment on Thursday evening at Lewis' hall to a full house. The audience expressed themselves pleased with the program, and pronounced the work well done.

Court sets to-day.

P. F. McIntire and wife started for Kansas this morning on a visit to his brother to be gone two or three weeks

Eveline.

Ironton, Feb. 28.—Spring-like weather last week.

There is to be a hop at Chas. Bedwin's to morrow evening, March 2d. There will be a supper, a large crowd and a good time, we predict.

Homer McKee, while chopping last Thursday, cut a gash over his right eye. Had it struck a little lower it would have ruined his eye entirely.

Mead Benson made a flying trip to Charlevoix Saturday.

A team broke through the ice on the Arm last week, but got out without much damage.

A letter from northern Ohio states that the mud is, oh, so deep. We prefer the beautiful.

Hayes.

PLAGGES, Feb. 28.—Last Tuesday Mrs. Geo. Scott was called to attend the bedside of her mother who is very sick. She resides in Kent county, a short distance from Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Bartlett, of Charlevoix was visiting friends in Hayes last week.

Chas Hale started for the southern part of the state last Friday.

Mr. Blythe has leased Dr. Lewis' farm and intends to move on it this week.

There is notice of a special meeting in district No. 4, to make arrangements for building a school house, to replace the one that was burned.

There was such a small vote cast on the prohibition question that it was not considered of enough importance to report it; 26 in favor and 6 against.

Historical Society.

A choice program was rendered by the society at the parlors of Levi Blanchard last Friday evening as follows: Instrumental solo by Miss Luna Washburne; select reading by Mrs. Downs; paper, "The Reign of James I," by Byron See; conversation on "Fortunes of Nigel" by O. S. Washburn and Miss Flora Nelson; vocal solo by Miss Gray; select reading by Mrs. Enos; instrumental solo by Miss Carrie Hilton. This week the society will meet with H. Lee Iddings. The paper by J. A. Carlstein will be on "Charles I." The conversation on "Woodstock" will be lead by W. A. Brown and Miss Esther Buttars.

Barnard.

Feb. 27.—Six below zero here this morning.

Mr. Will Burns went to Reed City last week to see about homestead land.

Mr. Cummings has timber out for a new barn.

The surprise party at Mr. Harkness' on the evening of the 22d was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Roach, of Torch Lake was in the neighborhood last week.

Two families arrived from Canada recently.

Havana as a Health Resort.

Havana, Cuba, is growing in popularity each winter as a health and pleasure resort for Americans. The present hotel accommodations are not very desirable, and it is said that a first class building of large dimensions and elegant appointments will be erected by a company now being formed in New York for that purpose. The plans call for a five story building 166x240 feet, entirely fireproof.—Boston Budget.

IN WYOMING TERRITORY.

Why It Has Waned as a Cattle Country. The English Dudes.

Three years ago Wyoming territory stood next to Texas as a cattle country. Fortunes were made fast in the business, and a Wyoming cattle man was always another name for a man who was a millionaire, or who would be one inside of two years. Why two years ago you could't throw a stone in Cheyenne without hitting a rich man. Today you would have to look around a spell to find one. The cattlemen made stock companies out of their herds and sold the stock at fancy prices, I reckon. It was understood in the east that the dividends were enormous, and in order to meet the expenses and the demands for dividends these companies were, in many instances, obliged to sell all of their cattle down to yearlings, when they shouldn't have been sent to the market until they were 4-year-olds. That comes about as near to killing the goose that lays the golden eggs as anything can in these times.

Then the cattlemen began to fence in the earth. Government land was acquired by every pretence possible under the laws, and other land was fenced—just taking you know. A lot of eastern fellows and English dudes came in, drew big salaries from the cattle companies and cut a big dash. It actually got to be a common sight to see one of those awkward chaps riding a lobtailed horse, with a little English saddle, and rigged up with white topped boots, a whip handle without a lash, and all the fixings and trappings of regular British swells. They paralyzed the cowboys and old timers with amazement at first, but we got used to it after a time and just let them go it. Inside of two years Cheyenne became the most English town in the United States. The tenderfeet cattlemen cut a wide swath, too. There was a few of them, I reckon. They elected the society of the Englishmen, built fine residences off in one corner of the city, and put on more style than a pilgrim eating pie with a fork.

The crash came last summer, and the thing isn't over with yet. The Swans, who were about the biggest cattlemen of the United States, sold out to an English syndicate for $2,000,000, and failed last summer. It has come the hardest on the old timers, the men who settled in the country in the early days and worked up. These were plain sort of men, and were led on by the dash and brilliancy of the new comers. Some of them were badly punched, and everybody is sorry for them.—Chicago Mail.

Didn't Consider It Polite.

Florence is a very pretty little girl, also precious. As well as being one of the chief members in her father's church, called one day, and said to her brother, "You have one, don't you, Wilson?" and the truthful little fellow reluctantly said, "Yes."

"Oh, yes; I am sure you must love me a little, don't you?"

The poor child faltered out that "nobody could love her when she was a cross old woman."

In great indignation she turned to Florence, and asked her the same question, and that young lady ran to her, hugged and kissed her, and said she loved her as hard as she could.

Wilson looked on in amazement, and when Mrs. Irish was gone, said, "Zizzie, you are truly force ful!" and the 4-year-old sister replied, "Course I don't; I think she is a horrid old woman; but I didn't p'lite to tell her so."

"But, Zizzie, you told a bad story."

"Don't care if I did; I was a little lady."—Harper's Magazine.

Geo. W. Beaman,

(Successor to G. W. CROUTER.)

DRUGS AND STATIONERY

Charlevoix, - - Michigan.

Get your neighbor to subscribe for the JOURNAL.

A BIG REMNANT SALE

FOR TWO WEEKS,

To Clear Up, Preparatory to Invoicing.

Our 1-4 Sale has left us lots of Remnants in Everything. Dress Goods Trimmings, Satine, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Pants Cloths, Odd Corsets, Wool Hosiery, &c., &c. COME AND GET SOMETHING USEFUL during our Remnant Sale, at about 1-2 price. We want to clear up for new goods. We have $2,500 in Spring Fancies to be here very soon, so that all can have a chance to make up light goods in time for summer. Thanking all for the liberal patronage, we remain very truly yours,

A. T. WASHBURNE & CO.

March Butterick's Paper Patterns and Fashions now Ready.

Coming Events.

The regular communion service will be held at the Congregational church Sunday morning. Subject of sermon "The cup of Salvation." In the evening the discourse will be to the young people: "Let no man despise the Youth."

Get your neighbor to subscribe for the JOURNAL.

THE STRICKEN PRINCE.

A Biography of Frederick William, Heir to the German Throne.

Incidents of His Happy Marriage to Princess Victoria.

Grief at the Death of an Idolized Son—Gallant Military Record.

THE HEIR of world's interests and sympathies seems to have hung up on the life of a single individual. This time it is the Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany who is stricken down by a disease which all men know must at last end in death. How long before the end comes, that we know not. Till it does, the bulletins from San Remo will be awaited with that cruel expectancy with which we are so familiar since the sad days that brought about the end of the great life on the heights of Mount Medregor. The two causes are very similar. The one, a ruler by heredity, the other by selection; both soldiers modest and brave, both stricken with the same dread disease—cancer of the throat. Both led great armies to many battles; both were silent, thoughtful men, both honored for their greatness of character, their magnanimity in victory, their lovable ness in private life. In both cases medical science seems to be quite incapable of arresting the ravages of the terrible malady. Even nature herself has no remedy, and the unfortunate human being stricken by it has simply to wait for

THE CROWN PRINCE—THE NEXT EMPEROR

death. In the case of the Crown Prince, the doctors disagree as to how long they think the illustrous sufferer may live. Dr., now Sir Morell Mackenzie, believes he may live from eighteen months to two years, while Drs. Schroeter and Howell think he may last for four or five years. But all agree that the disease is incurable. The Prince received his death warrant calmly. "I thank you, sir, for being so frank with me," he said to Mackenzie, when he heard the sentence. Prince Hohenzollern, death comes to him early. He was born on the 18th of October, 1831, in the New Palace at Potsdam, and he is therefore in his 57th year. As a boy he was sickly, and his life was often despaired of, but he grew up to be strong and manly, and his life's wars that were necessary to bring the empire into existence, at present the position in the world. In the hearts of millions there is a warm response to the words of the aged Kaiser reported by cable: "May this heavy affliction upon my house and our fatherland soon pass away through God's omnipotence and grace."

The Crown Prince's present visit to Italy is in great contrast to his former sojourns in the land of sunshine. He has paid more visits to that country than any German ruler since the days of the Hohenstaufen Fredericks, which, however, generally crossed the Alps for the purpose of conquest by force of arms. Pegli was the favo rite place of sojourn for the Prince and his family. He was also fond of Portosino, on the Riveria di Levante, a quiet idyllic hamlet to which he took a great fancy, and spent several summers there in a house built by Lord Carnarvon—a model villa of two stories high, but commanding a beautiful view extending to the Gulf of Rapallo, Camogli, Sestri-Levante, and in clear days to the harbor of Spezia. There he lived a calm, contemplative life in the midst of his family more like an artist than a prince. Among the simple fishermen he was a great favorite. They could hardly believe their senses, however, seeing this quiet, diffinified man, the son of one of the greatest potentates of Europe, wandering around like a common mortal, sunning a short pipe, climbing over the rocks with his children on the sea shore, rowing about on the water in a small boat, or taking moonlight walks in the garden of his house or under the trees that surrounded it. "Look you, the Crown Prince said to Herr Bamberg, who visited him there, "I have never felt better and happier than I do here. This solitaryness soothes and strengthens me." As a matter of fact, the Prince was always happiest away from Berlin, and there is reason to fear that his present malady has been developed earlier than might have been the case by the unpleasant state of affairs at the Berlin court, just as the unfortunate business affairs were of influence in hastening the death of General Grant by the same disease. A gentleman who attended one of the court balls in Berlin, a year ago, said: "The Crown Prince, who is now close on to 57 years of age, has considerably aged during the past two or three years. His look has lost the bright merry twinkle which was formerly its distinguishing feature, and his whole aspect bears traces of worry, annoyance and anxiety." He certainly has up to the present had anything but a pleasant time in Berlin. He has never been able to agree with Prince Bismarck and his policy, and is not in sympathy with the military party at the court, which knows that with his coming to power, he would devote more attention to the commercial, intellectual and artistic development of the empire, and to endeavor to relieve the country as much as possible from the present burden of militarism. Not that he would weaken the strength of the empire, but he certainly would strive to bring Germany more into harmony with the progressive spirit of the nineteenth century. Hitherto, with the exception of the brief time in which he was made regent, after Nobling's attempt upon the life of the kaiser, he has been kept as much as possible in the dark as to the policy of the government. As a matter of fact, the Crown Prince's eldest son, Prince Wilhelm, is the favorite, both with the Emperor and Prince Bismarck, who see in him the salvation of the empire by the means through which it was created, that is, by the sword. The excited state of the European bourses during the last few weeks shows in what light Europe would look upon the advent of this young, reckless, hot-headed Prussian junker to power in Germany.

Prince William is only 28 and fitted in no way to fill the imperial throne. He has shown no ability for anything but military matters and for the carrying on of scandalous amours, the results of which have brought agony to his wife. His life, in fact, has been a continuous scandal. Still, time may work changes even with him, as it has done with other members of Hohenzollern dynasty; but before that time comes he may work irreparable injury to the cause of German unity. Germany has willingly enough submitted to Prince Bismarck's tyranny and his attacks on constitutional government, remembering his great services and in the hope that with the Kaiser's death constitutional principles would, under the begign rule of Frederick William, be allowed to develop, but these sentiments of gratitude will have no raison d'etre under a young Prussian Lieutenant whose training has been in the spirit of an age long since past in German history.

A ROYAL WEDDING.

Marriage of the Crown Prince to Princess Victoria, in England.

It would take too much space to give all the details of the Crown Prince's life. Some events connected with it, however, are of more than ordinary interest. First, his marriage, which has had a remarkable influence upon his life. In 1858 (Jan. 25) the Prince left Berlin for England, where he was to wed Princess Victoria. He was accompanied by the Prince and Princess of Prussia, Prince Frederick Carl, Albrecht and Adalbert, the King of the Belgians, and the Duke of Coburg. The marriage took place on Jan. 25, and proxy Baron Stockmar was made happy in seeing his plan of the houses of Prussia and England joined in more intimate relationship. Prince Albert wrote, "The young people seem to be heartily in love with each other, and the innocence and unselfishness of the young man is very touching. Tears flowed freely." When the Prince took his bride away from England, "Farewell, Rose of England" was the inscription over the triumphal arch built at Dover. "Keep her well! Be true to her! God bless you" were the words of greeting sent after him by the good men of Dover as the "Victoria and Albert" sailed away. In the first week in February the Prince entered Berlin in state with his bride. The Princess Hohenzollern wrote that no princess ever had such a hearty welcome given to her in Berlin. The Crown Prince himself telegraphed to Queen Victoria: "The whole royal family is enchanted with my wife. F. W." He did this probably to soothe the fears of the Prince Consort, who had written to his daughter: "Just because they were so enchanted and enthusiastic, at first, the public will pass over to the sharpest criticism and unfortunal dissection." It must be allowed that this philosophical remark bore much truth in it, for the Princess never became very popular with the Prussian aristocracy. Her influence on the Prince, however, has been remarkable. To her must belong the credit of making him what he has long been, a model husband and father, which was not always the case with the Hohenzollerns. Soon after the marriage, it will be remembered that the Princess ran away from Berlin, on discovering some rich present that she had seen in her husband's secretaire, and which she had imagined was to be laid for herself as a birthday gift, worn by one of the fair ladies of the court. She got as far as Cologne, on route for England, before her flight was discovered, and there a telegram from the King ordered her to return at once. The Princess, like a sensible woman, set to work earnestly to win a firm hold upon the Prince's affection and esteem, and she succeeded in making him what is now, is the noblest, gentlest, and most moral of the Hohenzollerns. They have now six children in life, and two are dead. Prince Sigismund was born January 27, 1850. Princess Charlotte was born July 24, 1860; Prince Heinrich (the future Admiral of the German navy, August 24, 1862; Princess Victoria, April 12, 1866; Princess Sophie, June 14, 1870; Princess Margherita, April 22, 1872. Prince Waldemar, who was born February 10, 1868, died in 1878, and Prince Sigismund died two years before. On the 25th of January, 1885, the Crown Prince and Princess celebrated their silver wedding in Berlin amid great festivities.

THE CROWN PRINCE IN THE FRANCO-GERMAN WAR.

PRINCE HENRY, THE CROWN PRINCE'S SECOND SON.
(Future Admiral.)

PRINCE WALDEMAR'S DEATH.

First Great Sorrow of the Royal Couple—Touching Scenes.

One of the greatest sorrows of the Crown Prince's life was the death, in 1878, of Prince Waldemar, born February 10, 1868, therefore ten years old. He was greatly beloved by him and the Crown Princess, taking the place in their hearts of Prince Sigismund, who had been called away two years before. He was also a favorite of the Kaiser. On March 22 he had visited his imperial grandfather to congratulate him upon his birthday. Two days afterward he was suddenly attacked by inflammation of the throat, with signs of diphtheria. On the 27th the young Prince died. The Crown Princess was long inconsolable, and the Prince himself was almost heartbroken, for he was fond of his children, and Prince Waldemar had especially grown around his heart. The burial ceremonies at Potsdam were very touching. After the service the Crown Prince went up to the little coffin and knelt down beside it and prayed for a long time in silence. Then he kissed the burial pall and started to leave, but he could not go away from the spot; he turned to give one last look; then gathering himself together, passed out with firm tread. The tears coursing down his cheeks, I lowers were thrown upon the coffin and then the imperial and princely mourners passed out. A short time afterward, however, the Crown Prince again entered the sacred place. This time he held by the hand the Crown Princess; and both together knelt at the side of the little coffin and waited until they had seen it placed beside that of Prince Sigismund, in response to an address of condolence sent by the municipal authorities of Berlin, the Crown Princess wrote: "Your hand has stricken us sorely, and death took from us the young heir of our sons. His pure and strong nature rejoiced us every day, in him there seemed to be united all those talents that gave us

THE MEETING ON THE FIELD OF KENIGGRATZ.
(Battle of Sadowa.)

to Berlin. She had reluctantly to obey the royal command. When she returned she was kindly received by the Emperor, who is said to have made the remark: "My dear, you should not have run away from Berlin if you had expected otherwise."

THE AUSTRIAN WAR.

Gallant Conduct of the Crown Prince on the Field of Sadowa.

The Crown Prince has taken part in three great wars—the Danish, Austrian, and French. In the former, under Wrangel, he was only a spectator attached to the headquarters of Marshal Wrangel. His first leadership was given in the Austrian campaign. In that war the main thing to do was to prevent the forces of South Germany joining with those of Austria that had been gathered in Bohemia. King Wil lam led three separate armies, the first called the army of Bohemia, the second and under Prince Frederick Charles; the second the army of Silesia, 116,000 men under the Crown Prince; the third the army of the Elbe, 40,000 men commanded by Herwarth von Bittenfeld. Moltke's plan was, "March separate,—strike combined," and in seven weeks the war was over. On the 22nd of June Prince Frederick Charles crossed the Austrian frontier, and six days later he was joined by the army of the Elbe. They were at Gitschin. On his left the Crown Prince with his army was at Koniggratz, on his right, and while the Austrians had retired in Koniggratz ready for battle. The plan of attack was very simple. Prince Frederic Charles with his three corps was to assault Gitschin with his 300 wagons and driven thirty miles over to Koniggratz and join the army of the Crown Prince attack their right. But the Crown Prince was twenty-five miles away, and at one four in the morning before Colonel von Frankenstein, who was the only one of his staff the most remarkable instance of the tenacity of life under brain destruction to be found in the medical records of any country. So remarkable was the case that the Texas Medical Association daily received reports from prominent surgeons in every part of the Union asking for some official confirmation of details of the case as reported by the ex. Lotter and the Associated Press. In every case the Texas Association been able to confirm their detailed reports. But so strange is human nature, and so well is the Texas Medical Association known for its conservatism, that some doubt has been made, both ante and post mortem.

Briefly summarized, Pease's injuries were: The right hand blown partially off, the left eye blinded, the right eye entirely gone; the skull fractured from the top of the head, the skull removed, leaving all that portion of the brain exposed. A piece of some three tablespoonfuls of brain tissue, a fracture of the skull extending from the nose over the top of the head to the base back to rear of right ear. During six days he remained in a state of coma, with stertorous breathing, and not drink nor take food. On the seventh day he was able to distinguish between drinks and food, and from that time on he took pain, and more than once expressed strong hopes of recovery. The attending City Physician, Drannagel and Dr. Herff lifting the flap and making an exploration, it was taken five days after the accident, and the surgeons then expressed a strong desire for ability to see himself. Dr. Herff, the surgeon, and gave the Sisters of Charity an opportunity to see the case, and it was taken upon the same day.

Pease had inserted his dynamite and was pounding a gravel around it to fight and give the expressive greater purchase. Sorrow of the long iron bar which he wielded fired the dynamite. His family heard the report and, noticing his failure to accompany to the well in alarm. Peering down they saw him in erect posture, leaning against the side of the shaft. A rope was lowered and with his remaining good arm he fastened to fasten himself somehow and was hauled up to top. He was plied with questions concerning the explosion, and and drawing strain to which he was subjected, his ghastly wounds, his utter sage fresh, the entire retention of consciousness, and the length of time in which he lived—he further probably the most remarkable instance of the tenacity of life under brain destruction to be found in the medical records of any country. So remarkable was the case that the Texas Medical Association daily received reports from prominent surgeons in every part of the Union asking for some official confirmation of details of the case as reported by the ex. Lotter and the Associated Press. In every case the Texas Association been able to confirm their detailed reports. But so strange is human nature, and so well is the Texas Medical Association known for its conservatism, that some doubt has been made, both ante and post mortem.

Briefly summarized, Pease's injuries were: The right hand blown partially off, the left eye blinded, the right eye entirely gone; the skull fractured from the top of the head, the skull removed, leaving all that portion of the brain exposed. A piece of some three tablespoonfuls of brain tissue, a fracture of the skull extending from the nose over the top of the head to the base back to rear of right ear. During six days he remained in a state of coma, with stertorous breathing, and not drink nor take food. On the seventh day he was able to distinguish between drinks and food, and from that time on he took pain, and more than once expressed strong hopes of recovery. The attending City Physician, Drannagel and Dr. Herff lifting the flap and making an exploration, it was taken five days after the accident, and the surgeons then expressed a strong desire for ability to see himself. Dr. Herff, the surgeon, gave the Sisters of Charity an opportunity to see the case, and it was taken upon the same day.

Pease had inserted his dynamite and was pounding a gravel around it to fight and give the expressive greater purchase. Sorrow of the long iron bar which he wielded fired the dynamite. His family heard the report and, noticing his failure to accompany to the well in alarm. Peering down they saw him in erect posture, leaning against the side of the shaft. A rope was lowered and with his remaining good arm he fastened to fasten himself somehow and was hauled up to top. He was plied with questions concerning the explosion, and and drawing strain to which he was subjected, his ghastly wounds, his utter sage fresh, the entire retention of consciousness, and the length of time in which he lived—he further probably the most remarkable instance of the tenacity of life under brain destruction to be found in the medical records of any country. So remarkable was the case that the Texas Medical Association daily received reports from prominent surgeons in every part ished to hear firing commence again. He sent his aid-de-camp to know what was the trouble. The officer returned and reported that it was only the Bavarians, who were shooting at Vicrtorer. The Prince sent word back that when "Victoria" was to be celebrated he would send the orders to do so himself. A Bavarian General then put in an appearance and asked permission that his soldiers should be allowed to continue, because, he said, the Bavarians had a time-honored custom of shooting their guns off after every great victory. When the Bavarians heard the Prince's gracious message, the Crown Prince turned round and, laughing, said to his staff: "I think they ought to have a chance at any rate, for it must have been in the thirty years' war when they had such an opportunity before."

THE CROWN PRINCE IN TYROL

There is another anecdote told of how after the victory at Worth, and a Bavarian regiment was passing him, one of them called out a "Nah Kronpiglich Hobeit; if we had you with us we should never have had been licked by the cursed Prussians." After the war the Crown Prince took prominent part in the triumphal entry of the Bavarian troops into Munich, where he was received with such immense enthusiasm that King Ludwig was greatly offended, and in the banquet given in the Rathhaus the same night failed to put in an appearance. The young Prussian was almost "let off on his way to his mountain retreat at Hohenschwangau. The Prussian heard at the triumphal entry of the Prussian troops into Berlin, and sat beside his father, surrounded by the brilliant group of princes and generals who watched the victorious troops passing down the Unter den Linden. During the war the Prince was a favorite subject for painters and poets, and one of our pictures represents him as he was often seen when not in the field, namely at Versailles, with his pipe in his mouth and taking matters most philosophically.

Loss of Paint in Paris.

Business people in Paris have long since ceased to be surprised at which certain trades are easily recognized. First of all, the coachmen are distinguished by being painted outside in squares and stripes of the most brilliant colors. Vermicelli makers, bronze, and trinket shops have begun to use the same system, the prevailing color being black; then the Spanish wine shops use yellow and red, the Italian green, white, and red, and the housemaids place where furniture carts for removal are kept painted yellow, as well as the wagons—why, not even the proprietors know. There no longer remains a door outside, and within white and gold, so that one is involuntarily reminded of the pastry itself. Milk shops are white and blue both inside and out. The butchers seem now to paint the outside of their ironing shops a bright blue, while the carts that take the meat to the washhouses in the country are bright green. Wine houses are all painted brown, or a dull red, which is exactly the color of the vin ordinaire mixed with cranberry juice and logwood. Still darker is the color of the charcoal shops, which the dust soon makes a compacted velvet. Barbers are fond of light brown and white, with red and blue poles, and large mirrors. Many of their shops are decorated with paintings representing goddesses of beauty, groaning, and similar subjects. —London Daily News.

Queer Things in Dresden.

The authorities of Dresden, Germany, will not allow a piano to be played in a private house after 10 o'clock at night, and they punish with a fine any person found throwing an article of refuse, however insignificant, into the street. Flagpoles are stationed at the corners of streets intersected by horse-car lines to warn persons of the approach of a car. Drug stores are closed at sundown, and when a drugist is called up he has to be satisfied with all the politeness of a dane ng master before he will condescend to grin in patronizing his store. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

At the Museum.

Mrs. N.—My dear, I wish you to observe this beautiful statue of Apollo; and this is his wife, Apollinaria.—Fife.

Good things have to be engraved on the memory; bad ones stick there of themselves.

PRINCE WILLIAM, ELDEST SON OF CROWN PRINCE.
(The Future Emperor.)

story will be when it is written, a record of worthy deeds and generous aspirations. His death will be a sad blow to the hopes of non-military Germany. He seemed as if created to carry on the work of German unity to its completion, to inaugurate an era in German history that would be marked by a development of the highest qualities of her people, checked by the influence on the Prince, however, has been remarkable. To her must belong the credit of making him what he has long been, a model husband and father, which was not always the case with the Hohenzollerns. Soon after the marriage, it will be remembered that the Princess ran away from Berlin, on discovering some rich present that she

PRINCE WILLIAM, JUNIOR.
(Also a Future Emperor.)

had seen in her husband's secretaire, and which she had imagined was to be laid for herself as a birthday gift, worn by one of the fair ladies of the court. She got as far as Cologne, on route for England, before her flight was discovered, and there a telegram from the King ordered her to return at once. The Princess, like a sensible woman, set to work earnestly to win a firm hold upon the Prince's affection and esteem, and she succeeded in making him what is now, is the noblest, gentlest, and most moral of the Hohenzollerns. They have now six children in life, and two are dead. Prince Sigismund was born January 27, 1850. Princess Charlotte was born July 24, 1860; Prince Heinrich (the future Admiral of the German navy, August 24, 1862; Princess Victoria, April 12, 1866; Princess Sophie, June 14, 1870; Princess Margherita, April 22, 1872. Prince Waldemar, who was born February 10, 1868,

EXAMINING THE BRAIN.

APPEARANCE OF THE BRAIN.

THE FACE BEFORE DEATH.

AFTER REMOVAL OF UPPER PART OF SKULL.

ostium. The entire slope of the skull (2) represents the part of the skull (1) removed.

Such is the case of Calvin Pease, Texas farmer and amateur miner. He was 24 years of age and not, in appearance, a man of any remarkable ability. He will live possibly many in medical magazines, and for many a

STRUGGLE WITH DEATH.

The Extraordinary Case of Calvin Pease, Which Is Puzzling the Surgeons.

A Wonderful Instance of the Tenacity of Life Under Brain Destruction.

[San Antonio special to Chicago Daily News.]

Calvin Pease, a small farmer living at Devine, a station on the International & Great Northern railway, was blasting a well a few weeks ago. He was alone at the time. He had drilled a hole in the rock in the gravel bed of the well. He was engaged in carefully inserting a well known "tamping"—that he had inserted his dynamite and was pounding a gravel around it to fight and give the expressive greater purchase. Sorrow of the long iron bar which he wielded fired the dynamite. His family heard the report and, noticing his failure to accompany to the well in alarm. Peering down they saw him in erect posture, leaning against the side of the shaft. A rope was lowered and with his remaining good arm he fastened to fasten himself somehow and was hauled up to top. He was plied with questions concerning the explosion, and and drawing strain to which he was subjected, his ghastly wounds, his utter sage fresh, the entire retention of consciousness, and the length of time in which he lived—he further probably the most remarkable instance of the tenacity of life under brain destruction to be found in the medical records of any country. So remarkable was the case that the Texas Medical Association daily received reports from prominent surgeons in every part of the Union asking for some official confirmation of details of the case as reported by the ex. Lotter and the Associated Press. In every case the Texas Association been able to confirm their detailed reports. But so strange is human nature, and so well is the Texas Medical Association known for its conservatism, that some doubt has been made, both ante and post mortem.

Briefly summarized, Pease's injuries were: The right hand blown partially off, the left eye blinded, the right eye entirely gone; the skull fractured from the top of the head, the skull removed, leaving all that portion of the brain exposed. A piece of some three tablespoonfuls of brain tissue, a fracture of the skull extending from the nose over the top of the head to the base back to rear of right ear. During six days he remained in a state of coma, with stertorous breathing, and not drink nor take food. On the seventh day he was able to distinguish between drinks and food, and from that time on he took pain, and more than once expressed strong hopes of recovery. The attending City Physician, Drannagel and Dr. Herff lifting the flap and making an exploration, it was taken five days after the accident, and the surgeons then expressed a strong desire for ability to see himself. Dr. Herff, the surgeon, gave the Sisters of Charity an opportunity to see the case, and it was taken upon the same day.

Pease had inserted his dynamite and was pounding a gravel around it to fight and give the expressive greater purchase. Sorrow of the long iron bar which he wielded fired the dynamite. His family heard the report and, noticing his failure to accompany to the well in alarm. Peering down they saw him in erect posture, leaning against the side of the shaft. A rope was lowered and with his remaining good arm he fastened to fasten himself somehow and was hauled up to top. He was plied with questions concerning the explosion, and and drawing strain to which he was subjected, his ghastly wounds, his utter sage fresh, the entire retention of consciousness, and the length of time in which he lived—he further probably the most remarkable instance of the tenacity of life under brain destruction to be found in the medical records of any country. So remarkable was the case that the Texas Medical Association daily received reports from prominent surgeons in every part of the Union asking for some official confirmation of details of the case as reported by the ex. Lotter and the Associated Press. In every case the Texas Association been able to confirm their detailed reports. But so strange is human nature, and so well is the Texas Medical Association known for its conservatism, that some doubt has been made, both ante and post mortem.

Briefly summarized, Pease's injuries were: The right hand blown partially off, the left eye blinded, the right eye entirely gone; the skull fractured from the top of the head, the skull removed, leaving all that portion of the brain exposed. A piece of some three tablespoonfuls of brain tissue, a fracture of the skull extending from the nose over the top of the head to the base back to rear of right ear. During six days he remained in a state of coma, with stertorous breathing, and not drink nor take food. On the seventh day he was able to distinguish between drinks and food, and from that time on he took pain, and more than once expressed strong hopes of recovery. The attending City Physician, Drannagel and Dr. Herff lifting the flap and making an exploration, it was taken five days after the accident, and the surgeons then expressed a strong desire for ability to see himself. Dr. Herff, the surgeon, gave the Sisters of Charity an opportunity to see the case, and it was taken upon the same day.

AN IMPORTANT FACT.

An Easy Cure for Weak, Tired, and Nervous Feelings.

Persons complain that they are weak, tired, and exhausted; they have lost all appetite, no strength, no life or ambition; they wake up in the morning feeling tired and discouraged; in some cases there are pains and aches in various parts of the body, and there is often indigestion, constipation, dizziness, dull head and general disjointed feeling. Sleeplessness, nervous and wakeful nights follow. Neglect of these symptoms results in excessive nervous prostration or paralysis, with sunstroke, trembling, cold feet and hops, prickling sensation and weakness and weakness of the limbs.

Thousands are now prostrated, paralyzed or insane, by neglecting the first symptoms, thinking that the mere nervousness, fitfulness, gloom of the mind, loss of memory, nervous weakness and depression show an exhaustion of nerve force which will, unless the proper restorative remedy is used, result in utter mental collapse and absolute prostration of nerve and physical power.

Have compassion from these terrible results while there is yet time by the use of that wonderful nerve invigorator, health restorer, Dr. Greene's Nervura Nerve Blood Life. It is a most powerful remedy, and may be used by children or the most delicate lady, avoids with absolute certainty of cure. Its effects are truly marvelous, and it is only necessary to use it to be convinced of its marvelous restorative and strength-giving powers. Do not fail to use this remedy, for it is the prescription of the great nerve specialist, and an absolutely certain cure will result. All druggists have it, price $1.50 per bottle, or sent add. Dr. Greene's Nervura Nerve and Blood Life Pills, 25 cents per box. Consult Dr. Greene, 34 Fifth Avenue, New York City, for advice, free, or by letter. Use his great remedy and write him about your case.

An Arab Household.

He was a grand-looking old man, and looked all the more so in his picturesque Arab costume. I followed him through a small lobby, we ascended a dark and narrow wooden staircase, and wandering about, and from behind curtains and doors numerous dark faces were peeping at us. The principal lady of the house received us at the door of the sitting-room, and soon we were surrounded by at least a dozen women and lots of children, not two of them dressed alike. The poor children were all perfectly laden with bracelets, anklets and nose-rings, while a few had even nostril-rings. Indeed many of them looked as if they had had little patterns painted on their faces in scarlet, yellow or white. Some of the women, too, had white spots painted round their eyes. I thought that very pretty, though, for they strongly resembled rows of teeth. One exceedingly pretty girl had a little brown border, and a little chin surrounded by tufts of feathers all the colors of the rainbow. His arms and legs were perfectly laden with bracelets, but little neck smotherd by rows and rows of beads, from which hung numerous sorts of charms and talismans. Several of the women were afraid to shake hands with us, and had little fingers with an enormous nose-ring screwed on limpid. This led to my discovering that they were afraid of my dangerous rings. I had on a pair of brass gloves, and the whole party were very much astonished when I took them off. We drank coffee, and then Miss Miss Allen pr. duced a scrap-book, and handed it first to the old gentleman. He commenced looking at it at the wrong end, as Arabs always do, and evidently thought it was a little strange as much as the children. Shortly after one image of a woman with a big gilt tray with two large green globes of sweet syrup; and we had to drink a glass of this, as well as three small cups of coffee, the old gentleman particularly insisting on my drinking that it was Arab custom to drink not less than three.—Pearson's.

A Large Family.

At the State Fair at Dallas, Tex., last fall, they had a "baby show," open to the world. As far as the little ones entered for the contest by their doting mothers the infants were numbered and a record made, with the appropriate number placed on their backs, when each mother, who had been expressing her surprise at whatever attracted his attention, pointed to her own and a baby marched seven. "Say, partner," he said, "here is a great country for big families. My wife's to number ten." Passing on he saw another child with the tag No. 53. "Here is another one of 'em," he remarked. "No. 53. Great guns! What a large family!"—Detroit Free Press.

Could Hardly Believe His Eyes.

A well-known lawyer, when about to start on a railway journey, found that the clerk given him a shilling too much. He accordingly returned to the booking-office, and informing the clerk of his mistake, handed back the money. For a moment the clerk stood speechless. Recovering himself, exclaimed:

"Please stand still one moment and let me look at you." After a pause, he added, in a low-stricken voice, "and a lawyer, too!"

No More Tick.

"Do you know why so many people are behind with their Clocks?"

"Because it's run down. Give us another."

Yes, and it reminds me, inquires that, like the clock, for them there is no more tick.—Clockmakers' Journal.

CONTRARY to general opinion, leprosy is spreading rapidly, according to Dr. Hansoffer, of the Berlin Medical Society. French colonists are fast falling victims. Thousands are urged to seek a means of abating its ravages. The disease is contagious and is a bacillus resembling that of consumption.

It is an impossibility for any man or any number of men to put asunder what God hath really joined together.

What It Means.

To a man or woman who has never been ill the word "health" is meaningless. But to one who has suffered and despaired health appears as a priceless gem. To the thousands of unfortunate women who are suffering from some of the many forms of weakness or irregularities peculiar to their sex, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription holds forth the promise of a speedy restoration of this "priceless boon."

Message of Condolence.

"And so Gen. Greatheart is dead? He was my dearest and best friend. The world is a starless wilderness of gloom and tears without him. I will make a pilgrimage, barefoot and on bended knees, across the wild ocean to lay a chaplet of flowers upon his tomb for love's own sake for a guarantee of $60 a chaplet, hotel and traveling expenses for two, and 45 per cent. of the gate money. Answer pain." Job Mourner, 41,114 Weeping Lane, Igling Terrace, Olborn-on-the-Ouse, Whackem-Straight-Corners, Picaninny, Strand—Burdette.

A Prominent Merchant in Trouble.

Old Moneybags mopes in his office all day,
As snappish and cross as a bear
The clerks know enough to keep out of his way,
Lest the merchant should growl or and swear.
Even Tabby, the cat, is in fear of
The merchant, and shuns his presence
They all know the master is apt to be rough,
And his freaks unexpected and queer.
What makes the old fellow so surly and grim,
And behave so confoundedly mean?
There's certainly something the matter with him
Liver!
Stomach, or liver, or spleen?
We've guessed it—his liver is sluggish and bad,
His blood is disordered and foul;
Enough to make anyone hopelessly mad,
And great his best friend with a growl.
The well-tried remedy, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, will correct a disordered liver and purify the blood, tone your system, and build up your flesh and strength.

WHEN statesmen talk of taxing the raw material they forget the oyster on the divided shell.—New Orleans Picayune.

THE spoke and goblins that delight
To fill with terror the night
Will shake in their shoes
When they see Dyspepsia's fancy tissues,
Will never trouble their little
The man who trusts in Pierce's Pills.

DR. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets—Vegetable, harmless, painless, sure!

WHEN you ask a tramp to cut a stick or two for you in exchange for food he generally cuts his stick.—Boston Courier.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Which Is More Fully Explained by One from Rev. J. Roberts, Pastor First M. E. Church, Fremont, Mich.

Rheumatic Syrup Co., Jackson, Mich.:

GENTLEMEN—From the fact that several remarkable cures by Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup came under my observation, some of which were those of Rev. S. Berry, of Morrison, Ill., and Mrs. Hoffman, of Ionia, I recommended Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup to her daughter give the remedy a trial. As I expected, it broke up the disease, as the following letter explains:

FREMONT, Mich., Oct. 10, 1887.

O. C. PEMBERTON, Druggist:

My daughter Maud has used Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters, which you so strongly recommended her to try for inflammatory rheumatism. Her limbs were badly swollen, and she was lame in her knees and ankles. Her sufferings were severe. The Syrup and Plasters soon drove the pain out of her limbs and, as a result, the swelling was reduced and she became quiet and rested. The Syrup corrected her indigestion, cleansed the rheumatic poison from her blood, and she is now able to be about her work.

Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters are remedies of great merit.

REV. J. ROBERTS,
Pastor First M. E. Church.

FREMONT, Mich., Oct. 10, 1887.

He is a particularly mean thief who would rob the only cash we have in the country.

For Rickets, Marasmus, and Wasting Disorders of Children,

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites is unequaled. The rapidity with which children improve after taking it upon it is very wonderful. Read the following: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in cases of Rickets and Marasmus of long standing, and have seen more than I dared to hope for, in every case the improvement was marked."—J. M. MAIN, M. D., New Orleans.

THERE are no rounds of drinks in the ladder of success.—Puck.

"I have been afflicted with an affection of the Throat from childhood, with Dyspepsia, and have used various remedies, but never found any permanent relief. I have Brown's Bronchial Troches.—Rev. W. F. Vaughan, Fulton, Ky. Sold only in boxes.

If love is blind, how can there be such a thing as love at first sight.

HOUGH ON PILES. Quick, complete cure. 50c.
HUCHU-PAIBA, Great Kidney Remedy. $1.
WELLS' HAIR DYE. Best in the world. 50c.
WELLS' HAIR BALSAM. If gray, gradually restores color; cures baldness. 50c.

Itching Piles.

Symptoms—Moisture; intense Itching and Stinging; most at night; worse after warming. If allowed to continue tumors form, which bleed profusely and become painful. Dr. Chase's Ointment relieves instantly, stops bleeding, heals skin raticle, and in many cases removes the tumors. It is equally efficacious in curing all Skin Diseases. Dr. Swayne & Son, Druggists, Philadelphia. Dr. Chase's Ointment can be obtained of druggists, or by mail, 50c.

LOOK YOUNG, prevent tendency to wrinkles by using the Oriental Cream or MAGIC BEAUTIFIER. Removes a sallow, pimply, tired complexion of the features. A transcendental skin beautifier. $1. Druggists or exp. E. S. Wells, Jersey City, N.J.

Consumption Surely Cured.

To the Editor—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy free to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and P.O. address.—Respectfully, T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl St., N. Y.

"BOUGH ON ITCH" Ointment cures Skin Humors, Pimples, Flesh Worms, Ring Worm, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Itch, Ivy Poison, Barber's Itch, Scald Head, Eczema. 50c. Druggists or mail. E. S. Wells, Jersey City, N.J.

Catarrh Cured.

A clergyman, after years of suffering from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, and vainly trying every known remedy, at last found a prescription which completely cured him. Sent free to any fellow sufferer. Address, Rev. W. Mantle, Box 1818, New York, N.Y.

AGENTS AND PEDDLERS Fine Gold Plated Watches and Chains, Diamonds, Rubies, Jewelry, Silverware, Clocks, Guns, Sewing Machines, Novelties, Cutlery, Musical Instruments, Sporting Goods, Bicycles, Tricycles, Tools, Fishing Tackle, Fishing Nets, Tents, Awnings, Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Dry Goods, Groceries, Patent Medicines, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Soaps, Brushes, Notions, Tinware, Woodenware, Willowware, Stationery, Photographic Goods, Musical Goods, Jewelry Repairing, Watch Repairing, Clock Repairing, Gun Repairing, Bicycle Repairing, Sewing Machine Repairing, Tricycle Repairing

FARM AND GARDEN.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS ON PRUNING AND TRAINING YOUNG TREES.

Timely Advice About Sheep—Weevils and Infected Beans—A Promising New Curiant—Explicit Directions for Making a Serviceable Wagon Jack.

The present is an opportune season for studying other people's inventions and exercising one's own ingenuity and cleverness in the workshop. All farms, by the by, do not include a workshop among their outbuildings, but in our opinion a room or shop set aside for the storage and use of tools is a necessity. All will agree it is a convenience; those who have tried it claim that it is an economy.

A HANDY WAGON JACK.

For the benefit of says readers as do possess a kit of tools, a work bench, etc., is presented the following cut of a wagon jack recently illustrated and described in Rural New Yorker:

The base F (see cut), made of two inch plank, is 6 feet wide and 3 feet long. E is a hollow tube, made of hard wood inch stuff, inside of which A slides up and down; E is mortised into a base 2 inches from the end, and D is mortised into the base 6 inches from E; D is made from a piece of 2 1-2 by 2 1-2 2 inches long; C, the lever, is 3 1-2 inches long. The length of A must be according to the height of the wagon axle; B, the catch, is hung to E by a hinge. The lifting is to be done with the foot.

Among the Sheep.

The wisdom of providing shelter against cold storms and chilly winds has been made apparent, even in the more southern exposures. The old idea that sheep do not require drink and that their wool will keep them warm without shelter is an exploded one. Extra care during the winter season in way of both feed and shelter pays in the long run, and must be given if best results in wool and mutton are obtained.

Bear in mind the fact that sheep thrive much better in dry than in wet seasons, and provide when it is practicable, high, dry localities for winter quarters. Low damp places are bad for all animals, and especially so for sheep.

On the subject of feed for sheep, particularly the animals that are to have lambs in the early spring, Rural New Yorker has given some sound advice, in which occurs the following: Cottonseed is not a desirable food for any breeding animal, for the sufficient reason that its effects encourage abortion. Again, the foods are not suitable for sheep, which mastitate their food most thoroughly. Corn and other carbonaceous foods are also not good for sheep except in small quantities. Sheep are warmly clothed and do not require so much carbonaceous food as other animals do. They are kept for wool and lambs, chiefly, and as the wool contains 16 per cent. of nitrogen and the lambs needs special provision for its flesh and bone, foods rich in nitrogen and phosphoric acid are required. Hence, clover, as pasture and hay, should be the main feeding for sheep, and bran and oats, with a little corn only, should furnish the grain food. Three pounds of good clover hay and four ounces of mixed bran, oats and buckwheat would give a sheep of 150 pounds' weight in good condition, along with as much oat and pea straw as it will eat.

Beans Infested with Weevils.

An English experimenter has lately published a report giving the results of a series of trials with beans infested with weevils. The general impression prevails that provided the plumule or radicle be not injured, the plants do not materially suffer from the mere perforation and partial consumption of the cotyledon.

The report of the English experimenter makes it appear that for a time plants raised from seeds thus performed show no signs of weakness, but when the flowering period arrives then the blossoms produced are few and small, the plant withers and sometimes dies without producing a single pod. Additional experiments made with five different varieties showed that the total product was so greatly diminished as to leave no ground for doubt that the presence of the weevil in the seed is highly detrimental, affecting to a very considerable degree the reproductive powers of the future plant.

WEEVIL AND PERFORATED BEAN.

The injury done to peas by the pea weevil, is of the same character as that of the bean by the bean weevil, though the latter insect eats several holes in the pea, while the pea weevil makes only one. The injury to the vitality of peas produced from buggy peas may not be so great as that to the beans, as shown by the experiments mentioned, though by the experiments mentioned, though by the experiments it is lacking. At all events, one should be careful to secure sound peas, as well as sound beans for seed. The small line between the weevil and bean, in the cut, represents the natural length of the bean weevil.

A New Variety of Currant.

The new currant introduced last season under the name Crandall is supposed to be a hybrid between the cherry currant and Ribes Aureum. The introducers of this new variety, which originated in Kansas, describe it as a bluish black in color with fair flavor, and varying in size from one-quarter to one-half of an inch in diameter, and growing in bunches of five to eight berries each. The flavor of the fruit is said to be peculiar to itself and superior to the English black currant.

Professor Budd, of Iowa, has expressed himself as believing the Crandall to be valuable for general cultivation. Yet, the well known New York seedsman, says that the currant worm does not infest this variety, and that it adapts itself to almost any soil. It appears to be especially prized for preserves and jellies.

A Word About Alfalfa.

Alfalfa is a perennial plant, which flourishes best in warm, climates and deep, rich soils; the roots grow long and large, and when once established in a favorable location an immense amount of fodder will be produced for several years. It succeeds admirably in California, where its long tap root seems to defy drought, and is especially well adapted to our southern states; but it is not suited to a hard pan or close compact clay soil or thin lands, but delights in soils where its long tap roots meet with no obstruction. There is no better plant known for producing a large amount of fodder for soiling purposes from a small area of ground adapted to its growth, and it is also used for hay, although owing to the wooly fibre of its stem it is not equal to red clover. It has been grown to some extent in the northern states, and even in Canada, but being of southern origin its best results are to be expected in warm, dry climates on soils adapted to its habits. The seed can be had from almost any seedsman, and the quoted price is fifteen cents per pound. It seem broadcast the land should be rich, well prepared and free from weeds, otherwise the plants are liable to be overrun and killed out, for its first growth from the seed is not a vigorous one, and for this reason many put it in in drills from one to two feet apart, so that the weeds can be kept down until the plants have gained the mastery and are able to take care of themselves.

More Lose Meat Than Fat.

There is a decided tendency among our more progressive breeders to build up breeds of hogs and cattle with more lean meat than fat. This movement has been brought about in part by the growing objections of consumers to so much fat, especially where pork is concerned, and the waste entailed. In feeding with a view to the production of more lean meat, close pens and large rations of corn have given place to a run for hogs in day time, with a warm shelter for the night, and a varied ration in which corn forms but a small part.

Pruning Trees.

A Kansas correspondent in Prairie Farmer, adds an interesting chapter, illustrated with a plain diagram, to the vast amount of literature already published on this important subject. The correspondent alluded to believes that one-half of the trees lost south of parallel 40 degs. north is caused by improper training or heading of the young tree the first two years of its growth, both in the nursery and in the orchard. Nursery culture is not conducive to the proper heading of the trees in his opinion. The want of room for the growth of the side branches, and the cutting back of the main central stem, is the invariable practice the first year from the graft. As a consequence, a large number of limbs start out, often three or four, that dwarf the central stem, and then to cap the climax the planter, when setting out his trees in the orchard, cuts out the main stem.

PROPER AND IMPROPER WAY OF PRUNING.

While the Kansas correspondent does not seriously object to the very small loss of training two limbs from opposite sides of the stem of a tree, he considers it to be far better for the growth of all above for only one limb to start from the stem at any one place. Four to six or eight inches apart is better. These limbs should radiate from the trunk or stem like the spokes of a wheel, alternating from side to side of the tree.

As for height of first limbs from the ground, the planter should be governed by his latitude. From 37 degs. to 47 degs. north, twelve to eighteen inches is by far the best to prevent sun scald and the attacks of the round headed borer. Figs. 1 and 3 illustrate the proper training of the limbs in a horizontal position from the trunk. A limb growing this way will not split down by either ice, winds or weight of fruit. The reverse of this is shown in the acute fork in Fig. 3. The junction of the limb to the trunk on the upper side is imperfect, the swaying of the limbs by wind or storm and the entrance of moisture causing early decay and splitting.

In conclusion this writer says: "It will be profitable for a planter to procure his grafts, plant in rows four feet apart and two in the rows, the latter to be at distance apart, by good culture and proper training, he can raise a tree worth a score of many of those from our overcrowded nurseries."

On the Country Road.

Saving is not always economy.

Gentleness cannot be kicked into a cow.

Walnuts are the latest wrinkle for fattening turkeys.

Remove the seeds before feeding pumpkins to cattle.

The safe way to get good milk cows is to raise them.

Water cattle frequently or let them have free access to it.

Dampness is a great producer of disease among poultry.

Put all farm machinery and tools into first rate order during leisure hours this season.

Dr. Salmon, chief of the bureau of industry, says that pleuro-pneumonia among cattle is longer exists west of the Allegany mountains.

The development of wheat production in Dakota has been truly wonderful. The area sown to spring wheat for the 1887 crop is placed by the governor at 2,892,369 acres, and the yield at about 50,000,000 bushels, or nearly double the production of 1880, or nearly one-seventh of the entire wheat production of the whole country.

BILL NYE ON TYPEWRITING.

He Gives Some Variegated Advice to a Friend.

GREAT rain my correspondence now. I pause to praise and give the following letter the languish ing public: GUILLAUME NYE, Esq. Respected Sir: * * * I do you a favor that I could GET ALONG IN NEW YORK with mys. BILE WRITE ITS ME. Mr. Nye, I mean coulteen I write things for you out pppssssbrom my own thoughts if you would FIGHT THINK the SKIN out of course I can write—but I mean those this when I had some good yumrus THERE to be with THIS now DOing it of a that there SATISFIDDING EVERY a SUDdayis it born in youtor is it just PLAIN bring my UP.

Please excuse bad spelling and bad colubb. I thought I would tell you it is enjoy my have to be a good BXeo!!! yours truly

(dictated)

The above is, of course, more or less personal, but the question is one which concerns many other young men who may be thus afflicted. I therefore take the liberty of answering an inquiry publicly which I would otherwise regard as strictly confidential, supposing the name, however, and the 3rd par graph, both of which read like the soliloquy of a "bell box" or the mothered ejaculations of a "pied fiend."

To the correspondent, if these letter is above given, I might say that I believe there would be an opening here for him that would give him a chance to exhibit himself up to a certain class of work. Of course, he could hardly be expected to take regular channels of commercial correspondence, with a typewriter in his hand as a pronounced impediment in its speech as this one has, but could he not hope to get a job advertising for a fresh face?

Certainly there ought to be a place somewhere for one whose only trouble seems to be a kind of information of the vowels.

There might be a demand for such a graphic and graceful style of writing, if it could be used in reporting telephonic remarks over crossed wires. The word painting and vulgar fractions are similar, and it might be made to arouse a good deal of interest if properly worked up.

Of course it would be necessary that he should lose down some of his extravagant figures of speech and sweat, overexertion of the pacemaker, but with his wealth of full steps he might do well on a periodical, and his space work would certainly attract attention. Or he could get into the dunning room of a man who did not advertise and do assignment work.

The typewriter, in strong and willing hands is mightier than the sword. I look for the typewriter to take the place of Indian century in our literature, and its tinkling notes will soon be heard, I believe, in homes where the one legged pen and the bottle of blacking all the writing now are doing.

Come to the metropolis ƒ&%%ƒ&%%ƒ. Come with your shorthand and your little ƒ&%%ƒ&%%ƒ&%. Come with your starting style of English and your little ƒ&%%ƒ&%%ƒ&%. Come with your starting style of English and your little ƒ&%%ƒ&%%ƒ&%. Come with your brazen cheek and with milk&ƒ& and milk &%%%. ƒ&%%ƒ&%!!

Here you will meet many yumrous people who will amuse you to a high ƒ. You will also meet Mr. &%%%ƒ& charcoal, who will require you to drape all your figures in the following manner ƒ&.

Come to New York and get a new soft palate put into your typewriter and have an incision performed on the tonsils.

Come and visit the produce ƒ&%%%ƒ&%% Exchange. Come and see the ƒ&%%%ƒ&%%%ƒ&%% street. Ride on our Elevated railway from ƒ&%%%ƒ&%%%ƒ&%% to ƒ&%%%ƒ&%%%ƒ&%% street, to GGXXKKrttt@ƒ&%%ƒ&%%ƒ&%%ƒ&%% street. Visit the brig. Theodore, dam Tarantula, brought by Capt. S. m. Rob Roy dan Ella Jackson horse races!

The more you stay up with us the more you will like us. We New Yorkers from Wyoming territory enjoy having people thrown among US. You would meet with a hearty welcome whether you came to grow up with our bacteria or to buy green goods. Cordiality is our watchword. If you can take pressing would not hurt you. Come and spellbinds water. Will your mental backbone bear up under the pressure, perhaps that would be best, say way.

I used to be acquainted with a young man who wrote a beautiful hand ƒ&%%ƒ&%%ƒ&. He had no use before the days of typewriters. He would bring out his writing materials and his lungs and make a corkscrew peacock swimming in a large cranberry march infested by loons and fancy frogs, and the 3rd par graph, both of which read like the soliloquy of a "bell box" or the mothered ejaculations of a "pied fiend."

To the correspondent, if these letter is above given, I might say that I believe there would be an opening here for him that would give himself up to a certain class of work. Of course, he could hardly be expected to take regular channels of commercial correspondence, with a typewriter in his hand as a pronounced impediment in its speech as this one has, but could he not hope to get a job advertising for a fresh face?

Certainly there ought to be a place somewhere for one whose only trouble seems to be a kind of information of the vowels.

There might be a demand for such a graphic and graceful style of writing, if it could be used in reporting telephonic remarks over crossed wires. The word painting and vulgar fractions are similar, and it might be made to arouse a good deal of interest if properly worked up.

Of course it would be necessary that he should lose down some of his extravagant figures of speech and sweat, overexertion of the pacemaker, but with his wealth of full steps he might do well on a periodical, and his space work would certainly attract attention. Or he could get into the dunning room of a man who did not advertise and do assignment work.

The typewriter, in strong and willing hands is mightier than the sword. I look for the typewriter to take the place of Indian century in our literature, and its tinkling notes will soon be heard, I believe, in homes where the one legged pen and the bottle of blacking all the writing now are doing.

Come to the metropolis ƒ&%%ƒ&%%ƒ. Come with your shorthand

THE JOURNAL

BY CHAS. J. STRANG.

CHARLEVOIX, - - MICHIGAN.

THE WORLD IN A WORD.

The Latest Intelligence, Domestic and Foreign, Transmitted Over the Electric Wires.

Political, Railroad, and Commercial News, Accidents, Fires, Crimes, Etc., Etc.

THE VERY LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

A LONG STRIKE.

C. B. & Q. Engineers Idle—Passenger and Freight Traffic at a Standstill.

WHAT promises to be one of the most remarkable strikes ever known in this country began at Chicago on Monday morning. The strongest labor organization in existence has opened war against the largest railroad corporation in the West, and one of the greatest in mileage and wealth in this country. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has ordered its men to quit working for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers numbers about twenty-five thousand members—the total number of engineers in the country being in the neighborhood of 30,000. At the head of the brotherhood is the greatest labor organizer and manager in America, P. M. Arthur. In April the brotherhood will be twenty-five years old. From twelve members it has grown to 25,000. In seven years that is the first strike Mr. Arthur has been unable to settle. The elevated-railroad strike was not under his direction, was begun without his defiance of the rules of the order. It was not successful. The policy of the order has always been pacific. Chief Arthur has the respect and admiration of every law-abiding citizen in the land because of his wise and prudent management of the difficulties that have arisen from time to time between his men and the railroad companies. The order is the richest in this country and best able to maintain a long struggle.

WILLIAM E. MORRISON A CANDIDATE.

He Wants to Run on the Ticket with President Cleveland.

A WASHINGTON special says that "William R. Morrison, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, has decided to become a candidate for Vice President on the ticket with Mr. Cleveland. Some months ago Assistant Postmaster General Stevenson was thought to be a candidate, but he is now considering his efforts upon the Governorship, and is said to be working in harmony with Black. The engineer of Col. Morrison into the field will make matters lively."

In Foreign Lands.

LONDON dispatches announce that Mr. Gladstone, in an article in the Contemporary Review, makes another appeal to the Conservative party regarding home rule in Ireland.

THE war cloud is still threatening, and the powers are making preparations for war, but on the measures there is a protracted country of negotiations which will precede the tragedy of war. The game of diplomacy is exceedingly interesting to outsiders. A Russo-Franco alliance is said to have been consummated.

THE silver wedding of the Prince and Princess of Wales bids fair to dim the splendor, if not eclipse the effulgence of last summer's rejoicings. That the popularity of the future King and Queen of Great Britain is in no way on the wane is made quite apparent by the extensive preparations which are being everywhere made within the realm to celebrate the event in a royal and befitting manner.

Home Again.

The Presidential party arrived in Washington at an early hour Sunday morning from their trip to Florida and the South. Owing to the unmeasurable hour of their arrival there were no persons at the station except the railway employes and a few drowsy travelers awaiting the departure of their trains. The members of the party immediately entered the carriages in which they were waiting, and were driven to their homes. They are all well and in good spirits, but are naturally quite fatigued from their journey, and spend the day indoors enjoying much needed rest. The receptions given to the President and Mrs. Cleveland and the party, both on their journey to and through the land of flowers and on their return home, was hearty and enthusiastic. They were delighted with their trip.

The Corcoran Estate.

MR. CORCORAN'S will was offered for probate on Tuesday. It is understood that he changed it many times. His estate foots up something less than $4,000,000. Much of this is in real estate in Washington. The Corcoran building is worth at least $300,000 and the Arlington Hotel property as much more. Mr. Corcoran's residence is valued in the neighborhood of $100,000. The policy of the estate has always been pacific. Chief Arthur has the respect and admiration of every law-abiding citizen in the land because of his wise and prudent management of the difficulties that have arisen from time to time between his men and the railroad companies. The order is the richest in this country and best able to maintain a long struggle.

WILLIAM E. MORRISON A CANDIDATE.

He Wants to Run on the Ticket with President Cleveland.

A WASHINGTON special says that "William R. Morrison, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, has decided to become a candidate for Vice President on the ticket with Mr. Cleveland. Some months ago Assistant Postmaster General Stevenson was thought to be a candidate, but he is now considering his efforts upon the Governorship, and is said to be working in harmony with Black. The engineer of Col. Morrison into the field will make matters lively."

In Foreign Lands.

LONDON dispatches announce that Mr. Gladstone, in an article in the Contemporary Review, makes another appeal to the Conservative party regarding home rule in Ireland.

THE war cloud is still threatening, and the powers are making preparations for war, but on the measures there is a protracted country of negotiations which will precede the tragedy of war. The game of diplomacy is exceedingly interesting to outsiders. A Russo-Franco alliance is said to have been consummated.

THE silver wedding of the Prince and Princess of Wales bids fair to dim the splendor, if not eclipse the effulgence of last summer's rejoicings. That the popularity of the future King and Queen of Great Britain is in no way on the wane is made quite apparent by the extensive preparations which are being everywhere made within the realm to celebrate the event in a royal and befitting manner.

Home Again.

The Presidential party arrived in Washington at an early hour Sunday morning from their trip to Florida and the South. Owing to the unmeasurable hour of their arrival there were no persons at the station except the railway employes and a few drowsy travelers awaiting the departure of their trains. The members of the party immediately entered the carriages in which they were waiting, and were driven to their homes. They are all well and in good spirits, but are naturally quite fatigued from their journey, and spend the day indoors enjoying much needed rest. The receptions given to the President and Mrs. Cleveland and the party, both on their journey to and through the land of flowers and on their return home, was hearty and enthusiastic. They were delighted with their trip.

The Corcoran Estate.

MR. CORCORAN'S will was offered for probate on Tuesday. It is understood that he changed it many times. His estate foots

THE JOURNAL

CHAS. S. GREE, EDITOR.

CHARLEVOIX - - - MICHIGAN

The Manistique Pioneer nominates Gen. Cyrus G. Luce for his own successor.

The Cleveland Association of vessel owners have resolved against loading and unloading vessels on Sunday.

S. O. Fisher of the 19th congressional district of Michigan has been made a members of the national democratic committee.

The senate committee on the District of Columbia voted 6 to 3 against the bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in the District of Columbia. The committee then by a vote of 8 to 1 decided to frame and adopt a local option and high license bill.

The house committee on banking and currency has decided that the new fractional currency to be issued in the denominations of 5, 10, 25, and 50 cents shall be silver certificates and exchangeable for standard dollars deposited in the treasury.

